DIPHTHERIA!

USE STANDARD UNIVERSAL DISINFECTANT FLUID
For Drains, Closets, Sinks, Lavatories, Tender Feet, Washing Dogs, Washing Paint, etc.

DIRECTIONS.
Infectious Diseases—Distribute by means of a spray freely over the sick room a weak solution (about 1 oz. fluid to 5 pints water). Bed vessels and other utensils should be thoroughly cleansed with a solution of about 1 part to 10.

All Infected Linen and Clothing should be washed in a solution (1 part in 100), and this can be done without fear of injury to the most delicate fabrics, and with the confident expectation of rendering them thoroughly aseptic.

A Wise Precaution in case of infectious disease is to shut off the sick room by means of a sheet saturated with a solution of about 1 part in 30.

For the Bath—if sufficient fluid to cloud the water be added the effect on the body will be found most exhilarating and refreshing.

For the Foot Bath—A teaspoonful of fluid added to the water will be found most beneficial to those troubled with tender feet. Laundrymen and Others will find that for foul and dirty linen an admixture of fluid sufficient to make the water milky will prevent any noxious vapour arising therefrom.

For the GIRL WHO is THIN

It is all very well for fleshy people to admire a slim figure, but no girl likes to be referred to as "thin as a match" or "flat as an ironing-board."

Thinness means that the tissues are not properly fed and nourished. It indicates a tendency towards anaemia, which must be overcome in its early stages. You may eat plenty of food, but you are losing weight, and with it reserve force. The blood has got thin and watery.

It is usually the nervously energetic girl or woman who wears herself down by worry and anxiety, until the nerves become irritable and the form emaciated.

This condition never rights itself, and for this reason you must seek external assistance, such as is found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment should not be confused with fat-forming, oil-composed preparations. It is rather a true tonic, which sharpens the appetite, improves digestion and restores richness to the blood. Through the medium of the blood it feeds and nourishes the starved cells and tissues back to health.

Under this restorative, upbuilding treatment the angles disappear, and the form is rounded out to healthful proportions. The new tissues formed are strong and firm, and give to the body the buoyancy and vigor which makes you look well and feel well. Nervous headaches and indigestion disappear, and you feel again the joy of living. You can prove the benefit obtained by noting each week your increase in weight.

50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All Dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Love in a Flour Mill, OR, The Romance of Two Loyal Hearts!

CHAPTER XV.

"Seems a very nice chap, and particularly all there," replied Ronald.

"He is," said Vane emphatically.

"I've known Shanks for some time, and I chose him specially for this trip." He hesitated before the word.

"He is a first-rate navigator, and a most reliable man; hard as nails and firm as the Eddystone. The sort of man you can depend upon when any trouble is around. He's had a roughish time, and had a hard struggle for it, and, as he says, this present job is on velvet. Oh, yes, you can depend on Shanks every time and all the time. We've left the moorings; now you'll see how manageable she is."

Ronald and Vane stood and watched the men at their work. In perfect order, without noise or flurry, the schooner floated from her moorings with the grace and ease of a swan on a pond; so beautifully did she move, so exquisite a picture did she make in nautical eyes, that the sailors on the other vessels crowded to the docks to watch her, and they raised a cheer. Vane's face flushed with pride for an instant, but the next he frowned and looked almost displeased and annoyed.

"Don't care for all this fuss," he said under his breath. "Let's go below."

As they passed the galley, Vane stopped and looked in. Smithers had already donned his cook's attire, and was busy frying eggs and bacon and preparing the other constituents of the saloon breakfast. A cabin-boy stood beside him, gazing up at Mr. Smithers with saucer-like eyes, and listening with a mixture of awe and amazement to the new cook, who was informing him, with all the nautical phrases he could think of, that he had been cook on board Lord Nelson's ship, the Victory, and that he expected Tom, the cabin-boy to wit, to do his duty, alluding, in an airy fashion, to the fact that he—Smithers—had considered it his duty to throw the last cabin-boy he had had to deal with overboard, and into that part of the Pacific Ocean which is most rich in sharks.

"I was fond of that boy, Tom," he was saying, as Vane and Ronald stopped at the door of the galley—"as sorry to part with him as if he'd been my own son; but dooty is dooty, and so I 'ad to do it. The last I saw of 'im, a shark 'ad got 'old of one leg, while another 'ad caught 'old of the other. It was what you might call a sad sight, and I 'oped I might never see the like again. So now we understand each other, Tom. Always do your dooty, as the man said 'to the p'liceman as come to take his mother-in-law in charge."

"Your man seems rather an oddity," said Vane, as he and Ronald passed on.

"Yes," agreed Ronald laughing; "but, in his way, you will find him as reliable as Captain Shanks. I'll go bail for him."

Ronald had plenty of leisure during the day in which to admire the Hawk, as she flew down the river on the tide and sped into the Channel. It was delightful to feel himself on board ship again, to know that the course of his life, for some little time at any rate, was marked out for him; that there would be no more loafing about the Docks, seeking the employment which had always seemed to evade him. He had plenty of time for these and other reflections; for Vane, though he could not be said to avoid Ronald, kept pretty much to himself, sometimes shut up in the cabin studying some papers, at other times pacing the deck or leaning against the deck combing, gazing seawards with a thoughtful expression, as if he had something on his mind.

Ronald had not, of course, forgotten Vane's reticence on the preceding evening in regard to the destination of the Hawk; but the matter did not trouble Ronald; and he was too delighted with his present condition to be curious—as a matter of fact, he did not care where they were going.

The Hawk kept merrily on her way, with all her white wings filled with the fair wind; and she was speeding towards the French coast and the Bay of Biscay. Once or twice as he paced the deck Ronald looked in at the cook's galley; for, though the weather was fine and the sea fairly smooth, he was anxious to know how Smithers was getting on.

"Thank you, sir," said Smithers, in answer to Ronald's inquiries; "I'm all right up to the present—in fact, sir, I'm beginning to think as I was cut out for a seafaring life; and I shall be perfectly 'appy and comfortable when I've woked to the fact that I'm cooking in a kind of sentry-box, and remember not to knock my 'ead against the top o' the door every time I go in and out. Seems to me, sir, if you'll 'low me to say so, that we've fell on clover. Wonderful nice set o' men, sir, they are. Such a light-hearted crew; they're as full of their fun as a balloon is of gas, and all o' them inclined to be friendly. Why, sir, if you'll believe me," he added, his blue eyes dancing, "they've already took to calling me 'Carrots,' a playful way of alluding to my 'air, sir, no doubt, which my mother always assured me was hawbun. Oh, I shall get on first rate, sir; don't you worry about me, as the badger said 'to the dog."

"Your man may be eccentric," Vane remarked, as, rather late in the evening, he and Ronald sat down to an excellent dinner; "but he can certainly cook."

The two men talked about former cruises of the Hawk and similar topics while the steward and the cabin-boy were present; but, when they had gone and the cigars were alight, Vane suddenly became grave and thoughtful, and, after a minute or two, he rose, opened the door, listened for a moment, then closed it and shot the bolt.

"Now we can have our talk, Carrow," he said, seating himself and leaning forward, as if he feared that even the low voice in which he spoke might be overheard. "Last night I was obliged to refuse to tell you the name of the place we were bound for. I'll tell you now. But first I want you to promise that if, after having heard the object of this cruise, you don't care to join me, you'll let me set you ashore at the first port and give me your word to respect my confidence."

"I give it you," said Ronald; "but I don't think I want to be put ashore, thanks. Whatever you may have got in hand, I'm with you heart and soul."

Vane stretched out his hand, and the two men shook on it. There was silence for a moment or two, then, in a still lower voice, Vane said:

"Do you happen to know the Lipari Islands?"

"You mean the Eolian Islands?" said Ronald. "They lie off the north-east of Sicily, don't they?"

"That's so," assented Vane. "There is a little straggling group of them; some of them rather big, some quite small. One of the smallest is Tricania. Know it?"

"No," replied Ronald. "Are we going there?"

Vane nodded, and smoked in silence for a minute or two; then he said, his eyes fixed on his cigar:

"It's an unfrequented island; it stands right away from the rest of the group, well to the west of them." He sipped again as if, notwithstanding his faith in Ronald, he was reluctant to unbosom himself. "It's a pleasant little place; you'd like it."

"Sounds very jolly," remarked Ronald.

"Yes. We shall put in there for some time; months, perhaps, off and on—can't say exactly."

There was another silence, which Ronald bore easily enough; for he was particularly comfortable; the cigar and the whiskey were good, and his curiosity, though alive, was not intolerable.

"It's a pleasure trip, in a sense," said Vane presently; "but not altogether." He flung his half-cigar into the ash-tray and lit another, frowning and glancing over the match at his companion's serene countenance.

"Did you ever hear of Rinaldo Ricci?" he asked, almost demanded, suddenly.

"Never," replied Ronald. "Who is he?"

"One of the early Italian buccanniers," said Vane. "A glorified kind of pirate. He flourished in the time of Elizabeth, about the Drake and Hawkins time, you know. He worked all along the Mediterranean, and had a fine old time of it; stopped the vessels, the Spaniards and the rest of them, carrying specie and rich cargoes. You know the kind of thing?"

BATTLE EXPECTED ON WESTERN FRONT.

LONDON, Dec. 7.

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Rotterdam says that newspapers from South and West Germany, which have been stopped for a fortnight, came to hand to-day, which may mean that the concentration of German troops on the Western front, for an expected big battle, have been completed. Undoubtedly troops have been pouring into France and Belgium for a week back though it cannot be learned precisely whether as a precaution against an Entente Allied offensive or whether Germany will take the initiative.

PREPARING FOR OPERATIONS IN MESOPOTAMIA.

GENEVA, Dec. 7.

The Germans are preparing on a large scale for operations in Mesopotamia, under Field Marshal Baron Kolmar Von Der Goltz, who has just been appointed Commander of the Turkish forces in Mesopotamia, according to private information received here, although it is not impossible that they may make their principal efforts this winter from Bagdad towards the Persian Gulf.

BLOCKADE ONLY EFFECTIVE COURSE.

PARIS, Dec. 7.

The Athens correspondent of the Main, in a despatch relative to the attitude of Greece towards the Entente Powers, says that the Government is simply playing for time, hoping that the Entente Allies will be forced to the sea by the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians. It will be found in a week or so that an agreement between the Greek and Allied staffs cannot be reached, and that the Government will declare that, notwithstanding Greece's traditional good-will towards the Entente Powers, it cannot accede to their demands. The correspondent affirms that the only effective course is to apply a blockade to Greece, and adds that it will prove all the more fruitful in results, since popular discontent with the royal policy is growing perceptibly. If elections had been held three weeks ago, the Venizelos party would have been beaten, but now, notwithstanding the extraordinary conditions under which this will be held, he is likely to get a majority. A blockade not only would starve the population, but would ruin the mercantile marine, Greece's sole source of wealth, consequently the general public is deeply agitated and business circles are anxious.

AMERICAN STEAMER FIRED ON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.

Word from the United States cruiser Des Moines was received to-day at the Navy Department, to the effect that the American boat sending the S.O.S. call out last Saturday, off Crete, was the Standard Oil tanker Petrolite, which was fired on, presumably by an Austrian submarine. One man was wounded. Advice says that the Petrolite, an American vessel, sailed from New York on Nov. 7th for Alexandria, Egypt. She passed Gibraltar on Nov. 21st.

FRENCH SUBMARINE SUNK.

PARIS, Dec. 7.

According to a German radiogram, the French submarine Fresnel was destroyed on Dec. 5th by an Austrian warship, says a communication issued to-day by the Ministry of Marine. Two officers and 26 men were captured. The Fresnel was built in 1909. She was 167 feet long, 392 tons displacement, and above water she had 6 torpedo tubes. Her normal complement was 24 men.

BRIAND'S GUESTS.

PARIS, Dec. 7.

A notable company of military authorities and diplomats lunched with Premier Briand to-day. The Premier's guests were: General Joffre, French Commander-in-Chief; Field Marshal Foch, Commander of the British forces in France and Belgium; General Glinnsky, Aide-de-Camp to Emperor Nicholas of Russia; General Porro, Under Chief of the Italian General Staff; Jules Cambon, General Secretary of the French Minister of Foreign Affairs; the British, Italian and Russian Ambassadors and Ministers of Belgium and Serbia.

SIR EDWARD GREY IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, Dec. 7.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, intimated in the Commons to-day that the British Government was earnestly considering the blocking of German intrigue in China generally and in British Colonies in the Far East and in foreign concessions in China. Replying to the question whether, having assisted in turning the Germans out of the large positions in Tsing Tau, the government could not proceed to turn them out in smaller places, Sir Edward said the question was one that could not be easily disposed of, but that the danger of German machinations is being anxiously considered.

WILSON ADDRESSES CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.

President Wilson in his annual address to Congress to-day, dealing mainly with national defence, proclaimed that advanced Americanism was growing from the guardianship of the Monroe Doctrine to "Full and honourable Association" of all the Americas. Although in the longest address he has yet delivered to Congress, the President touched upon a variety of subjects, the predominating note was the necessity of the policy of military preparedness to meet the readjustments of the next generation as they will affect the American continent. He emphasized his point by saying, "Unless you take it within your view and permit full significance of it to command your thought, I cannot find the right light, in which to set forth the particular matter that lies at the very front of my whole thoughts as I address you to-day. I mean national defence." The point was not overshadowed when the President in the most unmeasured terms he ever has employed before Congress denounced naturalized Americans, who by their sympathies for European belligerents have endangered American neutrality. While Congress cheered him loudly he referred to them as having "poured poison of disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life," and as those who would turn in malign reaction against the government and people who had welcomed and nurtured them. With evidences of deep feeling the President expressed even deeper humiliation and scorn which every self-possessed and thoughtful patriotic American must feel when he thinks of them and of the discredit they are daily bringing upon us. While the President's outline of administration plan for army and navy passed without a ripple of applause, his references to pan-Americanism were only punctuated with evidences of approval. Republicans and Democrats alike joined in an emphatic demonstration at his words of condemnation for those he assailed so unreservedly.

An old tray, a smooth orange wood stick, and another shaped like a knife are all the tools needed. The knife shaped tool can be whittled from a thin piece of wood and then sandpapered smooth. Place the tray on a table and give the child wax and tools and a simple object, such as a potato, to copy.

Begin the work by taking small pieces of wax and working it with the fingers; always build up the object in this way, instead of taking a large lump and cutting it down. It is best to give the child easy subjects until he gains confidence and becomes proficient. Occasionally let him make something original or from memory.

Regimental Supplies for Gallipoli Troops

A reference to the report of Parliamentary proceedings on Nov. 4th, which appeared in the London Times of the next day, makes it clear that the complaint of the non-arrival of supplies at Gallipoli is well founded. It would appear from this report that it is by no means confined to the case of the Newfoundland Regiment. We extract the paragraphs which bear on this matter. They are as follows:—

"Mr. Tennant, replying to Sir Geo. Younger, said that Expeditionary Force Institutes had been established at Mudros, also at Kephalos, and at all the beaches on the peninsula which were held by British forces. As to the volume of the work done by these institutes, he stated that stores to the value of nearly £100,000 had already been sent out, and that further consignments were being sent at regular intervals.

"Sir H. Craik (Glasgow and Aberdeen Universities, U.)—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that the troops at Mudros are complaining that it is quite impossible to get any supplies whatever? Mr. Tennant.—It is hoped that when the full effect of these institutes is felt those complaints will cease. Sir G. Younger.—Will the right hon. gentleman have the goodness to inquire, as the Admiralty transport regulations are disgusting and stores are never delivered? (Hear, hear.) Mr. Tennant.—I will inquire about that. Sir G. Younger.—It is a growing scandal. (Hear, hear.)

It is not at all unlikely that many transports had to be diverted to rush troops and supplies to Salonika, and that as a result the transportation system between Alexandria and Mudros was much hampered and as a consequence, supplies which would but for this cause have been sent promptly to Mudros and the Gallipoli Peninsula have been delayed considerably. The transportation of a hundred thousand men, munitions and supplies for a campaign is a very big undertaking, and to do this in a rush must necessarily hamper other services depending on transports. The need of a very large number of men in the Vardar, and the urgency of supplying them with munitions, food and clothing are matters which are growing clearer day by day, as the Hun and Bulgars approach the Entente lines, and the velle efforts of King Constantine to hamper them becomes more and more apparent. The Salonika problem must necessarily have drained the transport system severely, and it is clear enough that the Gallipoli system has had to take part of the strain. Hence the complaint of shortage of supplies there, which has been voiced in the House of Commons, as well as in letters from members of the Newfoundland Regiment.

We hear that the Prime Minister yesterday directed Capt. Timewell to purchase a suit of underclothing and two pairs socks for each member of the Regiment and despatch them at once to Gallipoli. The Finance Committee of the Patriotic Association met last night and appointed a deputation, consisting of the Hon. M. P. Cashin, Hon. P. T. McGrath, Mr. Jas. M. Kent and Mr. J. S. Munn to wait on His Excellency the Governor. At the conference this morning it was decided to ascertain the facts as to the present needs of our boys. Capt. Timewell is also to be asked to report as to when, how, and what he has sent forward from the stores he has been in charge of since the summer, and to arrange to keep the Regiment well supplied out of the stock of goods, sent by the Newfoundland W.P.A.

High Praise for Our Boys in Action.

We hear that Lieut. Col. Burton of the 1st Nfld. Regiment has reported very highly of the conduct of the Newfoundland Regiment in action, and that the War Office has also commended their behaviour while they have been on active service in the Gallipoli Peninsula. This praise coming from the highest quarter in war circles is most gratifying. It is doubly pleasing when we consider that with the exception of Capt. Alexander and the late Capt. Wighton and the Major and Lieut.-Colonel, and perhaps an odd man or so, all the officers, commissioned, warrant and non-coms., and all the men were civilians when the war began, and that they had never seen service, active or peaceful, and had received no regimental training. The only form of training which some of them had received was in the Boys' Brigades and this has apparently stood them in good stead.

Rather on the small size, they are quite large enough for adult use, and appeal particularly to that somewhat numerous class of persons, especially ladies, who object to a large tooth brush as a "mouthful." Such persons will be delighted with this new British made brush. The bristles are firmly fastened and of good quality. We look for these brushes to become very popular as they become known. TO-DAY'S Messages.

WANT RESTITUTION OF GOLD.

WASHINGTON, To-day. A request for the restitution of $1,000,000 in gold, shipped from New York on the Dutch liner Noordam, to the Netherlands Overseas Trust, seized by a British cruiser in the North Sea, was made at the British Embassy to-day by representatives of Goldman Sachs Co., of New York. Britain holds gold as contraband, alleging it was intended for use in paying German trade balances. The New York firm maintains it was shipped in the course of regular business with a Holland concern. Embassy officials said the incident would have to be taken up through the American Government. This will be done.

DYNAMITER RELEASED.

KINGSTON, Ont., To-day. After 15 years in the penitentiary for complicity in the Welland Canal dynamite outrage in 1900, John Nolan was released to-day and taken to Montreal to be deported to the United States. Of his associates, Walsh died in prison, and Dillon (Carl Dullman) the chief instigator was released about a year ago.

IMPORTANT BATTLES FORESHADOWED.

LONDON, To-day. Important battles have begun or are pending in Mesopotamia where the German Field Marshal Baron Von Der Goltz has taken command of the Turkish forces, and is about to attack the British at Kulelamora. In south-eastern Serbia where Bulgarians have already attacked the Anglo-French positions, they have been repulsed. On Gallipoli, according to Turkish accounts, the Allies have taken offensive and in Belgium and France where reports from Holland state the Germans have concentrated strong reinforcements and an immense amount of artillery with the object of striking a blow at the Allied line in Flanders and Artois; except in Serbia, battles have not developed beyond this.

BAGDAD EXPEDITION CRITICIZED

LONDON, To-day. Referring to the criticism on the inadequacy of the force detailed for the advance on Bagdad, Marquis Crewe, Lord President of the Council, said in the Lords yesterday afternoon, that this criticism was due to a misapprehension. The force at the disposal of General Townsend, he said, was considerably larger than a division and was believed by competent authorities to be sufficient for the task assigned to it. It was also a misapprehension to say this was a rash military adventure, continued Crewe, as it was clear to everybody the early capture of Bagdad if it could be effected would have great results on the war and not only military results. The force set apart for the purpose was by universal competent military opinion considered large enough. It was evident the troops behaved splendidly but the task proved bigger than was anticipated. Baron Sydenham thought one bright spot in a very dark picture was the manner in which General Townsend's forces fought at Ctesiphon. Their stand against greatly superior forces and the capture of 1,500 prisoners, he declared, was a very fine feat. Baron Sydenham emphasized that the force consisted largely of Indian troops and eulogized General Townsend who was wise in retiring, when he found overwhelming forces against him and as he saved his own men from a very grave disaster.

STEAMER RELEASED.

ROME, To-day. The steamer Communipaw was recently held by the Italian Government at Genoa, but was allowed to sail for her destination on December 2, owing to the representations by the American Embassy at Rome.

THE SINKING OF THE FRESNEL.

VIENNA, To-day. The destruction of the French submarine Fresnel by an Austrian warship is announced officially by the War Office. The incident occurred near San Giovanni de Medua. Two officers and 25 of crew were captured. San Giovanni de Medua is on the Albanian coast of the Adriatic, well to the south of the Montenegrin border, 35 miles north of Durazzo. The presence of Austrian warships in these waters may indicate that an Austrian naval movement attempted an interference with the Allied plans for an expeditionary or other aid for Serbians and Montenegrins by way of Montenegro and Albania.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

LONDON, To-day. The steamers Korea and Sophia have been in collision off Deal. The Sophia was badly damaged as a result of being rammed by the Korea while she was anchored.

ENGINEERED BY GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, To-day. It would be a mistake to believe that the discussion of peace conditions in the Reichstag will be instituted against the will of the German Government, according to trustworthy information from Germany, says special correspondent of the Temps at Berne. It must not be forgotten, the correspondent writes, that the interpellator is the Socialist member Schenide-mann, well known to be in harmony with the Government and violently opposed to a small group of Opposition Socialists of which Dr. Karl Liebkuecht is leader. The Social Democrats seek by means of the interpellation to prevent this minority from invoking a claim that it is inducing the Government to express itself publicly on the question of peace. They are endeavouring at the same time to facilitate indirectly the propaganda of a certain group of Socialist pacifists in allied countries. On his side, Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg is satisfied to have one occasion to explain himself regarding the conditions of peace making. It appears he was being forced to expression by popular will of the Government and thus could not be reproached with having taken initiative in this matter. The Chancellor, the correspondent asserts, also counts on certain neutral influences, particularly the Vatican and White House taking notice. The program, which he will set forth, making efforts to have it accepted, says the despatch to the Scenario, is well prepared for the use of neutrals.

PREPARING FOR BIG BATTLE ON THE VARDAR.

LONDON, To-day. So far as is known artillery alone of the different armies is active along the Vardar Cerna Karasu front in Serbia. The Bulgarians have already commenced their attack against the Anglo-French. It is reported the army of General Von Gallwitz has been reorganized and reinforced and is marching south to take part in the operations. It is evidently the intention of the Germans to strike hard before the Allies who continue to land troops at Saloniki, have completed preparations. It is reported the Germans have forty thousand men available. There is no indication of the Bulgarian or Anglo-French strength, but one report says five Allied divisions, nearly one hundred thousand men have landed thus far. The battle, therefore, will be one of the greatest importance. According to the French all Bulgarian attacks have been repulsed, but the Germans claim the French were compelled to give up their positions at the junction of the Vardar and Cerna Rivers to avoid being enveloped. The situation for the Allies is complicated by the attitude of the Greek Government. Negotiations at Athens have not yet reached a satisfactory conclusion, although the Greek King has re-affirmed his neutrality and repeated the assurances that Greek troops will never attack the Allies. This situation still causes great anxiety. The Austrians continue their offensive against Montenegrins and Serbs and are following the Serbs into Albania, where the retreat is rendered extremely difficult, owing to cold weather and bad roads. There are said to be one hundred thousand Serb troops and twenty thousand refugees in Albania and it is reported the Serbs are taking with them forty thousand prisoners who were captured during the previous campaigns.

ONLY WRECKAGE OF TORPEDOED SHIP FOUND.

LONDON, To-day. The Athens correspondent of the Daily News, in a despatch dated Dec. 6th, states the local wireless station received appeals for help from an American ship, torpedoed by submarine. The Greek Government despatched a torpedo boat, but by the time she arrived only some wreckage was found. On Dec. 4 an Athens despatch announced a wireless call for aid had been received that morning from an unnamed American ship. The message stated the vessel was being attacked by submarines south of the Island of Crete. Subsequently efforts to communicate with the vessel were fruitless. The London Times says to-day there should be no surprise if Italian reports of the retreat of Entente Allied forces in Serbia from Krivolak and fortified camp at Kava-dar prove correct. The newspaper says the German occupation of Monastir evidently made itself felt on Vardar and that the Allies have withdrawn to strong positions in the Durmarkapou Pass, the great gorge in the hills through which runs the Saloniki-Uskup railway 20 miles north of Greek frontier. Only a narrow pathway was offered to the Entente forces together with the precarious line of communications with the Teutonic Allies overrunning the country to the west of the line, the need of the retirement of the Entente Allies is obvious.

DERBY WILL REPORT ON ENLISTMENT ON SATURDAY.

LONDON, To-day. Fearing for the success of Earl Derby's voluntary enlistment scheme, Liberal newspapers are advocating an extension of the time limit for the scheme until the end of December instead of the 11th of December, as already been fixed; Earl Derby however announced there will be no extension of time that "for good or for all" he will on Saturday present the Government with his report as a base for future action.

OFFENSIVE IN DARDANELLES.

COLOGNE, To-day. The Cologne Gazette Constantinople's correspondent says the Entente Allies have begun a grave offensive at the Dardanelles, perhaps in consequence of Earl Kitchen's visit, but the Turkish authorities are inclined to believe that it is a bluff only. Thirty Entente Allied aeroplanes on Saturday attacked Usun Kueprue an important military railway centre on the line from Constantinople to Adria-nople and threw many bombs but the traffic on the line was maintained.

A GLADSTONE VETERAN DEAD.

LONDON, To-day. Baron Armistead, who was one of Gladstone's closest friends, is dead. He leaves no family, and the barony thus becomes extinct. It is understood Viscount Gladstone is designated as heir to his large fortune. George Armistead, created first Baron Armistead in 1906, was born 1824 and for several terms represented Dundee in parliament.

CAPTURED HUN OFFICER.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day. Word has been received here that a British cruiser captured the steamer Minneva. It is reported the British cruiser captured on the high seas on board the steamer Vouban, a German officer who it is alleged was involved in certain affairs in the United States from which country he made his escape.

GREEK PREMIER INTERVIEWED.

ATHENS, To-day. An agreement for a conference between the Greek military authorities and the military representatives of the Entente Powers to examine into and report upon the necessities of the situation respecting the Allied demands upon Greece has been reached. Preliminary steps toward holding a conference have been taken by Premier Skouloudis, it is announced to-day. "Tell the American people the Government of Greece has only two aims, to safeguard Greece and not to abandon neutrality no matter what inducements or pressures are brought to bear," said Premier Skouloudis to the Associated Press correspondent in an interview to-day. "I think I may say," continued the Premier, "that the air surcharged for months with misunderstandings is at last clearing and that the Entente Powers are beginning to understand that while we are removable on the two heads. Just stated, we are disposed in every other respect to give material expression of feeling every Greek has towards France, Britain and Russia, dating from Navarino. The two points which caused the recent friction are now in a way of amicable settlement. As far back as Nov. 10 I suggested the inappropriateness of non-military diplomats in seeking to arrange details of the situation essentially military and in which they understood little therefor. I proposed a conference between military authorities on either side, authorized to study necessities of the situation and report on them, giving the Greek Government and Entente diplomatists the benefit of their conclusions from which a settlement could then be reached. Respecting the railroads, the Greek Government has never been unaware that the personnel was inadequate for the handling of immense increase of traffic due to military uses which the railroads are now put, but M. Bouralli was unwilling to surrender control of our property, but as General Sarraill offers to assist in the operation of railroads, leaving Greek control unquestioned, the Government is only too glad to accept." "What about hunting down Austro-German subs in Greek territorial waters?" asked the interviewer. "That touches our sovereignty," replied the Premier. "We protest to the world, especially to America, also neutral, that we cannot sanction a violation of our territory; but what can we do, we have only a small navy and a vast coastline; we can only protest what we want to avoid. What we shall avoid is associating Greece with the uncertain outcome of the war. Had we joined the Allies last spring, when we were urged to do so, to-day we would have to bear the brunt of the cost of failure in the Gallipoli venture. Had we joined at the inception of the recent Austro-German-Bulgarian attack on Serbia we would now be bearing a large part in the price of blood and devastation, following the crushing of the Serbians. By following these two principles we stand by as governing Greece's foreign policy and have been saved these two disasters. We should continue to follow them, for in them is our only salvation."

FORT COGNELCO DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. Fort Cognelco, one of the most important features of the old defences of Namur, Belgium, has been completely destroyed by an explosion, according to the newspaper Echo de Belge the explosion caused the death of 50 German soldiers.

SECOND GENERAL WAR COUNCIL HELD.

PARIS, To-day. The second general War Council of the Entente Allies was held at the general headquarters yesterday.

Household Notes.

The princess one-piece dresses are apt to have front panels of braiding and buttons. Golden brown velvet and pewter gray satin is an excellent and uncommon combination. It takes a flawless complexion to dare the brilliant white fur close to the face.

It is said that the balayuse, or lingerie ruffle, showing beneath the skirt, is to return. Colored organdy is being used in neckwear and some of the new blouses are trimmed with it.

A touch of chinchilla or sable on the tulle corsage of an evening gown is a charming effect. Soft chiffon velvets are combined with sheer silk crepe or chiffon in the making of afternoon dresses.

Velvet-covered ball buttons are an important item of decoration in many of the new wool frocks. Many dresses of taffeta and tulle have folds of tulle on their draperies for their only ornament.

If you are stout, confine your wardrobe to dark shades, as lighter colors tend to make one look larger. The vogue for velvet has reached the children's world. They are wearing velvet dresses trimmed with fur.

There are so many uses for whole-skin fox furs that they are as good an investment as a velvet coat. White lace waists are fashionable and they are often touched up with metallic buttons or colored pipings of silk.

Bright sapphire and cobalt blue are popular colors for the velvet sashes and shoes worn with white tulle dresses.

With the promise of winter sports, the proper hat to wear when playing with ice and snow is close fitting in shape. When flesh pink tulle is used in a gown, the tulle should be left entirely unadorned, as its elusive softness is its great charm.

A brilliant hued velvet must be chosen and worn with care—it looks twice as assertive as the same color in any other fabric. One of the new frocks has a pleated short skirt of silk, with a bodice of chiffon velvet extending down over the skirt in points reaching to the knee.

The newest thing in neckbands is the small black silk cord from which hangs a jeweled pendant. These may also be used as well fasteners, placing the cord and pendant over the veil.

Suspects Arrested

Last night, four boys, each about fourteen years old, were arrested under warrant by Detective Tobin, charged with stealing from Mrs. Bowcock, of Mount Pearl, a hand-bag, containing $46.71, the previous evening on board an outbound train from St. John's. At the police station the suspects were searched and in each of their clothes was found money aggregating over $43. Some three dollars and odd cents could not be accounted for and is supposed to have been spent. However, nearly all the amount reported lost by Mrs. Bowcock has been recovered and is now in the possession of the police. We are informed by the police that one of the suspects admitted voluntarily last night that he was a party to the theft. To-day the lads were arraigned before the magistrate but were not asked to plead and were remanded for 2 days.

Norwegian Barque Leaves at Last.

The big Norwegian barque Ravenscourt, which came here on the 30th of September last in a battered condition and which made history in local marine circles as well as in our law courts, the outcome of a collision with the steamer Alagush off Cape Race, moved off from the Southside this morning and sails this evening for Penarth with a cargo of lumber that she took from Pictou, N.S., three months ago. The Ravenscourt was on dock here several weeks.

A Convenient Season.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Go out into the worst storm of the winter and go into the wildest place you know and face the wind and storm and you will get something big and wonderful into your blood that nothing else can give you. There's a lot of people in the world who don't know enough to go out when it rains."

So a lecturer advised us the other day.

As I was musing over the lecture afterwards, I thought to myself, "That is just what I should like to do, just what I have always meant to do." And then the little mentor that sometimes questions me piped up "Why haven't you?"

There Was Always Something Else To Do.

And I answered him, "Well, you see, there was always something else I had to do, some engagement I had to keep, or some work I wanted to finish when the storm came." "And so you put it off until a more convenient season," said my mentor.

"Yes," I sighed, "and the convenient season never came, and I am sometimes afraid it never will."

If I were a minister, I should preach a sermon at least once a year on those words of Felix to Paul, "When I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." Of course, Felix never had the convenient season and went away without hearing Paul again.

How many things, big and little, wait half a lifetime—or more—on a convenient season.

"I know my hair would look well the way they are doing hair nowadays," a woman who has pretty hair but an unsatisfactory way of dressing it, said to me some months ago. "Some day, I'm going to get a hair-dresser to show me how to do mine that way."

She Will Always Wear Her Hair Unbecomingly.

I met her the other day. Her hair is still dressed in the unbecoming way. "Yes," she said, "I really meant to go and see a hair-dresser, but I can't bother just now." The convenient season will never come, and she will go through life without ever learning to make the most of her possibilities.

The insurance agent can tell you story after story of the men who waited until a convenient season to insure their lives and whose wives and children pay the penalty in long years of deprivation and daily struggle with poverty.

They Don't Want To Be Tied Down.

"We don't want children now," say the young folks. "We haven't money enough. We don't want to be tied down. When we are a little older and a little better off, that will be different."

And the years go by and they make themselves new standards of luxury and grow more selfish and more impatient of the idea of being tied down, and the convenient season never comes, nor the babies either.

Convenient seasons are most elusive things. Don't go through life letting the routine and the little and the material push the things that are worth while into a convenient season that never comes.

Tippling.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Once upon a time a greedy man went early to a banquet, and when he saw the table heaped up with good things to eat he bribed a waiter to let him get at it. This was a great success. When the other guests arrived he was dead from over-eating, with a smile on his face.

From this incident arose the habit of tippling. Tippling is an attempt to get more than one foot in the trough. Originally the tipper paid the waiter to feed him, and neglect some other chap. And after that came an era when men paid waiters to protect themselves against the original tipper. Now everyone tips to protect himself against the waiter. Some of our first automobile owners were waiters.

Tippling is very seldom a sign of hogishness now—it is a sign of timidity. We tip waiters, porters, bell-boys and bootblacks to purchase their good opinion. Men who don't care a hang what their friends or their country think of them would walk home ten miles rather than endure the frown of an untipped waiter. They would refuse joyously to contribute a dollar to a church fair, but in the presence of a check boy at a hotel they are humble and anxious. If they do not tip the check boy as much as the last fellow did, he will think them stingy, and what is life without the good opinion of a check boy?

In America the tip is a hold-up, but in Europe it is an institution, like aristocracy and the tourist. It is possible to go through Europe without tippling, just as it is possible to wade through twenty miles of blackberry bushes, but neither feat is worth the effort. If one must refrain from tippling in Europe, a good plan is to hire a stout young man and then pose as his valet. While he is refusing to tip and is taking the consequences, you can pick up your baggage and saunter carelessly to the train unattached.

In America, if you are a hold man and do not care to tip, put on your hat and walk away rapidly, so that you will leave that particular atmosphere behind as quickly as possible. If you are a timid man, send the waiter for a glass of water and then flee. By changing your name and growing a beard, you will be able to live in perfect safety and may even forget in time that somewhere a waiter would curse your name if he only knew it.

Many nervous people do not know whom to tip and whom not to tip. The rule is easy. In the west, tip everyone you are afraid of. In Chicago, tip anyone who has done you a real service. In New York, don't bother—the tipper will help himself. In Europe, do not tip anyone with a crown on.

Some Americans, who have spent thousands of dollars buying love and respect from tippees, have been sued for divorce by their wives on the grounds of general cussedness.

From Private Foley.

Galle Camp, Scotland, Nov. 12, '15.

Dear Mother,—We arrived here to-day. We had a grand passage across. We boarded the Kyle at Port aux Basques and at North Sydney we took the C. P. R. train. We were two days and nights on the road then we got on the ferry and crossed the Great St. Lawrence to Quebec where we joined the Troopship Corsican. We were ten days and nights on the water and then arrived at Plymouth, England and the London G.N.W. train took us here to Galle Camp. We were twenty-four hours on the train. We had plenty of bread and meat but no tea. When we arrived in Bristol the ladies there had three hundred and twenty big mugs of tea and gave the Newfoundland soldiers a mug each. We were cheered all the way coming through Newfoundland flags flying everywhere, where and where we stopped in Canada the ladies gave us flags. All through England there were flags flying everywhere that I could see. I was up to Irvn a couple of nights with a young Scotch soldier; it is one mile away from here. I met a lot of boys among the soldiers from Canada, there were fourteen hundred got on at Quebec.

We are camped ten miles from Ayr where the rest of the Newfoundland boys are. There are four hundred Scotch soldiers here at Galle. We are not staying here very long. We are soon going up to Ayr. The people are very friendly with us as we are the first crowd that came to Galle Camp. We get up at daylight put our beds away then go on drill for two hours before breakfast. We get two hours for dinner, then go back to drill until 4.30, and after tea we are able to go where we like until 9.30. We have to be in our camp then. All lights are out at ten.

I am your loving son,
 PAT.

La Grippe and Colds

In La Grippe and Colds, Anti-kamma (A-K) Tablets are unexcelled, as they stop the pain, soothe the nerves, and bring the rest so greatly needed by nature to restore the system to health. Physicians have used these tablets for over twenty years, in the treatment of colds, fevers and la grippe, and have found no other remedy more useful in these conditions. Anti-kamma Tablets are so inexpensive, so pleasant to take, so satisfactory in their results, and so useful in all conditions where there is pain, that A-K Tablets should always be kept in the house for the time of need. Many of our ablest physicians obtain perfect results in la grippe and colds, by cleansing the system with Epison salts or "Actoids"; a very good cathartic, putting the patient on a limited diet, and administering one A-K tablet every two or three hours. This treatment will usually break up the worst case in a day or two, while in milder cases, ease and comfort follow almost immediately. These tablets are also unexcelled for Neuralgia, Rheumatic Pains, The Pains of Women, Indigestion, and Insomnia. All druggists have them. Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K mark.

CASINO THEATRE.

The beautiful picture of the First Nfld. Regiment commenced upon its second week at the Casino Theatre on Monday last and in conjunction with the remarkable film depicting the great British General, Lord Kitchener, F.M., at the firing line in Flanders, continues to draw large audiences. To see "Our Boys" going through their drill, etc., with such wonderful clock-work precision, is a treat in itself—added to this the visit (official) of the world's greatest warrior to the trenches—in company with Generals Joffre, Jason, M. Millerand and their staff is both highly entertaining and most instructive, and shows the vast amount of skill and courage which must necessarily have been expended to finalize the ultimate completion of the trenches. These great productions will be shown for the balance of the week.

SEE THE BEAUTIFUL ACT OF BROWN AND LOCKE.

Mr. Ballard Brown and his dainty little wife put over their numbers in splendid style. Mr. Ballard Brown, with his fine stage presence and good voice made a big impression, while Madge Locke was positively charming. Every one who can should see this act, and they will be well repaid. The pictures, too, were fine. Changed three times weekly. "A Slice of Life" in two parts, a society drama; "A Volunteer Fireman" a good comedy; "An Unwilling Bride," a Keystone; Riot, the Star Boarder, another fine comedy had the house in roars. On Friday the "Great Completion." Look out for the surprise and the pantomime.

The House of Hope.

How Britain's Blinded Fighters Are Being Taught to Work and Play.

The House of Hope stands in the midst of splendid grounds, with spacious lawns, beautiful flower gardens, near a great lake, a branch of which, spanned by a rustic bridge, runs into them, but its inmates, heroes all, live in darkness.

They are the soldiers and sailors who have been blinded in the war, who are doomed for the rest of their lives to walk in a world without light.

Here, at St. Dunstan's, a mansion in Regent's Park, London, kindly lent by the generosity of Mr. Otto Kahn, the American financier, they are given new freedom, they are taught to build up another world for themselves on new foundations, in place of the world of light they have left. They are taught to live in it, and to have new hopes, new ambitions, fresh ideals.

Being Taught to be Blind.

These sightless heroes of the war may seem tragic, sad, and hopeless figures—but they themselves are no longer sad, for they have found new comfort and happiness in the House of Hope. Soon after the war broke out, the Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Hostel, where these brave men could be received, cared for, and trained to their new condition of life, was established. In the House of Hope our sightless soldiers are being taught to be blind. By arrangement with the War Office all blinded soldiers, upon their discharge from the military hospitals, are invited to enter St. Dunstan's.

Here everything that ingenious minds can devise for their comfort and training is done, and the blinded men lead very active lives. Braille reading and writing are taught them by a large staff of voluntary helpers, whose kindly aid cannot be too highly praised. Typewriting is also taught by skilled instructors who are themselves blind.

Then, such occupations as carpentry, boot repairing, mat and basket making, massage, telephony, poultry farming, and market gardening are taught, also by blind teachers.

Each man in the House of Hope spends two and a half hours a day at Braille reading and writing, and another two and a half hours in learning all occupation that will enable him later to earn comfortable wages, and so add to his pension. The duration of the training depends on the quickness of those learning to be blind, and the nature of their work, but it is at least six months.

Row on Regent's Lake.

When ready the men are given a good start in life, and arrangements are being made which will insure that they will be properly looked after.

Sports and entertainments form a good part of the daily routine at the House of Hope. There is a rowing club, and on fine evenings the blinded warriors go for a pull on the Regent's Park lake. Recently, a crew of blind soldier oarsmen rowed on the Thames against crews of blind civilians, and they won two out of three races, and on a later date they beat a strong crew of sighted oarsmen.

There is an annex at St. Dunstan's for the accommodation of relatives of men who are welcome to go there and spend a few days near their husbands, sons, or brothers free of cost.

Another annex is to be found at Brighton, the comfortable and spacious home belonging to the National Institute for the Blind having been placed at the disposal of the inmates of St. Dunstan's. Here they go when they leave hospital, or are in need of change or rest.

At Torquay is another annex, supported by the generosity of residents of that charming neighbourhood, to which men in need of a prolonged period of convalescence are sent.

Officers are housed at 21 Portland Place, a large and beautifully appointed residence which has been most kindly placed at their disposal by Sir John and Lady Stirling-Maxwell.

Speeches Before Battles.

"To-Day They Shall Have a Bath," Said Hindenburg.

One of the most stirring appeals ever addressed to any troops on any battlefield was that spoken by the aged King Peter of Serbia the other day, when it seemed that his little army must be utterly destroyed:

"I, your chosen King," he said, "have no longer strength to lead my Army to death or victory. I am but a frail, grey-headed man, who can only ask God to bless our arms. But I swear, should defeat and disgrace be our lot, that I shall not survive the fall of our dear land."

It was King Peter who made an equally stirring speech on December 3rd, 1914, what time his little army found itself face to face with the numerically vastly superior Austrian forces between Valjevo and Mladonovatz.

"Soldiers," he said, "you have taken two oaths—one to me, your King, and the other to your country. I am an old, broken man, on the edge of the grave, and I release you from your oath to men. From your other oath no one can release you. If you feel you cannot go on, go to your homes, and I pledge my word that after the war, if we come out of it, nothing shall happen to you. But I and my cons stay here."

"Let All Advance Who Can."

It is doubtful if King Peter reads Shakespeare, but it is curious that the above stirring and exquisitely beautiful little homily is almost identical as to its wording, and absolutely identical as regards its sentiment, to that uttered (according to Shakespeare) by our King Harry before Agincourt. And the result was the same. Not a man left the ranks. And the Austrians were hopelessly defeated, and driven in disorder across the Save, with a loss of 80,000 in killed, wounded, missing and prisoners.

Very much more brief, but equally splendid as regards their result, were the words spoken by General Joffre on Sept. 6th, 1914, a month after the declaration of war.

"Now," said he, "now is the time and the opportunity to save France; let all advance who can, let all die where they stand who cannot advance."

Worn and weary by the most terrible retreat in history, half dazed from lack of food and sleep, the soldiers of France heard—and obeyed. Fiercely they turned at bay, rolling the German legions back from almost within sight of the walls of Paris. Many did indeed die where they stood, but all the same France was saved.

Von Hindenburg's Horrible Humour.

"God and our Fleet!" remarked Admiral Fisher on hearing that war was declared. "These are our safeguards. Neither will fail us." As most people are aware, "Jacky" Fisher is an intensely religious man. This was why he placed God first.

Of battlefield speeches made by the German War Lords, perhaps the two best remembered are the Kaiser's exhortation to von Kluck's soldiers, ordering them to "Walk over France's contemptible little army"; and Prince Rupprecht's boastful utterance, "I should like my Bavarians to meet the English—just once." In the light of what happened afterwards these gems of oratory make rather pleasant reading—for us.

Pregnant with a horrible, grim humour was von Hindenburg's "To-day they shall have a bath," uttered on that fateful August morn when he had finally succeeded in entangling the Russians under Samsonov amid the bogs and quagmires of the Masurian Lakes. Certainly he kept his word. By nightfall whole regiments had been driven into the lakes and drowned, or suffocated in the bog-holes; and General Samsonov lay dead, slain, some say, by his own hand in a fit of raging madness and despair.

DECEMBER 8.
 Feast of Immaculate Conception.
 Polls officially closed this day 1832 in first general election in Newfoundland, after 74 days from nomination. The following men were returned in the first Parliament:
 St. John's—John Kent, William Thomas and Patrick Keough.
 Conception Bay—Robert Pack, Peter Brown, James Power and Charles Cousins.
 Fogo—Thomas Bennett.
 Trinity Bay—John Bingay Garland.
 Ferryland—Robert Carter.
 Placentia and St. Mary's—R. F. Sweetman and John Willis Martin.
 Burin—William Hooper.

 James Mosedale, formerly of the firm of Muir and Mosedale and for some time buyer for the firm of Job Bros., and who made 60 trips across the Atlantic, died, 1888.
 Messrs. J. & W. Stewart's business closed here in 1892.
 In 1868 the old Catholic Cathedral, Harbor Grace was dedicated. The new Cathedral there was dedicated in 1899.

AT THE CRESCENT.
 The Crescent Picture Palace has a big show on to-day. "The Trap Door" is a great detective feature in two reels. A Kalem production, a story of how mother love refines a braggart is told in "The Punny Soul of Peter Hand." The Edison Company presents "An Unpaid Ransom" pictured from the story of "The Under Secretary" by Scott Campbell, Bessie Dean features in this, and there are two new comedies: "It Happened on Wash Day" and "Si and Sim Acrobats." Mr. Van Delmar sings the fine ballad: "In My Little Grey Home in the West." This is a great mid-week show, one that Crescent patrons are sure to enjoy.

EXPLOITS OF ELAINE; THE POISONED ROOM.
 The mid-week programme at the Nickel Theatre has been very tastefully arranged and as is customary will draw large audiences. The chief attraction is the "Exploits of Elaine" the fifth chapter of which will be shown. This is a very thrilling chapter as it shows The Poisoned Room—Elaine's own chamber. This is the most sensational serial ever shown

It Stops the Twinges of Rheumatism, Limbers the Muscles, Eases the Joints

Amazing Relief Comes at Once—Cure Every Time.
USE NERVILLINE.
 Aching joints and sore muscles are common in rheumatic people. Inflammation is deep in the tissues. You might use a dozen remedies and derive less relief than Nervilline will give you in half an hour.
 Nervilline is a pain-subduer that works not altogether descriptively. It is fully five times stronger than most remedies, not that it affects the skin unfavourably—no, its great power is due to its wonderful penetrative quality—it strikes in deeply, but never burns or blisters.
 Just rub Nervilline into sore muscles, stiff joints, and note the glow of comfort, the ease of pain that follows.
 You are astonished, delighted; this is because words do not express the promptness and permanency with which Nervilline cures every ache and pain in the muscles and joints.
 Marvellous, you'll say. Natural, we say, because Nervilline is different, stronger, more penetrating, a true pain-subduer. Just try it and see if it doesn't cure rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, strains and sprains.
 The large 50c. family size bottle is far more economical than the 25c. trial size. Get it to-day. Sold by dealers everywhere.

at the movies and it has become very popular. Another big film is "The Human Octopus" a powerful two-act social drama by the Reliance players. "The Diamond Broker" is a melodrama of great merit which is certain to please. Then there is a Charlie Chaplin comedy entitled "Those Love Pangs" which is exceptionally funny. The whole programme to-day is most attractive; be sure and see it.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Weirdly romantic and mysterious, the three-reel feature "The Bombay Buddha" is a photo-play of mysticism and thrilling scenes. It tells the story of a Hindu who stole the priceless relic of worship. The idol was insured for $100,000, and the loss of it the second time was an extremely clever frame-up to defraud the Insurance Company. The conspiracy between the thieves was very cleverly exposed by a ruse of the detectives and a fierce fight was the result. The play throws much light on the deep and dark side of the Oriental nature. The "Trey O' Hearts" will be continued again to-day with a humorous farce, A Political Mess, and a graphically depicted view entitled A Modern Poultry Farm, where the most scientific production of egg culture and poultry raising are explained.

The King Edward Brigade are holding a "Jumble Sale" in their Armoury on Wednesday, 8th inst. All the boys are busy collecting vegetables, etc., for the sale.

Mr. Christopher Pike, while at work in Simmons' grocery store yesterday, met with an accident that came near being very serious. Mr. Pike fell off some barrels he was standing on, and falling across a plank received internal injuries, the full extent of which is not yet known. All Mr. Pike's friends will hope that no serious consequences may result from his fall.

Some of the young men of Carbonear are already arranging for a surprise party to one of their popular fellows who is soon to enter into partnership with a lovely girl of that town.

Word was received in town yesterday of the death at Seattle of Mrs. Giles Courage, recently. The many friends here of the family will regret to hear this.

It is rumored that a company is about to be formed to open a skating rink here this winter. The lovers of the healthy pastime will hail this news with delight. It is said the building will be put up on the site of the old Carlton Rink. Well done, young men don't let this good idea slip from your minds. We hope to see the rink an accomplished fact by the time Jack Frost is ready to take up his portion of the work.

Coal is a scarce article here now, but Messrs R. D. McRae & Sons are arranging for all the schooners they can get to bring the "black diamonds" here. This would be a good time for some enterprising schooner owners to go in the bay for a few loads of wood. It would no doubt sell at a good price, particularly if the coal famine now threatened proves to be so. In any case there is always a good sale for good wood.

An Appeal

LADIES' TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.

"This Committee appeals very urgently for cast-off kid or leather gloves of all kinds to be placed together in work rooms to make leather undercoats for soldiers and sailors in exposed situations. Four or five pairs suffice for one coat."

Every woman can provide such a leather coat.
Please send quickly.
Six penny Stamps would help to defray cost of making coat.

The Ladies' Territorial Committees have again sent out this appeal. It will be remembered that last year a similar appeal was published, and a very hearty response was met with.

As the winter is coming on the necessity again arises of providing the Soldiers at the Front and the Sailors in the North Sea with these wind and waterproof waistcoats, and it is hoped that everyone with old kid or suede gloves will forward them at once, as it is hoped to send forward the first consignment at Christmas.

Funds for the making of the waistcoats are also necessary, and it is hoped that everyone who can afford it will also send some small donation.
Last year the Ladies' Territorial Committee in acknowledging the consignment from Newfoundland said it was one of the largest they had received, and it is hoped that Newfoundland will keep to the fore in supplying these useful although inexpensive luxuries to our soldiers and sailors.

Mrs. F. W. Ayre, "Northview," Circular Road, will be glad to receive any donations either gloves or money, and undertakes to forward them to the Committee in London.

Mother! Don't fake Chances If Child's Tongue Is Coated

If cross, feverish, sick, bilious, clean little liver and bowels.

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

GASOLINE.

I used to pay the grocer's bill whenever it was due, and in the butcher's-yawning till, the coin I promptly threw. But now in vain they plead and moan, to get my good long green! for every dollar that I own, I need gasoline. My children used to wear good clothes, they held their heads up high; no leaky shoes exposed their toes, no rents could you descry. But now they're images of woe, they're blots upon the scene; for every coin I get must go to buy some gasoline. I used to often blow a plunk, at charity's behest, to give some wanderer a bunk, wherein his bones might rest. To furnish breakfast for some bo, road-weary, starved and lean, but now my dollars must go to purchase gasoline. I used to talk of books and art, and topics safe and sane; but since I bought that choo-choo cart, I've "motors" on the brain. I cannot even spare a dime to buy a magazine; it keeps me hustling all the time, to buy my gasoline.

Persons Inclined to Bronchial or Lung weakness should take "The D. & L." Emulsion whenever run down or after colds, to promptly rebuild their full weight and strength.

RECOVERED FROM INJURIES.—Capt. Couch, who had three ribs broken and was otherwise badly injured on the S. S. Bonaventure during a big storm, is now able to be about again and is almost completely recovered from his injuries.

The New Charter.

The members of the Civic Commission are now busy preparing the new charter which will be submitted to the Legislature at the next session. Meetings have been held nearly every night for the past three weeks, and the proposed charter suggests changes in the present Municipal Constitution. In some respects it is along the lines of Acts governing Canadian and American towns and cities.
