[Canadian Press.] Washington, Aug. 23. - John D. Archbold, pictured to the rublic as political manager and directing genlus of Standard Oil, today took the witness stand before the Senate committee investigating campaign funds, to tell his version of contributions to the campaign of 1904, now the subject of dispute between Senator Penrose and former President Roosevelt

Mr. Archbold was sworn and Sena tor Clapp asked him what contribution the Standard Oil Company had made to the campaign of 1904.

"We made two contributions to the Republican campaign in 1904, one to Cornelius N. Bliss, of $100,000, and the other to Senator Penrose of $25,-000," replied Mr. Archbold.

"Had you any previous talk with Mr. Bliss as to this matter before you make the contribution?" asked Senator Clapp.

"Yes, some time before, either at my office or that of H. H. Rogers," answered Mr. Archbold. "We had a talk about politics and contributions, and I said the matter would have to be submitted to our board. It was submitted later and the board decides to contribute."

I have shown them to certain con-tractors, and they could make no more out of them than I did. When the specifications read according to my ideas, they will be signed by me. As a result no work has been done on the building. It is to be completed by October, but at the present rate of progress it will not be ready for a long time after that date.

Row in a Talbot Street House Aired in the Police Court.

An early morning row in a Talbot street boarding house was straightened out in the Carling street police court this morning, when a Greek giving the name of Frank Davis was assessed $5 for having assaulted a fellow-boarder,

According to the story told by the Greek's sister-in-law, Mrs. Davis, she was aroused in her room at 5 o'clock this morning, when a man whom she recognized as Monroe entered. She ordered him out, and, going to Davis' room, complained of what she said had happened. Davis accordingly waited until Munroe came down as usual in the morning, and assaulted him before any person could interfere. Davis then disappeared, and was later arrested at the Grand Trunk depot by P. C. Marshall Box. Munroe denied having been out of his room during the night, and stated that he did not know the cause of the pummelling he received.

The young woman, whose volubility got on the nerves of the magistrate, paid over the $5 and 50 cents costs for her brother-in-law.

The silvery hair and beard and the Legislation to This End Will Likely Be Enacted Shortly.

Legislation dealing with motorcycles will probably be taken up by the city council at its next meeting. Judging from the present temper of the aldermen, drastic steps will be taken to prevent the nuisance caused by these machines, Ald, Robinson is taking the question up, and will make a report to the council on the subject.

"The noise from the machines is unbearable," he stated last night. "Residents on paved streets, such as Queen's avenue, for instance, complain that the motorcycles rush past their houses at all hours of the day and night, with the result that it is im-possible to sleep. No mufflers are used on these machines, and the average motorcycle makes as much noise as a locomotive. In many other cities, they compel the owners to have the machines equipped with mufflers, and I do not see why we should not do so. They break the speed laws, too, and this matter should be gone into."

CITY HALL SITE

Ald. Coles Wants Ratepayers to Vote-Wm. Hayman May Oppose Mayor.

The aldermen are worrying considerably these days regarding the city hall site, and frequent discussions are held concerning it. There is no ques-tion, but that a majority of the alder-men are committed to the property at the southwest corner of Richmond and Maple streets. Unless there is a stampede, not anticipated at the present time, this location will be chosen Ald. Coles, chairman of the special city hall committee, will urge the council to submit the whole question to the people.

"I think it is the only thing left for time to build a hall on any of the sites mentioned prominently. We will have to go to the people for money to build a proper structure, and we might as well allow the ratepayers to settle the question of a site, together with the amount of money to be expended on the building. If we were to choose a location, not satisfactory to the people, they would defeat a by-law for more money. We would find urselves in a most awkward position, f that happened. Submit Three Propositions. "My idea would be to submit three definite propositions, and allow the citizens to select that which was most favorable. I am working out a couple of schemes now. If the people want a cheap site, I can secure one cheap enough to satisfy anybody. But I do not think the citizens want us to be too cheap. They desire to have a hall of which they will be proud. I do not think the site on Richmond and Maole streets is a commendable one, and will never get my support."

The East End ratepayers are greatly agitated over the matter, and are bringing pressure to bear upon the ouncil to place the hall east on Dundas street.

"If Mayor Graham puts that hall or the Richmond and Maple streets site will run against him for mayor, or see to it that somebody else does run. said Mr. William Hayman. "There is no excuse for placing it on that site."

LOCAL DRAYMEN HAVE GRIEVANCES

Want To Be Allowed to Solicit Business on the City Streets.

NEW STAND A POOR ONE

Men Are Not Asking To Be Allowed to Stand Their Vehicles on York Street Again.

The draymen of London dislike the new stand provided for their use mouths by the city.

They point out that they pay a license of $2 a year for the privilege of doing business on the streets, as well business tax on their horses and vehicles, and also the usual tax upon real estate, if they are lucky enough to own any.

No Harsh Words. When an Advertiser reporter visited the stand this morning there were no harsh things said of the propertyowners on York street, whose protests finally resulted in the stand being ordered from that locality. In fact, the men do not ask to be allowed to stand their drays on York street, but they point out that it is impossible to get any business on the site now provided by the city. What they do desire is the privilege of soliciting business behind the Grand Trunk depot on York street. The men have been on Clarence street since Tuesday, and one man claims that he has earned 25 cents claims that he has earned 25 cents since that day. They are afraid to be seen loitering on the streets, because W. H. Bartlett claims that he has been summoned for allowing his dray to stand four minutes on York street while he went to the Grand Trunk baggageroom to secure two trunks be-

Police on the Scene. The police will not allow the dray-men to stand on York street without their drays, and so far the Grand Trunk Railway Company have refused permission to the men to use their property to solicit business.

The present location is beyond doubt a bad one for the men. When the passenger trains draw into the depot the stand is completely hidden from view, and no stranger would think of looking in that direction for a dray. And leadquarters, in grafting,

The state's attorney has been able to lote a series of interesting coincinever be proved that the money in would be very dangerous to attempt to cross the tracks to hail a drayman. The field has been named "Graham's Pasture" in honor of the mayor. It is covered with loads of rubbish ashes, and the drays are drawn up in anything but orderly style, owing to the condition of the ground. Some veinstances the animals and rigs are inches deep in mud. For Half a Century. Mr. Samuel Burt, a quiet, peaceable, old citizen, who has been a drayman for half a century, stated this morning that the men had been allowed to stand for forty years or nearly so on York street. Previous to the building of the Oddfellows' Hall on the corner of Park avenue and Dundas street, the dray stand was located on Park avenue, north from Dundas, but when the Oddfellows' building was put up, the drays were sent down to York street. It appears to be the opinion of many citizens that the dray stand south of the G. T. R. on Clarence street should be leveled off by the city, and the place made as good as possible under the circumstances. Certainly when the wet weather of the fall arrives it will be impossible for either men or horses to occupy the field.

Watching P. M. Judd.

The men are anxiously waiting to see what P. M. Judd will do in the case of W. H. Bartlett, who claims that he only went to get two trunks at the depot, and was summoned. If they cannot seek business on the street they will be compelled to seek some place other than the one provided by the city as a stand on Clarence

LONDON, FRIDAY, AUG. 23. A CHEEKY APPEAL.

His opponents are assailing Sir Wilfrid Laurier because he is going West at a time when they contend he should remain in Ottawa to attend "a conference on imperial naval needs," to quote our local contemporary.

They pay the veteran a high compliment. In the first place, they dread the effect of his western tour upon the fortunes of the Government. In the second place, they confess that Mr. Borden is in deep water, and they appeal to Sir Wilfrid to throw him a life-preserver.

At least Sir Wilfrid had the courage to formulate his own naval pollcy; he took the plunge, ready to swim or sink. He can afford to smile at the politicians who tried to sink him on this issue, and who are now thoundering beyond their depth, alternately crying to him for help and abusing

It is now the duty of Mr. Borden to frame his own naval proposals, with the aid of Messrs. Monk, Nantel, and Pelletier. It is no easy task; it is conceivable that Mr. Borden would be grateful for Sir Wilfrid's assistance. When he might have joined with Sir Wilfrid in taking the question out of party politics he struck hands with paign contributions will try to decide the Quebec Nationalists, who de- what happened in 1904 between Mr. nounced the Laurier naval act as a sacrifice of the Canadian people to the charged that he was aware of and British Moloch. #### LABRADOR AS A FOOD SUPPLY.

Labrador as a vast reindeer ranch that will supply the British Islands and Canada with a large proportion of their meat, is a hope expressed by Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell in an article in The Outlook. Dr. Grenfell states that he: .. experimented with in the last few years have proven beyond doubt that as a domestic animal that produces food of two kinds-milk and meat-and in addition is a transport; factor to be reckoned with in its own habitat, the reindeer is certain to year. Mr. Borden has aroused in have a considerable influence on the England the expectation of a Canamarkets of the world.

As the writer points out, Secretary Seward was ridiculed when he brought about the prchase of Alaska by the United States. That country's mineral wealth was unproved, and it was regarded as a bleak waste land, much the same as Labrador is at present. But Alaska has started into the reindeer industry, seriously and scientifically, and last year one hundred and twenty-five carcasses marketed in is physically and mentally going to Seattle brought twenty c nts a pound, the dogs. Mr. Chamberlain has for At the present rate of increase, it is years cried that it was going to the calculated that in twenty-five years dogs commercially. Labrador has the natural food for of moss-and the animals require practically no attention, except as is needed to keep them within range. In selling, fifty stags to meet expenses, and since that time, although fifty more were sold, the herd has increased to eight hundred and fifty, and in a few months will be twelve hundred. For the first time they were moved recently from their original feeding ground, and it seems certain that the land can support a countless number. They can endure the climate and will well when there is a sufficient number.

In a few years Canadians may expect to be eating reindeer meat which has a flavor "somewhat between that of beef and lamb, and is most delectable." In conclusion, Dr. Grenfell voices his faith in the land of Labrador as a whole, after this fashion:

"Without posing as attorney for the Creator in the endeavor to defend his economy in having produced so large a quantity of material of problematical value, I want to go on record as one who per-sonally has faith in the future of Labrador and in its mineral resources, and the adaptability of its valleys by drainage and culture for er crops of the recessaries of life. I have no doubt whatever that, with proper conservation of its animal resources, it offers yet a valuaddition to the possession of Canada and the British Empire, an addition of which only a few today see the meaning. Alaska, British Columbia, the great Northwest, Klondike, Cobalt, and generally the whole of "Our Lady of the Snows," had to win their laurels against severe criticism, an unmerited combat, and much neglect. But the Great Dominion is finding herself all safely, and one day Labrador also will come to her own.

An August magazine printed the following letter from John D. Archbold, of the Standard Oil Company, to Senaro: Petrose, one of the Roosevelt managers, under date of Oct. 13, 1904. less than a month before the presidential election day:

"In fulfilment of our understanding it gives me pleasure to hand you herewith certificate of deposit to your favor for $25,000, and with good wishes, am, etc."

Senator Penrose says that this $25,-000 was part of a contribution of $125,-000 to the Republican cause. HOW WAR SCARES START.

[Stratford Beacon.] Bertha Krupp, daughter of the great German gunmaker, is reputed to have a fortune in the neighborhood of $70,000,-000. How much of that fortune has been built up by the promotion of war scares between Germany and Britain it be difficult to say, but recent revelations show that when the business of making of guns, building of battleships and manufacture of other munitions of war is relaxing it is revived in both countries by

There should strike after strike until they and their ruffianly agents learn their lesson well. Self-respecting women who resent curses and contumley deserve public support. ### Summer Reading; Why Frothy?

(By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

Must holiday reading always be of gossamer lightness? There seems to be a tradition in the bookselling world that nothing but summer-girl novels will go in July and August. If this is a fact, pity 'tis, 'tis true. If Bertha M. Clay and Mary Jane Holmes occupy the minds of young ladies at the beaches between meals, and if a halfdozen novels of the latest stripes and most lurid jackets stir the pulses of the young men of this country, as they fill in their spare time at the summer resorts, we may be sure of this, that they will not come back to their autumn tasks with an extra cerebral development Long holidays by lake or stream ought to bring young people into a more serious mood than prevails with them in the city. They are near to Nature's heart, and Nature is pretty serious in most of her manifestations. It passes my understanding how anyone can spend day after day in country places or by lake shore without having a great curiosity to know more about the teeming life that pursues its devious way beneath rock and stone, in bark of tree and leaf and flower, and everywhere beneath the sun. "Bugology" is a fascinating study, more interesting than heaps of summer novels.

I suppose that those who delight in frivoling would cry fudge at this kind of talk. Let me remind them, however, that, when you do get the habit of reading serious books, they become as intoxicating as the fiction of Elinor laugh the other day when I read an article by dear old Alexander Whyte, Edinburgh. He was talking about holiday books in this strain: "And what an intense and exhilarating delight are good books, new and old, on an autumn holiday!-new books, of real worth, that we have not had time to read in the city, and old books that we want to read over and over again, as Dr. Jowett read Boswell for the fiftieth time, and as Mr. Spurgeon read Bunyan for the hundredth time; the best novel of the year, the best biography, the best poem, the best book of philosophy, or of science, or of travels; and old books-our old Shakespeare, and Baker, and Hooker, and Milton, and Bunyan, and Butler." Then he goes on to say that he has never taken a holiday in all these years but that he himself has carried with him one of the works of Thomas Goodwin. ment for jolly days in Switzerland or ing of underground methods. elsewhere.

This article by Alexander Whyte, honest old soul, made me chuckle. In the wildest flights of my imagination I have been unable to conjure up the picture of a Canadian youth or maiden We shirk putting in a volume of Bacon or Milton or Hooker for light summer reading. Oh, would that some daring young man would do me the kindness to cut his wisdom teeth on Richard Hooker, that henpecked but proud defender of the Thirty-nine, Articles, and then write me concerning a new-found joy! Oh, that some western Minerya, in a princess gown, would take with her old Butler's "Analogy," and read every page six times before she sees the light!! If Paul and Virginia at the beach would concentrate on Hooker and Butler, they would certainly find a new form of excitement which would at any rate keep them happy on rainy days.

Joanhos LONDON WAS DRENCHED BY HEAVY RAINFALL

People at Ball Game Waded in the Mud to Catch Street Cars.

The daily rainfall in London on Thursday exceeded the usual, and London was drenched by a downpour which amounted to about half an inch.

The rain spoiled the ball game in Tecumseh Park, and for nearly half an hour after the game with Hamilton was called off, the crowd sat in the shelter of the stand awaiting . a chance to race for a street car on Dundas street. Incidentally, it might be remarked that the cars at the switch are compelled to stop in a mudhole which would be a disgrace to a back corcession road in a township that had gone to seed, and ladies were compelled to wade in mud over their shoe tops in order to reach the trolleys. Baseball is admittedly a good thing for London, but the city and the London street railway are apparently not overly mindful of the interests of patrons of Tecumseh Park. Something should be done to remedy this mudhole, even if the directors have to go down in their pockets to pay the bill for a few loads of gravel. At Springbank Park numerous picnic parties were compelled to race for cover when the rain came on, while in the city delivery drivers and others

The roads about the city were just reinning to recover from the heavy downpour of previous days, when they were once again turned into mud ent anything but the king of outdoor anusements. Cars coming in from long trips look like the old stage coaches which half a century ago ran-from Deadwood to Cheyenne.

Feels Slighted.

Dear Miss Grey: I have been keep-ing company with a gentleman for four years, and he has proposed and I have consented to marry him, but still, when he meets me out at garden parties and picnics, he does not pay any attention to me when I go with my sisters or brothers. What would you do in a case of this kind, as I feel rather slighted at times? Hoping to see your answer before long and thanking you, I remain,

Dear Miss Grey: We have had ar argument as to which is the proper way to eat vegetables. Washington made a great uphill fight, as indicated by the count, and knocked Mullin off the slab in less than four innings after he had six runs ahead. Willett, who replaced Mullin, was effective. Hughes, of Washington, was wild, and Vaughn was easy to hit.

Almost anything that can happen in a ball game was crowded into this one. There was fielding of the finest sort, and fielding that was faulty. There were hits that looked as if they never would stop going, and others that were simply freaks. On one occasion, to add to the thrilis. Cobb was struck out with every cushion occupied. Morgan made a noble attempt at setting a new world record for second-basing, accepting twelve chances without a slip.

JOE PATCHEN II. RETURNS TO FORM

Canadian Horse Defeats Mansfield and Grand Opera at Salem.

KNIGHT ONWARDO DOWN

Pulls in in Fourth Position in Mount Washington For 2:12 Pacers-The Results.

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Aug. 22. — A crowd of 30,000 people visited the Rockingham Park fair and Grand Circuit races this afternoon. Small fields and straight heat aces featured the afternoon's sport. The American Horse Breeders' Futurity for three-year-old trotters, the second of the rich events for the age to be raced this season, was the big event of the day, and like the first the major part of the purse went to fatten the bank account of the Kentucky turfman, John E. Madden, owner of Brighton B., who won the event in straight heats.

Joe Patchen II. atoned for his de-feat of last week at Buffalo by beating Knight Onwardo, his conqueror at the Fort Erie track, and other fast ones, in easy fashion.

The victories of both of these were expected, but a big upset came in the 2:18 trotting stake, in which the Colorado filly, Zarrine, defeated the New England mare, Annie Kohl, who was figured to have a first mortgage overdue on the event.

Princess Todd in First Start.
Princess Todd, the star two-yearold futurity winner of 1911, made her first start of the season in the threeyear-old futurity, and with Murphy driving she was figured as likely to give Brighton a hot argument.

She broke in the first heat and dropped out, but in the second heat the Madden colt got away, and led nearly to the half, after which she fell back, broke, and Brighton B. won easily, Andrews pulling him up at the finish to let Count Daschkoff inside the flag. Had he been driven out he could have beaten 2:10 even over such a slow track as Rockingham, Zarrine, driven by the kid teamster, Ramey Macey, has been winning regularly on the two-lap tracks in Maine, but it was hardly figured that she could beat a 2:07 trotter like Annie Kohl. She did it easily, and was not brought to a drive in any of the three heats.

The pacing division of the Horse Breeders' Futurity was simply a gift for the western filly, Annie Axme, in very slow time.

Joe Patchen II. Easy Winner.

Several of the same pacers which started in the race in which Joe Patchen II. was beaten at Buffalo, started in the 2:12 stake against the Canadian stallion, but today he was on his good behavior, and that means that he could play with any of the stake horses he has been meeting. In the second heat he paced in 2:061/4, the track record. Mansfield proved a surprise, beating Grand Opera and Knight Onwardo for the place, in hard drives each time. American Horse Breeders' Futurity. 3-year-olds, trotting, purse $6,000, 2

WASHINGTON TAKES A HAND IN THE FERRY TROUBLE

Acting Under Advice of Navigation Commissioner, Ferry Company Will Resume Service on Saturday—Boats Will Not Runon Schedule Same as Formerly.

SARNIA BRANCH OFFICE, 209 Front Street. Office hours, 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., 3:30

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Aug. 23.—The dispute be-tween the town and the Port Huron and Sarnia Ferry Company is rapidly approaching an international climax, and only the exercise of delicate diplomacy may avoid a most unpleasant

This places the affair beyond the province of the town, and if the local authorities still prohibit the smaller boats from landing serious complications will likely ensue.
The New Schedule.

The ferry company will start operat-mg all their boats on Saturday morning as a passenger and freight service, and will run from their usual landing place in the American city to their own dock in Sarnia. Furthermore a straight fare of five cents will be charged until nine o'clock each evening, and ten cents for the last two trips at night.

more workingmen's tickets will be issued, as were in use prior to the tie-up, ten for a quarter, and neither will the regular tickets, eight for a quarter, be sold.
Thirty-Minute Service.

A thirty-minute service will be given place of the old twenty-minute schedule and considering the matter in the light of recent events, it looks as if the mayor and council, instead of improving conditions, which were better than prevailed anywhere else on the lakes, with the exception of Detroit, have made things worse.

The majority of the citizens of Sarnia thought that when the town brought the existing trouble to a head that some arrangement had been made for transportation in case the present line ceased operating, but it is now apparent that no provision made for such exingencies as have prevailed since the beginning of the possibility of strained relations beween the United States and Canada. that is, if, as has before been said, the town continues to stand by its intention of stopping the Beard and Dor-

NO Settlement in Sight.

The question appears to be as far from legal settlement as ever. The company, represented by Attorney Pardee, appeared in police court yesterday, after an adjournment from terday, after an adjournment from terday, to answer to the two charges against them for operating the ferry Dormer contrary to the provisions of the weggetly-enacted bylaw.

The case is involved, the ferry line clearly intends to test the legality of the charter, which confers upon the town the right to regulate the ferries, and no one, it is admitted, more thoroughly understands the charter and the privileges it confers than F. F. Pardee, attorney for the defence.

At the conclusion of the trial, in an unofficial conversation with the atthe recently-enacted bylaw.

The Dormer is less than a hundred tons burden, and this constituted the it was not believed that the aforesaid boat could carry two hundred passengers with safety and comfort, which made the second so-called violation.

R. O. Gowers, attorney for the town, ealled two witnesses, Chief Forbes and Town Clerk Stewart, to testify. Much

Mr. Stewart was asked if he considered the boat safe, but declined to give his opinion.

Question of Capacity.

Considerable debate took place concerning expert testimony in regard to the capacity and safety of the Dormer, and in order to give each side time to produce witnesses whose evidence would be of this nature, Magistrate Gorman adjourned court until 2 in the afternon.

A scrutiny of the proceedings so far was sufficient to indicate that the defence considered the present trial merely a stepping-stone to the superior court, where the real battle will be waged over the authority of the town to regulate these ferries. noon session did not last more than twenty minutes. Mr. Gowers submitted the town's case without any preliminary or introduction of expert testimony, and Mr. Burnham, acting in the absence of Mr.

The magistrate, considering that the defence had admitted the Dormer to be of under the necessary tonnage, imposed a fine of $5 and costs for this local jail, at the end of which time infraction of the bylaw, and on the other hand dismissed the second charge relative to comfort and safety, there being no evidence to sustain it. Deckhand Got Homesick, But Captain Would Not Stop to Let Him Off.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Aug. 23.—A young man named Madden, whose home is here, and who is employed as a deck hand on the steamer Minnetonka, had a very close call for being drowned last evening when he jumped from the boat as she was passing through the rapids near Point Edward, and endeavored to swim ashore.

The river is very wide here, and the current swift, and when Madden was about 100 yards from the showe he became utterly exhausted by his struggle. A young man named Graney, employed at the ore docks heard his calls and at once swam out and suceeded in bringing him in.
Madden jumped from the steamer

"What does he want?" asked the Prefect, with a look of annoyance.
"I do not know. He claims to have some news about Monsieur Duvall."
"Duvall?" Monsieur Lefevre was greatly surprised. "Very well, bring him in."
"Alone, Monsieur?"
"Yes." The Prefect opened a drawer of his desk and drew out a revolver. "I shall be prepared," he said, as he placed the weapon before him. "Remain just outside the door, so that you can enter quickly in case it is necessary."

The man left the room at once, and in a few moments returned, accompanied by Girard. The Prefect looked up from his desk as the latter approached him. "Ah!" he said deliberately, eyeing the prisoner with no friendly glance. "So it is you? What do you want?"

"To speak with you alone, Monsieur."
Lefevre looked at his assistant and nodded. "You can wait outside, Vernet," he said quietly, as he watched the man leave the room and close the door behind him. "Well, Girard," he said slowly, turning to the prisoner, "what can I do for you?"

"I have news of Monsieur Duvall," be-

"I have news of Monsieur Duvall," be-

"What news?"
"He is alive."
The Prefect sprang from his chair, and, coming around to the front of his desk, coming around to the front of his desk, cated Girard with an incredulous expression."
"Alive" he cried excitedly. "How faced Girard with an incredulous expression. "Alive?" he cried excitedly. "How do you know that?" He went up to the prisoner, scarcely able to control his impatience. "Is what you say true? Speak!" Girard gazed at him for a moment in silence. "Yes, Monsteur; Richard Duvall is not only alive, but he will appear in this room within half an hour."
"How am I to know that what you say is true?"

Girard shrugged his shoulders. "You will know it, Monsieur the Prefect, when Duvall comes."
"You speak very positively, my friend. In what way did you come by this information."

One Million Francs By Arnold Frederichs

The Prefect, after sending his prisoners to the Prefecture, remained at the house in the Rue L'Hirondelle, determined to make every effort toward the recovery of the body of his assistant. Men were of the body of his assistant. Men were of the body of his assistant in the way so easily."

"And have I got to go along upon the miserable allowance which you have been making me up to now?" inquired Emile, with an expression of great dissatisfaction.

"Said the Count, "I am only on a straight 5-cent fare. Mr. Towers said he could not answer authoritatively to this, but under the circumstances it appealed to his sense of expediency.

Many people are under the impression today that some kind of a treaty will be made with the ferry company was three o'clock in the morning when Monsieur Lefevre at last returned to his home and threw himself wearily upon his bed. Emile, who had somewhat recovered from his fright, went back with his uncle to the latter's house, highly pleased that he had not been obliged to join the ranks of the benedicts. The two went into the dining-room and in spite of the lateness of the hour the Count ordered his butler the recovery and a bottle of burof the hour the count of the the to bring them cigars and a bottle of burgundy. Over these they sat down to discuss the events of the evening.

"I cannot help feeling glad," said Emile, "that the plans for my marriage were not carried out.

The Count looked at him with an expression of annoyance. "Emile," he said, "you are a great burden to me. I have done everything in my power to help you, but from now on I think I shall leave you to your own resources."

Emile regarded his uncle in dismay.
"My own resources?" he exclaimed nervously. "Mon Dieu! You know that I "Do you expect me to support you in idleness?" inquired the Count.

"I do not know what I can do to make a living," replied the young man.

The Count sipped his brandy with an amused smile. "I thought that you would be of use to me in this matter," he remarked slowly, "but, now that the young lady is likely to spend weveral years in prison, I do not believe that you can."

Emile rose and began to walk up and down the room in a state of great agitation. "I was ready to marry her," he said. "That ought to be worth something." haven't any."

"Why couldn't 1? If you want my help there is no reason why you should not pay for it. Unless you agree to double my present allowance, I shall tell the Prefect the truth."

Monsieur D'Este rose, and, going over to his nephew, placed a hand upon his shoulder. "Young man," he said, stern-

If you attempt in any way to go to the assistance of my niece, I shall be obliged to blame the entire matter upon you. He drank his glass of brandy, then, taking up his hat, went toward the door. "Good-night, Uncle," he said with a pleased smile. "I'll see you in the morning."

Victor Girard entered his cell at the Prefecture with a smile which did not indicate any great fear on his part as to the outcome of the hearing which was to take place the next morning. The refusal of the Prefect to accord him an interview immediately seemed to affect him keenly, but there was nothing that he could do to change Monsieur Lefevre's decision, and he thereupon threw himself upon the cot in his cell and at once fell into a deep and undisturbed sleep. The chief figure in the events of the past forty-eight hours, the man who had stolen one million francs from the Count D'Este and who had subsequently been accused of the murder of Richard Duvall, he seemed to be no more concerned as to his fate than if he had been arrested upon the most trivial charge.

to his fate than if he had been arrested upon the most trivial charge.

Two miles away, at Charenton, Vernet and his men were still busily engaged in dragging the bottom of the Seine, but their efforts were unavailing. Not only had Richard Duvall been cruelly murdered, but his body seemed to have passed beyond hope of recovery. The rising moon shone softly upon the unruffled surface of the river, telling no tales of the tragedies which lay beneath.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Prefect of Police arrived at his office the next morning somewhat later than was his usual habit. He had spent than was his usual habit. He had spent a sleepless night, pondering upon the strange events of the evening before, and it was only toward dawn that he fell into a fitful sleep. On arriving at his desk he disposed of the routine matters which came before him, and then, ringing a bell, summoned Vernet to his presence. "You rang, Monsieur," inquired the latter, as he came into the room.

"Yes, Vernet. Is there any news of Monsieur Duvall?"

Catzaro entered an east-end restaurant July 1, and clenching his hand over a five-dollar bill, offered to wager the waitress who was serving him $5 to $1 that she could not force open his hand, and extract the bill. Mary Sloga, the waitress, promptly accepted the offer, and quite as promptly relieved him of the bill. He then put five twenty-dollar bills in his hand, and bet that sum against the five the waitress had won that she could not repeat the feat. Thereupon she took away his hundred. She refused to believe him when he declared that "he was only fooling." and he immediately had her arrested for theft.

BRAMWELL BOOTH SENDS BATTLE CRY

New Head of Salvation Army Has Message for the World.

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 23.—In a message to the salvationists throughout the world, published in the Daily Chronicle today, General Bramwell Booth,

After a tender and beautiful tribute to his father, the new general

A More Ideal Life. "It is my ambition to preserve and foster that spirit. Despite the materialism of the age there is a new and growing yearning for a more ideal and spiritual life which is acting as a recruiting agency for the Salvation Army."

Asked whether the army still would

Asked whether the army still would be governed on military lines, the general replied that no doubt it would, because military discipline gives a tremendous cohesion of sympathy and power to the organization, of a similar kind to that displayed by the Roman Catholic Church. Referring to the worldwide influence of the army, tho general believes that in whole a large part of the work is still among the lowest strata of society, and he the lowest strata of society, and he n mong the working classes.

The general also sees immense fields "I do not recall that I was, but I have

"It was because of his conservative views and your belief of the attitude of the Republican party toward the business world that induced you to contribute?" was asked.

"The party question was first," replied Mr. Archbold. "Mr. Bliss thought Mr. Roosevelt would fairly carry out party pledges."

"We decided that our interests as a business organization lay on the Republican side," said Mr. Archbold. "And it was decided that we should make this contribution." Nothing was decided about how it was to be distributed."

Later, however, Mr. Archbold said it was decided after a conference with Senator Penrose that the Standard Oil men should make the additional $25,000 contribution for the campaign of Pennsylvaria.

Senator Pomerene wanted to know the details of the conversation between Mr. Archbold and Mr. Bliss with reference to Colonel Roosevelt's knowledge of the contribution.

Scores in the Tait-Brassey were high, and unless weather conditions changed before the closing event this afternoon the present meet of the Ontario Riffe Association promises to estab-lish a record for high scores in pracically every event.

While the completion of the Tait Brassey match over the five and six hundred yards' ranges this forenoon concluded the biggest contest of the meet, the Gzowski cup competition for eams of five non-commissioned officers or rank and file, not including staff sergeants, is attracting considerable attention.

The MacKenzie match, seven shots at 800 yards, is also being shot off this afternoon. This is ladies' day at the ranges, and the wives of the members and their friends are to be entertained at tea at 4 o'clock.

Shortly before 8:50 o'clock, train No. 16, the Eastern Flyer from Detroit, came rushing into the station without slowing up on approaching the platform as is the custom. Confused by the shunting of the private car, and the other train rushing into the station, a party of three women, who were standing near the Buffalo train, made a rush across the tracks towards the station platform, in front of the approaching train. Two of the women succeeded in reaching their destination, but the other, when she saw the train rushing towards here became paralyzed with fright, and stood trembling on the tracks.

Not Likely That Objections Will Be Made Against Arrangement. [Special to The Advertiser.]

Owing to the absence from the capital of many of the originally appointed board some difficulty has been found in gaining a quorum. ## PUPILS ANXIOUS FOR SCHOOL AGAIN

NO PICNIC THIS YEAR

Annual Outing Was Greatly Missed -A Budget of News From East London.

What do you think of this? Tired of play, the holidays becoming monotonous, and with nething to do but trying to be good and can't, the East London school children are anxiously awaiting the reopening of school. Doesn't it surprise you that the young ones are taking such a practical view of life?

It is now two months since the youngsters said good-bye to text books, examinations, sang a dirge about the teachers, and just as eagerly welcomed the holidays, as they now long for school to respen. Two weeks more will have to pass before their wishes can be realized, and every minute is going to drag like a year. every minute is going to drag like a year.

Next summer will probably see the revival of the

A Deadlock. There is a deadlock reigning in the aseball circles in East London, The games which were to have been played tomorrow will probably be postooned, as interest in the games seem to be waning as the season progresses. Good ball has been played in Queen's Park by the teams in the league and large crowds have seen their favorites play, and these fans would be ex-tremely sorry if the league were to break up without a decision being rendered. However arrangements will likely be made so that the games will be pulled off on the following Saturday.

Reta Mullins Fell in the River at Port Lambton Some Days Ago.

Reta, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. W. T. Mullins, West London, had a narrow escape from drowning at Port Lambton some days ago. Three of the children were visiting in Detroit, and went to Port Lambton to spend the day. While waiting for the Tashmoo to take them tack to the city, Reta climbed up on a railing, but losing her balance fell into the river. The youngster did not lose her head for o moment, although she could not swim, but by imitating swimmers, as she had been taught by her father, she kept afloat until she was dragged out. The lack of life-saving appliances at the river was commented on, and it is probable that the Government will be petitioned to install proper appli-ances for saving life.

"The youngster cannot swim, thu was taugh what to do in such an emergency," said Mr. Mullins. "She kept affoat for a time, and was eventually taken out. There are quite a number of them, every one built and financed with money from the pockets of farmers and businessmen all over the Province of Old Ontario; and, THOS. KENT RESIDENCE when I say to the press that hardly one of those independent companies is paying a reasonable dividend on the capital invested (most of them are Head of Diocese of London paying nothing to the shareholders); and when I say that I know one independent company, having an output of over one thousand barrels a day, which very company has paid no dividend for several years, and, yet, has been compelled to cut its price ten to fifteen cents a barrel in order to allow American cement to come into this country to compete with our own-made article, which is being produced in our own built factories by our own men in our own villages and towns; and, realizing that the result of this order of the Government has been to close down some of mills, while the rest of them, which are pounding away, will be able to comfort shareholders that no dividend will be paid for 1912—I say I am amazed at the action of the Government in letting down the bars and helping to market the American product. There are several mills in Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania close to Ontario, and those mills have been able to ship their cement to near points, and, by so doing, take the money out of the pockets of the men and women of this province who built those Ontario mills, now to be left idle, as some of them have been during the season. Doubtless the Canada Cement Company can stand it, as they have many paying proposi-tions, but we must remember the several millions of dollars invested in the

If we were to listen to all the calls of the great West, we would be hum-bugged some of the time. I remember about three years ago the great West advertised for forty thousand harves-ters. I happened to be taking a trip through those prairie provinces at the time, and after those forty thousand laborers from Ontario arrived they found that they were deceived. Thou-sands of them who had money to buy their tickets, returned while others worked for any kind of wages they could get, and some came back in cattle cars, and no amount of advertising will fool the boys of Ontario again. Of course, the West is a great country with possibilities, but the West should remember that they are

MANAGER KING LODGES PROTEST

Objects to Street Cars Being Compelled to Stop When Passing Another Car.

PAVING STANLEY STREET

City Engineer Wright Says That He Will Be Able To Go Ahead in About Two Weeks.

At the meeting of the board of works last night, Manager C. B. King was present to protest against the amendment to the traffic bylaw proposed by Ald. Bennett, which would compel street cars to come to a stop before passing a car stalled on the opposite track.

Mr. King said that it would be im-possible for the company to maintain schedule, if the amendment were put in force. It would tie up traffic a great deal, and the results would not be any more satisfactory than under present conditions. Mr. King considered the amendment a hardship. He agreed that it was perfectly right that all ve-hicles should stop when passing a car that was stalled. That would make for safety, and would protect the travelling public.

Slow Down Cars. "If the committee would decide that the cars should slow down to a safe speed, when passing a stalled car, think the public would be sufficiently protected," said Manager King. "If About five years ago the price was the amendment means that one car much higher, and I remember I used passing another shall come to a dead

Manager King also reported to the ommittee that it would be impossible for the company to go on with the Ridout street pavement this year, owing to the inability of the company to procure the special work required for the curves, etc. It was their full in-tention to pave the street this year, but the difficulty of securing rails prevented. It was decided by the committee not to go ahead with the street this year.

City Engineer Wright reported that e would be ready to pave Stanley street in about two weeks. The Bell Telephone Company, the water commissioners, and the City Gas Company were putting condults and mains n on the street, and the moment they had finished he would go ahead with the work. He estimated that this would be in about two weeks. Considerable routine business transacted. Those present were: Ald.

On Wednesday, Aug. 28, a funeral service will be held in the Salvation Army halls, and on the following day all members of the army, together with sympathizing friends, will meet in the halls for a season of prayer.
