SERENADE.

Sleep sweet, beloved one, sleep sweet!
Without here night is growing;
The dead leaf falls, the dark boughs meet,
And a chill wind is blowing.
Strange shapes are stirring in the night
To the deep breeze' wailing,
And slow, with wistful gleams of light,
The storm-tossed moon is sailing.

Sleep sweet, beloved one, sleep sweet!
Fold thy white hands, my blossom!
Thy warm limbs in thy lily sheet,
Thy hands upon thy bosom.
Though evil thoughts may walk the dark,
Not one shall rear thy chamber,
But dreams divine shall pause to mark
Singing to lutes of amber.

Sleep sweet, beloved one, sleep sweet!
Though, on thy bosom creeping,
God's hand is laid to feel the beat
Of thy soft heart in sleeping.
The brother angels, Sleep and Death,
Sleep by thy couch and eye thee;
And Sleep stoops down to drink thy breath,
While Death goes softly by thee!

WILD-CAT JIM.

Or, How my Grandmother Suppressed an Insurrection.

I shall not attempt to deny the fact that my grandfather, Prudence Hasall, "wore the breeches" over my grandmother, who answered to the name of Josiah. He was short, fleshy, good-natured, lazy, and could only be aroused by some occasional event. My grandmother, on the contrary, was tall, spare, always scolding, active, and had the ambition of a politician.

Twenty years ago, when almost every New England family had a touch of "Western fever," she looked across the dinner-table at Josiah one day, and commanded:

"Josiah, sell the farm, and we will remove to Iowa."

Just what grandfather said in reply I do not know, but in two weeks he had sold the farm, disposed of his personal property, shaken hands all around, and man and wife were on their way to the West.

"Josiah, buy this house and four acres of land," commanded Prudence, as the couple halted at the county seat of a new county in the northern part of the State.

Again I do not know what grandfather replied, but he made the purchase. Grandmother intended, ultimately, to command grandfather to purchase a farm, but she saw a speculation in buying this property, and beside, knew that nothing would be lost in waiting to look around a little.

"Josiah, take the nomination for sheriff," commanded Prudence, when a delegation waited upon grandfather one day, a few months after his arrival, and informed him that he had been selected as their party candidate for the office named.

Now, my grandmother was just the wrong man to make a good sheriff, especially in that wild district, the home of horse-thieves, counterfeiters, highwaymen and murderers, and he knew his failings. But, when Prudence commanded, he was Josiah's duty to obey, and a week afterwards he had been duly elected county sheriff.

There was some dignity attached to the position, the salary was fair, the jailer had his rent and fuel gratis, and the duties were not so laborious as farm work. My grandmother had thought these things all over, and had planned just how everything should be carried out. She knew that her husband was too good-natured to prosecute a thief, too lazy to catch one, and so, one day, after moving into new quarters, she coolly remarked:

"Josiah, appoint John Granger your first deputy, and also make him assistant jailer."

Two hours after the appointment had been made, the deputy was in possession of his office. Granger was almost a giant in height and weight, was as brave as a lion, had been deputy under the previous administration, and had the name of being the best thief-catcher in the county. My grandmother knew that grandfather could only hold the position in name, for reasons before given, and she had wisely selected Granger, who was a single man, and could, therefore, become an inmate of the family.

The jail was about the only stone building in the county, and it was a good one. The Board of Supervisors had felt the need of some strong place in which to confine the desperate characters hovering around Palmyra, and had accordingly been liberal with the county funds. It was a two-story structure, with a wing for the jailer's family, the second story for females and boys, and thirteen stout cells on the ground floor. Three cells were all in a row, with a ten foot corridor in front. An iron door led out into a large hall, which was also a reception-room. Stairs led from this hall to the second story, there was an office at one end, a wash-room at the other, and then a small hall led into the wing. The door of this little hall was very heavy, and stout, and was always kept locked. All the water, provisions, and so forth, were brought in from the wing through this door. Taken altogether, the jail was a strong one, and grandfather and Granger had their own way about conducting it.

The building held two or three prisoners only when my grandfather took possession, but about a month after that event, eleven of the ground cells were occupied by as desperate a set of men as ever looked through the grates. Three were there on charge of murder, four for highway robbery, and the other four were professional horse-thieves. All were waiting for the session of court, which would result in their being sent to a stronger prison.

One day, while grandfather was wondering who the twelfth man would be, he came in. What his real name was no one knew. He was known all over the State as "Wild-Cat Jim," and was the most daring, reckless, hardened criminal that ever red the State, which is giving him a big puff. He was suspected of half a dozen murders, he had been in prison for highway robbery, he confessed to having stolen upwards of thirty horses, and there was a county and State reward on his head when arrested. He was brought in by four men, and they had him roped and chained until there was no chance for him to move a limb. They carried him in from the wagon, laid him down in the corridor, and after untying him, forced him into a cell at the muzzle of a revolver.

"There's Wild-Cat Jim!" was shouted by half a dozen men as they heard the sound of his voice; a dozen Jim's laughed loud and long.

"Ha! ha! ha!" he roared, slapping his legs as if well pleased. "I'll stay and take two or three meals with you, rest up a bit, and then I'll walk out of your confounded shanty!"

He really meant what he said, but John Granger had contrary ideas on the subject of his walking out. He knew the man, realized what a desperate villain he was, and proposed to keep an eye on him.

The next day after Wild-Cat Jim came in, I arrived at the jail, to pay my relatives a visit. My parents were living in a town about a dozen miles away, and I had permission to remain as long as might suit me. I was then about nine years old, and did not know, and could not be made to fully understand the character of the prisoners in the cells. While I was allowed full liberty to roam about the building alone, even to going down to the main hall, I was cautioned by both grandfather and Granger not to hold any conversation with the prisoners, much less to pass any article to them through the grated door.

It was Granger's habit to allow the prisoners the freedom of their corridor during the day, the men walking up and down reading novels, playing cards, and passing the time as they liked best. There was but one small window in the corridor, the walls were very massive, the door firm, and there was no danger. Wild-Cat Jim was not allowed to leave his cell at first, Granger knowing that he would attempt to take some advantage of the favor. But, after a week had passed away without sign that the villain had a hope of leaving the place, his appeals were listened to by my grandfather, who persuaded Granger into throwing open the cell door.

"He may not be so bad as people make out," remarked Josiah, who always pitied where others condemned. "And if he is as desperate a devil as you say he is, I do not see how he can do any mischief."

Therefore, Jim's cell door was unlocked, and he was allowed to mingle with the rest. As grandfather said nothing in opposition, Granger insisted that the villain should continue to wear his shackles, which were of course something of a safeguard against his escaping. He seemed to have no care whether the shackles were on or off, having assumed the role of a penitent, declaring his intention to reform.

"Look out for that man, John Granger!" cautioned my grandmother, as she looked through the door and caught a glance from the desperado.

The man had been in jail about ten days, and his conduct so far had been all that could be desired. Granger believed that he was plotting his escape; grandfather thought him a much abused man, and grandmother gave no opinion. One Monday morning it became necessary for Granger to make a days journey into another county, and this would leave no one but my two relatives as a guard. My grandfather was cautioned to look out, as the prisoners might attempt an insurrection and an escape; and, for a wonder, he gave the warning attention. He had two revolvers and two rifles in the jail, and he loaded them all. One of the revolvers he put into his pocket, and the other arms were left in the sitting room.

During the forenoon it was discovered that the corridor door was out of order, and grandfather set to work to fix it. Taking a small saw, two files and a hammer, he went at the difficulty, and soon had the door in repair. When through, he placed the tools on a stool in the hall, and went about his work, leaving them there.

Near the middle of the afternoon, having seen that everything was quiet with the prisoners, Josiah laid down for a nap, telling his wife to take an occasional look into the hall. Left to myself, I wandered into the hall, and boylike, began using the tools. The attention of the prisoners was soon attracted, and a voice called me to the door.

"Bub, do you want a whole pound of candy?" inquired Jim, smiling, and trying to look sweet.

"Of course I did; whoever saw a boy that didn't? I had not forgotten the oft-repeated warning not to talk with the prisoners, and leaned against the door, in hopes to see the candy."

Well, sonny, continued Jim, if you will be a good boy, you shall have all the candy you can carry. You see, you are too small a boy to have those tools, and if your grandfather knew of it, he would whip you to death. Just hand them to me through the door, and then he won't know that you have been dallying them. And beside, I'll go down to-morrow and get you all the candy you can eat."

I hesitated for a time, but, convinced that my grandfather would scold, if not whip, and being bribed by the candy bait, I passed in the tools. I yet remember how the prisoners crowded around Jim, shook hands, laughed and danced, but I did not then see any occasion for their demonstrations.

Now, bub, said Jim, returning to the door, you have completely spoiled these tools, and your grandfather will skin you and hang your hide on the fence, if he finds it out. If he asks you where they went, tell him you don't know.

I never had cause to fear either of my kind-hearted relatives, but Jim's words really frightened me. He made further promises about the candy, and I finally went away to the sitting room, determined to tell grandfather a lie if he asked me about the articles.

But he did not ask. He went about his duties after his nap without once thinking of the tools, so of course I did not broach the subject. Granger did not return at night, as intended, but word came from him that it would take another day to conclude his business.

As you will be alone all night, the note read, let me warn you again to look out for Wild-Cat Jim. He will take this opportunity to make you trouble.

Poor! poor! I replied my grandfather as he read the note; Granger is a very active officer, but he is a regular old woman with his whims. I guess I shan't have any trouble with Jim.

And the guess was correct as his guesses usually were.

The night wore away without any disturbance to create alarm. Josiah had taken the pains to see that the locks, doors and bars were all right, and he slept as soundly as a soldier. Each man had been locked in his cell, and the corridor door was a mountain in the path of any attempt at escape.

Not so much as the sigh of a mouse, replied Josiah. It was a remarkably still night.

Well, Josiah, on inquired my grandmother, I heard noise, and plenty of them. There was some devilry going on among the prisoners, I heard a grating sound, as if they were filing off bars. I want to go down with you and see what it was.

My grandfather made no objections, knowing that words could not alter the decision, so after breakfast we passed through into the main hall. Just as Josiah was about to open the corridor door, there was a loud shouting from a female occupying a cell up stairs, and Prudence went up to learn the cause. She was hardly out of sight when Josiah opened the door and went in. I saw him feeling about his person, heard him say "P-haw?" but did not then know that he had forgotten his revolver. While I remained by the door, he went down to cell No. 12, unlocked the padlock, but left it in the staple. He then came along back, serving each door in the same way. This was one of Granger's ideas, he letting out the occupant of cell No. 1, and making him let out the rest. Before the second man was out, the turn key would be outside the hall door. Well, Josiah pulled out the padlock from the staple of No. 1, threw open the door and the next moment was knocked clear across the corridor, while all the prisoners set up a yelling and shouting. Had grandfather been armed he would have been all right, as the prisoner waited to open the next cell before further attack. He then leaped upon grandfather, held him down, and the other men ran from cell to cell to throw off the padlocks.

Shoot the door and lock it, Frank! shouted Josiah, as he saw that an insurrection was to occur; and then ran and told grandmother.

I obeyed him, though terribly frightened, and then hastened up stairs, meeting grandfather at the head, carrying one of the rifles. She heard the struggle, and knew just what it meant. As she stepped upon the stairs, there was a wild yell, a great clatter, and the corridor door was taken off its hinges. As after wards ascertained, the rascals had used the tools with such vigor that the hinges of the door had been almost filed off, and any other man than grandfather must have noticed the work.

Well, the whole twelve came bounding into the hall, having secured my grandfather in a cell, feeling confident that they had only to force the front door to make their escape. Prudence stood on the stairs in plain view of the villains, and they yelled again as they saw her.

Hold on, there! she shouted, bringing the rifle to her shoulder as a sport-man does when about to make an off hand shot. The first man who comes a step nearer will get a bullet in his heart!

Tall, fierce looking, and armed with a deadly weapon, the woman must have seemed like a determined obstacle in the way of escape for the rascals halted in an instant. Still keeping the gun leveled at the crowd, and never once looking at me, my grandmother whispered:

Frank, go down to the sitting room, and bring me up that big revolver. You'll find it in the bottom drawer of the bureau. Be sure and get the big one, and run for your life! The brave woman, while looking the desperadoes in the face, and expecting a rush every moment, had noticed that the percussion cap had dropped from the nipple, and she was yet cool enough to whisper what she did.

I ran with all my might, jerked open the drawer, laid hold of the "Clit," which was a six shooter, and in a moment was back again. The gang had recovered from their surprise, and having but little fear of the rifle (in the hands of a faint away female, they thought), they made a rush for the stairs just as I handed grandmother the weapon. Click! click! went the hammer, there was a yell, a report, and the man who was one third the way up the stairs went rolling down, killed dead by a bullet through his head.

As the smoke lifted, I caught a glimpse of grandmother's face, and it frightened me more than the yell and the shooting. Her eyes were blazing, her teeth set hard, her hair down, blood oozing from her mouth, coming from her bitten lips, and I never since have seen such a sight.

Go back! Go back to your cells this moment! she shouted, descending a step or two, and aiming the revolver at the head of the nearest man.

The gang fell back, back until they were half way down the hall, and then they stopped. Wild-Cat Jim had given the word, and they were going to try it again.

See here, old woman, shouted Jim, raising his fist at her, we'll murder you for this! We didn't want to hurt you, but now we'll roast you alive on the stove.

She was on the middle stair, and I at the head. Without moving her head or betraying the least emotion in her voice, she whispered to me once more:

Frank, if the men get me, do you shut and lock the door, run in to the sitting room, lock that door, and then run into the street and tell the men that the prisoners are loose. If you don't do this they will kill you!

The gang were shouting and shaking their fists, furious at being foiled by a woman, and then in a moment every eye was still. They were going to rush.

Come on, boys! Don't spare her! shouted Wild-Cat Jim, and they rushed. They reached the stairs, came bounding up, and then there was a report, followed by another, and then every thing was still again—everything except the sickening bump! bump! of two dead bodies as they fell from step to step.

The smoke cleared off after a moment, and I saw three dead bodies at the foot of the stairs, and the blanch-faced faces of the nine desperadoes half way down the hall. My grandmother had only been acting on the defence as yet; she now prepared to become the attack party. Walking slowly down the stairs, her eyes looking like blazing coals, her lips covered with blood and foam, and the smoking revolver held ready for use, she stepped over the bodies, advanced to within five feet of the nearest man, and said, her voice sounding like a sharp hiss:

Get back, dogs! Get back into the corridor! The man who stands here, after I have counted ten will become a corpse. I did not faint away, but I came very near it. Clutching the railing for support, I was so blind for a moment that I could not see the figures in the hall, but I could hear the clear voice of grandmother crying out:

One—two—three—four—

She did not count further. The pale faces grew paler, the villains trembled, and they all rushed for the corridor at once. Grandmother followed them to the door, saw that her husband had been locked up, and she commanded:

Each man of you enter your cell and shut the door! I give you just one minute to obey. In less than thirty seconds every prisoner was in his cell. Prudence then went from cell to cell, dropped in the padlocks, then opened the one which Josiah occupied, and he walked out. His face was as white as the paper I write on, and he looked at her in such a vacant way that one would have thought he was crazy or dreaming. But he was only amazed. He had heard all, realized all, and could not comprehend it.

Josiah, lock those doors, and then go and get Coroner Martin, commanded Prudence, turning to go out. Tell him also to bring Mr. Dakin the undertaker.

The woman then sat down in a chair, told her story to the astonished crowd which soon came in, and went through the whole excitement without a flinch. When all was over, she went into the sitting room, had a fit of hysterics as a recreation, and in half an hour was around getting the dinner ready. She had no care for the laudations of the public.

The Barnabys came of a fighting stock, was her reply. Some starved at Valley Forge, some fell at Bunker Hill, one fought under Paul Jones, and the blood hasn't turned to water yet!

Poor! poor! replied my grandfather, when he saw that Josiah had no hand in the victory. Prudence is good for any twelve rascals in the county when she has a fair chance, and I know it!

Each one of the killed was shot dead, Wild-Cat Jim through the heart, and the other two in the forehead. Grandfather wanted to resign his position at once, but the wife would not listen to it, and he (she) was sheriff until the politicians succeeded in doing what the dare devil prisoners could not do.

THE TRAVELLER'S ALPHABET.—The players sit in a circle, or round a table. The first one starts by saying to his left-hand neighbor, "I am going to America," or any other place commencing with A. The one so addressed will turn to his or her left-hand neighbor, and ask, "What will you do there?" The reply must come prompt from the third one, "Ask for apples," or anything commencing with A. In every instance the verbs and nouns must commence with the letter the traveller is journeying to; for instance: "I am going to Bath. What will you do there? Butch my hair. I am going to China. What will you do there? C on China. I am going to Dorey. What will you do there? Dive deep. And so on throughout the alphabet. Should a player hesitate while five be counted, a forfeit is the result; also if any mistake is made in following with the right letter.

AN INGENIOUS DEFENCE.—In the police court at Chicago, a few weeks since, a wife thus ingeniously explained away serious charges of harsh treatment of her poor husband: "One day when she was running across the room with a fork in her hand, he jumped in the way and struck her wrist against the fork, wrenching it from her by the prongs, which he ran into his wrist. Then, he endeavored to strike her but she held up a pan of hot dabs water between them, and he spilled it all over his head. Then he got still more angry at this accident, and started to jump at her, but his head came against her hand, and he fell down. She took hold of his hair to raise him up, and the hair was so moistened by the water that it came off. Then she saw it was no use to reason with him any longer, so she left the house."

A NEW REVELATION.—A little girl had seen her brother playing with his burning glass, and heard him talk about the "focus." Not knowing what the word "focus" meant, she consulted the dictionary and found that the focus was "the place where the rays meet." At dinner, when the family were assembled, she announced, "as grand as could be" that she knew the meaning of one hard word. Her father asked her what it was. She said it was the word "focus."

"Well, Mary," said he, "what does that mean?"

"Why," she replied, "it means a place where they raise calves."

This, of course, raised a great laugh. But she stuck to her point, and produced her dictionary to prove that she was right.

"There, said she, triumphantly, 'Focus'—a place where the rays meet. Calves are meat, and if they raise meat they raise calves. And so I am right, ain't I, father?"

"That is the sweetest belle in the city," said Fine ear, as the vibrations reached his ear from a neighboring church tower. A pretty girl who was passing acknowledged the compliment with a blush and a languishing smile, while she murmured, "He is very bold in his compliments for a stranger; but it is nice to be appreciated." Fine ear does not know to this day why he received so melting a smile from that pretty young lady.

A confirmed old toper soliloquizes: "They say whisky is a curse. And they say brandy is a curse. And they say tobacco is another curse. Well, I wish all those curses would come home to roost, and roost low, at that, so as I could pull 'em' down whenever I wanted 'em."

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 4.
A man named Squires was killed last night in Florenceville. It is rumored that he and Jas. McCann, Jr., of Woodstock, had some words about a cushion, that one accused the other of having taken from his wagon. McCann knocked Squires down, beating him after he fell. When raised up by the onlookers it was discovered he was quite dead. McCann is now under arrest.

Marshall Bazaine, contrary to what is generally thought, is undergoing real and severe detention. He is confined within the fort, and has but the terrace on which to take his walks. The rest of the island is forbidden ground to him. He has no garden at his disposal, as has been reported, with the exception of a few trees and flowers on the terrace. Mrs. Bazaine is with him. She may leave the fort when she pleases, says the London Times; so may Mr. Bazaine's aide-de-camp, but they need a special permission from the Minister of the Interior to re-enter the fort. Hence Mrs. Bazaine stays as long in the prison as possible. The view is extensive only from the terrace, whence the open sea may be discovered. There is not sufficient fresh water in the island; and a small boat which serves to communicate with the coast, brings over the quantity required. The ex-Marshall at first refused a great deal from this scarcity of water. He was obliged to reduce his bath in order to water the flowers on the terrace. Hence the aide-de-camp had to go to Paris to ask that a more abundant supply of fresh water might be brought from the mainland—a request at once granted to the great joy of the prisoner. Bazaine leads a uniform life and seems resigned to his lot. He reads much, works all the morning, is taciturn, and avoids as much as possible showing himself.

A LONG LAW SUIT SETTLED.—The great suit long pending between the heirs of Stephen A. Douglas and the executor of his estate was decided in Chicago, by Judge Williams, in favor of the heirs. This decision gives the heirs Robert and Stephen A. Jr., about a quarter of a million dollars. It was made under the following circumstances:

When Mr. Douglas died he left Doctor P. Rhodes of Cleveland as his executor. His property, mostly real estate in Chicago, being offered for sale, Rhodes agreed with one Dobbin that if the latter bought in all the property he would take one-third off his bid. This was done and the speculators made an immense sum from their investment. The suit was brought to recover on the ground that an executor cannot be interested directly or indirectly in the purchase of property at his own sale, and the judge so decided. But one half of the value of the property was decreed to the children. The other portion would have gone to the widow, but she was barred, having allowed too long a time to elapse before asserting her rights.

LEAVING UTAH.—There is prospect of emigration from Utah to California upon a considerable scale. The San Francisco newspapers announce the arrival in that city of two gentlemen from Utah, the representatives of a number of families who desire to leave Brigham Young's province and to form a colony in the southern part of California—"in some region where priestly domination cannot affect their secular labors." There are already many persons once Mormons in San Bernardino county, and it is probable that the current of emigration may set in that direction.

SAINT ANDREWS, AUG. 3, 1874.

THE TREATY.—From published telegrams we learn that Mr. Brown has submitted a proposition of a sliding scale of duties in the Reciprocity Treaty, which it is reported is favorably entertained. In its present shape, no Parliament or Government could have sufficient support to carry it. The fact is that the public draft did not satisfy anyone.

VISITORS.—During the past week, several visitors arrived here, among them two gentlemen natives of the Town, but who have been absent for upwards of a quarter of a century.

C. A. BARCOCK, Esq., of Bangor, of the old firm of Wm. Babcock & Sons, ship owners and merchants, who did a large business here some years ago, arrived on Friday, and met with a most hearty reception from his old friends, with whom he was always deservedly popular. Time has made but little change in him, and it was pleasant to learn that he is doing a good business in his adopted home.

Capt. Geo. STEPHENSON, also a native of this place, paid a hasty visit here. He commanded for many years an East Indian man, and although a hale and hearty man, retired from the sea a few years ago, having ploughed the ocean to some advantage, and now resides in Brooklyn, New York. The friends of these gentlemen were much pleased to see them. St. Andrews has good reason to be proud of her sons who went abroad in search of employment. Those of them on the Pacific slope have realized handsome compensations.

The Rev. T. Crawley, for some years stationed here, is now on a visit to his many friends in St. Andrews. The Rev. gentleman appears to enjoy good health. We are pleased to learn that he will return here shortly, and has been appointed to his former charge.

THE BECHER-TILTON scandal case, affords sensational news for those fond of such reading. The statements of Tilton, even were they true, are unfit for publication; and a desire for such reading, is evidence of a depraved taste. The New York papers appear to take a delight in elaborating every particular connected with this disgraceful attempt to ruin the character of an amiable and virtuous woman, and destroy the reputation and usefulness of an eminent clergyman.

DEATH OF DR. FISKE.—St. John papers of Tuesday, announce the death of Dr. C. K. Fiske, on Monday morning. He had for some time suffered from a pulmonary disease, which caused a great depression of spirits, and affected his mind. As the family were going to breakfast, he placed a pistol at his ear and discharged its contents, and died immediately. The Doctor was highly respected, and his family have the universal sympathy of the citizens. His age was 54.

SLANG.—It is much to be deplored that there is a disposition to use, and even to publish slang phrases, when plain and pure saxon would not only be more euphonious but correct. It is nothing uncommon to hear such terms as "run" that shop, or hotel, or business. And "go for him," answers all sorts of purposes other than the true meaning. "Not much," "what's s," and "you're whistling, &c." may be heard at any hour, and used by persons supposed to possess a fair education. The fact is, without being hypocritical, they should at once use a slang dictionary, instead of the good old fashioned Walker, Webster or Worcester, if they indulge in such expressions.

Some daring burglars broke into the Convent at Carleton, St. John, last week. There were only three "Sisters" and a house maid in the building at the time. They locked themselves into a room and shouted out "murder," "help," which soon arrived, but the burglars had made their escape through a back window.

THE PICNIC AND REGATTA of the Roman Catholic congregation of St. Stephen and Milton, was held yesterday on Croker's Grounds, at St. Stephen. The day was very fine, without being too warm, and a large concourse of people from the neighboring towns, and from Houlton, Woodstock, St. John and Eastport witnessed the amusements. We have only time to-day to state that the St. John "Logan Crew," won the 1st prize in the four oared race. St. Stephen crew the 2d prize, and the "Dexter Crew," of Lower Cove, St. John, the 3d prize.

The single Scull race was won by Brayley, of Indiantown, St. John; Landers, of Salem, won the 2d prize.

The Baseball Match was won by the "Shamrocks," of St. John.

The names of the successful competitors for the other prizes were not received up to the time of going to press. The whole affair was highly creditable to the Committee, and passed off agreeably.

The haymakers are improving the fine weather and housing the crop, which in this district is an abundant one. Many farmers are still busy cutting and making. Where they have mowing machines, horse rakes and pitchforks, a large amount of work is performed in a short time. The other crops all promise a fair yield; oats, barley and wheat look well, and potatoes, turnips, and carrots are looking well. New potatoes of excellent quality are selling in the market at remunerative prices.

There are very general complaints with reference to the arrival of the "Edgar Stuart," and the loose manner in which freight is stowed on board. Should the tide be low, on arrival here, passengers expect to be set on shore by small boats.

MENAGERIE AND CIRCUS.—We mentioned last week that Messrs. Maginley & Co's great Menagerie and Circus will appear here on Friday, 7th inst., and give two performances. The unusual attractions presented by this establishment will no doubt draw large crowds, as its menagerie and performances are far beyond the traveling circuses which have usually visited the Province. The huge Elephant with its tiny progeny, the Rhinoceros, which performs in the arena, and the other trained animals are very attractive. In fact the mammoth concern embraces four distinct shows. One Ticket admits to all.

THE GREAT FLOOD at Pittsburgh, the details are given in New York papers, was terribly destructive of life and property. Whole families were drowned or killed and a large amount of valuable property destroyed. Many of the scenes are described as heart rending.

THE ALDINE, an artistic monthly, has no equal in America. The August number will delight all lovers of the beautiful. Nothing more graceful or charming has ever been seen in an American magazine than the full-page picture called "The Village Beauty," drawn and engraved by the eminent French artist, C. Meissner. The flowers and shrubbery by which she is surrounded, the naturalness of the drapery in which she is clothed, the rustic path she treads, the innocent expression of her face, all combine to make a rare and lovely picture. This work has been engraved in a delicate and exquisite style, resembling bank-note engravings. Mr. J. D. Woodward contributes a series of grand and bold pictures of the Palisades of the Hudson, some of the most striking scenery in America. The full-page picture of "The Pinnacles of the Palisades" is massive and solid in appearance, and will give the reader a new idea of these great towers of stone. Two large pictures, contributed by Peter Moran, called "The Shady Lane" and "The Sunny Slope," are sure to arrest the attention and please the eye, since they represent pastoral scenes with which all Americans are familiar. The cattle and sheep in the woods, or seeking the brook-side for water, are true to life and full of the spirit of summer time. A picture, full page, remarkable for its light and shade, its rich foliage, and deep clear waters, is from the pencil of Kruseman van Elten, and is a view on Esopus Creek, near Kingston, N.Y. The other illustrations in this number consist of three fine views of Westminster Abbey, a portrait of Augustus Daly and "The Breakfast" by Epp, a German artist. The literary contents of the August "Aldine" consists of seventeen articles, all original, and all replete with interest. Joseph Watson writes of "William Hogarth." Fannie Roper Feudge has an article on "White Elephants." Eugene Fox relates an interesting incident in the life of Ludwig von Beethoven. Mrs. Sherwood has a story called "My Only Ghost." J. C. Stockbridge has an essay called "Memories of Fiesole," and Mrs. E. W. Winthrop, sister of the lamented Theodore Winthrop, has an article on "American English and English English."

Dr. Fuller-Walker has a second article on Westminster Abbey. The poems and numerous editorial articles in the August Aldine are of the usual merit and interest. Subscription price, $5, including "The East" and "The West." Jas. Sutton & Co., publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, New York City.

THE BRUSSELS CONGRESS for the improvement and codification of the principles of international law will probably be remarkable more for what it attempts than for what it accomplishes. In the laudable endeavor to ameliorate the condition of combatants and non-combatants in time of war we fear that it will overreach the mark, and that delay in this way will be caused in instituting some very desirable reforms. A code of one hundred and forty-seven clauses, comprising the at present generally recognized principles of international law, will, in all likelihood, receive the unanimous consent of the delegates. To these, however, it is proposed to add thirty-one new clauses, some of which contain rather startling innovations upon the orthodox "jus gentium," and will undoubtedly give rise to a great deal of discussion and division of opinion. Although no very good reason can be brought forward for the different treatment of non-combatants' property by sea and by land, the effort to make the law symmetrical in this respect will meet with little favor from those nations, which depend largely upon the operations of a naval force in crippling the enemy's mercantile marine. Some of the proposed clauses seem to have emanated from men who have given little practical attention to the necessities of armies in the field. "The effects of prisoners or combatants are in no case to be seized as booty." "Prisoners of war are to be exempt from corporal punishment." "Official lists of killed and wounded are to be exchanged between the combatant armies after every engagement without delay." This last provision could never have been proposed by anyone even moderately acquainted with the exigencies and strategies of military service, and we can fancy the absurdity of a stoppage of arms on the part of a powerful assailant in order to be informed of the damage he has caused to his opponent. It is rumored that the attitude of England, Germany, and Switzerland is by no means favorable to this Congress of Ameliorators, and it is not likely that any mutual understanding will be reached in the matter of these thirty-one additional clauses.—[The Nation.]

SUMMARY.

The Rev. Mr. Tweedie entered upon his duties as Minister of the Methodist Church, in this place, on Sabbath last.

THE CIRCUIT COURT terminated its sittings on Friday last. The shower of Sunday last was of great benefit to the crops, under its influence they are growing rapidly.

COUNTERFEITS.—A dangerous counterfeit having appeared on the five dollar notes of the Treasury Department offers one half per cent. premium for the return of the genuine five dollar notes of that bank to the department for destruction. The notes should be strapped separately, and should be included in packages of national bank notes returned to the Treasurer for redemption and may be returned at the expense of the department. All genuine five dollar notes of this bank should hereafter be refused, and notes of that denomination thus driven off circulation. No more of these notes will be issued hereafter by the Comptroller of the Currency to that bank.

A NEW VILLAGE.—A village is rapidly growing at the ferry landing, opposite Woodstock; some thirty buildings, mostly all new, may now be counted in an almost compact cluster. A bridge across the river would tend to promote the settlement of the beautiful and fertile flat lying along the eastern bank, which would then afford most desirable attractions for persons doing business in Woodstock as well as those whose business is in Northampton.—[Sentinel.]

NARROW ESCAPE.—A young woman narrowly escaped death on Sunday last in Milton, Queen's Co., from an attack of a large bull. She was knocked about so terribly by the infuriated creature that she was entirely deprived of her clothing, and when found was very much bruised in several parts of her body. Strange to say, however, she received no internal injuries. It is a marvel that she escaped with her life.—[Reporter.]

EXTRAORDINARY ESCAPE.—A few days ago Mr. Isaac Allen of Bedford, when working at his saw mill suddenly missed a child of his that had been playing about. Suspecting something wrong, he stopped the mill and saw a piece of the child's dress in the wheel. Two or three hands were immediately called and tore up the covering of the wheel, to take out what they supposed would be a dead body, when to their amazement, the child suddenly gave a cry of relief, apparently a little the worse for the bath.

NEW QUARRIES AT WALLACE.—Wallace, which has become already famous for its stone, is making further and rapid developments in the same line. A company is being organized to open and work a new freestone quarry on the Hurd farm, situated on the opposite side of the Creek from Parrott's quarry. Another company has its prospectus out to open a quarry on the lot belonging to the estate of the late Joshua Heustis, Esq., and immediately adjoining the quarry of the Wallace Grey Stone Company.—[Maritime Sentinel.]

THE PORTON ROADS.—The report that the business contract between the Eastern Railroad, and the Boston and Maine Railroad, has been broken up by a violation of faith on the part of the Boston and Maine is authoritative, and is denied by the Boston press. They state that it probably grew out of the fact that in increased business on the Eastern road demand one or more through trains to Portland, which will be put on by agreement, August 1st, and continue till September 1st.

ANOTHER MINIATURE STEAMER.—A beautiful little steam yacht, built by Messrs. Burrell, Johnson & Co., was launched from their building yard on Saturday last, and now lies at their wharf. Her dimensions are as follows:—Length, 46 feet; beam, 12 feet; depth of hold, 5 feet—being 27 1/2 tons measurement. Her hull is of oak, fastened with galvanized iron. She is fitted with a surface condensing steam engine of 20 horse power, and an upright tubular boiler (to carry 100 lbs steam pressure), all of the best material and workmanship. The owners of the "Gipsy" are Messrs. B. Kirkpatrick & Co., and others, of Picton, N. S., two of whom—Capt. Scott, and Mr. Anderson, her engineer—are here and express themselves as highly pleased with her. She is intended to be employed in Picton harbor for light towing, carrying pleasure parties &c. and also as a water boat, for which purpose she is supplied with a large steam pump worked from the main boiler.—[Yarmouth Herald.]

LARGE STRAWBERRIES.—On Friday last we received from Capt. Hugh Cann, a present of a lot of Strawberries raised in his garden—the finest we have ever seen. Twenty two of them weighed a pound. They were of the called "Knox's 700," and besides being large in size, are of very delicious flavor.—[Ibid.]

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.

The Aldine,

AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIVER-SALLY ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST
PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REFRE-SCENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Altho'
each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper
and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common peculiarity in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantage of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures
and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.
The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos.
The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial
over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20th, 1873.
Messrs. JAMES SUTTON & Co., Gentlemen,—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful reproductions of my original paintings.
Very respectfully,
THOS. MORAN.

TERMS.

$3 per annum in advance, with Oil Chromos free.
For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable
only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar

Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Walker's Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect
Renovator and Invigorator of the system.
Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs,
in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine,
and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants
in every form.

R. H. McDONALD & Co.,
Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California,
and cor. Washington and Charles Sts., New York.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters
according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means,
and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Bra-
zos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others,
with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary.
There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored "bilious matter" with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache,
Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness
of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swell-ings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Scalded Neck,
Gout, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent
Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent
and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VIN-EGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetters,
Salt Rheum, Itch, Scabs, Spots, Pimples, Pus-
tules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald
Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Sores, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics, will free the system from worms
like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work.
The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use VINEGAR BIT-TERS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores;
cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
