In England and France from 15 to 30 per cent. of wheat substitution, chiefly corn, barley and rice, are required by the food scarcity in the milling of flour. The people of Great Britain are not now making or consuming white bread.

Last Friday evening while a young clerk of this village was taking a swim in the mill pond, his clothes were rifled and a purse, containing a sum of money and several keys were missing. A Cool Summer. At this season of the year when folks usually swelter in the heat, it is an unusual sight to see people wearing overcoats or shivering in the cold. The past week has been quite cold, and more like fall weather than mid-summer. A spell of fine, warm, sunshiny weather would be appreciated.

Drattee Secures Exemption. Mr. Otto Johann, who lives with his mother and works a 100 acre farm on the Howick townline near Belmore, has been granted temporary exemption. His is an extreme case, and the militia department considered that he was entitled to exemption until such time as it will be necessary to call men in his condition.

Use Oatmeal as Substitute. Mr. H. Keelan, the local baker, has solved the Food Board's order for a ten per cent. substitute in the manufacture of bread, by using oatmeal. It makes a fine loaf, and imposes no hardship on the eater. It is said the bread dries out more quickly than the whole flour loaf, but that is not a serious matter. The order for 25% substitute comes into effect next Monday, and the difference in the quality of the bread will then be more noticeable. This order is not intended exclusively to effect the bakers, but includes every householder.

Next War Loan Tax Free. The Government, after careful consideration, has decided that the bonds of the next Victory Loan will, like those of all previous issues, be free of all Dominion taxation. With such a large body of existing securities tax-free it was felt that it would jeopardize the success of the new loan to make it subject to income taxation and attempt to float it at the same interest rate as the last issue. If made subject to super-tax those desiring such securities would purchase on the market tax-free securities in preference to subscribing to the new war loan.

Notes from London Camp. Pte. Herbert G. Weiler has been placed in Category "C" on account of having suffered with an attack of appendicitis. Herb. will not be required to do any more drilling, but has been given a position as assistant cook. Jos. Goetz has been receiving treatment in the military hospital during the past ten days, suffering with a slight attack of lung trouble. Seraphine Huber went to London yesterday to report after having a thirty days' leave of absence. Herb. Illerbrunn of Culross returned to London on Monday after a short leave. This man has gained about twenty pounds in his four weeks sojourn at London.

Married at Howick. Mr. Adam Hossfeld, a popular young Carrick farmer, sprung a pleasant surprise on his many friends here last Thursday, when he was quietly united in marriage to Miss Elfreda Kreller. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kreller in Howick township, Rev. G. Brackabus of Alsfield officiating. After the ceremony, the happy young couple left on a wedding trip to Guelph, Toronto, London, Kitchener and Galt, returning home on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Hossfeld will take up residence on their fine farm on the Walkerton road. The Gazette joins with their many friends in extending heartiest congratulations.

Piano Bargain. New piano with 10 year guarantee for sale at a sacrifice. Has only been used about 2 months. Write to box 333, Mildmay.

Two Choice Heifers. Mr. Jas. G. Thomson shipped two fine young Shorthorn heifer calves to Mitchell on Tuesday, the consignee being Mr. Lawrence Williams of that town. These calves belong to the popular Countess family, and are excellent types. Needless to add, the price was a very fancy one.

Knitting Contest Closed. The knitting contest held by the Victory Knitting Club closed on July 2nd, on which date a social gathering was enjoyed by the members and those who were so kind to assist in the work. The number of socks brought in by both sides amounted to 216 pair. Both sides are to be congratulated on their splendid work and we trust that the hearty co-operation shown by all concerned during the last month may still continue when we receive our new supply of wool.—Con.

Bought a Tractor. Mr. Michael Rettinger of Culross, has purchased an Avery tractor from the R. A. Lister Co. of Toronto. The machine arrived here on Monday and was unloaded off the car by Mr. John Scheifle, head agent of the Company, who made the sale. This tractor is a 25-12 horsepower, and is a very smooth running machine. It has sufficient power to operate four plows, and it can also be used for any stationary work on the farm. Mr. Rettinger has two hundred acres in Culross, and no doubt will be able to make good use of the machine.

Successful Concert. The presentation of "East Lynne" in the town hall last Friday evening by the Fordwich Dramatic Club, was greeted by a good audience. The drama was exceptionally well given, every part being well enacted. The young people who took part are all strangers to this village but they impressed the audience with their splendid talent. The proceeds, after paying all expenses amounted to about $40, and will be devoted to Red Cross purposes. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the Fordwich people for their kindness in coming to Mildmay and presenting the drama here.

Sudden Death at Clifford. The death summons came in a startlingly sudden manner last Saturday to Mrs. Margaret Immel of Clifford, mother of Mrs. Herman Gutzke of this village. Deceased, who was in her 77th year had been in her usual health, and had prepared her dinner and placed it on the table, but on going from the kitchen to the dining-room she suddenly fell forward on her face to the floor, and expired. She was found in that position a few hours later by a neighbor who called at her house. Mrs. Immel was the widow of the late Adam Immel, who died 23 years ago. She was well known here, having lived for a number of years on the August Weiler farm, south of this village. The funeral took place at Clifford on Tuesday afternoon. Those who attended the funeral from Mildmay were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gutzke and family, Mr. and Mrs. Pletsch and Mrs. B. B. Patten, (Mrs. Pletsch is a sister to deceased.) Rev. E. D. and Mrs. Beck. Mrs. Immel is survived by four sons and three daughters.

Close Call for Pte. E. Weiler. Pte. Edward Weiler, who left Halifax recently with a draft of 900 Ontario soldiers on board the steamer Vienna, bound for England, had an experience which he will never forget. On the fourth day out, the vessel struck a rock, at 7.15 in the morning. Distress signals were sent out immediately to all ships, sirens blew continuously, and fog signals and bombs were discharged to attract attention, which promptly brought an American boat and a number of fishing smacks and smaller boats of different descriptions. Four hours elapsed, however, before these vessels arrived, and the scenes on the doomed vessel will never be forgotten by those on board. There was a blinding rainstorm and a very boisterous wind raging, and the waves mounted to a height of fifteen or twenty feet. This made disembarkation very difficult and dangerous, and the fact that not one man was lost is a tribute to the wonderful courage and coolness of both officers and men in the time of great peril. When the ship struck, all the soldiers were ordered to their allotted spaces opposite the r.f.s. They came as they were dressed when the call was given, and were not allowed to return to their sections for their belongings. When all the soldiers had been transferred to the other boats, they watched the steamer Vienna sink, which occurred ten minutes later. This will convey some idea of the extremity of their danger. The men reached a Canadian port safely this week.

A disease known as the black leg is working havoc among the cattle herds of Carrick district. A peculiar germ on the grass this season is said to be the direct cause of it. One drover in that vicinity had no less than 28 fine grass cattle succumb to this disease within the past few days.

Wm. Leutke of the 6th concession of Carrick met with a painful experience last Saturday. He was helping his dog to capture a ground hog in a stone pile and the canine, mistaking his hand for the woodchuck, bit savagely into Mr. Leutke's hand. It was not long until the hand began to swell badly, and he had to hurry to the doctor's office for treatment. Mr. Leutke is suffering considerably, but no serious results are anticipated.

Alberta Crop Conditions. The latest reports on crop conditions made by agents of the United Grain Growers throughout the province of Alberta indicate that in many sections of the Province, particularly in the north, the crop conditions are excellent, while in many other areas, particularly in the south, the farmers have resigned themselves as to a total failure. In other places the crop will be fair, while in still others it will be medium, and in many places very poor, running not more than ten to twelve bushels to the acre. In some parts the wheat is already two feet in height or more and heading in splendid manner, while in other sections it has headed out at six inches in height, and gives little promise of harvest. The flax crop is in good condition through the sections of the south.

Runaway Julietta

By Arthur Henry Gooden

Near the post-office they were halted by a man in a dusty backboard drawn by a pair of thin mules. Burt slowed down and drew in his team, while the man, evidently a rancher, leaped to the ground and strode up. He was elderly, small, and wore a long-tongued coat; his face was red, his eyes angry.

"Am I goin' to have that water?" he demanded abruptly.

"Hello, Dean!" was Burt's suave response. "Meet Miss Dare—Jim Wurrell's niece, you know. Used to be a neighbor of yours when she was a little girl."

Julietta leaned forward, hand extended.

"Why, it is Mr. Dean! How do you do?"

The rancher removed his hat and shook hands. Then he faced Burt again.

"Did you get my question straight? Am I goin' to have that water, or ain't I?"

"You'd better see me some other time, Dean; right now I'm kind of rushed."

Dean grasped the dashboard, thrusting out his goatee.

"You've said that all summer, but by Jupiter, I want to know now! Am I or ain't I goin' to get that water?"

Attracted by the scene, a little group of sunbaked men, ranchers for the most part, had turned and were watching, apparently keenly interested in Burt's answer.

"Why," said the banker nervously, "if you must know, Dean, I can just about use all the water there is, what with the ditch running low—"

For a moment the rancher's eyes flared, then his hand dropped and he turned away, dejected and listless. Burt drove on. As they passed the little group before the post-office, Julietta was keenly conscious of an oddly serene smile. With a little shake she saw the tall figure of Clay Thorpe emerge from the doorway, a flash of amazement crossing his face at sight of her. She nodded smilingly; he lifted his hat, then gravely turned his back.

Julietta's cheeks were still burning with resentment, wonder, and distrust, when the smitty was reached and she was able to leave the buggy.

"Well, tuck-a!" said Burt easily. "Guess we'll be right good friends, Miss Dare. Give my regards to the folks. I'll be out one of these days for a friendly call. So long!"

Julietta walked slowly into the smitty. That expression on Clay's face rankled. It made her feel as if to be seen with Andy Burt was equivalent of dishonour. The brief visit with Maggie had left her exalted, compassionately tender; and now it was as if cold water had been dashed upon her soul. Even old Dean's face persisted with her—the hopeless, beaten look, and the faces of that little group of men.

"See Maggie?" Fitzhorn's voice roused her, and she nodded. The smitty eyed her keenly. "Huh! Don't you be upset about Maggie. She's been treated rough, I know, but humans is like horses—it takes considerable fire and poundin' to shape 'em true, and I guess the Great Smith knows His business. The trouble with us folks is we're afraid of the fire, not knowin' what'll come for us; and we don't know that love's back every stroke of His hammer—well, you take my word for it, Maggie's comin' out of her fire, clean and fine and a lot better for it, she bein' some mighty before, but good clean metal underneath."

Julietta smiled up into his earnest face, her eyes misty.

"I know, I know," she said simply. "I feel a good deal better, thank you."

Slowly she rode home through the shimmering heat, through the clouds of thick yellow dust that trailed in the sultry air. Dean's face would not leave her mind's eye, and the face of Thorpe, and those other faces. It was wretchedly unjust, of course, that Burt would not sell them water.

Suddenly Julietta lifted her eyes to the purple hills. For a moment she looked startled, almost frightened; then a glow of color leaped into her cheeks, and from her lips broke a single quick laugh as she clapped in her heels and sent the bay mare bounding ahead in indignant surprise.

"Why, of course!" she said gaily. "Of course! And this time it's a real deal!"

CHAPTER XI.

She found Mrs. Wurrell sitting on the veranda. The older woman opened on her pettishly.

"Well, you did get back at last! Old Fitzhorn's gettin' slower with his work, eh?"

"I stopped to see Maggie," said Julietta frankly.

"Keep her name on this place!" said the old woman furiously. "I don't want sight nor sound of her. You'd better be gettin' that rod back to Jim."

"Very well, I'll take it to him," replied Julietta.

Mrs. Wurrell excitedly ordered her to stay where she was, but Julietta laughingly disregarded the words and stepped on the steps. She passed around the house to the barn, and there encountered the man Jake, who had been on the place since her first memory of it.

"Here's your machine part, Jake," she said, holding out the rod. He made no motion to take it, but regarded her with a queer interest. "No use givin' it to me," he muttered sourly. "I've quit."

"Quit!" she repeated in surprise. "Why, I thought Uncle Jim was short-handed!"

"He's fired me," growled Jake. "Fired me, Jake Robbins, as knows more about ranchin' than he'll know in a hundred years! Made out he fired me for losin' on the threshing, but he can't fool me, Jim Wurrell can't. I know too much to suit him, that's what."

"About what?" demanded Julietta in surprise. He gazed at her with smoldering eyes, and she studied him curiously—the stoop of his lank figure, his prominent-boned face, his inscrutable gray eyes, his red-creased neck, his huge, toil-hardened hands. Something in his aspect saddened her. "About you," he returned slowly. Now there came a strange glitter into his eyes, a gleam that spoke of something smoldering beneath the surface, of some deep-brooding wrong; it frightened the girl.

"I knew your father, Larry Dare," he went on with a sudden rush of words. "Heart as big as all our doors, he had. He was too trustin', though, else you'd know the truth about this here ranch."

Julietta's cheeks flooded with color. "What about me, and this ranch?"

"What about me, and this ranch?"

"Why, this here ranch was Larry Dare's, and by rights it belongs to you, not to Jim Wurrell!"

"Mine?" Julietta shook her head. "No, Uncle Jim has always owned it as long as I can remember. Jake, you must be mistaken."

"I can remember longer'n you," said Jake grimly. "Larry Dare was thrown from a horse and killed when you was a baby. Your ma bein' dead too, the Wurrells moved on the ranch; but it ain't theirs, and the courthouse records can prove it."

"How do you know?" demanded Julietta coldly. He read the suspicion and unbelief in her eyes, and flared up in hot anger.

"I been waitin' for this day to come, I have! It ain't so long that I found out, neither. Soon as I laid eyes on you las' night I knew my day'd come to speak for Larry's girl. But Jim suspicious, and soon's you drove off this mornin' he tells me to git. I did git, but I come back a-purpose to tell you some things. You see, Miss Dare, I used to know your dad, back when I had my own ranch."

"Oh!" Julietta remembered suddenly. There had been a Robbins ranch in the old days. "Thank you for sayin' what you did about my father. But what became of your ranch?"

"Andy Burt got it," and the gray eyes filled with a glowering light of hatred. "He's another one what's got things hid. 'Twen long before your daddy died that Andy borrowed five thousand dollars from him—give his note for it. I reckon you ain't heard 'bout that neither. Look here, girl! Jim Wurrell's got that note, and so long's Jim keeps quiet 'bout the five thousand Andy keeps his mouth shut and provides water. See? I reckon you stirred up some panic when you dropped in here on 'em so sudden. That's why Jim Wurrell tells me to git. And now I'm goin', since I've crabbled that little game of hide-the-thimble; but, and his huge fist came up toward the sky, "I ain't through yet, so help me!"

The final words came out with a deadly vehemence that shook through his whole body. Then he stooped, slung a roll of blankets over his shoulder, and strode away without further regard to the girl.

Julietta stood rooted to the spot, her confused mind gradually clearing. Explained were the reluctance and embarrassment of Clay Thorpe; explained was the strange demeanor of the Wurrells; explained were Burt, and the scorn on the face of Clay in the post-office doorway. Clay knew that her uncle was a henchman of Andy Burt's. The knowledge that the ranch was hers and that Burt owed five thousand dollars and accumulated interest did not elate Julietta, but it did untangle the knotted skein of mystery.

The able-bodied man who is out of work this year is indeed a slacker. Dahlias can be planted until the first of July.

Every farming community this year should be formed into groups of farmers to change work and facilitate farm operations.

Potato starch and alcohol are being used in England to make a substitute for rubber. A company in Virginia has been organized to make synthetic (artificial) rubber out of calcium carbide.

WAR'S INSISTENT CALL TO THE WOMEN OF CANADA

Canada Appeals to Her Daughters to Rally to Her Aid in This the Greatest Crisis in History—Enlist For Food Saving and Food Production.

With the insistent note of a clarion call to service, the message has gone forth: "To the farms!"

For months past it has wavered across the country, and the echo has been caught up and thrown back from time to time. But now it comes with a direct challenge that is as irresistible as the soldier's bugle call.

It sounds from end to end of the country. Men and women are hearkening. They are thinking about it; talking about it. But there is no time to play battledore and shuttlecock with such an issue. There must be action—immediate, clear-cut, whole-hearted action.

The challenge is to men and women alike. Equality of service is demanded of them. Employer and employee are asked to help; the rich and the poor; the busy and the idle. There is no intention that any industry be put out of joint or business disorganized. There is every intention that all the resources of the country be judiciously used in making the most of Canada's harvest this year. The need is imperative. Nothing can offset this fact.

What the women of Europe have done to save the crops is an old tale; yet ever new in the wonder of it. What the women of Canada have done in this line is negligible yet, although there has been some brave pioneering in Eastern Ontario, and for years past in the West, when no other labor was obtainable, the farmer in desperation enlisted his wife's help in the outdoors.

Not even the deeds of the thousands of men who are daily sacrificing suffering and the humiliation of the women of invaded countries. They have had few material privations, even in three and a half years of war.

They have worked splendidly, and time and again they have reiterated their desire to do everything asked of them by the Government. Indeed, they have pleaded for a wider field of activity.

They have had the answer now. The way has been clearly indicated.

The greatest need of the hour is for labor on the farms. Mr. Henry B. Thomson, chairman of the Food Board, has put it up to the men and women of Canada in no equivocal terms.

The women can answer this call to arms in one of two ways. Either they can go out on the land themselves, or they can release a man for the period of the harvest.

The farmers have done their share. They are working like slaves, and their wives are doing no less. They responded splendidly to the appeal for increased production earlier in the year, with the result that it is estimated that there are now 2,600,000 acres more than last year under the principal grain crops in Western Canada.

It stands to reason that if labor was scarce before the war, the greatly increased acreage, coupled with the exodus of young men from the farms to join the colors, makes the situation infinitely more serious. It has been estimated that over 100,000 men are needed to gather in this year's harvest.

The teen-age boys have been called upon, and have responded gallantly. Some thirty thousand Soldiers of the themselves on the battlefields of Europe have eclipsed the heroism, the endurance, the patience of the women of France, Belgium and Great Britain. They have known the extremity of suffering. They have tasted the dregs of war. They have lacked the stimulus of the excitement of war. Yet they have nobly "carried on." Even as their men have fought, they have worked.

What they did in the fields of Europe temporarily staved off the wolf of starvation from the doors of the people. What they did in office, in factory, in work-shop, in every phase of industrial life, kept the wheels of commerce turning and steadied the fluctuating pulse of an over-wrought nation.

It was in those early days when the men were suddenly called to arms and the crops would have rotted had they not harvested them that the women first showed their mettle and rose to the occasion voluntarily. As Lloyd George said of them:

"They know their country is in the grip of grim tragedy. In Flanders, girls harnessed themselves to heavy barges and plod along the towpath, thanking God they've released—not a man, but a horse to help in the war."

In Russia and Italy the women plow, sow and reap. Even on the beautiful Riviera the shadow of war has fallen, and the young girls in the work of transportation stagger under kegs of wine or water weighing eighty pounds.

In Scotland, girls single turnips, plant potatoes, drive horses and carts in the fields, and help in every kind of farm work. In Britain to-day, there are 5,000,000 women taking the places of men in various forms of work. There are 300,000 engaged in agricultural work alone.

The women of Canada can do these things. They have been spared the arduous period ahead of them.

How about the women?

Canada needs her daughters to rally now. She needs the help and the inspiration of every one of them. There is none so weak that she cannot do something, and surely none so craven that she WOULD not do something.

No true Canadian woman would let the grain spoil on the stalk were she actually to see it wasting before her eyes—the grain that is now more precious than gold or rubies.

But when it begins to rot would be too late.

The time to act is now!

It does not matter a scrap what a woman is or ever will be; what her social status, her occupation or her share of this world's goods. There is a new democracy abroad—a wonderful levelling of grades. Usefulness and service are the things that count.

Every woman must search her soul and ask herself how she can best help in taking care of the harvest of 1918. She does not need to be a trained farmettee, though if she is, it's all the better.

If she is a city girl who was brought up on the farm, she should be useful right out on the land.

If she is a good housekeeper, she can volunteer to help the farmer's wife for a time.

If she knows of any male loafers, she can report them and have them sent to "pastures new" to pitch hay.

If she can take a man's place temporarily in the city, then by all means let her do it and add one man to relieve the labor situation.

If she can give up her holidays this year to work on the farm, she will be doing a plucky and patriotic thing.

If she is a girl of leisure, it is up to her to go out on the land or send a man from the city while she fills his shoes.

In short—every woman and every teen-age girl can do SOMETHING during July and August towards assuring the country of the full benefit of those crops which Nature so bountifully yields, war or no war. It is one of the biggest things ever asked of a woman. It is for the sake of our Allies. But most of all—for our men "over there." They provide the irresistible argument why every woman should turn her hand to food conservation, to food production, or to both.

Food Control Corner

Bolsheviki doctrines have brought Russia down from one of the greatest food producing countries on the globe to a condition of starvation. Drunk with liberty, which they did not understand, filled with idealistic notions about the equality of men, and lacking individual initiative, production in Russia has practically ceased, according to the evidences reaching the outside world. Transportation and distribution is so disorganized that even were the peasants of the land producing their usual amount of foodstuffs, the people in the manufacturing population would still be without the necessary food supplies to sustain them in safety and comfort.

Unless the people of Russia steady down and organize themselves or allow other authorities to organize them, there is the possibility of one of the most stupendous disasters to a nation and a great people that every occurred in history. Without authority for whom they have fear and respect, the Russian peasant seems to be without motive or initiative. We read of peasants in their anger against the property holding class of the late aristocrat regime, destroying not only the personal effects of the nobility and the owning class, but the very crops which they had themselves under the former social organization produced for the nation at large. In their re-action against property owning, they have destroyed the goose that laid the golden eggs. We read of peasants in certain villages having gone to such extremes as to seize the cattle of the local land owner, now deposed, flay them alive and turn them loose. Without the old motive of compulsion to cultivate the land for the land-owner, now that the land has reverted to the peasants and they themselves are the owners, they have neglected to work and to produce the necessities of life. To such a pass is the nation drifting that recent dispatches have reported that the so-called Government of present-day Russia are sending plenipotentiaries to China, the formerly despised and so-called decadent neighbor to the east, to make arrangements for provisions to tide them over next winter. It is difficult to imagine China, one of the most densely populated areas in the world, living largely on rice and very meagre fare, having sufficient surplus to feed 150,000,000 people in starving Russia.

Bolshevism is sometimes quoted in this country as an ideal, worthy of imitation. The pass to which Russia has drifted is a warning that Bolshevism and insanity are not very far apart. The nation that will weather the storm of this war the best, is the nation that organizes most efficiently and disciplines itself most strictly. Production must be carried on to a limit of our power. Destructive criticism and petty fault-finding are weaknesses and dangers. Unity of purpose and constituted leadership is essential. It is a case of a strong pull, a long pull and a pull altogether. Men must be found for the army, for munition making and for food production. Non-essential industries must provide men for essential industries. Women in this country must take the places of men to the limit of their power when called upon. Farmers must recognize the necessities of war and the public in general must unite to save the harvest of 1918.

Garden crops will not give good results unless the soil is kept well cultivated. At a sale of school lands in North Battleford district prices ran from $10 to $55.50 per acre for raw land. No need of your screen doors or windows rusting if you will paint them as soon as purchased, with good paint and oil.

Wilmar local of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association has recommended that all poolrooms and bowling alleys be closed during the war.

UNEASY LIES THE HEAD

The Army Bed is Really a Serious Subject at First Acquaintance.

A mere civilian does not know what a bed is. To him it is something soft and yielding, something the body snuggles in and the soul can dream.

What a delusion! I speak from experience when I say that a bed is no such thing. There is only one kind of bed nowadays—one kind, at least, worth reckoning. It consists of three boards, a couple of low tressels, a mattress more or less stuffed with straw, and three blankets.

"No 'ot-water bottles this trip," says the red-cheeked sergeant.

You grin, to show your appreciation of the point. If the sergeant says so, it is so. And then you examine the structure which is going to turn you from a flabby, namby-pamby, puny molly-coddle (the sergeant's phraseology, this) into a real live man.

The boards, you discover, are really boards. There is nothing yielding or elastic about them. To look at it you might take them for innocent boards in need of a scrubbing, when you have spent one night of how the ancient mariners felt a course on the rack.

And the mattress! It is a and a delusion! It has lumps in. There are some big lumps and some small, and there are also where the top and bottom through lack of straw.

Still, with luck, you occasionally fall asleep on the lumps, and drop that your ear is on Mount Everest and your shoulder in the Thames Valley and your legs on an escalator.

But you need not worry. The delusion won't last for ever. There are various ways of waking up. One is suddenly striking the ground with your hands, for the tressels raise only a few inches above it. And is the collapse of the tressels themselves.

Well, never mind! You have three blankets.

The civilian idea of a blanket something white and fluffy and warm. The Army blanket is not designed to fulfil these requirements.

A little disinfectant sprinkled the straw litter in the coop will keep down vermin.

BRITISH RE-TAKE HAMEL AND 1,500 PRISONERS IN SURPRISE ATTACK

Australians Assisted by Tanks Advanced a Mile and a Half on 4-Mile Front With Light Casualties.

A despatch from the British Army in France, says:—Complete success crowned the splendid surprise attack made by the Australians at dawn on Thursday against the Germans between Villers-Bretonneux and the Somme.

The enemy was taken entirely unaware and the big-framed fighters from Australia stormed their way through the bewildered grey coats with little opposition—a veritable human tornado which left a wake of death behind it.

Hamel village was rushed and taken in short order. Vaire and Hamel Woods, with their nests of crackling machine guns, were passed through as though the Australians were doing a practice charge for their commander, and a line of enemy trenches east of these strongholds was cleaned out and annexed.

About 1,500 prisoners were in the British cages this afternoon, while on the battlefield great numbers of the German Emperor's men lay silent under the brilliant sunshine which could bring them no cheer.

It took the assaulting forces about an hour and a half to complete their work, and at the end of that time they had, with exceedingly light casualties, wrested from the enemy a strip of territory four miles wide and averaging a mile and a half deep. By this operation they obliterated a salient in the British line and gained valuable high ground.

The Australians went over the top behind a large number of tanks, which were to pilot the way. Two minutes before that hour the British artillery all along the sector dropped a tremendous barrage on the German defences from guns of all calibres. This was the first warning the enemy had of impending trouble. Not a word concerning the attack had penetrated to the other side. Even the great uncouth tanks had been got into position without the enemy being aware of their presence.

BRITAIN'S FOOD CONTROLLER DEAD

A despatch from London says:—Viscount Rhonda (David Alfred Thomas), the British Food Controller, died on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Since the recent operations for dispersion of the fluid, consequent to a severe attack of pleurisy, Lord Rhonda weakened gradually. There were few rallies and the bulletins from his bedside in the past few days had held out little hope for his recovery.

Viscount Rhonda was the man who put England and most of the United Kingdom of Great Britain on rations and won the great tide even of the people whose food supply he regulated. Before he achieved the task it was generally regarded as all but impossible.

GOOD HARVEST IN MANITOBA EXPECTED

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—Prosperity again stalks at Manitoba's door. A rich and plentiful harvest is forecast in the first official crop report issued by the Manitoba Agricultural Department.

The report indicates clearly that the crop is about six days ahead of its normal schedule in 70 per cent of the places reported. Of the remainder, about 20 per cent claim normal conditions present, and the other 10 per cent show a tendency to backwardness.

Canada Presents France With Fully Equipped Hospital

A despatch from Paris says:—President Poincaré went to Joinville le Pont, where Sir Robert Borden, in the presence of Gen. Currie, commander-in-chief of the Canadian armies, and several prominent Canadians, presented him with a fully equipped Canadian hospital. The hospital contains 700 beds, which number will soon be increased to 1,000.

The Sand-shoe Used by Our Soldiers in Palestine When Negotiating the Sand of the Desert.

The soldier in the picture took care that the footwear should be a prominent feature in the landscape. The sand shoes are an excellent invention, and shed with them the men can travel without difficulty over the desert sand. Without them the unaccustomed and treacherous surface is apt to prove full of pitfalls.

Mudsummer.

When the grainfield lies like a lake of glass,
When the strawberries dry in the longest grass,
When black-eyed Susans are all ablaze,
When hosts of the fireweed flush the clearing,
Then you may know that the time is nearing—
The height of summer, the fierce blue days.
When the night breathes deep, like a worn-out sleeper,
When shadows of great white clouds fall deeper,
A sharper foil for the glaring sun,
When out of the hush a bird sings rarely,
When winds blow fitfully, brooks run sparsely,
You may know that the youth of the year is done.

SHIP PRODUCTION WAS HIGH IN JUNE

A despatch from London says:—The British Admiralty announced that during the month of June 131,159 gross tons of merchant shipping was completed in the United Kingdom yards and entered for service.

The record of British shipyards for June fell below that of May, when a total of 197,274 gross tons was entered for service. That was the highest figure for any month during the last year. In April the shipping completed totalled 114,533, and in March 161,674 gross tons.

GERMANS FURTHER SQUEEZE BELGIUM

A despatch from Amsterdam says:—The war contribution which Belgium has to pay to Germany, says Les Nouvelles, has been raised from 50,000,000 francs to 60,000,000 francs monthly. This is equivalent to 750 francs per head. The Germans have convoked the provincial councils to discuss the method of payment by the Belgians.

FURTHER GAINS ON THE PIAVE

Men Drop Blazing Oil on 12 Austrian Bridges.

A despatch from Italian Army headquarters says:—The fighting is in progress along the lower Pieve as severe as that of last week in this region, mud, sand and water are everywhere under foot and clumps of tall grasses are frequent. To add to the difficulties, rain and winds occasionally sweep over the four points the Italians attacked Austrian position in this region, a frontage of eight miles. In comparatively small stretch no more than 12 temporary bridges thrown across by the Austrians were destroyed by airplanes dropping small barrels of burning oil upon them. The enemy is frequently seen at a distance away, calmly waiting for the bridges to be attacked from the air, the troops then being thrown into the remaining Austrians.

About the most violent resistance played by any of the enemy troops that of the Bosnians and Herzegovians on this front, who are still wearing their picturesque turbans. As the Italians advance they are finding dead among these already stripped their comrades. There are other Austrians, however, who as soon as they are taken prisoner and find themselves safe within the Italian lines, cry, "Down with Austria!"

ROSS RIFLE FACTORY TO MAKE REVOLVERS

A despatch from Quebec, Que. says:—The factory formerly occupied by the Ross Rifle Company will be reopened in September by the North American Arms Company, Limited, a very large order for the manufacture of revolvers for the United States Army having been received by the new company, which has just obtained a charter from the Dominion Government and is capitalized at $2,000,000, the head office to be in Quebec. It is a purely Canadian company, the officers being: President, T. A. Russell, Toronto; Vice-President, H. D. Sully, Toronto; and Thomas Craig, former general superintendent of the Ross Rifle Company, has been appointed general manager, and is also on the board of directors. The contract is to be completed by December 31, 1919, and it is said that the maximum number of employees will reach 3,000.

FOURTEEN HUN ACES KILLED

A despatch from British Headquarters in France says:—No fewer than fourteen leading German airmen, who were credited with a total of 263 victories, have been killed or captured, including Baron Richthofen, who had 80 victories were claimed; Mueller, 34 victories; Lt. Schmitt, 28 victories. Fighting organizations have been lost heavily. The killed and captured include Capt. Klein, Commander of the so-called "England" squadron.

U.S. LAUNCHED 52 VESSELS JULY 4

A despatch from New York says:—A greater tonnage in ships than she has lost during the whole progress of the European war, Secretary of the Navy Daniels said in an address at the Fourth of July celebration of the Tammany Society. More than 400,000 dead-weight tons, he said, are going into the water from American shipyards as a part of the Independence Day celebration, while the total American tonnage destroyed by submarines is estimated at 352,224 tons, including 67,815 tons sunk before the United States entered the war.

"We have launched today," Mr. Daniels continued, "more than the Germans sank of the ships of all nations in the last month for which we have official figures. The recent enemy submarine activities off our coast resulted in the loss of 25,411 gross tons of American shipping. During the same time, 150,000 dead weight tons of shipping were built."

SULTAN OF TURKEY HAS PASSED AWAY

A despatch from Amsterdam says:—Mohammed V, Sultan of Turkey, died at 7 o'clock on Wednesday night, says a Constantinople despatch received here by way of Vienna.

Mohammed V, thirty-fifth sovereign of Turkey in direct descent of the House of Osman, founder of the empire, came to the throne by a coup d'etat on April 27, 1909, after having been held for thirty-three years a prisoner by his brother, Sultan Abdul Hamid II, in the royal palace and gardens in Constantinople.

FRENCH IN VIGOROUS THRUST CAPTURE 1,000 PRISONERS

A despatch from London says:—The French have struck bravely against the German lines on Thursday, this time cutting through the enemy ranks near the town of Ancreches, south of Moulins-la-Marchais, where on Tuesday night they won a local success and captured prisoners. Here the Germans lost 1,000 prisoners. The French improved their positions by gaining rather high ground, which can be readily defended when the Germans launch their expected offensive.

THOUSANDS ARE READY TO WORK ON FARMS

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Highly satisfactory results in connection with the registration of the man and woman-power of Canada have been obtained, according to Senator G. D. Already the Registration Board has secured the names of thousands of people willing to give assistance in agricultural work, particularly during harvest time.

Law Applies to Picnics.

Complete information relative to the new food regulations, which are now in operation, have been received by W. C. Miller, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association.

Under the new regulations the law governing the serving of food in public eating houses applies to lawn socials, bazaars, tea meetings, public luncheons, dinners, picnics, fairs, exhibitions, lodges, clubs, etc. But it is not necessary to secure a license for certain gatherings at which food or refreshment is to be served to 15 or more persons other than the members of the family giving the affair. They include private and semi-private luncheons, dinners, parties and picnics. But the law demands that the regulations governing the serving of food must be adhered to.

Under the old regulations the hour for the evening meal was from six to nine o'clock, but under the new regulations it is from 5.30 to 8.30 o'clock. The daylight saving measure has been responsible for the change.

In eating houses beef and veal shall not be served except at evening meal on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, except when steaks made from shucks, brisket, plates, flanks and left-overs are served. Such steaks may be served at any mid-day meal.

Bread as a garnish, except under poached eggs is prohibited.

Not more than a half ounce of butter or oleomargarine shall be served to any person at any one meal, unless more is requested, when not more than an additional half ounce shall be served.

Unfortunate Russia.

There is little light for Russia in any of the recent happenings. It is true that the Hon. Lloyd George tells us that "the Russians are beginning to realize what German militarism means, and are readier than ever to participate in any movement to drive the Germans from Russian soil," but there is no leadership, and small hope of any. The Bolsheviks, who betrayed their country to Germany, seem still to be the strongest party in Russia, and they are hopeless. Last week it was rumored that they had even executed the unfortunate exiled Czar. In Siberia we have Austro-German forces fighting for Germany, and we have Czecho-Slovak forces leaguing against them, while General Semenov has a small army which might easily become the nucleus of a larger force which would free Russia from German control. And Kerensky has turned up in London, Eng., and is pleading for help for the Russian democracy, which, he asserts, is still loyal to the Allied ideals. It seems imperative that help should be extended to Russia, and that it should not be long delayed, yet the only two nations who can render it are Japan and the United States, and the latter shrinks from armed intervention as likely to aggravate instead of helping the present unfortunate conditions. But if ever intervention seemed justifiable it certainly seems so now in famine-stricken and anarchic Russia.

One For Advertisers.

Charles M. Schwab spoke thus at a recent meeting of business men. Mr. Schwab is not a mere talker. He knows the game, and though he started life without a cent has made himself a millionaire.

"The business man who stops advertising because it's war-time makes a great mistake. War-time or peace-time advertising pays. War-time or peace-time the story of a duck and hen holds good.

When a duck, you know, lays an egg, she just lays it and waddles off. That's all.

But when a hen lays an egg, she makes a racket over it fit to raise the dead.

The hen, gentlemen, advertises. Hence the demand for hens' eggs instead of ducks' eggs."

A County Court Case.

The County Court case of McGlynn vs. Hastie was before Judge Dickson at Goderich last week. The defendant, W. R. Hastie, of Gorrie, in October last bought six hogs from the plaintiff, Thos. McGlynn, a farmer of Howick township, and gave in payment a cheque of Chas. C. Munro, of Wingham, for whom he was buying the hogs. When Munro's cheque was presented there were no funds, and Munro subsequently made an assignment. McGlynn entered action against Hastie, and although the defendant entered the plea that he was simply Munro's agent in the transaction, judgement was given against him for the amount involved, $200.10, and costs.

A farmer's wife, hurrying from milking the cows to the kitchen, from the kitchen to the churn, from the churn to the woodshed, and back to the kitchen stove, was asked if she wanted to vote. "No, I certainly do not. If there's one little thing that the men-folks can do alone, for goodness sake let 'em do it."

An applicant for exemption who maintained that his eyesight was defective was told by the army doctor to read the card for the eyesight test, but he protested that he could not see the top letter, which happened to be about three inches deep.

The doctor accordingly sent an order to the mess for a dinner plate, which was brought and placed on the floor.

"Now" said the doctor, can you see that?"

The man bent down. "Yes" he replied.

"Well, what is it," asked the doctor.

The applicant for exemption stooped to within three feet of the floor, and then, looking up with a perfectly innocent air, said, "It looks like a five-cent piece, sir!"

The Austrian Defeat.

Explain it as they may, there is no escaping the conclusion that the Austrians have suffered a severe defeat. It seems probable that the Austrian leaders themselves were dubious of success, and would not have risked an engagement if it had not been for German pressure. But it would have helped Germany not a little if Austria had succeeded in driving back the Italian army, and while the German leaders must have had a pretty good idea as to what the outcome would be, they chose to take the risk. What the Austrian losses were we cannot say, but 200,000 or 250,000 would not seem excessive. And after such losses we are told that now they do not hold a foot of land on the east side of the Piave. It was expected by many that the Italians would follow up their victory with a smashing counter-offensive, and the cavalry did pursue the retreating foe across the river, but either because the resistance was too strong, or because Gen. Foch's plans did not allow it, the Italian army was content simply to hold its own. It is expected that the Austrians will try again, but that this time they will restrict themselves to an attack in the mountain section, and German divisions are said to be on the way to help make this attack a success. But General Hindenburg is in no condition to weaken his line in the west, and the German reinforcements to Austria will be strictly limited. And meanwhile the summer is here, and Austria must realize that she will have to face another winter of war, and little or no prospect of victory. Can she, even breaking out when this fact becomes clearly apparent? We do not know, but certainly she is just now in desperate straits.

Mr. Henry Wendt, the jeweller, is suffering from the effects of paralysis. On Thursday afternoon he had been out fishing at Lakelet, and when preparing to retire in his room for the night, was overcome with paralytic weakness, the left side of his body being affected. Since then he has been under treatment and a nurse is in attendance. His condition shows gradual improvement since Friday. The arm is fairly active, he is perfectly conscious and his speech is improving. He rests and sleeps well and indications are a speedy restoration will ensue from this attack.—Clifford Express.

Protection For Motorists.

The motorist whose car has not been more than a few miles from home but nevertheless gets a polite invitation to appear before a magistrate several hundred miles away in the other end of the province, can in future afford to smile at it. An inconspicuous amendment of the last session to which the Highway Department is drawing the attention of the motoring public removes the necessity for a motorist traveling to answer a speeding charge of which he is not guilty. In future where the defence of the motorist is that his car was not in the municipality from which the summons came, and that there is evidently an error in taking the number, he may appear before a local justice of the peace with two witnesses and prove his contention. If the local J. P. is satisfied he must issue a certificate which, when sent to the J. P. or magistrate issuing the summons will be that official's justification for dismissing the charge, provided he has no reason to doubt the truth of the testimony on which the certificate was based. The certificate will cost the motorist $1.25.

Canada Food Board.

Canada's new wheat crop will not reach the consuming public as flour for three months at least and in the meantime this country will be very short of wheat flour. We have, as has also the U. S., shipped as much wheat as possible to the Allies, giving them a considerable share of our own normal supply to help carry them over until the new harvest has come onto the market and the corner has been turned. The use of substitutes, therefore, becomes a comparative necessity in this country and our people should familiarize themselves with methods successfully used in baking these substitute flours.

On the 1st of July the Canada Food Board Order became effective requiring all public bakeries, and private households also, to use 10% substitute flour. On the 15th of July this percentage is to be increased to 20%, in all of Canada east of Port Arthur. The question then will arise in each housekeeper's mind, what are substitutes for wheat flour, where can they be had and how are they to be used. Substitutes as defined by the new law, include bran, shorts, corn flour, corn meal, edible cornstarch, hominy, corn grits, barley flour, rolled oats, oatmeal, rice, rice flour, buckwheat flour, potato flour, tapioca flour, rye flour and rye meal. Potatoes are also classed as a substitute for wheat flour, in proportion of four pounds of potatoes to one of the other substitutes mentioned, on account of the higher percentage of water in potatoes. A large number of millers are ready with these different flours and as soon as the public demand calls for them they will be distributed throughout the trade, and are now procurable by dealers.

There has been some talk about the price of substitutes being high in proportion to flour but it is expected that this condition will remedy itself as the new flours get into general circulation throughout the trade. In the case of corn meal the price has advanced for corn in Chicago on account of market conditions. Canadian millers were depending on American corn and advanced the price of corn meal accordingly on all new contracts. It is not expected that this market condition will continue, however, as there has been plenty of corn in the U. S. since last harvest, although difficulty of distribution arose through lack of sufficient transportation facilities and similar causes. With the 1918 crop in prospect, it is expected that there will be a still more plentiful supply for the coming season.

It may be necessary to experiment with these substitute flours a few times before succeeding in producing a satisfactory loaf and opportunity should be taken to study the effect of these substitutes and the different methods of mixing, handling, fermenting and "proofing" of the doughs. As most of the wheat flour substitutes accelerate the fermentation, it will be better not to work the dough as long as usual. About four hours for mentation will be sufficient in a room of moderate temperature, divided as follows:—2 hours 45 minutes for the first punch; 45 minutes for the second punch; 30 minutes is allowed before the dough is finally taken out, kneaded and cut into loaves. After being set in the pan; 45 minutes is enough for "proofing," when it is ready for the oven.

Advertising a Town.

A town is judged largely by its newspapers. Businessmen seeking a location usually turn their attention first to the local papers in starting an investigation of a scene for proposed investment. One has to get away from his home town to realize this. In a city office recently where a large number of local papers are received it was interesting to hear the comments made by "those who know," and it was significant to note the number of times the expression occurred: "That's a live town—the merchants are good advertisers."

The writer ventured the suggestion that the merchants might be sufficiently alive to be good advertisers and yet the town not be in the same class. To this we received the answer we expected: "No chance. Wherever you see a paper carrying a good volume of local advertising you will find a live town. The advertising will make the town live. It can't help it."

Thinking he was doing his mother a kindness, Willie Schmidt, a 10 year-old lad of Stratford sold a sack of rags to a Jew for five cents, which later were sold to a wholesale junk dealer for six cents. Hidden in the sack of rags was the family bank roll, containing $40, and all efforts to find it have proved fruitless. The rags became mixed at the warehouse.

"Did any of your ancestors do anything to cause posterity to remember them?" asked the haughty woman.

"I reckon they did," replied the old farmer. "My grandfather put a mortgage on this place that ain't paid off yet."

A 15 year-old lad, son of a widowed mother, was fined $200 in the Dundas police court Wednesday afternoon for a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. He said he got liquor through an order from a doctor. There was a dramatic scene when a well-dressed, respectable resident of the town, and father of three children, asked permission to speak. He said he went home recently and found his wife lying dead drunk on the floor. "She is a good woman except for liquor, and I thought her safe," said the man, addressing the doctor. "And then you, with the scratch of a pen, for a dirty dollar, broke up my home and make all my works and hopes a failure." Magistrate Fry severely censured the physicians who dispensed prescriptions indiscriminately.

Charles W. During the trial, Magistrate Fry said: "The hand-writing on the wall is becoming plainer and plainer every day as to the great need of food, and any man who deliberately and in cold blood violates the order-in-council regarding food stuffs is an enemy to the country."

It is made an offence by a recent order-in-council: "To print or give public expression or circulation to any false statement or report respecting the work or activities of any department, branch or office of the public service, or the service or activities of Canada's military or naval forces, which may tend to inflame public opinion and thereby hamper the Government of Canada or prejudicially affect its military or naval forces in the prosecution of the war."

Sunday, June 22nd, was the first day with an appreciable difference in length, and it was two minutes shorter.

Intensive Production.
 e papers announce the astounding fact that in the United States a city-seven days, a speed in shipping which easily beats all records; whilst Mr. Ford, of motor-car fame, is turning out, they say, two marine destroyers per day, in addition to the 2,000 automobiles which is average daily output. This is called intensive production, the perfection of modern machinery and labor saving devices alone makes it possible.

Regarding the wonderful riveting performances we are now daily hear about, this work used to be done hand with the hammers, but now done by a special tool driven by compressed air, and making 1,000 rivets per minute, or 60,000 blows an hour. By this hammer, easily manipulated by one man, rivets can be driven home at the rate of eight rivets a minute. What this means to building any shipwright will tell you, for there are thousands of steel rivets in a ship's construction.

This is but an example of the great speeding-up process which is going on in the world's work. It is all to the good. It means less toil and more leisure in the long run—that is, the work which once took a week to accomplish can now often be finished in a day.

Fires occur in Canada in the ratio of one to every 600 people, and in Europe in the ratio of one to every 100 people.

MAKING OF ARTIFICIAL LEATHER

MANUFACTURED FROM COTTON GROWN IN THE SOUTH.

Firs. Carded and Woven Into Cloth, Then Treated With Chemicals and Embossed.

The cow of our fathers had a monopoly upon the manufacture of certain leathers and upon that rested one of her proud claims to fame, for no other animal produced a hide that would tan to the same grades of leather. The cow of the present day, however, must look well to her laurels for slowly but surely science is encroaching upon her domain and today man-made "leather" vies with her product for popular favor in every mart of trade. The making of leather substitutes is another step in industrial evolution where science, with the aid of modern machinery, has taken up the manufacture of a substitute material where formerly only the natural product was considered.

The leather substitute has its birth in the Southern States where the cotton of which it is made is grown and ginned. From the fields it goes to American mills, where it is carded and spun and woven into cloth. Both warp and woof are made of selected threads, for to withstand the hard usage it is to receive the finished fabric must be of unusual strength. All of this strong cloth must undergo a most careful inspection for any unevenness or other flaw in weaving which would affect the finished product.

Shrunk and Dyed.
 The first step in the further preparation of this cotton fabric occurs in the huge dye vats where the cotton cloth is impregnated through and through with the dyes which give it the desired color. Here also the cloth is shrunk so that the finished material will not stretch or sag. The fabric is now dried by passing it over heated cylinders and is ready to be coated with the dissolved cotton solutions that give it the appearance and surface of leather. No pains can be spared in the preparation of these solutions, for on them depend the final success of the surface, and consequently the value of the fabric. The cotton is carefully purified to remove all traces of impurities, and is then nitrated by being soaked in mixed acids.

After many washings and careful drying the nitrated cotton is dissolved in chemicals of different kinds, and carefully colored to produce the shade or tint desired. Different characteristics in the finished Fabrikoid are obtained by careful modifications of the solutions. The cloth is coated with varying amounts of the solutions, by being passed through long machines that lay on films of even thickness and uniform quality. Some of the finished fabrics must be exceedingly thin and pliable, and require the use of light cloth and thin coating, while others must be thick and strong and require heavy cloth and thick coating.

Proceeds of Embossing.
 The pyroxylin solution is applied in successive coats until a tough, wear resistant surface is built up. The fabric now resembles leather in feel, color and texture and is ready for the graining which gives it the appearance of leather. This is done by an embossing process which is the last step in the fabrication of this leather-like material.

For the embossing the natural markings of genuine hides are transferred to steel plates and rollers which reproduce them in the most minute detail. The plates or rollers are then heated, and by means of enormous pressure the natural markings of the hide are transferred to the pyroxylin surface of the fabric. The grain is embossed so effectively that it is as permanent as the material itself. The making of the artificial leather—or Fabrikoid—is now completed. The graining may be an actual duplication of the most elaborate Moorish leather where two colors or effects are essential, or of the characteristic markings of pig skin, alligator or other expensive leather, or it may be a purely conventional design. There is no grain needed for the many uses that it is not possible to supply.

The surface is finished in different degrees of lustre and a final and most exacting inspection marks its last plant process.

It is now put up in rolls of different lengths and widths and sent to the shipping room where it is wrapped and cased and sent all over the world for use in automobile and furniture upholstery, automobile tops, novelties, bookbinding, shoe uppers, harness, traveling bags, and suitcases—everywhere, in short, and for nearly every purpose that leather itself is used.

People Are Willing.
 Thousands of people throughout Canada have registered their willingness to help with farm work this summer and harvest season. Local business men should organize these volunteers and get in touch with farmers and place them where they will do most good.

The harrows will save hoeing in the corn.

IMPERIAL WAR MUSEUM.

Every Branch of Women's Work in the War Will be Represented.

Plans are already under way for the great Imperial War Museum which, in many ways, will resemble both the British and the Victoria and Albert Museums. In other important respects the new museum will differ from and even surpass the others. For one thing it will not be a mere repository for various specimens of the machinery of war. The whole idea will be to demonstrate, for all time, the superb manner in which England rose to the stupendous demands of this unexpected war which is the greatest of all history.

Nothing could be finer than the tribute which the Imperial Government pays to its women by creating a Woman's Work Sub-Committee as part of the planning body of this great museum. In the years to come British women will be free citizens of that Empire they have helped so heroically to save and lest they forget the tremendous odds against which their liberators fought, this great museum will serve as a reminder.

In one way and another every branch of woman's work in this war will be shown. Records and charts will record the growth of women's work in all lines. Just how this work was carried on will be shown by photographs and, in some cases, by models showing the women at their tasks. Specimens of their work will also be included in the exhibits. With this, in each case, will go a full account of the work as shown by official documents, press cuttings, public speeches and lectures. Every kind of badge or uniform worn by women war workers will be on exhibition and the committee are very anxious to secure all badges including those given by obscure societies and societies whose identity was later merged into that of other bodies. Voluntary labor by women is to be honored in every possible way.

Belgian relief work, so very dependent upon voluntary workers at first, must not be overlooked and other relief organizations which have ceased to exist at the present time are too valuable a factor in this world struggle to be overlooked and are to have a place in the museum. Women who have performed exceptional service for the Allies and have been decorated by them are to have a niche all to themselves. Even those of us who have become accustomed to women in unheeded occupations will feel a thrill of pride on seeing the complete record in this museum of women in ship-yards, in skilled and unskilled labor, civic and government positions, places of trust and danger. Welfare work carried on in all these places will be an interesting comment on the difference in the attitude of the Hun and the Allies towards their fellows. The adjustment of the machine to the worker and the various safeguards evolved for each profession will be a striking comment on the attitude of capital and labor, each towards the other.

One of the most fascinating and gripping exhibits will be that relating to hospitals and nursing, hats, captees and communal kitchens.

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You say to the drug store man, "Give me a small bottle of Freezone." This will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, dries up and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that Freezone dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without irritating the surrounding skin.

Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whittling at his corns, but clip this out and make him try it. If your druggist hasn't any Freezone tell him to order a small bottle from his wholesale drug house for you.

Bolshevik Doctrines Fatal.
 "I think the greatest, the most radical, the most idealistic and the most fantastical declaration which any body of men has made has been by the Bolsheviks of Russia," said Mr. Samuel Gompers, the great labor leader. "And they have lost not only the meat from the bone, but the bone itself and have not even a shadow." It is announced that Russian penitentiaries have been sent to China to endeavor to secure food supplies for the Russian people. Disorganization of industry and agricultural production in Russia under the Bolshevik regime is resulting in famine, starvation and misery. Unless relief is procured and the people settled down, they must perish.

Building of the Tuckahoe.

Mary Mildred White, New York.
 "Give me of your men, O Nation, Of your strong quick men, O Nation! Living in the crowded city, In the town and in the country! I a light sea ship will build me, Build a swift barge for the ocean, For the cold and hungry soldiers, For the desolate and needy, Lay aside your work, O Workers, Lay aside your present business, For defeat will sure be coming, And the horde will rage and trample. Thus aloud cried our great Chieftain,

In this time of war and wastage, From one state unto another, And the country answered swiftly, "Take my men, O mighty Chieftain!" With their tools they made the framework Till it rose up high above them, High they built it up and quickly; And with hammers hard they nailed it, Nailed it strong and nailed it neatly. And the cities came and helped them; Sent the parts right quickly toward them,

And they took them working faster Till no seam was left unfinished, Till no spot was left unpaired. In one score seven days they built her,

Built her strong and built her steady, And she slipped into the water, As a swan onto the river, Like a lithe and graceful wild-bird, Like a wild bird flying southward, Thus the Tuckahoe was builded, Thus that day the Workmen launched her; And the good will of the Chieftain, All the hopes and fears of many, All the hatred of the Kaiser, Went with her into that launching; And she sailed upon the ocean, Sailed upon the happy ocean. To the aid of many people, To the land beyond the water.

Food Situation in France.

The population of France, our ally in this war, was about 39,000,000 when the war broke out. About 7,000,000 able-bodied men were conscripted, 1,000,000 have since been killed and over 1,000,000 more put out of action. Agricultural production has dropped to nearly one-third. Women, children, old men and crippled soldiers are struggling to till the fields of France. Horses were also conscripted for military service and French women hitched themselves to the plows and harrows in place of draught animals. French men are fighting starvation. Deaths from starvation among the Allies in Europe since the war are estimated at 4,750,000.

Minard's Lintment Cures Colds, Etc.
 Before you make a partnership with any other fellow, look him over pretty carefully. You do not want a kicker nor a biter nor a balker for a running mate. Hitch up with a good square man or pull in the harness alone.

Every one who possibly can do so, no matter where he lives, is urged to keep sufficient poultry to supply his own family. Those able to do so should produce sufficient for themselves and also for families who are unable to produce their own, not so much for what it may pay but for what it may save.

The Volunteer.

Here lies the clerk who half his life has spent Toiling at ledgers in a city gray, Thinking that so his days would drift away. With no lance broken in life's tournament; Yet ever 'twixt the books and his bright eyes The gleaming eagles of the legions came, And horsemen, changing under phantom skies, Went thundering past beneath the oriflamme.

And now those waiting dreams are satisfied; From twilight to the halls of dawn he went; His lance is broken; but he lies content With that high hour in which he lived and died. And falling thus, he wants no recompense, Who found his battle in the last resort; Nor needs he any hearse to bear him hence, Who goes to join the men of Agincourt.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands. At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Waste of Food by Dogs.

Many dogs have already been destroyed in Great Britain because of the necessity of conserving foodstuffs. It is estimated that there are between four and five million dogs in the United Kingdom, and a committee has been considering the question of their rationing and the extinction of a certain percentage.

Denmark's Hogs Reduced.

Denmark's stock of swine has been reduced from 2,500,000 head at the beginning of the war to 400,000 at the present time. In 1913 Denmark's total exports of pork were nearly 250,000 tons, of which almost half went to England. Canada's opportunity now is to increase her exports from 130,304,947 pounds, the latest conservative figures for 1916, to anywhere up to 1,261,082,032, the total requirements for Britain.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did. Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years' experience is at your service.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS TORONTO.

With receipts of 3350 cattle on the Union Live Stock Exchange yesterday, trading during the morning hours and up till noon was practically at a standstill, and it was not until the afternoon that the market took on a business air, and at no time was trading active throughout the day. The inaction was accompanied by a severe decline in quotations of practically $1 per cwt. on all classes of cattle, the decline, however, being most marked in the medium class of cattle.

There was a big run of steers and, generally speaking, the quality of the cattle offering on the market yesterday was very fair and better than during the last few weeks, the good effect of the grass being more apparent.

Milch cows were slow of sale, even at the decline, and the severe cut was shown in the stockers and feeders, and practically all grades of cattle were included in the list. The market throughout was characterized as already stated by great weakness, but later in the afternoon the buyers bought freely at the decline, at 3 o'clock 1750 cattle having gone over the scales, according to an official statement. The prospects for better prices are not encouraging, but even at the decline it looks as tho the price was high enough yet.

This is The World's summary of the market yesterday, but there were others who stoutly maintained that the reduction all round averaged from $1 to $1.50 per cwt. and even more, but we do not think the contention is soundly based.

Spring lambs were selling lower, probably 50c per cwt., but sheep were steady to firm.

The market for good calves was firm, but the medium and common class were off anywhere from 50c to 75c per cwt.

With about 1400 hogs the market held about steady at $18.25 for the general run with some odd lots bringing 18c fed and watered. The report is that the price for the balance of the week will be 18c fed and watered.

This is the season when women folk who have a right to vote should see that their names are properly placed upon the voters' list so that when the time comes for them to mark their ballot they will possess the full privilege.

The only person authorized to wear a decoration or medal, or the ribbon thereof, is the soldier to whom the distinction is awarded. This information has been issued by the militia department in answer to a large number of persons who have been inquiring as to whether relatives of deceased soldiers have the right to wear decorations awarded to these soldiers.

There is nothing to prevent any man making wine for his own use, whether from the dandelions, grapes, or any other article, provided he does not sell the same, even if it is over 24% proof spirits. After December 31 next, under the order-in-council of the Federal Parliament, it will become illegal to manufacture. This is the ruling which the Ontario License Board has delivered.

Harry Tutt of London, superintendent of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau, received 7,000 registration cards which were signed on June 22nd. All of these were signed by men and boys, with farming experience who expressed a willingness to work on farms. A list of these names will be taken at the employment bureau and letters will be sent out to the boys and men offering them suitable positions on the farms.

Donald McDonald, one of the best known residents of Sullivan Township, was dragged to death when his horses ran away while he was running a mowing machine. He was hurled from the seat and dragged several times around the field. When found, the horses were standing in the fence corner, still attached to the mower, and Mr. McDonald was lying face down under the machine. Dr. McCullough of Chatsworth was at once called, but he could do nothing, as the victim had been dead for several hours. His watch had stopped at a few minutes after 3 o'clock. His hip was dislocated, his shoulder, nose and some ribs broken, and his body was a mass of cuts and bruises. There will be no inquest.

Farmers are shorter of labor this year than they have ever been before. In many cases there may be but one man on a farm, assisted, perhaps, by a boy. It will be necessary, therefore, to economize labor in every way possible in order that this year's harvest may be taken off and the fall work completed in preparation for the 1919 crop. While there are objections to the threshing gang in Ontario it is hoped to initiate the work on a reasonably large scale this year. The Ontario Department of Agriculture is making a study of the proposition as it affects the farmer, while the Ontario Labor Bureau has agreed to provide 5,000 men for threshing gangs if there is a demand for these. With suitable co-operation between the farm public of the province and the Provincial Department of Agriculture there should be no difficulty in organizing a large number of gangs this fall.
