A NEW WONDER OF THE WORLD

The Gatlins 3 Day Liquor Cure. This is what a very prominent Doctor said at a recent Medical Convention:—"For quite a while I was skeptical about Liquor Cures, till I had one of my patients take the Gatlins Treatment, after having failed to have him cured by three or four other so-called liquor cures. The Gatlins Treatment not only cured my man of the drinking habit in three days, but built up his entire system wonderfully, and he is now a picture of health, after he was given up by everybody."

Not only is this cure positively permanent, but it is accomplished in just three days—money refunded if cure is not satisfactory at the end of three days—and each patient is given written guarantee to cure before commencing the treatment. Special treatment will be furnished those who prefer taking treatment at home. For complete information sent in plain envelope, address—

"NATIONAL HERO SERIES" NO. 3

Kosciusko—"The Greatest of the Poles"

NEVER in the history of mankind has there lived a more ardent lover of Personal and National Liberty. He devoted his life to regain the ancient freedom of his beloved Poland. Kosciusko hated any legislative attempt which invaded the Natural Rights of Man. If he were alive to-day, every son of Poland knows that he would revolt at any LAW which declared: "Thou shalt NOT eat this—thou shalt NOT drink that." Kosciusko knew that the light wines of his native land and the barley brews of Germany were good for mankind when used in moderation. He drank them himself to the end of his honored days, and who will DARE say that they in any way injured this mighty personality. For 57 years Anheuser-Busch have honestly brewed honest beers. Their great brand—BUDWEISER—is sold throughout the world and has helped the cause of true Temperance. Seven thousand, five hundred men are daily required to keep pace with the natural demand of Americans for BUDWEISER, its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER XXI.

If Veronica had been in love with Ralph before, she was ten times more in love with him now. As she paced slowly up and down her room, forgetting her late sprain, she told herself that no man had ever behaved more unselfishly, heroically. He had looked like a knight of old, sacrificing self at the altar of his love; he had spoken words that always force a woman's admiration and devotion; his voice rang in her ears, sentences here and there haunted her, filling her with pride for him one moment and causing her misery the next.

Because she, Veronica Gresham, of the world, worldly, knew that same world too well to deceive herself. The poor lover who leaves his mistress that he may go and win the fame and fortune which will enable him to claim he is a common object of the novel; and he always comes back with the aforesaid fame and fortune and—marriage bells reward him; but in real life the man's sacrifice and striving generally end in failure; the course of true love runs so smoothly that it runs over the precipices of despair.

She knew that the odds were a thousand to one that she should ever see him again. She had accepted his sacrifice, his relinquishment of her at the time, because he—and the cynical, stony-hearted earl—were too many for her. But now, as she thought it all over in her own room, she grew hot with shame and self-reproach.

She was a woman and she had allowed the man she loved to sacrifice himself; had let him go out into the world to fight a well-nigh hopeless fight, had taken the heart out of his bosom and sent him away, friendless, poor, all the poorer for the loss of that heart. It was all he had, and she stolen it.

And while he was struggling and fighting the unequal fight, the forlorn hope, she was to remain at the Court, lappen in luxury and slothful ease. She was a pretty kind of woman! Why, she was a disgrace to her sex. As she pictured the days, the life she must lead in that great, stately house with its palatial rooms, its army of servants, with, for sole companion, the proud, heartless old man who had stepped in and wrecked her life's happiness with a few cynical phrases, her spirit rose in revolt. Surely no true woman could be so base, so thankless for a good man's love as to spend her days like a lap-dog, while her lover went out into the desert of despair!

She felt that she could not appear at dinner, could not face the earl with his half-lowered, scornful, and watchful eyes, the keen regard of Talbot Denby, so she had sent the excuse of a headache, and spent the dinner-hour over a cup of tea sweetened by the bitterness of her thoughts.

Now, your true woman never thinks in vain, and presently Veronica discovered two facts: first, that she could not live without Ralph; and second, that she must see him before he went, if only to tell him that she could not exist without him—and—

Oh, could she go so far as to beg him to take her with him!

While she was pondering the problem Goodwin came up from the servants' hall with some lace in her hand.

"I've had the misfortune to upset some coffee over this collar, miss," she said. "I think if I were to take it to Mrs. Mason at once she might be able to get it out; she's very clever at such things."

Veronica gave her permission to go, and the coast was thus left clear for her; she could steal down to the but and see Ralph—and the rest must be left to chance. She waited until Goodwin had been gone half an hour, then threw a golf cape over her shoulders and drew the hood over her head; if she should be seen she would probably be mistaken for one of the maids.

As she went she tried to rehearse what she would say to Ralph; but she might as well have spared herself the trouble, for, in answer to her knock, it was Burchett who bade her "Come in," and, entering somewhat hurriedly, she saw that he was alone.

He rose at her entrance and stood gravely waiting for her to address him.

"I—I left something behind me in the arbour this afternoon," she said, with a mixture of pride and humility. She thought, "It was my heart I left!"

"Do you know—did Ralph say that he had found anything—a bracelet?"

"No, Miss," replied Burchett; "he did not."

"Where—where is he?" asked Veronica, trying to speak with indifference.

chett—her voice faltered and broke—"I am to blame—No, I cannot tell you! But—but if you can help me find where he has gone—if you could send him a message—Do you think you can?"

The tears were in her eyes and in her voice.

Burchett shook his head gloomily. "No, Miss Veronica," he said something about Australia; but he may change his mind. And as to a message—"He shook his head again. "No, I've no means of doing so; and, if I had—"

He paused significantly and the blood rushed to her face.

"You wouldn't? Ah, but you don't understand! And I can't tell you! Good-night!" She paused still. "I'm—I'm glad you liked him and gave him the money, Burchett. Good-night!"

She had gone before he could speak, and, with the rough delicacy he had already displayed, he did not follow her to the door.

She walked quickly through the clearing and had gained the spinney adjoining the lawn when she heard footsteps. She stopped, and her hand went up to her cloak and drew it more closely round her as she stepped behind a bush. The footsteps were crossing the lawn, and presently she saw Talbot's tall, thin figure merge from the shadows. It did not seem to her at all extraordinary that he should be taking an after-dinner stroll, and, waiting until he had passed, she went on, skirting the spinney and keeping out of sight. But suddenly she was aware of another presence, and, looking round, she saw Gibbon edging his way from bush to bush and tree to tree. She was rather surprised, but only momentarily so, for she concluded that he was going to meet one of the maids—probably Goodwin; and after again waiting for a moment or two she went on her way and reached her own room.

Its luxury, the costly furniture and hangings, the flicking and as costly knickknacks, the expensive piano, the water-colors and richly bound books, jarred upon her overwrought senses. Yes, she was a lap-dog, a sybarite, while Ralph, the man who loved her, was a wanderer on the face of the earth. Pride! Where was her pride if she could endure such a life of self-hate? No, pampered dependent could own less pride, be more soiled than she—if she consented to accept Ralph's sacrifices and went on living at the Court.

THE HOLLOWAY STUDIO, LIMITED,

Corner Bates' Hill and Henry Street, St. John's, Nfld

At the City Hall.

The Chairman and all the members of the Board, save Mr. Bradshaw, were present at yesterday's regular session of the Civic Commission.

The heads of the different departments attended by request of the Chairman, to supply information re the roads, watering, and sanitation of the city.

At the opening of the meeting the Chairman, briefly, referred to the Duke's visit and the presentation of Bowring Park to the City, and thought that a resolution of acknowledgement and appreciation of the gift should be placed in the minutes of the Council, and that a copy be forwarded to the donors.

It was decided that the Chairman appoint a sub-committee to draft the resolution.

The Chairman called attention to the unnecessary reading of detailed accounts at the weekly meetings, intimating that he considered the totals would be sufficient to read, the detailed accounts being tabulated in the meantime.

Mr. Jackman moved that the suggestion of the Chairman be adopted, which motion was seconded by Mr. Anderson, and supported by Messrs. Ayre, Harris, Mullaly and McNamara. The motion was adopted.

The Chairman referred to the prevailing order of presenting accounts in which there was much room for improvement. Under the existing system bills outstanding for weeks, and sometimes months, appeared in the current week's expenditure and it is difficult to study the financial standing of the Council each week. He suggested that only the current week's expenditure be tabulated; that all bills be furnished by tradesmen, contractors and others weekly; and that the collectors submit weekly statements.

After a general discussion in which the full Board took part, it was unanimously agreed that there was room for improvement, but some of the suggestions outlined were not altogether feasible. It was agreed that the policy be carried out as closely as possible.

The Secretary submitted accounts due for interest for the half year closed and tax for fire department upkeep for the same period totalling $4,156.82. The amounts were ordered to be paid.

The collectors' accounts for the week and the collections at the city office were tabulated, the receipts for the week being much less than the expenditure. In future a statement of receipts from all sources, and expenditure will be prepared for each member of the Board, in order to facilitate discussion.

It was ordered that a dilapidated building on the South Side be removed.

Job Brothers and Co. wrote the Council saying they had gone ahead with the erection of their oil tanks as the Inspector General had not objected. The Solicitor will enquire, and decide if the erections are within the law.

Upon the suggestion of Mr. R. Buckley, of Gorman's Lane, the Board will endeavour to improve the street in that locality.

The Gas Co. wrote saying they had discontinued opening the street at Waterford Bridge Road, as requested by the Engineer and could delay the work another week if the Council desired.

Quotations of prices for water service pipes were submitted, but none are required at present.

Plans for erection of dwellings were passed, subject to Engineer's approval. The Solicitor reported as to the rights persons holding land on the bank of the river above the Long Bridge, and also the rights of the K. N. Co.

This and other matters will be fully discussed upon the arrival of the Engineer, who is absent from the city. The several inspectors furnished information concerning road buildings, sprinkling and general sanitation, which elicited much surprise from the Board.

Instructions were given the different inspectors to have the work done more systematically in future.

The question of enforcing the collection of all outstanding taxes was then dealt with, and it was decided that after August 1st the law will be rigidly enforced in this direction.

The Health Officer reported six cases of diphtheria for the week.

Mr. Jackman considered that such a report was incomplete, as more facts should be given, in order that the Board may enquire into the cause and apply the remedy to prevent a further outbreak.

In many instances a defective sewer or neglected drain may be responsible.

Upon the suggestion being moved in the regular manner it was carried. It was decided not to open the street off Forest Road, as requested at a previous meeting.

The meeting adjourned at 6 p.m.

A New Folder on the Partial Payment Plan

A little folder which we have just received from our printers explains the convenient operation of our Partial Payment Plan so effectively that it is decidedly worth sending for.

It is entitled, "How to Invest WHILE You Save," and will take but two minutes of anybody's time to read through. But to many — perhaps YOU — it will prove of undoubted value in pointing out a way by which GOOD securities can be bought on easy terms.

There is no charge for the folder — nor obligation incurred by asking for it. Send us the names of some friends that we may send them copies as well.

Four men and two women were killed and nineteen injured when an electric Excursion train crashed into a Virginian Railway Freight train grade crossing near this city.

OTTAWA, To-day.

Sir George Foster leaves on Tuesday for Rimouski to welcome the Dominion Royal Commission and accompany them to Newfoundland. A Government steamer will be provided for the trip.

LONDON, To-day.

The latest development in the Mersey Dock strike is the Carter's Union have requested its members to refuse to handle goods, touched by blacklegs on or after Monday. The intervention of the Carters would seriously extend the dispute.

HALIFAX, To-day.

The Governor of Dalhousie College announced a gift of $30,000 from Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Campbell for a chair in Anatomy as a memorial to their late son Dr. Campbell. A further sum of $30,000 will be provided by Dr. Campbell to make the fund complete.

LONDON, To-day.

The Government is making strong efforts to reach a settlement of the Ulster problem. Two Cabinet councils were held yesterday. Premier Asquith had an audience with the King and was on communication with Bonar Law, Unionist leaders and Carson. The whole day was occupied with conference between various party leaders, but without definite result. Negotiations will be continued on Monday. It is understood that prospects for agreement are improved.

LONDON, To-day.

The Eclipse stakes of $50,000 at Sandown Park races was won yesterday by H. Chalmers' three year old, At the Blyth Races Scotland repeated the victory of last year winning the Echo Challenge Shield in the rifle competition restricted to one team of eight from England and Scotland and Ireland respectively. The winners scored 1912 points, England 1899, Ireland 1871. Lewisham Club won the Astor Cup. South London team being awarded a bronze medal. The Wairoa challenge bowl was won by the King's Royal Rifles. For the Chancellor's Plate, Cambridge Oxford University by 27 points. The United Service Challenge Cup was won by a team representing the Army.

LONDON, To-day.

Although no decided step has been taken which promises a solution of the Irish deadlock, the fact, the chief bone of contention is now over the exclusion of two counties, indicates the parties at least are nearer a basis of settlement. According to Liberal information the Government has decided to allow voting en bloc by the four counties of Antrim, Down, Londonderry, Armagh on the question of exclusion, but Tyrone and Fermanagh are subjects of dispute especially the former whose population is 44.6 Protestant, 55.4 Catholic. It is hinted the Government may be ready to abandon a time limit in return for the Unionist abandonment of a "Clean cut" demand. Ulster Council so far absolutely refused to recede from the demand for a "Clean Cut". A minority of Ministers, including Churchill, Grey, Harcourt, Marquis of Crewe are said to favor the "Clean Cut," but the majority led by Asquith with Lord George decline to consider it as being against Redmond's wish.

Sad Drowning Accident.

Peter Hall, a St. John's Fisherman, the Victim.

One of the saddest drowning accidents heard of for some time occurred this morning on the local fishing grounds and in a peculiarly simple way, the victim being Peter Hall, aged 20 years, belonging to Rossiter's Lane, in the West End of the city.

BROTHER BREAKS NEWS.

The first news of the tragedy was touchingly told by Richard Hall, brother of the deceased, who landed at the King's Wharf and visited the Customs Warehouses where he met Mr. John Jardine and related the sad tale as he sobbed and wept bitterly. Immediately Mr. Jardine acquainted the police authorities and Supt. Grimes and Constable Tobin responded hurriedly. To these officers and three others, including a Telegram representative, Richard Hall, who was filled with grief, again related the facts of the unfortunate affair in a fashion that brought forth tears from his listeners.

WENT FISHING.

At daylight this morning Peter Hall, Richard Hall (the younger) and Garland Porter left their homes and in their motor boat visited the local fishing grounds where there were many other boats. They did not meet with any surprising success and decided to stay out for the day. Shortly after eight o'clock they discontinued fishing as it was time for breakfast. It was a beautifully fine morning then, the sun was hot and the water as smooth as oil. They were on their way to Deadman's Cove where they intended to light a fire and cook their meal. Peter Hall was aft, Richard Hall was at the motor, while Garland Porter was in the forward part of the boat. It was found necessary to turn the boat around and this could be accomplished by the use of the sculling oar. This was put into operation by Peter Hall who stood up in the boat, sculling away when suddenly the oar came out of the socket in the stern and Peter lost his balance and canted backwards. He put out his left hand on the wooden roof of the motor engine, but unfortunately his hand slipped and he was precipitated into the water, back wards. He was heavily clad and sank quickly beneath the surface. A rope and an oar were thrown him but he failed to catch them and in the twinkling of an eye sank to rise no more. After remaining for a few minutes the other occupants hailed Mr. Joseph Peckford who was in his motor skiff and told him the circumstances. Mr. Peckford and three men he had with him put out jiggers and inside of a quarter of an hour succeeded in bringing the body to the surface. The body was found in six fathoms of water. There was one mark on the forehead. Both boats then returned to port with the lifeless body which was wrapped up in a sail. The police were notified and Constables Tobin and Nugent who brought the remains to the late home of the deceased in Rossiter's Lane. Meanwhile Rev. Fr. Pippy broke the sad news and administered consolation to Mrs. Hall, wife of the deceased. Three children also survive.

The victim of the tragedy was well known and liked. He was a member of the L. S. P. U. and a noted oarsman. To the sorrowing young widow and orphans the sympathy of the community will go out in their affliction. The Telegram extends its sincerest sympathy.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

Every influence of diplomatic agency at the disposal of the States Government is working for immediate peace in Mexico. The Washington administration is convinced that the elimination of Huerta the various factions of Mexico will be quickly drawn together. To aid in this desired restriction of normal conditions without further bloodshed, officials here are exerting themselves to smooth the way for a new stable administration in Mexico which shall be recognized by the Powers of the world. Not only the States Government is counselling General Carranza to arrange with Francisco Carbajal Huerta's successor, for a peaceful transfer of the Government at Mexico City to the Constitutionalists without further fighting, but the administration is indirectly in communication with Emilio Zapata, leader of Southern Mexico. Zapata, according to reliable reports to the State Department has 24,000 men. They would constitute a serious menace to the new Government of Mexico City if they remained in revolution. It is not known yet, however, whether he will lay down his arms in favor of Carranza. General Huerta, who recently resigned as Provisional President of Mexico, arrived at Puerto, Mexico, last night, accompanied by General Blanquet, his Minister of War.

The revival of prize boxing, with the keen interest displayed by both sexes in recent encounters, is evoking much comment from press and platform. These contests undoubtedly have been featured by the press unusually, and so eager have people been to gain admission prices have ranged from one to fifty dollars. Speakers at the Wesleyan Methodist Conference, Leeds, deplored the revival of pugilism and especially of feminine patronage. The Daily News, editorially, referring to the pugilistic mania, declared that it was time to protest when the profession was subject to a letter from the King and when the Times devoted columns to it.

Outlook Better.

After the wild heralding a week ago that the tension in Ireland was unparalleled in Great Britain since the Jacobite rebellion of 1745, the Twelfth of July passed more peacefully than for years past. We have no doubt that a sense of responsibility, the discipline of both parties, and restraint exercised by the Nationalists and Orangemen, contributed to this result. The House of Lords has passed the Government Home Rule Amending Bill with additional amendments more to the liking of the Unionists. To-day's message tells us that the Government is hard at work in counsel with Bonar Law, Carson and other leaders, and the situation is more promising in the way of a settlement than it has been. As we frequently stated, so we say again a settlement should be practical politics, and it should be within the resources of British statesmanship to effect a suitable arrangement. It would be a lasting disgrace to British statesmanship should no settlement be effected, and should the outcome of the dispute result in civil war. It is time all the talk of either side bluffing should be dropped, and it should be recognized that both Nationalists and Unionists are in earnest, that both parties are in hostile and armed camps, and that a deadlock exists as regards the aims of both. Home Rule is inevitable as regards the greater part of Ireland and the Unionists should recognize it. It is up to the Nationalists on the other hand to recognize that a majority of Ulster will not have a Dublin Parliament to rule over them. The area of Ulster to be excluded and for what length of time are surely matters of detail capable of adjustment.

Marine Disasters Fund.

Trailing the Editors

Marian took a deep breath as she entered the elevator and was shot up to the editorial rooms of one of New York's most prosperous daily newspapers.

"Who do you want to see?" demanded the boy at the gate, looking at her with the patronizing, preoccupied contempt of his officious tribe.

"The editor," said Marian.

"City, Sunday, managing or editor-in-chief?" asked the youth.

"The Sunday editor, I think," returned Marian, concluding that her article would be best suited to the Sunday feature pages.

"Your card?" added the boy.

A few minutes later, Marian stood in the presence of a slim young man, who regarded her coldly through his spectacles. His was the unsympathetic eye of the rejector of countless manuscripts. He was the wall of ice in the pathway of eager contributors, the pitiless critic of the untitled.

"Well?" he snapped.

"I have an article here that I'm sure you'll find interesting," began Marian. "It's the true account of a young woman's effort to find work in New York." She produced "Two Weeks in the Jungle" and laid it on the editor's desk.

"You may leave it with me," answered the man. "I'll get around to it as soon as I can—but it may take three or four weeks. I'm swamped with work right now. I'll pass on it and let you know. Your address?"

"I can't leave it that long," faltered Marian, appalled at the thought of waiting three or four weeks for a decision.

"All right, take it somewhere else," said the editor curtly, handing the manuscript back to her and resuming his rummaging in the chaos of papers on his desk. Taken aback by the abrupt words, Marian picked up her story and started crestfallen for the door.

"You might try it on the Chronicle, right across the street," said the Sunday editor. "They're making a big fuss over unemployment right now. Ask for Jones, the managing editor. Tell him I sent you."

"Thank you very much," answered Marian. The other's coldness had not given promise of any such sympathetic remark as his final words contained.

She dodged across the confusion of the street. As luck would have it, Jones of the Chronicle was in less harsh a mood than ordinarily. One of his staff had "beaten" the town on an important development of a murder mystery that day and his paper, a struggling afternoon sheet, had furnished Grub Street with an exhibition of enterprise that had startled some of its rivals. His eye travelled with trained rapidity down the written pages. Marian waited for his decision like a criminal at the bar.

His eye travelled with trained rapidity down the written pages. Marian waited for his decision like a criminal at the bar.

"Nonsense!" interrupted the editor. "Boy!" he yelled. An office urchin came dashing into the office. "Boy, send one of the photographers in here." Presently a young man entered. The editor said to him: "Take a photograph of Miss Winthrop here, and have a two-column cut made for tomorrow's paper. What's your address, Miss Winthrop?" he added, turning to Marian. "I'll mail you a check for this stuff to-morrow at special rates."

With such swift action had the editor overridden Marian's protest that before she had time to consider, she had been rushed into the photographer's room and her picture was taken.

"Well," she murmured, on reaching the street, with mingled feelings of happiness and regret over her first acceptance from an editor, "I wonder how big that check is going to be?"

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen.—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts, (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.

Fred Merkle.

Red McGhee

Red McGhee says: Not long ago the world sat back and called Fred Merkle first prize "Jack"—the kind with big, long ears. He pulled a big world series home, caused 20,000 fans to groan—some cursed and some shed tears. Poor Fred was sure in a deep disgrace when he began to touch that base—it sealed the Giant's doom. The wise one's whisper: "Bye, bye, Fred, your playing days are done." Some said, "Go hunt an ivory tumb."

His little lapse of foot on a brain was talked about on stage and train, from pulpits and at home. Sky pilots traced great lessons from an "odderveelians" made jokes about Merkle's ivory dome. But Muggs McGraw—he just stood pat. He knew that Fred could field an' bat, an' make up for his slip. Soon Merkle's fandom's hoofs an' jeers at Fred gave way to shouts an' cheers—his comeback was a pip.

He's mighty careful of his feet. There ain't much chances that he'll repeat the famous ball he made. The way he's covin' his feet has makes stars like those of "Chance an' Chance" grow dim an' start to fade. His stick work's pretty timely, too. He bangs 'em for a base or two to bring the runners in. The fans won't ever quite forget, but they'll forgive, it's safe to bet, the Merkle Mental Snip.

It is likely that military and Mexican features will appear in autumn styles.

Motorists may come and go different directions, but their tire wants are all the same. Sooner or later every motorist encounters the obstacles which lead other motorists to seek and find the one solution.

ANTI-SKIDDING

The "buttoned" tires having failed to deliver, the big corrugation tire is selected. The series of "V's" grip the road like a traction engine, each "V" clearing the road for the next "V" to work upon.

NO PUNCTURES

The "buttoned" tires having failed to prevent punctures, the big corrugation tire is selected. The inch high anti-skid tread keeps nails, etc., away from the "puncturable" tread proper of a tire.

MILEAGE PLUS SAFETY

The "buttoned" tires having failed to keep up continuously, the big corrugation tire is selected. It set the record in 1912 of making the first and only Canadian Transcontinental trip.

LONDON, July 17. The British Admiralty Court to-day found the British steamer Ince more responsible for the collision of June 17th, with the German liner Kaiser William II., just before the liner left Southampton for New York. The Judge in giving his decision, said he found the Ince more had made a mistake in giving a signal that she had stopped in a fog, when as a matter of fact she had not stopped. This, he said, had misled those on board the Kaiser, and had caused the collision, which resulted in considerable damage to the German ship.

De Witt Cairns on Monday.

The entrance and exit of the Nickel Theatre have been very prettily decorated in honour of the Duke of Connaught. During the holiday and yesterday the attendances were large, the building being filled to its utmost capacity at each performance. Manager Kiely has arranged another big entertainment for this evening. There will be a two reel feature picture: "The Feudists," a brilliant comedy drama by the Vitagraph artists in which the redoubtable John Bunny will appear. Lillian Walker, Flora Finch and Sidney Drew are also featured in this interesting play. "Steds of Silver" is a strong social drama with the clever artist Hobart Bosworth in the leading character. "Cross Your Heart" is a splendid playlet with most effective situations. "Hattie's New Hat" is a sparkling comedy. There will also be a Pathé Weekly showing the latest events in the world abroad. Etta Gardner farewell this week, her song being "Down in Chatahouchee." Monday, De Witt Cairns, the wonderful baritone, will be heard for the first time. He possesses a marvellous voice and comes with a high reputation. This afternoon there is a specially big matinee for the children.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at a small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Success in the States.

Mr. Frederick G. Ebsary was born at St. John's, his parents being Mark Ebsary and Jessie Parnel Ebsary. After a brief term at the Duchanau Street School, he went to work at the early age of twelve, as errand boy and helper. At 16, he was apprenticed out to a mason builder.

Two years later he left St. John's to complete his apprenticeship in the city of New York, which accomplished, he took up the fireproofing business, first as a mechanic and then as a foreman with the United States Gypsum Company. His ability and zeal were quickly recognized by his employers, and in time they entered into a construction contract with him, which, in the course of six years, proved to be sufficiently remunerative to enable him to accumulate enough to start the business of the Ebsary Fireproofing and Gypsum Block Company, of which he became the President.

This Company has undertaken some of the largest fireproofing contracts in the United States and Canada, including the Royal Bank Building, at Toronto, the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, at Montreal, the Fort Garry Hotel, at Winnipeg, and the Macdonald Hotel, at Edmonton.

Mr. Ebsary is but thirty-seven years of age, with a future of great promise before him.

Bradstreet Folks.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A friend of mine, who has been having a streak of bad luck, refused an invitation to come to my home one evening because a mutual acquaintance, and I had thought a mutual friend, was to be there.

"What's the matter with Susannah?" I asked.

"Nothing," she said.

"Out with it. Have you had a falling out?"

"No," she answered, "but you know I'm playing in hard luck just now, and Susannah is one of those people you don't like to meet when you're not prosperous."

"Do you know any of that type, Reader Friend?"

"I don't only Susannah, but many others."

They are fair weather friends. No, that's not quite fair. Sometimes they are still friends in bad weather, but "so as with a difference." A shade of patronage and condescension creeps into their manner. They look you over with eyes in which an investigating sharpness is very thinly veiled. You know you are being Bradstreeted. You become burningly aware of the fact that the tips of your glove fingers are a bit worn.

They ask you questions which betray you, and you can feel them translating and tabulating the answers in their minds. "We've missed you at the Woman's Club," they say, "they say, 'Yes,' you answer, with a painful attempt at nonchalance, 'I haven't been very well lately so I've had to give it up for the present.' You might just as well have said outright, 'I'm ashamed to go because my clothes are so shabby.' For they know that's what you really mean and you know that they know that's what you really mean.

I was walking down the street with one of these Bradstreet folks the other day. The sharp look came into her eyes. "I don't believe Henry L. can be doing so well in business," she said. "Just see how his house needs painting, and he only has the garden-er once a month now."

Some of the Bradstreet folks, as I said before, merely become condescending and patronizing when they find you out. Others are more pitiless. Perhaps they drop you like a hot coal; perhaps they take pleasure in making you feel, by casual reference, the contrast between your state and theirs. I know one woman who never misses a chance to prattle about the good things that have come to their mutual friends to another young woman who married from a life of luxury into a poor man's home, and now has two babies, no maid and a fight to make both ends meet. She is a brave little matron and she is making the best of things, but you can imagine it does not make it any easier to have tales of the lovely home one friend has just built, the brilliant financial prospects of another, or the wonderful trip a third is about to enjoy, dimmed into her ears, with evident intent to pain.

Not to be prosperous is the deadly sin in many people's eyes. Furthermore they feel themselves called upon to execute the sinner by their scorn, their patronage or their cruelty. Executioners have always been a race despised. Some may not have deserved it but this type certainly does.

GLAD NEWS TO ALL WITH BAD COLDS INSTANT RELIEF--FEW HOURS FOR CURE

Nothing Known to Science is so Invariably Sure to Cure as "Catarrhazone."

Just Breathe Catarrhazone!

The Ozonated Air Cure, better known as "Catarrhazone" is death to colds.

Its health-laden fumes contain the leading balsams of the pine woods. Soothing and antiseptic, it gives instant relief--stops gagging, hawking and sneezing.

Mucous and phlegm are cleared away, breathing made easy, and Catarrh symptoms entirely disappear. Delightful and pleasant is Catarrhazone, simple to use because you breathe it--sure to cure colds and catarrh because it destroys the cause. Journalist Gets
Two Years in Japan.

Tokio, July 14.--Andrew M. Poley, an English Journalist, was today sentenced to two years imprisonment and a fine of $100 on a charge of receiving stolen documents in connection with the recent Japanese naval scandals involving officers in the receipt of illicit commissions for influencing the allotment of contracts.

Poley received the documents from Carl Richter, an employee of a German armament firm, who had stolen them, and who is alleged to have used them for black-mailing purposes. The other two prisoners, V. Herriman, the Tokio representative of the German armament firm, being sentenced to one year in jail, and George Blundell, also connected with English journalism, to ten months imprisonment. The sentences on these two men were, however, suspended for three years.

The newest gumples are made of net with high organdie collars attached.

Beauty.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Sivash."

Beauty is something which makes the eye glad.

Some of us are very indifferent concerning our eyes and do not care whether they enjoy themselves or not. But most of us have kindly feelings for them and give them a treat whenever possible. Nothing pleases a young man so much as to detain a beautiful girl by soft adhesive words for many hours in order that his eyes may enjoy life.

Nature has provided enough beauty in the world to fill all eyes therein and please a plentiful supply for future generations. In some countries man assists Nature with all his might and builds cities rearranges landscapes so as to keep the eye in a continual state of bliss. But this is a hasty and careless country full of men who are becoming millionaires by erecting signboards in inappropriate places and building structures designed by an enemy of humanity. In consequence, the man who is good to his eyes usually fits them with a pair of blinders before he walks down the streets of a modern metropolis.

Some people are so fond of beauty that they spend millions of dollars buying it by the square foot or the ton from artists and sculptors. Others buy a guidebook and a ticket several yards long and spend months wandering through those parts of the world which can be looked at without severe pain. But the most popular way of pleasing the eye is to marry some girl who is the most beautiful thing in the world.

Herein we see the great wisdom of Nature, which has equipped each pair of eyes with a different idea of beauty. Suppose all men were agreed on the subject? In this case a million men would be struggling for the same girl with everything from roses to sawed off shot guns while the rest of the available women would be sitting on the side lines unperceived by attention.

Instead of this condition, almost every man marries the most beautiful woman in the world, in most cases entirely unopposed even by worshippers of art--which proves conclusively that beauty is mostly in the eye.

Household Notes

Jewelry may be successfully washed in hot soapuds, in which there is a little ammonia.

Two table-spoonfuls of powdered sugar to the white of one egg will make excellent meringue.

Berries should never be hulled until just before the meal, or they will lose much of their freshness.

The water that macaroni has been boiled in makes an excellent starch for lingerie garments.

When there is a slight leak in the sprinkler, try dropping a little hot paraffin on the broken place.

A tablespoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meat is boiled will make it deliciously tender.

Apples cored and filled with chopped dates or figs, then baked, make excellent breakfast fruit.

It is a good idea to put a Turkish towel on the bottom of the dish pan when washing fine glass or china.

Brown sugar is a delightful sweetening for cereals, as it gives them a much richer flavor than granulated sugar.

Milk will keep sweet longer if it is put into a stone jar that has been thoroughly cooled than it will in a bottle.

If your feet ache after a dance or a long walk, there is nothing better for them than a soaking in warm water.

Try rubbing the silver every day with a dry flannel cloth, it will not have to be cleaned with silver polish so often.

If you wish to serve cauliflower whole, boil it in a cloth. It can then be lifted out of the saucepan without breaking.

When making apple pies, cut the pieces irregularly instead of slicing them. The pieces will not lay so flat or pack together, and they will cook more quickly.

A large sized scrubbing brush turned upside down and nailed to the floor of the back porch will make an excellent foot scraper.

All boiled water should be tightly corked when cooling, as steaming water will absorb impurities more quickly than raw water.

Never keep bread wrapped in a cloth, as the cloth will absorb moisture, impart an unpleasant taste and cause the bread to mould.

If you do your own work, try making things lighter in hot weather by using paper napkins and paper dishes as much as possible.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.--"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."--Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Queer Justice.

When Bully Boozer beats his wife, we put him in a cell; and there he leads a pleasant life, and likes it passing well. We fill his plate with wholesome fare, when sounds the dinner gong, and see that while he lingers there his life's a grand sweet song. We hand him magazines and books, and papers day by day, so he can loaf in cozy nooks and read the hours away. Sweet women call and hand him trays, and cheer him up so well that he forgets the ugly facts which put him in his cell. Meanwhile his wife, with blackened eye, is toiling o'er a tub; she has to toil, with sob and sigh, to get the children grub. Her husband, sentenced by the court, earns money when he's free, and, though he is a yellow sport, he feeds his family. Because he filled himself with ale, and started household strife, we lock him in our cozy jail, and punish kids and wife. He has the rest he long desired, with time to read and sleep, the while the woman, sick and tired must work and wash and weep. Thus flows our justice in a rill--the kind we keep on tap; the innocent must pay the bill, while sinners have a snap.

Meeting of the Regatta Committee.

Last evening the Regatta Committee met at Wood's West End Restaurant.

President Hiscock occupied the chair and the others present were:—Secretary J. L. Noonan, Treasurer C. J. Ellis, C. E. Hunt, J. P. Crotty, W. J. Martin, L. G. Chafe, J. Day, N. Andrews, J. Perez, T. D. Cawley, R. Dowden, T. J. Moran, W. J. Crotty. President Hiscock mentioned that the Commercial Cable Co. officials had given their usual donation of $25. He also referred touchingly to the recent death of Mr. Robert V. Stein who for many years was an active member of the Regatta Committee. A wreath had been ordered and sent to adorn his casket on behalf of the Committee.

Regarding the wretched condition of the head of Quidi Vidi Lake about which there was so much complaint, President Hiscock reported that he had been in touch with the Chairman and Secretary of Public Works and that he was given the assurance that the matter complained of would be remedied immediately.

Mr. W. J. Martin acquainted the meeting that Mr. A. G. Williams, owing to continuous ill health, would not be able to take an active part in the Regatta this year and also regretted his inability to fill the post of herald. On motion of Mr. Martin, Mr. R. W. Jeans was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Arrangements are being made to have lunch at the C. C. C. tent on Regatta Day.

Lady Davidson will be asked to present the trophies to the winning crews, and the Executive were appointed to wait on her.

The juvenile crews will come before the Committee for inspection at next Friday night's meeting in the T. A. Armoury and the boat clubs will be so notified.

The collectors were asked to finish work in the different wards as early as possible.

The meeting then adjourned.

A Priest's Secret.

TO-DAY'S FEATURE AT THE CRESCENT.

The Secret of Padre Antonio, a stirring Frontier drama illustrating a clever story of a good and true priest, who under trying circumstances would not reveal a secret. A society drama and a comedy by the Box Co. are in keeping with the bill which also comprises a two-part thrilling story of Russian life, entitled The White Terror, or under the Rule of the Czar, depicting the harsh treatment accorded prisoners who are banished to the wilds of Siberia. Miss Louise Arkandy, the soloist, made good in her popular ballad and the show in every respect was first class and will be the attraction again today. On Monday, feature day, another series of class subjects will be announced in the evening papers. Don't fail to see them as something good is promised.

St. John's Gas Light Company. Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of Nitrogen, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,

FOR ROSSLEY'S.

On Monday, Scully, the London versatile character actor, singer and comedian, opens his engagement at Rossley's. This gentleman comes direct from the big London Halls. There will also be some of the finest pictures ever seen here, and a great two-reel feature that will be well worth the price of admission alone.

Scully is also a producer and will arrange some clever comedies and sketches in which the Rossley's will take part. Everyone likes to see the Rossley's in sketches and comedies and many people have remarked the same thing. Rossley's pictures are now the best that can be had; there are no better pictures anywhere shown as they are on the beautiful silver screen. They are wonderfully clear and bright, for he has a reliable operator and the best machine made.

League Football.

THE GOAL KEEPER LEAVES THE FIELD.

The Casuals went down to defeat last night with the C.E.I. after a hard fought game. In the first half the Institute scored the first goal and shortly after Chancey sent in the equalizer and the teams crossed one goal each. Soon after the opening of the second period, Auckinleck landed No. 2 followed by Churchill with a third, but this goal was claimed to be offside by the Casuals, though the referee's decision could not be interfered with. Play became fast and furious. Churchill again got control at close range to the Casuals goal and shot. Noseworthy made no attempt to save for the reason considering that his opponent was offside. The referee gave a goal and that's all could be done. At this juncture, Noseworthy, the Casual goal keeper, walked off the field. This is the first time in the history of the League that such an incident has happened. The teams were:—

CASUALS.—Noseworthy, goal; Bradbury, Harber, backs; Stevedore, Goudie, Marshall, halves; Chancey, Smith, Squires, Wall, Garland, forwards. C. E. I.—Voisey, goal; L. Stick, Hussey, backs; R. Stick, Drover, Fox, halves; Hunt, Evans, M. Churchill, Auckinleck, E. Churchill, forwards. Mr. G. Dick was referee.

Personal.

We regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. Whitmarsh, wife of the respected Pastor of Cochrane Street Church, who last week underwent a second very painful operation. Mrs. Whitmarsh's many friends in the city wish her a speedy recovery.

Thieves Commit Brutal Murder

Buffalo, July 14.—Martin Cook, 30 years old, was set upon by two thieves within hailing distance of his home on Illinois Street, early this morning and was so badly beaten up and stabbed that he died a few minutes later.

The thieves were frightened by the approach of two other men, and escaped. Cook managed to stagger to his own door and rap. He fell dead when his father, James A. Cook, opened the door.

He was able to gasp: "They tried to rob me," before he fell. The murderers had tried to cut some rings from Cook's fingers. The fingers were nearly severed and two others were cut to shreds.

OUR SATURDAY EVENING HOME PAGE.

On the Road.

Ever just over the top of the next brown rise I expect some wonderful thing to flatter my eyes.

"What's yonder?" I ask of the first wayfarer I meet.

"Nothing!" he answers, and looks at my travel-worn feet.

"Only more hills and more hills, like the many you've passed, and a poor enough inn at the last!"

"I already I'm a-move, for I see he is blind."

And I hate that old grumble I've listened to time out of mind.

I've wandered too long not to know there is truth in it still.

That lure of the turn of the road, of the crest of the hill.

So I breast me the rise with full hope, well assured I shall see

Some new prospect of joy, some brave venture a-tiptoe for me.

For I have come far, and confronted the calm and the strife.

I have fared wide, and bit deep in the apple of life.

It is sweet at the end, but oh! sweeter still at the core.

And whatever be gained, yet the reach of the morrow is more.

At the crest of the hill I shall hail the new summit to climb.

The demand of my vision shall beggar the largess of Time.

For I know that the higher I press, the wider I view.

The more's to be ventured and visioned, in worlds that are new.

So when my feet, failing, shall stumble in ultimate dark.

And faint eyes no more the high lift of the pathway shall mark.

There 'under the dew I'll lie down with my dreams, for I know

Whet bright hill-tops the morning will show me, all red in the glow.

—Charles G. D. Roberts, in Pall Mall Gazette.

A Prelude.

Every human life is a symphony, with its allegros, andantes, adagios, and prestos. We have our principal theme, that opens proudly or sadly with our first ambitions or disappointments, and closes with the fulfilment of them, expanded and triumphant or distorted and vague, as the case may be. There are secondary themes and episodes, too; and stringencies, rubatos, and all the complex schemes of expression and tempo; yet the one thought underlies all.

It is only in the working-out of the melodies and phrases that we succeed or fail. Some of us do not understand this fully; we neglect an important bar—and then the error is instant in its influence. Some movements of the composition may be beautifully conceived and executed; some of them may suggest much, but fall to impress; some of the tone-color is brilliant, even exaggerated; some of it gray and dubious. Still, each note, every thought—good, bad, or indifferent—is vitally interesting; for it is, after all, an honest reflection of our lives as we have lived them.—Theodore Stearns.

Beauty in Nature.

Go, when the shadow of your house is long

Upon the garden—when some new-waked bird,

Pecking and fluttering, chirps a sudden song.

And not a leaf is stirred.

Go there, I say; stand at the water's brink.

And shoals of spotted grayling you shall see

Basking between the shadows—look, and think

"This beauty is for me;

"For me this freshness in the morning hours.

For me the water's clear tranquillity;

For me the soft descent of chestnut flowers;

The cushat's cry for me.

"The lovely laughter of the wind-swayed wheat;

The easy slope of yonder pastoral hill;

The sedgy brook whereby the red king meet

And wade and drink their fill."

Then saunter down that terrace whence the sea

All fair with wing-like sails you may discern;

Be glad, and say "This beauty is for me—

A thing to love and learn.

"For me the bounding in of tides; for me

The laying bare of sands when they retreat;

The purple flush of calms, the sparkling gleam

When waves and sunshine meet."

—Ivan Ingelow.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, Etc.

A Dandelion's Way.

A dandelion loves to have her own way, just as you and I do. She loves to grow up tall, with a fine, long stem nodding and shaking her head and swaying merrily in the wind and sunshine. When the storm comes beating down she draws her green waterproof cloak up over her head, and while the thrush sings so cheerfully, she makes merry with the raindrops—gay little dandelion!

But the dandelion cannot always have her own way, sweet as it is, for there is the gardener who comes cutting her down cruelly with the lawn mower again and again and again.

How discouraging all this is when one feels herself made to live on a long stem with such frowny friends as the rain, the wind, and the sunshine! But the dandelion is not to be discouraged, and in a wise little brown heart she considers how she may best adapt herself to such adverse circumstances as gardeners and lawn mowers.

The next day she comes up as light and friendly as ever, only with a shorter stem. Again she is cut down, and again she springs up bravely with a still shorter stem.

At last she is trampled upon and bruised and crushed under foot to the earth, but the brightness and gladness and beauty are still there in the faithful brown heart, and gazing steadfastly into heaven, she sends up one trustful little bud without any stem at all.

Her sister dandelions do the same, and they bloom and bloom and bloom until the green lawn looks as if it were buttoned down all over with pieces of brightest gold.

Conversation Don't's.

1. Don't tell long stories, or even short ones, unless you have an especial gift for it.
2. Remember that talking about yourself is an indulgence, and, as such, should be strictly limited.
3. If another woman tells you of some sensation or experience of her own, don't immediately cap it up with one of yours. "Swapping tastes" is of the lowest order of conversation. I have been in circles where the talk consisted in each woman's taking her turn in telling how she thought or felt about some commonplace subject, such as the digestibility of sheeps' or liability to colds.
4. Never lose consciousness of the proportion of the talk you are usurping, and be sure that the quality matches the quantity.
5. Discriminate always between talk for your own pleasure and talk for your friends. People constantly tell the stupidest anecdotes because these have become charged with some extraneous charm impossible to transmit. Perhaps the occasion when it took place was important because some particular person was there, and every detail of it has taken on a radiance visible only to the narrator.

My Friend the World.

My friend the world for comradeship Shares with me what it has to spend Of beauty, pleasure, happiness, Color and contrast without end.

And sorrow, too, it bids me share, And failure, poverty, and pain, Lest I should grow too blind to see That some must lose for other's gain.

Yet, though sometimes my heart is sad With things I crave no knowledge of, Each day I thank my friend, the world, For giving me so much to love!

Girl Swims the Hudson River.

New York, July 13.—Miss Dorothy Bauer, the fourteen year old daughter of a New York merchant, who last summer won a two-mile swimming race in Canada, swam across the Hudson River yesterday, starting at Tower Ridge, Hastings. The youthful swimmer, who lives at Riverview Manor, went to the river soon after two o'clock with friends. Owing to the strong ebb-tide flowing, she was advised not to make the attempt, but she insisted, and divesting herself of her clothes, plunged in. After an hour and a half in the water, she landed opposite Yonkers, three miles down the river from her starting point, showing no signs of fatigue.

Miss Bauer is the first of her sex to swim the river at Hastings.

Perfect taste is the faculty of receiving the greatest possible pleasure from those material sources which are attractive to our moral nature in its purity and perfection.

Woman's Unrest--and Why.

By The Countess of Selborne.

By the expression, the Women's Movement, we indicate not only the agitation for the grant of the vote, but the general movement among women desirous of taking a more active part in the efforts to improve the conditions of life, which have attracted so many of the best of both sexes during the last half-century. The mediæval religious orders, and the numerous charities which were founded by women of old time, bear witness that this is no new aspiration, but rather a new manifestation of a spirit which has always inspired many.

A great impetus was given to the wish for wider opportunities of work by the brilliant example of Florence Nightingale, and the call which she made on women to fill the ranks of the great profession of trained nursing. Josephine Butler showed that a woman need not be afraid to attack moral evils and Octavia Hill that they could also most usefully concern themselves with municipal problems such as housing the working classes, providing towns with open spaces, and caring more for the beauty as well as the health of our dwelling places.

It was inevitable that many women, being now engaged in the work which has been thus opened to them, should be brought to think of the ways under which we live, and the changes and alterations which seemed to them to be required in those laws, and so gradually an increasing number began to desire the vote for themselves, or for some representatives of it. This desire we maintain is a healthy and sincerity need not have provoked any antagonism.

It was, in fact, met in a friendly spirit by several statesmen on both sides of the House, Municipal suffrage and votes for the newly-women as an experiment, and subsequently,

MAUD SELBORNE.

Wit and Wisdom.

"If we were true to the best which is in us, we could dispense with the regret that we are not more perfect."

A sermon in a nutshell by the late Professor Churton Collins, and one of a hundred like sermons which appeared in a recent number of The English Review. These "maxims and reflections" are the ripe fruit of a mind which was keenly observant and acutely sensitive to the "slings and arrows" of modern society. We select a few at random, many of which are salted with a discriminatory cynicism:—

Religion with the majority of men is only a body of opinions having no relation to conduct and very little to principles.

"No man who feels strongly and thinks intensely can ever be consistent."

Always distrust a man who assures you that he is to be trusted. No one who deserves confidence ever solicits it.

The most immoral of all professions is the law, and of this we have an interesting collateral and minor illustration in the fact that three Chief Justices, during the last hundred years, declined peerages, because their children were illegitimate.

Place no confidence in a man who is scrupulous about ritual in religion, for he is pretty sure to be either a hypocrite or a fool.

Never trust a man who speaks well of everybody.

In prosperity our friends know us; in adversity we know our friends.

Envy is the sincerest form of flattery.

If we escape punishment for our vices, why should we complain if we are not rewarded for our virtues?

If men were as unselfish as women, women would very soon become more selfish than men.

We are no more responsible for the evil thoughts which pass through our minds than a scarecrow for the birds which fly over the seed-plots he has to guard; the sole responsibility in each case is to prevent them from settling.

Success in life depends far more on energy than on wisdom.

Army Stories.

THE UNKNOWN SEX.

During the time that a certain Middlesex regiment was quartered in Cawnpore, a large order was sent to a shoe-making firm for boots for the men. The manager sent the order to the chief baboo with instructions that it was to be attended to without delay. The baboo took the paper and read it with evident surprise on his face. He re-read the order and appeared more mystified still. He read it a third, then a fourth, and finally a fifth time. Then he went off to the manager. "Please, sir," he said, "not understand. Male sex I know, female sex I know, but what is Middlesex?"

THE "FATE" OF THE MULE.

After an action the chaplain was visiting the wounded men lying in the field hospital. Among them was a soldier who had been kicked very severely by a mule, and, being in excruciating agony, was disturbing the general quiet of the ward by his incessant groaning.

"Come, come, my poor chap," said the chaplain kindly, as he went to his bedside, "you must try and bear the pain like a man. It's no use, you know, kicking against Fate."

"Bedad, sorr, you're right," said the soldier, opening his eyes and looking up at the speaker, "especially when it's the 'fate' of an army mule."

TO OBLIGE A WOMAN.

In the early days of Lord Roberts' career, the famous Sir Colin Campbell who had already at that time been raised to the peerage as Lord Clyde, met the then Mrs. Roberts at dinner, and in the course of conversation expressed the opinion that she ought to be very grateful to him as he had not sent her husband to the Far East.

"I am afraid I am not in the least grateful to you," was the lady's reply, "for making my husband feel that I am standing in the way of his career."

Lord Clyde opened his eyes in amazement.

"Well, I'm hanged," he said, "with something like a smile on his face, 'if I understand you women, I'll never try and oblige one of you again.'"

AN UNEQUAL ADVANTAGE.

During the first Boer War a certain Highland regiment was in conflict with the burghers, both sides being well protected. The men of the Highland regiment were under orders not to show themselves. In spite of that, however, one of them would get up and take a shot at the enemy, dropping to the ground again the moment he had fired. Seeing him, one of the Boers determined to adopt the same tactics in the hope of potting him and bringing him to the earth without the exercise of his volition. They had exchanged several shots to no purpose, when, as the Scotchman rose, the Boer got up, and firing before the latter hit him in the hand. It was more surprising than pain which caused the Scotchman to yell.

"Serve you right, Mac," said an officer who was lying on the ground close by. "You were told not to show yourself."

"Nae doot, nae doot," said the man, "but hoo did I ken he was gaun to fire oot o' his turn?"

LORD WOLSELEY'S DINNER.

Lord Wolseley's feeling for the welfare of those men once made him the hero of an episode in which undeniably he got the worst of it. The men derisively were hurrying backwards and forwards with steaming pails of soup, when Lord Wolseley, passing by, stopped one of them and determined to see that the food provided was up to the standard he required. "Remove the lid from that pail," he said to the man. The man removed the lid. "Now let me taste that," he said.

"But please yer—"

"Let me taste it, I say," the Commander-in-Chief interrupted him. Before the man could say or do anything, Lord Wolseley got a spoon, dipped it in the pail, and tasted it.

"Disgraceful," he exclaimed. "Call that soup? Why it tastes like nothing in the world so much as dish water!"

"Please yer honour, that's exactly what it is," replied the man.

The butterfly circled lower and lower, and finally lighted on Dorothy's small forefinger.

"What a lovely dress you have on!" said Dorothy. "Was it always a beautiful blue like this?"

"Oh, no," answered the butterfly. "It is quite new. I outgrew my old one so that I just split it up in the back; when I slipped out of it, my new one was beneath."

"Last summer," the butterfly went on, "I was a caterpillar, and I crawled about on the ground. At last I grew very sleepy, and so I made a nice, soft, silky bed, and so I made it all winter. When I woke, I pushed myself out of bed, and then I was no longer a caterpillar. I was a lovely blue butterfly."

"How wonderful!" cried Dorothy. "What do you eat?"

"I was just on the point of getting my breakfast when you called me," answered the butterfly. "Have you never noticed how we butterflies hover around your honeysuckle blossoms?"

But Dorothy had not noticed. "There is honey in every flower-cup," continued the butterfly. "From them we get our food; our home is among them, and among them we sleep."

As the butterfly finished speaking, he fluttered off down the path.

"I am Squirmy the Worm," answered a small voice. "I must crawl, because I have no legs like the spider, or wings like the butterfly. I hope that you do not mind my crawling on your pink dress."

"Not at all," answered Dorothy, "but please tell me how you can move without legs."

"I have queer little hooks on my body," answered the worm. "They are so small that you cannot see them; they help me to move along. As I crawl, I turn the bits of earth over and over, and that is how I help the gardener by keeping the ground soft."

"Why!" exclaimed Dorothy, "I never knew that before!"

"Ah, here comes Hopsy!" said the worm. "How do, Hopsy?"

"It's a toad," said Dorothy.

"Are you not glad to see me?" asked the toad. "I have been asleep all winter in my house in the ground. I eat the bugs in the garden; if I did not they would spoil your pretty flowers. My eyes are so large that I can see the smallest bugs. I catch them with my tongue. Aren't you glad that I live in your garden?"

"Indeed I am," answered Dorothy. "O Hopsy, please tell me before you go, how else lives in the garden?"

The toad turned his large eyes on her. "There are many others," he answered, "many, many others. Look there in the path now."

But while Dorothy was wondering whether it was Lumby the Beetle, or Mr. Hornet, dressed in his yellow jacket, she heard her mother's voice saying, "Wake up, little girl; this is your practice hour."

Parliamentary "Bulls."

Some Mixed Metaphors.

A writer in the Prize Reciter and Speaker quotes some amusing instances of the mixing of metaphors by members of Parliament.

Some of these one has heard before, but a large proportion of them are quite new.

Mr. Balfour, in a speech, spoke of "an empty theatre of unsympathetic auditors." Lord Curzon has remarked that "though not out of the wood we have a good ship." Sir William Hart-Dyke has told how Mr. Lowther "had caught a big fish in his net—and went to the top of the tree for it." Mr. Asquith has remarked that "redistribution is a theory subject which requires delicate handling, or it will tread on some people's toes."

Mr. Balfour told the Commons that "among the many jarring notes in this house on military affairs this subject at least must be regarded as an oasis." But General Buller evidently thinks there is little to be gained by so-called army reform, for he declares that "the army is honey-combed with cliques, and kisses go by favour in this web of axe-grinders."

Before Mr. Winston Churchill opposed the present Government he, at a meeting of the Bow and Bromley Conservative Association, said that

Our Fairy Story.

THE GARDEN PARTY.

Dorothy was lazily swinging in the hammock under the lilac bush, she had just finished "Alice in Wonderland." "My, what an exciting time Alice had, nothing interesting ever happens to me. Wish I had another good story to read."

"Silly little girl!" said a scolding voice. Startled, Dorothy sat straight up, and swinging on a branch of purple lilac, she saw a small green fairy.

"Use your eyes, your garden is full of interesting stories; I have no patience with you!" And spreading her gauzy wings, the little green fairy flew up into the maple tree.

Somehow Dorothy was not very much surprised to see the fairy, but what could she have meant, where were the interesting things.

"Tweed, tweed, twitter, twitter, tweed, why don't you keep your eyes open. You will not have to go outside the garden, either. Now I am a Blue-bird. And in the gate-post there is a large hole; my nest is in that hole, and in the nest there are four little whitish-blue eggs."

Dorothy clapped her hands. "I will watch for the four little baby blue-birds!" she cried.

"Meanwhile," said the bird, "suppose you find out something about Spinner the Spider? I see that she is at home in the white rose-bush, and she has on her new gown of yellow and black velvet."

Dorothy jumped from the hammock and ran to the white-rose bush. She stood quite still for a moment, and watched the spider. "What are you doing?" she asked, presently.

"Spinning a new silken thread to repair a part of my house," answered the spider, without turning round. "At the back of my body you may see five tiny knobs; those are my spinnerets."

"I have eight strong legs; that is why I can run so fast," said the spider. "I have also eight eyes, which are so bright that I can see even the tiniest fly—flies are good to eat, you know."

"The back part of my body is really a soft, round bag; everything I eat goes into it. While there, a wonderful change takes place; my food becomes the material from which I make my web. See my baby spiders? I carry them about on my back."

"How funny!" said Dorothy, laughing.

"Not at all!" retorted the spider, as she ran away.

"Oh, you beauty!" cried Dorothy, as she looked up and saw something fly past. "Please stop; I want to speak to you."

The butterfly circled lower and lower, and finally lighted on Dorothy's small forefinger.

"What a lovely dress you have on!" said Dorothy. "Was it always a beautiful blue like this?"

"Oh, no," answered the butterfly. "It is quite new. I outgrew my old one so that I just split it up in the back; when I slipped out of it, my new one was beneath."

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can say that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—April 13
