JESUS ATTENDS THE PASSOVER AT TWELVE

YEARS OF AGE. In accordance with the Jewish law the ps rents of Jesus proceeded to Jerusalem yearly, to observe there the feast of the passover, Ex xxiii: 14-xxxiv: 23. When children had reached the age of twelve it was the custom to take them thither also, and they were under obligation henceforth to obey the law. When Jesus had reached that age he was taken with his parents to observe the festival.

The feast lasted one entire week and the following sabbath. When this season of worship and rejoicing had been accomplished, Joseph and Mary set forth on their return to Nazareth, Jesus, unknown to them, remained behind in Jerusalem. They soon missed him, but as the first day's journey was always very short, being merely preparatory to the toil ahead, and as they supposed that the missing lad was certainly with some of their friends or kindred in the caravan, they gave themselves but I ttle unessness. At the close of the short first day's journey they sought him among their kindred and acquaintance, but he could not be found. Joseph and Mary immedi ately returned in great anxiety to Jerusalem to

The Rabbi's of Israel, in the halls with which these edifices were provided, assembled for disputation, or to instruct in the laws the Jewish youth. Jesus instead of going to Nazareth with the company of pilgrims with whom he had come to Jerusalem, had gone to one of these halls or synagogues connected with the temple, to meet the Jawish doctors, to listen to their discourses, and to question them on those points in which he felt interested. The Doctors and the audience were alike surprised at the intelligence which he displayed in the questions which he put, and the answers which he made. A magistrate, or civil ruler of such a character must be considered as a great blessing to a nation; but who can estimate the importance to the church, and to the world at large of a ministry formed after the same model, endowed with the same heavenly wisdom, and governed by the same holy and divine principles? And such is the precious boon which God here proposes to bestow up in his people. "And I will give you pastors according to my heart, which shall feed you with the knowledge and understanding."

This was the great work for which the known his salvacion, extend them to the ends of the earth.

But this commission, given primarily to the apostles, was not to apply to them exclusively, and consequently to cease, or become null when their work was done; but to continue in full force for the especial authority and direction of all who should succeed them in the work of transmitting the gospel from age to age, in all nations to the end of time. If this be incorrect, how are we to understand the promise with which the commission is accompanied? If it be limited to the apostles, and have no reference to the future ministry bestowed upon the church by our Great Mediator, as a consequence and proof of his exalted state, then the fulfilment of such a promise must be regarded as a moral impossibility; but if it be true, as unquestionably it is, then further evidence to prove the divine origin of the christian ministry, is utterly superfluous. It stands to the salvation of souls. Have not they who possessed these gifts and this power from above the authority of eternal truth.

This is its grand distinguishing featounfold the deepest mysteries of human science, fierce persecution; and it is this which still ren-ders its position firm and impregnable amidstorms. flowing with love to Him who has plucked them as brands from the burning, and moved by a resistless impulse to labor for his cause, they may sincerely believe themselves[called to the ministry, while it appeared to all but themselves, that they were sadly deficient in the easential qualifications for that work.

Here then the responsibility imposed upon the church is at once made manifest, as the only authorized executor of Christ's will and testament on earth, she has the sole right to control and regulate the appropriation of the ordinances included therein. On her rests the onus of judgment respecting those who apply for admittude within her sacred borders, and to her belongs, no less the right to decide in reference to the claims of those who appire to minister at her holy altars. True, to a man's own heart is known what has passed be ween him and his maker. He only passed be ween him and his maker. He can judge of the inward motives which prehim to this great work. And if induced to himself to the church as a candidate for sacred office is his own soul it lies to say whe sacred omce in his own soul it lies to say whether he has been moved to it by the spirit of God, or by ordinary professional motives. Still the res-ponsibility of the church in this matter remains undiminished. She is bound to move cautiously yet firmly in her decisions, that no imprudence should mislead her to recommend or encoura an unsuitable person to enter upon the duties this sacred calling. She should see to it that a bring not reproach upon herself, by accrediting to the world a man whom God has not quali-fied to "warn every man, and to teach every man in all wisdom that he may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus. For no circumcan justify a church in dispensing with these es-sential qualifications In scaling the credentials of any candidate for the gospel ministry they are bound to ascertain whether or not, the Lord himself has sealed them by the gifts of his Holy Spirit and can only proceed on the ground that the candidate certainly bears the marks of being that faithful and wise steward whom the Lord sets over his house to give to every man his portion of meat in due season." Thus they are to be goverened by the apostle's injunction; "The same commit then to faithful men who shall be able to teach others also." And nothing can be clearer or more reasonable than this, for into the hands of a steward who is neither reasonable or wise, the momentous interests of the cause of Christ should never be committed, and a man who has neither "aptness to teach," nor faculty to communicate, should never be commiss and sent forth as a teacher.

From all this it appears evident that the Christian ministry is not only the same institution as at the first, but that the essential qualifications for and mode of introduction into office remain entirely unchanged. Any departure therefore, from the requirements distinctly specified by our great master and Lord, must de prive the whole institution of its vitality and strength. As Baptists we are bound to adhere to them with unwavering fidelity, for on this depends our very existence as a denomination.— With these principles preserved inviolate we stand and flourish-let them be abandoned and that moment we fall. Woe to our churches then when as a qurlification for the ministry we shall substitute a commission from ecclesiastical for a call from God; a ritual for a gift from God, or a refined education, however highly we may prize it in its proper place, for a power from God. Such a gross perversion of the whole Scriptural order of things would involve an act of high presumption, and introduce corruption and deficiency into an institution which we are bound to preserve in all its purity and strength, Such a course would immediately reduce our standard from the region of the Divine to that of the human and acknowledge our preference of the "wisdom of man" to the power of God."

inistry is infinitely above all other professions in every other respect, it certainly should not be inferior to them all, as regards education or mental training. No rational being will affirm that the law of God, or make known the mysteries of the gospel, than it does to practice medicine or law, and yet a man must undergo a special training for a certain number of years before we will recognize him as a physician or a lawyer. But how many of us rush inconsiderately from the plough and the workshop into the pulpit, without any such special preparation for the highly responsible work to which we are to devote our lives. Such a course has the tendency to reduce standard. And the arguments which are often employed to justify such a proceeding are not less absurd than the course itself. How often are we referred to the apostles and ministers of the early church as ignorant and unlearned men, and with a sort of boasting triumph, they are held up to our notice as living evidences of the glory and power of an uneducated ministry. These men we are gravely told, when taken fresh from their fishing boats and made fishers of men, or from their farms to sow the seeds of truth and life, and all this the dangerous principles of science and philosophy.

This in a measure is all true, not a word of it are we disposed to call in question, but who dares to learned men, or that they were uneducated in the proper acceptation of that term. Did not he who lled them to that great work assure them that he would make them fishers of men? How did he do this but by instructing them in the duties of their holy and honorable vocation. In obedience to the sacred injunction, " learn of me," they placed themselves under his divine instruction and were thus for the space of three years trained at the feet of the great Preacher. What College of the present day can combine the facilities for imparting an education for the ministry which they enjoyed who were taught in the school of Christ? So profound, so masterly, yet so clear and appropriate were the instructions he imparted, that they who heard him were "astonished at his doctrine, for he taught them as one having authority and not as the scribes."And these for sooth are the men whom we are called on to regard as ignorant and unlearned, men whose ability and attainments may well be envied by the wisest and most efficient of the ministers of the present day. It would be of immense advantage to those who blindly attempt to hold up these apostles as examples of the success of an uneducated ministry, could they attain to a tithe of the knowledge and efficiency displayed by these so called unlettered fishermen of Galilee

But only their enemies who knew little or nothing about them, charged them with ignorance, all who heard them expound the doctrines of the cross or listened to their defence against the accusations of the learned adversaries, "took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus," and had been learn-

BATTLE IN WESTERN MISSOURI

FIVE BUYBERD AND SEVENTY FEDERAL TROOPS ARTACK 450 REBELS. A SEVERE ENGAGEMENT.

ST. LEWIS. Ma., Sept. 22.—A severe engage-ment took pil-ce at Blue Milis Landing on the 17m med. The following account is from authen-the sources: Liont. Col. Scott, with 670 men of the 3rd Lown regiment and one piece of artillery, left Cameron on Monday the 15th, in pursuit of the rebels who left St. Joseph on the Friday previous. Col. Scott arrived at Liberty, Clay from that pince at 1 P. M.
At 3 o'clock he fell in with the enemy, numbering 4500, coruging a strong position. Our skinnessiers received a galling fire, and slowly retired to our main Lody, when the action became general Our 6 pounder was brought to bear on, the enemy, and a few shots fired, which proved descructive. At this time a heavy fire spend on our single gun, killing one gunner and wounding two others. On this, several other gunners, from St. Louis, abandoned the gun carrying off the primer and matches, rendering the piece uncless. The action continued an hone, when our column was slowly withdrawn to more open ground, bringing off the wounded and designing away the gun by hand, all the horses having been killed or hadly wounded.

About this time Col. Smith, who left St. Joseph with 1400 men, about the same time Scott did, Cameron, Laving the same general purpose, joined the latter, having pushed forward unted men and his artillery at a rapid pace on receiving a message from Scott, ten miles back, that he was advancing on the enemy, but it being night, their men were completely exhausted, and the rebels reported strongly entremeled at a thicker impassable except by a narrow read, a further attack was postponed until next memory. Early the following day an advance was made by the contined forces, but on sarriving at Blue Mills they found that the enemy had emossed the river before daylight, taking the sead toward Lexington. The total known to be killed is five, while the number wounded is eighty-four, and the missing six. Three of the missing are supposed to be in the hands of the enemy, and the balance killed. In addition to the loss of the 3rd Iowa, there were six Home Guards and one artilleryman killed. Among them is Capt. Cupp, and about ten wounded. Four of these Home Guards were killed in skiemishing about two hours before the CENCAGO. III., Sept. 22. A special dispatch to the Tames, sent from Quincy at 1 o'clock this morning, says the Mail Agent of the Hannibal and St. Jesseph Railsoad, who arrived at 7 o'clock on Saturday night from St. Joseph, states that Col. Muligan and his whole command at Lexington surrendered to Gen. Price on Friday ing at 5 o'clock. The siege continued from Monday until the time of the surrender. Col. Mulligan and men were without water all Thursday and Friday, and generaletely exhausted. They fought despera'ely, but were compelled to yield to superior numbers. The Union loss in killed is said to be 800 or 900, while that of the rebels is some 3000 or 4000, with a proportionate number of

Thus report of the result is fully confirmed by spengers on the same train. The news was brought by estage to Hamilton, which is the nearest point on the road to Lexington, being a tance of fifty miles. Of the fact of the surrender there can be no doubt.

The 3d-Regiment of Iowa volunteers, on their way to Lexington to reinforce, suddealy and un-expectedly came across a body of four thousand rebels at Blue Mills, Mo., when a battle began, and continued an hour and a half.

The Iswa regiment was about to revice when the rebels retreated and crossed the river in time to fall imso the hands of Gene Lane's brigade, 4000 sarang, who were also marching to reinforce Col. Mulligan. The Unionists captured 700 or 800, and killed 200. The rebels fled and remed the river, when the Iowa regiment star-ted in pursuit. In the first encounter the Iowana last 19 killed and 30 wounded.

Ten or twelve rebel prisoners were brought into Quincy from St. Joseph on Saturday, two or three of whom are known to have been cerned in the burning of the Platte bridge a few

A special despatch to the Tribune from headquanters at St. Louis says the report of the sur-render of Cel. Mulligan was not believed there, but that reinforcements were pushing toward
