FRANKVILLE FAIR ANNOUNCEMENT

To our Members and Friends,-

Ladies and Gentlemen,-For four years in succession -1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918-Frankville Fair has been up against adverse weather conditions. In 1917 these conditions were so unfavorable that the Society's gate receipts were only $2.90. Notwithstanding the financial loss occasioned by these four years of hard luck, the Directors from year to year, by the strictest economy and careful financing together with generous contributions from friends and well-wishers of the Fair, have weathered the vicissitudes of fortune and the Board of Directors for 1919 are pleased to be able to announce that the Society is financially in the best of health and able to "carry on" for another year. No doubt those members and friends of the Fair who began to despair and prophesy its early demise, will be gratified to learn that there is no ground for pessimism. On the contrary, it should and will be a source of consolation and satisfaction to every loyal British subject to know that the old Fair at Frankville has at least outlived the German Empire, and will be doing business this year at the old stand, on Thursday and Friday, September 25th and 26th. We believe that that people appreciate the honest efforts and square dealing characteristic of the management of our Fair, and we have confidence that they will manifest their appreciation this year by attending th eFair in large numbers, if weather conditions and other circumstances over which they have no control do

In concluding this announcement we desire to say that the same considerate and courteous treatment accorded to the public in the past will be forthcoming in the future.

THOS. STACEY,

Cool Comfort

It's Sunday morning—blazing hot, and pretty near a whole day before you for rest and recreation.

First, then—a shave. Whether you are going for a spin in the car, taking the family to church or visiting a neighbour, you cannot go with a day's growth of beard on your chin.

The thought of shaving won't be irksome if you own a Gillette Safety Razor-rather, you think of five minutes' cool comfort with the highest type of shaving edge ever developed. No man in the world can command a keener blade than the one you slip into your Gillette.

And if Gillette shaving gives you an added joy to your Sunday, why not take five minutes every morning for a clean shave as the start for a better day's work.

For $5.00—the price of the Gillette Safety Razor—you have your choice of the Standard Gillette sets, the Pocket Edition sets (just as perfect, but more compact), and the Bulldog Gillette with the stocky grip. Ask to see them TODAY at the 'ewellers', druggists' or hardware dealers.

The Kingdom of God. Matthew 13: 31-33, 44-50. kingdon Commentary. I. "Thy kingdom come" (Matt. 6: 10). This expression is a part of the prayer that Jesus taught his disciples. In praying thus the petitioner acknowledges the su-preme authority of the Father; he bows in submission to the divine will, recognizing its excellence; he yields full obedience to all of God's requirements; he would dwell in that king-dom and have that kingdom set up in his heart: he desires to have that kingdom fill the whole earth; he asks that the Father should consummate his great plan for the salvation and eternal blessedness of man. No one can pray this prayer in full sincerity and faith without being brought into the kingdom of heaven

An advancing kingdom (vs. 31: 31. Like a grain of mustard seed -The comparison is an apt one, for the kingdom of heaven was apparently small in its beginning. Jesus, the obscure Galilean, with his few disciples, did not make a great show, and the future did not promise much; but the kingdom was likened to something that had life in it. A man.... sowed in his field—There were both purpose and preparation in the sowing, and growth was expected. 32 Least of all—The mustard seed was the smallest seed that the farmer was accustomed to sow. The kingdom of heaven has energy and is moving forward and will eon tinue until the kingdoms of this world become the kingdoms of Christ (Rev. 11: 15). 33. Like unto leaven—Another feature of the kingdom is pre sented under a most familiar figure. Leaven was an article found in every home and usually consisted of a lump of dough kept over from a previous baking. Which a woman hid in three measures of meal—The task of baking devolved upon the wome of the East. Three measures of meal would be equal to something more than a bushel. The leaven was placed in the meal, yet the parable is true to nature. This parable sets forth the permeating, pervading, transforming power of the grace of God. The grace of God works a change in the motives, in the desires, in the purposes, in the affections in the pleasures, in the emotions and in the choices.

In the para-ble the man found the treasure accidentally, and appreciating its value, at once made arrangements to possessit. This he could do by buying the field, for all treasures hidden in the ground went with the land. Dr. Clarke thinks that the treasure of the parable was more than a pot of gold. His opinion is that it was a mine of precious mineral that could be worked year after year, found-It would appear that the man in the prosecution of his ordinary work came upon the treasure, which he recognized as be-ing valuable. The pearl of great price is salvation through Jesus Christ, which is found only as one seeks after it. sold all that he had, and bought it—In comparison, with the things that he possessed, the merchant saw that the pearl was much more valuable and he would realize more from it than what he then had. He would be able to sell it to some king or rulthan what he then had. He would be able to sell it to some king or rul-er for an immense sum. He consider-ed it no sacrifice to let go all he had, that he might secure the "pearl of great price." One makes an infinite-ly profitable exchange, who gives up all, that Christ may set up his king-

IV. A successful kingdom (vs. 47-50). 47. The kingdom of Heaven is like unto a net—This parable resem-bles the parable of the wheat and tares. It teaches us that not all who are brought under the influence of the gospel are truly converted, and that the good and the bad will at last forever separated. The net is the that the good and the bad will at last be forever separated. The net is the dragnet, which, when drawn, encloses everything within its reach. Cast into the sea—A familiar scene to the disciples, several of whom were fishermen. Gathered of every kind—Those who were manging the net could not control the quality of the catch. The time for separating them had come and a proper disposition was made of the two kinds. 49. At the end of the world—At the judgment. The angels—The messengers of God doing His bidding. Sever—The righteous and the wicked live together here and they may even be in the same church or congregation, but "at the end" they shall be separated. 50. ment for the wicked.

V. Entering the kingdom (Matt. 18; 2, 3; Luke 17, 20, 21; 2 Cor. 10, 3-5.)

The kingdom of Heaven is making its way in the world. It is of highest value and is desirable, and best of all, it is within the reach of every one. John the Baptist proclaimed the coming of the kingdom, and Jesus brought it where he can enter it. The language of Luke 17, 20, 21, declares its nearness and also declares that it has its place in the heart. We are to be in the kingdom and the kingdom is to be in us. It is a solritual kingdom and he who enters it is a transformed man. He is created anew in Christ

Jesus.

Questions.—What is the kingdom of Heaven? By what means did Jesus show its nature? What does the parable of the mustard seed teach? What phrase of the kingdom is illustrated by the parable of the leaven? How is the superlettive value of the kingdom. the parable of the leaven? How is the superlative value of the kingdom set forth? What truths are set forth in the parable of the net? How may one gain entrance into the kingdom?

PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic-The universality of the king-

The kingdom of God is the central fact and consummation of all revela-tion. It was the design of creation, and is the purpose and end of all the institutions of the Old and New Testaments. It was reassured in the Edenic promise. By it is meant the all-inclu-sive dominion of God, by the greatness of his power, displaying his majesty and glory (1 Chron. 29: 11). Revela-tion deals particularly with the moral kingdom of God, which includes the kingdom of grace and consummates itself in the kingdom of glory. It is a kingdom of heaven manifesting itself in a world of sin—" a fountain of life gushing out of into the desolation of death." Its design is to conform Its design is to conform character and conduct to the divine likeness and law expressed in Christ. It comes into conflict with a false kingdom whose head is the "prince of this world," ruling in the hearts and governing the lives of un regenerate men. Jesus declares the kingdom of God to be already present (Luke 17: 21), though it is re-ferred to in the scripture as also future. It is now in the process of development, as is clearly taught in some of the parables recorded in Matt. ent (Luke 17: 21), though it In the Old Testament we have preparatory economy, "a shadow," of this kingdom (Heb. 10: 1). Jesus was its embodiment and his was the per-fect ideal of human life. Through the processes of grace he is separating unto himself a kingdom among men to be established at last in visible and complete perfection. The king-dom of God is universal and eternal shall rule the world in the midst of his enemies (Psa. 110: 2). Daniel prophesied of a kingdom set up by the "God of heaven," which "shall the "God of heaven," which "shall break in pieces" all other kingdoms, and itself "shall never be destroyed," "an everlasting kingdom" (Dan. 2:

God's moral kingdom embraces subjects of government. Mankind is particularly dealt with a such in the scripture. In the fall the original divine image was defaced and man through rebellion passed outside the In the fall the original of God. Redemption discloses God's purpose and method of restora-tion. Its outworking commenced with the separation of an individual (Gen. 12: 1) to become the progenitor of a separate nation, to which should be committed the promises for all nations (Rom. 4: 12), and through which the promised "seer" should come. Christ's oving sacrifice of himself became basis of a new covenant, by means of which, through self-humiliation, repentance and faith men become the subjects of the Spirit birth. Through this alone they enter into the kingdom which is "righteousness, and peace, and joy" (Rom. 14: 17). No other way or mode of entrance is possible (John 3: 5; 10: 9). The kingdom is not to be identified with the church, though the latter is the appointed agency for its advancement. It can be realized here only in part, and that according to the measure of the emancipation of the church from all admixture with the spirit of the world.

and manifestation, dispol the powers of darkness and overcome the false and opposite elements. This will come to pass in consequence of a great crisis, the destruction of the false thingdom and the anti-christian power of this world (2 Thess. 2: 8). Then will Satan be bound.

THE COURT WAS SLIGHTED. Sometimes the triangle of opposing counsel and court each have a fling. Said an attorney in court:

A layman who seems ta lack appreciation for the othics of the pro-fession relates the following incident which happened in a criminal court: "Have you?" asked the judge of a prisoner just convicted, "anything to offer the court before sentence is

"No, your honor," replied the pris-ner, regretfully; "my lawyer took my last cent.

As proof that strong drink is he ing even among lawyers, the follow ing is told of a member of the bar who had seen better days:

When charged with being drunk and

"You honor, man's inquiranity to man makes countless thousands mourn. I'm not as debasel as Swift, as profligate as Byron, as dissipated as Poe, as debauched as——"
"That will do!" thunder alothe magistrate. "Ten days! And, officer, take a list of those names and run 'en in. They're as bad a lot as he is!" Man's inhumanity to man is nothing sometimes as compared to a judge's inhumanity to lawy its.

When Attorney S— was young in the law, he was prosecuting a town bully who bore a desperace character. This desperado was supposed to have added greatly to the population of the village cemetery, and to be ready to kill his man at the drop of an acorn. So when Attorney S—stood him up in the bar before the courty justice of peace, the embryo congressma painted the prisoner in such dark colors that his own mother would not have recognized him at five paces. In the height of his eloquence. attorney pointed a long finger at the trembling man and shouted:

'Why, that man at the bar would just as soon kill me as night right here before your face, judge."
The judge leaned thoughtfully over took off his spees, and glowered at the offending criminal.

CIRCUMVENTING THE JUDGE. Sometimes even a lawyer may be witty enough to circumvent the wrath of a judge. In the coal regions they tell of a lawyer, who, for contempt of court, was twice fined during the space of five minutes. Upon the imposition of the last fine the attorney rose, and, with a curious expression on his face, addressed the court as

The judge was nonplussed for an instant. When he recovered, he turned to the clerk and said:

"Mr. Clerk, you will remit Colone! Barker's fines; the State is better able to lose $30 than I am."

Here is another instance where the logic seemed to be on the side of the attorney under judicial reprimand:

The judge said to the lawyer, severely: "How could you be so mean

FUEL VALUE OF WOOD

Varies Widely—Should Be Sold by Weight.

Wood for fuel should be sold by weight instead of by cord measure, for the heating value depends not up the bulk of the wood, but upon weight, say foresters of the United States Department of Agriculture in a bulletin recently issued. A pound of dry wood of one species has about as much heating value as a pound of any other species, but two cords may vary 100 per cent. in their value for heat-

It is the custom to sell hard woods and soft woods at slightly different prices because of differences in heat-ing values. This is only a superficial

THE JOY OF

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our horse and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles.

I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. S. JOHNSON, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Finkham's Vegetable Compound.
Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years experience is at your service.

of hard woods may have heating values widely different. Where hard woods and soft woods are mixed to gether without regard to the propor tion of each the values may b ferent that one man may for the same money buy twice as much heating value as another.

The shape and size of the sticks may tual amount of wood substances, and therefore of fuel. If weight were the measure, the species, shape and size of sticks would make little difference, provided the wood were thoroughly seasoned. It would be necessary, how ever, to fix certain standards as to time of seasoning of wood, the special ists say.

The bulletin points out that there is special opportunity for greater use wood for fuel in New England, N York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and the lake states, where is a rural popu-lation which is estimated to use annually 18,000,000 tons of coal. siderable proportion of these fuel users will find wood available close enough to their own neighborhood to make long freight hauls unnecessary. By turning to wood they will not only conserve the fuel supply and relieve transportation, but are likely to contribute to the prosperity of their own community. For one thing the oppor-tunity to sell wood fuel tends to encourage the improvement of farm woodlands by proper thinnings.

An increased market for wood fuel should open up good opportunities for operators of thrasher and silo cutting outfits or others who have gasoline or kerosene engines to do custom sawing during the winter, according to the

BELLS.

Britain Makes the Best in the World.

Bell makers are looking forward to working overtime at making bells for some years to come, for the Hun on the continent has melted down hundreds of church chimes to supply him with his much needed metal for ammunition.

The best bells are made by British bell makers, who are so skillful that they can cast a chime of bells which require practically no alteration after-

As these bells weigh anything from half a ton upward, and special moulds have to be made for each bell. this a more wonderful feat than it sounds.

The moulds for the bells are made of bricks and loam that have been thoroughly baked before the white hot metal is poured into them.

Bell metal, by the way, is made of four parts of copper and one of tin, and it was for the copper the bells contained that they were ruthlessly torn from their churches by the Germans.

In the early days most belis were made in the churchyard of the church in which they were to be hung, in order to avoid the great difficulty of order to avoid the great difficulty of transport.

Now, however, they are made in special bell foundries.

Some of the bells now chiming have only been hung with great difficulty on account of their huge weight. Big Ben, for example, weighs nearly four-teen tons, and Great Peter of York Minster nearly alevan tons.

Minster nearly eleven tons.

One of the mysteries that has puzzled bell makers for years was how the great bell in the bell tower at Pekin was ever hung. It was cast in 1415, and weighs 53½ tons. It measures fifteen feet in height, is nine inches thick, and has a circumference of 43 feet at the rim.

The Rat Problem

The suggestion has been made that the rat problem might be best solved by making use of the skins of the rodents for the purposes of leather. Somebody with the gift of guessing Somebody with the gar to 00,000,000 rats in this country, and the damage they do would feet a good-sized army. It do would feet a good-sized army. It would take at least 5,000 skins a day to supply a small modern tannery. Nobody wants the rats; they belong to anybody that can catch them. That is the only problem—to catch them and skint them, and then deliver the goods. There is not enough leather to go around. Fish skins are susceptible of tanning, and there are rat skins which make good leather, large enough for many purposes.

The People's Prince

When it became definitely known that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales would open the Canadian National Exhibition this year the management at once got into touch with the official photographers in London and requested a profile photograph of him for reproduction on the Victory Year Medal to be awarded to the winners in the Agricultural and other sections of the Big Fair. The photo shown above was received after considerable delay, and immediately a cable was rush d back became definicely known immediately a cable was rush'd back to this effect:

"A mistake has been made. An official picture is desired. One you sent shows the Prince without hat or coat and with khaki shirt collar turned in. Charming des-habille, but hardly dignified enough."

Then came the answer:

"Sorry you dislike it. It's the
with the Canadians in France and in every sense official."

And that i. the reason why he People's Prince will appear on the Canadian National Exhibition 1919 medals, from cows kept on poor land is deficient in fatty matter and is, therefore, better adapted for cheese-making than for buttermaking. Again the more exercise an animal takes the greater will be the waste breaking up of the tissue of the body, and as this is the source from which the curd in milk is derived, milk pro-duced on land where herbage is scan ty will contain a larger proportion of curd than milk produced on land whose herbage is abundant. Thus the milk of unduly exercised cows, in whatever manner the exercise is brought about, whether in search of food on poor land or in any other way, will likewise have a large proportion of casein in it and a small one of butterfat.

In the heated summer term during which cows are tormented by flies. the evening's milk is always poore In butterfat than the morning's milk and on the same principle the bulk fats than that of cows which roam at large in pastures. The composition of the milk may change in the composition of the food of the animal producing the milk. This is a prin-ciple fully established by the results of both experience and experiment. Within certain limits the milk can be made poor or rich by supplying poor and watery or rich food.

Breeding worn-out and broken-dow mares will produce inferior offspring, and, besides, they are uncertain as breeders. A mare with foal is a heavy eater. The colt must be kept growing and her own body must be properly sustained. The diet should be oats, bran and shorts, clover, alfalfa and timothy hay. Straw is too bulky, and besides does not contain the right kind of nutrients in proper amounts to be desirable, especially as a single food. It is possible for the mare to go it is possible for the mare to go the winter on straw, but it through the winter on straw, but it will be at the expense of the colt and her own body. No wonder so many colts are lost every spring.

Mares that are not working can be kept in fine condition and produce strong colts on a ration of two or three quarts of oats, or equal parts of bran and shorts, per day, together with 12 or 15 pounds of alfalfa or clover and timothy hay. Some straw may be fed with such a mixture of grain and hay, but if the grain is omitted only the best hay should be given. Alfalfa or clover should be mixed with the timo-thy, and only half or two-thirds of the amount they will consume should be allowed. It is equally as bad to feed too much hay as too little.

EXERCISE MUST BE PROVIDED. It is important that the mare have plenty of exercise either by work or in a pasture. If well fed and carefully worked up to the time the colts ar born, mares will breed better and pro-duce better colts. Severe pulling or strains of any kind, however, must be voided. There may be more injury coming from muddy pastures and Mares allowed to be idle all winter are more apt to lose their colts when put to work in the spring than are those that have been steadily in harness. If they are idle all winter they must be very carefully handled when put to work. It would not need very much strain under such conditions to cause the loss of the colt. less then

According to the care given the stallion is the colt crop affected. Many stallions are destroyed for breeding purposes by indifferent care. They must be properly fed, groomed and worked every day from the close to the opening of the breeding season. This strengthens the power of reproduction. The hay and grain ration mentioned for mares will also be suitable for the stallions, giving only enough to keep the body in good thrifty condition, by judicious feeding and plenty of exercise, avoid excess of fat. If given proper treatment, many so-called victous stallions now penned up like wild beasts will change their natures and become docile. A Chateau of Dark Memories

St. Germain-en-Laye, the scene of the peace negotiations with Austria, is described by a correspondent in the Manchester Guardian. We read: "The decision of the French Gov-to the sombre mural treatment. As far back as the twelfth century St. Germain was a favorite summer residence of the kings of France; to-day it is an attractive resort for Parisians, and it is a congenial centre for nEglish residents. The chateau owes its origin to a fortress built on the ground by Louis le Gros between the years 1108-1137 to command the River Seine at this point. A distinct tive feature of the assemblage of stone is the small Gothic chapel, which was completed in 1238 by Pierre de Montereau. The visitor to the present chapel is depressed by the dour expression of the architecture, which makes a striking contrast to the cheerful design of the other cha-teaus of the period. that he will tell you that many years ago, when Ireland was still ruled by Irish kings, a large and beautiful city stood in the place where the lakes are now. O'Donohue was the ruler of the region, of which this city was the capital, and his whole domain was blessed with a most exceptional prosperity. It was said that no one in those parts was ever sick or sad. This remarkable presperity de-pended upon a simple thing. Just outside the gates of the city there was a sacred well which had to be covered every night else it would be angry. For many years this thing was faithfully done. But one night, when O'Donohue was away everyone in court went on a spree and the well

The natives say that when the lakes are clear you may look down and see roofs and spires and that when the wind blows you may hear the muffled ringing of church bells, while every May day O'Donohue may be seen driv ing his white horses in a scud of foam and spray across the surface of the

LESS KNOWN COLONIES

The British Empire is so vast in area and includes so many different territories that even the names of territories that even the names or some of these are unknown to the average reader. These less known possessions are described in considerable detail in an issue of the Financier of a recent date. Do you know anything about Gambia? It is situated on the west coast of Africa, and ated on the west coast of Africa, and has been held by Britain for a longer time than she has held Canada. It is 3,000 square miles in area, supports population of 146,000, and exports nuts, hides, and palm kernels to the value of nearly five millions do!iars. Sierra Leone, also on the west coast of the Dark Continent, has an area of 34,000 square miles, and a population of 1,400,000. The territory is tion of 1,400,000. The territory is well watered and fertile, and the exports amount to over six millions.

The Gold Coast was known to the ancients, having been no doubt visited by the Phoenicians. The Portuguese settled it in 1482. Then came the by the Phoenicians. The Portuguese settled it in 1482. Then came the English and other Europeans, but the whole region fell to England in 1872. The area is 82,000 square miles, the population 1,500,000, and one half the world's cocoa is produced by its people. The trade of the color its people. ple. The trade of the colony is very remarkable, amounting to over $56,-000,000. A splendid system of public highways is being rapidly constructed. Rhodesia is a vast territory of 440. 000 square miles, situated in Central-Southern Africa, and was named after Cecil Rhodes, the founder of the colony. The southern half is well water-ed and splendidly fertile, while the northern half is more rugged but fit-ted for ranching and containing im-mense mineral deposits. It is also mense mineral deposits. It is also claimed that the land can grow to-bacco equal or superior to the best Manila or Virginian product. The annual gold product is about fifteen millions in value. Such are some of the least known parts of the British Empire, territories capable of almost infinite development. One of the very important problems confronting the statesmen of the Empire in the future is the effective development of thes great and wonderful territories. There is no plant in existence that does not grow and thrive within the bounds of this Empire of ours. There is no mineral found in the earth which is not found within its bounds. no industry anywhere which cannot be duplicated under the Union Jack. A large proportion of Indian songs are entirely without words at all, syllables being employed to carry the tones. Perhaps the most striking peculiarity of Indian music is the lack of definite pitch, for there is no such thing as standard pitch among the musicians of the red men.

Modern Appliances In New Telegraph Work Rooms

Employers of the present day have foure that to provide tion and hygiene, besides being the neighborly duty of the business owner or manager to those of his fellowmen and women whose time and energy he purchases, is in the highest degree profitable. "Kicking" on the part of an employee arises, as often as net, from ill-health which can be aveided by proper working condi-tions. The picture shows the women's rest room in the new quarters of the C.P.R. Telegraphs on Main street, near Portage avenue, Loeking closely at the apparatus on the tables, in the third picture, one will see, side by side, two ma-chines—one with a keyboard like that of a type-bearing disc touching a platen. These two machines are the two halves, as it were, of one of the most wonderful contrivances. in existence—the automatic printer. Messages tapped off, letter by letter, on the keyboard of the first machine, are written out, by impulses which travel thousands of miles over the wire, on telegraph blanks slipped uner the type-disc of the second ma-hine. That is to say, the keyboard machine in the picture may be operating a type-disc machine in Montal; and the type-disc machine in the picture may be printing a.m. sage that is being tapped off on a keyboard machine in Calgary.

COMMUNITY GATHERING.

Believing that others as well as myself have often envied what was the mystical something that rendered so enjoyable the friendly gathering at "Loretta Lodge" on the 14th inst. And not only so enjoyable but also so apparently indescriable that none seem fully capable of giving in detail the pleasing event, for to describe the bountifully laden festive board which all so much enjoyed would yet come far short, or that the day was all that could be desired or yet because the lake was beautiful and calm as the motor boats sped around and among the islands in their unusual greenness, but chiefly, we believe, because as neighbors met together and they with old time friends and acquainances, the very atmosthere seemed fraught with the spirit of the angelic message which brought gladness to the earth 89 long ago and still breaths peace 04 earth and good will towards men.

Mr. Harold Moorehouse, Glen Buell

Dear Sir,—As you had a part in, the agreement that took place be-tween Leslie and myself last spring, I would like you to convey this mes-sage to him as he does not read. Leslie is doing nothing. I had to let the hay out; I gave him every chance to cut it, put the hay fork in order. got him an extra horse to rake and offered to hire him a man to help draw in. Now his grain is lying on the ground going to destruction, has been so for a week. Seymour's pigs and cows are running through it all the time. Now I refuse to be responsible for the wintering of the stock, so if it belongs to him I want him to look after it. The fences and gaps are all down and the cattle have no place to graze. There are seven cows and two horses here that belong to somebody, I don't know who, but you will oblige me by giving this message to Abe Bonsteel.
