Jewelry and Money Stolen As Two Homes Are Entered.

RESUME ACTIVITIES

Four Burglaries Are Committed in City Within One Week.

Burglary in two London East homes yesterday afternoon, constituting the fourth sneak thief robbery in the city in less than a week, was committed by the same man, according to the police, who hold information which will probably result in his arrest today.

The homes of Thomas Leah, 1045 Dundas street, and William Maynard, 797 Dufferin avenue, were broken into yesterday shortly after 5 o'clock, when owners of both homes were out. In the Maynard house a diamond ring and $20 in bills were taken. A similar amount of money and a number of postage stamps was stolen from the Leah residence. In both cases entrance was gained by the front door when the lock was turned with a small pair of tweezers. The two robberies of last week, occurring in London South, were of a similar nature. The thieves took place when the homes were unoccupied and entrance was made when the front doors were opened with a skeleton key. Money and jewelry were stolen.

Four Machines Owned by the Metropolitan Bus Company To Start Runs.

FIVE-CENT FARE

Insurance Matters Arranged to City Treasurer's Satisfaction.

Four large buses owned by the Metropolitan Bus Company of Toronto to left Toronto this morning for London and will immediately begin to operate on their arrival here. Ald. L. H. Douglass announced this afternoon.

C. C. Kamm, president of the company, called on City Treasurer James Bell at noon and fixed up insurance matters to the satisfaction of the city treasurer. He then called on Chief Birrell and took out licenses for the four buses.

Two of them will immediately be put in operation on the South London run, and two on Dundas street, at a 5 cent fare, with transfers. "I am more than pleased with the bus proposition, and the way things have progressed," said Dr. Douglass, who is solely responsible for bringing the buses to London. "If the people support Mr. Kamm in his effort to give them good transportation service, he will place more buses in service in the very near future. The street railway will have to improve its service in a most wonderful way if it expects to keep pace with the buses."

A. Cotter, Toronto bus owner, who is preparing insurance regulations, has balked at paying a rate of $5 per passenger per year, or a total of $100 as far as his 20 passenger bus is concerned. If Mr. Cotter can get a rebate from the city council such as that given to the Toronto bus proprietor, he may still start business in London. This bus is only six buses operating in 18 hours a day, from 6 a.m. until midnight.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Oct. 14.—London is preparing a rousing welcome for the Prince of Wales when he returns home Friday after his 25,000-mile voyage to South Africa and South America. Regardless of the state of the weather, it is expected that the crowds lining the route from the Victoria station to Buckingham palace will be a record one. Society is planning a gala night. Most of the smart hotels have booked gay dancing, dinner and supper parties.

The day's program is about settled. As far as official receptions are concerned these will begin off Spilhead Friday morning, where destroyers and seaplanes will meet the prince and other members of the royal party.

Others Reinforced. He stated the Dundas street and Oxford street bridges had both been reinforced. In his opinion, Blackfriars bridge was the weakest structure next to the Ridout street bridge, but that the traffic was not heavy or abnormal over the Blackfriars bridge at any time. He didn't think that there was any danger to traffic there or at any of the other bridges with the exception of Ridout street.

PUBLIC MAY VOTE

Wenige Proposes To Send the Alleged Overdraft Issue to People.

The mayor and Philip Pocock of the public utilities commission, will shortly lock horns in a public debate on "The true financial situation of the London and Port Stanley Railway."

"I challenge Mr. Pocock to a public debate in any public hall at any time," declared the mayor this morning. "on the true situation of the L. and P. S. My only stipulation is that Mr. Pocock must do the talking himself."

"I wouldn't object, in fact, I'll be very glad to get the mayor on the same platform on such a subject," said Mr. Pocock, when notified of the mayor's challenge. "I'll challenge him not only on the figures he has been quoting, but on his sincerity as a public ownership advocate. Any time and any place will suit me."

Mayor Wenige will endeavor to have a vote of the people on the question of voting $400,000 to the L. and P. S., which he claims will be the amount of the overdraft in the L. and P. S. account with the city, incurred during the last two years.

Police Again Take Action As Motorists Break Rules Designed For Safety Sake

Officer Placed on Duty at Ridout Street Bridge To Enforce Regulations.

WEIGHT AND SPEED

City Engineer Believes Structure Safe If Limits Are Observed.

As a safety measure, Ridout street bridge will again be placed under police surveillance. Traffic regulations put into force because of the unsound condition of the ancient structure are being broken, authorities claim, so a guard will be kept continually at the bridge. Believing that the bridge should not be entirely closed to traffic because a few foolhardy persons disregard all the city engineer's warnings that it is not safe for motorists to proceed at more than five miles an hour or with a load of more than five tons, Mayor Wenige, as chairman of the police commission, ordered Chief of Police Birrell this morning to see that motorists observe all safety precautions. An officer was placed on duty at noon to ascertain what the interior is like. "The bridge may not be safe, one never can tell," declared City Engineer Near today. "We have limited the speed and the loading capacity, and that is all we can do unless we close the bridge and work a hard job on London South."

"When a bridge gets old, you can't ascertain what the interior is like. It is a wrought iron bridge and crystallization would not be as bad as in other structures."

Matter of Conjecture. Mr. Near pointed out that a heavy load might be tendered Commissioner and Mrs. Lamb at Adj. Smith's quarters, 365 Ontario street. At 1 o'clock the visitors will be at home to all the domestics and widows and children who have been brought to this district by the Salvation Army in the last four years.

At Friday noon the Apostle of Population, as he has been called, will address the members of the Kiwanis club. Following the luncheon in the Tecumseh house, Commissioner and Mrs. Lamb will leave for Woodstock, where they will meet a public gathering at 3 o'clock.

BALLOT ON BRIDGE BACKED BY BOARD

No. 2 Committee Supports Move For Steel Structure Over Thames.

Providing the city council accepts the recommendation of No. 2 committee, the citizens will be asked to vote on a new Rivout street bridge at a cost of $65,000. Four types of bridges were brought before the committee at last night's session, and on recommendation of Aid. Neely, the committee members, without dissent, agreed to send the $65,000 bridge proposal to the council at the next session.

The type recommended by the committee and favored by the city engineer calls for a steel bridge of simple design, with 32-foot roadway, two 6-foot sidewalks and makes provisions for street railway tracks in the center of the bridge.

According to the engineer, representatives of bridge companies that have examined the Rivout street structure agree that the present abutments could be used as well as the pier that now exists, including the foundations of the street railway tracks. It calls for two spans of pony trusses, no overhead bracing with the exception of span wires and poles for the L. S. R.

Had Several Prices.
The price of the steel company was $45,500, including the removal of the present structure. Engineer Near stated, adding that "our estimate for concrete sidewalks and pavement would be $12,000, and a safe estimate of the total cost, $65,000."

A bridge of a similar type, but with a new alignment, permitting the street to be straightened, would cost about $80,000, the engineer submitted. A bridge with a heavier girder construction would entail a cost of $100,000, with a cement finish to plate girders.

A reinforced concrete bridge of three spans instead of two would cost $120,000.

"Richmond street will be the main entrance to London South in the next five or ten years," predicted the engineer, in favoring the erection of the $65,000 bridge. He pointed out that the car track space could be rented to the street railway for an annual rental.

O. K. New Gas Pumps.
Despite the fact that a letter was received from City Solicitor T. G. Meredith, K.C., that the committee and council had no power to grant permits for the establishment of curb gasoline pumps, the committee went calmly ahead and put their O.K. on three applications. However, the applicants and all present proprietors of curb pumps will have to sign an agreement releasing the city from all responsibility in case of accidents, and indemnify the city for all damages. This solution was offered the committee by City Clerk Baker, and was unanimously approved.

RATEPAYERS WILL DECIDE QUESTION OF NURSES' HOME

Victoria Hospital Trust Asks Council To Submit Bylaw in December.

COST $225,000

The people will decide this December whether the nursing staff of Victoria hospital will have a new home, to be erected at a cost of approximately $225,000, if a request of the hospital trust is granted by the city council. At their meeting yesterday, at which the mayor was present, the trust decided to ask the council to submit a bylaw in December providing for the issue of the necessary debentures.

The only one doubtful of the proposition was the mayor, though he voted to ask the council to submit the bylaw, assuring the trust that the council would do so. He warned the trust that three major money bylaws would be submitted to the people this year, and reminded them of the fate of the home bylaw three years ago. Four money bylaws were presented then, and the only one to carry was the one for a debenture issue of $20,000 for playgrounds. It is certain, he said, that in London when any number of by-laws are submitted they will all be defeated.

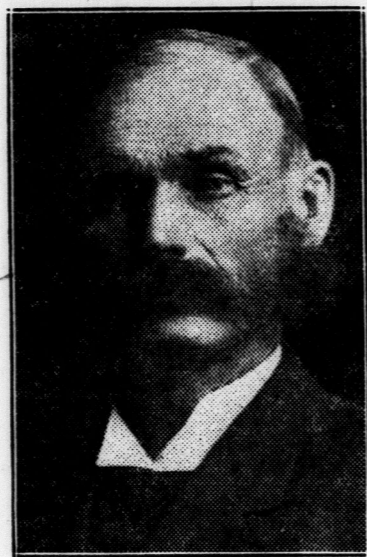

In spite of the mayor's warning the trust decided to take a chance, and Mayor Wenige promised them his every assistance in putting the bylaw over. A committee consisting of Dr. Alfred Grant, Mrs. Greenaway, Dr. F. R. Cleeg, Miss Grace Fairley and the mayor was appointed to look after publicity. Col. Gartshore graciously offered to bear all expense in this connection if the bylaw were defeated.

Plans were shown to the trust yesterday by John M. Moore, architect. The projected building will be three stories high, and will follow the architectural style of the Children's Hospital, and will be located immediately west of it, the purchase of land at a cost of $15,000 being necessary. Col. Gartshore has already purchased the western portion of the site on behalf of the trust. Accommodation for 130 nurses will be provided. The building will be one of the most modern of its kind, while being utterly devoid of architectural frills. The proposed price is an absolute minimum.

The addition of another boiler to the present plant of the incinerator will be necessary to heat the proposed building, but the mayor foresaw no difficulty in this connection, it being an absolute necessity in any street; L. H. Leff on Fullarton street, and the Imperial Oil Company was also granted a permit, providing the company wants to go ahead, and at its own risk, put a pump in operation in the restricted area. It was pointed out that any one citizen of the neighborhood, Wortley road and Bruce street, could put an end to the service station by written objection. City Engineer Near and J. Moffatt were appointed to attend the Asphalt Association conference in Windsor on October 21 and 22.

Not Profitable

ALFRED BAILEY died suddenly at his home near Thorndale during Monday night. For 14 years he was tax collector of West Nisourri township, and for 21 years school trustee in his section. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

The present plant is being used to capacity, and should one of the boilers break down there is no emergency equipment. The present plant heats the hospital, the Institute of Public Health and the Children's Hospital.

The present nurses' home is crowded to capacity, and some of the beds that should be devoted to patients, are being used by nurses. This fact prevents the hospital from securing an A-1 rating in American states, and the graduates are not privileged to practice in certain of them.

A letter was received by the trust from the American College of Surgeons, urging that fee-splitting be abolished. The consensus of opinion was that the practice violated the ethics of the profession in any case, and offenders were not likely to be stopped by any arbitrary action of the trust. The letter was filed.

RESEARCH FUND BOOSTED FOR "U"

Proposal Made at Freshmen Reception Is Given General Endorsement.

Graduates of the University of Western Ontario Medical School will be provided with funds to carry on research or postgraduate work upon completion of their studies if the proposal made at the freshmen reception held in Smallman & Ingram's last night is taken up by the alumni.

The reception to the new students followed the sessions of the members of the Ontario Medical Association, district No. 1, and the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine, which were held at the medical school. The guests were that many of the physicians were present at the freshmen reception. Arrangements were made to receive 200 guests.

Dr. Steward M. Fisher proposed on behalf of the alumni that some definite action be taken to make certain that Western students be sure of reaching their chosen goals in the realm of medicine. The suggestion, which has been under consideration for some time, was heartily endorsed.

The toast to the freshmen was proposed by Dr. A. J. Grant. Dr. J. Simpson, B.A., responded, expressing thanks for the splendid reception tendered the students.

Medical School Toast.
The toast to the medical school was proposed by Dr. S. O. H. Jones. The response was made by Dr. J. W. Crane, acting dean, who spoke of the unavoidable absence of Dean Paul S. McKibben through illness. Dr. Crane spoke briefly on the making of a medical school, saying that it was not the bricks and the mortar, but the students, staff and alumni that had the future of the school in their hands.

Dr. W. J. Weekes proposed the toast to the sister universities. In reminiscence he told of the early days at Western. Dr. Weekes enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living graduate of the university.

The response was made by Dr. Krupl, Woodstock, for the University of Toronto; Dr. B. T. McGhie, superintendent of Westminster Hos-

A Distinct Platform in Quebec.

Each election forecast sent out by the Conservative party has reference to an anticipated success in Quebec. The estimates seem to swing on the central figure of twenty seats in Quebec, and now and then the candid admission is made that most of them are expected from Montreal and its environs.

This Quebec campaign does not appear to bear many of the marks of plain speaking and out-in-the-open politics. There is a curious parallel running between the 1925 tactics and those of 1911. In 1911 it was Bourassa who appeared as the pioneer of the Nationalist movement. He had with him Lavergne and Blondin. It was planned and engineered to give vent to the hatred of Laurier entertained by these men in Quebec. The Conservatives did not openly embrace the movement during the campaign, but in French-speaking districts of northern Ontario played the role of having a dual leadership between Bourassa and Borden.

When the 1911 contest was over the Nationalist movement assumed its real color, and the twenty-seven members from Quebec took their seats with the Conservatives. Cabinet position was found for Blondin, whose whole appeal was summed up in his desire "to shoot holes in the British flag," and afterward for Mr. Patenaude, who stood with Mr. Bourassa on the platform when the Nationalist leader declared "Canada owes nothing to England."

The same sort of a plot is on the way today, with the same Mr. Patenaude as its leader. Many of his speeches are on the same lines as those of 1911. His address at St. Laurent was a straight attack on the development of Canada as part of the empire, and his remarks were received, according to the Montreal Gazette (Con.), as follows: "Applause and a cry, 'That is the policy of Bourassa these past twenty years.'"

While Mr. Patenaude is making his appeals on this line, Armand Lavergne, the same Lavergne, who figured in the 1911 Nationalist-Conservative movement, is declaring that Hon. Arthur Meighen is the man who will make the teaching of French obligatory in all the schools of the dominion. Coupled with that is the further prediction also made by these same men in Quebec that Premier Ferguson will "do something" to moderate regulation 17 in Ontario, which deals with bilingual schools.

While all these strange appeals are being made Mr. Meighen has been advised that his proper course is to stay out of Quebec. It suits them much better to have as leader there Mr. Patenaude, at least while the election is on. When the voting is over, and if there are any followers of Mr. Patenaude returned, the same 1911 tactics will be followed—the independent Nationalist group will sit in the Conservative seats.

Why is it that the Conservatives want to make this sort of an appeal to Quebec, and why is it that they seem to think their chances of securing support in that province center around the Montreal district? It is because (1) their policy is "anything to break up King's majority in Quebec." (2) They know they can appeal to an anti-public ownership feeling that centers in Montreal, and that it is cheered and comforted by every political criticism Mr. Meighen and his followers make of the operation of the Canadian Nationals. The attacks on Sir Henry Thornton, the attempts made to belittle his ability, all add fuel to the Montreal bonfire.

In this way the Conservative campaign in Quebec is aimed at creating a condition that builds a wall between that province and Ontario. Ontario is proud of British connection and of Canada's place in the empire; Ontario is a public ownership area, and has a possession in its hydro enterprises with which it would not part. Ontario wants to see the National Railways given a fair chance to succeed. No platform could be more menacing to Ontario than that on which the Conservatives are planning their hopes in Quebec.

Providing For the Aged.

A London woman, in a letter to The Advertiser, calls attention to several cases where aged people in London have suffered from lack of proper attention. Old age and poverty had come upon them together, and their condition was one that our correspondent claims was not at all creditable to us as a civilized and Christian community.

The claim is further made in the letter that it is just as essential that governments take action on the conditions faced by the people as that they should deal with tariffs, ocean rates or transportation charges, and that the human element in our national life is just as deserving of recognition as the commercial, and even more.

With our correspondent's views on the local cases, and also with those touching the larger question of government action, The Advertiser is in entire accord. When a man or woman, a native of this country, has made his or her best contribution to the state in the way of a life's work, and then finds near the end of the road that the power to earn a living has gone, provision should undoubtedly be made to meet that situation.

We recognize the same principle in other directions, through compensation to workmen when they are injured, through payments to widowed mothers and in other directions. The move to have the same principle recognized in the larger area of dominion enactment has not succeeded because it has not yet been determined whether the dominion government has the right, under the British North America Act, to enact a law that would be financially binding on the provinces. The matter was brought up in the last session of the dominion parliament as a government measure by Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor. It then went to a committee, which sought the advice of the department of justice to ascertain the correct method of procedure. What the justice department reported was that under the British North America Act the duty of functioning an old age pension scheme devolved primarily on the provinces. The provinces had previously been canvassed to ascertain whether they would be willing to cooperate in general plan, but in each case the reply was in the negative. It called for an expenditure of money and the provinces were anxious of course to protect their own finances by shifting the responsibility to the federal government. That is where the matter stands today, but it cannot remain there indefinitely. The motion to go into the matter still stands there as a government measure and we believe it will become an enactment.

In the meantime these distressing cases to which our correspondent refers cannot be ignored. We would be falling in even the primary details of citizenship were they not looked after. Fortunately those that do seem to suffer from neglect are very much in the minority. The countries have their houses of industry; the city old folks' homes, its welfare fund and relief department, and all of them are functioning and doing a very excellent work. The real point we gather from our correspondent's letter is that this provision for old age should be removed entirely from anything that could be classed as charity and placed on the basis of a provision that rightfully belongs to the citizen requiring it, and that is undoubtedly the proper solution for the problem.

The Homecoming.

During the first nine days of October 743 Canadians who had lived in United States for six months or more crossed the border to take up their residence again in Canada. These figures are furnished in a Canadian Press despatch and were taken from the official returns forwarded from Canadian government offices in United States.

The same report also shows that at the port of Detroit 105 Canadians came home and brought with them cash and effects to the value of $111,000. That is over a thousand dollars per capita. They must have met with some degree of success in United States, but in spite of that they pulled up stakes there and returned to Canada. The movement is interesting and encouraging because it shows that the swing toward the dominion is well under way and is gaining in momentum each week.

The St. Thomas Editor's Scheme.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal is speculating on the chances of a Russian scientist having come forth with a cure for bald heads that is effective in two weeks. Zavadovski is his name and Moscow his address. While the rest of Russia has been experimenting on the quickest way to turn the world up on edge this chap has been working away with doses of dried thyroid glands given to poultry.

What he has found is that after a good stiff dose the hen moults, and two weeks after, no matter if she were white, speckled or black before, comes out with a fine crop of white feathers, better than before and more of them.

The St. Thomas paper wants the Russian to try it on bald-headed men. Even if it were a shock of white hair, their wives or lady friends could soon show them how to change it to any color desired. We hope the St. Thomas editor goes ahead and makes the suggestion to Zavadovski. If it turns out successful the editor there could get a side-line that would make him wealthy and his town as famous as it was the day Jumbo was killed there.

Following the Style

Wherein Joe Rickey tells us about the troubles of today, how he can't press his britches now by workin' in the same old way.

Joe Rickey is a stylish jay, I've known him now ten years or more, he always spent a heap of time selectin' of the cloth he wore. And when new neckties come to town why Joe was first to reach the store, and when he went on shoppin' trips he always bought a score or more.

And when they put upon the style that coats be cut to fit the frame, why Joe he was the first to go and have his raiment hewed the same.

One thing I'll say for Joe was this, he always went much on his looks, and you would swear he was the chap who dwelt inside the fashion books. He had no wrinkles in his coat, his trousers wore a razor crease, and on his hair he put fresh lard, soft butter and some melted grease.

But he was tellin' me today how hard it was for him of late to plume himself to look as though he's posin' for a fashionplate.

"It used to be a simple thing for me to press my britches flat, it didn't take much longer than than brushin' off your Sunday hat. Why I could get the ironing-board and reach the iron from off the shelf, it didn't take me half a jiff to do that little job myself.

"But now my pants is new and wide, three times the size they used to be, and it takes space to move around and bust the bag from out the knee.

"The ironing-board it's far too small, so when I'm doin' my pressin' now, I have to move so many things I start a nasty family row. I shove the kitchen table out and push the chairs behind the door, I have to heat up seven irons and press my britches on the floor."—ARK.

A large number of the London Bowling club members assembled at the clubhouse yesterday, when President Beddome in a few complimentary remarks on behalf of the members presented the caretaker, Mr. Richard Sparrowhawk, with a meerschaum pipe and a package of tobacco. Mr. Sparrowhawk has proven himself in the past few years a very capable man and is always courteous and obliging to the club's members. In a few well-chosen remarks he thanked the members for their kind remembrance.

To the Editor

Providing For the Aged.

London Woman Considers This Question Just as Important as Tariffs, Shipping Rates and Other Issues.

Sir,—In a recent issue of your paper we read of the case of an aged couple being brought before the court for non-payment of rent, and the magistrate recommended that they be sent to the workhouse. They refused to be separated, preferring to share want together, and went away saying they would get along somehow. Previously you cited the case of an aged man going to the marketplace at midnight in order to eke out an existence by collecting bits from the refuse left after the day. Not long before that you told of an aged woman who had collapsed on the street owing to hunger and exhaustion, and who died shortly after being taken to Victoria hospital. All this suffering and death could have so easily been avoided.

Reading of those things, one cannot but wonder at the indifference paid to such happenings in a civilized country and under a Christian administration. If we would but stop and think of the tragedy of it, of the heart-break and suffering in secret before final exposure. They have borne the burden and heat of the day and through no fault of their own find themselves in straitened circumstances, unable to compete with the younger generation, although willing to do anything in their power to earn a living. Now I would like to ask what became of the old age pension bill brought before the last session of parliament for the relief of just such cases?

Did the members of parliament and others in authority at Ottawa consider that the shipping of cattle more cheaply and the profitable operation of a railroad of more importance than the comfort and care of these aged people? Must they be left to hunger and cold while the tariff and other less important questions are discussed at leisure? Why is it that millions of dollars are spent annually on things that are not nearly so necessary, while our aged people are left destitute to shift for themselves as best they can? Is it not time the women's organizations took up the question with the future would-be members of parliament and express to them their views on the matter as well as on prohibition? If they would just stop to consider the case there is no doubt they will feel that something needs to be done and done at once.

Which way would our labor vote if they took time to consider the question? Where do the churches stand on the matter? Can there be any doubt in any mind of the justice and need of the legislation? Why not all take hold and push and see that the bill is put through without further delay, so that our aged people may at least and their days together in peace and comfort.

I would like to see this matter discussed in your valuable paper, also your own opinion of same. Yours for justice, AN ONLOOKER.

Politics and Farm Work

By Mackellar McArthur.

The Farm, Ekfrid, Oct. 13.—I don't know whether holding the election in October is another example of Premier King's political sagacity or not. On the farm, October is just about the busiest month of the year. With so much work looming up, work which must be completed before the frost comes, it is difficult to keep more than half an eye on the political situation. After a day of hustling a farmer naturally thinks more of rest than he does of reading reports of speeches. Full work, excepting plowing, requires a more undivided attention than field work. When plowing or harrowing, a man can let his mind wander to other subjects without any noticeable effect on his work. That is scarcely possible when picking apples, perched on the end of an extension ladder, or when trundling a wheelbarrow filled with cement, as I have been doing this week.

Perhaps when all the farmers get the rust worn off their plows they will have the mental leisure to think things out and decide to whom they will give their political allegiance. But at present we are too busy, and as one farmer said, "politics are not practicable just now."

Thoughts About Labor.

When I was "learning to stand on my hind legs" with the aforementioned wheelbarrow I got an insight into the thoughts and feelings of a day-laborer. When I picked up the handles of the barrow for my first load I thought the job might be worse. I continued in the same frame of mind for the first hour or two. But after I had barked my knuckles several times on the spout of the cement mixer, when my arms began to feel over-sized, and the joints of my knees to feel weak, I began to wonder how such work would be day in and day out. When a drover came in to see me it wasn't difficult to imagine that he was a white-collared capitalist in a high-priced car. I had to keep a watch on myself or I would have given him a surly look and a disgruntled reply to his questions.

This all happened before the meal hour was near enough to be interesting. I discovered that the middle of the forenoon or afternoon is a poor time to joke. It is better to wait until half an hour before dinner or supper. When half time is just passing a man has used up his first wind and is wondering when his second wind will come to his aid. I found it came just as rosy visions of a good meal began to appear in my imagination. Then a joke could be appreciated. I was no longer a down-trodden day-laborer, but a hungry farmer working at a new job.

Sleep Instead of Politics.

When supper time did arrive somebody suggested that it would be a good idea to finish laying the chicken coop floor before dark. That meant working until 7 o'clock. After supper the cows had to be milked and the other chores done. I didn't feel a bit interested in politics that evening. The bed in the tent was the most interesting and appealing thing I could turn my mind to. And it wasn't long before I was asleep.

As far as I can see, every day for the next month will be just as crowded. It is unfortunate, for if we don't have the time to ponder on matters of state before the election, we must forego the privilege of "cushin' the guvment" which is every sovereign voter's inalienable right.

LET'S FOLLOW IN THEIR TRAIL. Most all our griefs, some people claim,

Are due to rush and haste; I rather think they're fruitage from Extravagance of taste. The trouble with our race today, As it appears to me, Is that a host of people want The earth and all the sea.

Our forebears had far less than we. Yet, joy-filled hearts they knew. Because, in their contented age, They'd wholesome wants and few; Then, in our quest for happiness, 'Twould be of great avail If gladly, as their worthy sons, We'd follow in their trail.

Some things must firmly be denied From craving babyhood, And we'll need off our greed to curb. For our unceasing good; And, in this age of rush and haste, He walks in wisdom's path Whose happiness does not consist In earthly things he hath.

It is a virtue, not a sin, To wish for best of gifts; He's best, that such he may obtain, His soul to heaven he lifts; Yet, do not let us foolish be And cover all the earth; Contentment with the good vouchsafed Will prove of matchless worth.

With those whose gifts and graces rare Be our rejoicing known; And as they've kept their hearts from greed Well may we keep our own. Then, when the day of all great days Has drawn aside the veil, Our fathers shall rejoice to find We've followed in their trail.

COURT EXEMPTS FROM PAYMENT

Carpenter Cannot Collect From Morris Gootson, Rules Judge.

The house of Gootson was split in twain, and the carpenter who did the work cannot collect from Morris Gootson, Judge Macbeth decided in division court this morning. It was Mr. Gootson's first appearance in division court, and the members of the bar present were unanimous in congratulating him on the skill which he used in winning his case.

Mr. Gootson's words were well chosen, but his delivery exceeded the speed limit prevailing in the division court, and his manner of eloquence was lost on the judge.

"You might as well talk in Yiddish, as at the rate you are going," the judge told him.

Morris applied the brakes, and began his recital over again.

It seems that Mr. Gootson was having some repairs done on a house which he owned. The carpenter on the job, however, was so careless, he alleged, that the house was cracked down the center of the roof. Mr. Gootson invited the judge to go and see for himself. Mr. Gootson could not see why he should pay the carpenter $50 for mending his house, and told the court so.

Judge Macbeth thought it was sound reasoning, and dismissed the claim against Morris.

TINKHAM WARNS AGAINST LEAGUE

Congressman States the World Court Not Independent and Free Body.

Associated Press Despatch. Locarno, Switzerland, Oct. 14.—George Holden Tinkham of Boston, representative in the United States congress, who is about to embark for the United States after spending considerable time studying the assembly of the league of nations, and later the world court of justice at The Hague, has made the following statement of his views:

"The United States should not enter either the council and assembly at Geneva, or the league court at The Hague unless it is clearly understood that in joining either of these mechanisms the United States is definitely entering upon a covenant with the league of nations and abandoning forever a clear-cut consistent policy of no foreign political alliances directly or indirectly.

"The council and assembly are a political mechanism and the league court is an essential organ of the council and assembly and has its being and character from them, although by a separate statute to which all the members of the council assembly have adhered.

"The court is chosen by the council and assembly, and reports to them and must be re-elected every nine years by them and refers its opinions to them and so is under their dominion and political control.

"This is not an independent free court such as the United States should join unless she is completely entangled finally in European politics."

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE ARRANGED BY VETERANS

To Be Held Sunday Following Thanksgiving, According to New Plans.

Military officers here are preparing for the Armistice Day parade, which will be held on the Sunday following Thanksgiving Day. The old procedure of having the garrison parade the Sunday before the anniversary of the cessation of war hostilities is to be discontinued as it was found that many ex-service men were away on Thanksgiving holidays at that time.

It is expected there will be a large parade this year. Units of the various militia regiments here, together with veterans and headquarters staff, will parade.

CRONYN MEMORIAL CHURCH SCENE OF PRETTY NUPTIALS

Miss Lorraine Abbott Weds Harold Irving Smith of Toronto.

Gold and bronze mums in tall standards, stately palms and ferns, transformed the Cronyn Memorial church into a bower of autumn beauty this afternoon for the marriage of Lorraine Muriel Neterville, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester Abbott, to Harold Irving Smith of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Leighton Smith, Shaughnessy Heights, Vancouver, B. C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Quintin Warner in the presence of a large congregation, although the pews accommodated only the bride and intimate friends of the groom.

Gold, ferns and tall standards of black and yellow mums flanked the altar, while great baskets of gold and bronze chrysanthemums had been placed on the reading desks. The back of the church, too, was gay with palms and high standards of mums, while the guest pews were marked by great shaggy chrysanthemums, tied with broad white ribbons.

Gown of Gold.
Promptly at 2:30 o'clock the youthful bride appeared on the arm of her father, wearing a lovely gown of gold lace, over a cloth of gold. Fashioned simply on straight lines, the lace overgown was so woven as to fall in ripples at the hem line. Two hands, flowing from each shoulder to the hem in front, were exquisitely embroidered in gold, rubies and brilliants, while the gown was caught at the low waistline with a girle of brilliants and rubies.

Gold stockings and black satin slippers were worn, while the bride's hair was styled in a model, trimmed across the back and to one side with a big soft bow of gold lace. She wore a stole of Russian sable, and carried orchids, sunset roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only ornaments were a diamond platinum lavalier, set with diamonds, the gift of the groom, and a handsome platinum marquise ring, set with a large ruby in a circle of diamonds, the gift of her father and mother.

Wrap of Velvet.
To the church the bride wore a lovely wrap of black velvet, lined with gold and caught with gold tassels. Mr. Bob Dingman of Toronto acted as best man, while the wedding music was played by the church organist. During the signing of the register, Miss Estelle Kerr sang delightfully, O Fair, O Sweet and Holy. The ushers were Mr. Kenny Noxon of Toronto and Mr. Goodwin Harris of Cobourg.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Queen's avenue. The bridal pair received in the living-room, where the gold and bronze color scheme was again carried out in the decorations. Standards of gold and bronze mums were used effectively as the predominant decoration. The dining-room decorations were pink roses and lilies of the valley, combined prettily with gold ribbons. The wedding cake had the place of honor on the bride's table. Set in a bank of white tulle, it was surmounted with a silver vase of pink roses, lilies of the valley and fern.

Reception Follows.
Dr. and Mrs. Chester Abbott, parents of the bride, received with the bride couple, the latter wearing a modish gown of walnut brown cut velvet, made on straight lines, with a flare hemline. Her hat was of black satin, trimmed with a beautiful bird of paradise, while her hose were brown, and her slippers of black satin. She wore a corsage bouquet of orchids, rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Her wrap was of seal skin. The parents of the groom were unable to attend the wedding, owing to their presence in China, for the approaching marriage of their daughter, Mrs. William Payne, of this city, and Mrs. Samuel Abbott of Toronto, grandmothers of the bride, were honored guests of the occasion.

The former wore a giraffe gown of black crepe, with panels prettily painted in violets, a smart black hat with ostrich mount, and corsage of violets. Mrs. Abbott wore a gown of black crepe, handsomely embroidered in white, a black hat with ostrich mount, and corsage of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride was smartly gowned in beige lace and crepe over pink satin, caught to the side with a large pink rose. Her hat was of black velvet and lace with an ostrich mount.

Leave for New York.
Later this afternoon the bride and groom left for their honeymoon which will be spent in New York and Atlantic City. For travelling the bride donned a smart French knitted gown in gray, a small gray felt hat, gray shoes and hose, and corsage of orchids. Her wrap was of gray squirrel. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Hayman Court, this city.

Several handsome checks were included among the many presents with which the young couple were showered. A gift from the bride's mother was a handsome travelling case with fittings of tortoise shell and gold from the directors of the Dominion Securities Company of Toronto came a beautiful case of flat silver; from the bond salesman of the Dominion Securities, Toronto, a large sterling silver tray, and from the Bondmen's Association of London, a handsome bi-fold cigarette box.

House guests for the wedding included Mrs. Samuel Abbott and Miss Abbott of Toronto; Dr. Edward Abbott, Dr. Frank Abbott, Mr. Kenn Noxon, Mr. Wm. Wray and Mr. Bob Dingman, all of Toronto, and Mr. Goodwin Harris of Cobourg.

FALLOU MAY BE CREATED CARDINAL

Bishop of London Likely To Be Honored If Two Named.

Intimation from Quebec that Pope Pius XI is likely to name two Canadian cardinals early in December, prompted Sir Philip Pocock, prominent member of St. Peter's cathedral parish, this morning, to reiterate his opinion, expressed three months ago, following the death of Cardinal Bezzin, Quebec, that Rt. Rev. Michael F. Fallon, D.D. bishop of London, should be honored by the gift of the red hat.

"Should two cardinals be appointed," observed Mr. Pocock, "it is more than likely that one would be French-speaking, as have been all previous Canadian cardinals, and that the other would be English-speaking. Appointments of this nature would not be made in any competitive sense, but rather following out the diplomatic policy of the Roman Catholic church in doing its utmost to recognize outstanding services among the different groups which make up the entire body of the church.

"And thus the second of two cardinals," concluded Mr. Pocock, "no priest could be more deserving or more capable of discharging the duties of such an high office than Bishop Fallon, who as bishop of the diocese of London, has rendered signal service to the church, particularly along educational lines."

His Grace Mgr. Enard, archbishop of Ottawa, is mentioned as a probable cardinal for the dominion.

SURVEY OF CITY MAINS WILL CUT WATER LOSS

City Secures Services of Surveyor From New York Corporation.

Roland Quenau, representing the Pitometer Surveying Company, New York, is in the city working on the preliminary details of the survey to be made by that company for the public utility commission. His endeavor to cut down on the leakage of 37 per cent in the water pumped by the commission estimates that the leakage to be 10 per cent, since with a joint every ten feet in 150 miles of mains and pipes some leakage can hardly be avoided. Since the commission pumps 5,000,000 gallons of water per day the loss of 37 per cent of that amount becomes a Victoria hospital, through presentations made by Col. W. M. Garshore, chairman of the hospital trust. The sets, erected yesterday and this morning in the men's and women's medical and surgical wards, will be in operation this afternoon.

ONTARIO SYNOD OPENS SESSION AT TORONTO

Shouldering of Responsibility of Immigration Question Main Feature Discussed.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Oct. 13.—The shouldering by the Church of England of its responsibilities in regard to the immigration question in Canada formed the main feature of discussions carried on during the opening sessions of the provincial synod of the province of Ontario held here today. The question was introduced by the archbishop of Algoma in his charge to the synod, and one of the afternoon sessions, who declared that the church could not free herself from something which so closely affected the temporal and moral character of the country.

The following were elected officers of the synod: Prolocutor of the lower house, the Very Rev. Dean Tucker of London, Ont.; deputy prolocutor, Provost Seager of Trinity college, Toronto; assessors to the prolocutor, Chancellor J. A. Worrell and Mr. Chancellor Boyce of Ottawa; secretary to the lower house, Rev. Canon W. J. Brain; honorary lay secretary of the lower house, Mr. James Nicholson; honorary treasurer of the provincial synod, Mr. H. M. Cody; secretary to the upper house, Rev. C. W. Balfour.

HIGH TARIFF WOULD HARM RURAL SECTIONS

Hon. Herbert Marler States Canada Has Too Many Factories.

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, Oct. 14.—Hon. Herbert Marler, government candidate in St. Lawrence-St. George, told those who assembled for the opening speech of his campaign here last night that he entered the Mackenzie King government because he had obtained what he wanted in the four years he had been at Ottawa, namely, a scientific advisory tariff board. He denied changing his tariff views since his election in 1921 or since his much discussed speech in the commons, declaring that he had voted against the 1924 budget so as to be consistent with the views expressed in his address of that session. He had wanted a tariff board and when he got it he had gone into the cabinet, he said.

The honest manufacturer, Mr. Marler said, had nothing to fear from the Liberal party. He and his colleagues were for a fair and equitable tariff, but not a high tariff, which he felt would add to the already too heavily congested cities and harm the rural sections. In his opinion there were too many factories in Canada and industry has been over-expanded, while the urban population of Canada is too large.

WORLD OF TRAGEDY STALKS THROUGH CHARITY ACCOUNTS

Beds and meals for homeless women and children, expenses covering cost of burying a little girl, these are some of the items which speak a world of tragedy. They were checked off this morning at a board meeting of the Salvation Army held in Clarence street citadel. The meeting, the first since last spring, was called to go into the expenditures for urgent help to suffering families.

Among the many alms of paper, receipts from grocers and butchers, were notations, telling a story of how great the suffering had been in the homes where sickness and death stalked.

More than 100 meals were served, upwards of 100 beds were given to homeless people. In addition to these were bills for a stove, babies' clothing, milk tickets for children, funeral expenses and a score of other things.

Those present on the board were: Lieut.-Col. McAmmond, Adjt. Ursaki, Commandant Hurd, Capt. Whitehead, Adjt. Lewis.

Sentiment Swings To King, Asserts Miss Armstrong; National Unity Main Issue

Liberal Organizer on Visit to City—Fitted As Prophet.

Miss Isabel Armstrong, formerly of London and now with the Liberal organization at Ottawa, is in London today being on a speaking tour of parts of Western Ontario on behalf of Liberalism in the present election campaign. Miss Armstrong, who is exceptionally well fitted for her present duties and who is in a position to hear the latest reports from everywhere in the dominion of Canada, says that the unquestionably sentimental swinging into support of the King government, people recognizing that Canadian unity may be secured only through the policies advocated by Premier King.

Miss Armstrong states that the people of Canada fear that the policy being advocated by the King government would make more acute the sectionalism created by the residents of one part of the dominion demanding a special policy not in accord with that of another. People recognize more and more as election day approaches that to maintain harmony within the dominion the middle policy of Mr. King is best as it cannot benefit one section of Canada more than another. She spoke enthusiastically of the reception being given the prime minister both east and west and now in Ontario.

New Comet Discovered

Associated Press Despatch. Kiel, Germany, Oct. 14.—A despatch received by the Kiel observatory from Karko, Russia, reports the discovery of a new comet by the Russian astronomer, Barbaschoff, in the constellation of Pegasus, southeast of the star Pegasi-Theta. The comet and its tail are visible through low power glasses. Pegasus is a constellation of the northern hemisphere, appearing between Pisces and Aquarius.

MEIGHEN IS FEARED

Miss Armstrong states that the queer scheme of politics being played by opponents of the King government in Quebec is obvious to everyone. Quebec does not recognize Meighen. His name is a handicap so that those against Mr. King are using Mr. Patenaude as the great leader in Quebec. Patenaude, strange to say, is receiving his greatest support from the English press and the English speaking big interests of Montreal, who frame his policy and use him for the spear head.

The fact that none of the great French newspapers of Montreal or of the province are supporting Mr. Patenaude has a significance that must be borne in mind when considering the Conservative boasts that they will carry from 20 to 30 seats in Quebec.

Miss Armstrong, formerly of the Advertiser staff, expressed great pleasure at being back in her native city and at the news that Liberalism was being enthusiastically endorsed in London.

WRAY REPUDIATES CLAIM OF TORIES

Very Small Fraction of Force Across Border—They Are Returning.

That the statement of George A. Elliott, M.L.A., to the effect that half the Canadian army that was in France is now in the United States is grossly exaggerated, is the contention of Harry Wray, president of the London command of the G. W. V. A. From his own extensive knowledge of the movements of veterans since the war, Mr. Wray declares that the number of ex-service men on the other side of the border is, in reality, at the present time, a very small fraction of the Canadian expeditionary force.

"Each week sees a large number of veterans returning to Canada," the G. W. V. A. president points out, "Ex-service men are realizing more and more that Canada is the land of the better opportunities."

STIRRETT OPENS E. LAMBTON FIGHT

Candidate Addresses Liberal Rallies at Thamesville and Dresden.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Thamesville, Oct. 13.—The opening meeting in the present Liberal campaign was held tonight when J. R. Stirrett, East Lambton candidate, addressed a representative audience in the opera house. On the platform with the candidate were C. W. Lamarch and J. T. Kerr, of Chatham. James Brown, George Dickson and Barney Featherstone, of this village, with President D. G. Sturgis, of the East Lambton Liberal Association, as chairman. During the evening, instrumental selections were rendered by Mrs. Allard. Mr. Lamarch gave an explanation of the government railway system and of the fine showing made by Sir Henry Thornton, which showed a very substantial profit on operations. James Brown, a stalwart, who had worked with former Liberal celebrities in this riding, in short address urged the voters to work for present candidate, and place Liberalism where it belonged in the forefront of East Lambton.

In a lengthy address, J. C. Kerr, of

SENATE REFORMS

By a Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press.

North Bay, Oct. 13.—"I am not given to political prophecy," Premier King told a North Bay audience tonight, "but I am prepared to stake my reputation, as one able to judge a political situation, that there will be more Liberals elected in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Northern Ontario than there were elected in the last election."

"We have no concern about being returned," Mr. King declared further. "We know that we are going to be returned. What we are concerned about is whether we are going to have a stronger enough majority to do the things we want to do for Canada."

The prime minister predicted that practically the entire province of Quebec would go Liberal; that Ontario would demonstrate that it was strongly heading towards Liberal policies; that the results from the north would be very satisfactory from the Liberal point of view.

He reviewed the government's record and its policies. He thought that nothing short of a political revolution would put Mr. Meighen in power on a policy of high protection.

He observed that the Liberal party was pledged to senate reform. "We want to make this clear," Mr. King exclaimed. "We are deciding this thing now, the fate of the house of commons but also of the senate, for the simple reason that the Liberal party is pledged to senate reform. It is a coming issue, and only those who have agreed to work in bringing about senate reform."

Mr. King pressed the point that, under the constitution, the senate could be reformed only from the inside. "I cannot ask the governor-general to let me appoint senators," he said jocularly. "I can only pray fervently to Providence to take away some of the old ones." The government measure of senate reform which senators to take the place of ten who were "somewhat else."

"In a little while the prime minister added, "we shall have a majority in the senate as we have in the commons. When we get that majority in the senate we shall put through a measure of senate reform which will be effective for all time to come."

defeat of their party candidate, J. E. Armstrong. Several are not going to overwork on his behalf and are not even going to vote for him. The waterworks town seems to have caught the fever of general insurgency and rebellion. There must have been a germ in that famous well water after all.

The local Conservatives have never hidden the fact that they did not want Mr. Armstrong to get the nomination. Some have stated that they are tired of working for one man for 20 years. They considered that the 1921 majority of over 900 piled up for Burt Fansher, a new and almost unknown Progressive candidate, should have been the cue for "J. E." to step aside this time, and with a new man running under their banner more enthusiasm could be worked up and probably bring victory back again.

They are not keenly optimistic about Mr. Armstrong's chances in either a two or three-cornered contest. Howard Fraleigh, flax manufacturer of Forest, was the nomination candidate of the Forest delegation at the convention. Mr. Armstrong won on the first ballot, being solidly backed by the south, led by Petrolia.

Dodge Responsibility.

Some of the chief local officers of the party ducked the job of acting chairman for Mr. Armstrong's meeting here on Friday evening. Howard Fraleigh finally had to do it himself, and was the only local Conservative on the platform with the speakers. Petrolia and its alleged dominance of the riding politics is in the bad books of both the local Conservatives and Liberals.

The Liberal situation here is plainly out in the open, and it is, perhaps, a more serious affair than the Conservative one. Following a couple of small meetings, the officers of the local Liberals decided that North Lambton Grats had just two choices to make. The first was to again accept Mr. Fansher, the present Progressive member, who would at least support the King government with a percentage of his votes, or, to have instead Mr. Armstrong, who would naturally hand the King government a large round zero. So Mr. Armstrong is not exactly the absolute favorite of either the local Grats or Tories.

On the other hand, the Forest Liberals "viewed with alarm" the rumors that the Petrolia Liberals, backed by the south, were bringing out a candidate to make a three-cornered race. Such a move was and still is considered by the town Liberals to be unwise. They can see little chance of a Liberal victory, but say that they can see without the aid of a telescope the certainty of a tailor-made victory handed to J. E. Armstrong on a silver plate with an oil dressing. The Petrolia Liberal officers are named as the tailors in the affair.

Not Interested in Oil.

And speaking of oil, the North Lambton citizens to a great extent, irrespective of party politics, do not seem to be much interested in the oil bounty question that does interest the Petrolia region.

The new Liberal candidate, Mr. Stirrett, must be given impartial credit for being game anyway, as on the day prior to his nomination he came to Forest to interview some of the insurgent locals. The young man was plainly told that they were going to support Fansher. And that was Dresden, Oct. 13.—Asserting that the Progressive party were blocking the path of progress, J. R. Mr. Stirrett spoke in Thamesville tonight, in Alvington on Wednesday, at S. S. No. 4, Brooke, on Thursday, and at Inwood on Saturday. Next meeting will be taken up in the north of the riding.

Peter Rabbit Visits Mr. Chipmunk To Learn All About His Storehouse

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit sat around by the Old Stone Wall until Striped Chipmunk came back. As usual, his cheeks were stuffed so that Peter wondered how he could possibly get through his little round doorway. He disappeared between two stones and when he reappeared, of course, he no longer had his pockets full. "My striped friend," said Peter, "I've been working ever since sunup. Yes, sir, I've been working ever since sunup. I hate to think how many times I have run between those nut trees on the edge of the Green Forest and this 'ome of mine. My storehouse is getting as full as I shall have to make another."

"Why don't you stop and rest a bit?" asked Peter. "And while you are doing if you might tell me something about that storehouse of yours. You know, Striped Chipmunk, I don't want to know where it really is. Of course, it wouldn't make any difference if I did because I couldn't get to it if I wanted to, and I wouldn't want to if I could, for there is nothing in it that interests me. But I would like to know what it's like. And I would like to know, too, Striped Chipmunk, why you stop so hard to lay up food when you spend so much time sleeping. That doesn't seem reasonable to me. That doesn't seem like good sense. Yet I always hear you spoken of as one of the most sensible of all the little people in the Green Forest."

"I'm glad I have such a good reputation," replied Striped Chipmunk. "I don't mind telling you, Peter, what my storehouse is like, because you can't get to it if you want to. In the first place I have a very crooked passageway. Of course, I have a perfectly comfortable bedroom. I often keep a little food in there. But opening off of my hall are several store-rooms. They are of very good size. It is in these that I keep my food supply for the winter. You say that you don't see why I store up much food and work so hard to do it when I know that I am going to sleep a good part of the winter. Let me tell you something, Peter Rabbit. It isn't just for winter that I lay in these supplies for. Of course, I use some of them in the winter, for I walk up more often than you think, and when I wake up I eat a little. But these supplies in my storehouse are quite as much spring supplies as winter supplies. For folks who live on nuts and seeds, spring is the hardest time of the whole year unless there is a supply stored away. You can see how that would be. There are no many nuts or seeds left on the ground by the time spring gets around. But I always have plenty in my storehouse and so I never have to go hungry. I've seen the time when if I hadn't had a storehouse to draw on I probably would have starved to death. At this time of year food is plentiful and so it is always worth the work to fill my storehouses."

"I notice that you have been bringing acorns today," said Peter. "The other day when I saw you, you had hickory nuts."

Striped Chipmunk nodded. "Yes," said he. "I've got a lot of fine hickory nuts and I've got a lot of fine acorns and a lot of fine beechnuts. I like variety. If it weren't so far down to Farmer Brown's cornfield I'd like some corn. However, probably Farmer Brown's boy will put some out this winter where I can find it."

"Have you any other kinds of food?" asked Peter.

Striped Chipmunk nodded again. "Of course," said he. "I've got a lot of seeds down there. I've got a lot of buttercup seeds for one thing I like them. And I've got a lot of other seeds. The only trouble with storing seeds is that it takes so long to store enough to make it worth while. Now if you'll excuse me, Peter, I think I'll go down and start to work on a new storehouse. When acorns are as plentiful as they are this year, I simply can't allow them to go to waste. We can't allow them to go to waste, or an extra late spring. It won't make any difference to me if we do."

He sighed. "It would to me," said he. "There's Happy Jack over on the edge of the Green Forest. I think I'll go over and call on him."

SCHOOL CHILDREN ARE RESPECTFUL

Miss Cannell Disapproves Teaching of Manners in School—Speaks to Ryerson Mothers.

The teaching of manners to children in public schools in the present day was rather discouraged by Miss Cannell, who last night addressed an enthusiastic meeting of the Ryerson mothers' club. Miss Cannell stated that the children of today showed a great deal more respect for their teachers than did the children of the previous generation. Nicknames, so commonly used for instructors a few years ago, are now almost entirely absent at the present time.

The speaker, a former public school teacher, spoke from her own experience and pointed out the necessity of co-operation between the parents, teachers and children. "Children must be taught the value of obedience, attentiveness and regularity," Miss Cannell stated. "Parents have rights; so have the teachers. Both sides of the child's story must be heard before any judgment is passed." She also pointed out the necessity of mothers speaking respectfully of teachers before their children and of teachers speaking respectfully of mothers.

She also said that the impossibilities should not be expected. She pointed out, too, that a little homework was good for children. Privileges for children should not be asked.

Miss Cannell, who is a wonderful story-teller herself, impressed upon the mothers the charms of tales and encouraged them to do more in this line among their young folk.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Jack Ferguson, and during the evening solos by Mr. Pearce and Mrs. Jenkins were much enjoyed.

WARD 3 W.C.T.U. HEARS CONVENTION REPORT

Electors' League Also Discussed at Meeting in Trinity United Church.

At yesterday's meeting of the ward three W. C. T. U., Mrs. G. K. Bradshaw, the recently appointed corresponding secretary for the union, was introduced to the members. The meeting was held in the Trinity United church and was presided over by the president, Mrs. M. Hawken.

The afternoon was featured by addresses on the recent provincial W. C. T. U. convention held in Pennington, N. B., by Mrs. M. Hawken and Mrs. A. E. Tuttle, the delegates. Mrs. Hawken reported on the business part of the conference, while Mrs. Tuttle told of the social aspects of it. They reported that the provincial executive had accepted an invitation to hold the 1924 annual meeting in Hamilton.

During the afternoon the members discussed the work of the electors' league and the work of the organization in the riding, also the ideal of having every member linked up with the league and thereby ready to use their influence among their friends toward the furtherance of the temperance ideal.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. John Jones. During a short business session plans were also made for a rummage sale to be held some time in November.

WOMAN PREMIER MAY HEAD CANADA

Lady Cowan Encourages Buying of Imperial-Made Goods—Also Education.

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—That the women of Canada should foster the idea, now so prevalent among the women of England of demanding imperial-made goods, was the desire expressed by Lady Cowan, wife of Sir Henry Cowan, a well-known member of the British house of commons, who is among the delegates to the Inter-Parliamentary union, and who addressed a largely-attended meeting of the Ottawa University Women's club yesterday afternoon.

Lady Cowan, who has been president of the British Women's Patriotic league for the last five years, told of the work the women were doing in England. The league has for its motto: "Our Country First." "I am an internationalist," the speaker stated, "but I am a patriot and a lover of my country first."

"I am not a university woman myself," the speaker said, "because I come from Scotland, where the university was not open to women during my school days." Lady Cowan's mother did not approve of a girl receiving a university training, but a home training so that she might one day settle down and marry. Lady Cowan, like her mother, believes that to be the greatest future for a woman, but she is of the opinion that the university training is not a hindrance, but a splendid training which fits a woman for every circumstance in life. Women today can become anything they want; there are unlimited possibilities of public service, and there is an open door to any profession. It won't be long," the speaker predicted, before there may be a woman premier.

Mackenzie King Government Reduces the Cost of Living

By ISABEL C. ARMSTRONG.

Liberalism and the Liberal party are founded on the principle of consideration for the rights and welfare of all the people, not the interests of a privileged and powerful few. Liberalism, interpreted in the Liberal party, has concerned itself in the past and is concerning itself today with bringing about better living conditions for every man, woman and child in Canada.

The people are very few and far between in this country for whom the question is not of paramount importance, of having an income on which they can live, and getting more and better value for the money they spend.

The Mackenzie King government entered upon the duties of administration in the closing days of 1921, with a pledge to keep and a definite objective, namely, to reduce as speedily as possible, the pressing burden of the high cost of living.

In four years of scrupulously economical and business-like national bookkeeping, Mr. Mackenzie King and his supporters have succeeded in: First, reducing the public debt and, in consequence, the annual total of interest thereon; second, reducing public expenditures; third, reducing taxation; fourth, reducing the cost of living.

(Miss Armstrong will explain further tomorrow just how the Mackenzie King government has reduced the cost of living.)

URGES "U" WOMEN TO BE LEADERS

Mrs. John Rose Is Speaker at University Women's Club Autumn Tea.

The University Women's club opened its work for the year with an autumn tea at Players' Craft Studio, Queen's avenue, yesterday afternoon.

She pointed out that the new league of women's committees, which would begin study this year in connection with the local council of women, should have an appeal for university women.

"Of all of the women of London, you women of the University Women's club should be the leaders in its thought," declared the speaker.

Elected Trustees. Mrs. Rose pointed out what the local council of women had accomplished in recent years, referring to the election of women to the school board and the study of the problems of citizenship under the citizenship committee.

Her talk also dipped back into the days of Mrs. H. A. Boomer's presidency of the local council of women, when the whole life of the local council centered about Mrs. Boomer.

"I consider Mrs. Boomer the most wonderful woman I have ever met," she said. "Although over 70 years of age at the time when I best knew her, she was interested in all of the great movements of the day, and kept in close communication with outstanding women all over Canada and the British Empire."

The speaker gave a brief outline of the work of the national council of women, of which the local council is but a branch.

A realization of the work which they were doing might be gleaned, she said, from the different committees which they had formed. Committees existed on citizenship, equal moral standards, fine and applied arts, colonization, mental hygiene, league of nations, professions and employments, laws for better protection of women and children, etc.

Elected Representative. During the afternoon, Mrs. George Lethbridge was elected Toronto representative on the University Women's club executive.

A delightful vocal solo was given by Mrs. Albright, with Miss Helen Patterson, the music convener, at the piano.

The year's program, as it will probably be carried out, will include a few large meetings in co-operation with the University of Western Ontario alumnae, with special speakers, at the November meeting papers will be prepared on the Near Eastern question, a paper on Palestine, on the Mogul question, on excavations and archeological research in the east.

The December meeting will be featured by several book reviews. In January is February it is hoped that Miss Katherine Sabine will give a talk on her social service work in Boston. Later the committee on international relations, conveyed by Mrs. Richard Crouch and Miss Marjorie Ross, will present a program on that subject.

Preceding the meeting coffee was served.

Editor Prefers Long Hair To Bob

States Creator Made Hair Long and Should Be Left That Way.

Special to The Advertiser. Thorold, Oct. 13.—Of course, hosts and hosts of the girls have their hair bobbed, and I am not trying to turn Niagara upstream.

Such was the comment of John Thompson, editor of the Thorold Post and originator of the recent contest for the best head of un-bobbed hair, when shown the letter of a Toronto critic who asked whether he himself gave practical application to his own dictum that "the Creator made hair long, and I am in favor of leaving it that way."

In further reply to this, Mr. Thompson pointed to First Corinthians vi, 15, which reads: "Doth not even nature itself teach you that if a man have long hair, it is a dishonor to him? But if a woman have long hair it is a glory to her?"

SPINDRIFT

An Adventure of the Great Lakes

By HAROLD TITUS

INSTALLMENT 10.

Sunday afternoon. It had been a hot, muggy day, with a fitful breeze from the east, lower in cloud banks creeping in out of the lake, and though barometers had shown no sharp change a thunder shower impended.

Along the road from their humble weather-beaten dwelling, carried straight by Hopp brothers in single file. They were dressed in their best, derived from forgotten vintage crumpled down over their ears, glistening celluloid collars about their brown necks, suits—of such certain blue and such uncertain cut that they flapped about as unmisgivingly as the wind.

They clumped up the steps and William rapped on the door casing. From within came a stirring, the sound of light feet, and Janet appeared.

"Oh, good afternoon, Brothers!" she said, opening the screen door. William swallowed and his pronounced Adam's apple shot up toward his chin and down into the celluloid collar again.

"We've come to play a call," he said. "Pay a call," muttered Willie. "Call," mumbled Will.

"Isn't that fine of you? I've been alone all the afternoon, reading. I'm glad you came. Come right in. I think it's cooler in the house."

"Thought you'd like some flares," quoth William, clutching his hard and honest paw. "Like some flares?"

Like a ticket-taker in some public place, Janet received these humble tokens of esteem, exclaiming over each in turn as they marched, each doffing his stiff derby hat as he passed the threshold and professedly on the way to the chairs for you all, William, take the rocker, Willie, over here, and Will, this is about your size.

They seated themselves. "Can't I take your hats?" "No, we'll hold 'em on our laps," on our laps.

Each gathered his Sunday hat in the circle of his forearms and each sighed, one after the other, as Janet seated herself on a couch and Willie looked at William.

"Looks a little squally," remarked the elder. "Little squally?" "Squally."

"Doesn't it, though! But the weather's been fine lately. I hope it keeps good for another three weeks. When I'm home I hate to miss an hour outdoors, but when I'm teaching I don't mind storms so much."

"I don't mind storms so much," said William, blinking, without another change in expression. "Sorry when you go?"

"Why don't you teach our school?" asked William. "Teach our school?"

Little Will, the youngest and the only one who ever betrayed any excitement, shifted slightly in his chair and winked his better eye, as if he seemed to be brighter and he looked adoringly at his oldest brother as if to convey his admiration for the miracle that could conceive such a happy suggestion.

"Oh, perhaps they wouldn't want me!" the girl laughed. "Your father's head of the board," said the head of the board.

"That's so, isn't it? But—maybe, after all, I'm a little selfish about it. I can make more money in Escobato than the district here could pay me, and I have a better chance to work into a better job."

Janet talked on, about the blessing of being busy, about the pranks of life which separate people from their friends, she spoke in simple terms that the three men could well understand.

He had regained his self-control by the time Janet ran down the path, though, and little fellow was scared to tell us because I'd told my boys not to play on the water. "When it was milking time and I wanted 'em to get 'th cow, he heard me callin' and told his father."

"We saw their tracks on the beach. They'd pulled out some old cedar bunks and made the raft out of 'em. The wind's off shore there, and—"

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chambers, who recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

He saw Janet then, and turned his face away. Old Cap'n Needham spoke roughly: "How long ago was that, Sam?"

"I don't know, Cap'n, but they're about yet," he said in his voice, the evident struggle to steel himself and not to give way to a forlorn prelude hope, a sense of pity to mingle with Janet's alarm.

"Ted's only nine, y' know, and little Bobbie—"

"Where's he?" "Coming now!" the girl said, excitedly, at the moment the place was in action. At Janet's cry Goodheart came at a run. Haines appeared from his net house. The Hopp Brothers swung out at the sound of lifted voices.

"Everybody and every boat that's got power," the cap'n was saying. "Steer up, Val! All right, Goodheart, Janet'll take you. Brothers, come along while I get Joe and I'll tell you what you're expected to do."

By then the men were emptying themselves and under the fringe of cedars where on so many occasions peaceful and contented people had loafed an excited group gathered about Sam Faxon, who could not speak coherently, but who stood with his eyes turned to the west where, behind the curtain of mist, two little boys drifted on a trail raft of fence posts—or else where the parts of the raft were even then strewn over the surface of the bay.

In twenty minutes Cap'n Needham was backing his Wanderer away from her dock. Lines on the North Star were being slackened. The three Hoppes were coughing her way out into the channel, and John Goodheart bending over the motor of Needham's open boat, adjusted the motor.

While Janet, dressed in yellow oilskins from head to heels, wheeled the craft in the wake of her father's tug.

The boat in which John and Janet set out was a sturdy, twenty-five footer, wide of beam, ungainly but seaworthy. To classify it would be to call it a motor launch, but it was no launch in the strict meaning of the word, for it was not a pleasure craft.

A fishing boat, rather, used by the cap'n in trapping men in pound nets, and its construction made it possible to tie it up to the stakes of nets and for men to lift the pot without taking to sea.

The motor was a heavy-duty, single-cylinder machine that sent the craft along at a speed only slightly less than the fishing speed of the steam tugs.

But the larger boats were not leaving this search at fishing speed. Their margin of time for search and rescue was tragically narrow.

John left the motor, stepped over the broad thwart just forward of it, and took his place beside Janet, who held the wheel and stared straight into the west. He started to speak to the girl, but a glance at her face shut his lips. It did more than that, for tears brimming on her fair lashes set his heart in a strange turmoil, as pronounced as any of those upsetting experiences with which this narrative is concerned.

He had never seen such beauty before; he had never witnessed an expression of a woman's face that went so straight to the heart of a man. Tensity was there, and fright; doubt and hope, but with all these, wonderful as it was, the girl's face that looked at him.

"You brought your olkskins," she said. "Aren't you going to use them?" "Then for the first time he realized that the curtain of rain he reached them and that stinging drops were falling.

He wriggled into his heavy-weather clothing as the squall struck. The torrent tore at the surface of the bay, the wind vied with the falling rain.

KEEN ENTHUSIASM GREET'S RAYMOND

Liberal Gathering of 1,500 Applaud Speakers in Theatre at Brantford.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.
Brantford, Oct. 13.—Keen enthusiasm for the Liberal cause, and particularly for W. G. Raymond, Liberal candidate for Brantford in the coming election, featured the mass meeting in Brant theatre tonight. The gathering, which really marks the opening of the intensive campaign, was attended by 1,500 people, who listened with the closest attention to the speeches delivered by Mr. Raymond, who represented the riding in the last parliament; Miss Isabel Armstrong, Liberal women's organizer; Senator J. P. Rankin, M.D., Stratford, and Earl Homuth, Preston, Labor member of the Ontario legislature for South Waterloo.

"The Conservative policy can bring only only distress to the working people," asserted Mr. Homuth positively at the outset of his address, which was the most rousing discourse of the evening, "and calamity to the country as a whole. If those Tory buy-in-Canada men would buy Canadian automobiles instead of American cars at $8,000 or $9,000 there would not be the work for Canadians in the U.S. that there is, and they would be able to stay at home here and work. It is not the poor man's wife who buys Oriental rugs and French shoes, or the poor man expensive English worsteds and tweeds. The concern of the Conservative party is not for the workingman, but for higher protection and greater profit for their own industries.

Stoop To Anything.
"The Conservative party will stoop to anything to gain power. They will set class against class, creed against creed, industry against agriculture, capital against labor and east against west. Mr. Meighen's blue rain cry has been most disastrous to this country, he has no regard for the truth in his statements and his promises are like that Conservative beer, full of bubbles and foam. (The rest was drowned in laughter and applause.)

"This election is a fight between forces which tend to poverty and disunion in the country on the one hand, and forces which tend to the welfare of every Canadian, the contentment of the people of the dominion on the other hand. Mr. Meighen has persistently slandered Canada from one end to the other; he has been charged with sedition for much less serious words, and he has been the very best publicity agent for the United States during the past three years, and all for parties in power; all for the sake of trying to out the King government and get into power himself.

Mr. Meighen in his heart does not believe in the high tariff medicine he is trying to get the people to take," averred Mr. Raymond in a brief but a hot speech. "The Conservatives have never raised the tariff since John A. Macdonald did it in 1879, and all this talk about protection is a plain piece of humbug is a kindly general word. If the tariff is raised as high as Mr. Meighen wants it, high enough to keep our foreign goods, then the government's revenue will have to come in some other way, presumably by direct taxation. I would possibly accept a personal promise made by Mr. Meighen, but for a political promise, I would use all the salt available.

Canadians Return.
"You know very well that in 1920 there were 4,000 men walking the streets of Brantford out of work, while I need only mention the return to prosperity number issued by the Expatriator this summer for you to consider the very satisfactory and highly gratifying change in the conditions.

Senator Rankin prefaced his remarks by a cordial personal compliment to Mr. Raymond, referring to his wide scholarship, his interest in his constituents, and his great influence with the government. Senator Rankin contrasted the economic condition of the U. S. under the Conservative government from 1881 to 1891, with the tens of thousands of Canadians returning to the dominion in recent months.

Mr. Meighen's tariff policy is like an old horse—it has no teeth and it has no speed; it is out of touch with the age, and it can never catch up. Premier King's tariff policy, his little roster that guarantees tariff stability throughout the dominion and that promises a tariff and taxation which will largely take the tariff out of the sphere of politics.

Miss Armstrong enunciated the four-fold policy of Liberalism, embracing economy in government, development of national resources, extension of markets and racial and religious harmony. National unity, she pointed out, is the result of the reductions made by the King government in the sales tax on cereals, meats, milk and other household necessities. She referred also to the increase in the income tax exemption from $200 to $500 for each dependent child.

GRAHAM HITS FALSE ALARMS, DEFENDS RAILWAY POLICIES AT OXFORD LIBERAL RALLIES

Minister of Railways Speaks at Ingersoll and Woodstock Meetings.

EXPOSES MEIGHEN

Irrefutable Figures Disprove Tory Claim of Impending Ruin.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.
Ingersoll, Oct. 13.—Sweeping denunciation of the "Fire, Fire" tactics of Hon. Arthur Meighen, an expert in vining proof that the campaign of the Conservative party is built on a foundation of perverted trade and progress statistics were keynotes of a compelling address delivered here tonight by Hon. George S. Graham, minister of railways, before a crowd of more than 700 people.

The Mason arena resounded with the cheers of the electors of South Oxford as the capable cabinet minister took the Tory leaders' "false alarms," and exposed them one by one with irrefutable official figures and unbiased reports of Canada's four basic industries, farming, mining, lumbering and fishing.

Cheers Pay Tribute.
A burst of applause lasted for a full minute paid tribute to the King regime as Hon. Mr. Graham climaxed his plea for support of Jas. W. Innes, Liberal candidate, with the ringing declaration, "Get behind the man who backs the party that is not afraid to back the party that is the best country in the world."

Other speakers were Hon. George R. Smith, well-known Hamilton manufacturer; Mrs. Verne Meek, one of the outstanding women Liberals of the riding; M. S. Schell, ex-M. P. for South Oxford, who has again acted as chairman, and F. E. Congdon, ex-M. P. for the Yukon.

Dealing intimately with the affairs of the Canadian National Railways, the trade treaties with Australia and the West Indies, and with the present status of dairy produce in the market, Mr. Graham declared that there isn't a fire in any of the mainstays of the structure of the country.

King Quenched Fires.
"The Meighen government was ousted from office after firing that structure in many places, but the King government has quenched those fires, and has put a policy of fair play," he declared, with a eloquence that brought an immediate cheer from his audience.

"The people of Canada are too sane to allow Meighen to run around in the seat of government with an orange in his hand, and his own minister of railways placed his faith in the ability of the electors to see through the shallow blarney which Meighen has used to lead the dominion on the verge of ruin.

In a brief resume of the present tariff policy he pointed out that if it were possible for the farmer to have more money, then the whole country would prosper.

Show Unpatriotism.
"How many votes ought a leader to get if he slings-whangs his own country in his desperate grab for power? The only way South Oxford can answer 'None' for the electors. They know it. When all is said and done, it is unpatriotic to boost Meighen, and it is unpatriotic to blight the hopes of his countrymen. That is what Meighen is doing.

"Meighen asks: 'Do you want a high tariff?' That's the issue. Do you want to be soaked like you were soaked in 1921 and in the year's preceding? The only way South Oxford can show its opposition to this high tariff so that they won't have to pay more for everything is to vote for Innes."

"Meighen would have all the pulpwood used in Canada made right here, and he meets himself coming back by fighting a market for that excess. That is what he did in opposing negotiations with Australia.

Speeder Finds Talking Is Dear

Canadian Press Despatch.
Windsor, Oct. 13.—It pays to be silent when arrested on a speeding charge at Windsor. At least if one has anything to say the arresting officer should be the last person to tell it to, as Charles Zakoor, 21 years old, 489 Goyeau street, learned when he was fined $43 by Magistrate W. E. Stanley in a police court today at Windsor. Half the fine was for driving 35 miles an hour along Sandwich street east, the other half for talking back when tagged by Constable Reginald Onell.

pare this with the $6,000,000 balance at the end of March 31, 1922. Again Meighen has rung a false alarm. He is wrong on trade as he is wrong on most other things."

Manufacturer Speaks.
Hon. George R. Smith, of the Daily Shoepolish firm, of Hamilton, told the gathering that though he hadn't made a political speech in five years, he was so incensed at the wounding of unfair weapons by the Conservative party that he had decided to campaign to publicly laud the achievements of the King government in the past four years.

The speaker drew attention to the premier's feat in balancing the budget. After the first year, the Liberal government announced that it had wiped out a deficit of more than $70,000,000 by the Meighen regime, and above that, had given the country a surplus of $34,000,000.

Did Not Raise Tariff.
"Mr. King did not raise the tariff. He lowered it, and yet restored the balance of trade. High protection is insanity, and would soon cripple the trade of this country here he asserted. In commerce alone the government brought a favorable balance of $284,000,000, an outstanding record in the history of Canada."

Speaks at Woodstock.
Special to The Advertiser.
Woodstock, Oct. 13.—Addressing an audience of more than 1,000 people in the Griffin theatre here tonight, the Hon. George P. Graham made a characteristic speech, the keynote of which was the defence of the government's administrative system.

Claiming that the government was not responsible for the building of golf courses at Jasper park, for the purchase of the Scribe Hotel in Paris, for the erection of a C. N. R. skyscraper in Toronto, Mr. Graham said that the Canadian National Railway board had done things absolutely without government interference, by authority of an act which had been placed on the statute books by the Meighen government in 1921.

"Had the government tried to step in and interfere with the action of the Canadian National Railway board," said Mr. Graham, "Mr. Meighen would have been the first to raise a shout of political interference."

Appealing to the farmers who had formerly voted for the Progressive party, Mr. Graham said that the question was not whether they would vote to pay more for their agricultural implements and the other things they buy or whether they would vote to pay less. That was the issue for the farmers. He said a man would be a fool who would vote in favor of increasing the price of the implements he used or the clothes he bought. He concluded his address by saying that any man who owned a new era of prosperity, as not deserving of the support of a single elector in Canada.

CLAIMS ALLIANCE FAILURE IN WEST

Meighen Asserts Low Tariff Union Effort Is Not Successful.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Bethune, Sask., Oct. 13.—The Liberal-Progressive alliance has not worked out for the good of Western Canada. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen today a gathering of electors here to-day. The Conservative leader came up from Regina to carry his campaign into the heart of the Long Lake constituency. Here the conservative candidate, Stewart Adrian, is opposed by two Progressives. They are J. Fred Johnston, former chief whip of the Progressive group in parliament, and Harry Ketcheson. There is no Liberal candidate in the field.

The speakers at today's Conservative rally commented on the absence of Liberal candidates in some Western Canada constituencies. Premier King had called on the Liberal voters in these ridings to support a Progressive, whether they wanted to or not. The Mackenzie King group, said Mr. Meighen, was concerned only with retaining power, irrespective of principle.

"The drift and uncertainty in tariff matters of the last four years had made for grave depression in industry. Nobody could be expected to put new capital into industry while this was going on. He thought any one of his audience would hesitate to expand his business if he did not know what the next budget would bring forth. He would probably wind up his business and get his capital safely out of it.

Mr. Meighen assured his audience that the claims of Premier King that he has reduced taxation were baseless. The amount collected in taxes had gone down 25 per cent, but the rate of taxation was actually higher than in 1921, and what had really gone down was the income of the taxpayer. He warned his hearers that the great burden of taxation would come back on the farmer if industry was beggared.

The whole conservative element in Canada, half the Liberals and a good slice of the Progressives, are protectionists today, asserted the Conservative leader. This being so, how could the Liberal-Progressive alliance in parliament pretend any longer that it could reconcile the aspirations of the dominion in a low tariff policy?

DEER HUNTING TIME NOW.
Up in the North Woods the boys are already bringing in their game. In the district north of the main line of the Canadian National Railways between Quebec and Winnipeg, the moose and deer season opened Sept. 15 and will continue until Nov. 15. Throughout this district, which covers millions of acres, big game is always very plentiful, and every hunter who goes north is almost sure of bringing back his full complement.

South of this line to the French and Mattawa rivers the open season for deer and moose is from Oct. 25 to Nov. 30, both dates inclusive, while in the territory yet further south, i.e. south of the French, Pickett and Mattawa rivers, the open season is from Nov. 5 to 20.

The district adjacent to the French, Pickett and Mattawa rivers is easy of access, and is one of the famous and popular hunting grounds of Ontario. Keen, dyed-in-the-wool hunters go up to this country of trail, river and lake every year, and are always successful.

There can be no better vacation than one spent in these northern Ontario woods. Clean your gun, assemble your kit, and get ready for a real he-man holiday. Any Canadian National Railway agent will gladly supply you with full hunting information and particulars of special and regular train service.

Printed leaflet with details of this service and general information of interest to hunters may be had on application.—Adv. xt-031

DR. SUTHERLAND FAVORS COUNTRY-WIDE PROHIBITION

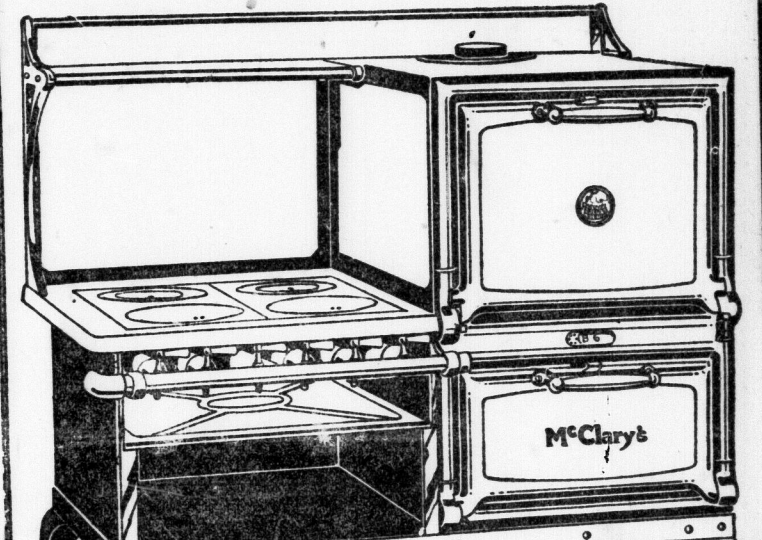

Special to The Advertiser.
Woodstock, Oct. 13.—Dr. Sutherland, Conservative candidate in North Oxford, today replied to the questions put to the candidate in the federal election by the North Oxford prohibition union on the question of dominion-wide prohibition. He said he was in favor of prohibition, but that with the various provinces having different liquor laws, there being three under government control, a dominion law would be hard to enforce, although he would support such a measure at the opportune time.

MEIGHEN EXPLAINS RAILWAY STAND

Declares $50,000,000 Is Too Much To Spend on Road at Present.

Canadian Press Despatch. Regina, Oct. 14.—Canada is too vigorous, too virile and too proud to let the Hudson Bay railway carried to within 70 or 80 per cent of completion and left there a spectacle to the world," said Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in an address here last night, in which he discussed the railway at length. The Conservative party, he said, had no desire to evade discussion of the road. The party recognized that "Canada had made an engagement with Western Canada, an obligation to be recognized."

Would Soon Lead to Abuse, Is Belief of Members.

A suggestion that each employe of the hospital trust and Victoria hospital be allowed one day each month with pay for possible illness was overruled by members of the trust at their regular monthly meeting. One of the members of the trust asserted that he knew of at least one case where employe who had been allowed this privilege had taken it in full advantage of it and, indeed, had gone so far as to work out a regular monthly schedule setting the date on which each member of the staff would be sick.

MEIGHEN HASN'T CHANCE OF SINGLE QUEBEC SEAT

Not One of Candidates Unreservedly Admits Him as Leader—Even Patenaude Forces May Not Make Dint in Bloc of Sixty-Five. Many Leaders Believe.

Special to The Advertiser. By a Staff Reporter. Quebec, Oct. 14.—Quebec is becoming more and more a pivotal point in the present election. There are people who say that there are earthquake tremors in Quebec, and that, just as a glacier "calves," so there will break off from the solid Quebec bloc of 65 a Conservative fragment of 20 or more.

Obviously that would be an event comparable in revolutionary political effect to the Nationalist insurrection of 1911 which defeated Sir Wilfrid Laurier and reciprocity. What is happening in Quebec? Will the bloc remain solid? Will it suffer merely minor lesions? Will there be an earthquake?

Sees Lavergne Losing Deposit.

Philippe Paradis, the Liberal candidate in Quebec, division of the province, remarked apropos of this Lavergne vaticination: "We shall lose very few seats, and the surplus will be made up by Mr. Lavergne who will lose his deposit."

Cannot Carry Single Seat.

Mr. Meighen will not, cannot, carry one single seat in the province of Quebec. The reason is a simple one. Mr. Meighen has no candidates in Quebec.

Occupy Home Bank Building.

It is interesting to mention where the headquarters are. They are on St. James street near the Montreal Star office, and on the premises once occupied by the defunct Home Bank. That ill-omened name is still on the windows.

No Sure Patenaude Seats.

"I can not," said he, "see that Patenaude has a chance at all, as things are at the moment. That is my private opinion. But I would like to allow for some margin of error. I am sure there is no one seat in which a Patenaude candidate has a certainty."

Many Expect Solid Bloc.

It is probable that private opinions as to the Patenaude boom's likelihood of success are nearer the truth than public opinion. Publicly, the Conservative Quebec prophets naturally exaggerate their real hopes, and the Liberal forecasters wish to allow for such canards as retailing Liberal as a sure state still reliable political ammunition may occasion.

Wesley Mission Circle.

There was a splendid attendance at the regular meeting of the Wesley Mission Circle, held last evening in the school room of the church. The president, Mrs. J. H. Childs, presided, and after Rev. J. E. J. Millard, Mrs. Childs read an interesting letter from Miss at Ottawa he directly allies himself with Meighen. Two Opposite Legal Opinions. "We may not get five seats. We may get six," said a Montreal politician. "It all depends upon the enthusiasm with which Quebec welcomes the Patenaude platform. The result is still in the making. If the campaign really hot it will melt that solid block."

Both are legal opinions, and distinguished legal opinions. It would seem that Mr. Patenaude's political sincerity is in fact a question, but if the truth comes out, he will not get any. This was the view of a 100 per cent Liberal candidate.

It is proved that Mr. Patenaude is a secret emissary, a silent partner of Mr. Meighen. It is admitted on all sides that the Conservative bloc in Quebec is a fatal political disease in Quebec. The wisest political doctors can find no cure for it except a mask, an impenetrable mask which will be on the face of the Conservative bloc.

It is on the other hand, it is proved—as it is suspected—that Mr. Patenaude is a piece of political ventriloquism, a puppet who is made to speak and propped up by the Montreal Gazette, if French habitant and artisan find that his whisper of death is not a genuine one to our country.

It all depends upon whether the truth comes out. The regular meeting of the Girls' club of St. George's Anglican church was held recently, when the following members were elected: President, Miss Norma Andrews; vice-president, Miss Lillian Bacon; secretary, Miss Francis Andrews; treasurer, Miss Dorothy Kershaw; social convener, Miss Florence West; committee, Misses Eleanor Taylor and Winnifred Brown. A rummage sale was planned to be held shortly, and a hike on Saturday.

OPERATIONS FOR FEMALE TROUBLES

In Many Cases Unnecessary These Women Gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Alberta Woman's Experience. So I was advised by my husband to try it after I told him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to do my housework a little washing and also to take a few boarders for a while as rooms were scarce at that time. My baby is 17 months old now and I have not yet had an operation, thanks to your medicine. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to a few people I know and have told them the good it has done me. I know I feel and look a different woman these last few months and I certainly would not be without a bottle of your medicine in the house. You can use this letter as you see fit as I should be only too glad for those suffering as I have done, to know what it has done for me. Mrs. ROBERT G. MACGREGOR, R. R. No. 2, Sarnia, Ontario.

Operation Advised. Sarnia, Ontario.—"After my girlie was born I was a wreck. My nerves were too terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without pain. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my household duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation but I was not in a fit condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' I'm sure it will do you good and will save those doctor's bills."

ST. ANDREW'S RECEPTION. The young people's federation of St. Andrew's United church held a reception for strangers last night at the church when the university and normal students and nurses from Victoria hospital were special guests. The orchestra, under the leadership of Lockhart Johnston, gave several selections, which were followed by a sing-song and a grand march. For the remainder of the evening games were enjoyed. The Misses Ruth Lawton and Alice Darch were convener of the program and refreshments were served under the convener-ship of Miss Madeline Hockaday. Miss Jean Gorwill and Miss Ann Hogarth. Dr. McGreggor spoke a few words of welcome.

PROGRESSIVE AIDS MAYOR SLOGGETT

Mitchell Hepburn of Union Is On Platform With West Elgin Candidate.

Special to The Advertiser
by a Staff Reporter.

St. Thomas, Oct. 13.—Mayor Sloggett, Liberal candidate for the riding of Elgin West, received the best reception of his campaign at Lawrence station this evening, when he addressed an audience that crowded community hall. Great interest was shown, and the hearty support of the community was pledged to the candidate in the coming election.

"The tariff question," stated the candidate, "is for experts to handle. No general tariff can be imposed, but each branch of commerce must be considered. Tariff at all times is a tax, and must be applied by a commission educated for the purpose. One of the ridiculous parts of the Conservative campaign is shown in their placards advertising themselves in favor of lower taxation when they know full well that a higher tariff will result in a greater burden for the people to bear."

Mr. Sloggett lauded the work of the King government in opening up wider markets for Canadian products. He referred briefly to the trade treaties effected with Australia, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and West Indies. In his opinion, the move of Premier King to break up the ocean combines was a step in the right direction.

Mitchell Hepburn, Progressive of Union, gave his reasons for opposing a three-man fight and for supporting Mr. Sloggett and the Liberal party. "I believe in the right of the Canadian people to decide whether they should participate in foreign wars or not. I do not believe in Meighen's stand that when England's at war, Canada's at war," he said.

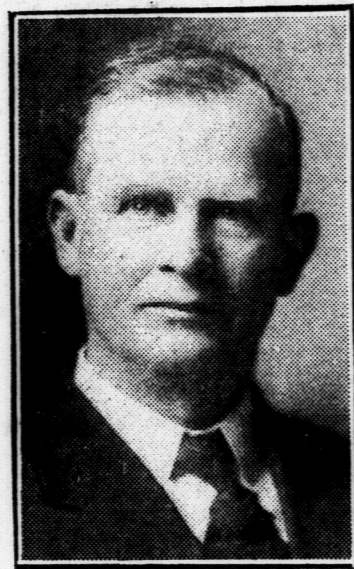

"In 1922 when Winston Churchill sent out his famous call to the colonies for help to drive the Turks from the oil territory coveted by English oil magnates, Mr. Meighen was ready to plunge Canada into a war of conquest for a cause so unjust that the people of England themselves repudiated the call and fired the government that sent it. Another Turkish crisis exists today, and if Meighen is elected and Canada is plunged into another war, the responsibility rests on the shoulders of the electors who assume an indifferent attitude and say there is no issue."

The Two Oxford Ridings

Dr. D. J. Sinclair in the North, James Innes in the South

DR. D. J. SINCLAIR.

JAMES INNES.

Historic Liberal Strongholds Have Clean, Stalwart Standard-Bearers in Present Election Campaign—Native Oxford Men Represent Reform Interests.

Oxford county has always stood out in Canadian history as a nursery of a real Liberalism which, in the old days, was called Reform. The Reformers were giants of politics, and Oxford backed them with a tenacity which in the North riding remains unbroken even today. In its political history, Scottish names predominate, as in many of its townships the Scottish race was in the majority. However, there were just as great Reformers in the other races who settled early in the Oxford as there were among the Scottish elements which made the Zorras famous in their own history and renowned abroad. With a characteristic, common to the race, the Scottish Reformers found their hardest opponents within their own people, and today four candidates are running in the Oxford whose names all smell of the heather. The Liberal cause is upheld by Dr. D. J. Sinclair and J. W. Innes, and the Conservative by Col. Donald Sutherland and Mr. Donald Sutherland.

J. W. Innes, the Liberal standard-bearer in South Oxford, was born in the Zorras, which in earlier days were populated almost entirely by McKays, Sutherlands, Rosses, and other Highlanders of like names who brought the piobrach and sturdiness character to the Canadian woods. Mr. Innes grew up in the Zorras and then joined that great exodus of sturdy young men who sought greater fields to conquer. However, he did not go far, simply moving to Oxford township, where he lives today, still within the bounds of his native county.

COMMONS NEEDS MEN LIKE MASSEY

Victoria College Chancellor Won To Liberalism by Strong Candidate.

Special to The Advertiser.

Bowmanville, Oct. 13.—One of the best-known men in North Durham arose of his own accord from the midst of an audience at Nestleton on Saturday evening and commended Hon. Vincent Massey's candidature to the electors of this riding. It was Chancellor R. P. Bowles, of Victoria College, and he had taught Mr. Massey as a student and could not refrain from urging the people of Durham to accept him as their representative in parliament.

"I have known him ever since his college days, and I can assure the people of Durham county that they could not wish for a better candidate. As for myself, though brought up in the straight and narrow Liberal path, it is over ten years since I cast a Liberal vote. I am going to do so on October 29, because I know that Vincent Massey is the type of man Canada wants in parliament.

"I have hoped for a long time that there would come up in our country a class of young men like Vincent Massey, who would love and serve their country with their whole heart, and when I heard that he was going into the cabinet I hoped he would run in Durham.

Need Man of Vision.

"Some of you may think that Mr. Massey is not the sort of man you want to vote for. Some of us are apt to say when a man slaps us on the back and behaves effusively, 'Now, he's a good fellow. He is the man for me.' Well, he is not. It is men of thought, of power, of wide vision and experience that we want in parliament, men who are ready to face the situations that arise there. And I want to say that Vincent Massey is such a man.

"I know he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. But remember that is the most serious handicap any younger can work under. We get them at the college, these rich men's sons, and hardly ever of them ever know they do not have to worry. Young Massey was not like that. He came to college and rapidly became the pride of his professors. Then he went on to Oxford and distinguished himself there.

"No man in Toronto has been honored at his age as Vincent Massey has. The position and distinction he has achieved break all records, and I want to say that the prime minister did a wise thing when he put his hand on the shoulder of a young man like Vincent Massey and called him into the councils of the nation. He displayed a wisdom that I might not otherwise have given him credit for.

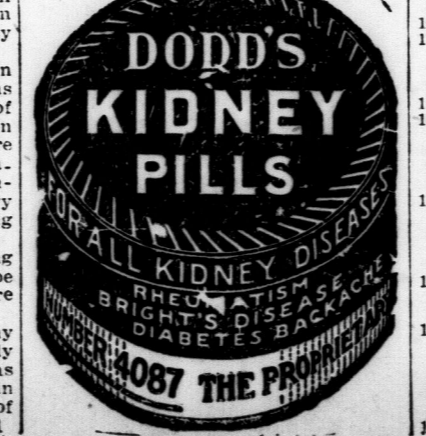

"I am anxious that there should go into parliament the highest and best things in our national life, and Vincent Massey is such a man."

BIG GAME HUNTING ALONG THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

The great wildernesses of virgin forest are teeming with wild life. The giant moose, the graceful deer, the lumbering black bear, and numerous other game animals are roaming the famous hunting regions of Ontario. Soon the woods will echo with gun and rifle shot as the boys each in turn secure the limit of game allotted by law.

North and west of the French in Mattawa rivers, the deer season opens Oct. 25th to Nov. 30th. South of French and Mattawa rivers the open season is Nov. 5th to Nov. 20th. There are numerous points along the Canadian Pacific, in the districts mentioned above, that will provide every satisfaction to the devotee of big game hunting.

For the accommodation of hunting parties special hunters' trains will be operated. These will take every care of the hunters and their baggage. Make your preparations now. Any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly supply any information desired, as well as render every assistance in the arrangements of movements of hunting parties.—Adv. O.7,14,21
