OTTAWA, March 2.—The first business ore the House to-day was a motion by r. Weldon to restore to the order paper is bill to disfranchise men who receive ibes, which was thrown out in committee ast night. Mr. Davies said he would not pose the bill if it provided for investition into the conduct of the guiltier men those who pay bribes. Mr. Jeannotte, fiery French speaker, vigorously opposed the restoration of the bill, but the motion

Mr. Speaker announced that he had ssued his warrant for a new election in Yaudreuil, owing to the unseating of Mr. McMillan (Conservative).

After Mr. Costigan brought in his bill elating to masters and mates, Mr. Baird, Conservative M. P. for Queens, N. B., said the bill did not go far enough. Grave inquiry should be made into the great de-crease in shipping of the Maritime Prov-One half of the shipping of St. John has gone in recent years, and 25 per ent, has been lost throughout the Provinces. Mr. Laurier (aside) said that was really prosperity. Mr. Baird, continuing, said Canada's shipping is going, while that of the United States is increasing. He atof the United States is increasing. He attributed part of the difference to over strict mayigation laws in the Dominion. The Government regulations drive our rained seamen to the States, and in many other ways overtax and restrict the operations of vessel-owners. He asked for a commission to find out why shipping is being destroyed at a rate so alarming. Commodore Walsh indorsed Mr. Baird's contentions. One result of the present condition of affairs, he said, is that nearly all our lumber trade is said, is that nearly all our lumber trade is now carried on by foreigners.

Mr. Davies said the impressions of Mr. Baird indorsed all he contended for a few days ago when attacked by the member cays ago when attacked by the member for Center Toronto (Mr. Cockburn.) The crisis is a grave one, indeed, said Mr. Davies. Mr. Gibson (Lincoln) said when he came to Lincoln in 1854 there was a large shipping interest. Since then it has almost disappeared, He argued in favor of simpler regulations. The bill was read a first time.

Sir John Thompson moved that Monday be a Government day. He saw that a certain member (Mr. Tarte) had said that he meant to bring up the Manitoba school question on that day so as to have it discussed before he (Sir John) left for another sphere, and he could then have an opportunity to bring it up on motion for supply.

Last night Dr. Sproule charged that Mr. Lester was interested in oil lands, and that while the member for West Lambton many instances oppressive and otherwise favored the abolition of the binder twine duty he was quite willing to have farmers pay 150 per cent, daty on his coal oil. Mr. Lister now took Mr. Sproule to task and and that not for eleven years had he been interested in oil lands directly or indirectly, and that he never had been and was not now in favor of farmers being charged 150 per cent. tax on their coal oil.

candidly said he did not vote four times, though he was perfectly willing to do so.

Mr. McCarthy exposed another moment of weakness on the part of Finance Minister Foster. Last year the House of Commons Foster. Last year the House of Commons passed a resolution calling on the Government to communicate with the Imperial authorities the derire of Canada to have official representatives at Washington and other seats of government. Mr. McCarthy asked if a reply to that communication had been received. Mr. Foster replied that he and Sir John Abbott had made representations to Lord Rosebery, and that his impression from the conversation that took place was that serious difficulties were in the way of Canada having representatives at foreign capitals with ambassadorial functions. His impression was that the British Government would give every assistance through its Ministers to unofficial Lanadian representatives.

"Are we to understand," asked Mr. Laurier, with some warmth, "that no official communication has been made to the British Government?" "Sir John Abbott and myself had a personal communication," said Mr. Foster. "Surely," contended Mr. Laurier, "it was a gross dereliction of duty to make no official communication after the order of this House." Sir Richard Cartwright said the House had had enough of this method of doing business. vailed. Senator Boulton (Conservative) contended Mr. Laurier, "it was a gross dereliction of duty to make no official communication after the order of this House." Sir Richard Cartwright said the House had had enough of this method of doing business. Certainly there should be a record of such transactions. "We already have an illustration of this in regard to the reciprosity negotiations. Here official papers are ibsent and there is a direct conflict of testimony," retorted Sir Richard. "That is quite unfounded said Mr. Foster with warmth," "It is quite well founded" maintained Sir Richard.

Mr. McMullen asked whether in view of evelations made regarding the cotton combine by Mr. Edgar, the First Minister meant to carry out his promise of last session, to put an end to that combination. Sir John Thompson replied that the Government would carefully inquire into the charges, adding that the information now before him leads to the conclusion that they are based as convergences information.

On motion to go into committee of sup-On motion to go into committee of supply, and in a very thin House, Dr. Weldon brought up the lease of certain coal lands in Cape Breton, N. S. Dr. Weldon wants Parliament to interfere with this bargain, notwithstanding that it was almost unanimously indorsed by the Nova Scotia Legislature. He tried to get the Governor-General to meddle with it a few days ago, but was politely snubbed, and so he discussed the whole question, announcing that he had forwarded to Lord Roseberg papers showing the important bearing of that he had forwarded to Lord Rosebery papers showing the important bearing of the question on Imperial interests. He claimed that under the new arrangements it would be easy for foreigners to get con-trol of the whole coal supply of eastern Coands.

Mr. Kenny (Halifax) ridiculed Dr. Wel-Mr. Kenny (Halifax) ridiculed Dr. Weldon's fears, and contended that the disposal of the Nova Scotia coal mines was a purely domestic metter for that Province to settle. While Mr. Kenny was speaking Sir Donald Smith, who is a member of the coal company attacked, as is also Mr. Van Horne, of the C. P. R., entered the House, and was warmly applauded. "The investment of $7,000,000," said Mr. Kenny, "will not injure any of the other Provinces." Mr. McKay (Hamilton) denied that the matter interested the Lower Provinces alone. The whole coal supply of Ontario, he asserted, is imperiled by this bargain.

Dr. Weldon's plea, and pointed out that the Confederation Act vested the entire control of coal lands in the Provincial Legislature. It was therefore the most absurd to say that any bargain made by that Province with regard to coal should be revised by other Provinces. As well say that Nova Scotia should revise bargains made by Ontario with regard to lumber or bargains of other Provinces made as to lands. The argument is conclusive against the propriety of interference by the Dominion Government, even though he did not believe the bargain to be a wise one. American capital has been of the greatest advantage to Nova Scotia and had practically run the mines of that Province. There is little cause for alarm about the length of the lease, and few grounds for fear of a combination to increase the price of coal. Nova Scotia has time after time offered to let the Dominion control the mines, and take in lieu a fair subsidy, but the Dominion Government would not revise Confederation agreements.

Mr. McNeill regretted Sir John Thomp Mr. McNeill regretted Sir John Thompson's reply to Mr. Weldon's speech. He contended that the act should be disallowed by the Dominion Government as detrimental to the public interests. Mr. Fraser cleverly pointed out that Dr. Weldon voted last night in favor of binder twine; to-night he is frantic with fear lest a combine may be formed in coal. Sir Donald Smith contended that the coal deal is a purely business matter, and in no way menacing to Canadian interests. It is not, he said, disloyal to associate with American capitalists of high honor to develop Canadian natural industries.

The House adjourned at 12:10 a.m.

Great interest was evinced in the House to-night, when it was found that D'Alton McCarthy had placed upon the notice paper the tollowing resolution leveled at the present tarifi: "That since the introduction of the protective system sufficient time has elapsed for the establishment and development of such manufacturing industries as under existing conditions can be successfully carried on in Canada. Moreover, many manufacturers, sheltered behind the ramparts thus erected, have formed combinations and trusts which prohibit competition and create and maintain monopolies. "That the existing tariff, defensible only as a protective measure, has proven in many instances oppressive and burdensome the consuming classes, perative.

"That in the opinion of this House, the tariff ought to be at once amended in respect to the matters he indicated, and also by the substantial reduction of customs duties in favor of the United Kingdom, in whose markets all Canadian products are admitted free, and of those nations which under treaty obligations with Great Britain would be entitled to the same advantages, graduated, however, so as not unnecessarily to prejudice the business of the country, nor to do wrong to those who have it imported and paid duties in accordance with its provisions.

"And this House declares its readiness to make a like reduction in favor of such other portions of the empire or with such other foreign countries, especially the United States of America, as are willing to reciprocate in matters of trade with Canadu on fair and equitable terms."

A GREAT CRASH

In the Lowell Electric Street Railway Company's Power Bouse.

Company's Power House.

Lowell, Mass., March 2.—An iron pulley on a dynamo at the power house of the electric street railway company burst this morning. A piece of the pulley struck the fly wheel of the engine, twenty feet in diameter, having a rim of iron three inches thick and making 72 revolutions a minute. It was smashed in an instant, and the iron rim, which was made in sections, scattered in all directions, shattering the building.

A. H. Mead, of Corinth, the engineer, was struck on the head by a piece of iron and died in a few minutes. Geo. Laugley, an oiler, had his jaw broken. Pieces of the wheel were hurled through the roof and fell 100 yards distant in the fields, and the brick walls were torn out as though made of paper. One piece of the wheel, weighing nearly a ton, was thrown upon the Boston and Lowell railroad tracks.

The moment the explosion occurred all the electric street cars in the city stopped and were unable to move until another dynamo and engine could be started up an hour later. A ton section of the flywheel crashed through the brick wall of the engine house and the brick wall of the repair shop.

The second note she struck sent off a dynamite cartridge which had been placed in the instrument at the factory by some expert workmen who understood apparently just where it would be most likely to receive a forcible blow. The cartridge tore the piano into fragments. A Step Forward.

London, March 2.—Sir William Harourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in introducing the Liquor Trade Veto Bill in the House, argued that, the liquor traffic being a monopoly regulated by the state, Parliament had the right to deal with it. The present licensing authorities, he said, were not popular bodies; the county council could not properly deal with the matter of licenses. The bill sought therefore to establish a control of the traffic by popular veto—the best system known, as by it the needs and desires of individual communities could be satisfied in accordance with the local conditions. troducing the Liquor Trade Veto Bill in

Mr. Balfour, leader of the Unionists, questioned the correctness of this assertion. Col. William Redmond, Parnellite leader, challenged Col. Saunderson amid Irish cheers and Opposition laughter to repeat these words outside the House. Col. Saunderson offered to repeat them anywhere.

Before the vote the Opposition whips were busy bringing in every available member as they hoped to be able to take the Government by surprise with an adverse majority. The division, however, resulted in the defeat of Mr. Russell's motion by 260 members to 216. The announcement of the figures evoked loud Liberal cheers.

New York, March 3.—The Washington correspondent of the Press telegraphs that paper an interview he has had with Senator John Sherman, on the probable outcome of the outflow of gold to Europe. The Senator is quoted as saying, "There is nothing to incicate a panic so far as I can see. If it indicates anything it is that banks of the continent are strengthening their gold reserve. In fact there seems to be a scramble among the nations of the old a scramble among the nations of the old world just now, to get all the gold they can. This is particularly the case in France. Austria wants money to resume specie payments, just as we did in 1875. Russia and Germany also seem to want to strengthen their war exchequer as much as possible. For some cause or other, whether from the possibility of war or the failure of the Baring Bros. some years ago, the banks of the continent are vieing with each other in establishing a strong and stable gold reserve to meet any emergency. I think there ought to be a ratio of one to three in the gold in the treasury to the amount of money in circulation. This is the rule in Europe and it would be well for the United States to profit by the experience."

Never in the was from west to northwest. Never in the history of this parish has such destruction been seen. Its track presents a scene which is indeed pitiful and which baffles description. Scattered timber and uprooted trees now mark the places where once large residences stood. In addition to the velocity of the wind there was rain which poured down in volumes for two hours. All who were left homeless were exposed to it. It is a strange fact that only two persons were killed — Max only two persons were killed — Max Bromllette and a child of Mr. Laberdi

Serious Difficulty Over a Clause of the Bill.

Return of the Civic Deputation From the Capital.

The City's Side of the Case-The Sydicate Refuse to Withdraw the Clause —Will the Lease be Knocked Out? -Special Meeting of the Council Called - Electric Matters Looked Into.

Mayor Essery, Ald. Parnell, Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald and Ald. Coo, members of the civic railway deputation, returned from Ottawa and Montreal to-day. They looked tired and worried with the vast amount of information they brought back and the troublesome developments at the capital, The city solicitor and engineer are still in Montreal.

Events at Ottawa, were very serious in Montreal.

Events at Ottawa were very serious indeed. Judging by the tone of their remarks, it has come to a straight pull between the city and the syndicate. The latter want a certain clause put through, and the deputation absolutely declined to assent to it. For that reason a special meeting of the council will be held Saturday night, at which everything will be elucidated. A member of the deputation explained the trouble thus:

"We told him we understood the coal companies of Ohio were at their back, and surely they would not stick at $200, 000 or $250,000. 'The backing we got out of the coal companies didn's amount to shucks,' he replied. "Is this bluff or cannot you actually allow this clause to be struck out?' we asked. He said there was no bluff about it at all.

"We discovered that we could not get the amendments to the clause we required in on account of some technicality, and then the amendments to the clause we required the amendments to the clause we required in on account of some technicality, and then Mr. Ivey turned around and offered to help us, because he knew there was no chance of our succeeding. We then said that clause 12 had to come out. If it comes out we throw the whole deal up,' said Mr. Ivey. Finding we could not agree, Mr. Ivey suggested a week's postponement. We assented and came home to consult the council, as we did not wish to assume so council, as we did not wish to assume so council, as we did not wish to assume so important a responsibility ourselves."

"What is the matter with this clause 12?" queried the reporter.

"Matter enough," replied the city father. "It is the key to the whole agreement and one which vitally affects the city sinancial interests. Clause 12, as the syndicate wish it incorporated in the act, over-rides the agreement which the city entered into with them. It gives them power to mortgage all their property—the rolling stock, slip-dock, hotel, everything—in order to raise money to run the road. Where would the city's security he in case the lessees failed to comply with the terms of the lessees failed to comply with the in case the lessees failed to comply with the terms of the lease? Those properties are the only securities we have after the $25,000 is withdrawn in three months. The paid-up capital stack of $100,000 deem't afford any. But that is not all. The other part of it is even worse. Why, under it the syndicate can work it so that the city cannot get a cent of rent! Here are the exact words in the clause that explain my meaning: 'Provided, however, that the tolls and revenues of the road shall be subject in the FIRST PLACE to the payment of any alty imposed for non-compliance the Railway Act respecting remains to be made to the Minister of Railways and to the payment of the WORKING EXPENSES of the payment of the WORKING EXPENSES of the

(From Toronto Globe of Thursday.)

A mass meeting of the Patrons of Industry, members of the Trades and Labor Council and other representatives of labor, was held in St. Lawrence Hall last evening to discuss questions of interest to working men and women. Mr. C. A. Mallory, grand president of the Patrons of Industry, presided, and was supported on the platform by Messrs. T. W. Banton, Robt. Glockling, D. A. Carey, G. T. Beales, A. F. Jury, E. Heppinstall, E. H. Hilburn, R. Curry, A. Gifford, A. Foster and others.

In opening the proceedings the chairman welcomed so many representatives of various branches of labor organizations. He believed there was very much upon which they could all agree, and he felt sure that such a meeting must bring about a common line of action in the future, in which they could help forward the one great movement they all had in view—the advancement of the industrial classes. Such a conference for the interchange of ideas must do great good to all par cipating. (Hear, hear.)

a conference for the interchange of ideas must do great good to all par cipating. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. T. W. Banton, president of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council, was the first-speaker. He extended to the representatives of the Patrons and Grangers very cordial greetings. It was a significant sign of the times that such a meeting could be got together. The farmers were an intensely practical class, and he believed he could claim the same for the Trades and Labor Council. They were not Utopian dreamers, but were content to jog along the line of practical politics. They watched municipal politics, and took action when they thought it necessary, and the result was that their influence was being felt. He was afraid that there was sometimes a feeling of hostility between the agricultural classes in the country and the industrial classes in the cities. Possibly it was so, but he thought the strained feeling was more artificial than real and the result of mistaken ideas, which a little mutual explanation would remove. Proceeding, the speaker drew a rapid sketch of the movement looking towards the emancipation of the labor classes since its inception a century and a half ago, and concluded by declaring that to-day all classes were uniting in one great democratic movement towards a common goal, which must eventually elevate the industrial classes to their proper place in society. (Cheers.)

declaring that to-day all classes were allowed in one great democratic movement towards a common goal, which must eventually elevate the industrial classes to their proper place in society. (Cheers.)

GRAND MASTER OF THE GRANGE.

Mr. E. Heppinstall, grand master of the Dominion Grange, spoke of the great advances the agricultural classes had made during the present generation. By organization they had greatly improved their social, educational and moral standing; they had learned from one another very much which was beneficial and mutually helpful. But much remained yet to be done. They desired to have a voice in the legislative halls of their country—(cheers)—so that they could ameliorate their condition at the source. They were determined not to be led by the nose any longer; they would not be at the beck and call of any political party, but would assert their independence and secure a corresponding influence and advantage. (Applause.)

Mr. John Miller, grand vice-president of the Patrons of Industry, who introduced advantage. (Applause.)

Mr. John Miller, grand vice-president of the Patrons of Industry, who introduced advantage is an old, gray-headed farmer who loved the farmer's life as one of the most honorable and independent possible, sketched the development of the Patrons' movement, and spoke of its position to-day in the body politic. During the past two years the movement had spread from the St. Clair River to the eastern boundary of the Province, and even across the division line until it was knocking at the fortress of old Quebec. A year ago there were none so poor as would do them reverence, but to-day they were welcomed by the mayor and leading citizens; the city gave them the free use of that hall and thanked them for occupying it. (Laughter.) They were uniting the rarmers of Ontario and of Canada into one solid mass, and advancing their social, political and financial condition. In conclusion Mr. Miller declared it was a fallacy to suppose that the farmers should take no interest in politics, b

He referred to the good which had resulted across the line from the united action between the city and country industrial classes. The Knights of Labor and other city organizations always thought of the farmers in the most kindly spirit, and he was delighted at the opportunity offered then and there of meeting in social discussion and conference. It must result in cussion and conference. It must result in funtual good, and he was satisfied that the next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be set time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that hall would not be next time they met that the next time th mutual good, and he was satisfied that the next time they met that hall would not be big enough to accommodate them. (Hear, hear.)

Mir. J. Robinson of the Dominion Grange ceierred to the good work the Grange movement had accomplished in the past, and declared that the co-peration of the ladies had done much to help forward that work. (Hear, hear.) In the course of his remarks he ventured the avowal that he colly right tax to impose. He fully emborsed all that had been said upon the necessity of the farmer discussing political issues in the light of their effect upon the agricultural classes.

Mr. Alfred Jury was next introduced and cordially received. He said the object of the meeting was to bring about the interchange of ideas between the farmers and he city workers—the producers in the field and in the factory. They wanted to satisfy one another of their identity of interests. One of the main planks in the platform of the Knights of Labor was cheaptransporta-tion, and no question more closely interested the farmer. No country had a heavier burden to bear than that imposed upon this country by the sarrying corporations. (Cheers.) These corporations should be controlled by the people and not the people by the ecrporations. (Renewed cheers.) Then the question of competition required attention; those classes which preached the doctrine of the necessity of competition were more and more hedging themselves in from it and attempting to protect themselves from its effects. Legislatures were occupied most of their time in legislating for these classes. This should be changed, and it rested with labor organizations to a large extent to attend to this. tions to a large extent to attend to this. (Hear, hear.)

changed, and it rested with labor organizations to a large extent to attend to this. (Hear, hear.)

Continuing, the speaker declared that the time had come when some effort should be made to do away with the middleman and deal direct with one another, and thus put the intermediate profit into their own pockets. Then it was time that a more determined effort was made to be properly represented in Parliament. (Hear, hear.)

Let them send farmers, men who understood their wants, and not nonentities. (Cheers.) The machinery of government needs changing, too. It might have been all right when representative government was first granted, but it was now behind the times. The improvements must go along the line of grouped constituencies with the cumulative vote, the adoption of the referendum with the initiative of all legislation by the people at large; then, and then only, would legislation be secured in the interests of the classes. (Cheered.)

OPPOSED TO STRIKES.

Mr. A. Gitiord, a representative of the Patrons of Industry, spoke briefly, giving some further facts of the organization. Speaking of the past he said that labor unions had been led into strikes to better their position, but he was satisfied that this was a terrible mistake. (Hear, hear.) They should combine to secure the necessary legislation which would improve their position and not waste their substance in strikes and similar unwise and ineffective methods. It had been alleged that the farmer had not as much intelligence as amost people. This was a base libel. (Hear, hear.) They should combine to secure the necessary legislation which would improve their position and not waste their substance in strikes and similar unwise and ineffective methods. It had been alleged that the farmer had not as much intelligence as any class, but they had neglected to use that intelligence aright and to the best advantage. He concluded by urging united action, to bring about improved legislation and a consequent improved legislation and a consequent improved legislatio meeting. If any misunderstanding had existed between the city and the country laborers he did not think either were altogether to blame, but they would understand each other better in the future. The question of politics had been mentioned. It was absurd to say politics must not be discussed. The manufacturers did not stop to consided whether a question before them was politics; it was the 35 or 40 per cent. tariff they were after, and did not trouble with the question of politics. (Applause.) They, too, must discuss every question affecting them without fear or favor. Their interests were absolutely identical, and they must pull together and nothing could stand before them. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. O. Curry, of the Patrons, was the next speaker. He said many evils had been spoken of, but the real remedy had not been mentioned. The great root of all evil here and across the line was extreme party politics. (Cheers.) Party politics in its very inception was wrong. The agriculturists and the laboring men must have conventions of their own and choose men unapproachable by any ring or unable to be touched by the taint of undue influence. (Cheers.) Until the day was reached when this can be accomplished it would be useless to hope for any improvement, but he believed the day was fast approaching, and when the dawn came the people would be truly free. (Cheers.)

RESOLVED TO OBGANIZE.

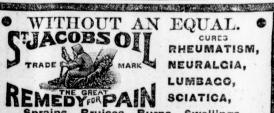

This concluded the prearranged programme, and it was then moved by J. Lockie Wilson, seconded by F. Kennedy, and resolved, that this joint meeting of the farms, trades and labor organizations represented here to-night appoint a committee for the purpose of effecting combined action for the furthering of their common interests. At the request of the chairman, representatives of each organization present met at the close of the proceedings to give effect so the foregoing.

Mr. E. H. Hilburn, of the Grangers, having spoken briefly, the audience called for proceedings to give effect so the foregoing.

Mr. E. H. Hilburn, of the Grangers, having spoken briefly, the audience called for Mr. Joseph Stratford, president of the Farmer's Binder Twine Company, of Brantford. He said the factory now operating in Brantford was one of the greatest monuments to the value of combined effort in existence. They now had 66 spindles operating. There were 48 in the Central Prison, and the Consumers' National Cordage Company had 500. Let the farmers stand shoulder to shoulder, and in a very short time they would break the great monopoly which had so long oppressed them. (Cheers.)

This ended the speaking, and the gathering dispersed with cheers for the Queen.

THE PRIEST IN IRISH POLITICS. Much has been made by the English Unionist papers of the judicial decisions invalidating the results of the elections for members of Parliament held last July in the North and South Meath constituencies of Ireland. Mr. Michael Davitt and Mr. Fullam, the candidates of the "Nationalist" or McCarthyite section of the Irish party, were returned over their "Parnellite" opponents. The court held that in these contests the Catholic priests exercised undue influence, amounting to intimidation, in favor of the successful candidates, and unseated Davitt and Fullam on this ground. The decision has naturally been made use of extensively to sustain the anti-home rule claim that the Irish people are priest-ridden in politics, and that legislative independence for Ireland would mean simply clerical control applied to Irish affairs in a large

The Nineteenth Century for January prints an article by Mr. Michael Davitt on the Meath cases, and on the general ques-tion of the attitude and influence of the Catholic clergy in the politics of Ireland. The views of Mr. Davitt, as a beneficiary of such exertions as were made by the priests of Meath, and as one of the most prominent and most earnest of Catholic Irishmen, are naturally very different from those ex-pressed by the English U nionist writers.

Mr. Davitt sharply criticises these writers for inconsistency in denouncing the acts of the Irish priests and at the same time ignoring the corrupt practices used in behalf of Tory candidates in English constituencies. (Two or three English members, it will be recalled, have been unseated by the courts on the ground that they, or their representative, used improper methods to get votes.)

"Money, beer, free-taps, and PrimroseDame meat-and-drink pienics," Mr. Davitt sarcastically observes, "are pardonable imistakes when employed to win contests against Liberals and Home Rulers. There is no likeness in this to the abominable
'spiritual intimidation' practiced in Meath.

"In one day's report of the trial of the Rochester election petition the following items of political persuasion were mentioned in evidence: 'Scottish whiskies, lemonade, cake, bread and butter, and sandwiches for 1,000 people; cigars, beer, and whisky consumed; a salmon promised; beef and bread supplied in form of sandwiches; 2,000 sandwiches consumed at a conversazione, with eight dozen bottles of beer; smoking concert with beer; three-penny tickets exchanged for eatables; £45 expended on a fete, the provisions at which were demolished by the first contingent; £100 expended for another fete; refreshments, cakes, hampers, and teas; expenses on the conversaziones, £100. Mr. Conney (for the public prosecutor) in proposing to ask witness a question, observed that, if he converted the whole constituency into registration canvassers and entertained them on the eve of the general election, he brought himself very nearly within the law.

"I think the learned judges who tried the nature. Mr. J. W. Leonard will succeed Mr. Tait at Toronto. His many triends extend congratulations and good wishes.

Thus, from the Canada Presbyterian, must be admitted to be a rather palpable hit: "Prayers are being offered against home rule in the Protestant Episcopal churches in the diocese of Down. It would be interesting to know if any petitions are presented asking relief for the people of Wales, three-fourths of whom are compelled to aupport a church in which they do not believe. Strange, is it not, that the people who are bubbling over with prefessed sympathy for the Protestants of Ulater should at the same time be fighting like Trojans to keep ecclesiastical fetters on the Presbyterians, Baptists and Methodists of England and Wales."

subservient to such improper priestly influence as was used in Meath. Upon this point he speaks very emphatically: "There is not in the whole of Ireland a voter, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least possible, peril by voting contrary to the thing is too absurd. Fifty thousand Catholies voted in opposition to the side taken by many of their elergy in the 42 contests waged by Parnellite candidates in Nationalist constituencies last july. These voters represented every class of electors in the chieve he places his soul in any, the least possible, peril by voting contrary to the divice, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least possible, peril by voting contrary to the divice, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least possible, peril by voting contrary to the divice, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least voter, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least voter, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least voter, literate or illiterate, so obtuse as to believe he places his soul in any, the least voter, literate or il West Clare a Protestant Parnellite was returned by a large majority over the Catholic Nationalist, who had the active support of the priests of the constituency. South Roscommon, where the Catholics are probably 98 per cent. of the voters, was carried against the candidate of the Irish party, though supported by the local priesthood. In Dublin city and county, within the very heart of the diocese of Archbishop Walsh, not a single Nationalist was elected, though many of them were men of reputation and experience in the popular cause, and had the active, sympathetic support of the distinguished prelate whom it pleases Lord Salisbury to describe as the virtual governor of Ireland sum main support of Mr. Gladstone's Administration."

Mr. Davitt gives various other instances

Mr. Davitt gives various other instance to support his claim that the people of Ireland are with the priests so far as the priests are with them in the cause of home rule, but are resolutely independent of ill-judged but are resolutely independent of ill-judged clerical dictation. He also scouts the accusation that Irish politics is manipulated from Rome. He recalls the fact that when the Vatican disapproved the objects of the National tribute to Mr. Parnell, the people of Irish and Transfer this interference. of Ireland resented this interference, so that the Parnell fund, "which was not expected to reach £20,000, mounted rapidly that the Parnell fund, "which was not expected to reach £20,000, mounted rapidly to close upon £40,000."

"Anti-home rule politicians may squirm at the face as much as they please, but the power and the prestige of the Irish priest are the creation of those very systems which the Unionists are resolved if possible to perpetuate, in the face of their utter and abysmal failure to serve the purposes for which they were established, or to benefit the people subjected to them. While the law of eviction remains the law of the land, and Dublin Castle supplies the instruments of its execution, the political bond which unites the Irish priest to the Irish peasant will never be broken. As the priest has not been afraid even to go against Rome when Rome went wrong on Irish questions, he is not likely to err on the side of weakness towards eastle rule and landlordism while they are the embodiment of injustice to the people. And the people would be fools to listen to the voices of those who ask them to discard such allies. The church, in a political sense, is the tower of strength to a popular cause when its ministers are heart and soul with the people's aspirations. Churches may be dangerous to liberty when they are rich and are trammeled by State obligations or by class influences. If the Catholic Church had been endowed by the English Government in Ireland, it would have lost every vestige of political power with our people. As it is, it has preserved an influence commensurate with the fidelity of its priests to the people's cause." its priests to the people's cause.

BABIES ON FIRE

Babies burning up, babies in agony from itching and burning eczemas and other torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly and blotchy skin and scalp diseases. None but mothers realize how these little ones suffer when their tender skins are literally on fire. To know that a single application of the CUTICURA REMEDIES will in the great majority of cases afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep, and point to a permanent and economical (because most speedy) cure, and not to use them is to fail in your duty. Think of the years of suffering entailed by such neglect, years not only of physical but of mental suffering by reason of per-sonal disfigurement. Why delay a moment longer the use of these great skin cures, blood purifiers, and humor remedies? Cures made in infancy and childhood are speedy, economical and almost invariably permanent.

AN OPENING ADDRESS.

Bro. Cornelius Osborne, vice-president of the West Durham County Association, presided over the recent annual meeting in the absence of County President Thomas Gibson from illness. His opening address

Gibson from illness. His opening address is as below:

Brethren,—I gladly welcome you to this the first annual meeting of the West Durham County Association held since its organization three months ago. When I remember the difficulties with which we had to contend and when I look at the numbers before me, I feel that we may congratulate ourselves that we have achieved some success. The fact that in almost every school section the farmers and laborers are becoming united, reminds us that a long-felt want is being supplied.

I feel that an organization has arisen at last that is truly representative of the farmers and laborers, one that has power and authority to speak and act in their behalf and one that is able and willing to battle in defense of their rights.

Brethren, they tell us that a wave of depression has passed over our land. You will all agree with methat our own country has not escaped that depression. When I remember our many advantages, our immense resources, the industry and intelligence of our agricultural population, our facilities for transportation and the perfection to which labor-saving machinery has been brought, I am forced to the conclusion that we are not as prosperous as we ought to be.

There are many things that at present ought to be.

There are many things that at preser sion that we are not as prosperous service ought to be.

There are many things that at present work against us. One reason is that at present our produce has to pass through the hands of speculators before reaching a proper market and must pay a living to every person engaged in handling it. It also has to pay duty before being admitted into some of the foreign markets. What wonder, therefore, if the balance left to us as farmers and laborers is insufficient remuneration for our labor?

On the other hand almost everything we have to buy is supplied by combinations and monopolies and an amount is extorted from us above and beyond the real value of the article purchased. All this shows that we as agriculturists should unite our forces in our own defense. What could we, fighting individually, accomplish? Opposed to us are powerful combines which will require our united influence to overcome. My opinion is that our salvation must to a great extent come from ourselves. This society is now in the hands of the farmers and laborers of this country and may be the means of doing great good. If any legislation is required our united demands and our united influence cannot be set at usught.

We have been accused of being in antagonism to the merchants and manufacturers. I reply, if there is such antagonism it was not our seeking and we are prepared to deal tairly and liberally with all. As our society is new it will take some to get accustomed to its workings, but I think we are fast gotting to understand its machin ery.

It is with pleasure I call your attention is the saft question of the

A SUPERB SPECTACLE!

Graphic Picture of a Descri Caravan on the March.

A great caravan in march is a superb spectacle, alas! too infrequent now in northern Africa. At first Arabs alone can detect it, a mere speck lost in a dusty halo, whence it emerges at length, a tawny-colored mass possessed of a strange motion, the swarming of a thousand lives in one. Here and there silhouettes of straggling camels stand profiled, like hieroglyphics, on the fiery sky, as, insensibly trailing its snake-like curves, the convoy advances. Hours after being sighted, it passes in slow defile, led by a vanguard of blooded camels, whose gait and bearing have an air of arrogance not customary to that race of proletarians, the chieftains seated aloft in their floating burnooses, alert of eye, with gun in hand, statuesque guardians of the convoy-treasure. Beind them the camels of burden, exhausted less by loads than with the fatigues of the journey, their legs and croppers baid and scarred by blows, straggle forward languidly, thrusting out the tongue as they press their huge, spongy feet in the yielding ground. What resignation in their soft, staring eyes! Verily, no philosopher knows better than these poor brutes how inane are the revolts against inexorable fate. Near at hand wall the drivers, their emancipated features awaygley illumined by eyes of fire, and white, gleaming teeth piercing their parched lips. Of all who started with the caravan, how many have fallen by the way, abandoned to agonize alone in the desolation?—[From "A Sarahan Caravan," by A. F. Jaccaei, in the March Scribner. President Miller, of the Cleveland syndicate, arrived home from Detroit last night. EPresident Miller, or the Color acte, arrived home from Detroit last night. He says that there is no certainty that the 60 days arrangement with the M. C. R. would be continued for that period, as the L. and P. S. R. held the right to terminate it at any time. Mr. Ledyard, he said, had refused point blank to accept the terms of the L. and P. S. R. for running powers, saying that an arrangement whereby the I. and P. S. R. Company would haul M. saying that an arrangement whereby the L and P. S. R. Company would haul M. C. R. freight was just what he wanted. The syndicate is paying the Grand Trunk $1,000 for the terminal facilities afforded $1,000 for the terminal facilities afforded here for a term expiring at the end of the year. By that time the city will have, by the terms of the lease, provided a free terminus. Mr. Miller said that the city, in the event of the M. C. R. leaving the city, which he thinks a probability, might hand over the M. C. R. terminal to the Port Stanley Road. Mr. Miller wants fair and equal treatment of both companies by the city. If the latter reduces the M. C. R. expenses he will make a big kick to have the Port Stanley road placed on the same basis. He says they are at a disadvantage in having to pay for terminal facilities when the Grand Trunk are competing for freight to St. Thomas by shipping via Glencoe.

which started about 8 o'clock this morning NEW YORK, March 3.—During a fire, which started about 8 o'clock this morning in the six-story tenement, 194 Henry street, five children were suffocated. Their names are Altuman Bernstein, aged 11 years; Rebecca Bernstein, aged 11 years; Rebecca Bernstein, aged 11 years; Hyman Bernstein, aged 6 years; Rachel Bernstein, aged 6 months: Fanny Rosen, aged 7 years. The children were of the families of Abraham Bernstein and Solomon Rosen. They lived alone in the rear of the top floor. They were alone at the time, locked in their rooms and helpless. Many of the tenants suffered slight injuries in the wild panic which followed the fire. A kerosene stove was the cause of the tragedy. Loss of fire was the cause of the tragedy. LOCAL OPTION IN GREAT BRITAIN

The Gladstone Government has kept its ledge to the friends of prohibition in Great Britain. Sir William Harcourt has introduced a bill providing that the question, whether or not licenses to sell liquor at retail shall be issued in a given community shall be submitted to the voters of tha community. Until we see the text of the bill we cannot say how the areas in which the right of local option is to be exercised are defined. We presume, however, that in rural districts the unit will be the parish, in rural districts the unit will be the parish, while a borough or city, no matter what its population, will be permitted to determine whether liquor can be sold within the municipal precincts. To divide a city or borough for the purpose of a local option act would obviously fail to meet the wishes of the prohibitionists.

This bill takes no account of the agitation, which of late has acquired considerable momentum, in favor of adopting in England the so-called Gothenburg system, under which all retail sales of liquor are made by municipal officers for municipal account. Although most conspicuously associated with the Swedish town of Gothenburg, this plan has been tried in many enburg, this plan has been tried in many other centers of urban population, both in Sweden and Norway. "But, mamma, what shall I do about Rupert?" Virgie asked, looking troubled.

Mrs. Alexander's face fell at the mention of the young man's name.

She had scarcely slept during the night, for many things troubled her; and, among others, the thought that Virgie's engagement to Rupert Hamilton seemed like, y to complicate matters very much when she should be ready to make her claim upon Sir William Heath.

"You can leave a note telling him that we are obliged to leave the city for a while, and we can explain further to him when we ascertain just how we are to be situated," her mother rep led, after considering a moment. So, when Rupert called that evening, he found only a note awaiting him instead of the bright face he had hoped to see, while it told him that his betrothed and her mother had been unexpectedly called away from London upon important business, which might detain them a week, perhaps longer.

"It is very strange that she does not

Sir William's chamber was just back of the library, although there was no door communicating with it.

The same furnace-pipe, however, conducted heat to the two rooms, and, by stationing herself close to this, her ladyship haw she could overhear whatever might pass between the two men. She therefore alipped quietly into her brother's bedroom, locked the door, and, creeping close to the register, laid her eager car against it.

Rupert was already with Sir William, for the housekeeper had detained Lady Linton for a few moments with questions recarding some domestic metter, but she was in season to hear him broach the subject so near his heart.

"I have come to make a confession to you, nele Will," he said, as ne seated himself 'pposite his guardian.
"A confession! Nothing very serious, I ope," said Sir William, glancing keenly inthe flushed face of his ward.

"Yes, I think it is of rather a serious sature, he returned, smiling slightly. "I wish to tell you that I have become deeply attached to Miss Alexander, to whom I introduced you last night, and to ask your sanction to our engagement."

1 "An ! has it gone so far as that?" inquired Sir William. "I began to surmise last evening that see was taking your heart captive, but did not imagine matters had reached a crisis yet."

"Don't you think her lovely, Uncle Will?"
Rupert asked, eagerly.
"Very lovely; but, my boy, the ocean rolls between England and America. I cannot bear the thought of a separation from you. Rupert."

"Nor I from you, my dear guardian; and, I assure you, you need not fear it, for the young lady does not object to a permanent residence in England. I trust you will not oppose my marriage with Miss Alexander."

"Rupert," said Sir William, gravely, "my only wish is for your happiness, and if Miss Alexander is the woman of your choice—if you are sure that she alone can make you happy—then I can only say heaven bless you and grant that tyour future may be all that you desire."

"Thank you, Uncle Will. I—I hope you do not disapprove of my choice of a wife?" Rupert said, regarding his guardian's grave lace anxiously.

"No, no," returned the baronet, hastiy, "I admired the little lady very my hadring."

The young man began to fear he was tresassing somewhat upon Mrs. Alexander's onfidence, and resolved that he would be-confidence, and resolved that he would betray no more at present.

"Are you sure that the family is one with which you will feel proud to ally yourself?"
Sir William inquired.

"I know but very little concerning their family," Rupert admitted. "I doubt if they have any, but everything about them indicates that they are above reprosch, while Mr. Knight, the gentleman whom I met in America, and of whom you have often heard me speak, introduced them, and he is of irreproachable character. He occupied a position in New York, and it is in compliance with his request that, they are pre-nounce your engagement just yet," remarked Sir William, with some surprise.

"No, sir. At Mrs. Alexander's request, we shall delay is for the present, until she secures the property of which I have already spoken."
"How much of an heiress is your pretty fiances going to be, Rupert?" his guardian asked.
"I cannot tell. I do not know of what this property consists," the young man answered, thoughtfully.
"I am afraid there is something a little mysterious about these ladies. Doesn't it strike you so?" inquired Sir William, gravely, yet without a suspicion of the wonderful truth.
Rupert knew there was, but he was not going to confess it, and hereplied, evasively:
"I do not imagine there is anything but what will soon be satisfactorily explained to us all."

Dr. Teasdall, who was called in, said that another half hour's exposure in the poisonous atmosphere would have resulted fatally. Mr. Bliss owes his recovery in part to the prompt and vigorous action of Mr. John Barous, one of the boarders at the hotel, who as soon as his condition was discovered carried him into another room and set about restoring his senses. A petition was received from several residents of the east end regarding the improper condition of a drain running between Elizabeth and Adelaide streets. It requested that no taxes be collected on said drain. Laid over for the engineer to report. The claim of J. Graham for $4.24 for damages to cutter on account of the improper condition of one of the city streets was paid on recommendation of the engineer. The clause of last committee report relating to the petition of the Canadian General Electric Light Company to erect poles was reaffirmed, the committee also adopting the plan of the city engineer for erecting the same. A communication was received from the street railway company regarding the removal of snow from the streets. It also contained a statement of the storms since Jan. 1. There were 24 stormy days, 3 of which were said to be the worst for many years, and 2 bitzzards. An account from Smith Bros. for repairs made at the City Hall was ordered to be paid. A CHANCE FOR THE SYNDICATE To Furnish the Waterworks Department with Coal it It is Cheap Enough.

The Board Lets Contracts for General Supplier.

Acting Mayor Moule, Wm. Jones (chairman), Commissioner Cowan and Secretary Ellwood constituted yesterday afternoon's special meeting of the water commissioners called to consider tenders. The tenders submitted were 28 in number, and were for almost everything required in the working of the waterworks system, from a street hydrant to a tenpenny nail, and from an office ledger to the cotton waste for the engines. There were two tenders for brass work, but one of them, that of Essex & Co. was not accomparied by the requisite marked check and it was not considered. Stevens & Burns were awarded the contract for brass and iron work that will be needed by the department. Jessie Cook got the contract for laying all necessary pipes. S. H. Craig will furnish 4-inch pipes at $33 97 and 8-inch pipes at $32 95 per ton.

The coal tenders came next on the list.

Acting Mayor Moule—Supposing they bring in coal from Cleveland, how will it affect you? Would it not be better to leave this matter over for awhile?

This query caused some discussion, and as there was enough coal to last two or three months, the tenders were laid over, because, as Chairman Jones expressed it, "it may be possible to get a cheaper rate further or "I have be not and the enders of an and Engineer Moore and The Board Lets Contracts for General Supplies.

THE COTTON COMBINE.

THE COTTON COMBINE.

(The Week.)

Mr. Edgar's exposure of the workings of the cotton combines of the Dominion, if his facts can be established, is one of the most powerful arraignments of the Canadian protective system which has yet been made. In view of the declarations of the present Premier in his capacity of leader of the Commons last session, it is difficult to see how he can refuse to grant substantial relief, save by a sweeping denial of the alleged facts. Every intelligent Canadian should read the speech and insist on knowing whether the facts are as represented. It can be a matter of indifference to no one whether the people of Canada last year, in addition to paying $1,114,424 as duties on imported cottons goods, were muleted to the extent of $4,000,000 for the benefit of the domestic combines. Every Canadian is interested in knowing whether it be true that, whereas under the Dominion Companies Act, a company applying for incorporation for any ordinary and legitimate purpose with a capital of $5,000,000 would have been obliged to show that one half of that amount had been actually subscribed, the Dominion Cotton Company was incorporated with a capital of $5,000,000 with subscribed stock to the amount of only $50,000. There is an evident defect in the computation by which Mr. Edgar seeks to show that the cotton combine, in addition to the $4,000,000 which they were enabled by law to take from Canadian consumers of cotton last year, reaped a profit of $8,000,000 on the year's transactions, for in reaching that conclusion he takes account only on the cost of the two items of the world of the consumers of cotton last year, reaped a profit of $8,000,000 on the year's transactions, for in reaching that conclusion he takes account only on the cost of the two items of the world of the control of the second on the year's transactions, for in reaching that conclusion he takes account only on the cost of the two items of the world of the control of the second on the year's transactions, for in reaching that conc

A WOMAN'S INSURANCE COMPANY (New York Press.)

The recent formation of the Woman's Insurance Company at Chicago is an experiment which, if properly managed, may remove an injustice to which the feminine sex has too long been subjected. Many insurance companies have rigidly excluded women from their risks on account of the peculiar perils to which their sex is exposed; but the fact that an equilibrium in the numbers of the sexes is steadily maintained shows that counteracting causes are constantly as work neutralizing these perils.

constantly as work neutralizing these perils.

If this were not true it would be only a matter of time when the male population would far outstrip that of the opposite sex. As a general rule the habits of women are more temperate and regular than those of men. Their lives are more quiet and uniform, undisturbed by the violent excitements to which the masculine sex is exposed. Their domestic avocations exempt them from many finalities to which the masculine element is liable. The records of disasters on railways and in factories and mines are fruitful illustrations of this fact.
