KAI-CHOU IS RETAKEN

There is an Unconfirmed Paris Story to This Effect.

Japanese Have Captured a Strong Position—Russians Make Night Attack on Japs at Sangoss.

Paris, July 24.—The correspondent of the Matin at Yin-Kow says a violent cannonade, lasting several hours, was heard to the northward of Kai-Chou on July 22. The roofs of the houses in New-Chwang were crowded with Europeans and Chinese looking on. The Russians claim to have retaken Kai-Chou on July 21, and says the fight reported was the result of the Japanese resuming the offensive.

RUSSIANS LOSE 700.

Tien Tsin, July 24.—News has reached here that a battle is raging outside of New-Chwang. The fighting can be seen from the house tops. In the engagement of yesterday the Russian losses are reported to have been 700. The Japanese are slowly nearing New-Chwang. Great excitement prevailed in that city during the day and yesterday's fights.

WITNESSED FROM NEW-CHWANG.

New-Chwang, July 24.—A battle was fought yesterday (Saturday), near Tai Tche Kiao, attended, it is believed, with heavy losses. The progress of the battle was watched by many people in New-Chwang from the roofs of the houses. The day was clear and the smoke of the guns could be plainly seen.

JAPS WERE SUCCESSFUL.

Tien Tsin, July 24.—A report from New-Chwang states that yesterday's battle was at Tai Tche Kiao, six miles distant, and that the Japanese were successful. Many Chinese refugees arriving at New-Chwang have reported that nine Japanese gunboats from Port Arthur have arrived at Tai-Ting-Shan.

STORY OF A NIGHT ATTACK.

St. Petersburg, July 24, 4 a. m.—A badly mutilated despatch from Tachekia, dated July 20, which has been received here, indicates the engagement of some importance had occurred on the sea coast road between Kai-Chou and Yin-Kow. The despatch states that the Russians made a night attack on a fortified Japanese camp at Sangoss, on the sea coast, north of Kai-Chou. They got within close range, and opened fire on the camp before they were discovered, and forced the retirement of the Japanese toward Kai-Chou.

Here a portion of the despatch is missing. Apparently the attackers were enveloped by a counter Japanese movement, probably by troops from some neighboring position. For this whole region is strongly fortified, and the Russian detachment was in danger of being cut off and annihilated. The message continues by saying that when the Russians had given themselves up for lost, a welcome diversion was created in their rear by Captain Rotovski, in command of three companies of Russian troops, who threw his force into the fight. Cossack companies also came up in a gallop. Here occurs another mutilation. The message continues as follows:—

RUSSIANS RETREAT.

"The next day we abandoned our position, leaving the bodies of fifteen Japanese we were unable to bury. The general situation in this region does not indicate activity in the near future. The rains have commenced ruining the roads. Information has reached here from the south that the railway is flooded between Kai-Chou and Wafangow, and that the Japanese, through the water, are moving their cars by horse power. The Japanese are strongly entrenched south of Tachekia, and have pushed out their fortifications on both sides of the railway as far as the village of Lavalga, of which they have several large junks. Their apparent object is to pass along the sea coast road to Erdago, two-thirds of the way from Kai-Chou to Yin-Kow. Our scouts here are ready to contest the Japanese advance."

JAPANESE TACTICS.

Erdago is the last position barring the Japanese road to Yin-Kow. The opinion of Major-General Kondratovich is that the Japanese positions, both south and east, are weakly held, but strongly fortified, and that much of the Japanese infantry has been drawn off to reinforce Gen. Kuroki, who is operating against Lieut.-Gen. Count Keller. At some positions south of Simocheung dummies are actually being used to a man the entrenchments. The Russians are so surrounded by entrenchments to the south and east that it is hard for them to move without coming under fire. There is apparently more artillery than infantry in these positions. The Japanese are loath to disclose the locations of their guns. A few days ago Gen. Baron Stakelberg and his staff personally reconnoitered the position at Makutsudzi Hill without drawing the Japanese fire, though the party were conspicuous in their uniforms. The Russians are harassing the Japanese posts almost nightly, their scouts creeping up and firing at close range. The Japanese never attempt to follow the attackers.

RUSSIAN REPORTS.

St. Petersburg, July 24.—Lieut.-General Sakharoff, in a despatch to the general staff, dated July 23, reports skirmishes in the vicinity of Kai-Chou on July 22. Lieut.-General Count Keller's reconnaissance on the same day showed that the Japanese had only weak detachments at the Siakao and Wafanku Passes. There was no change in the situation on the high road to Mukden, according to the report, but strong Japanese columns with thirty guns were advancing along the left bank of the Taizze River in the direction of Siakhotan.

AWAITING DEVELOPMENTS.

Liao-Yang, July 22.—delayed in transmission.—The Japanese forces to the eastward are grouped at Liaokho, Fenchui and Sigowlin Passes. The southern army is at Siu-Yen in close contact and apparently awaiting developments. Yin-Kow is quite free from Japanese troops, who have made no attempt to occupy it.

GOOD-BYE TO DUNDONALD

The Scotchman of Glangarry Bid a Touching Farewell.

The Great General Spent Sunday at Alexandria and Attended Divine Worship.

Alexandria, Ont., July 24.—Yesterday witnessed Glangarry's farewell to Lord Dundonald. He arrived on the nine-fifty train from Ottawa, and was met at the station by a crowd of people from all over the country. Among those present were—J. A. Macdonnell, Greenfield; A. A. McKinnon, president, Glangarry Liberal Association; Mayor Costello; J. L. Wilson, president of the Farmers' Association, and Mr. Craig, president of the Liberal Association of Renfrew. The Earl, after being escorted from the station by the crowd, was entertained at the house of J. A. Macdonnell, and from there shortly afterwards, attended divine service at the Presbyterian church, where a very interesting and instructive sermon was preached by Rev. MacLaren. The old church was taxed to its utmost capacity, so many visitors being present. The Earl was entertained at luncheon at J. A. Macdonnell's, and during the afternoon he made a number of visits to Scotch families living outside the town. At six o'clock the Earl was entertained at dinner by His Lordship Bishop Macdonnell. He left on the 8:20 train for Ottawa, being escorted to the station by a large crowd. As the train passed out from the station the bagpipers played a lament—Glangarry's.

BAND INTIMIDATED.

Ottawa, July 24.—The Governor-General's Foot Guards Band, at a meeting held this morning, decided not to turn out for the send-off to-morrow. The band was engaged, and the decision came as a surprise to the committee in charge of the demonstration. The reason assigned by the band is that the demonstration is a straight party affair. The committee men say the Government threatened the band, nearly all of whom work in some department of the Government service. The 43rd Regimental Band will turn out, and the committee is trying to bring in outside bands.

THE LAST CHANCE

St. Thomas Lacrosse Club Will Make a Desperate Effort Wednesday to Stay—Great Interest Being Taken Here.

The St. Thomas lacrosse club will run a special excursion on Chatham on Wednesday, 27th inst., that is next Wednesday, when the St. Thomas and Chatham lacrosse clubs will play. Chatham has already beaten St. Thomas twice, and both encounters were of the thrilling kind. This is the Saints' last chance to stay in the district championship contest and they are coming down here on Wednesday determined to stay. They will arrive here about 3 o'clock by special train. Not many are they coming down loaded with new players, but they will also be accompanied by two bands and a band of rosters. This promises to be the greatest game ever seen in Chatham. Excitement is a high pitch here but St. Thomas is a little on the keen edge according to this game being their last stand. It is the desperate man's chance and they are making it what it is. Chatham has the advantage of playing on their own grounds. The Chatham boys had a good workout Saturday afternoon, although a little stiff from their game at Wallaceburg. They expect to be in the pink of condition when St. Thomas comes here day after to-morrow. The Tecumseh will take some practice every day and when they line up in the field on Wednesday they should be at their best and winners. They realize that this will be a struggle for supremacy and St. Thomas' last hope and they will be ready for it. Manager Frank Babcock has arranged to have the reserved seat plan open to-morrow morning so that Chatham people can have an opportunity to obtain good seats before the St. Thomas crowd rush.

ENGLAND CALLED HALT

Then Russia Ordered Volunteer Fleet to Seize No More.

British Cruiser Sent to Red Sea and Torpedo Boats to Port Said to Protect Merchantmen.

London, July 23, 1.46 p. m.—Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador, has received official notification from St. Petersburg reporting the capture of two more British ships in the Red Sea, and instructions from his Government to notify Great Britain that the same procedure would be followed as in the case of the Malacca, namely, the vessels will be taken to a neutral port for examination by the consuls of the two nations concerned.

BRITAIN'S DETERMINATION.

The effect of the additional seizures upon the British Government has been to intensify its determination to settle the status of the volunteer fleet vessels. It is understood that the sending of the British cruiser Venus to the Red Sea, and a number of torpedo boats to Port Said is an earnest desire of the Government's intention to protect British commerce. No warlike instructions have been given the commanders, but the Venus will closely watch the procedure of the volunteer fleet vessels. Some diplomatic circles regard this as being in the nature of a threat to Russia, but the Russian diplomats in London express no concern.

BLACK SEA QUESTION.

Ambassador Benckendorff, in his communications to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, has not dealt with the general question of the Dardanelles. It is pointed out in Russian circles here that the subject is receiving consideration at St. Petersburg, and it is asserted that Russia will not abandon the right which she claims to send volunteer fleet vessels through the Dardanelles, and transform them subsequently into auxiliary cruisers, although no more ships are likely to be sent out of the Black Sea at present.

MALACCA'S MOVEMENTS.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—Although it was authoritatively stated yesterday that the Malacca had already reached Suda Bay, it now transpires that when the Malacca sailed from Port Said she was bound for Algiers. Unless orders are delivered to her on the way she will upon arrival there find an order to proceed immediately to Suda Bay, where under the agreement reached between Great Britain and Russia, an examination of her cargo will be made by the Russian and British consuls. The apparent delay in the delivery of orders to the captains of the St. Petersburg and the Smolensk account for the seizure of the Scandia and the Ardova.

CONFERENCE CALLED.

Great Britain having formally raised the question of the status of the St. Petersburg and the Smolensk, the Foreign Office has called a meeting of leading officials of the Admiralty to consider the subject. This conference is progressing. The decision will be submitted to the Emperor for ratification.

St. Petersburg, July 23, 3.45 p. m.—The Associated Press is able to announce that Russia has informally notified Great Britain that orders have been issued to the Russian cruisers in the Red Sea not to arrest any more merchantmen, and it has been agreed between the two powers that, pending the receipt of these orders by the captains of the St. Petersburg and the Smolensk, any other ships should be stopped and held as prizes these acts shall be regarded as not having taken place and the ships concerned at once released.

St. Petersburg, July 23, 5.40 p. m.—While not admitting the illegality of the Russian action in converting vessels of the volunteer fleet into warships after they had reached the Red Sea, it is probable, in view of the fact that neutral ships did not receive previous notice that Russia, in order to remove the shadow of a cloud upon their right to float the flag, will formally notify the powers of their conversion into warships, thus putting all neutrals upon their guard. In the meantime all the ships seized will be released unless the captains refuse to show their manifests, in which event the procedure in the case of the Malacca probably will be followed. Germany had not made any protest against the seizure of the Scandia up to four o'clock this afternoon.

NO MORE INTERFERENCE.

St. Petersburg, July 24.—Orders have been sent to the volunteer fleet steamers, St. Petersburg and Smolensk, to refrain from interference with foreign shipping. It is expected these steamers will eventually join the Baltic fleet and be replaced by ordinary warships.

WILL MAKE NO SEARCH.

Grand Duke Alex's presided at yesterday's council, which Count Lamsdorff, the Foreign Secretary, and Vice-Admiral Avellan, chief of the Admiralty Department, and other high naval officers attended. The result of the conference removes all doubts concerning the present attitude of Russia with regard to the volunteer fleet. The validity of the view expressed in the British note regarding the irregularity of the position of the vessels was so far admitted.

MONDAY, JULY 25.

A QUEBEC SIDELIGHT.

No newspaper in Canada has slandered Lord Dundonald to the same extent as La Presse of Montreal—with the exception, perhaps, of the Toronto Globe, remarks the Ottawa Citizen. According to La Presse his lordship had deep designs against "the constitution," he was an "imperial monster," the incarnation of militarism; "the man with subtle plans to destroy the rights of the French-Canadians, and, therefore, their enemy."

Lord Dundonald answered these charges in his Toronto speech, categorically, convincingly and emphatically. He threw the lie in the teeth of La Presse. He left it not a leg to stand on; he riddled its sophistries; he put himself on record in a speech that will, in part, we doubt not, find a prominent place in the written history of this country. His utterance was important.

Did La Presse give its readers one word of Lord Dundonald's speech? Did it consider it worth while, in the interests of fair play, common decency and, above all, truth, to allow its readers to peruse the text of Lord Dundonald's utterances?

La Presse published not one word of his lordship's speech. Its lies, its slanders, its mischievous insinuations and innuendoes, spread, day after day, before its hundred thousand or more readers are still uncontradicted. Their falsity will never be exposed through the columns of La Presse.

The contemplation of such journalistic methods is disgusting. It, however, warrants a close examination. The people of this country should be advised of the conditions which are responsible for such a state of affairs. There is warrant to tear down the veil that, according to general usage and journalistic etiquette, is allowed to hide from public view the "man or men who 'make the paper.'"

The "political director" of La Presse, under the circumstances, becomes an interesting personality. This personage is no stranger at Ottawa. Mr. C. Arthur Danereau is a bosom friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. During the inception of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme he was constantly in this city. His espousal of that scheme in the columns of La Presse was gone about in a characteristic way. The merits of the case mattered nothing. La Presse harps on but one string. It put forward constantly the opposition of the members of the Conservative party to the Winnipeg-Quebec section. Were their arguments met? No. There was "an Ontario conspiracy" on foot to deprive Quebec province of her proper participation in the new railway scheme. "Poor Quebec would get nothing, if the Tories had their way."

That is the Danereau-La Presse method always. To go a step further in the examination of the paper's remarkable course, what do we find? It can be stated—and on this point we challenge contradiction—that never is an important matter of policy or "politics" considered having a direct or indirect bearing on Quebec affairs without Mr. Danereau being sent for. If the subject resolves itself into a matter of "publicity" the first note struck by La Presse is the "rights" of its readers. So it was in the Manitoba school case—though those rights were afterwards basely betrayed—so it was in the agitation against the despatch of troops to South Africa; so it is in the schemes which this paper supports in the Montreal city council; so in the Grand Trunk Pacific deal, and so in the Dundonald case. The influence of the paper in the province is absolutely satanic.

To illustrate the character of the paper which supports every act of the Laurier administration let the following article suffice:

Here is militarism appearing in its most odious form. Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to England to kill it in 1902. It was thought to be dead. Yet it revives under the coat of arms of a veritable conspirator appointed for the purpose. And because Sir Wilfrid renounces the campaign of two years ago against the enemy, who still lives, the opposition takes that enemy under its shield and builds it a pedestal. . . . The opposition, which has made a god of the imperial monster, takes the risk of cutting its own throat. . . . Evidently Mr. Chamberlain, who was then very strong in the English government, sent his wolf among our sheep folds, and he has found among us souls so tender as to lament over the blows which the shepherds have inflicted upon him. In truth, what a campaign of stupidity, to say nothing of national treason, do we not witness at this moment. . . . To claim that under these circumstances the civil government of Canada ought to submit to the will of an imperial envoy is simply an abasement that nothing could justify.

Is it not time that Sir Wilfrid Laurier abandoned his honey phrases, illustrative of ideal relations between the two races, and set himself to work on his friend, M. Danereau? Of what avail to go to some Ontario point and preach loyalty to the empire, when such firebrand work is going on in his native province. The Citizen does not say that the premier encourages this work. There is certainly no proof that he discourages it. The inference to be drawn from the facts places him in a rather equivocal position. Perhaps he hesitates to "drag" friend Danereau perhaps that gentleman has the bit in his teeth; and, again, perhaps "a solid Quebec" has compensations.

A Montreal paper recently remarked:

We believe an exposure of the entourage surrounding the head of the government at Ottawa would have the effect of throwing a sidelight on the present situation which would startle the public, and reveal the desperate and contemptible game that is now being played by the Danereaus, the Farrars and others, whose calling is that of the mercenary; whose pens are at the service of the highest bidder; to whom loyal and patriotic instincts on the part of the people are sought to be made a pawn in their sordid and cynical game.

Along somewhat the same lines the Citizen remarked the other day, that "influences are at work to detach this country from its allegiance."

We said that practically the same forces are playing the game, or at another stage.

And not the least of the factors in the desperate game are La Presse and its political director—the bosom friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Lord Dundonald's case being now "sub-judice," of course the Globe will let up and not further attempt to prejudice it with its mis-statements—we don't think.

It won't prevent the people of Ottawa giving their esteemed fellow-citizen, Lord Dundonald, a great send-off when he departs next week. They're not on half pay.

There was much point in Mr. Arnold-Forster's enquiry if Mr. Lloyd George was representing the Laurier government in the imperial parliament. Mr. George has been unfortunate in the causes he espouses.

INSULTS IN CAMBODIA.

St. James Gazette.
The following is quoted by the Gaulois from a French government report—"To cut off his head is the most serious insult that can be shown to a Cambodian; happily, this prejudice is not shared by other people of Indo-China."

HOUNDS PUT MOB TO FLIGHT.

London Daily Mail.
The police of Louvain, Belgium, unable to disperse a violent mob of political demonstrators, last night, let loose the great hounds which accompany them on their nightly patrol. The dogs threw themselves upon the crowd, which instantly scattered. Several persons were badly bitten.

WHO KNIFE DUNDONALD?

St. Catharines Star.
(With apologies to Cook Robin and the Sparrow—but not to Sydney.)

Who knifed Dundonald?
"I," said little Sydney.
"Men of my kidney."
(Who play all the tricks Of peanut politics.)
"Know of etiquette!"
I did—without regret—
I knifed Dundonald!

Who mis-called Dundonald?
"I," said the premier;
"Called him a 'foreigner,'
Then again a 'stranger,'
Because I scented danger;
And I stand by Fisher,
For Sydney's my well-wisher;
I mis-called Dundonald!"

Who backed Dundonald?
"Not I—St. Frederick Borden—
I had to go according."
To what the others did;
I do as I am bid;
For Fisher I don't care
He never has played fair!
Alas! Poor Dundonald!

Who'll back Dundonald?
"I," said the man who votes!
"I," from a thousand throats!
"I," from ten thousand throats!
"I," from the brave red coats!
"Confound their politics;
Confound their knavish tricks."
We'll back Dundonald!

SUN-WORSHIP

Chicago, July 23.—Some strange revelations are published in the New York American relating to the cult of the Sun worshippers in Chicago, a sect founded by a "prophet" calling himself Ottoman Zer Adusht Hanish.
Since 1902 Hanish has obtained many converts to his religion, which teaches that every individual must work out his or her own salvation, and that we can regulate our lives upon this earth so as to reach the great age of the patriarchs. He declares that it is possible for a man, by right living, to attain the age of 475 years. By "right living" he tells his followers that he means subjugation of the material and exaltation of the spiritual part of man.
Under right treatment of the body it may be almost wholly nourished by the air taken into the lungs. But when one breathes for nourishment one must do so with one's whole mind and soul centered upon the Magdanzian main tenets of the sun worshiper's belief.

Hanish also counsels the abstention from all food, with the exception of grains of wheat and water. "Men have been known to live 65 years," he declares, "on a quart of water and two grains of wheat a day."

Incredible as it may seem, hundreds of society people were gulled by Hanish's philosophy, with the result that a pitiful list of victims is published of fanatical women who have either died or been driven mad from starvation.

Evidence has been presented before the Chicago board of health that "Dr." Hanish applies other tortures than starvation to the "biglivers."
Several have testified that he made tiny holes in their flesh with needles, and then rubbed into the wounds an oil that burned like fire. The board of health are now proceeding against him on the ground that without authority he is calling himself a medical doctor, and prescribing for the sick.

Another rich lady made her four-year-old daughter fast for 36 hours, in order that she might be "purified" from scarlet fever. The whole of her family have but one meal a day, of rice flakes, prunes and whole-wheat bread.

A sensation has been caused among the Magdanzians by the board of health statement that Hanish is not a Persian as he claims to be, but an American with negro blood in his veins.

The Hindoo Idea of Wt.

An English lady reformer of uncertain age who visited India to deliver a lecture told the audience that she would be happy to answer any question, upon which a fat baboo came to the front with "How old are you?"
"Oh, no," she replied; "I don't mean questions of that sort; only ones connected with the subject of the lecture."
"Are you forty?" continued the baboo, nowise abashed. "No, I won't answer such a question," was the reply. "Are you fifty?" continued her tormentor.
"Oh, no; I told you I won't answer such questions." "Are you sixty?"
"Oh, no, no, no; I'm not sixty," the lady responded precipitately.

A shikari out partridge shooting was seen in fits of laughter, slapping his thighs in the ecstasy of his glee. On inquiring the cause of his hilarity, he hurriedly said: "Hush, sabhi! That cooly," indicating one of the beaters,
"has just been bitten by a green snake, but he thinks it is only a thorn! Don't tell him or he'll be frightened and stop beating."—From General Gerard's
"Leaves From the Diary of a Soldier and Sportsman."

The Jade Jokai Loved.

Of one phase of his life Jokai, the Hungarian novelist, wrote in disgust:
"Well, confess it I must. I have a sweetheart, for whose sake I have been faithless not only to my wife, but to my muse also—a sweetheart who has appropriated my best ideas and whose slave I was and still am. Often have I wasted half my fortune upon her and rushed blindly into misfortune to please her. For her sake I have patiently endured insult, ridicule and reprobation; for her sake I have staked life and liberty. Now, if she had been a pretty young damsel there might have been some excuse for me, but she was a nasty, old, painted figurehead of a beldame, a flirting, faithless, fickle, foul mouthed, scandalmongering old liar, whom the whole world courts, who makes fools of all her wooers and changes her lovers as often as she changes her dress. Her name is Politics, and may the plague take her!"

Customs of the Kafirs.

The author of a book on the Kafirs of South Africa says: "The women are,
on the whole, in favor of polygamy.
Sometimes a woman who has a dozen other 'sisters,' as they call fellow wives, will go to a woman who is the solitary wife of a man and ask her if she does not feel lonely. No one can visit a large kraal—such, for example, as the king's kraal in Swaziland—where there are hundreds of huts, and not feel that there is a certain charm in the social life of the place. It is a sort of college life, and frequently my thoughts have reverted to my old varsity days, and it has struck me that if one could imagine a set of men living in the old court of Trinity surrounded by wives and children, with a social circle in which every one was related to every one else, one might get some idea of the sheer joy of life amid 1,000 relations."

Swallows and Microbes.

Swallows and other migratory birds unusually shun those places which are in the slightest degree infected by noxious microbes. Thus they are never to be found in districts where cholera, yellow fever, the plague and other epidemic diseases prevail. The districts which they select as their temporary homes are in all respects the most healthy that can be found. It is evident from this that persons who are afraid of catching cholera or other infectious diseases ought not to live in places which are shunned by these birds.

A Useless Verdict.

"Yes," said the old traveler, "I was on a jury in California once. It was a murder trial. I didn't want the fellow hanged and so stuck out against the other eleven for nine days, locked up in the jury room, when they gave in, and we brought in a verdict of 'Not guilty,' and then I was ready to stab myself with spite."

"What about?"
"That the mob had hanged the prisoner on the very first day we were locked up."

Enjoy What You Can.

To be soured by poverty or to be hardened by it is a mistake—an error of thought. Instead of enjoying our life we are cramping ourselves. It is as if we were set at a feast and sulkily refused to enjoy a few dishes because we could not reach everything on the table and make ourselves sick, like foolish children that we are.

A Telling Stroke.

The hare easily caught up with the tortoise. "Well, old man, you're not much of a runner," he sneered.
"No," admitted the tortoise, "I'm not.
I think I'll try for the crew. You see,
I'm quite at home in the shell."

GOING TO LAW.

Some Pertinent Figures, and Also Some Pertinent Facts—People Seem to Be Getting More Litigious.

Sir Walter Scott, who was fond of the clergyman lives on our sins, the doctor upon our diseases and the lawyer on our mistakes. If we want a commentary upon the matter, we have it once a year, straight from the pen of Sir John Macdonell, a master of the Supreme Court, who, in a somewhat leisurely manner, but with great ability, prepares for the nation the statistics relating to the civil courts of justice. We have here in black and white what the nation pays as the price of that delightful hobby known as going to law. And yet the bill of costs is incomplete. Many cases are settled out of court, yet not without an expenditure of cash, while, in the instances where the quarrel is fought to a finish, the costs which appear in these returns do not by any means include all that the unhappy litigants had to defray.

But let us to figures. The judicial statistics now being published apply to the year 1902, when no fewer than 1,410,484 proceedings were begun, excluding all criminal affairs. This is a record, and should be set against 1,358,587 for 1901. The statistics only refer to England and Wales, so that reckoning five to the family, we discover the cheerful fact that about one household in every four has been so enlightened as to appeal unto Caesar. The number of cases heard and determined was 472,041 in 1902, as compared with 456,242 in 1901.

It therefore seems clear enough that we are as a people becoming rapidly more litigious. Now this may be due in some measure to the legislation sanctioned year by year, in a Parliament which is largely composed of lawyers who live by the statutes they vote for. For instance, the Education Acts have led already to about 20,000 cases coming into court. Company law, in which none of the parties are the absolute owners of the property under discussion, is also full of benevolent obscurity.

Now the cost of all this quarrelling is not to be measured in pounds, shillings and pence. No sum of money adequately compensates for worry, for it is nevertheless significant that the bill for 1902 rose to £1,561,755 10s. 7d.

These actualities lend peculiar point to the conviction, so ardently pressed by the Society of Friends, that it is wrong for the Christian to go to law. The basis of this belief is, of course, to be found in the New Testament, and it forms part of the more general plea for non-resistance which may be summed up in the phrase, peace at any price. In the days when the practice of Quakers was at least as strict as it is at the present time, it was yet found possible for them, while eschewing all litigation, to carry on immense businesses, including especially the conduct of banks.

But the freedom from litigation is due also to another cause. The Society of Friends is a community devoted to the ideal of exactitude. It is almost the only denomination with absolutely precise statistics of attendances at Sunday schools. Its pedigree is a wonder of accuracy. Similarly, at each point of a private negotiation, the true method is first to deal fairly and secondly to deal in language which admits of only one, and that the intended meaning.

Litigation is the ultimate outcome of the friction caused by carelessness or overcharging. I have heard lawyers say that they spend most of their time persuading clients not to go into court, and such advice is always the act of a friend. But, of course, if men and women are to get on without incurring the penalty of the law, they must remember that there is no room in this world for lost tempers. Revenge always costs dearly, and there are few more expensive luxuries than spite. Whatever may have been the limitations of George Fox, his conceptions always produced an atmosphere in which a petty temperament could hardly survive.

It must be assumed that this attack upon the law court involves either the extinction of the lawyer or the abolition of law. The amateur will and testament is a very dangerous thing, and it would be well clearly to understand that many documents can only be drafted by an expert. Indeed, it frequently happens that two friendly parties are compelled to ask the court to decide upon the meaning of some dubious phrase upon which neither dare act without authorization. The solicitor especially performs an indispensable function when he enters as a third party into the discussion of a transaction and reduces to exact terms the real intention of his client. The very fact that such a process means the facing of all eventualities is often sufficient to prevent an imprudent step.

Lawyers are thus the best preventive of the litigation out of which they chiefly make their fortunes. But there will always remain situations where competing rights or claims must be adjudicated. It is with persons as with international affairs—we must sometimes go either to war or to the Hague. Now, in every such case, there is to be found an equitable solution, if such solution is the real aim of the rivals. And in nine cases out of ten it is cheapest for both sides to agree to the compromise. Conciliation never yet ruined anyone; and by conciliation I do not in this connection mean arbitration—which I am told is not so effective at law as it is in politics.

One may add also that these remarks hardly apply to litigation in the divorce court, which is rapidly increasing, and can only be reduced by improving the morale of the nation as a whole. Nor have I spoken of the cases which involve public authorities and vast institutions like railways. Here unkindness does enter, and an open court is almost the only way of arriving at the truth. A good deal of law has after all to be made by the judges—London Daily News.

Township Councils.

DOVER COUNCIL.

The council met pursuant to adjournment at the Town Hall July 14th. The members were all present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

A. McDonald's amended report to repair the R. Ward Drain was read. A petition, signed by Gregory B. Carron and others, was read, asking for the construction of a pumping scheme to lift and throw the water from the outlet of the R. Ward Drain into the civil courts of justice. We have here in black and white what the nation pays as the price of that delightful hobby known as going to law. And yet the bill of costs is incomplete. Many cases are settled out of court, yet not without an expenditure of cash, while, in the instances where the quarrel is fought to a finish, the costs which appear in these returns do not by any means include all that the unhappy litigants had to defray.

Moved by King and Boyer, that A. McDonald's account, $50, be paid for revising his report on the repair of the R. Ward drain—Carried.

Moved by King and Hind, that Joseph Belsie be paid $8 for filling washout on 5th concession—Carried.

Moved by King and Lewis, that George Bourdeau be refunded $1 paid by him to F. Primeau, acting constable at municipal elections at polling station No. 3—Carried.

THIS BUTCHER IS ALL RIGHT

Had Diabetes but was Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Great Interest in the Case as People Realize what will cure Diabetes will Cure any Kidney Disease.

Toronto, Ont., July 25.—(Special).—As the people learn to realize how much the general health depends on keeping the kidneys right, and how many diseases are the direct result of bad kidney action every verified cure of a severe kidney disease is received with interest.

For that reason the case of A. W. Holman, the well known butcher of 193-1-2 Mutual street, this city, is well worthy of attention. Mr. Holman had Diabetes. Now he is a well man. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it. Asked concerning his case, Mr. Holman said:

"Yes, I had Diabetes for six years. I tried all kinds of remedies but to no use. My attention was called to Dodd's Kidney Pills by an advertisement and I began to use them. I only used six boxes when I was completely cured."

As it is conceded that what will cure Diabetes will cure any Kidney Disease it must be admitted that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure any Kidney Disease.

THE AIM.

Then, who lovest not alone
The swift success, the instant goal,
But hast a latent eye to mark
The failure of the inconstant soul.

Consider not my little worth—
The men achievement, scamped in act,
The high resolve and low result,
The dream that durt not face the fact.

But count the reach of my desire;
Let this be something in thy sight;
I have not, in the slothful dark,
Forgot the vision and the height.

Neither my body nor my soul
To earth's low ease will yield consent.
I praise thee for my will to strive;
I bless thy god of discontent.

GIRLS' NEW PROFESSION.

Employed in London Shops to Wear Pretty Dresses.

What can a woman do to earn her living? She can become a draper's model, is the suggestion of one authority.

"Unquestionably a great deal of the trouble concerning employment is caused by the women themselves," he said to an Express representative the other day.

"All domestic duties nowadays are scorned as being beneath their dignity. We cannot get domestic servants because the girls want to be typists or clerks. Good cooks are becoming as extinct as the Great Auk, and the only housemaid's place for which there is any competition is a housemaid's place on the stage."

"Yet we are overburdened with governesses—half trained, as a rule—extra nurses, typists, and clerks who cannot get employment."

"A new profession has been suggested for girls who have had no special training for any business or professional work. All that it required is a good figure, and the carriage necessary to show off beautiful gowns."

"The profession is that of mannequin, or draper's model. These girls are employed by all large shops, and are selected entirely on account of their beauty and shapeliness."

"Their duties consist solely of walking up and down the long show-rooms clad in all the most exquisite models which the shops can produce for the benefit of the ladies who wish to purchase them."

"Those who have tried it state that they find the life most profitable and comfortable, and they have not the slightest wish to change their position for that of a governess or a clerk."

"Unfortunately the demand for such women is not large. But, after all, perhaps it is nearly as large as the supply, considering how very few women are perfectly formed nowadays."

How London Grows.

A striking example of the rapid way in which what is known as the extra-metropolitan area is ever extending is furnished in a return which has just been issued in relation to East Ham. But a few years ago—15 or 20 at the most—it was little more than a fairly large village with a population of a few thousands only. It had no electric trams, no municipal buildings worthy the name, and, in short, it boasted all the little else to distinguish itself as a community apart from anywhere else.

From the return just issued, however, it appears that the population now exceeds 115,000, while a splendid municipal electric tram service is in full working, a complete set of municipal buildings has been erected, and, in short, it boasts all the adjuncts for which one looks in an up-to-date modern community. When one comes to look at the fact that its population grows at the rate of thousands per annum it is not surprising to find that no less than 4,371 men living there are engaged in the building trade, while there are also 2,578 general laborers to be counted within its area.

Another significant set of figures are, that while last year's births numbered 3,805, there are 747 persons engaged in the furniture trade, which prompts one to speculate as to whether the furniture trade and the birth-rate are synonymous. East Ham evidently believes in looking after the inner man, as under the heading "food supply" the very respectable number of 1,826 persons are employed.

Mrs. Ward, the Painter.

The London Star says Mrs. E. M. Ward, the painter, is a figure in the social and art life of London, familiar to a large circle of friends, admirers and the public, and popular with all. The granddaughter of an artist, the daughter of an R. A., the wife of an R. A., the mother of artists, descended from a line of ancestors all remarkable in art, and in her own person and talent embodying so much of the art emotions of our period, Mrs. Ward has been the friend and instructor of royalty, and a pioneer in the establishment of schools of art. Among her favorite pupils was the popular Princess Alice of Albany, now Princess Alexander of Teck, and at one time the Duchess of Albany herself. The popular Leslie Ward ("Spy" of Vanity Fair) is Mrs. Ward's son. Her husband was the late E. M. Ward, R.A., in whose lifetime Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort were frequent visitors to the joint studio of husband and wife. Mrs. Ward spent much time at Windsor doing portraits of the royal children.

G. O. M. of Empire.

Sir Frederick Young is the grand old man of the Empire. When Queen Victoria was just beginning her record reign he was associated with Edward Gibbon Wakefield in the colonization of Australia and New Zealand, and ever since he has been identified with every Imperial movement in London. He was the energetic and enthusiastic secretary of the Colonial Institute during the early years of struggle over a hosier's shop in the Strand, and in spite of his 87 years he continues to take an active paternal interest in its welfare in its new palatial premises in Northumberland avenue.

CHOICE LOTS FOR SALE

The lots still left in the Athletic Ground Survey are undoubtedly the best value offered in the city at the present time. Why is it that you can buy certain properties in the city to day for about one-half of the original cost? Simply because some person was foolish enough to select a lot in an undesirable locality because it was cheap, and then build a good house on it. Such properties must be sacrificed when put on the market in order to effect a sale. Be Wise, Get a Good Location. The best residence property is always the cheapest. When you want to see you will have scores of purchasers. The man who would build a good house on this property worth from $1,500 to $2,500 could readily dispose of it before it would be ready for occupancy at an advance of $500 to $800, and still give the purchaser good value, as the actual value of these lots is certainly double what is asked for them. RAISED A ROLLER

Last Hallowe'en some clever boys did what they thought was a very smart trick in dumping the bowling club's stone roller off the point of the park into the river. It has remained in the river ever since and the bowlers have got a new roller.

C. Austin, the energetic and wide awake president of the West Kent Agricultural Society, knew that the stone roller was in the river and he also knew that the Peninsular Athletic grounds were in need of rolling, so he bargained with the bowling club for the buried roller. Part of the bargain was that Mr. Austin was to raise the roller himself.

Several attempts were made to get the roller from the bottom of the river, but they were all fruitless. The other day a man named Snider, hailing from New York, happened in the city and heard from some small boys that there was $5 in it for the man who would raise the roller. He went to Secretary Robinson and offered his services, which were accepted.

Last Saturday he went with a rope to the spot where the roller had disappeared and commenced to dive for it. At last, after half an hour's diving he located the roller just inside the channel in about 18 feet of water. He dived down with his rope, fastened it to the roller and then brought the latter safely to the top. Mr. Snider is a well built man and an excellent diver. He used no diving suit and stays under the water for two minutes at a time. He found the roller covered with brush and logs at the bottom of the river. Mr. Snider has made his living around coal docks diving for lost buckets. Mr. Austin has now got his roller and will use it to advantage on the Fair grounds before the lacrosse game on Wednesday. The only injury Mr. Snider received was a slight scratch on his forehead, caused when he was removing the brush from the roller.

SATCHEL OF THE SATELLITE

I think I'll let St. Thomas win next Wednesday just to encourage them.

A Kansas politician and his wife were going to a Topeka theater the other night and, woman-like, Mrs. Politician was finishing her toilet, on the street, by putting on her gloves and to have one hand free put a glove into her husband's overcoat pocket while she buttoned the other. About then the good man slipped his hand into the same pocket, and finding the little glove, and hoping to avoid explanations threw the article over the fence. In a minute his wife discovered the loss. Can you guess the moral?

Uncle Terry

By
CHARLES CLARK MUNN

Copyright, 1900, by LEE & SHEPARD

The buxom Abby Miles had the best and longest story to tell, and her praise of Mr. Nason, how polite he was and "how he couldn't keep his eyes off'n Alice all the afternoon," was whispered to every girl she knew. The five dollar incident created the most gossip, however. The miller had remarked that a "young feller who threw money round that way must be rich," and that remark soon grew into a story that Alice Page's beau was worth a million and that she was engaged to him.

As might be expected, the subject of all this gossip heard none of it until the storm had reached alarming proportions. Mrs. Means was the first one to tell the extent of the gossip.

"They tell me," said that worthy matron to Alice one Sunday afternoon, "that you ain't likely to teach school after this summer."

"And why not?" answered Alice.

"Don't I give satisfaction?"

"Oh, 'tain't that. I guess you can imagine the reason, and I want to be the first to congratulate you. They tell me he's worth a pile o' money, an' he's sartainly well favored so far as looks goes; but, then, 'handsome is as handsome does' was allus my motto."

Alice colored.

"Do you mean Mr. Nason, my brother's friend?" she said seriously.

"Why, who else would I mean? I've heard that you was to be married this fall and that he is worth a million. They say he told Amos Curtis he was, though I don't believe that. But anyway, Amos says he gave him $5 'jest fer usin' his old boat that wa'n't worth splittin' up fer kindlin's!"

"It's not true, not one word of it," exclaimed Alice angrily, "and if you care for me one bit I wish you would tell everybody I said so."

She waited to hear no more, nor for Aunt Susan, who had lingered to chat with some one, but walked home hurriedly, as if to hide herself. Once in the silent house she began to cool off.

"I won't believe he told Amos he was worth a million," she said to herself. "He isn't so stupid as that. But I am afraid the silly boy did give him $5, which has started all this gossip."

When Aunt Susan came in she fairly pounced upon her. "Why haven't you told me, auntie, about all this gossip that's going the rounds regarding Mr. Nason and myself? I know you have heard it."

"It's all nonsense, Alice," answered that lady rather sharply, "and you are foolish to listen to 'em. I've heard it, of course, but so long as it's no discredit to you, why let it go into one ear and out 't'other, same as I do! Folks must talk in this town, an' what they're sayin' 'bout you ought to make you feel proud—that a young fellow like him and worth money wanted to come courtin', and he certainly showed he did or I'm no judge."

"He's got Aunt Susan on his side as well as Bert," Alice thought, "and I am glad I kept him at a distance, just to pay him for being so silly with his money."

Late that afternoon Alice called upon Abby Miles and talked about everything except the subject she most wanted to talk about, and then as Abby usually had a Sunday evening caller, Alice came home at dusk. Never before had the house seemed so lonely, and as she sat on the porch and tried to talk with Aunt Susan her thoughts were elsewhere.

When the lights across the valley, which served as curfew by saying bedtime when they went out, had disappeared, she came in and, seating herself in the dark at the piano, softly played the chords and hummed the words of a song.

"It'll come out all right," said Aunt Susan to herself, and she waited till Alice called to her to come in and go to bed.

CHAPTER XIX.

FRANK NASON had consoled himself during the many months of hard study with visions of a yachting trip in July and August, when perhaps in some manner Alice Page could be induced to come, with his mother and sisters to chaperon her and her brother and some other friends to complete the party.

He had the Gypsy put in first class shape and all her state rooms refurnished, and one in particular, which he intended Alice should occupy, upholstered in blue. So well formed were his plans that he timed the start so as to utilize the July moon for the first ten days and mapped out a trip taking in all the Maine coast, spending a week at Bar Harbor, and then a run up as far as Nova Scotia.

He had described all the charms of this trip to Alice and extended to her the most urgent invitation. He had obtained her brother's promise to supplement it and also to make one of the party, and he had persuaded his sister Blanch to aid him with his mother, but he had met discouragement on all sides. In the first place, Alice wrote it was doubtful if she could go. It would be a delightful outing and one she would enjoy, but it would not be right to leave Aunt Susan alone for so long, and then, as her school did not close until the last of June, she would have no time to get ready.

To cap the climax of Frank's discouragement, when July came his mother announced that she had decided to go to the mountains for the summer.

"It's no use, Bert," he said to his friend one evening. "I wanted your sister to go to Maine with us and mother and the girls and a few more to make a party, but it's no go. I can't induce your sister to join us, and it's no use if she would, for mother has determined to go to the mountains, and that settles it. If you and I have any outing on the yacht we must make up a gander party."

"That suits me just as well as, and in fact better than, the other plan," replied Albert consolingly. "If we have a lot of ladies along we must dance attendance upon them, and if not we can fish, smoke, play cards, sing or go to sleep when we feel like it. I tell you, Frank," he continued, evidently desiring to cheer up that young man, "girls are all right as companions at home or at balls and theaters, but on a yacht they are in the way."

A week afterward, and early one bright morning, the Gypsy, with skipper, crew and a party of eight jolly young men on board, sailed out of Boston and that night dropped anchor under the lee of an island in Casco bay. She remained there one full day and the next ran to Boothbay and found shelter in a landlocked cove forming part of the coast line of Southport Island. It was after dinner next day, and while the rest of the party were either playing cards or napping in hammocks under the awning, that Albert Page took one of the boats, his pipe and sketchbook and rowed down the coast a mile to an inlet he had noticed the day before. The outer point of this was formed by a bold cliff that he desired to sketch, and pulling the boat well up behind the inner point, tying the painter to a rock and taking the cushions along, he found a shady spot and sat down. The sloping rock he selected for a seat was a little damp, but he thought nothing of it, and lighting his pipe began sketching.

He worked for an hour putting the weed draped rocks and long swells that broke over them into his book, and then, milled perhaps by the monotonous rhythm of the ocean, lay back on the cushions and fell asleep. The next he knew he was awakened by a cold sensation and found the tide had risen until it wet his feet. Hastily getting up, he took the cushions and returned to where he had left the boat, only to find it had disappeared. The rising tide had lifted the boat and painter from the rocks, and it was nowhere to be seen.

"There must be some road back up on the island," he thought, "that will lead me near the cove where the Gypsy is," and still retaining the cushions, he started to find it. But he was a stranger to Southport Island, and the further away from the sea he got the thicker grew the tangle of scrub spruce and briers. It was too thick to see anywhere, and after a half hour of desperate scrambling the afternoon sun began to seem about due east. He had long since dropped the cushions, and finally, in sheer exhaustion, he sat down on a rock to collect himself.

"It looks as though I'm billed to stay here all night," he thought as he noted the lowering sun, "and nobody knows how much longer. There must be a road somewhere, though, and I'm going to find it if the light lasts long enough."

He searched more and more and had now gone ten rods ere he came to one, and then he breathed easier. His clothes were torn, his hands and face scratched by briers, and to save himself he couldn't make it seem but that the sun was setting in the east. He sat down to think. All sound of the ocean was gone, and a stillness that seemed to crawl out of the thicket was around him. He rested a few moments more and then suddenly heard the sound of wheels and presently saw, coming around the curve, an old fashioned carryall, worn and muddy, and, driving the horse at a jog trot, a man as dilapidated looking as the vehicle. Gladdened at the sight, he arose and, holding up his hand as a signal, halted the team. "Excuse me, sir," he said to the man, who eyed him curiously, "but will you tell me where I am?"

"Waal," was the answer in a slow drawl, "ye're on Southport Island an' 'bout four miles from the jumptin' off place. Whar might ye be goin'? Ye looked bushed."

"I am," answered Page, "and badly bushed too. I lost my boat over back here on the shore and have had a cheerful time among the Mohawk briers. I belong to a yacht that is anchored in a cove of this island, I can't tell where, and if you will take me to her I'll pay you well."

The man in the wagon laughed. "Say, stranger," he observed with a chuckle, "you 'mind me o' the feller that got full an' wandered round for a spell till he fetched up to a house an' sed to the man that cum to the door, 'If you will tell me who I am or whar I am or whar I want ter go I'll give ye a dollar.'"

Page had to laugh in spite of his plight, for the humorous twinkle in the old man's eyes as he uttered his joke was infectious.

"I'd like ter 'commodate ye," he added, "but as I'm carryin' Uncle Sam's mail an' must git home an' tend the light, an' as ye don't know whar ye want ter go, ye best jump in an' go down to Saint's Rest, whar I live, an' in the mornin' we'll try an' hunt up yer boat."

It seemed the only thing to do, and Albert availed himself of the chance.

"Can you tell the spot where you found me?" he said to the man as they started on. "I'd like to go back there tomorrow and find my cushions."

"Waal," was the answer, "as I've dray over this road twice a day for nigh on to thirty year, I'm tolerable familiar with it. My name's Terry, an' I'm keeper o' the light at the Cape an' carry the mail to sorter piece out on. Who might ye be?"

method and the ability to do so as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, gonorrhea, venereal disease, varicose veins, hemorrhoids, blood poisoning, hydrocele, enlargement of testis, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc. The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he does not under any consideration accept incurable cases for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply.

Sunlight Soap is recommended, by those who have investigated the different kinds of soaps, as being the best and purest on the market. Those who have gone still farther and tried the different methods state that the Sunlight way of washing is greatly superior to ordinary methods because it requires much less work and makes the clothes whiter and cleaner. Because Sunlight Soap is quite pure and free from adulteration it will not injure delicate fabrics or the user's hands.

PERRY WAS IT

Won King's Prize at Bisby—The Second Canadian to Obtain the Much Coveted Honor.

Bisby Camp, July 23.—Pte. J. Perry, of the 6th Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles, Vancouver, has won the King's Prize. His winning was a great surprise, but most popular. He scored seven bulls and three inners at 1,000 yards, giving him a total of 47 over that range. His total score over the 200, 500, 600, 800, 900 and 1,000 yards ranges was 321, out of a possible 355.

An enthusiastic crowd followed the hero of the hour as he was carried around the camp. At the Canadian hut the procession halted while Perry was photographed.

All the Canadians in camp have decorated their hats with maple leaves taken from the trees lining the avenue leading to the Canadian hut.

Commandant Anderson is jubilant, with a severe accident on Saturday afternoon, which might have resulted more seriously than it did. Mr. Hoppins, who has several hives of bees, has been extracting the honey from one hive, and asked Mrs. Hoppins to bring out some things he needed. She did so, and approaching too near the hive was stung several times in the face and neck. Being very susceptible to a bee-sting, her condition was quite bad for some time, and she had to be summoned. Steps were at once taken to counteract the effects of the poison, so that the sufferer was soon relieved of the worst of her pain.

Mr. Matthews had the misfortune to pinch the second finger of his left hand on Saturday. The wound was a very painful one. Mr. Matthews owns the house where all the pretty flowers, which are so much admired, are.

J. F. Stripp, of Demerara, South America, spent Sunday with his friend Harry Stevens. Mr. Stripp is owner of the Mazurum Diamond Co. It is generally known that there are diamond mines in Demerara, but there are. Mr. Stevens saw a whole dipperful when he was there, taken from Mr. Stripp's mine. They are smaller than the African jewels, but rich in color.

Yesterday was an odd sort of day at the Eau. While it rained nearly all day at Government Park, the residents of the bar only had one little shower, just after dinner. The rain could be seen descending over at the Park and about half way across the Eau. The splendid yacht, Roudau, owned by Capt. Post, got becalmed in the rain belt and was waiting for wind, when Capt. Post's launch came along on its way back from the Park and towed the sailboat to her moorings.

Dr. Cornell has a good fish story. He says that he got it from T. J. Rutley, and that the latter vouches for the truth of it. Mr. Rutley was fishing and was using frogs for bait. A perch came along and swallowed the frog. Mr. Rutley put on another frog and then the same perch came back again. Mr. Rutley caught it this time and found the first frog in the mouth of the perch in addition to the one the fish had just bit on. Mr. Rutley is now thinking of issuing an Ike Walton book on "How to recover frogs and a fish with them." W. R. Phillimore says that he would sooner catch fish than frogs. W. H. Harper remarked something about the fish that bites and swims away living to bite another day.

She did so, and approaching too near the hive was stung several times in the face and neck. Being very susceptible to a bee-sting, her condition was quite bad for some time, and she had to be summoned. Steps were at once taken to counteract the effects of the poison, so that the sufferer was soon relieved of the worst of her pain.

SEA SERPENT TOO MODEST

Paris, July 23.—Avoidance of the camera is all that stands between the sea serpent and official recognition. The French Academy of Sciences is on the verge of admitting its existence, but lack of verification of the "beastie's" features makes such an authoritative step of doubtful propriety.

The academy discussed the serpent at its full length at the last meeting. On the testimony of two men of honor, whose habits of temperance were vouched for, it seemed impossible to longer doubt.

Lieutenant L'Eost, of the French vessel Decade, reports to have seen one last Feb. 25, in the Bay of Along, at Tonkin. Its appearance was reported to him by several men of the crew, and he saw, as well as they a great mass floating on the water, that seemed at first sight like a monster turtle. The animal plunged and reappeared several times, both to the starboard and larboard of the vessel.

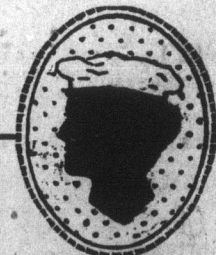

It measured about a hundred feet in length and fourteen or fifteen in diameter. Its skin was black, with yellow spots, and its head gray and scaly, something like that of a turtle. It undulated vertically and horizontally.

This description of Lieut. L'Eost's the Academy found tallied almost exactly with that of Capt. Lagreille, of the Avalanche, who in 1897 and 1898 saw such an animal in the same locality.

An attempt was made to photograph the legendary animal, but it eluded the camera like a timid girl. It is thought that the sea serpent must be one of the gigantic saurians, last descendants of the antediluvian ichthyosaurs.
