GEORGE S. GIBBONS PASSES AWAY IN TORONTO AFTER ILLNESS OF SEVERAL MONTHS, AGE OF 37

Prominent Member of the Bar and Liberal Standard-Bearer in the Last Dominion Elections.

The news of the death of George S. Gibbons at 5 o'clock this morning in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, will come with a shock to the people of London. Although Mr. Gibbons had been ill for the past three months, he seemed much improved last Sunday, and set up for a time. It was then expected that he would get better. This morning, however, death occurred.

He was taken ill in Goderich last summer with what was supposed to be a nervous breakdown, and after a long stay there, he was removed to Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, where he has been ever since.

Mr. Gibbons is survived by his wife and three small children, Allan, Anne and Betty. He also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Ronald Harris of this city, Mrs. Helen Gibbons, also of London, and Mrs. Council of Hamilton.

When the sad news became known in the city, many were the expressions of deep regret.

George S. Gibbons entered prominently into the public life of the city for the first time in 1917. As a Liberal candidate he contested this riding against the Unionist candidate, Major Hume V. Cronyn, and it is claimed, polled the largest number of male votes ever recorded here for a Federal member. His defeat was largely attributed to the war time elections act. He would in all probability have contested the riding on the same platform at the next Dominion election. With this exception he took no active part in municipal or political affairs, but was well known throughout the city as one of the outstanding barristers. He was a son of the late Sir George C. and Lady Gibbons, and was born in London in 1882. He received his early education in the public schools and local Collegiate Institute. On being graduated, he attended the Royal Military Academy, Kingston, and was later Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He was graduated there and entered the firm of Gibbons, Harper & Gibbons in 1904, and soon assumed a large share of his father's extensive legal practice.

A distinct honor of this city, Mr. Gibbons was conferred on him during the visit of the late Liberal chief, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he was chosen to propose the toast to him at the banquet of the Association of Liberal Clubs.

Mr. Gibbons was an enthusiastic horseman, and a member of the London Club. He married, in 1907, Mary, daughter of Sir Edmund Carter of Toronto.

Members of Cabinet Confer On Situation Due to Adverse Vote.

London, Oct. 24.—Members of the Lloyd George cabinet conferred with some of their supporters in the House of Commons today relative to the situation which has arisen through the defeat on Thursday of the government amendment to the alien bill. It was stated during the day that an understanding had been arrived at by which a new clause in the bill which would be acceptable to the government would be inserted in the bill. The bill is expected in this way to surmount the difficulty which brought about the defeat of the former amendment, and to avoid the abandonment of the bill.

BOLSHEVIKI IN SAVAGE COUNTER ATTACK DRIVE BACK FORCES THAT ARE THREATENING PETROGRAD

Russian Reds Are Reported To Have Rallied Under Leadership of Leon Trotsky—Advance Against Capital Checked—Tobolsk, in Western Siberia, Said To Have Been Taken by Soviet Army.

London, Oct. 25.—Rallying under the command of Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik minister of war and marine, troops of the Russian soviet government have savagely attacked the lines of the Russian northwestern army, and have succeeded in parrying for the moment at least the thrust of the latter against Petrograd, according to reports reaching this city. Tsarskoe-Selo and Pavlovsk, south of Petrograd, have been recaptured from the forces of Gen. Fudenchik. It is claimed, and the advance of the Bolsheviks continues. South of Moscow, where Gen. Denikin's advance has been checked, a certain degree of the hold of the Bolsheviks on the ancient city of the czar, fighting as going on, but nothing as to the results obtained has been learned. Reports indicate, however, consideration by the soviet leaders of a plan to withdraw all Bolshevik troops into Turkestan and to abandon Moscow. Serbian forces are on their way to Odessa to assist Gen. Denikin in his campaign. Tobolsk, Western Siberia, is said to have been captured from the Kolchak army by the Bolsheviks. This report, if confirmed, would indicate an advance of the soviet army in that sector, as last reports showed them quite a distance to the westward of Tobolsk.

Following the dinner of the American Iron and Steel Institute, King Albert, dressed in evening clothes, attended a midnight show on a roof garden. He was accompanied by secret service men. The queen, accompanied by two members of the royal party, gratified a wish she had entertained ever since arriving on these shores—the ride in the subway. Later she strolled around the streets for an hour and a half without being recognized.

HALF A MILLION MINERS WILL STRIKE WITH BUT MONTH'S COAL SUPPLY NOW IN RESERVE

United States Facing Serious Fuel Situation — Operators and Miners Blame Each Other for Bringing Negotiations to a Sudden Termination—Strike Effective On Nov. 1.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The nation took stock of its coal bins today as a strike of 500,000 miners in the chief bituminous fields loomed up six days distant, more menacing than ever before.

All apparent hope of averting the strike, set for November 1—the eve of winter—vanished last night, when Secretary of Labor Wilson's four-day conference with the scale committee of the miners and operators broke up, despite the appeal of President Wilson from his sick bed to them to brush aside the old animosities and start negotiations anew, with arbitration as a last resort.

Representatives of the miners and operators today continued to charge each other with having caused the ending of negotiations. But the fact remained that instructions were going out today to all locals of the United Mine Workers of America to suspend work at midnight next Friday. Meantime, government officials renewed their quest for some means of preventing the walkout which will close operations in the coalfields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Illinois.

Estimates today as to how long the coal stock of the nation would last varied, but the average figure placed the reserve at little more than one month's supply.

BULGARIA SUBMITS LUKEWARM PROTESTS AGAINST TREATY

Adheres Unreservedly to the Clauses Concerning League and Labor.

Paris, Oct. 25.—Bulgaria's answer to the terms of peace presented her by the allied and associated powers is moderate in tone and adheres unreservedly to the clauses concerning the League of Nations and labor. It accepts the principle of the protection of minorities in Bulgaria on condition the same measures are applied to other Balkan states.

On the other hand, the reply makes reservations regarding reparations, and protests especially against the total sum demanded of Bulgaria. It asks for the suppression of interest charges and requests an extension of the time limit for payment. Regarding the military clauses, Bulgaria objects to the voluntary enlistment of minors, and the conscription alone can produce sufficient forces to maintain order.

The second part of the reply concerns territorial clauses and protests against modification of frontiers on ethnical grounds, and quelling masses of statistics, and notably a plebiscite in Thrace and its formation into an autonomous state. The impression prevails in conference circles that the allies are not likely to consent to any extensive modification of the original terms.

Seven Different Receptions in Three Days Leave Him Cheerful.

EN ROUTE WITH PRINCE OF WALES' SPECIAL TRAIN, Oct. 24.—Reluctant to part with their visitor, the people of Ontario have surrounded the Prince of Wales today with marks of their affection and admiration.

Successful groups have waited on him in a number of towns along the way. It has been a heavy day for the prince, following on several previous heavy days. Altogether there have been seven different receptions, long and short, in the last three days, and today's four receptions left him a little time to rest. But at the end of a grilling day, the people of Galt found him keen and responsive, and eager welcome, and as usual he won all hearts.

Within ten minutes of his setting foot in Galt, the townspeople were tumbling over themselves in their eagerness to show him the mark of their appreciation of his visit. Crowds followed him about as he drove in the falling light through the handsome old town to the Soldiers' Memorial Home, where he paid a short and animated visit. In both these towns he was met by a large crowd, and the people came back to him with his train and shake his hand again. The train came in on the C.P.R. from Western Ontario, and was switched to the Grand Trunk tracks, leaving at 9:20 p.m. for Kingston and Brockville, where the prince will spend the week-end, going on afterwards to Montreal.

PLACE 142ND COLORS, BEARING CITY CREST, IN ST. PAUL'S, NOV. 2

English Papers Commented On Crest of Flags From "Little London."

The colors of the 142nd Battalion are to be deposited in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday, November 2. As Bishop D. Williams officiated at the presentation of the colors to the battalion before it left for overseas an effort will be made to have him take charge of the ceremony when the colors are placed in the cathedral.

A meeting will be held early next week to arrange the details. The executives are hoping that the meeting will be largely attended so that they might be assured that many ex-members will be present at the ceremony on the following Sunday.

A social evening was held in the club rooms on Dundas street last night. It was well attended by members and widows of ex-members of the battalion. Speaking of the disposition of the colors, President W. J. Widdicombe said that the colors had been presented to the battalion by Lady Beck in Queen's Park. The battalion had come down from Camp Borden in a special train for the ceremony.

They were the only colors to bear the crest of the city of London, and the fact that they bore the official crest was commented on by several of the larger papers in England, who spoke of them as the colors from "Little London."

They were not deposited in a cathedral in England, but were put in a safe vault because the battalion was broken up immediately after it had landed in that country. Although the battalion could not win distinction on the battlefield as a unit on this account, many of the members won individual honors. A large number won medals, among them being two winners of the Victoria Cross.

FAIR BOARD MEMBER ADVOCATES EXTENSION OF W. FAIR GROUNDS

Fair Outside City Unjust To Merchants, Says George McCormick.

The proposed extension of the Western Fair grounds and the purchase of land for a new site were only briefly considered by the directors of the Western Fair board yesterday afternoon. Just before the close of the meeting, it was decided that a special session should be held next Monday when a complete discussion of the question will be made. The report of the committee on the extension of the grounds, and the information and details derived from the visit for the benefit of the next year's session of the Western Fair, received the most attention.

Ald. E. S. Little Absent.
The principal reason for the postponement of the fair grounds question was the absence of the city of Ald. E. S. Little, who is the chairman of the special committee in charge of the matter. George G. McCormick, extension of the present grounds to the east at a cost of about $20,000, and the purchase of an entirely new site and the resultant erection of new buildings at a probable cost of $125,000, the former was unanimously the more feasible.

He stated that the grounds should be removed to a larger and a permanent site, for it would not be right to curtail the exhibition on the present site in the future. As a temporary arrangement, he favored the extension of the grounds, east from Queen's Park. Another argument he used in favor of his plan was that any fair was bound to be more successful when situated inside the city limits, and in addition to the facility with which the transportation problem could thus be solved, it was more just to the merchants of the city to have the fair grounds situated inside the city.

A long and complete report of the visit to the secretary to the Birmingham and Atlanta fairs suggested many methods by which London's exhibition could be bettered in the future. The suggestions ranged in nature from those dealing with the smallest of exhibits to the architecture of the buildings and the plan of the grounds at the two American fair grounds.

Biggest Fair on Smallest Grounds.
To the many secretaries of American fairs whom Secretary Hunt met during his visit, he stated yesterday that he was always introduced as coming from the city where the largest annual fair on the continent was staged upon the smallest amount of ground space.

The directors of the board presented Secretary Hunt, who was married just before leaving the city for Atlanta and Birmingham in the first part of this month, with a check for $200 as a wedding present.

A number of communications and accounts were dealt with by the members.

CHRISTMAS GIVING BECOMES PLEASURE
Victory Bond for the Holiday Gift Settles the Bother-some Question.

Have you sat around and wondered what you are going to give this Christmas? Have you pondered it over and over, conjuring up in your mind dozens of gifts all more or less conventional, all if you have and have found no solace from the tormenting thought, then you will shout with joy when the suggestion is offered—Victory Bonds.

A bond for the baby to grow on. A bond for the boy to grow on. A bond for the girl to grow on. A bond for the sister to grow on. A bond for the brother to grow on. A bond for the mother to cherish. A bond for yourself for good measure.

Besides being an enduring gift, a Victory Bond is a symbol of the ending of the war, a stand for Canada's triumph. It carries with it the satisfaction of having done a duty. The buying of a bond is a link in the chain that welds Canadians together in the prosperity of the future.

There is a satisfaction in giving a Victory Bond, for you have the assurance that it will not depreciate with time. Every six months of the year it is tangibly reminding you and your family of the Christmas spirit again when the interest comes due. It is more than a Christmas present; it is a perpetual gift.

A Victory Bond is a gift that "blesses him who gives and him who takes." The donor knows that he has assisted in getting the interest every six months. It has fulfilled a dual purpose—and you think it over—A Victory Bond for Christmas.

TURN CLOCKS BACK ON SUNDAY MORNING
Two O'clock Railways and Others Revert.

Daylight saving will be a thing of the past, starting tomorrow (Sunday) morning when all clocks in London will be turned back to one o'clock. This will mean that church-goers will be able to spend an extra hour in bed tomorrow morning and still arrive in time for church.

Railroad time also moves back an hour and once more London will be on time that "was good enough for our grandfathers, why isn't it good enough for us?" Workers of the city who have been at their daily tasks at 8 and 8:30 thankful that the morning will be more than the task of opening sleepy eyes in the dark.

Farmers who attend the market and must of necessity be on the market on daylight saving time are also glad that old time is coming into force again. At the next time they attend that market, they will be able to drive at least part of the way in daylight.

PRINCE SWAPS FAGS, SHAKES ALL 'ROUND, IN 15 MINUTES HERE

Clasps Hands, Clean, Dirty, Big, Baby, at C. P. R.

"HULLO EDWARD!" YELLS Five Hundred On Platform, Including Ald. Bill Wilson, Who Gets Two Shakes.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was only in London for 15 minutes yesterday afternoon from 3:15 to 3:30 o'clock, but they were 15 of the happiest minutes that he and the large crowd of citizens present at the C.P.R. station experienced in all his stay in the city. The first thing he did was to salute the large Canadian flag, held in the hands of Wm. G. Moore.

The prince, dressed in a grey tweed suit, with a greenish tweed cap, clasped hands with the crowd, shook hands with all near him. Dirty hands, clean hands, black hands, brown hands, and pink baby hands were all the same to the royal visitor who smiled winningly at the numerous pretty girls who were there to catch a glimpse of him and perchance clasp hands for a second.

Played No Favorites.
However, His Highness played no favorites. Aged women with wrinkled brows and Ald. Bill Wilson got in a handshake. In fact Bill got in two handshakes, and after the train pulled out at last the prince was just as happy as the coy females who had given the prince's hand an extra squeeze.

As soon as the train stopped there was a mighty cheer from the 500 people present. (The reason that there was not more was because the fact of his coming was not generally known.) The prince was the chief of his city on the tail-end of the train, and he gallantly acknowledged the gift of a branch of beautifully colored maple leaves. He then shook hands with Mayor Somerville and other members of the city council, and then turned his attention to the public.

Held Babies To Prince.
There was a mad rush to the car to shake hands. Women held up little children in their arms and the prince clasped each and kissed each little hand gently. The grownups then got in their handshakes, after which the prince had a short conversation with the mayor.

"I've missed you all since I left London," said his highness. "I hope I'll come back to see you again before long." This brought forth prolonged cheers from the crowd that was close enough to hear the remark.

The prince then took up the handshaking again, using his left hand. Finally he had to desist after one particularly wailing "clasp."

"Hullo Edward!" shouted a voice from a window of the Murray Shaw Company, which adjoins the C.P.R. property. The prince looked up and acknowledged the salutation with a wave of his cap. Time was getting short and air brakes started to whistle. The prince flung around in his hip pocket and pulled out his cigarette case. He was about to light his fag, when Archie Galbraith, son of Capt. Archie Galbraith, Prince's avenue said: "How would you like to trade?"

"All right," said the prince. "It's a go."

Trade Cigarettes.
Galbraith stepped forward, handed up a "Player" and received in return the prince's cigarette with the royal coat of arms.

The trade gave a warning too, the policeman bustled the crowd back, the prince threw away his cigarette that he had just received from E. Bligh, 765 Hellmuth avenue, and waved his hand to the crowd that hoarsely cheered the most popular actor on the London stage.

A Perfect Prince.
Popular word in the English language to describe the feelings of the crowd at the C. P. R. station yesterday afternoon. The young prince can best be described by a snatch of conversation that fell on the reporter's ear as he left the station platform. It was a girl of about 15 speaking, and she said:

"Gee, I never knew what the expression 'a perfect prince' meant before, but I do now."

That was it. He was a perfect prince. That was it.

QUEEN ZEPHRA DRAWS ANOTHER DELIGHTED GRAND AUDIENCE
Second Performance Strengthens Success of Spectacular Operatic Production.

"Queen Zephra" scored again at the Grand Theatre last night when a second, equally delighted audience turned up to hear the fine music, dancing and acting rendered by the best local talent. The story of the play is a gripping one, even though the characters are allegorical, and given added opportunity for spectacular effect, both in stage setting and costume.

The Zephra Operatic Spectacle Company, under whose direction this production is given, has certainly a very fine and costly array of costumes and stage scenery, the like of which could not be seen in any other production of an ordinary local production, and although there is the added interest of local talent in the musical spectacle, the company of the Acadian Club with A. D. Jordan leading the grand orchestra, at the piano.

The company could have chosen no better "Queen Zephra" than Mrs. Catherine McCormick-Brickenden, who has been trained in acting and shows up exceptionally well in her role of supreme monarch in the play. Outstanding ability is displayed by Ernest N. Harding as King Dedus, whose haughty anger contrasts strongly with the beauty of the rest of the movement of the play. His vocal numbers and those of Charles Jolley, Marjorie Talbot, Carmen Larn, add greatly to the musical effect as do the numbers of Miss Luta Layman, Miss Clara Ferry, Miss Irene Parkinson and Miss Edna Barry.

CHRISTMAS GIVING BECOMES PLEASURE

Victory Bond for the Holiday Gift Settles the Bother-some Question.

Have you sat around and wondered what you are going to give this Christmas? Have you pondered it over and over, conjuring up in your mind dozens of gifts all more or less conventional, all if you have and have found no solace from the tormenting thought, then you will shout with joy when the suggestion is offered—Victory Bonds.

A bond for the baby to grow on. A bond for the boy to grow on. A bond for the girl to grow on. A bond for the sister to grow on. A bond for the brother to grow on. A bond for the mother to cherish. A bond for yourself for good measure.

Besides being an enduring gift, a Victory Bond is a symbol of the ending of the war, a stand for Canada's triumph. It carries with it the satisfaction of having done a duty. The buying of a bond is a link in the chain that welds Canadians together in the prosperity of the future.

There is a satisfaction in giving a Victory Bond, for you have the assurance that it will not depreciate with time. Every six months of the year it is tangibly reminding you and your family of the Christmas spirit again when the interest comes due. It is more than a Christmas present; it is a perpetual gift.

A Victory Bond is a gift that "blesses him who gives and him who takes." The donor knows that he has assisted in getting the interest every six months. It has fulfilled a dual purpose—and you think it over—A Victory Bond for Christmas.

TURN CLOCKS BACK ON SUNDAY MORNING
Two O'clock Railways and Others Revert.

Daylight saving will be a thing of the past, starting tomorrow (Sunday) morning when all clocks in London will be turned back to one o'clock. This will mean that church-goers will be able to spend an extra hour in bed tomorrow morning and still arrive in time for church.

Railroad time also moves back an hour and once more London will be on time that "was good enough for our grandfathers, why isn't it good enough for us?" Workers of the city who have been at their daily tasks at 8 and 8:30 thankful that the morning will be more than the task of opening sleepy eyes in the dark.

Farmers who attend the market and must of necessity be on the market on daylight saving time are also glad that old time is coming into force again. At the next time they attend that market, they will be able to drive at least part of the way in daylight.

$50 A YEAR RISE FOR 16 SCHOOL JANITORS IS BOARD RECOMMENDATION

An increase of $50 a year for sixteen public school janitors was recommended by No. 2 committee of the board of education Friday afternoon. Trustees Edwin Smith moved that the increase be five per cent, but the other members of the committee favored the flat increase of $50. This is the first of a number of requests for salary increases to be dealt with. Requests from public, Collegiate and Technical school teachers have yet to be considered.

Several applications for the position of school architect were received, and the matter was referred to the board. Salaries expected ranged from $2,500 to $5,000.

GERMAN MINISTER URGES EVACUATION OF BALTIC PROVINCES

Berlin, Friday, Oct. 24.—In the course of a long address before the National Assembly which consisted mainly of a protest against recent addresses by Premier Clemenceau and what was called the "militaristic tendency" of France toward Germany, as well as the inconsistent spirit shown in the formation of the League of Nations, Foreign Minister Mueller insisted today upon the necessity for a speedy German evacuation of Lithuania and Latvia. He said this step was necessary to convince the world of Germany's sincere desire for peace.

PRINCE SWAPS FAGS, SHAKES ALL 'ROUND, IN 15 MINUTES HERE

Clasps Hands, Clean, Dirty, Big, Baby, at C. P. R.

"HULLO EDWARD!" YELLS Five Hundred On Platform, Including Ald. Bill Wilson, Who Gets Two Shakes.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was only in London for 15 minutes yesterday afternoon from 3:15 to 3:30 o'clock, but they were 15 of the happiest minutes that he and the large crowd of citizens present at the C.P.R. station experienced in all his stay in the city. The first thing he did was to salute the large Canadian flag, held in the hands of Wm. G. Moore.

The prince, dressed in a grey tweed suit, with a greenish tweed cap, clasped hands with the crowd, shook hands with all near him. Dirty hands, clean hands, black hands, brown hands, and pink baby hands were all the same to the royal visitor who smiled winningly at the numerous pretty girls who were there to catch a glimpse of him and perchance clasp hands for a second.

Played No Favorites.
However, His Highness played no favorites. Aged women with wrinkled brows and Ald. Bill Wilson got in a handshake. In fact Bill got in two handshakes, and after the train pulled out at last the prince was just as happy as the coy females who had given the prince's hand an extra squeeze.

As soon as the train stopped there was a mighty cheer from the 500 people present. (The reason that there was not more was because the fact of his coming was not generally known.) The prince was the chief of his city on the tail-end of the train, and he gallantly acknowledged the gift of a branch of beautifully colored maple leaves. He then shook hands with Mayor Somerville and other members of the city council, and then turned his attention to the public.

Held Babies To Prince.
There was a mad rush to the car to shake hands. Women held up little children in their arms and the prince clasped each and kissed each little hand gently. The grownups then got in their handshakes, after which the prince had a short conversation with the mayor.

"I've missed you all since I left London," said his highness. "I hope I'll come back to see you again before long." This brought forth prolonged cheers from the crowd that was close enough to hear the remark.

The prince then took up the handshaking again, using his left hand. Finally he had to desist after one particularly wailing "clasp."

"Hullo Edward!" shouted a voice from a window of the Murray Shaw Company, which adjoins the C.P.R. property. The prince looked up and acknowledged the salutation with a wave of his cap. Time was getting short and air brakes started to whistle. The prince flung around in his hip pocket and pulled out his cigarette case. He was about to light his fag, when Archie Galbraith, son of Capt. Archie Galbraith, Prince's avenue said: "How would you like to trade?"

"All right," said the prince. "It's a go."

Trade Cigarettes.
Galbraith stepped forward, handed up a "Player" and received in return the prince's cigarette with the royal coat of arms.

The trade gave a warning too, the policeman bustled the crowd back, the prince threw away his cigarette that he had just received from E. Bligh, 765 Hellmuth avenue, and waved his hand to the crowd that hoarsely cheered the most popular actor on the London stage.

A Perfect Prince.
Popular word in the English language to describe the feelings of the crowd at the C. P. R. station yesterday afternoon. The young prince can best be described by a snatch of conversation that fell on the reporter's ear as he left the station platform. It was a girl of about 15 speaking, and she said:

"Gee, I never knew what the expression 'a perfect prince' meant before, but I do now."

That was it. He was a perfect prince. That was it.

QUEEN ZEPHRA DRAWS ANOTHER DELIGHTED GRAND AUDIENCE
Second Performance Strengthens Success of Spectacular Operatic Production.

"Queen Zephra" scored again at the Grand Theatre last night when a second, equally delighted audience turned up to hear the fine music, dancing and acting rendered by the best local talent. The story of the play is a gripping one, even though the characters are allegorical, and given added opportunity for spectacular effect, both in stage setting and costume.

The Zephra Operatic Spectacle Company, under whose direction this production is given, has certainly a very fine and costly array of costumes and stage scenery, the like of which could not be seen in any other production of an ordinary local production, and although there is the added interest of local talent in the musical spectacle, the company of the Acadian Club with A. D. Jordan leading the grand orchestra, at the piano.

The company could have chosen no better "Queen Zephra" than Mrs. Catherine McCormick-Brickenden, who has been trained in acting and shows up exceptionally well in her role of supreme monarch in the play. Outstanding ability is displayed by Ernest N. Harding as King Dedus, whose haughty anger contrasts strongly with the beauty of the rest of the movement of the play. His vocal numbers and those of Charles Jolley, Marjorie Talbot, Carmen Larn, add greatly to the musical effect as do the numbers of Miss Luta Layman, Miss Clara Ferry, Miss Irene Parkinson and Miss Edna Barry.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys, and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent still-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

G. T. R., WHITE ELEPHANT, HAVING BEEN ACQUIRED BY GOVERNMENT, MUST BE FED

Hon. W. S. Fielding Says Deal Simply Means Perpetuating
G. T. R., For Government Will Not Own It—$15,- 000,000 Loan Is Subject of Discussion.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—When the House of Commons went into committee on the Grand Trunk bill this afternoon D. McKenzie asked if the Government could give any general estimate of the value of the stocks it was assuming in paying for the huge white elephant. The minister of railways replied that it would not be fair for him to make any statement other than to say that in its action the Government was following the recommendation of the Drayton-Acworth report.

The minister of railways replied that it was. Frank S. Cahill asked the minister if he could tell him what amount of liabilities the country was assuming in acquiring the Grand Trunk Railway.

Hon. Dr. Reid replied that it was impossible until the arbitrators had made their award to say what the exact figure would be.

Considerable discussion arose over a loan of $15,000,000 to the Grand Trunk made many years ago. This had never been pressed, but it had not been written off the books. Mr. Fielding said there should be a statement regarding an item of such importance, and he wished to know what effect this would have upon the final price of the system. He said the minister of railways had spoken as though this loan were wiped out.

Dr. Reid replied that the arbitrators would consider all the assets and liabilities of the railway in making their award. They would not be guided either by any statements made by himself or any other member in the House. Mr. Cahill, quoting from the Canada

Year Book, 1918, said that the debt of $15,000,000 had been eliminated. The minister replied that the figures given in connection with the measure before the House were more reliable even than the Canada Year Book.

Mr. McKenzie asked what there was to arbitrate about this $15,000,000. It was good Canadian money, and there should be no question as to the value of the Canadian dollar.

The minister of railways replied that the arbitrators would consider the value of the road, and to do that they would have to take into account every asset and every liability.

W. D. Euler, North Waterloo, said the Grand Trunk Railway should be held liable for this debt the same way as any other corporation or person would have been.

Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell explained that the debt was of long-standing, and though it had never been written off the books the Government had not ever demanded its payment.

Mr. Rowell remarked that the Government would see that the holders of the preferred and common stock did not get any higher award because of any enhancement of market values as a result of the present legislation. A date would be fixed in the agreement for taking the value of the stock.

Unwise to Fix Date.
Mr. Stevens thought it would be unwise to fix the date for the valuation. Otherwise the arbitrators might interpret it as meaning that Parliament recognized the market value of the stock on that date. Intrinsic and not market value should be considered.

J. A. Campbell remarked that this would involve arriving at a valuation of the physical assets of the system. Mr. Stevens agreed that this was the case.

Mr. Fielding said he had no desire to see the market value of the Grand Trunk stocks considered by the arbitrators. His point was that if market values were to be considered, a date prior to the Government's negotiations should be set. Mr. McKenzie saw no reason why the Government should not set a limit. For instance, of the negotiations became known to the public on January 24, 1918, the line might be drawn at January 23. A day prior to this date would have to be selected.

Other Factors.
Mr. Rowell said that in his view the market value of the stock should not enter into the deliberations. He thought it would be unwise to adopt Mr. McKenzie's suggestion, because since January 23, 1918, other important factors productive of fluctuations in the Grand Trunk stock had entered into the situation. For instance, it was since that date that the Grand Trunk had confessed its inability to operate the Grand Trunk Pacific road. The minister of railways had said that a story was being circulated throughout the Dominion that if the Government acquired the Grand Trunk, municipalities would be unable to collect taxes on the road. This was not the case. As far as municipal taxation was concerned the Grand Trunk would be in exactly the same position as it was when owned by the company. The Government was merely taking the stock.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King said that this statement bore out his contention that the Government would not really own the Grand Trunk. The Grand Trunk property was exempt from taxation, but the Grand Trunk would still pay taxes after the acquisition of the stock.

Somewhat Different.
Dr. Reid replied that Government property held in fee simple was not subject to taxation. The conditions with regard to the Grand Trunk were somewhat different. It was a private company in which the Government owned the stock. It would be operated as a private company, but by owning the stock the Government owned the company.

A. B. McColg asked why the minister did not set forth in the bill just these facts. Dr. Reid replied that he did not want to tie up any future governments. If a government of the future refused to pay taxes then it would be up to them.

Mr. King asked if the distinction between the Intercolonial Railway and the Grand Trunk was because the Government had owned the stock of the former road from the beginning. That was Government ownership as he understood it. In the case of the Grand Trunk, a certain amount of stock did not at any time come into the hands of the Government. That he classed as simply Government operation and not ownership.

Persuade Opposition.
Dr. Reid suggested that Mr. King should get the members of the Opposition together in committee and persuade them that they had been arguing wrongly all through this debate. They had certainly said many times that this was Government ownership.

Mr. Rowell said a mortgage on a man's house did not alter the man's ownership. The Government simply got these preferred and common stocks at the price fixed by arbitration, and in return issued non-votable shares bearing interest at four per cent for the value as set forth by the arbitrators. Canada, if she attempted to pay cash for this stock, would have to borrow money at 5½ per cent. It was good business to get the stock at 4 per cent.

Mr. Euler asked if this were not watered stock, and the president of the privy council replied in the negative. It was simply paid for with bonds instead of cash. At the end of 30 years, if the Government wished to take over the road, it was quite possible that money might be available at a much lower rate of interest than at present.

Must Feed Elephant.
Hon. W. S. Fielding argued that the Grand Trunk Company would remain as a corporate entity. "First, we know we are to have the elephant," he said, "and now we know we have to feed it. It seems to me that we are perpetuating the Grand Trunk Railway Company, for the Government does not own the road."

He said there would be annual meetings with the minister of railways as chairman and so forth. Dr. Reid replied that in the case of the Canada Atlantic and Grand Trunk, while the former was a separate entity, all former revenues and expenditures were in one fund and were handled from that fund. There was some discussion as to how the physical properties of the Grand Trunk, after its acquisition by the Government, would be subject to local taxation. Mr. Rowell said that the stock in the hands of the Government would, of course, not be liable to taxation. But the physical assets would still be vested in a corporate entity. The situation would be the same as that of the Canadian Northern.

Why a Distinction.
Mr. McKenzie argued that if the properties were subject to taxation there was no public ownership. Further, the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Railways were to pay municipal taxation, why should the Intercolonial Railway be exempted?

Mr. Rowell replied that of the rates on the Intercolonial Railway were raised to the basis of those of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Railways there would probably be sufficient additional revenue to pay the taxes.

Mr. King—Is it the Grand Trunk that wishes to sell, or the Government that wishes to buy?

Mr. Rowell—The Grand Trunk is in such a position that it cannot carry on unless the Government relieves it from its obligation. The Government is not willing to relieve it of its obligation; therefore, the Grand Trunk was willing to negotiate the sale.

Not Best Terms.
J. J. Denis wanted to know why the Government should be paying interest amounting to $2,500,000 on the 4 per cent guaranteed stock, when the Drayton-Acworth report recommended that an annuity based on a moderate but substantial proportion of $3,600,000 should be paid for all five stocks. He was not satisfied that the Government was getting the best terms possible from the railway company. They should be given the terms of the Drayton-Acworth report, neither more nor less.

Mr. Rowell replied that the Government was acting on its interpretation of the Drayton-Acworth report. The Government has decided that a substantial proportion of $3,600,000 was to be paid on the guaranteed stocks. The cash offer of the Government had increased it to $3,600,000 after seven years. For the first three years the payment was to be $2,500,000, for the following four $3,000,000, and thereafter $3,600,000.

However, since the cash offer had been refused, valuation of the stock was left to the arbitrators.

Wanted Assistance.
Mr. Fielding asked the president of the privy council if the Grand Trunk had wished to sell out to the Government. Mr. Rowell replied that was the last thing the Grand Trunk wished to do. What they did want was further financial assistance. When told that this could not be given, they said the only thing left was a receivership. The Grand Trunk did not wish to sell, but had accepted the alternative of arbitration when they could not carry on any longer.

Mr. Rowell said that at the time that the National Transcontinental was built he was a supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and then approved that transaction. He did not approve, however, of the building of the C. N. R. as a duplicate transcontinental railway. It depreciated the value of the Grand Trunk securities, and also imposed an immense burden on the C. N. R. which could not be overcome.

In National Interest.
In regard to the Grand Trunk, he believed it was in the national interest that this road be acquired by the Government, but it was not claimed that there was any urgency. Members were at liberty to take whatever time they wanted for discussion before the bill went through the House. However, there was an organized opposition to the Government acquiring the Grand Trunk road at the present time.

Mr. Fielding, in reply, said the minister and the Government were afraid of public opinion. They wanted to rush this bill through now for fear they could not get it through later. Mr. Fielding said there was no use in reviving the issue of writs within six months of a seat becoming vacant, and also provided against a person contesting more than one constituency. Mr. Doherty explained that if a man were nominated with his consent for more than one constituency, both nominations would become void. If, however, a candidate were absent from the country at the time of his nomination in two constituencies and could not previously have given his consent he must choose which one he would represent.

Progress was reported on the bill, and the House adjourned.

The committee rose and reported progress, to resume at the next sitting of the House.

The House then took up the resolution to approve the treaty of peace between the Allies and Austria.

The motion for approval carried after discussion, and a message was sent to the senate, asking for the concurrence of the upper chamber.

The House proceeded to consideration of Mr. Jacobs' bill to amend the House of Commons act and to provide that polling days at elections should be public holidays.

The amendments from committee provided for the issue of writs within six months of a seat becoming vacant, and also provided against a person contesting more than one constituency.

The House then took up the resolution to approve the treaty of peace between the Allies and Austria.

The motion for approval carried after discussion, and a message was sent to the senate, asking for the concurrence of the upper chamber.

The House proceeded to consideration of Mr. Jacobs' bill to amend the House of Commons act and to provide that polling days at elections should be public holidays.

The amendments from committee provided for the issue of writs within six months of a seat becoming vacant, and also provided against a person contesting more than one constituency.

Mr. Doherty explained that if a man were nominated with his consent for more than one constituency, both nominations would become void. If, however, a candidate were absent from the country at the time of his nomination in two constituencies and could not previously have given his consent he must choose which one he would represent.

Progress was reported on the bill, and the House adjourned.

How Much Tobacco Will My Heart Stand

A Question Vital to Every Man Who Smokes or Chews

IT MAY COST A PRECIOUS LIFE TO FIND OUT BY EXPERIMENT.

The heart of every user of tobacco bears a double burden. It does its allotted task and then fights nicotine for supremacy. As long as the heart wins the fight, when it loses, he dies, but before the final victory of nicotine you pass through many stages of decline and decay and suffer many pains. Hearts are like human beings—some are stronger than others; therefore, some hearts will stand more tobacco than others, but there is a limit to what any heart can stand. The man who puts this additional strain on his heart a dozen times a day by smoking cigarettes, a pipe or cigars, or chewing tobacco—is taking a madman's chance with health and life to lose and nothing to win but the chance that he may not lose them. He is indulging in a costly habit at the expense of precious health. Ask any doctor anywhere and he will tell you that using tobacco is injurious and that it is far better to quit the habit than to experiment to find out how much tobacco your heart will stand without serious results.

But the thought of quitting is unpleasant to most men—except to those who know that tobacco injures them—and to really quit takes more will-power than they have, and causes more suffering than they can voluntarily endure. To quit the habit make it easy for yourself by getting Nicotol tablets and taking them as directed. The habit really quits you, and its departure is a pleasure equal to its indulgence.

If you want to know how much easier it is to quit the habit with Nicotol than without it, go twenty-four hours without tobacco and note what an effort it costs you; then begin using it as usual and take Nicotol tablets. At the end of a week discontinue smoking or chewing for a day, and it is probable you will have no desire to resume. At least your desire will be greatly diminished, and another week or two should make it not only possible, but a pleasure, to quit.

Note: Dr. Conner, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, under whose advice Nicotol has often been used, said when this statement was shown to him: "I have known Nicotol to conquer the tobacco habit in less than ten days' time, and I can therefore recommend it highly." "Nicotol is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit, way ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are satisfied by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the sale of Nicotol unless the money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists. (5)

Health and Happiness

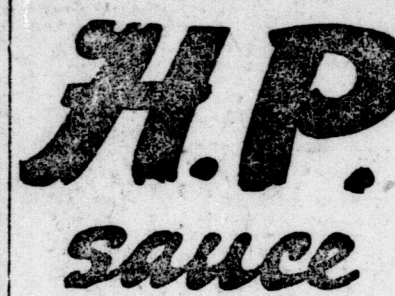

Women of today seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. Home duties, church duties, war activities, and the hundred-and-one calls for charitable enterprises soon lead women to overdo. Nervousness, headaches, backaches and female troubles are the inevitable result.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which, added to my weak condition, kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness. Health and happiness? Yes, I have both now."—Mrs. J. W. WOODMAN, 2812 North Taylor Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of women nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. Avoid them by taking in time

A FINAL EFFORT TO AVERT COAL STRIKE FAILS

Half Million Workers Will Quit Work On Very Eve of Winter.

EFFECTIVE NOVEMBER 1

Stirring Appeal by Wilson, Sick at White House, Proves Ineffective.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The last government effort to avert the coal strike set for November 1 failed utterly tonight, and half a million workers will quit work on the very eve of winter, with the nation's bins running dangerously low.

Even an appeal from President Wilson, sick in bed at the White House, was not enough to bring peace to a conference that was torn and on the breaking point half a dozen times during the day. Charges and counter-charges flew thick and fast as the groups of operators and miners fled out of the meeting, which began somewhat hopefully four days ago.

While the operators announced that they had accepted the president's offer to wipe the slate clean and negotiate a new wage agreement, the miners charged that the operators had bolted without the consent of Secretary of Labor Wilson, the storm centre of an extraordinary fight to head the country's untold distress and suffering.

Order Stands.

Surrounded by a score of miners, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, hurried out of the hall in haste long enough to announce that the strike order stood and that the miners would walk out after full day's work on the closing day of the present month. The final breaking up of the conference, Lewis said, meant that official notice of the failure would be sent forthwith to the unions everywhere to order the men out of the mines at the appointed hour.

The president's appeal was through Secretary Wilson after the latter had exhausted every possible effort and had pleaded until his throat ached. It pointed out what a strike meant, urged the two sides to get together, negotiate their differences, resorting to arbitration only in the event that negotiations failed. The important point in the proposal, however, was that the miners be kept open and the miners stay at work.

The president's appeal follows: "I have been watching with deep and sincere interest your efforts to bring about a just settlement of the different coal miners' strikes. It is to be hoped that the judgment that has been exercised by both operators and miners in years gone by in the adjustment of their differences will again prevail in the present crisis.

All organized society is dependent upon the maintenance of the fuel supply for the continuance of its existence. The Government has appealed with success to similar questions until a reasonable adjustment could be arrived at. Neglect of Duty.

"With the parties of this controversy rests the responsibility of seeing that the fuel supply of the nation is maintained. At this time, when the world is in need of more supplies, it would be a cruel neglect of our high duty to humanity to fail them.

I have read with interest the suggestion made by you that the wage scale committees of the operators and miners go into conference without reservation for the purpose of negotiating an agreement as though no demands had been made or rejected, having due regard to the interests of their respective groups.

I am in accord with that suggestion. No body of men knows better the details, intricacies and technicalities of mining than do the miners and operators. No body of men can work out the details of the wage scale on a more equitable basis. Their judgment would undoubtedly be based upon a sum total of knowledge of the industry. Whatever their differences may be, no matter how widely divergent their viewpoints may be from each other, it is a duty that they owe society to make an earnest effort to negotiate these differences and to keep the mines of our country in operation.

The Vice-Master.

"After all, the public interest in this vital matter is the paramount consideration of the Government, and admits of no other action than that of consideration of a peaceful settlement of the matter as suggested by you. For any reason the miners and operators fail to come to a mutual understanding the interest of the public is to proceed to negotiate. The operators, having expressed a willingness to proceed to negotiate and to accept the president's proposal in its entirety, the president's proposal is to proceed to negotiate and to accept the president's proposal in its entirety. The miners, having expressed a willingness to proceed to negotiate and to accept the president's proposal in its entirety, the president's proposal is to proceed to negotiate and to accept the president's proposal in its entirety.

The miners and operators had left the conference room and Secretary Wilson, the tears springing to his eyes, was gathering up his papers, when he announced that his efforts and the president's efforts had fallen down and that the conference had adjourned for good. He briefly explained the status, but refused to be drawn into charges of bad faith.

The operators agreed to accept the proposal of the president in its entirety. Secretary Wilson said "and to proceed with negotiations and, if they failed to come to a conclusion, to submit their case still in dispute to arbitration, the mines to continue in operation pending adjustment."

The miners interpreted the president's letter as two proposals. They were willing to accept the first, that is, to proceed to negotiate. The operators said that, having expressed a willingness to accept the president's proposal in its entirety, they held themselves ready to proceed to negotiate and arbitrate whenever called upon by the secretary of labor or by the miners' scale committee, and with that statement they withdrew.

"The miners remained and expressed their regret that the negotiations could not go on, but declined to proceed with the negotiations until the results of the negotiations would be successful or unsuccessful.

"The conference then adjourned without date."

TRYING TO MAKE TROUBLE.

As was to be expected, the local organ of the reactionary Hearst Government disapproves of the popular and progressive platforms on which Farmer, Liberal and Labor candidates have been elected. It hates to see the passing of the old Tory system of government by a small group friendly to the combines, the corporations and the profiteers, to be succeeded by a Legislature and ministry that will be distinctly of the people and for the people. It realizes that Farmer, Liberal and Laborite have policies that are basically the same. So it starts a campaign with the object of keeping these groups apart. As an example it attacks the United Farmer party as follows:

The parents of the schoolchildren will buy the textbooks for their offspring, not the State. The cost of living will not be greatly encouraged in its downward movement, at least in respect to foodstuffs. The farmer is convinced that his prices are not too high, even for peace times. He points to the trek from the farms in proof. For this reason he is not likely to meddle with the cold storage, which have helped to keep up the average costs of farm and dairy produce. The cold storage wagons that call at the farmer's house paying competitive prices for butter, eggs and cream, will continue to be welcome. Neither is the United Farmer contemplating, we may expect, to assist labor to secure increases in wages, because the farmer is also convinced that it is the good industrial conditions in the cities and towns which make it impossible for him to obtain the services of farm help at any price, much less at the wages he was formerly accustomed to pay. Here again, as a consequence, we will see no radical movement upon the part of the U. F. O. representatives. Labeled united in several instances with the U. F. O. in the election of candidates, but there is small probability that the bond will hold.

The above is clearly a deliberate attempt to arouse antagonisms between the city worker and the farmer. It is made to appear that the United Farmers will legislate selfishly, that the urban population will be made to suffer to the advantage of the rural population.

There is nothing in the platform of the United Farmers to warrant such an accusation. It is distinctly stated that the interests of all classes will be considered. And nobody realizes better than the farmer the necessity for harmony between urban and rural interests if both elements are to progress happily and prosperously. From the farmer the city man gets his foodstuffs; from the city man the farmer secures his implements and his clothing. They must work together for their mutual gain. That is so obviously the case that it is certain that Farmer, Liberal and Labor will give and take in a way to advance their several interests. The farmers who have been elected to the Legislature are sober-minded and justice-loving men who feel strongly the responsibility to the people that has been placed on their shoulders. They are alive to the social and industrial unrest that is abroad. To say they will deliberately heighten this dangerous condition by exploiting all outside their own class is an insult to their intelligence and their reputation as a body of decent, fair-minded men.

BORDENISM NOT WANTED.

An Australian writing in "The New Statesman," London, says of the coalition war government in his country:

"Mr. Hughes' ministry, now that the war is over, has no real justification for its existence. It is quite incapable of coping with the great, complicated combinations which the war has strengthened. Profiteering is rampant, and the public irritated to a degree since the Ministry without a policy."

Mr. Hughes' party consists of Conservatives and "Old Liberals." In its make-up and general character it is thus very like the Canadian Unionists. But one difference in favor of the Australian Government is that the Liberals belonging to it are "restive under Mr. Hughes' leadership." They are at least anxious to break away. In Canada some Liberals who associated themselves with Sir Robert Borden for the purpose of finishing the war in the way that they thought best have already broken off the temporary connection, and no doubt breathe easier. But there are a number of others who stick to Borden, share the odium of the only contemptible government Canada has ever endured, and seemingly hope for its continuance till 1922.

The Ontario election, following those of other provinces, screams into the dull ear of Bordenism, "Can't you go, must you stay?" The corpse of the Hearst regime laid out for burial seems to beckon with fixed eye to the Borden Government to follow. Bordenism is "fey," as the Scotch used to whisper, but its Liberal members, like the Tory masters of the house, shut their eyes to the "mene tekul upharsin" on the wall.

They know perfectly well the central meaning of last Monday's work. The Ontario people, men and women, saw in Hearst and Company the allies of the Bordenites in the service of High Profits, climbing millionaires and exclusive titles. The votes for Liberal, Labor and U. F. O. candidates were largely intended as a blow at the insolence of an encroaching and usurping ring of millionaires seeking more or less consciously to dominate the people as a ruling caste and destroy democracy by massed money power. "If we don't hit them now, we are lost for the future," remarked a London workman to his friend.

Clearly the Borden Government is an anachronism at Ottawa. It would be practically a breach of the constitution for it to brazen out its tenure of power another three years in the teeth of universal execration. The people no more trust Bordenism to curb profiteers and tax the rich than it would trust the Hearst Government further to administer prohibition or our land, forest and mineral wealth.

SOMETHING LACKING AT WASHINGTON.

The breakdown of the Washington Industrial Conference is a happening not unexpected. Probably not even President Wilson was sanguine that it would lead to some better state of affairs, and the fact that its time of meeting coincided with the most deadly labor struggle the republic had had in a long time was bound to strain nerves on both sides. The attitude that was taken by the three parties was not calculated in any case to promote good-will, because they were almost without any common basis for their deliberations. Commercialized America is today suffering, in common with other countries, the ill after-effects of the war, but unlike Britain and France it has not experienced the sobering effect that the long-continued struggle brought to the older lands. Seemingly there are those in the United States who know no other way of dealing with the present unrest than repression, and these are the people who seem able to dominate the industrial situation in the United States at the present time. Their chief aim, it would appear, is to "keep the situation in hand." President Wilson appears to have thought that there might be such a thing as compromise and mutual giving way that would give time to clear away some of the underlying causes of unrest. In that respect his Washington conference has failed.

The example of Great Britain in dealing with the strike of the railway men might have given some indication of a possible solution for the steel strike in America had those responsible been willing to learn. But the Steel Corporation, at least, has no idea of conciliation in its mind because it believes that it is going to tire out the strikers and win the day. Probably it will win out, and the steel strike of 1919 will be added to the annals of American labor strife. But the root causes of the strike will remain as a menace to whom if not to the American people at large? It will be just one more fuse laid towards the dynamite. Bourbon-like the Steel Corporation learns nothing and forgets nothing. There is no lesson in the long history of British policy of compromise and conciliation which it understands. Its models are rather medieval in character. It knows only the weapons of repression and force. And so almost the first dispatch regarding the strike told of bloodshed.

All over the United States today there are those who fear that the next few years may see an upheaval so gigantic that it will shake the whole republic. Such a view was expressed yesterday at the conference on moral education that is under way in Winnipeg. There are predictions of a Red regime, Soviet rule, Bolshevism and a dozen more varieties of political pickles, some of which are as chimerical as an invasion from Mars. No revolution could possibly succeed in the United States unless undertaken by an organization competent to take over the productive industries as a whole and administer them more economically and more efficiently than those now in charge. Clearly there is not even the germ of such an organization to be found. Least of all is it likely to be found in the fly-by-night organizations that are the special subject of investigation by commissions congressional down. As Lloyd George says the old world is not going to be transformed into the new by speeches, congresses, inquiries or even by leading articles. If it is to be transformed at all it will be by the steady patient work of all, by all, for "the spirit of the war without any of its cruelties."

DOING THINGS IN A BIG WAY.

The Canadian people have shown their aptitude for doing things in a big way in war as well as peace. Their war effort in proportion to their population has won the admiration of the whole world. Their generosity to the returned soldier in this epoch of reconstruction is unexampled in other lands. They have been able to do these things because they are not only an enthusiastic but a thoroughly business-like people. They have so managed their affairs that a splendid war effort in Europe has gone hand-in-hand with prosperity at home. The financial policies of the Government have resulted in a great expansion of Canadian trade which did not shrink to any serious extent after the advent of peace. But these policies would have been useless and abortive had the thrifty people of Canada not shown confidence in their country by vast subscriptions to popular loans. Canadians must continue to do things in a big way. They cannot say "We will quit now" any more than the owner of a great industry can afford to suddenly shut up shop. To enable Canada to carry on, the Victory Loan of 1919 must be subscribed on a large scale; and it is up to every Canadian who takes pride in his country to help the cause along with his cash, his enthusiasm and his optimism.

MY LOVE WORKS IN A GREENHOUSE.

In a quaint New England village,
On a drear October night,
A livery stable keeper met
A maid whose troth he'd plight.

Now he was tall and handsome
In a Denman Thompson way,
And she, Oh my! was quite a queen,
She was so tall yet gay!

The livery stable keeper
When he asked her for her hand,
Attempted to embrace her,
But for this she would not stand.

Why, Oh why, upon this manly breast
Will you not lay your head?
She looked into his whiskered face,
And this is what she said:

Chorus.
My love works in a greenhouse,
And there always is a smile
Of violets and geraniums
Upon his coat of mail.
Now, mind, I do not blame you,
Nor do I make complaint,
But a greenhouse has a fragrance
That a livery stable ain't.

AUTUMN.

[R. M. Freeman, in the Westminster Gazette.]

In spring time youth ereth,
In summer man sinneth,
And nothing he careth
Till autumn beginneth.

Gay pleasure's fruitions,
Which promised such gladness,
Bring now premonitions
Of darkness and sadness.

As lower and faster
The autumn sun sinketh,
Of coming disaster
The gloomy wretch thinketh.

The blue devils bound him,
The clouds gather o'er him;
Dead leaves fall around him,
Looms winter before him.

Then "future" is a black word,
And "past" is a sore word,
He shrinks to look backward;
He dare not look forward.

For Oh! in life's May-day
His ways must be sober
Who can face the grim pay-day
Of lowering October.

HIS USUAL LUCK.

[Boston Transcript.]

"Stranger, aren't you?" said the barber to Mark Twain, who had dropped in for a shave before going to the hall.

"First time I've been here."

"You chose a good time to come. Mark Twain is going to lecture here tonight. You'll go, I suppose?"

"Oh, I guess so."

"Bought your ticket?"

"Not yet."

"You'll have to stand, then, for everything's sold out."

"How very annoying!" said Mark, with mock irritation. "I never saw such luck. I always have to stand when that fellow lectures."

ADMIRAL SIMS ON THE NAVAL VICTORY.

[New York Outlook.]

"When Germany Was Winning the War" is the title that Admiral Sims gives to the first of his series of articles in the World's War. His picture of the danger in 1917 of the Allies losing the war through Germany's success in her submarine campaign is startling. In the next article he will, we assume, explain how that danger was averted. The part played in the victory at sea by the American destroyers was evidently of capital importance in view of the condition of things when America entered the war.

Admiral Sims went to England with the feeling that the sea power rested practically unchallenged in the hands of the Allies. But the British Admiralty gave him facts and figures which have kept secret. "These documents disclosed the astounding fact that Germany was winning the war, and winning it at a rate that meant the unconditional surrender of the British Empire in four or five months." Admiral Jellicoe told him that 603,000 tons of shipping, British and neutral, were sunk in March, and that the estimate for April was nearly 800,000 tons. Admiral Jellicoe in conclusion remarked: "It is impossible for us to go on with the war if losses like this continue." Members of the British cabinet threatened this view of the situation, and it was estimated that the limit of endurance would be reached by November 1, 1917. Admiral Sims quotes Mr. Balfour as saying to him later: "The submarines were constantly on my mind. I could think of nothing but the number of ships that they were sinking. At that time it certainly looked as though we were going to lose the war." Only Lloyd George was continuously optimistic and cheerful about the submarine situation.

The danger point lay in the fact that Great Britain must obtain food and raw material from abroad, and to this the increasing destruction of shipping was a terrible threat; it is said that in April, 1917, England had food enough on hand for only six or eight weeks. The submarines were not being destroyed faster than they were built. The public ideas on this subject were entirely erroneous. It was under these circumstances that Admiral Sims, in his dispatches to Washington, repeatedly sent such reports as the following: "The situation at the present is exceedingly grave. If sufficient United States ships can be thrown into the balance at the present critical time and place, there is little doubt that early success will be assured. Briefly stated, I consider that at the present moment we are losing the war. Ambassador Page and Mr. Balfour's dispatches of similar tenor; one of Mr. Page's urgent dispatches is described by Admiral Sims as one of the great documents of the war. All these messages urged that the United States should immediately send all its destroyers and other light craft to Queenstown. "The vital spot in the submarine campaign," says Admiral Sims: "The fact is that no nation was ever placed in so tactical a position as Great Britain in the spring and early summer of 1917. And I think that history records few spectacles more heroic than that of the British navy, fighting this hideous and cowardly form of warfare in half a dozen places with pitifully inadequate forces, but with an undiminished spirit that remained firm even against the fearful odds which I have described. What an opportunity for America!"

In the course of his article Admiral Sims corrects in some general misapprehensions about the German submarine methods. It is surprising to know that instead of "submarines in shoals," there were seldom more than eight or ten submarines operating in the very large field from the north of Ireland to Brest, never more than fifteen. The German could keep only ten or a dozen submarines out of each hundred they had actually at work in the open sea. Admiral Sims says that if instead of this they could have had fifty submarines constantly at work on the shipping routes in the winter and spring of 1917, nothing could have prevented Germany from sinking two or three million tons a month and winning the war. The German's boasted foresight and efficiency were at fault in not providing a really large number of submarines.

Another interesting statement is that the German unquestionably attacked hospital ships systematically for the purpose of forcing the Allies to avoid the hospital ships by forcing the Allies to avoid the number of destroyers hunting submarines. The British Admiralty, it appears, had wonderfully accurate information about the German submarines so far as knowing when they left the German ports, and in what waters they were cruising. Of course this did not mean that it was easy to catch the submarines, for their mobility was immense.

We are told that the belief that the U-boat had bases off the Irish and Spanish coasts was unfounded, and that the cruising period of a submarine did not depend, as most people supposed, upon its supplies of food and fuel, but on its supply of torpedoes.

It is evident from Admiral Sims' account that the one thing most needed to secure naval victory for the Allies was reinforcement in the matter of destroyers and submarine chasers. The British navy had a great many, but it was necessary all the while to use many of them with the Grand Fleet and to convoy hospital ships and trading vessels. It is a simple, definite fact that American aid in this direction was of such value as to turn the tide.

A Business Proposition for Farmers

WE want you to size up Delco-Light as you would a new farm hand before you hired him.

Will Delco-Light do a good day's work on the farm every day? Will it cost much to keep? Will it earn money for you? Will you get along pleasantly with it?

Over 75,000 Delco-Light users have answered these questions for themselves and for you.

Delco-Light gives them all the electric light and power they need.

As a result—

They do chores before daylight or after dark, because house and barns are well lighted.

They have stopped working small machines by hand—milk-making machine, churn, separator, grind-stone, washing machine, fanning mill, water-pump. They have running water wherever it is needed. They no longer hamper themselves with a lamp or lantern while working. There are no lamps to clean and fill. The ironing is done by electricity.

All this means time saved for every member of the farm family. It means more time spent at money-making work. On some farms it means doing away with hired help.

And the money now spent for coal oil will operate Delco-Light. Four times as much light from a gallon of coal oil is the record of Delco-Light over oil lamps. A few cents a day for all the electric light and power you can use.

Where there is a boy on the farm he looks after Delco-Light. A few minutes each week is all the attention it needs. Note these exclusive features of Delco-Light construction. They insure care-free, long-lasting service for you.

It is direct-connected. There are no belts to slip, break or be replaced.

It is self-cranking. Pressing down on a lever starts the engine and it stops automatically when the batteries are charged.

It is air-cooled. There is no water to carry, to freeze, or to boil away.

There is only one place to put oil. There are no grease cups.

A simple mixing valve regulates the fuel supply. There is no complicated carburetor.

Ball and roller bearings cut down friction and increase efficiency.

Thick-plate batteries are long lasting.

You can see that on every point Delco-Light is a good business proposition—that it pays for itself. It does a lot of work for you. It saves you time. It gives you time for money-making work. It costs little to operate. It is easy to look after.

BESIDE ALL THIS, Delco-Light gives you the wonderful comfort and pleasure of electric light in the home. Floods of clear, bright light at the pressing of a button. No matches; no danger. Lots of light. Pleasant evenings; happy mother and children. You can't know the untold benefits of electricity until you try it.

Delco-Light users know all these things. They have written us letters telling us. We quote from some of these letters. We have printed some of them in a little folder. Illustrated with photographs. We want you to get this book and read it. It will open your eyes to the possibilities for greater profit and greater comfort on the farm. Write your nearest distributor for a free copy.

(a) DELCO-LIGHT has made it possible for us to do without one man, whose wages and keep amounted to $50.00—he would cost us more now.

By operating the above mentioned appliances Mrs. Peck has been so relieved from her ordinary household duties that she is able to spend a great deal of her time helping to care for the milk, and we are now able to do all of our own work, which has solved the hired help problem for us, and securing help nowadays is the farmers' greatest problem.

(b) Delco-Light saves us every day about one hour doing the chores around the farm—this would mean for my son and I about 730 hours a year at 30c. per hour, which, figuring very low, about $219.00 saved.

(c) The time and labor saved every week over the old way is as follows:

Cream Separator...	6 hours
Washing Machine...	5 "
Flat-iron...	2 "
Pumping water...	6 "
Vacuum Cleaner...	4 "
Power Stand on Farm...	2 "
Mill and various things...	2 "
Total.....	25 " per week

(d) I save about 2 hours a week on the washing, and 7 hours a week on separating. It saves one man about 4 hours to clip my team. On churning it saves my wife 3 hours a week. It saves about 30 minutes on grinding our sausage per hundred pounds.

(e) We figure that it has saved us in way of labor for pumping and milking not less than $1,200.00 during the two years. The plant requires very little attention and only about $2.00 per month for fuel. We could almost afford to buy a new one each year and still be ahead on labor and satisfaction, aside from the advantages of having the lights, of which we have 50 in the house and barns.

(f) I light my residence, a house of fourteen rooms and one of five, my garage, two barns and a workshop. I operate an automatic water pump, maintaining a pressure of 40 pounds for the entire water supply of the place, including hose for watering the garden. We have a 4-horse power Delco-Light Power Stand, which is used for churning and working the butter, turning the grindstone and running the washing machine. I expect to attach it later to the cream separator.

(g) This plant is paying for itself in several different ways. The fuel saving alone amounts to about $460.00 per year, as follows:

Where we formerly used 55 gallons of gasoline per week, at 25c. per gallon ($13.75) to operate the milking machine and pump alone, we now use 35 gallons of kerosene per week at 14c. per gallon ($4.90), which is a net saving of $8.85 per week, or $460.20 per year.

Also, in addition to this, we are lighting four houses, horse barn and cow barn and doing the washing and ironing.

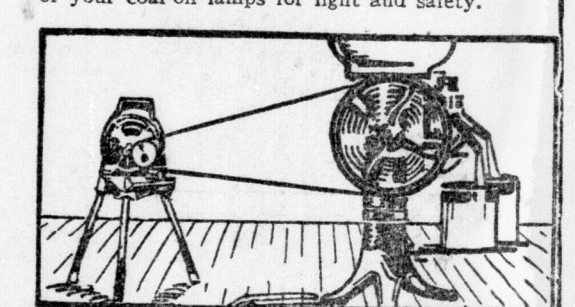

Another instance of saving is that we save the time of one man (4 hours a day) handling lanterns alone in our cow barn. We figure this a saving of 30c. per hour, making $1.20 per day, $36.00 per month, or $432.00 per year.

(h) "I consider my purchase of a Delco-Light plant one of the best improvements I have made on my farm."

DUNCAN MARSHALL,
Minister of Agriculture, Alberta, Canada

(i) The plant has not given us a bit of trouble, there had been no repairs to date and the operating cost has been less than $2.00 per month.

(j) Any child can run it and it beats any of your coal-oil lamps for light and safety.

Before acquiring a Delco-Light I could not rest good at night for fear of children lighting a match and thereby possibly setting fire to something. Now I sleep like a log because all that is necessary for the children to do is to press the button and the light is there, and a most excellent light at that. It is much cheaper than Coal-oil and no danger of upsetting a lamp.

Gown for the Young Girl

Happy Devices of Color and Line For the "Jeune Fille" of Today, With Interesting Suggestions On Combination Effects.

By Mme. Frances, Famous Creator of Fashions, New York City.

She who holds within her soul the golden gift of youth, the clear-eyed courage that looks upon life, with lips that thrill to drink it at its full, should be dressed to dramatize this youth, this charm, which the eyes of age regard so wistfully, prayerfully wishing that the radiance might not be dimmed.

Youth should be dressed to emphasize the loveliness of youth. Type and coloring count for much, but youth is youth whether blonde or brunette and a young girl's clothes should feature this idea of youth. How many, many times girls dress too old. Elaboration is not for youth. That may follow with sophistication, but "la jeune fille" should, above all things, recognize the value of simplicity—simplicity of line and trimming. Colors may be dark or light—dark blue or brown may be as youthful as clear or pink. It is the line that counts in dressing the buoyancy of youth.

Pink is Youth's Own.

Youth answers to colors—the vivid shades—and pink is youth's very, very own. Fresh complexion and an answering note in the rosy reflection of pink—pink of almost any shade. Light blue, mauve, yellow and orange are effective backgrounds for youthful loveliness, and horizon and old blue are ideal for the youthful blonde or brunette. For sports wear, the brilliant shades of orange and cerise; turquoise and the darker grey a blue are good.

Silver and gold trimmings and elaborate brocades, however lovely these fabrics may be, are not generally suitable for the young girl, with the exception of silver wrought with white, which is extremely effective on a debutante, particularly if she is a blonde. The silver must not, however, overwhelm her. It should be used with discretion. It may be employed in the form of sheer lace wrought with silver or as bandings of silver on net, and in silver ribbon girades and sashes.

Bits of Lace.

Mauve is a lovely color for a girl and pale orchid, especially in taffeta or charmeuse, is exquisitely charming. Bits of old lace may be employed on the young girl's costume, garnished with bows of old blue ribbon and dainty pastel flowers. A gown of pale pink taffeta or chiffon may carry a pinnafore of silver lace, garnished with ribbons in shades of turquoise and green, with flowers in mauve and pale yellow.

All the pastel tones belong to youth for afternoon and evening wear. For the street there is nothing so lovely on a young blonde as grey. She will appear more striking in black and never more paintable than in black velvet. The darker tones of brown, wood and seal are ideal street shades for the youthful blonde or brunette—and navy blue, of course.

Black Velvet Suit.

For the morning and general wear I suggest a charming little black velvet suit. The skirt may carry a jumper of velvet and make this a three-piece suit, solving the problem of a velvet dress with wrap to match. The skirt is plain, but for a few gathers at the waist. The short jacket flares at the sides and carries a bit at the back in a line that swings loosely from the shoulder. It is lined with ivory white charmeuse satin. Two bound buttonholes with a touch of velvet running through and falling on either side of the front offers the characteristic trimming of this suit, whose sheer vest is white georgette and velvet. The small round collar and turned-back cuffs are also val and georgette.

The lingerie collar is almost a necessity on a young girl's frock until she has graduated into womanhood, and even then there is nothing more lovely than sheer French mullie in that pale ivory tone, combined with val, lace or a bit of fine Irish crochet. This blouse, the collars and cuffs would be lovely. The sleeves of this suit are three-quarter length, reaching just below the elbow. White suede or lace kid gloves wrinkled in a la mousquetaire are worn with this suit.

Grey Velvet.

In an afternoon gown of grey velvet combined with white charmeuse youth

Advices People to Cure Constipation Without Drugs; Suffered Ten Years, Well in Three Weeks by Internal Bathing.

Did you ever hear of a person being cured of chronic constipation with drugs? They relieve at the time some, but larger doses are usually necessary from time to time. Nature's own just pure sterilized water, administered with the J. B. L. Cascade, is the only scientific and permanent treatment. Don't force Nature with drugs. Bathe internally.

Mrs. A. McLeod, Middleboro, B. C., writes: "For ten years I suffered from constipation, and for the last year I became a wreck. I had awful pains in my back, severe headaches, indigestion and swollen limbs. I tried all kinds of medicine and many doctors without permanent benefit. It was an act of Providence that I saw the J. B. L. Cascade advertised. The first time I used it I felt relieved, and in three weeks I was completely cured. My habits are now quite regular, and I am in better health than I have been for years. I am very thankful to be doing my own work again."

The J. B. L. Cascade is the perfect invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York for internal bathing. It is now being shown and explained at Standard Drug Company, Limited.

HOLIDAYS ALWAYS COINCIDED WITH THE BUSIEST FARM DAYS

Elsbeth Wilson Recounts Happy Times Spent On Farm.

It was ever a marvel to us as children that farm tasks could be so arranged as to invariably fit into days appointed as holidays, and to hours before and after school. Time must be found to turn the cows to pasture in the morning before departure for school, and for gathering them into the milking yard after hours.

Strange, too, that potato planting invariably fell upon the days when teachers met in spring convention, and were lifted during the fall session.

Holidays Were Workdays.

Stray ticks, upon which many of the family slept, were due for repelling each forkful flung from the wagon, less a weary and throats a-thirst.

Later came sheaf harvest, when we again tramped the sheaves with many a tumble off the slippery straw, and repeated peeps from the mow's side in an effort to discern a trace of bare back. The wagon being empty, we scampered for fresh water, our pinafores filled with yellow harvest apples from the tree behind the milk house.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

Master and Man.

Dear Miss Grey,—Could any of your readers supply me with the old dialogue, "Master and Man"? It starts this way:

"Oh, Master, you are not going to turn me away."

"I've been a good workman to you; I'm honest, you know, and why on I've done all the workman can do."

If you would oblige, I thank you, JOEY.

Ans.—Joey's request is passed along to readers. I hope someone may supply the dialogue or tell Joey where he might get it.

He's Home!

Dear Cynthia,—Well, it's happened at last! He's home. And, oh, the hurry and scurry he caused. He came the day before Thanksgiving—so appropriate—and we certainly had some celebration this year. "Oh, golly! You'll be wondering who on earth I'm talking about! My soldier brother, of course! (A very exclamatory letter, this.) No, I have not baked that rhubarb pudding yet. You see, he says he can eat any "dope" I can put before him, so I'm trying experiments, and shall leave the rhubarb for another time. One thing the army does, is make our men appreciative of home cooking, even at its worst. Soldier brother, on hearing of my "potato-bug salad" and "lady-bug spinach," says that's nothing for people to get excited over. Any soldier would over-job is great advertising for Belmont on the other side of the water. He has many business interests in England, being chairman of the Jockey Club here makes the English think he is a great sportsman—and that gives Belmont personal publicity—and the same thing for his firm. In other words, Belmont is holding onto his Jockey Club job just to impress Britons.

Slickers Bolder.
Belmont has endured in his present job since racing was revived in New York parts. And for several years he ruled without a questioning of his authority or methods. But along in 1918 the "race track slickers," noticing that no one was really bossing affairs, began to execute some quaint tricks. Through the months since then they have become emboldened because few ever were punished. And in 1919 conditions became such that they could hardly be worse.

The result is that racing has slipped in New York State from a one-time clean and lofty plane into the muck of ridicule and obvious dishonesty to a place where "anything goes" to a state where evil days have come and will stay, to the utter ruin of the sport, unless Belmont gets busy in a hurry—or until Belmont is "tired" from his job, and a competent man is put in his place.

HEAVY TRACK AND BAD STARTING MAR ROCKPORT CARD

The Ace Roms in Long Favorite in 2:13 Trot—Three Events Finished.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 24.—Batting on a star track, drivers at Rockport track harness races this afternoon went through some tough sessions, with a few long shots coming across to partly appease a public that was far from satisfied over the way a few events were handled.

Several protests were lodged with the judges by drivers, who declared they were not given the right kind of treatment in the starts, but their walls were to no avail. Alice W., for instance, was thrown of the third event, the 2:12 pace, after she had been declared distanced in the second heat. A stableman was repairing a bit of harness when the start was made. She crossed the starter's line when the rest of the field had reached the first turn. Driver Hedrick was furious, but his protest fell on deaf ears. Several other starts were bad, but the bad condition of the course and the tendency of drivers to make work hard for the starter were partly to blame. The heat in which Alice W. was distanced was a very hard one to start. Horses scored ten or more times before Starter Briggs had them to his liking.

Three events on the card were finished and one held over from the previous day was disposed of when The Ace, a long favorite, trotted in a winner by a length from Borax, which had won one heat in the 2:13 trot. 2:13 Trot, Purse $400 (Carried Over From Thursday).

GALT MAY GET DICK CARROL TO COACH THEIR O. H. A. TEAM
GALT, Oct. 24.—Representatives of the G.A.A. while in Toronto interviewed Dick Carroll, the famous hockey coach, last year with Denials, and made him an offer to come here and coach the local intermediate and junior teams on six-man play. He gave no definite reply, but the local management is hopeful of securing his services.

IS IMPROVING LOCALS PRIMED FOR WIN OVER SARNIA CREW

Coach Reid's Huskies Are Confident of Turning Trick With Borderers, Though Strenuous Time Is Expected.

Coach Reid's Intermediate O. R. F. U. squad journeyed to Sarnia today to take on the Imperials of the border town, and one of the hardest games they are liable to run into this season.

The London crew are going down full of confidence that they will be able to take a fall out of Jack Newton's Pets, and on the form they have been displaying during the last week's workouts, and with a lot of new additions to the line-up, they should succeed in just doing that. At the same time, there is no undue confidence in the London camp. They realize that in view of the fact that the Sarnians took the Petroses Hard O into tow without much apparent trouble, the former must be a vastly improved aggregation over the team which opened the local season here with them three weeks ago.

The locals indulged in a strenuous workout last night, and put all kinds of vim into the proceedings. After going through some formation and signal drills by themselves, they took on the Western "U" crew for line practice and found just the right amount of opposition to strengthen their tactics. The exact line-up has not been definitely decided, but there will be three or four chances for the London line. Cavellish, the new wing, will be in action tomorrow, and Johnny Rose will make the journey with the team, and will do a part of the kicking. Petroses officials will officiate.

TORONTO G. A. C. WILL STAGE BOXING BOUTS HERE NEXT MONTH
Boxing bouts are to be held in the armories on Nov. 29 by the Grand Army of Canada, one headquarters of the society, which is located in Toronto, is to take full charge on behalf of the local lodge, and will arrange all the details of the card. No announcement has been made yet as to who will take part.

The announcement was made last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Grand Army, held in their club rooms on Richmond street. J. Yeo, president of the organization, acted as chairman.

Cossacks Favor a Federation Similar To That of U. S.
EKATERINODAR, Russia, Oct. 24.—By courier to "Russia" Sept. 16.—The presidents of the three Cossack states of Terek, Kuban and the Don gave a meeting to the American representatives brought into the Caucasus three train loads of 103 freight cars in all, of American goods consigned to the Red Cross. Each of the three presidents referred to Russia's ambition to become a federation of states patterned after the American union. "The United States of Russia" was a favorite toast. The territory of the Cossacks, particularly the remote regions among the mountains, have been shut off from the world market for the past three years by the Turks on the one side and the Bolsheviks on the other.

Western U. and O.A.C. Clash Today Will Be Hard One

Aggies Are Heavy Outfit and Will Give Locals Real Argument at Tecumseh Park This Afternoon—Coach Brock's Line-Up Sees Few Changes.

Western U. clash with Guelph Aggies this afternoon at Tecumseh Park promises a real interesting battle, and will be a crucial test for the local Collegians as a preliminary to their first game next Saturday in the Intermediate Intercollegiate series.

According to reports from the Royal City, the farmers are bringing all they have up here for this afternoon's fray, and they admit themselves that's quite a bit. Honest opinion has it that O. A. C. should really have applied for intermediate grouping this year, but apparently the junior series is more to their liking for the present. If rating was given according to weight, they say the Aggies would be in a series all by themselves.

Western U. have quite a bit of weight to back them up, and they are distributed through the outfit, and if the Aggies are reasonably weighty, Brock's crew will be getting just the sort of preliminary canter they need. In the St. Mike's game, the then inexperienced locals failed to make use of their weight, and when they attempted to pursue that end, fell down lamentably at times. At other times they showed unexpected flashes of knowledge of weight carrying. At St. Thomas, Wednesday, open play was resorted to largely, and the variety improved their style in that direction during that game even if they didn't improve the look of the final score.

Last night the Western crew staged a final workout, and were full of pep. After an hour's good signal drill, they were lined up against the Intermediates, and both teams tried out their own bucking tactics with immeasurable benefit to both teams. The line-up for today's game sees very few changes. Cline will probably alternate his directing between flying wing and quarter. The line-up:

RACING GAME IN NEW YORK BACKSLIDES TO EXTINCTION
Under Belmont's Lackadaisical Control, Game Again Subject of Open Scandal That May Mean Race Banishment a Year, and For Good If Things Not Cleaned Up.

(Written for The Advertiser by Frank G. Menke.)
August Belmont has become a target of probably the most violent attack ever aimed at a racing executive. And cries for his removal are shattering the quiet of the Empire State zone.

Racing around Gotham has fallen in to evil ways again—and Belmont seems to have done nothing to rectify matters. As long as he doesn't act no one can act—and all the while the long-suffering racing public suffers only the more.

And, if Belmont and his lackadaisical associates continue to fail to take action to purify the game, there's the likelihood that once again racing will be legislated out of New York—for all time.

Just about everything nauseating that could happen on a race course has happened around Gotham parts all through the 1919 season. Incompetent judging of races has been the rule, rather than the exception—but Belmont and the other high morals of racing have permitted the officials to remain in the stand—to the detriment of the sport.

The practice of stuffing sponges into noses of horses that certain clauses did not want to be victors in a race became comparatively common. For months there has been charges that horses were "doped." Weld and queer riders by jockeys became of almost daily occurrence. Western U. and O.A.C. Clash Today Will Be Hard One

Aggies Are Heavy Outfit and Will Give Locals Real Argument at Tecumseh Park This Afternoon—Coach Brock's Line-Up Sees Few Changes.

Western U. clash with Guelph Aggies this afternoon at Tecumseh Park promises a real interesting battle, and will be a crucial test for the local Collegians as a preliminary to their first game next Saturday in the Intermediate Intercollegiate series.

According to reports from the Royal City, the farmers are bringing all they have up here for this afternoon's fray, and they admit themselves that's quite a bit. Honest opinion has it that O. A. C. should really have applied for intermediate grouping this year, but apparently the junior series is more to their liking for the present. If rating was given according to weight, they say the Aggies would be in a series all by themselves.

Western U. have quite a bit of weight to back them up, and they are distributed through the outfit, and if the Aggies are reasonably weighty, Brock's crew will be getting just the sort of preliminary canter they need. In the St. Mike's game, the then inexperienced locals failed to make use of their weight, and when they attempted to pursue that end, fell down lamentably at times. At other times they showed unexpected flashes of knowledge of weight carrying. At St. Thomas, Wednesday, open play was resorted to largely, and the variety improved their style in that direction during that game even if they didn't improve the look of the final score.

Last night the Western crew staged a final workout, and were full of pep. After an hour's good signal drill, they were lined up against the Intermediates, and both teams tried out their own bucking tactics with immeasurable benefit to both teams. The line-up for today's game sees very few changes. Cline will probably alternate his directing between flying wing and quarter. The line-up:

RACING GAME IN NEW YORK BACKSLIDES TO EXTINCTION
Under Belmont's Lackadaisical Control, Game Again Subject of Open Scandal That May Mean Race Banishment a Year, and For Good If Things Not Cleaned Up.

SAYS FARMER AND LABOR MEMBERS TO FORM GOVERNMENT

Brantford U. F. O. Nominee States Effort To Be Made.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 24.—W. C. Good, U. F. O. nominee in North Brant for the Dominion House, declared here today that farmer candidates would be secured for the Dominion contest whenever it came, in practically every province of the Dominion including Nova Scotia, where an organization was being completed.

Mr. Good stated in reference to the situation in Ontario that the U. F. O. with Labor would carry on the government, and probably attract sufficient members from the old line parties to secure a working majority.

BIG INDUSTRIAL FIGHT FORECAST BY LABOR MOVE

Heads of 112 International Unions Will Meet to Discuss Crisis.

SEEK CANADIANS' HELP

And Ask Co-operation of Railroad Brotherhoods and Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—What may prove one of the greatest industrial battles in history was believed by some observers here to be forecast by the announcement today of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, that a conference of the heads of the 112 international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will be held in "the near future" to discuss present and pending disputes.

Co-operation of the four big railway brotherhoods and the farmers of the country, as well as the labor organizations of Canada, probably would be sought, it was stated, in furthering whatever program the union chiefs decided upon.

Mr. Gompers' announcement was contained in a telegram to the Illinois Federation of Labor. His message was in reply to one in which the Illinois organization asked that a special convention of the American Federation of Labor be called to perfect an alliance of the international unions of the United States and Canada and the railroad brotherhoods and farmers effectively to fight out the life and death struggle of the workers now in progress.

Federation Farmers' Aid.

Federation officials also pointed out that the Illinois branch proposed that the aid of the farmers be enlisted and that assessments aggregating one-fourth of the net earnings of organized workers be made "until the objects of this drive be accomplished."

Decision to issue a call for a meeting of the international union chiefs was reached by the federation's executive council Tuesday night, but the announcement was withheld. At that time labor officials had become convinced that the national industrial conference would be unable to reach any basis for the establishment of industrial peace.

It was on the following day that Mr. Gompers, in withdrawing organized labor representatives from the conference, warned employers a group that when they met in conference again with the spokesmen for union labor they would be glad to talk of collective bargaining.

Federation officials today declined to go into details regarding the coming conference. They said subjects to be discussed would rest with the union chiefs themselves. Dr. for the meeting had not been determined.

BRITISH GOVT. WILL ASK HOUSE TO RECONSIDER

Adverse Vote On Aliens Bill Amendment Affects France.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Political experts and the editorial utterances in the papers this morning generally express the view that no one expects the Government to resign as a result of the adverse vote in the House of Commons yesterday, and that the circumstances of the defeat of the pilot amendment in no wise need entail such a step. The incident, however, is regarded on all sides as one which has given the administration a severe shock, a repitition of which it could hardly survive.

The vote is generally described as an assertion of the independence of the House of Commons and revolt against the alleged dictation of ministers—a determination to reassert the supremacy which the Commons surrendered to the cabinet during the war.

More than one hundred supporters of the coalition, among whom Sir Edward Carson was conspicuous, voted against the Government. These represented the intense anti-alien feeling prevailing among the Conservatives, and the fear that the Government was trying in the present stage of the bill to annul amendments which those hostile to aliens secured in committee stage.

Some surprise is expressed that the Labor members and the so-called Free Liberals joined in the vote against the Government on this issue, thereby identifying themselves with the anti-principles of their leaders.

Ask Reconsideration.

It is believed in some quarters that the Government on Monday will ask the House to reconsider the vote, and regarded as possible that the House may comply. These circumstances between the convention entered into between Great Britain and France in 1913, in which it was agreed that French pilots might bring French ships into certain English ports, and that English pilots should be granted a reciprocal privilege in French ports. It is contended that unless the House of Commons revises yesterday's vote the Government will be compelled to denounce the convention and incur the reproach of treating the compact as a "scrap of paper."

To this the anti-alien reply is secretly, and that information about it was only dragged from a reluctant government during yesterday's debate.

Dissatisfaction is also expressed at the way in which Edward Shortt, home secretary, handled the bill in the Commons, strengthening the belief that he will probably resign.

Supervision of All Racing in Canada

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Hearty endorsement of the proposal to have government supervision of all horse racing with the government taking charge of all proceeds over fair profits and devoting it to the improvement of horse breeding in the province, was given at the session of the racing inquiry held in the city hall yesterday. This fact, on which practically all the witnesses were unanimous, and the announcement by Rev. A. E. Roberts of the Social Service Council that the council was not opposed to individuals making private bets on horse races, but was strongly opposed to any form of legalized betting, were the chief features of the two sessions. A considerable number of witnesses gave evidence.

London Official Takes Exception to Their Opposition to Stevenson.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Some of the labor councils are in for a season of contention if a circular letter from John Corbett, secretary of the Independent Labor party of London, Ont., resolves the notice Mr. Corbett evidently desires. In it he takes strong exception to the opposition shown to election of the labor candidate, date who defeated Sir Adam Beck, by a number of well-known labor leaders who appeared on Sir Adam's platform, and he says they "must be brought to book, that labor may know on which side of the fence they stand."

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

Go Down the Hill of Life in Comfort.

Physicians are full of warning to men and women who are just turning forty. At forty, they say, many ailments which have lain dormant, become active. Kidney and Bladder troubles show themselves, and much care is advised.

The best care that can be given is in providing oneself with Gin Pills and taking them at the first sign of pain in the back or across the groins, or when dizziness, constant headaches, swollen joints, rheumatism, sciatica or gravel bring suffering or discomfort.

taken in time, will prevent serious complications. They strengthen weakened kidneys, relieve congestion, soothe inflammation, and help the vital organs to purify the blood so that the poisons, uric acid and waste are duly eliminated.

Gin Pills contain no alcohol and no ingredient that could harm the health in the slightest way. Their great principle is derived from the Juniper Berry, which made Gin an old-time remedy for kidney trouble. Seven other highly effective diuretics and antiseptics are combined, and the result is a Pill that is, we believe, the best ever prepared for allaying the pain caused by deranged kidneys, and restoring the organs to proper activity. They are particularly useful in the treatment of stone or gravel in the bladder so that they may be passed, thus avoiding painful operations.

Thousands of voluntary testimonials from all parts of Canada are continually pouring into our office, showing in a most practical way the proved excellence of these wonderful Pills.

Get Gin Pills from your druggist or dealer, who sells them at 50c. a box, under money-back guarantee. Send for free samples, addressing:—

COMING.

Tom Moore in "Lord and Lady Algy."

Geraldine Farrar's new picture, "The World and Its Woman," shown at the Majestic Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by Thompson Buchanan, is the biggest production in point of setting, story and emotional content in which she has yet appeared.

For the picturization of this tremendous story, Goldwyn has surrounded Miss Farrar with as fine a cast as it was possible to obtain.

Her husband, Lou Tellegen, plays the leading male role.

Frank Lloyd, who ranks among the best directors in the profession, was chosen to guide the production.

Moreover, the expenditure of thousands of dollars for the erection of single scenes evidences the care and elaborateness with which the picture was made.

Specialists on Russia were engaged to assist Hugo Ballin, the art director, in designing the massive settings in which the picture abounds.

The result is perfect fidelity in locale, in costume and in spirit.

The story of "The World and Its Woman" deals with the rise of an American girl in Russia from a position of obscurity as the daughter of an American engineer, to the enviable role of the greatest prima donna of the Petrograd Opera.

During her rise, which is consummated just before the revolution which overthrew the Russian dynasty of the Romanoffs, the customs of the aristocracy, their indolent and pleasure-seeking lives, their intrigues and their sports are all set forth in dramatic form.

Among the big moments of the picture is a scene where the great hordes of Russia's oppressed people storm the palaces and the aristocrats, pillaging, looting, burning, destroying all the symbols of that former barbaric life of indulgence and pleasure.

The scene on the streets of Petrograd, where the mad mob tears the city to pieces in their frenzy of freedom, the capture of Prince Michael by the revolutionists, and his dramatic escape from the deserted castle on the Volga; the death struggle between the great prince and the Bolshevik leader; the thrilling dash to safety through the lines of the Reds, out and away from mad Russia to the safety of the new world to start life anew.

It is a massive, spectacular and thrilling picture.

Among the extra attractions will be a Lloyd comedy, a news film devoted exclusively to Canadian news, scenes of the prince's tour of Canada, and a very interesting Chester Outing Picture.

Sung by 7 YEAR OLD CAMPBELL NEUN,

THE BOY WONDER

The Famous Boy Soprano who sang before the Prince. To appear at the Majestic all next week.

for fall and winter wear. So great was the attendance of ladies yesterday, and so greatly were they delighted, that those who wish to see this novelty entertainment are advised to come as early as possible this afternoon or evening. Let the children come this afternoon, as they can be admitted without a guardian or parents at the Majestic any day that school is closed.

"The Witness for the Defence," starring Elsie Ferguson and Warner Oland, which is the feature film attraction on this program, is a tale of the jungles of India, of the mysterious East, of big game hunting, and a crime which was the occasion in the Indian law courts. Superb scenes, magnificent settings of Indian palaces and English country homes, mark this picture as an epic in artistic screen productions.

Mac Sennett's newest comedy, "Uncle Tom Without the Cabin," an added attraction, is one of the best that this famous farceur has as yet issued from his studios.

MADGE KENNEDY IN HER NEW PHOTOCOMEDY, "LEAVE IT TO SUSAN"

The beauty and mystery of the desert at night are exquisitely represented in Madge Kennedy's new picture, "Leave It to Susan," which comes to the Majestic on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next week. The photoplay is a comedy, as might be supposed, but much of its action borders on the dramatic. All of it is beautiful photographically, the desert episode in particular. The significance of this part of the story is explained when it is known that Madge Kennedy is the heroine.

Susan Burbridge, leaves a transcontinental train to wander over the desert until long after sunset, and finally seeks refuge in a shack, which later turns out to be the hiding place of a band of desperadoes. There the story develops by leaps and bounds.

The desert is no counterfeit expanse of sand and stone, but is seen in all its vastness and detail. Miss Kennedy and her company journeyed from the California studies to the little town of Stewartville in the same state. From there they drove out every day to the Mojave Desert and photographed the scenes, waiting on several occasions for twilight to set in that the effect of real darkness might be seen on the screen.

All manner of amusing incidents occurred during their stay. Once when walking from one point to another with Wallace MacDonald, her leading man, a large snake crossed Miss Kennedy's path and passed. Wallace MacDonald was for making away with the reptile with a stone, but the star would not permit him. "Wait," she said; "Just watch me try a bit of mental suggestion on him." Accordingly, without a trace of fear she began her cajoling. "Don't you know, Mr. Snake, that Mr. MacDonald has a large stone and will kill you if you don't watch out? Then you won't have any home to go to, and the children will surely miss you."

According to the story, the snake ambled across the path and disappeared in the sagebrush. Miss Kennedy takes no credit to herself, contenting herself merely with having a life to her credit.

The owl in "Leave It to Susan," whose hoot can almost be heard on the screen, interfered not at all with the production, because when he emitted his customary nocturnal cry he was doing precisely what Director Clarence G. Badger wished. As for the scampering prairie dog, without whom there couldn't have been any "Leave It to Susan," he too followed his natural bent and earned a salary, which Director Badger would have been all too glad to pay him.

Among the extra attractions will be a number of scenes of the prince's tour of Canada, a William Fox comedy, "The Naughty Wife," and many interesting travel and scenic pictures.

COMING WEEK, NOVEMBER 3—D. W. Griffith's masterpiece, "Broken Blossoms."

COMING WEEK, NOVEMBER 10—Nazimova in "The Red Lantern."

Jack Pickford has a role that fits him to perfection in the screamingly funny rural comedy, "In Wrong," which will be the attraction at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. He is seen as a clerk and delivery boy for a grocery store in a village described in one of the subtleties as being so sleepy that they had to give up ringing the curfew there at 9 o'clock at night, because it woke everybody up.

But Johnny Gillins—that is our youthful hero's name—is the centre of action aplenty when he starts out to win the love of the prettiest girl in town and to make himself the big fellow of the community. Poor Johnny, he gets "in wrong," right and left. Thwarted in both love and ambition he is almost driven to beat up his faithful dog for making friends with his hated city rival. Meanwhile village life proceeds as usual with its ice cream social and banquet, and so on. The village characters are wonderfully well portrayed, and it is laugh, laugh all the way through, with real humor thoroughly mixed with incidents of appealing romance.

"QUEEN ZEPHRA" AT THE GRAND TWICE TODAY.

"Queen Zephra" will be presented at the Grand again today, matinee at 2:30 and evening 8:30. It is needless to say this production is the most entertaining and gorgeous ever attempted by local talent. Capacity audiences at the two opening performances were delighted with the offering, and highly recommend the attraction to theatre-goers who are seeking something out of the ordinary in theatrical entertainment.

AEROPLANE GIRLS IN FEATURE ACT, GRAND BILL FOR MON., TUES., WED.

The Grand management, have arranged another attractive vaudeville program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Containing a wealth of variety and talent. Headline honors go to the Aeroplane Girls, who will present an up-to-the-minute sensation in which they introduce singing, dancing and serial novelties.

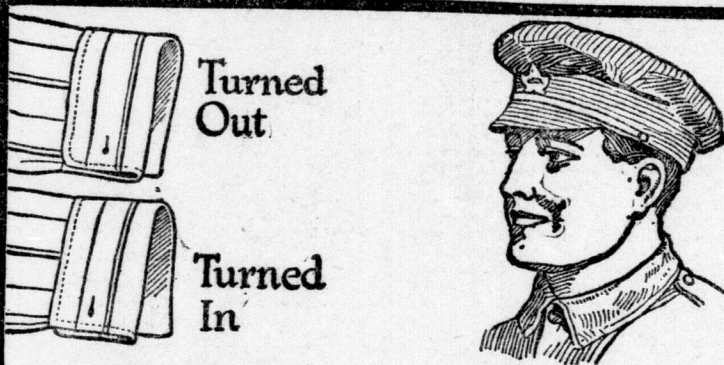

Billy Rogers, the inimitable musical mimic, will be another feature. Rogers is said to be the only individual possessing the ability to present exact reproductions of the tones of almost every musical instrument. He is also the possessor of a fine baritone voice which he uses to great advantage in several well-selected numbers.

A comedy sketch that is brimful of humor is that offered by John R. Gordon and Company. The lines are bright and the comedy clean and whole.

Returned Men!

This is NEW. Invented While You Were Overseas

Clever, isn't it? No one thought it possible to design a cuff that would fold as neat and flat when turned in as when turned out.

But it has been done.

Now when the cuff of your W. G. & R. shirt gets soiled, you turn the other side of the Double Wear Cuff. This enables a man to wear his shirt twice as long before sending it to the laundry. It cuts your laundry bills on shirts clean in two.

It adds months to the life of your shirt, because everyone knows that laundering a shirt is harder on it than wearing it.

And remember!—These shirts cost no more than good shirts should.

"BRINGING UP FATHER IN SOCIETY" THUR., FRI., SAT.

An attraction sure to be discussed, enjoyed and remembered is underlined to hold the boards at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, 8:15, and Saturday matinee, 2:30.

The new piece is called "Bringing Up Father in Society," and based on the famous comics of George McManus. As usual Gus Hill will present the offering. This season the noted Jiggs Mahoney, as "Father" is familiarly known, will be surrounded by all his friends—the favorites we have long ago learned to love and anticipate. And for the occasion they will appear in a series of typical adventures, complications and situations in which the social aspirations of "Mother" (Jiggs' better half) receive a decided jolt, of course, for the time being Jiggs is made the "goat." But like the proverbial worm he has a chance to turn, and he does. Naturally all is done for the purpose of creating laughter, which mission is ably fulfilled. Seats on sale Tuesday.

Week-Old Corns Should Be Unthinkable

These positive facts are now known to millions. The pain of a corn can be instantly stopped, and forever.

The corn itself can be ended completely, and usually in two days. The method is scientific. It consists of attaching a Blue-jay plaster, forgetting the corn, and letting things take their course.

The results have been proved by experience.

They have been proved to so many people that corns are now comparatively uncommon. Corn aches are needless. Paring corns is folly. Old-time harsh and messy treatments have no place today.

You will know these facts, and quickly, if you'll try a Blue-jay on one corn. Do it tonight, and the whole corn question will settle itself forever.

PICTURES IN ADS

A Series of Articles on the "Advantages of Morning Shopping" by
P. W. READ
(Advertising Manager of the Thomas Furniture Company)
Exclusively for The Advertiser.

I wonder, wonder, sometimes—if some illustrations are not injurious to necessary confidence in advertising.

Are't they swell, though? They say so much without saying anything. Nevertheless, the picture that does not nearly represent what's advertised is a mighty poor talker and oftentimes is shown up as a blatant pretentiousness. Quite a study, this business of advertising in general and illustrations in particular.

P. W. READ.

Right here is where the Canadian merchant is "caught on the hip"—little or no co-operation from the manufacturer, the making of cuts costly, the making of a luxury, coupled with the lack of knowledge in ordering art work done.

Along come American firms with bundles of syndicated illustrations (30 or 40) at about the same figure as the cost of making one. A whole lot of them are fine, but, on the other hand, they are made principally from American designs. Considering the fact that people "read" pictures they defeat their own purpose. Cuts are used of living-room furniture, but none of the furniture that the Canadian furniture manufacturer never dreamed of making. By their use the advertiser often unconsciously misrepresents.

Newspapers have an abundance of such illustrations. Not knowing all the problems of the retailer their representatives sometimes suggest "this is the cut for you," when it is not the cut.

All ladies are nice to look at (of course), but none could hope to compare with the lovely creatures that used to be featured in advertising setting forth the "new fall styles." Inwardly knowing that it was hopeless, she was filled with apprehension; recognizing the doubt the artist of today now shows the bonnet pulled down over the eyes, letting us see only the nose. Now, "I'm just as good, or better, looking than the picture"—to herself—and goes on in happy content.

Advertising agencies, with their superior knowledge, are doing much to turn the manufacturer over—a battering ram would be better. Not only are they helping in the matter of illustrations—better layouts, copy, window displays and so on.

Illustrations that "get the idea over in a hurry" are the most valuable. You remember the advertising for a new auto spring—"Irons out all roads"—and the one running now showing the front and rear of a car, with the words "Can't make a mistake as to what they mean, can you?"

Never can a mistake be made in advertising "on sale at 9 o'clock tomorrow" if you know if you want one of those articles it's up to you to get there by that hour.

Next week I'll tell you what, when, where, when and how to advertise. The latter is a very intricate point, but I'll try, I'll try.

WHAT PARTY WILL FORM OPPOSITION IN THE ONTARIO HOUSE?
Involves Question of Leader's Salary.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS
U. F. O. Committee Appointed To Prepare "Slate" Remains Silent.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Nothing sensational developed today in the political situation in regard to the coming Government. The United Farmers committee, which has in hand the preparation of a "slate" for consideration by the U. F. O., has not yet returned to Toronto next Wednesday, spent a good part of today in for home without making an announcement whatever.

Again today the name of E. C. Drury was the most frequently spoken name as that of the next premier of the farmers' committee, was heard from on the question. It is understood that by next Wednesday the selection of a leader for the U. F. O. will have been made, and it is expected that the lieutenant-governor will appoint a government.

Pending the decision of the U. F. O., the other parties in the new legislature are doing little more than marking time. The Liberal members held a caucus today, but gave out no statement. A caucus will be held tomorrow morning, when a statement may be forthcoming as to what the Liberals intend to do. The defeated Liberal Government is simply awaiting developments, quietly regarding the U. F. O. The cabinet met this afternoon for a short time and attended to some routine matters.

Who Are Oppositors. Just now the question of which party is to be the recognized Opposition in the House is said to be giving Liberals and Conservatives some concern. The Opposition, with H. Hartley Dewar, K.C., leader. However, there are those who claim that the Conservatives, having so recently been in power, should form the Opposition in the House, in which case Hon. G. H. Ferguson, minister of lands, forests and mines, would probably be the Conservative leader.

The question as to which leader should receive the Opposition leader's salary looms up somewhat perplexingly.

Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, minister of education, who was elected by acclamation in Northeast Toronto, is being proposed in various quarters for premier of Ontario. The Woodstock Free Press-Review, in an article in which it refers to Dr. Cody as "a man of strong personality, of one ability and of unquestioned character," says:

"If it were found practicable to entrust him with the task of organizing a Government it might be that he would be able to secure and to hold sufficient of a following to make it possible for him to succeed. Clearly there must be a compromise. If there is to be a Government without another election. It ought to be possible for men of different ideas as to party allegiance, but actuated by a common spirit of public duty, to unite under the leadership of such a man."

It is estimated that there were 20,000 spoiled or unused ballots in the elections in Toronto last Monday.

Austrian Treaty Is Given Approval of House of Commons

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—After a brief discussion, the House of Commons tonight formally approved the peace treaty with Austria. The League of Nations covenant and the labor clauses, the minister of justice explained, were identical with those in the German peace treaty. D. D. McKenzie, while declaring that he was not prepared to offer objection to passage of the resolution, yet maintained that it was unnecessary. In effect, he claimed, the House has already approved the treaty by concurring in Senate amendments to the bill to put the German peace treaty into effect. Mr. McKenzie's statement urged delay, so that the provisions of the treaty might be further studied, in the motion for approval carried.

Trotsky Arrives in Petrograd To Plan For City's Defence

To Petrograd theatres are closed, and no one is permitted on the street after 8 o'clock at night.

Prince Plays Drum, Passes Chocolates and Cigars Around

Entertains Creditville Villagers With Gramophone Accompaniment.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 24.—The people of the neighborhood of Creditville, a small village four miles east of Woodstock, were royally entertained by the Prince of Wales recently. The royal train was shunted into a siding near the village for the night, and it was not long until the people of the neighborhood were "wise" to its presence.

They immediately swarmed around the car, and in answer to yells the Prince of Wales appeared on the platform. He then proceeded to entertain his guests. First he brought out chocolates and cigars, and after having a chat with them, shook hands all round.

"Do not be shy because I am," was the reassuring way the heir to the British crown spoke to the villagers, and they enjoyed it to the limit. The

A TONIC FOR THE NERVES

The Only Real Nerve Tonic is a Good Supply of Rich, Red Blood.

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors would not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous, rundown condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of today. Sufferers find themselves tired, morose, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise brings a blow. They are full of groundless fears, and do not sleep well at night. Headaches, neuritis and other nerve pains are part of the misery, and it all comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. Therefore to cure nervousness and rundown health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills actually make new, rich blood, which strengthens the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and sprits, and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. If you are at all "out of sorts" you should begin curing yourself today by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

prince then brought his gramophone close to the door, and entertained his guests by accompanying the half-played Johnny's in "Town." More cheers brought the "big night" to a close. However, the next morning, the whole countryside was on hand bright and early, and gave the royal party a great send-off.

Consider Your Income

The happiest hours of a man's life come when he knows he has done his duty.

Will your home and family be amply safeguarded against want IF you should die this year?

Will your life insurance premiums be paid for you and will you receive an income of $50 or $100 per month, should you be totally and permanently disabled?

Will you have an income of $50 or $100 per month guaranteed for life when you reach the age of 60 or 65?

All these questions are definitely answered in the new contract, which the Aetna Life will offer on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

POLICE SUSPECT TWO HELD AT GODERICH ARE JAIL BREAKERS

Description Similar To That of Men Wanted At Stratford.

GODERICH, Oct. 24.—Two young men giving their names as Gilbert Laurent and Norman Williamson were arrested about three miles from town last night about 10 o'clock by Constables Postlethwaite and Gundry in one of Mrs. McFarlane's cottages on the Bayfield road.

A farmer by the name of McIlwain noticed a light in the cottage, and after missing about fifteen pounds of butter and five dozen eggs and a lot of bread Tuesday evening he came to town and notified Chief Postlethwaite, who went out and arrested the two. The police suspect that they may be the two who broke into the cottage a few days ago, as they resemble the description of Alfred O'Brien and Ralph McPherson, who were charged with breaking into the three cottages and smashing everything, doing considerable damage.

PRETTY GIRL POWDERS NOSE ON MAIN STREET—KEEPS PUFF IN—SHI—

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 24.—"Why don't women wear their noses in their pockets, 'stead of carrying them in a hand bag?" This question was answered effectively on the main street today by a pretty, demure-looking miss as she stood on the sidewalk close to the curb. Gathering up her fallowed skirts in one hand, she revealed the latest style her other hand, unencumbered by any hand bag affair, she reached for her powder puff, which was hidden in a little embroidered pocket at the top of her silk stocking.

She redid the visibility of her nose with dainty dab of the puff, and unconcerned, replaced it. Then she sauntered along the street as interested spectators smiled in appreciation of the latest disclosure in women's styles.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS OVERCOME BY SAFE METHOD

Suggestions Given Whereby Insomnia Can Be Safely and Quickly Cured.

Worry, overwork, overstudy and indigestion cause insomnia. Healthy, natural sleep can't be produced by drugs.

First, the blood circulation must be improved. Congestion of blood in the head must be removed. Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

It's because Ferrozene equalizes circulation, because it soothes the irritation, because it removes congestion that it does cure insomnia.

For building blood and nerve, for instilling force and life into overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so efficient as Ferrozene? Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down, but if you use Ferrozene, and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep, you'll get well quickly. Ferrozene is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozene. Take it for a month, take it for a year—no harm, but immeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozene. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless—sold in 50c boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct from The Catarhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

GOVT. BY NO MEANS AT END OF WORRIES OVER G. T. R. BILL

Opposition Outside of Parliament Becoming Very Apparent.

POSITION IS UNCERTAIN Government Has Many Anxieties in Dying Days of Present Session.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—The dying days of the session are not without their uncertainties to the Government. By the comfortable majority of 30, the Grand Trunk bill got into committee last night in the face of the McKenzie Millar amendment, and its passage through the Commons is assured. But that does not end the worries incidental to this important piece of legislation, and it is a notable fact that in spite of the certainty that the bill would pass the Commons, opposition to it outside of Parliament has not for one moment ceased, and that Montreal papers are still running half-page advertisements pouring in. These advertisements and petitions have a purpose, and that purpose would appear to be the working up of a public sentiment in favor of drastic action by the Senate, which is the court of last resort so far as Canadian legislation is concerned.

Only Three Bidders. There were only three Government bidders on the vote in the Commons last night. One of these, Gen. McLean, has always been a pronounced opponent of public ownership. Another, E. J. Johnston of West Mountain, has been habitually voting with the Opposition. The third, Major Andrews, voted for the amendment warning the Government that he would do so unless a debate were granted on such time as the proposals for soldier re-establishment as contained in the report of the Calder committee were made known.

Sincerely Hope. Major Andrews, "that this country will be able successfully to re-establish the Grand Trunk line, and I also hope they will be able to re-establish the soldiers, but if it ever comes to a showdown between the Grand Trunk that failed, and the soldiers who won, I am going to put my money on the men who won the fight."

Nasty Comment. As a matter of fact delay in bringing down the report is creating some nasty comment in the corridors. News is filtering through from Victoria, B. C. that Hon. Dr. Toimie, minister of agriculture, is having the fight of his life, and that the gratuity question is the chief issue in the election. It is fairly well known that the Commons committee will not recommend any further gratuities, and rumor well defined has it that the report is being delayed until the Victoria by-election is over, and the ballots are counted.

It may be that had the report been announced before the Grand Trunk bill was passed, issue would have been taken with a proposal to pay annual interest on a capitalization of $200,000,000 in the case of the Grand Trunk.

While nothing further was to be done with the Grand Trunk, the fight is not really over in the Commons, though the ultimate passage of the bill is assured. There remains committee stage. And that provides an opportunity for everybody with an idea to talk. It is stated today that Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King intends staying in the House till the end of the session.

The fate of the bill in the Senate is an uncertain thing. So uncertain is it that the rumor is rife that the Government will fill up the four Senate vacancies right away with men upon whom it can rely to support the legislation. That Hon. Martin Burritt, secretary of state, will be translated to the Upper House is freely reported, and that H. H. Stevens of Centre Vancouver will take his place in the cabinet is further rumored.

In addition to the fact that Stevens would, in the present troubled condition of the political atmosphere, have much difficulty in being re-elected, however, there is the further fact in such action on the part of the Government, that it would be a lamentable admission of weakness. Certain it is that there is no lack of candidates for the Senate, and even on the conditions above set forth.

The prohibition legislation has not the force in the Commons since Conservative insubordination, and the caucus which followed it. That there is also talk of supplementary legislation to prevent interprovincial proclamation of peace. It is being represented to the Government, for instance, that the recent vote in Ontario liquor, and that some ordinance should be passed preventing its importation until such time as a bone-dry plebiscite under the new federal legislation can be held. Otherwise the interprovincial will be one for the restocking of cellars.

CHANCE IS OPEN TO ALL—50 CASH AWARDS

The Advertiser's Puzzle Contest

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS TO BE GIVEN TO READERS OF THE ADVERTISER. THERE'S NO GUESSWORK IN THIS CONTEST. READ THE RULES AND REGISTER A SOLUTION. NOTE THE PLAN OF DIVISION. SEND PRIZES AND MAKE YOURS WORTH WHAT YOU WILL.

HOW TO ENTER

This contest is open to present bona fide residents of Ontario.

Anyone in this territory may enter the contest upon payment of not less than $2.00 or more than $12.48. This amount will be applied to subscription to The London Advertiser at regular subscription rates. It may be applied on either the morning or evening edition, or both.

You may submit just one solution or as many different ones as you wish. With each solution you must pay not less than $2.00 or more than $12.48. The total amount paid, whether you send one or more than one solution, will be applied to one continuous subscription, unless you otherwise direct. If you are already a subscriber the amount, or amounts, you pay will be applied to extending the time you are paid to. If you are a new subscriber the amount paid will be credited to you and your subscription started at once.

Present subscribers, wherever located, will continue to receive the paper through the same channels as now. No change whatsoever will be made in carriers where subscribers receive the paper through carrier service. All carriers will receive notice that the subscription has been paid and be instructed to collect the amount from The Advertiser office. The same will be done where the paper is being received through an authorized news-dealer.

If you send more than one solution with each one send a separate blank the amount you are paying with that solution.

This contest is open to both men and women. You may order the paper sent to someone else if you wish, names and addresses being subject to check.

DECIDING TIES

In the event of ties those solving will be required to solve a second puzzle in prizes. This second puzzle, if one should be required, will be equally as attractive and practical as the first. Under this plan those who win of their prizes without having to divide them with other contestants. Should still further ties ensue, a third problem of the same order as the second will be submitted to those again tied to solve. This plan will be continued until all have been eliminated except the actual prize-winners, puzzle, only the one, of course, will be presented. In the event that a second puzzle is required, one week will be allowed in which to solve it. This will prevent the contest being prolonged for any unusual length of time.

[COPYRIGHTED.]

THE PROBLEM

The problem is to count the circles. Every circle is complete, and intersects or touches one or more circles. There are no parts of circles, or shams or deceptions of any sort in the puzzle. In the event that no one counts the exact number, the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. Accuracy and patience are the main requisites to arriving at the correct or nearest correct count. Those who display these qualifications to the best advantage will solve the puzzle best.

Important Features

The attention of contestants is called to two important features in connection with the prizes.

1. While the amount you pay for subscription to The Advertiser has no effect on your winning a prize, it does affect the value of the prize. For instance, each of the first five prizes has a fixed value, to which is added five times what you win one of them. For instance, each of the first five prizes has a fixed value, to which is added five times what you win one of them. This is explained further in the prize list.

2. The first five prizes may also be awarded ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS to new subscribers. You will receive twenty dollars for each one, whether you secure one or five. Each one of these new subscribers must pay not less than the minimum amount ($2) required of contestants. They may pay up to the maximum ($12.48) if they desire, and they may also become competitors for the prizes if they wish to submit one or more solutions of the puzzle. That is, they may enter the contest under the same conditions exactly as any other contestant, the payments they make entitling them to entry.

The name of each one of these new subscribers must be sent in on one of the accompanying blanks, whether he becomes a contestant or not. The fact that he was secured by you must also be indicated in the proper place provided in the blank, so you will receive credit for each one of these five names whenever you wish, either when you send in your own solution or later. Just one of the blanks for each one, and then there will be no mistake made in regard to your getting due credit.

By Constance Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, OCT. 28-27.

Sunday is indicated as a day fortunate for seeking honors, favors, preferment and success with superiors. However, no important changes should be attempted, and all dealings should be handled with care.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of business perplexities. They should change their carefully and deal cautiously. A child born on this day will be clever and industrious, but perhaps erratic and changeable.

Monday's astrological chart is full of conflicting positions of important planets. While the outlook for new and large projects is good, and financial success is probable, a stormy revolution is indicated.

A POOR WAY TO ECONOMIZE
Neglecting to have your eyes examined at least every two years, is a poor way to economize.

Eyes will often improve materially under the proper treatment—and a slight change in the lenses may make a great improvement.

Rest assured we will not advise a change unless we are convinced it will improve your eyes.

Community Silver

In addition to our stocks of Wallace silverware and 1847 Rogers Bros. "Old Colony," we have added the "Adam" and "Sheraton" patterns of Community Plate.

The "Adam" pattern is probably the most popular pattern of silverware on the American market today. Combined with the "Sheraton," "Old Colony" and the different designs in Wallace Plate, it makes a splendid stock of silverware to choose from.

Community prices are not out of the ordinary and, of course, the quality is unquestionable.

DICK'S FLOWER SHOP FURNISHED BEAUTIFUL EXHIBIT AT BANQUET

Floral Decorations For Prince at Tecumseh Were Finest London Ever Saw.

Perhaps the most spectacular example of floral decorations ever seen in Canada was accomplished by the Dick's Flower Shop of this city, when that the table laid for the banquet to the prince at the Tecumseh House. The table, which was round for democracy's sake, gave scope for the beautiful centre decoration—a miniature English garden, with winding paths flanked by miniature hedges, and tiny patches of forest growing in the midst of all rose the centre pillar of the room, skillfully disguised by representation of a huge British oak.

From a border of amilax around the inner edge of the table gleamed tiny candle flames and red roses, the emblem of England, and between this and another circle of green was a border of the prince the Union Jack and Canadian emblem were draped. Flags also decorated other parts of the dining-room.

Why Use a Dentifrice for a diseased condition of the gums? They keep the teeth clean, but are absolutely worthless in overcoming the disease which causes the gums to bleed easily, and recede.

"Femetine" is a LIQUID that penetrates deep into the dental tissues and destroys the germs that eat away the gum membranes. These Pyorrhea germs must be destroyed if the gums are to again be normal.

"Femetine" works quickly. Good results are soon observed, and loose teeth regain their natural solidity. Sold by druggists everywhere. Price 75c.

Entirely surrounding the table were huge lance-shaped peace and victory standards, nearly twenty feet in height, of Roman design, and bearing at the top gilt laurel wreaths, symbolical of victory, and gilt palm leaves, symbolical of peace. those he has secured in the city, Friday morning he got a "close-up" of Maye C. R. Somerville.

The Bread of a City

EVERY CITY goes to endless expense to insure a pure supply of water, And spares no trouble or expense to assure purity in its milk supply.

Why, therefore, should not a city's bread supply be safeguarded against contamination, and its original oven cleanliness and wholesomeness assured to its consumers?

This view of the necessity of cleanliness has always dominated the Neal methods, and the last step to guarantee cleanliness is represented in

NEAL'S BREAD THE WRAPPED LOAF

Like all Neal's Bread, the wrapped loaf is baked in sanitary ovens and delivered in thoroughly clean wagons, but in addition to this, it is wrapped in waxed paper, which absolutely protects it from contamination of any sort from the time it leaves the oven until the time it reaches your table.

This waxed paper, if left on the loaf until cut to the last slices, will maintain the original freshness for days.

If you have not yet tried this loaf, you have missed a treat in bread.
