LONG AND BUSY SESSION WAS HELD

Board of Education Discussed Whether Kindergarten Teachers be Employed For Full and Not Class Hours Alone. A long and busy session was held last evening in the council chambers by the Board of Education. Those present were Chairman Coulbeck, Messrs Andrews, Armstrong, Balachay, Bentham, Coles, Cutcliffe, Lahey and Lane. There will be no more uniforms issued to the public school cadets, and no certificates will be awarded until after the war is over. No camp will be held this summer either. At the annual inspection, however, if the cadets are awarded an efficient standing, a grant of $2 will be made for every boy in attendance by the government. Communications of several requirements of the Collegiate Institute were given attention. The dental clinic's report for April was read. Number of pupils examined (King Edward School), 343; number requiring treatment, (82.21) 283; defective temporary teeth, 499; defective permanent teeth 328; have tooth brush, 93; no brush, 252; number of pupils treated at clinic, 49; number of pupils treated by own dentist, 14. Then came the Inspector's report for the first month:

THE SITUATION.

Premier Asquith has declared the progress with regard to the Dardanelles to be "highly satisfactory," and it may be taken for granted that he did not forward such a statement without abundant reason.

That the Austro-German forces continue to press hard and at points successfully upon the troops of the Czar is very clear. The official despatch from Petrograd states that they are being "severely tried."

Speaking generally, it may be said that the German offensive remains at a tense point with the allies everywhere acquitting themselves with heroism and dogged determination. The wearing-out process must tell in the long run.

HOSPITAL NEEDS.

As pointed out upon the occasion of the opening of the new wings at the hospital, obligations have been incurred in connection therewith which will have to be faced. They have been absolutely needed improvements in every essential, and as the many citizens who have recently visited the institution have been able to see for themselves, nothing has been frittered away in useless ornamentation or anything of that sort. Briefly stated, the situation is this:

Schultz Bros. contract	$100,000
Extras	7,000
Nurses' Home	37,000
Furnishings, etc.	5,000
Total	$149,000
Voted by city	$ 85,000
County grant	15,000
Women's Aid	20,000
Total	$120,000

In addition there are architect's fees to be paid, $2,800 for elevator, other sums for refrigerators and so on, so that there is some $45,000 to be made up. Citizens will be asked to vote upon a by-law in connection with the matter in the near future, and there can be no doubt that there will be a ready response. Hospital needs have always been met hitherto in the proper spirit, and it goes without saying that the same will be true of this occasion.

CANADA'S CENTURY.

The United States Census Bureau has just announced that the population of that country has just passed the one hundred million mark. In population the United States follows the British Empire, China and Russia. The British Empire has about 425,000,000. China an estimated population at from 350,000,000 to 400,000,000, while Russia has a population of 160,000,000. As a self-contained country only China, Russia and India have larger populations than the United States.

A century ago, as the Montreal Journal of Commerce very aptly points out, the United States had a population of about eight millions—the same as Canada has at the present time. During the past hundred years the United States was the Mecca for the land-hungry of Europe, which with the natural increase of her own people, brought up the total number of inhabitants to the present proportions. It is only reasonable to expect that Canada will duplicate this record in the twentieth century. There is now a greater scarcity of free land than was the case when the United States was settled, and, as a matter of fact, Canada possesses almost the last free lands in the world. After the war we may expect to find millions of people turning their eyes in our direction, and our population should increase faster than did that of the United States, not only because we possess the last great wheat-growing area, but because means of transportation make it much easier to get on to the land than was the case fifty or one hundred years ago. To-day the emigrant from continental Europe is carried without hardships or inconveniences from his old home to a prairie farm. A century ago such a journey was fraught with untold difficulties and required almost superhuman courage. The pessimists who believe that Canada is not making rapid progress should look back and remember that one hundred years ago the United States was occupying a far less favorable position than Canada occupies to-day.

NEPHEW OF MAJOR SMITH ESCAPES NURSES AND JOINS THE CANADIANS

The subjoined copyrighted despatch appears in the Toronto News which has a special man in the Old Land who is doing splendid work. It refers to a nephew of Major Gordon Smith of this city, Superintendent of the Six Nations Reserve.

London, May 5.—Many heroic deeds of the Canadians at Ypres have already been recorded. I have just heard another incident worthy of mention, not only for the pluck displayed, but also as indicating the spirit which animated the whole of the First Contingent during those awful days of fighting.

Some days before the battle, Private Gordon Grahame, "H" Company, Second Battalion, attached to the machine gun section, was injured, sustaining a fracture of the left arm while out with a sniping party. He was removed to No. 10 Casualty Station, very close to the Canadian lines.

On the first day of the battle north of Ypres he heard sounds of heavy firing, and learned that the Canadians were engaged.

Evading the nurses, Grahame, with his useless left arm, escaped from the hospital and rejoined his battalion. He missed the furious charge, but went through the remainder of the struggle with the machine gun squad. Now he is back again in the hospital. He is a son of Mr. Lawrence Hill Grahame, of Toronto.

Private Grahame is the only son of Mr. Lawrence H. Grahame, and is a nephew of Mrs. J. Y. Ormsby, Forest Hill road. Mr. Grahame, senior, is in London at present. The minute he reached civilization and heard that war had been declared he went to Port Hope and enlisted there as a private. He declined to take the time necessary to take out a commission. He was an allround athlete and was very popular with all the members of his company. He won the boxing championship on the transport which carried him across to Salisbury Plain. In England Private Grahame was offered a commission, but declined it. He had made too many friends amongst the men in the ranks of his company and nothing could persuade him to leave them.

Private Grahame, like his father before him, was educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope. He was in South America for some time and has always been of an adventurous disposition.

ination of any colleague. Well, if an election is not ordered at Hon. "Bob" Rogers' command it will be because public opinion has intervened. The "boss" has certainly been very busy—Kingston Whig.

The above is the sort of piffle with which Liberal papers constantly feed their readers.

The first plan of the Liberal manipulators was to attempt to raise a wholesale scandal over war supplies, and then by harassing and taunting the Government to force an election in the belief that they could win.

Men who deliberately knocked on the head (through the Senate) the timely and the needed offer of three dreadnoughts for the British navy are not of the class to stop at anything for supposed party gain, and they thought they saw a chance in connection with the supply charges. They apparently didn't care a flip what harm this might do to the reputation of Canada in the outside world, any more than they gave a hang about the result of the Dominion Senate chopping off the naval aid—an outcome dwelt upon with glee by German papers at that time.

What there was of scandal was speedily exposed by an investigation, aided in every way by the Government, and prompt steps taken, even to the extent of Premier Borden reading two Conservative M.P.'s out of the party. Seeing that the game was up, these self-made Grit sheets commenced to yell that an election would be "a crime" and to charge that "Bob Rogers" was the man who was forcing a fight—that Rogers was the "boss" of Borden, and that the latter sneezed every time the nose of Rogers itched, or words to that effect.

What Hon. Rogers did say, and rightly say, was that the Grit course was such as to warrant the Government in going to the country in order to show the unpatriotic critics and obstructors just where they were at.

The whole country knows that Borden is the stamp of fearless and upright statesman who is under no other control save what he believes to be right, and that he is not under the bit or the whip of any one man or any group of men.

It is not surprising, perhaps, that certain Grit papers should seek to pretend otherwise, but the Kingston Whig ought to have more self-respect than to place itself in that class.

French Clergy in the Fighting

To-day it is estimated that there are 20,000 French priests with the armies of the Republic serving either as actual combatants or as non-combatants.

"How is it?" a French ecclesiastic fighting in the war, though their vocation forbids them to take human life?"

"Christianity makes no such prohibition, he answered. While Christianity tells us not to take human life, it does not forbid us to defend lives. A man who is attacked by a highwayman with a revolver is justified in shooting the highwayman in self defence."

The principle involved in this reply holds good in France. Records prove that the priests who have been called to the colors, owing to France's not recognizing any man as a cleric, are among the bravest of the brave and have more over often given great comfort to their fallen comrades in their last moments.

THE PRIEST-SOLDIER
During the retreat to the Marne a sergeant priest and two men were holding a trench on which a veritable hail of rifle and machine gun bullets were pouring. The sergeant ordered the two privates to quit the trench and join him in attacking the enemy with the bayonet. The men refused, saying that to do so would be suicide. Thereupon the priest jumped from the trench to give them a lesson and in a minute had been struck by bullets, one passing within an inch of the apex of the heart. He fell of course, but was dragged back into the trench. He and his companions were afterwards rescued, and the sergeant-priest is still alive.

The psychological historian who will later analyze the deep causes of the unexpected resistance France offered to the invader in 1914 must note among other new factors of first importance, a lively revival of religious sentiment," says a journalist. "And one of the elements of this reawakening is the presence, so numerous, and the bravery often so heroic, of priests with the colors. This, of course, in addition to those priests who have been shot in the performance of their priestly duty and fell as martyrs in their blood-stained robes."

The priest-soldier—such is the new type of hero of the war of 1914 has given birth to, such the type which the nation's history will later consecrate and immortalize.

The law exempting the clergy in France from military service was repealed in 1889, so that it is exactly a quarter of a century since the French cure had to "put the sack on his back." The result is that French fighting priests are to be found in each of the subsequent annual levies called to the flag.

The theological student in barracks proves a zealous soldier, both conscientious and refined. There is also abundant evidence that his presence improved barrack morals, dissipated many prejudices and did much to close the gap that had long separated priest and peasant.

Of the three classes of priests at the front—combatants, priests, exercising only their sacred functions, and those acting as stretcher bearers (brancardiers)—the first, the combatants, have displayed astonishing, and it may be added unexpected, bravery throughout the campaign. No list of those who fell on the field of honor, or who have been mentioned in the "army orders of the day" has been published without showing the names of one or more ecclesiastics.

MANY PRIESTS HONORED.
After only five weeks of war—no less than 219 priests were proposed for the Legion of Honor, while more than double that number were proposed for the coveted "military medal" or were honorably mentioned in the Orders of the Day.

It is noteworthy that almost two thirds of the priests exercising their holy office have been decorated or mentioned in orders, and in nearly every case for the same kind of valor.

So much for the priests acting in their proper sacred character. It one turns to the class of priests actually fighting like ordinary soldiers, the loss of life appears proportionally enormous.

SLAIN BEFORE THE ENEMY.
The little weekly paper "God and Country," founded since the war began and devoted almost exclusively to recording the heroism of the French clergy in the war, gives in a single issue the names of eighty-nine combatant priests "killed in action," or, as the French phrase is, "slain before the enemy."

Of the 500 French Jesuits, only about one hundred were mobilized; yet out of this number twenty-one had fallen by the beginning of December. One of them was a Captain of Garibaldians.

The official publications abound with instances of heroism and self-sacrifice on the part of the priests in the fighting line. The following are examples:

Reserve-sergeant Lamy, of the 366th regiment of infantry, was wounded five times in succession without ceasing to fight and control his men. Unable to march, he crawled with medical accessories to his wounded comrades, bidding them take courage, giving them brandy from his flask, and offering them the consolations of religion. He showed wonderful fortitude and patience while being carried to the ambulance.

French Reply to the German Official News

Paris, May 7.—An official note issued last night says:

"The German general staff persists in giving false details concerning their offensive engagement. During the last fifteen days the enemy has suffered complete checks and severe losses.

"The German attack on April 22 by two army corps using asphyxiating gas bombs had as its object the piercing of the Ypres front. The greater portion of the prisoners captured from us were overcome by fumes. We suffered no check. The rapidity of our counter attacks prevented the enemy from attaining the left bank of the Yser Canal and from establishing a strong position on the right bank.

"In these combats we inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. Our actual front was established only two kilometres (about a mile and a quarter) behind the original front. Our men are now provided with means to protect them against similar attacks with asphyxiating bombs.

"Being unable to pierce our lines and compel us to give up possession of Ypres, the Germans used a marine gun, firing a distance of 38 kilometres (about 23½ miles) on Dunkirk. This gun, which ceased firing after two days, did damage of no military importance.

"On April 23 the Germans endeavoured to retake Les Eparges with three divisions. Heavy fighting occurred in the neighborhood of St. Remy and Calonne and on Les Eparges heights, but the Germans were repulsed by counter attacks. The number of losses was shown by great heaps of bodies. It may be said that the three divisions were completely decimated.

"Important progress has been made by the allies in the Bois le Pretre, the Bois d'Ally, and the Bois de Montmare. On April 26 the Germans attacked and captured the summit of Hartmanns-Wellerkopf, but their success was brief. We retook the summit the following day, forcing the enemy a distance of 200 metres beyond the crest. We also made progress in the region of Schnepfen-Rietkopf, where guns of the enemy were captured.

"To sum up: During the last 15 days the enemy has attempted a heavy offensive, which we speedily broke down. The total of the German losses in the heights of the Meuse, in the Vosges, and the Vosges has been more than 35,000. At no part have they broken through our lines. They have taken no important position on us. They have allowed half a dozen of their finest regiments to be decimated."

THE GAS BLOWERS WERE LAID IN VAIN

Liberals Were Preparing for a "Terrifying" Campaign.

Ottawa, May 7.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has returned from Montreal, Three Rivers and Quebec, where he spent the first part of the week in preparations for an election campaign. So sure appeared the ex-Prime Minister that his failure to support the war measures of the government would result in an immediate appeal

Paris, May 7.—A Havas despatch from Rome says the Austrian ambassador is reported to have handed to Foreign Minister Sonnino at a conference yesterday afternoon, the Vienna cabinet's final proposals to Italy containing the extreme concessions the dual monarchy is willing to make. His lieutenants were doing the same thing in other provinces. There is an accumulation of evidence that the carrying out of these plans would have spelled an exceedingly bitter campaign, as disturbing as the Opposition could make it. Sir Wilfrid RECALLED TEACHERS.

London, May 7.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says a telegram from Constantinople states that the Italian Government has recalled the teachers in Italian schools at the Turkish capital. Subjects of the Triple Entente powers who remain in Turkey are being concentrated at Constantinople by the authorities with a view to removing them to Asia Minor.

DRINK TAXES BEING ALTERED BY CHANCELLOR

Cabinet Consider New Taxes and Releases Old.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, May 7.—The cabinet considered the drink and tax questions at a long meeting yesterday. According to The Daily Mail it was decided to abandon entirely the proposals now before parliament and a new alternative proposed by Chancellor Lloyd-George was favorably received.

In placing of a graduated surtax on stronger beers, the chancellor recommends a re-arrangement of the existing taxes, lessening the taxes on the lighter brews and increasing it on the heavier, but without any alteration in the average of the existing taxes.

As to spirits the Chancellor seeks to handicap the sale of liquor at retail by putting a tax on spirits according to their age, beginning with a high surtax on spirits which have been in bond only a short time.

The cabinet also considered a proposal to prohibit altogether the sale of spirits which have not been in bond for at least three years.

The entire abolition of the new taxes on wines, it is reported, is probable.

UNITED STATES RECEIVE JAP ASSURANCES

That the Treaty Rights of United States Will Not be Violated in China.

Washington, May 7.—The Japanese-Chinese negotiations following reports that Japan had decided to send an ultimatum to China held interest here to-day, second only to the European war. The position of the American government regarding the negotiations is set forth in a statement issued by Secretary Bryan following a consultation with President Wilson. It is intended to clear up any misunderstanding that may exist as to that position.

The statement explains that there is no abatement of the American government's interest in the welfare and progress of China and declares that its sole interest in the negotiations now in progress between China and Japan is that they may result in an agree-

BANDS FOR ASHTON'S OWN IN HAMILTON

Subscription Lists Opened For This Purpose: Good Response.

There is now every indication that within a short time, the officers and men of the Thirty-sixth battalion will have the pleasure of enjoying concerts given by their own regimental brass and bugle bands. Lieut.-Col Ashton stated to-day that through the kindness of James Wastgie subscriptions have been started to raise funds for the purchase of the necessary instruments. In anticipation of the success of the undertaking, the officers of the Thirty-sixth battalion have already selected the bugles and drums and expect to receive them within the next few days. In the meantime the brass band will be organized, this to consist of twenty-four players, all of whom will be experienced musicians selected from the battalion.

NIAGARA CAMP.
Colonel Ashton stated this morning that his trip to Toronto yesterday had to do with arrangements for his battalion to go to Niagara camp, together with two regiments from the 35th and 7th Battalions. The various regiments will move into camp about May 20 and occupy individual camps for a time, after which they will be brigaded together, the object of the individual camp in the meantime being to bring each regiment up to required drill and camp standard.

The reinforcement company of the 15th of Toronto, was ordered into concentration camp yesterday and the 16th is completing its organization under Captain Gander and is prepared to move at any time. An advance party of fifteen men and officers from the 35th battalion will leave Hamilton Monday next for Niagara-on-the-Lake to prepare camp. There is some talk of the 36th being transported from here to Niagara camp in automobiles by the Hamilton Automobile club.

The sergeants of the 35th of Brantford, have been asked to come to Hamilton, Saturday, May 15th on which occasion the 36th battalion will hold a field day. Special cars will be used for bringing the Brantford men to the city.

Women's Institute

Instead of the regular afternoon session, the members of the Alford and Park Road Women's Institute, gave a social evening, Friday, April 30th, at the home of Mrs. M. Jones, Park Road.

The event proved to be a great success from a social and financial standpoint. In spite of a disagreeable night the gathering was large, there being over one hundred people present.

Mr. E. Shurett, being chairman for the evening, the following program was enjoyed. All joined heartily in singing the patriotic songs, The Maple Leaf Forever, and O Canada, after which the chairman delivered a splendid address. The musical selections and readings were indeed excellent and were much appreciated.

Piano duet, Misses Storey and Edmondson; vocal solo, Miss Norrie; piano solo, Miss Armstrong; piano duet, Misses Streya and Edmondson; vocal solo, Miss Norrie. Mrs. Gillen, president of the Institute, read an essay on "Helpful Hints," which was both interesting and instructive.

A guessing contest was given, which afforded much amusement.

All matters of business were dispensed with for the evening, but the president requests a full attendance at the May meeting, at Mrs. John Mordue's, 3rd Thursday in the month. This will be the annual meeting and election of officers.

At the close of the programme a dainty lunch was served by the ladies of the Institute, and all joined in extending a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jones for their kindness in opening their home for the occasion.

A silver collection was taken, from which the Institute realized the amount of $13.

MT. PLEASANT INSTITUTE

The Mt Pleasant Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Malcolm, May 4th, when a goodly number turned out, despite the unfavorable weather, this meeting being the annual election of officers. The meeting opened in the usual way, Miss Kofelion occupied the chair in the absence of the president. Question hour was conducted by Mrs. Eadie. Minutes of the last meeting and annual financial report was given by the secretary and adopted.

The election of officers followed, with the following results in the following being elected: President, Mrs. D. McPherson; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Smith; 2nd vice-president, Miss Orpha Thomas; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. James Eadie; dis. director, Miss F. Fryer.

A splendid paper was given by Miss Fryer on Patriotism, which was very much enjoyed by those present, and showed careful study of the subject. The members are requested to bring in clippings from newspapers, magazines, etc., containing anything but war news. These will be made up into budgets and forwarded to the soldiers.

The meeting adjourned and the hostess served dainty refreshments. The members of the Cainsville Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. David Pappie on Tuesday, May 4th. Although the weather was unfavorable, a large number of ladies were present and spent a pleasant time together. The meeting opened by singing, "Help Somebody To-day."

The roll call was responded to by paying the yearly fee. The business part of the meeting was then conducted. All the officers, with the exception of the secretary-treasurer, who has moved from the neighborhood,

HUSBAND AND WIFE TO BE BURIED TOGETHER

Third Death in Family at Ingersoll Within Two Weeks.

Ingersoll, May 7.—There will be a double funeral at Ingersoll Rural Cemetery to-day, when Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Barry will be laid to rest in one grave. Their deaths occurred just eleven hours apart. Mr. Barry, after a lingering illness, died on Wednesday afternoon, May 5th, at his home in Ingersoll. He was 79 years of age and well-known resident here. He came to Ingersoll several years ago from Verschole, Bereham Township, where they spent many years. Death has visited the family three times in less than two weeks, a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Dutton, only thirty years of age, being called under very sad circumstances. One son and one daughter survive.

SMALLEST WOMAN DIES

Miss St. Louis of Sandwich E., 38 Inches Tall, Stopped Growing at 12.

Sandwich, May 6.—Miss Louise St. Louis, daughter of a prominent farmer of Sandwich East, and who is thought to have been the smallest woman in the Province, if not in the whole of Canada, died suddenly to-day at her home in Tecumseh Road, from an attack of angina pectoris. She was 38 years old. Until she was 12, Miss St. Louis was a normal child in all respects. When she was 38 inches tall her growth suddenly ceased, and doctors who were appealed to called the case a freak of nature. Miss St. Louis leaves four sisters and four brothers, all of normal size.

lands, 8 children; ecerne, 3 children; nepetigo, 6 children; ring worm, one child; eruption on scalp, 3 children; gonorrhoea, 5 children; personal uncleanliness, 2 children; visits during month, 54.

The water plant at the Collegiate had been examined and found in good condition.

A letter from Mr. W. E. Foster requesting the expulsion of two boys, was also read.

Mr. Rowe, principal of Dufferin School, requested that an exhibition of the pupils' work for the year be made in the early part of June, for the purpose of showing the parents the work being accomplished by their children.

Mr. Landmore asked for leave of absence for a few days to visit the convention in Toronto.

Mr. Andrews moved that the Landymore, Rowe and Foster communications be filed. He also moved that the dental clinic report for April be filed. Carried.

Mr. Lane moved that the water inspection insurance of the boilers at the Collegiate Institute be referred to the building and grounds committee. Carried.

Mr. Bentham moved that the Collegiate examination requirements and the communication re. cadet corps be filed, and that Mr. Bingle, quartermaster of the cadet corps, govern himself as required by communication. Carried.

The management committee report, read by Mr. Andrews, stated that 60 additional pupils be taken into the Grandview school at the beginning of the next term. That the requests of P. W. Landymore, A. Rowe, W. E. Foster be filed.

Another request was reported, C. F. Gamble applied for a position as entrance examination examiner.

The last clause of the report was that the kindergarten teachers work all day in the morning at one school and at another in the afternoon.

Dr. Ballachey objected to the last two clauses of the report. If the first clause were carried he said it would take Mr. Gamble away from his duties at his school in the city and a substitute would have to be put in his place just when he was most needed, before the exams.

This complaint was discussed by the doctor, when Mr. Andrews explained that Mr. Gamble would not have to officiate at any exams, but would only have to mark the papers, and would consequently not have to leave his school.

The second complaint made by Dr. Ballachey was the placing of the kindergartens on an all-day basis. He said that no school should be held in the afternoon for such young children, as they should be at home asleep in the afternoon. Also he said that it would cost the Board far more to employ the teachers the whole day instead of half a day, as at present.

Mr. Andrews replied that the expense would not be a bit larger than at present. The teachers were being paid full day's wages at present and were only working half the day.

Mr. Coles thought that it wasn't right to have the kindergarten teachers work all day and all evening, besides preparing their work for next day, but Mr. Andrews stated that the teachers of higher and more responsible grades worked all day and evening, and he did not see why the younger teachers were not employed for the full day also.

A motion was made that the management committee report be adopted. All voted aye but Trustees Ballachey and Coles.

The Buildings and Grounds Committee reported that a side walk should be laid around King Edward School and that it should be constructed by the City Overseer.

Plans and specifications for the new Rawdon street school prepared by Taylor and Bailey were requested to be paid for.

The expenditures of King Edward School were attached to the report.

It was thought advisable to refer the matter of the payment for the plans to the City Council but it was proved by Mr. Bentham that this could not very well be done, and that the Board would have to handle the matter themselves. It was essential that the discussion be definitely settled, so a special committee was moved to be appointed by Mr. Lane to be empowered to settle the dispute with the Architects, Messrs. Cutcliffe and Bentham were appointed.

At this juncture, the business of the meeting was suspended in order to consider the public school swimming classes at the Y. M. C. A., as brought before the Board by Mr. Goodwin, who represented the Y. M. C. A.

A long and heated pro-and-con debate ensued, whether it would be advisable and right to allow school boys to leave their school work for an hour or two and enter the swimming classes at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Andrews thought that it would be entirely wrong to take boys from their studies just at this time of the term—before the final exams. He believed in developing physical as well as mental faculties in children, but only when time permitted.

Mr. Bentham asked that the boys who were not members of the Y. M. C. A. should be allowed to take part in the classes, and learn the invaluable art of swimming, which was absolutely necessary for the safety and welfare of every boy and girl. He said if the children had not learned their lessons in the previous part of the term, they could not do it in the last few weeks.

Mr. Kilmer said that there were only 198 school days of five hours each, and when holidays, recess, drills and other recreation was subtracted, it left a very small time for study.

Messrs. Cutcliffe, Andrews, Gamble had more to say on the subject, all advancing good reasons in favor of the question as they thought fit.

Mr. Coles thought that by taking school children from their inside work for an hour a week would do them good and make them brighter at their lessons. He was of the same opinion as Mr. Lane, that some of the other extra work should be cut out of the curriculum and both boys and girls be given an opportunity to learn to swim.

Chairman Coulbeck suggested that it be left for the consideration of the Board and a definite decision arrived at after the other business had been transacted.

The Finance and Supply Committee report, made by Treasurer Bentham, was next read. It was very short and contained only a list of accounts which were moved to be paid. Carried.

The report of the Advisory Industrial Committee was read by Mr. J. Coles. Those who had been present at the last meeting were Chairman J. Coles, Messrs. Armstrong, E. Trench, J. Harris, W. Lane, J. Kavanagh, J. Adams, W. Lahey, A. Culbeck, A. W. Burt and J. Mutter. The gas purifier was reported to have been installed in the Collegiate Institute and in good working order.

Accounts amounting to $80.55 were recommended for payment. The visiting committee visited the day classes and found them in good shape. The members of the committee visited the public schools and interviewed boys who intended leaving school at the end of the term for the purpose of entering industrial life and show them the advantages by receiving instruction for one or two years in industrial classes at the Collegiate.

The need of night classes in public schools was considered by the Board of Education when considering the fall work. It is known that a large number of foreigners wish to acquire speaking knowledge of English.

Mr. Mutter reported on his visit to the annual meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Technical and Industrial Training.

The report was moved to be adopted and carried.

It was decided that By-laws prepared by the By-law Committee be referred to special committees and that a special meeting of the Board be called to consider them; copies to be given to every member in the meantime. Moved by Mr. Andrews and carried.

The Board authorized, on the request of Principal Burt and Inspector Kilmer, that the Upper School examinations be held at the usual time. Carried.

Improvements, which are absolutely necessary in the Central School, were suggested to be made by Mr. Lane. It was referred to the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

A resolution was made by Dr. Ballachey that the boys of the public schools, who are not members of the Y. M. C. A. be allowed to attend the swimming classes.

An amendment to this resolution was made by Mr. Andrews, that suitable hours be made in which the swimming instructions could be given which would not interfere with the teaching hours, owing to the approaching exams. All courtesy due however to the Y.M.C.A. Directors for their kind offers.

The resolution was carried by a majority of one.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mr. Coles gave a splendid report on the convocation held in Toronto. It was very instructive and interesting and a vote of thanks was made by Mr. Gamble and unanimously carried.

Mr. Cutcliffe moved that a request be sent to the Y.M.C.A. that the public school girls be admitted for instruction in swimming also, as they need the lessons as much as the boys. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

ELEVEN SOCCER MEN GET REINSTATEMENT

Recommendation of O. F. A. However, Must be Ratified by Dominion Association.

At a meeting of the emergency committee of the Ontario Soccer Association in Toronto last night, eleven players who have been playing outlaw soccer, were recommended for reinstatement. The men in question are all from the Hamilton and District Association, and are as follows: J. Wands, H. Thomb, A. Thomb, G. Smart, G. Howson, J. Ure, A. Wands, J. Atkinson, J. Hunter, W. Barlow and J. Owens.

The recommendation of the Ontario Association will be passed on to the Dominion Association for their ratification. In the meantime the players affected may play in the H. and D. games, but not in Connaught Cup competitions. It was felt that the players would secede to the outlaw body if not reinstated, and thereby deal the H. and D. a very serious blow.

During the evening the Ontario Association presented Past President F. Guthrie with a handsome club bag.

Cricket

A meeting of cricketers will be held at the O.S.B. grounds on Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. when it will be decided whether to arrange a game here with a Toronto team for May 24 or not. After the meeting a practice will be held. The grounds under care of the members begin to look in splendid shape. Cricketers will welcome the news that James W. Croucher will again be seen playing this season, after an absence of four years.

MATERIAL AT GUELPH

Knotty Lee Has a Lot of Players to Pick From.

Guelph, May 7.—Knotty Lee has now twelve players at work preparing for the opening of the Canadian League season, and they appear to be a likely lot of candidates, the majority of whom have already had experience in the Canadian League. The line-up of yesterday and to-day has allowed the players to loosen up a little, and they are putting plenty of steam behind the ball.

The first game of the season will be played Friday and Saturday with the Cuban Giants, a fast colored aggregation who are touring the country. Lee has as pitchers, Dorbeck, Carney, Hoover, Farr, Page, Kirley, and one other whose name cannot be divulged at present, and out of this bunch, a strong pitching staff should be secured. The catching department will be strong this year with Red Fisher and Hawkins, also Jordan, who handles himself well in the field. The infield will consist of Grieves, Killilea, Murphy and Isaacs, with Sullivan and O'Brien to make them hustle for their places, while in the outfield he has Hunt and two others yet to report. With good weather the team should be in fine shape for the opening game with Ottawa on the 19th.

On account of both matches taking place in the city they will be very largely attended. The teams selected to play are as follows:

THISTLES LINE-UP

Brantford Thistles play Paris in the first round of the Courier Cup on Saturday at Agricultural Park. As this is the first time these teams have met and the Thistles going strong and Paris are good cup fighters there is sure to be a good game as both teams are very evenly matched. The Thistles committee are going to rely on the same team that has done so well the last three games so the line-up will be: W. Johnson, D. Cook, H. Taylor, A. Maick, A. Stewart, S. Harrington Capt. W. Vipond, D. Linn, G. Richardson, R. Richardson, W. Richardson, Reserves, G. Ramsay, J. Maloy, G. Lansley, A. Johnson, G. Perry, lines, D. Angus, Referee, Mr. Mearns.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York, May 7.—In the most exciting game played in New York this season, the New York Americans won a thirteen innings victory from Boston. Ruth of Boston pitched well, errors by Wagner and McNally and the inability of the Boston catchers to stop the Yankee base runners, prevented him from winning in the ninth inning. Booe's double drove home the tying run with two out in the ninth and the winning run was scored in the thirteenth on High's single and steal and Cook's single. Score:

Boston	3 12 4
New York	4 10 2

Batteries—Ruth and Carrigan, Thomas; Warhop, Pieh and Nunamaker.

At Philadelphia—Washington overwhelmed the home club yesterday by 11 to 2. The visitors made seven of their runs off Penneck in twininnings and also piled up four in the third off Bressler. Barry made four errors. Score:

R. H. E.
Washington	11 12 1
Philadelphia	2 8 7

Batteries—Gallia, Harper, and Henry, Williams; Penneck, Bressler and Schang, Lapp.

At Cleveland—Chicago defeated Cleveland 10 to 4, scoring six runs in the first inning on three passes, three errors and three hits, and driving Mitchell from the box. Cleveland knocked Benz out in the fifth inning, but Cicotte was a puzzle. Score:

R. H. E.
Chicago	10 13 2
Cleveland	4 8 4

Batteries—Benz, Cicotte and Daly; Mitchell, Walker, Coombe and O'Neill.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brooklyn, May 7.—Erskine Hayer pitched great ball yesterday and Philadelphia took the first game of the series with the Brooklyns by 3 to 1. A triple by McCarty and O'Mara's double saved the Dodgers from a shut out. Score:

R. H. E.
Philadelphia	3 7 1
Brooklyn	1 5 2

Batteries—Mayer and Klifier; Pfeiffer and McCarty.

At Boston—New York bunched hits including a triple by Robertson off Tyler in the 7th inning for two runs, and won yesterday's game from Boston 3 to 1. Score:

R. H. E.
New York	3 11 3
Boston	1 4 0

Batteries—Fesreau and Meyers; Tyler and Whalink, Gowdy.

At Pittsburg—Overcoming a three-run lead, Pittsburg hammered out a 9 to 3 victory over St. Louis yesterday. The wildness of Meadows and Griner aided the locals in scoring four runs in the fifth inning, enough to win the game. The locals added one more yet to report. With good weather the team should be in fine shape for the opening game with Ottawa on the 19th.

FEDERAL LEAGUE

Newark, May 7.—Pittsburg triumphed in a ten inning rally after fighting an uphill game here yesterday. Score:

R. H. E.
Pittsburg	10 10 3
Newark	2 10 3

At Baltimore—Baltimore made a clean sweep of the series with Chicago by taking yesterday's game 9 to 8. With Chicago four runs to the good in the sixth inning, Fredenast went into the box for the visitors and was hammered all over the lot, Simmons, a pinch hitter knocking a homer, and sending in two runs ahead of him and another came in before the side was retired. In the eighth Zin won the game with a hit over the fence. The score:

R. H. E.
Chicago	11 30 2000 8 12 3
Baltimore	0 10 24 0 1 9 10 3

At Buffalo—Buffalo and Kansas City yesterday divided the first double header of the season on the home grounds the visitors taking the first four to two, the Buffalos the second 4 to 1. Errors figured largely in the run getting in both games. Scores:

R. H. E.
First game—
Kansas City	10 00 20 0 0 1—7 1
Buffalo	0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—2 4 5

Second game—R. H. E.
Buffalo 2 0 1 0 0 0 1 1—4 4 1

At Brooklyn—A triple play by St. Louis and Don Marion's sensational pitching after the first inning featured the Brookfeds 3 to 2 victory here to-day. The three-ply killing came in the sixth inning with Evens on sec-

PROUD OF CANADA'S EXHIBIT AND OF HER FAMOUS TRAIN

"It was a pleasure to be able to say, 'I am a Canadian' and to know that our Dominion's exhibit was the best within the grounds'."

Mr. I. W. Brisbin, a well known insurance man, who makes his home at Lacolle, Que., thus expresses himself on his return from the Panama Pacific International Exposition. Mr. Brisbin admired not only the Canadian exhibit but the Canadian railway service. In a letter to the Grand Trunk System, he says, "After a trip to the Panama Exposition, during which we travelled over eight different railways, I wish to express to you our appreciation of the very excellent service given by your train, the International Limited. During our journey to and from Chicago we occupied a very clean and comfortable observation pullman car, found the service in the dining car all that could be desired, and all the men in charge were most courteous and obliging. The service of the G.T.R. is not excelled upon this continent."

THE WORK OF A DESTROYER

If on the German side submarines played the principal part in the naval war, on the British side it has been the destroyer which has to maintain an incessant and unwearying activity, writes an expert in the London Daily Mail. The destroyer is a swift light draught vessel, with engines of tremendous power, built originally for the purpose of destroying torpedo boats, whence her name. She is by far the best vessel to hunt the submarine because of her speed and handiness of gun power, while the fact that she only draws eight or nine feet of water renders her most difficult to injure with a torpedo, which runs best at a depth of fifteen feet, and needs special and awkward adjustments to get hits at shallower levels.

The modern British destroyer is a vessel of 700 to 1,200 tons, long, lean, and low in the water with a lofty bridge forward. She has usually two funnels, but some of the boats have four or even six, and where this is the case the forward one is commonly higher than the others, to keep the smoke clear of the bridge. The later boats are armed with three or four 4-in. guns, weapons of great power for such small craft, firing a 37 lb. shell. In this respect they have an enormous superiority over the German destroyers, which mostly carry only two 24-pounders, and have proved themselves quite unable to stand up against the British craft.

Besides her guns, each of the newer British destroyers carries two pairs of 21-in. torpedo tubes. These are fixed on swivel mountings, so that they can be turned and fired on either broadside. The torpedoes which they discharge are of a very formidable pattern. They are 21 ft. long, carry in their noses a charge of 380 lbs. of high explosive, and weigh some 28 cwt. Their extreme range is as much as 10,000 yards, but at that distance it need scarcely be said that a torpedo which moves comparatively slowly, is not likely to hit anything. They are fired with a small charge of gunpowder, which gives the torpedo a push and shoots it from the tube clear of the destroyer, when its engines propel it through the water towards the target.

BURN OIL ALONE

One of the most striking characteristics of the modern British destroyers is that they burn oil alone in their furnaces. There is no exhausting work for the stokers; all that has to be done is to adjust the valves controlling the influx of oil under the pressure of air. In the German boats there are almost invariably three sets of boilers, two coal fired, one oil fired, so that the advantages of liquid fuel are not secured. The British boats can run at full speed so long as their fuel lasts; the German boats cannot because the stokers would never stand the strain of prolonged high pressure work in the stoke holds with coal.

The modern destroyer has developed into quite a considerable ship, a large vessel which acts as a floating base of each destroyer flotilla. Life in her in war time is no summer holiday. Most of the destroyers are wet ships in any sea; they roll and pitch in bad weather, so that it is almost impossible to cook on board when conditions are bad; and they are of very fragile construction, their outer skin being little thicker than stout brown paper.

WORK IS ARDUOUS

Their work is the most arduous and responsible that can be conceived. They hunt unceasingly for the sight of periscopes on the surface, and if a periscope is seen they set to the business of destroying the craft which shows it. The more destroyers at sea the fewer enemy submarines would escape. It is because in the years before the war the British destroyer programs were heavily reduced that the German underwater boats have been able to achieve a certain measure of success. Destroyers form the van of every battle fleet. In this war they have twice been heavily engaged, in the Battle of Heligoland and in the battle of the North Sea; and in the Bight they did not hesitate to stand up to German light cruisers. The experiment was not a success, for the light cruisers did more harm on the British destroyers than they sustained from them, but that it was attempted shows the high spirit of our officers and men.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE WAR FROM ALL QUARTERS

"FALL IN AND FOLLOW ME."

(Related by Lance Corporal A. Johnstone, of the Royal Engineers, home on sick leave.)

One miserably wet night we had to go out in front of the firing-line to do some work for the Rifle Brigade.

While waiting in a wood, we were feeling very sorry for ourselves. We had tramped a long way through the trenches, through mud and water almost up to our knees. Our clothes were wet through, and we had the prospect of a soaking wet night before us, so that we were almost—but not quite—"fed up."

Suddenly we heard the sound of a mouth-organ, and a party of men who had been sent for rations came along. The leader—the man with the mouth-organ—floundered on ahead, through the mud and slush playing for all he was worth the popular song, "Fall In and Follow Me!"

Needless to say, the humorous side of the thing struck us at once. There was a roar of laughter, and our troubles were soon forgotten.

It is men like that who help to win a war. They are always ready to turn any adverse circumstances to a joke. England may be proud of them.

MASCOTS IN BATTLE.

The death at the front of the mascot goat belonging to the Welsh Fusiliers recalls the adventures of other historical regimental pets of the British Army. There was Bob the collic attached to the Scots Guards, who took part in the hottest fights of the Crimean War, and on his return home with the victorious Allies received a miniature Victoria Cross and the Crimean medals. During the Battle of Alma Bob saved a Guardsman's life, and was subsequently kept busy carrying baskets of brandy to the wounded. At Inkerman he charged with his regiment and was shot in the right fore-foot.

Another famous soldier dog, also named Bob, went through the Afghanistan campaign of 1879 with the Berkshire regiment, and distinguished himself at the battle of Maiwani. He kept on running to the front and barking fiercely at the enemy until a bullet tore nearly all the skin off his back. He recovered in time to take part in another fight, and had the Afghan medal hung around his neck by Queen Victoria herself.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE BROKEN.

"The German offensive is broken," says an official French report: "the German defensive will be broken in its turn." The French believe that that they have now the men and munitions which at no far date will sweep out a path.

"France in the fighting line has now 2,500,000 troops. In addition, she has half that number in a million and a quarter—immediately available in reserve to make up losses. Behind these again are another three-quarters of a million of men. To most people these details will come, we think, as a revelation of the full fighting strength of France at the opening of the ninth month of the war."

"During the present month, when Germany will have called out all but her last reserves, she will have available for both fronts no more than 4,500,000. That will be her maximum. She may be able to maintain it up to the autumn, when her very last resources, numbering 800,000 men will be absorbed. After that German numbers must fall, while the Allies in respect both of men and equipment will be far more powerful than ever."

ANAESTHETICS FOR HORSES.

On the battlefield in Europe horses are treated with just the same care and skill as is shown to the soldiers, and are given chloroform and other anaesthetics before being operated on by skilled officers. To men, with his hand on the door, he paused.

"You go first, Blessington," he said. "I'll follow you in ten minutes. I must glance through the newspapers first."

Blessington looked uncertain. "You won't forget, sir?"

"Forget? Of course not."

St. George, Blessington left the room and closed the door.

Once alone Chilcote walked slowly back to the table, drew up his chair and sat down with his eyes on the white cloth, the paper lying unheeded beside him.

Time passed. A servant came into the room to remove the breakfast. Chilcote moved slightly, then necessary, but otherwise retained his attitude. The servant, having finished his task, replenished the fire and left the room. Chilcote still sat on.

At last, feeling numb, he rose and crossed to the fireplace. The clock on the mantelpiece stared him in the face. He looked at it started slightly, then drew out his watch. Watch and clock corresponded. Each marked 12 o'clock. With a nervous motion he leaned forward and pressed the electric bell long and hard.

Instantly a servant answered. "Is Mr. Blessington in the study?"

Chilcote asked.

"He was there, sir, five minutes back."

Chilcote looked relieved.

"All right. Tell him I have gone out—had to go out. Something important. You understand?"

"I understand, sir."

THE MASQUERADER

By Katherine Cecil Thurston, Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

Started by his vehemence, Blessington wheeled toward him.

"Not your political career, sir?"

There was a moment in which Chilcote hesitated, a moment in which the desire that had filled his mind for months rose to his lips and hung there.

"I—I didn't say that," he murmured. "You young men jump to conclusions, Blessington."

"Forgive me, sir. I never meant to imply retirement. Why, Rickshaw, Yale, Crossham and the whole 'War' crowd would be about your ears like flies if such a thing were even breathed—now more than ever since these Persian rumors. By the way, is there anything real in this border business?"

The St. George's came out rather strong last night.

Chilcote had moved back to the table. His face was pale from his outburst, and his fingers toyed restlessly with the open newspaper.

"I haven't seen the St. George's," he said hastily. "Lakely is always ready to shake the red rag where Russia is concerned. Whether we are to enter the arena is another matter. But what about Craig-Burnage? I think you mentioned something of a contract."

"Oh, don't worry about that, sir," Blessington had caught the twitching at the corners of Chilcote's mouth, the nervous sharpness of his voice. "I can put Craig-Burnage off. If they have an answer by Thursday it will be time enough."

"Wait," he said, veering suddenly. "Wait. I'll see to it now. I'll feel more myself when I've done something. I'll come with you to the study."

He walked hastily across the room; with his hand on the door, he paused.

"You go first, Blessington," he said. "I'll follow you in ten minutes. I must glance through the newspapers first."

Blessington looked uncertain. "You won't forget, sir?"

"Forget? Of course not."

St. George, Blessington left the room and closed the door.

Once alone Chilcote walked slowly back to the table, drew up his chair and sat down with his eyes on the white cloth, the paper lying unheeded beside him.

Time passed. A servant came into the room to remove the breakfast. Chilcote moved slightly, then necessary, but otherwise retained his attitude. The servant, having finished his task, replenished the fire and left the room. Chilcote still sat on.

At last, feeling numb, he rose and crossed to the fireplace. The clock on the mantelpiece stared him in the face. He looked at it started slightly, then drew out his watch. Watch and clock corresponded. Each marked 12 o'clock. With a nervous motion he leaned forward and pressed the electric bell long and hard.

Instantly a servant answered. "Is Mr. Blessington in the study?"

Chilcote asked.

"He was there, sir, five minutes back."

hind Paddington. Now, as he glanced about him, he saw with some surprise how far he had come.

The damp remnants of the fog still hung about the housetops in a filmy veil. There were no glimpses of green to break the monotony of tone. All was quiet, dingy, neglected. But to Chilcote the shabbiness was restful, the subdued atmosphere a satisfaction.

Among these sad houses, these passers-by, each filled with his own concerns, he experienced a sense of respite and relief. In the fashionable streets that bounded his own horizon if a man paused in his walk to work out an idea he instantly drew a crowd of inquisitive or contemptuous eyes. Here if a man halted for half an hour it was nobody's business but his own.

Enjoying this thought, he wandered on for close upon an hour, moving from one street to another with steps that were listless or rapid, as inclination prompted. Then, still acting with vagrant aimlessness, he stopped in his wanderings and entered a small eating house.

The place was low ceiled and dirty, the air hot and steaming with the smell of food, but Chilcote passed through the door and moved to one of the tables with no expression of disgust and with far less furtive watchfulness than he used in his own house.

By a curious mental twist he felt greater freedom, larger opportunities in this drab surroundings such as these than in the old room and its weighty responsibilities of his own life. Choosing a corner seat, he called for coffee; and, there, protected by shadow and wrapped in cigarette smoke, he set about imagining himself some vagrant unit who had slipped his moorings and was blissfully adrift.

His imagination was pleasant while it lasted, but with him nothing was permanent. Of late the greater part of his sufferings had been comprised in the irritable fickleness of all his aims—the distaste for and impossibility of sustained effort in any direction.

He had barely lighted a second cigarette when the old restlessness fell upon him. He stirred nervously in his seat, and the cigarette was scarcely burned out when he rose, paid his small bill and left the shop.

Outside on the pavement he halted, pulled out his watch and saw that two hours, stretched in front before any appointment claimed his attention. He considered vaguely where he might go to what he might do, in those two hours. In the last few minutes a distaste for solitude had risen in his mind, giving the close street a loneliness that had escaped him before.

As he stood wavering a cab passed slowly down the street. The sight of a well dressed man roused the cabman. Flicking his whip, he passed Chilcote close, feigning to pull up.

The cab suggested civilization. Chilcote's mind veered suddenly, and he raised his hand. The vehicle stopped, and he climbed in.

"Where, sir?" The cabman peered down through the roof door.

Chilcote raised his head. "Oh, anywhere near Pall Mall," he said. Then, as the horse started forward, he put up his hand and shook the trapdoor. "Wait!" he called. "I've changed my mind. Drive to Cadogan gardens, No. 33."

The distance to Cadogan Gardens was covered quickly. Chilcote had hardly realized that his destination was reached when the cab pulled up. Jumping out, he paid the fare and walked quickly to the hall door of No. 33.

"Is Lady Astrupp at home?" he asked sharply as the door swung back in answer to his knock.

The servant drew back deferentially. "Her ladyship has almost finished her lunch, sir," he said.

For answer Chilcote stepped through the doorway and walked halfway across the hall.

"All right," he said. "But don't disturb her on my account. I'll wait in the white room till she has finished." And, without taking further notice of the servant, he began to mount the stairs.

In the room where he had chosen to wait a pleasant wood fire brightened the dull January afternoon and softened the thick white curtains, the gilt furniture and the venetian vases filled with white roses. Moving straight forward, Chilcote paused by the grate and stretched his hands to the blaze; then, with his usual instability, he turned and passed to a couch that stood a yard or two away.

On the couch, tucked away between a novel and a crystal gazing ball, was a white Persian kitten, fast asleep. Chilcote picked up the ball and held it between his eyes and the fire, then he laughed superciliously, tossed it back into its place and caught the kitten's tail. The little animal stirred, stretched itself and began to purr. At the same moment the door of the room opened.

Chilcote turned around. "I particularly said you were not to be disturbed," he began. "Have I merited displeasure?" He spoke fast, with the uneasy tone that so often underdram his words.

"Never displeasure," she said languidly, and again she smiled. The smile might have struck a close observer as faintly artificial. But what man in Chilcote's frame of mind has time to be observant where women are concerned? "The manner of the smile was very sweet and almost caressing, and that sufficed."

"What have you been doing?" she asked after a moment. "I thought I was quite forgotten." She moved across to the couch, picked up the kitten and kissed it. "Isn't this sweet?" she added.

She looked very graceful as she turned, holding the little animal up. She was a woman of twenty-seven, but she looked a girl. The outline of her face was pure, the pale gold of her hair almost ethereal, and her tall, slight figure's slim suggested the supple, the possibility of future development, the belong to youth. She wore a lace colored gown that harmonized with the room and with the delicacy of her skin.

"Now sit down and rest or walk about the room. I shan't mind which." She nestled into the couch and picked up the kitten.

"What is the toy for?" Chilcote looked at her from the mantelpiece, against which he was resting. He had never defined the precise attraction that Lillian Astrupp held for him. Her shallowness soothed him; her inconsequent egotism helped him to forget himself. She never asked him how he was, she never expected impossibilities. She let him come and go and act as he pleased, never demanding reasons. Like the kitten, she was charming and graceful and easily amused. It was possible that, also like the kitten, she could scratch and be spiteful on occasion, but that did not weigh with him. He sometimes expressed a vague envy of the late Lord Astrupp, but even had circumstances permitted it is doubtful whether he would have chosen to be his successor.

Lillian as a friend was delightful, but Lillian as a wife would have been a different consideration.

"What is the toy for?" he asked again.

She looked up slowly. "How cruel of you, Jack! It is my very latest hobby."

It was part of her attraction that she was never without a craze. Each new one was as fleeting as the last, but to each she brought the same delightfully insouciant enthusiasm, the same picturesque devotion. Each was a pose, but she posed so sweetly that nobody lost patience.

"You mustn't laugh!" she protested, letting the kitten slip to the ground. "I've had lessons at 5 guineas each from the most fascinating person—a professional—and I'm becoming quite adept. Of course I haven't been much beyond the milky appearance is everything, you know. The rest will come. I am trying to persuade Blanche to let me have a pavilion at her party in March and gaze for all you dull political people." And she smiled.

Chilcote smiled as well. "How is it done?" he asked, momentarily amused.

"Oh, the doing is quite delicious. You sit at a table with the ball in front of you. Then you take the subject's hands, spread them out on the table and stroke them very softly while you gaze into the crystal. That gets up the sympathy, you know." She looked up innocently. "Shall I show you?"

Chilcote moved a small table nearer to the couch and spread his hands upon it, palms downward. "Like this, eh?" he said. Then a ridiculous sneeze seized him, and he moved away. "Some other day," he said quickly. "You can show me some other day. I'm not very fit this afternoon."

If Lillian felt any disappointment she showed none. "Poor old thing!" she said softly. "Try to sit here by me and we won't bother about anything." She made a place for him beside her, and as he dropped into it she took his hand and patted it sympathetically.

The touch was soothing, and he bore it patiently enough. After a moment she lifted the hand with a little exclamation of respect.

"You degenerate person! You have ceased to manure. What has become of my excellent training?"

Chilcote laughed. "Run to seed," he said lightly. Then his expression and tone changed. "When a man gets to my age," he added, "little social luxuries don't seem worth while. The social necessities are likewise enough. Personally I envy the beggar in the street—exempt from shaving, exempt from washing."

Lillian raised her delicate eyebrows. The sentiment was beyond her perception.

"But manuring," she said reproachfully, "when you have such nice hands. It was your hands and your eyes, you know, that first appealed to me." She sighted gently, with a touch of sentimental remembrance. "And I thought it so strong of you not to wear rings. It must be such a temptation." She looked down at her own fingers, glittering with jewels.

But the momentary pleasure of her touch was gone. Chilcote drew away his hand and picked up the book that lay between them.

"Other Men's Shoes," he read. "A novel, of course." She smiled. "Of course. Such a fantastic story—two men changing identities!"

Chilcote rose and walked back to the mantelpiece.

"Changing identities," he said, with a touch of interest in future development.

"Yes. One man is an artist, the other a millionaire. One wants to know what fame is like, the other wants to know how it feels to be really sinfully rich. So they exchange experiences for a month." She laughed.

Chilcote laughed as well. "But how?" he asked.

"Oh, I told you the idea was absurd. Fancy two people so much alike that neither their friends nor their servants see any difference! Such a thing couldn't be, could it?"

Chilcote looked down at the fire. "No," he said doubtfully. "No. I suppose not."

"Of course not. There are likenesses, but not freak likenesses like that." Chilcote's head was bent as he spoke, but at the last words he lifted it.

"By Jove! I don't know about that!" he said. "Not so very long ago I saw two men so much alike that I—"

He colored quickly. "You doubt me?" he asked.

"My dear Jack!" Her voice was delicately reproachful.

"Then you think that my—my imagination has been playing me tricks?"

"My dear boy! Nothing of the kind. Come back to your place and tell me the whole tale?" She smiled again, and patted the couch invitingly.

But Chilcote's balance had been upset. For the first time he saw Lillian as one of the watchful, suspecting crowd before which he was constantly on guard. Acting on the sensation, he moved suddenly toward the door.

"I—I have an appointment at the house," he said quickly. "I'll look in another day when—I'm better company. I know I'm a bear today. My nerves, you know." He came back to the couch and took her hand. Then
