How to Stop a Cough

A constitutional remedy that removes the cause by building up the system, will stop a cough and break up a cold. These elements contained in Vinol—Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Wild Cherry, Iron and Hypophosphites—soon create an energy that throws off the cold and prevents its recurrence.

Here is Proof that Vinol is a Great Remedy for Coughs and Colds.

"I had a severe cold and cough, no appetite and headaches, and was tired all the time. I read about Vinol and decided to try it, and the result was most satisfactory as I was soon as well as ever and my cold and cough had disappeared."—L. Sage, 189 Elgin St., Brantford, Ont.

"For years I suffered with a chronic cough, so I could not sleep nights and continued to lose flesh. My druggist asked me to try Vinol. It cured my cough. I can sleep nights and have gained twelve pounds. Vinol is the best tonic and tissue builder I have ever taken."—W.D. Ren, Lagrange, N.C.

For all run-down, nervous, anemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol. Your money will be returned if Vinol fails—Leading Druggists.

Vinol Creates Strength

For Her Sake;

The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"I will," she answered.

"Then I ask you to give me the pretty white lily you have been wearing all the evening."

As Diana detached the lily from her dress and gave it to him, she saw Evadne watching her with laughing malicious eyes. An angry light flashed in her own; she did not wait to think. Snatching the flower from Sir Lisle's hands, she tore it into pieces and flung it upon the ground. The young man was far too surprised to express his annoyance. She turned to him with the defiant gesture of an injured queen.

"Never do that again," she cried imperiously, "never ask me for a flower or for anything else! I forbid it."

"I will obey you," he replied, and with a low bow he left. He was stunned by her conduct, and for some minutes hardly realized what had taken place.

Every soft and gentle feeling died in her heart; in that moment a torrent of fury raged in her breast, and she heartily hated him because he was a Scarsdale. He should not call her Diana; he should not ask her for her flowers; she would neither look at him nor speak to him in future. But when the moon shone in at the window, and the stars lit up the blue sky, she was ashamed of herself, and she fell upon her knees, crying out that she wished Sir Royal were there to impress upon her the need of self-control and self-discipline, for she was so proud—so proud—and was it not written, "Blessed are the humble!" So sobbing, Diana fell asleep.

CHAPTER XXV.

"What have they done to you, Diana?" asked Sir Royal, gazing with bewildered eyes on the lovely young face which seemed so changed to him.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

She rose early, as was her custom at Furness, and took breakfast long before the others were awake. Ah, the dear old home, with its stately rooms and broad corridors, its lofty windows, its sweet fresh perfumed air, so different from the vitiated atmosphere of the house in Mayfair! She hastened to the conservatory, to gaze upon the fountains and the flowers. She went to the terrace where everything was bright and beautiful. In her delight she could have kissed the marble statues; she could have fainted that even they smiled upon her and welcomed her home. On repairing to her favorite spot—the rose garden—she found that it had been well cared for in her absence, and a few late roses were still in flower. It was there Sir Royal found her.

"I knew you would be here, Diana," he said; "I came direct to you."

Sir Royal gazed steadfastly upon the fair form before him, for it was no longer that of the child he had petted, teased, and consoled. Diana, tall and fair, in a morning dress of pale blue cashmere with a rich cascade of lace, a knot of autumn roses at her throat, was like a vision to him. He looked at her steadily, although his heart beat with a rush of passionate love. He did not attempt to kiss the beautiful face; but he held the dainty hands closely in his. It was then that he asked the question:

"What have they done to you, Diana? You have changed from a child to a woman."

"I am not changed, Royal," she said; "I am just the same."

"Ah, my dear," he rejoined gently, "there is something in your face that was not there when you left home! You were a child then; you are a woman now."

"I shall never change to you, Royal," she said sweetly.

"Let me see your eyes, Diana. Why should you seek to hide them from me? I have shared every secret of yours since you came home here to Furness, a laughing, happy child."

She raised her lovely eyes obediently enough to his, and he looked at her earnestly. Then his face grew pale, and he dropped her hands with a sigh—a long hopeless sigh.

"It is the love-light that shines in your eyes, Diana," he said; "and love was the one thing wanted to bring your fair beauty to perfection, even as the warmth of the sun brings a rose into full bloom. That is the change in you, Diana. It could not fail to come sooner or later; it has come now."

He leaned against one of the statues, his face white as the marble near him, fighting Heaven only knew how fiercely, with the bitter pain tearing at his heart. He had always known he must lose her—indeed she had never been his—but now that the blow had fallen, it almost crushed him.

"You have learned to care about some one, have you not?" asked Sir Royal, after a brief pause.

"I hardly know, Royal," she answered, as a faint blush stole over her face.

"You are not quite sure?" cried Sir Royal, and his eyes were lighted with love and hope.

"No, not quite—at least I think not," replied Diana, with charming indecision.

"You are not engaged—not promised in marriage?" he interrogated earnestly.

Diana laughed, blushed, and shrunk back a little.

"Oh, no, Royal—certainly not!" she said. "I am quite sure I do not look like that."

Then came the great struggle of his life, the one great battle with himself, in which he was defeated and overthrown. He loved her with an intensity that consumed his heart. True, he was more than twice her age, and he considered that he had nothing worthy of her acceptance. He had an ancient title and a fair estate; but she deserved ten thousand times more than he had to offer. His very love for her had up to this time kept him silent, for she had seemed to him such a sweet innocent child that he would have deemed it a desecration to speak to her of love or marriage. He had settled in his own mind long since that he was unworthy of her, and that he must bury his love and his sorrow in silence, and think of her only as a child. But, now—now that he fancied she was awakening to the knowledge of love and that the possibility of a rival for her hand appearing, he must speak or die.

"You have learned to care for some one, Diana; and yet you are not sure, you do not know. Oh, Diana, if this be true, let me urge my love for you! I have worshipped you, my darling, ever since you came here, a laughing, lovely child, bringing sunshine and music in your train. Every glance of your beautiful eyes, every sound of your voice is inexpressibly dear to me. My life has long centered in my love for you; I have no care or interest but you."

"You have always been good to me," she acknowledged.

And he saw, with a bitter pang, that she had not the faintest idea of his meaning. He looked into the sweet unconscious face, determined to know his fate before the interview closed.

"Dian," he said, "if you have learned to care for some one, the thought of love and marriage must have occurred to you. How shall I say what is in my heart? How can I frame the words? Oh, Diana, my idol, if you can love and marry any one, why should not I be the favored one?"

A mist came before his eyes, his heart beat violently. He had spoken the words that had burned in his heart so long; the die was cast. Alas, she drew back from him with a startled face and shadowed eyes!

"You?" she cried. "Oh, Royal, I do love you, but not in that way!"

"I know, my dear," he said, with a look of desperate longing—"I know I have always been the dearest, truest of friends to you—an elder brother, indeed. But have you never thought of me in the light of a lover?"

"Oh, no," she replied—"never!"

And she was so earnest that the hope, faint as it was, died in his heart when he heard the words uttered.

"So that, if some months ago I had asked you to marry me, you would have said 'No'?"

"Some months ago?" she repeated. "I do not know; I cannot tell. I did not know the difference then."

"And you know it now, Diana?"

"Yes, I know it now," she answered, dreamily.

She was thinking to herself how different it would have been had Sir Lisle stood there in his place.

Then Sir Royal knew that he had heard his doom, and that Diana's heart had gone from her for evermore. He stood unmoved while his last hope died; then he said, gently:

"I will not ask you any questions, Diana. I respect your secret; perhaps I shall know it in good time. But if I can never be your husband, Dian, or your lover, may I always be your friend?"

"Always," she replied. "You are the best friend I have ever had or shall ever have, I am sure, Royal."

"Heaven bless you for your kindly thought of me!" he said. "I shall bury all my hopes—not that I have ever really entertained any serious hope—I shall bury my love, and never bring its ghost to startle you; but the ties of friendship will always live between us, Diana?"

"Yes, always," she replied. "Why, Royal, you have ever been a part of my life to me. From the time I first knew you, how you have scolded, lectured, and petted me! You have spoiled me more than papa has ever done."

"Yet I have told you some disagreeable truths, Diana."

"Yes, at times," she allowed. "But with all their unpalatable truths, I like your lectures, Royal, for I know they are intended for my good."

Then Sir Royal took her hands in his and looked into the lovely young face with its rich flush of youth and beauty. That his own in that moment wore a pallor like death, while his eyes were dark with pain, mattered little to him.

"Give me a pledge this morning, Diana," he said, pleadingly. "I may never be your husband or your lover; but pledge me your word that, since I am your friend, you will trust wholly in me, that, above all, if you are in trouble, you will seek me, and that you will never keep a secret from me. Do you promise me that?"

And Diana, looking at him with loving eyes, answered:

"I promise, Royal."

And she kept her word. In the dark after-time, when her heart was rent with the sorrow which her unbending pride had wrought, she went to him, and he remembered this hour.

FOOD ROTTING IN DENMARK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. Millions of dollars' worth of food is rotting in Denmark and prices have increased from fifty to a hundred per cent. because of a labor strike at Copenhagen, according to passengers who landed to-day from the steamer Helligolav. More than 500 passengers had been delayed six weeks in leaving Copenhagen. They experienced no difficulty from the New York harbor strike, because the clerical force of the steamship company worked all night to unload their baggage.

RIOTING IN PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 21. Rioting broke out in the steel mill district at Braddock shortly after noon. According to reports received by the police, a mob of 100 persons gathered in the vicinity of the plants and fighting resulted in which a number of rioters were injured. One state trooper was seriously injured and brought to a hospital here. A troop of state police was summoned, rushed to the scene and at one o'clock were engaged in driving back the crowd.

CRISIS IN STRIKE SITUATION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. A crisis in the strike of 40,000 New York longshoremen was reached to-day. The International Mercantile Marine, which has forty ships tied up in port, put strike breakers at the work removing cargoes and five hundred U. S. troops began work in dun-geons at army piers, where trans-ports to and from Europe have been held up. Army officials made it plain that troops brought here from New York would be used solely as work-men at army piers and would not ap-pear at Private or Shipping Board Docks. Heavy Police guards, how-ever, were on duty at other piers.

STEAMER IN DISTRESS.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 21. The steamer New Windsor is in dis-tress in lat. 45.55 North, long. 41.20 West, and the steamer Aicis, 195 miles distant, is proceeding to her as-sistance. The New Windsor reports that the propeller is stripped of all but one blade.

OFF FOR AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, Oct. 21. Captain George Matthews, former sailor, turned aviator, set off from the suburbs of Hounslow to-day for the air-plane flight to Australia in an effort to win the prize of ten thousand pounds offered by the Commonwealth for that feat.

THE TERMS OF CANADIAN LOAN.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, to-day made known the terms of the forthcoming victory loan. The prospectus will ask for a mini-mum amount of $300,000,000 with the right to accept all or any part of sub-scriptions in excess of that sum. As in previous years, subscribers will be given a choice of maturity five year bonds due November 1st, 1924, or fifteen year bonds due November 1st, 1934. The securities will carry in-terest at the rate of 5 1/2 per cent. per annum, payable May 1st and Nov. 1st, and the issue price will be 100 and ac-crued interest for both maturities, making the incoming return 6 1/2 per cent. per annum.

MINING DISASTER.

BENZANCE, England, Oct. 21. A disaster in Levant Mines at St. Just, Cornwall, to-day, cabled about forty deaths. Many miners were in-jured.

ONTARIO GOES DRY BY HUGE VOTE.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 21. Ontario goes "dry" by overwhelm-ing majority. Counting of ballots in political campaign has priority over referendum count and therefore fig-ures of the latter vote are exceedin-gly incomplete. It is already evident however, that the majority in favor of prohibition will be huge.

SECURITY FOR TENANTS.

LONDON, Oct. 21. Prime Minister Lloyd George to-day announced that the Government proposed to provide security for ten-ants against increases in their rents and against the sale of farms upon which they are working.

Disabled Ship Coming.

A message was received yesterday saying that the S. S. Windsor, 450 miles east of St. John's, was disabled, with all her propeller blades gone ex-cept one. The S. S. Saluda was dis-patched to her assistance, and will tow her to this port.

Clock That Strikes Thirteen.

Among the most curious clocks in the world are two in Worsley, Lanca-shire, that never strike one. Instead, they strike thirteen at one a.m. and one p.m.

One of them is over the Earl of Ellesmere's place called Worsley Hall and is the original clock which the Duke of Bridgewater had placed in the tower. It is said that the Duke had the clock made to strike the "un-lucky" number so as to warn his work men that it was time to return after dinner, some of them having excused themselves for being late on the very ground that they could not hear it strike one.

This recalls the incident when the big clock of the House of Parliament saved a man's life.

A soldier in the reign of William and Mary was condemned by court martial for falling asleep while on duty on the terrace of Windsor. He stoutly denied the charge, and by way of proof solemnly declared that he heard Old Tom (the predecessor of Big Ben) strike thirteen instead of twelve.

The officers laughed at the idea, but while the man was in prison awaiting execution several persons came for-ward and swore that the clock actual-ly did strike thirteen, whereupon the soldier was pardoned and released.

Doctors to Fight.

In the good old days, when Hodge on the village green stood and watched with envy the sword play between two young gallants, duels were of as common occurrence as breakfast.

An interesting and sudden revival of the fashion has come about in New York, not because some fayre lady's honour has been smirched, but be-cause of a difference of opinion be-tween two medical men. The weapons to be used are, in the one case, fresh air, cold water, and plenty of good food, while the adversary is pinning his faith on germs of the deadliest order—typhoid fever, small-pox, bubonic plague, and the like. In a word, it is a contest on which Dickens' Bob Sawyer, as represented by the medical profession, will look with keen interest. It is to be a fight to a fin-ish.

Dr. Zettel, of St. Paul, contends that a healthy existence is sufficient proof against disease, and that inoc-ulation and vaccinated are exploded theories.

Dr. Hill, of Minnesota, debates this point, and, inoculated and vaccinated up to the hilt, he challenges the former to a duel to the death, the agree-ment being that both medical men will constantly expose themselves to the deadliest levers ever conceived by the Royal College of Surgeons.

Such a great variance of opinion exists regarding the most effective way of combating disease that the re-sult of this experiment should be awaited with very great interest. It only now remains for some enterpris-ing agent to boom it well for wagers to be laid on the winner!

Worth $100 a Bottle to Him, O'Holloran Says

Couldn't Work For Years—Tan-lac Puts Him On His Feet.

"I figure that Tanlac has been worth $100 a bottle to me," said Dennis O'Holloran, a prominent and highly respected citizen of Halifax, Canada, who resides at 327 South Street.

"About five years ago," he contin-ued, "I was taken suddenly ill, and no one seemed to know what was the trouble. For two years after this I never did a lick of work, and for sixteen months I never left the house. I was in a terribly run-down condition, and my stomach was in such bad shape I could eat scarcely anything. Most of the time you could hold on a spoon all I would eat at a meal, and what little I did eat did me no good. My nerves were all unstrung and I did not know what a good night's sleep was, as I would sleep in fits and starts. I would get up in the morning worn to a frazzle, and really felt worse than when I went to bed. I finally got so I could get about a little, but could do no work, as the least little effort left me perfectly exhausted, and I just felt worn out and tired all the time, and had about given up all hope of getting well.

"I had seen so much in the papers about Tanlac I made up my mind to try a bottle, although I had tried so many things and got no relief that I had lost faith in medicines. The first bottle of Tanlac I took seemed to help me, so I kept on taking it, and now I have taken five bottles, and it has done me a world of good. I am feeling better in every way. I have a fine appetite, eat anything I want and what I eat does me good. I can sleep all night long as sound as a log, my nerves are in fine shape, and I am feeling like my old self again, and can do a hard day's work with ease. I give Tanlac the credit for putting me on my feet, and I can't say too much for it. My wife is as enthusiastic over Tanlac as I am, and we both think it is wonderful."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Wm. Campbell, wife of Wm. Campbell, Victualler, of Water Street, passed away last night. She has been suffer-ing for quite a long time, and her death was not unexpected. Wise Men Say—

That you have no idea how big the other fellow's troubles are.

That money, like salt, is necessary, but an overdose is harmful.

That hard knocks keep us from becoming flabby morally as well as physically.

That not everyone who is gifted with intellect has the saving grace of common sense.

That a man without self-restraint is like a barrel without hoops, and tumbles to pieces.

That the unfortunate thing about good resolutions is that they are often made too late.

That he is not worthy of the honey-comb who shuns the hive because the bees have stings.

That politeness is like an air-cushion: there may be nothing in it, but it eases the jolt wonderfully.

That life is a good deal like a see-saw, and it pays to be decent to the fellow who is down, for he may be up to-morrow.

That resentment grows through brooding over a fancied slight. Hearts harden themselves in silence, and, as time goes on, it becomes more difficult to break through the silence.

Often there are strained relations among men, who, at the bottom of their hearts, have sincere respect for each other, and smouldering affection also, which only needs a little coaxing of the sparks to burst into flames.

VICTORY PARADE!

The Voters of St. John's West Parade in Their Thousands for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin, After Big Meeting at Ropewalk.

Hon. J. R. Bennett, J. J. Mullaly and J. T. Martin, the Liberal-Progressive candidates for St. John's West, held a record meeting at Mundy's Pond last night, addressing the electors in the school room. The room was filled to its utmost capacity by the sincere voters who live in the locality, and make their living from honest work. And when the candidates arrived in the road there was a burning of bonfires and firing of guns, which proved absolutely that this section of St. John's West was solid for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin. Just before 9 o'clock a demonstration arranged by the West End Committee, and which numbered many driving in motor cars and carriages, and in the walking procession was the voters of the Independent West End, who will not stand for the attempt being made to rob J. R. Bennett of his seat; nor the attempt to try and knife his colleagues, Mullaly and Martin. Along the route of procession to the Ropewalk the voters rallied in great strength, and when the Ropewalk was arrived at the workers and the women were present in large numbers. When the meeting was called to order, Mr. Jonas Barter, of the T.P.U., was called to the chair and introduced the candidates. Mr. Mullaly was the first speaker, and in coming forward was received with warm applause. Mr. Mullaly claimed that he was himself a workman, and that the policy of Sir Michael Cashin was the one to adopt if the people themselves wanted to be kept out of slavery. It would be an unwise policy to invite depression at this time, when the Empire is hoping to keep Newfoundland in the field, and as sure, if Coaker and his team were sacrificed badly. If the workers coming in intend to stay and rear up their families, and keep their homes going in the city, they should vote for Bennett, Mullaly and Martin. Mr. Martin followed. When he arose he was given a whole-hearted reception. He was seeking election only for the reason that the forces opposing Sir M. P. Cashin were not only for one big purpose, and the workmen of the country would know it to their grief if St. John's went back on its traditions. There were other reasons also, said Mr. Martin, why St. John's had better be careful. He asked the voters to watch carefully their interests, and only by voting the straight ticket for Bennett, Mullaly and himself could they do this. Hon. Mr. Bennett was next called upon, and he certainly was given that loyal support that he deserved. In a speech of over an hour he dealt with the Manifesto of Sir M. P. Cashin. He also dealt with the part he was obliged to play in the great war. The grafters who were getting their money from manufacturing corporations, should not be allowed to rob St. John's

West of honest representation. I challenge any man in this country, said Mr. Bennett, to lay one single charge against me that I have not been honest to the interests of St. John's West. I also challenge any man to say that any graft has come to me. No funds except those of Bennett, Mullaly and Martin are being used in this West End campaign, and the demonstration you have here around you is voluntary. It will be to your interests to vote for my two colleagues and myself, which you will do on Nov. 3rd. Mr. Matthew Murphy, one of the oldest of the Ropewalk employees, addressed the gathering in a rattling speech and urged his hearers to vote the straight ticket for the Liberal-Progressive candidates. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The procession then reformed and paraded through the city to the T. A. Armoury amidst salutes of musketry. At the Armoury the candidates again addressed the vast assemblage thanking them for their whole-hearted reception. The East End "Fighting Trio" Messrs. Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox, who had just returned from Pouch Cove, were also present and addressed the meeting. If the Dominion is asking how St. John's is going, the answer was given last night in no uncertain sound—Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox for the East End and Bennett, Mullaly and Martin for the West End.

And Pouch Cove, Too!

Pouch Cove outdid itself in the magnificent reception extended to the Two Thousand Majority Team—Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox—last night. The spacious S.U.F. Hall was crowded literally to the rafters. It was really the famous statement of Cassar: "Veni, Vide, Vici"—We came, we saw, we conquered, and it was quite unnecessary as in the case of the Coaker-Squires candidates, to bring fifty or sixty supporters from town to "walloper" up. Mr. John S. Noseworthy having been moved to the chair, stated that he had much pleasure on behalf of the residents of Pouch Cove in welcoming to the township their respected and sole representative, the Hon. W. J. Higgins, and his colleagues, Councillor Vinnicombe and Mr. Cyril James Fox. On arising to his feet the Hon. Mr. Higgins received a tremendous ovation, and in a forceful and convincing speech rendered an account of his stewardship. Local district affairs were discussed in a free and frank manner, which evoked the sympathy of the large audience present. Then the Hon. Mr. Higgins went into detail at the straightforward, honest, clearcut policy of the Fisherman-Premier, Sir Michael Cashin, and in his usual convincing and logical manner, made an address that appealed to the intelligence and reason of this most industrious community. The close of his remarks was punctuated with spontaneous applause, which must have been most gratifying to the one who has done so much for his constituency during the difficult and trying war period.

Pouch Cove is going to be a substantial one. The meeting closed with hearty and sincere cheers for the favorite representatives of St. John's East—Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox—and the famous fighting trio received a most enthusiastic send-off. It was a triumphant procession home with the houses illuminated en route and joy-guns sounding their feudo-jeon. After last night's greeting by Pouch Cove, the last reputed stronghold of "the funky trio" has capitulated, and the support of this settlement makes the two thousand majority an easy proportion for "The Fighting Trio"—Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox.

Meeting at Freshwater.

The West End Liberal Progressive candidates held two meetings last evening the first being in Freshwater at the residence of Mr. John Jenkins. Every voter on the road was present and all pledged their support to Messrs. Bennett, Mullaly and Martin. On motion of Mr. Jenkins, seconded by Mr. Arthur Rice, Mr. J. Nelson was called to the chair and conducted the meeting in a most satisfactory manner. The addresses of the candidates were necessarily brief, but were received with great enthusiasm by the voters of Freshwater, most of whom accompanied the candidates on their way to the Ropewalk. Every vote from Hennebury's Pinch to Kenmount, with the possible exception of three, is for the Liberal Progressives.

He was followed by Councillor Vinnicombe, who, in his usual winning manner, at once captured the hearts of his audience. The genial "Nix" had no need to be introduced, for the people of Pouch Cove recollect with gratitude and appreciative remembrance his many acts of kindness and spontaneous goodness, particularly at the time of the "Newfoundland" Disaster, when he was most untiring in his humane efforts to alleviate the sad and sorrowful feelings of an anguished community. They were cognizant as well at his many acts of hidden kindness to everyone who came to him. His vote is going to be an appreciative and unequalled one.

Political Pars.

Voters of Newfoundland! Remember that Coaker wants to get a mortgage on everything you possess, by the 15th November. Prevent this by turning down his candidates in every part of the Island.

Newfoundlanders! Protect your freedom and liberties from the designs of Coaker and his paid employees.

Electors of St. John's! Will you have Coaker, Guppy and Squires to rule you, or the Liberal Progressives to faithfully represent you.

Electors of Hr. Grace! Stand by your old and faithful friend Hon. A. W. Piccott with his colleagues Parsons and Josiah Gosse.

Electors of Carbonear! Turn down the unpopular Penny, the Coakerite candidate, and give popular Jim Moore a big majority.

Woodford and Jones will bowl over the Coakerites in the District of Hr.

Main. No show there for the Coaker pair.

Twelve days more and the Squires barrel will be cleaned out. The man behind it will then have nothing but a few old staves.

The Penny episode has flattened out the Squires boom in St. John's West, and now not a heeler can be found to bet a half penny on his chance.

Pennyism is despised by intelligent voters of all denominations, but Squires put his foot in it badly when he trotted Jethro out.

So Squires held up Jethro as "The Hero from St. John's," when he addressed the voters of Broad Cove. People who despise narrow-mindedness would not place Penny in that class.

Will Mr. Harry Brownrigg bring Jethro before a St. John's audience and picture him as a hero, or will Campbell do likewise. Wait and see.

The Star and Advocate, champions of the "Independent." They want to boost him in order to get back the value of what was given him from the "barrel."

Downey will win again in the District of St. George. No footing there for the Coaker candidate.

Twillingate Liberals, who supported Sir Robert Bond, will this time turn down the candidates of Coaker with whom Sir Robert refused to continue any longer.

Winter is Coming.

Already the chilly days of Autumn are here, and you should not risk the chance of catching cold in a house where the fire dies out or where a great delay of time is necessary to start them on a frosty morning. A little Gas Heater, Gas Grate, or steam radiator will furnish you with just as much heat as you require, and just as little, by simply turning a tap.

We have Radiant Fires, Chili-Chairers, Set-In-Grates, Steam Radiators, and appliances to suit all requirements of the home.

Intercollegiate Football.

St. Bon's and Methodist College met for the first time yesterday, and one of the best matches seen for many years in St. George's Field occurred. The game was an exciting one from start to finish and the only goal scored was by a foul kick. The next game between those two teams will prove to be very exciting and we wish both teams good luck. The score was St. Bon's 1, Methodist College 0. To-day the crew of "H. M. Briton" challenged S. B. C. The match will be in the Shamrock Field (opposite St. George's).

Is Witchcraft Dead?

Belief in the Evil Eye is Still Alive in Different Parts of Britain.

We constantly hear it said that "this is the twentieth century; superstition and all that sort of thing died out long ago." Yet there is hardly a person in the country without his pet little belief—that misfortune follows stepping over a baby, or spilling salt, or that a black cat brings good luck, for example. Hence, too, the universal practice of wearing mascots "for luck." These, however, are not very serious beliefs, being merely personal fads. Superstition of a deeper-rooted and more unpleasant type is still common in the more backward rural areas, however. Only a few weeks ago an old dame in the Fen Country was boycotted by the whole countryside because she had the reputation of being a witch and of throwing spells over people's children, stock, and crops. No one would go near her or let her have food or clothing, and she nearly starved to death.

Exp-Laving as... The cold, legal atmosphere of the courts would be thought unfavourable to belief in witchcraft, and yet a farmer—by no means an ignorant man—stood up the other day in a Norfolk court and informed the Bench that someone had bewitched his cows. He cured the evil spell by thrusting a red-hot poker into his churn, when the evil spirit vanished in a bright flame!

Years ago, any old crone who was cross grained with the neighbours stood a good chance of being tried (and burnt) for witchcraft, and cases are even known where animals were solemnly brought into court and tried on a similar charge. A tough old cock at Basle, in Switzerland, was accused of laying eggs—a most serious offence, as such eggs were used only for making witches' ointment. The unhappy bird was haled before the justices, and one of the eggs produced as proof of guilt. In the face of such evidence the rooster's case was hopeless. He was convicted, and he and his miraculous eggs solemnly burnt at the stake in the town square.

A sow and six young pigs were accused of witchcraft towards a child, and were brought, protesting loudly, before the "beak." Amid great sensation, the sow was found guilty and publicly executed, but the porkers were acquitted on the ground of extreme youth. As late as 1740, a cow was accused of possessing a "devil," and after a long hearing, was found guilty and condemned to death. "Rats and mice and such small deer" have been summoned on numerous occasions, but almost invariably failed to put in an appearance at court!

Leeches in the Dock. In the fifteenth century, the peasants of a village in the south of France took legal proceedings against a plague of locusts which trespassed on their fields and devoured their crops. As the case was still being fought nearly half a century later, the modern gardener can sympathise with the unlucky plaintiffs, but would probably prefer the more up-to-date application of lime or mustard!

Another action was brought against a nest of leeches, swarming in the ponds and streams of another country district in France. The judge issued a decree against the leeches trespassing further on the disputed territories, but history is silent as to whether the injunction was obeyed or ignored, with resultant punishment for contempt of court!

Animals have even been admitted as witnesses in the courts. It used to be considered no offence to kill a burglar trying to break into a house. There arose the difficulty that one man living alone might ask another to his house, and then murder him, pretending that he was a robber. To get over this, it was decided that any domestic animal, such as a cat or a dog, present at the time might bear witness. If the animal on being questioned, satisfied the court that his master had acted in good faith, the killing was held to be justified. There are not many instances of acquittal!

Defeated by Dazzle Designs.

Tricking German submarines by camouflage is a game we played very successfully during the war. Dazzle designs were evolved which completely deceived the Germans, and the manner in which this was done is described by Lieutenant-Commander N. Wilkinson, who was responsible for much of the work.

In the first place, a small wooden model of each ship was made to scale, on which was painted a dazzle design. This was carefully studied in a prepared theatre through a submarine periscope, and when the design had been so altered and arranged that it gave the maximum distortion the model was handed to a trained plan maker, who fitted that design to scale for the particular ship it was intended. The plan was then dispatched to the port at which the particular ship was lying, and transferred to the vessel. Thus a model and plan were made for every ship. For each type a number of designs were made, so that on

HAPPINESS BURGLARIES.

There are a great many possible ways of robbing oneself of happiness.

One may rob oneself by allowing the habit of jealousy to dominate one, or by being narrow in one's friendships, or by shutting oneself out from the joys of labor and service.

But the method which I wanted specially to speak of to-day is that of the person who robs himself or herself (more likely to be herself) of a great deal of aesthetic pleasure by being determined not to like anything that the majority also like.

Why it Was Her Favorite Walk.

The instance which brought the type to my mind was this. We were speaking one day, at the little Inn to which I sometimes escape for breathing spells, of our favorite walks. "I always go down toward the depot," said one woman.

"For goodness sake why?" we questioned. The road toward the depot is generally considered the most attractive walk in town.

"Because I'm so sick of hearing people come in and rave about the mill road and sunset hill (the two we had been especially praising) that I like to go in the opposite direction."

Now if she had said that she thought her walk much more beautiful, one would have been forced to admit that tastes in beauty differ. But plainly it wasn't so much a case of that as that she was determined not to like what the hot-poll liked.

They Won't Hear the Beauty of Simple Melody.

One often meets up with people who are so determined not to like what the hot-poll likes in music that they deliberately deafen their ears to the beauty of simple melodies. "As for books, well, I have already called your attention to the "wont-road books," that is, the books that we all set our mind against reading simply because we have heard other people speak so highly of them. There is a certain whimsical humor in this obstinacy and yet it is nothing more or less than self robbery.

A Particularly Flagrant Burglary. And here is a particularly flagrant burglary of the nature which I lately came across. A woman was going to build a house. She was advised to build the simple Colonial type, since it was really well adapted to her needs and has been so thoroughly worked out that she could hardly go astray. But she wouldn't, not because she doesn't like it, but because she has seen so many of them lately. Instead, she attempted an ambitious adaptation which she thought would be quite unlike other houses. It is, and she hates it.

Of course, one does get sick of uniformity. But if a thing is beautiful in itself, the duplication of it does not make it unbecoming. To be sure, one wants to express oneself, but I think it is just as foolish to distort that expression by an attempt to keep away from what other people like as by an attempt to conform thereto.

Tiny sport hats are sometimes made of the same material as the sport blouses they are worn with.

The changes in the dress silhouette are very few, and the straightline type holds its own exceedingly well.

GOOD RIDDANCE.

We are shipping out the traitors, sending them to other shores, shipping out the agitators, anarchists, a n d kindred hores; and I hope they'll all be potted; all be shipped abroad and swatted, all the freaks whose heads are spotted with the customary sores. If a gent comes o'er the ocean, here to settle down and toil, we will greet him with emotion, treat him as decreed by Hoyle; we will give him all the chances to improve his circumstances, and rejoice as he advances, and with him divide the spoil. As a host we are a model, I fitte guests on labor bent; but we have no use for twaddle of a traitorous intent; if the comer's elocution calls for row and revolution 'gainst each sacred institution, we despise that erring gent. In the past we viewed with smiling all the loud and frothy boys, for we found them most beguiling, with their whiskers and their noise; but the war has made us sterner, and the frantic language burner, and the blood and crossbones yearner rather peevus us and annoys. So we stop him as he preaches, calling for our country's coat, and we seize him by the breeches, and the collar of his coat; so we send him sailing, sailin', o'er the ocean wild and walling, and he cusses while he's hailing dirty water from his boat.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

While a fairly large quantity of split herring arrived on the New York market recently, no arrivals of Scotch cure have been reported. Dealers generally are accepting orders for 1919 large winters at $14 per barrel, but specify that an equal quantity of medium at $12 shall accompany all orders at this figure. The supply of 1918 falls, large, is practically exhausted, although a few factors still report light stocks on hand, and these are said to be bringing around $13 and $14.50; 1918 fall matfals are in good supply and are being quoted at $11.00 and $13.00, with matfals selling $10.00 and $12.00.—N. HIS AMBITION.

He wants to be a street car man! I've talked to him of millionaires As only a doting father can.

But little for wealth or fame he cares. I've talked till my throat is red and sore

Of the pomp that life bestows on kings And the crowns that many a dead man wore,

But little he cares for regal things. I've talked to him of a lawyer's fees And sought to lead him the legal way;

I've preached to him of the wise M. D.s Who saves the lives of the sick for pay.

I've shown him parsons kind and good And the ways of them I have tried to teach.

But he spurns the lure of a cleric's hood. And he hasn't the least desire to preach.

I've taken him into a marble bank And shown him mountains of yellow gold.

But all that I said of a banker's rank Was lost the minute that it was told.

I've shown him the way that I'd have him go As only a doting father can. But he still insists that he wants to know

The joy of being a street car man.

American Scotch Cured Herring.

The scarcity of Alaska Scotch cured herring this season is unprecedented, and the few arrivals on the New York market are consequently meeting a brisk demand. The few stocks on hand of Prince William Sound, Scotch cure, are being quoted $17 in standard barrels of 500-550 count, with 700-800 count selling at about $16. This year's pack of Alaskas are not expected to run much over one-quarter of last season's.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Public Control.

The franchise was given to men in order that they might, by secret ballot, select those who would be competent of governing them. All down through the age of responsible government there has been this aim in view, viz., to appoint men who would be representative of all the different classes and creeds of the land. In Newfoundland to-day, a menace hangs over the choice of government for the next four years. Two parties are before the electorate, one is representative of all the people of our island, for in the Cashin party we find men from every rank of life, and men of independence, not subservient to the will of any one man. In the Opposition factions, we have first of all twelve Coaker candidates, the majority of them are paid servants of Coaker, and men who think more of their positions than of the electorate, and therefore they will vote as Coaker dictates, and so we are faced with a real danger of corporation control. Of the other faction of the Opposition, that of Squires and his followers, it is current topic that Squires is secretive about all the money sources, but is giving out the Canadian coin in such a way as to control all those who are following in his footsteps, and under the Squires section of the Liberal (?) Reform (?) Party.

The Opposition papers print a daily quota of rant about the Reid control. They cry out against an imagined possibility of the Reids dominating the country. They also, in the same issues ask the people to place themselves under the control of the F.P.U. Trading concern, of which Coaker is the recognized head, or under the equally personal administration (?) of Squires. Their request is, in short, a complete refusal of the franchise rights, for the act of voting is for the express purpose of offsetting individual control, and selecting men who will rule the country for ALL the people of the country. Is Coaker then to be placed in charge of this country's interests. Is it any better to take the reins of government from the Reids (the Opposition claim that Reids are the present ruling power), and give it to either the boisterous Coaker or the trickster Squires? The sincerity of the Opposition press can be correctly gauged by the fact that it wants the country to be governed by Coaker and his satellites, or Squires and his reported paid followers, either of which means personal and not representative government. The evil in the howl of the Opposition is rendered more pronounced by the fact that Coaker is full of mad schemes and crazy ambitions for the aggrandisement of the few at the expense of the many, and that Squires is not manly enough to clear up the clouds of suspicion which already hang over his political career.

A Coaker-Squires Government, they say, is a government of the public, and yet it is scarcely conceivable how such can be. Were the Coaker-Squires candidates men of independence and not servants of the F.P.U.'s President, or paid out of the mysterious barrel, then there might be some justification for the argument put up. The country to-day wants neither Reid control nor any other corporation control, but with the Opposition, corporation control is assured, while there is no proof or guarantee that Reid will not also be a ruling factor. We have on record to-day the dealings of Coaker and Squires with Reid, and these dealings are such as to make the most intelligent men suspect whether Coaker and Squires may not again deal in a similar manner with the Reids they now outwardly denounce. No value whatever can be placed on the word of either the Opposition leaders, for both are too well known in political history, and consequently the voters will by common consent elect a party to represent no one faction, but a party that will be symbolical of public control. The Coaker and the Squires elements are not symbolical of such, and so they are marked down for defeat.

It is unnecessary here to restate the words of Sir Robert Bond on the danger of the F.P.U. corporation dominating Newfoundland politics. Every intelligent man can to-day see how clogging an effect any corporation or trading concern would have upon the finances of a country. The control of Newfoundland's future by the Coaker trading concern is just as big an impediment in the progress of this country as is the so-called Reid octopus. To-day we want neither one nor the other, but we do want a country in which it will be possible for one man to live as easily and as well as another. Coaker control denies this. He has stated that it is his determination to destroy somewhat the industry of St. John's, and he has sacrificed the interests of one class of people to suit the interests of himself and the shareholders in the Union Trading Company, as witnessed by his change of the Bonavista steamship service route. Coaker cared absolutely nothing for the people of Bonavista Bay whom he thus shut off from the use of a steamer, when it suited his purpose. Squires, if we believe one fraction of what is said, is equally reckless of everything but self and self-gratification. Public control; the phrase is a farce as applied to a Coaker-Squires Government. The only chance we to-day have of electing a truly representative Government of the people, by the people, and for the people is by the election of the candidates of the Cashin Party. And if we do otherwise, Newfoundland, in the not distant future, will curse the day they did it. Under Coaker and Squires' control nothing will be safe, for with the dual leaders self has hitherto always been the dominating factor. Cashin's Government, during its short period of six months, has done much for the people, a good omen of what he will do after election day. Will the voters then vote for the individual aggrandisement of the twin leaders, Coaker and Squires to the detriment of themselves, or will they vote for the candidates of the Liberal Progressive Party, and so retain a Government, by which the fullest possible good will be done to themselves and the country at large? Wait and see, is the answer, and we await in patience, for we believe that the good sense of the electorate will prevail in the selection of a Liberal Progressive Government for the next four years.

TRAITOR GOLD!

To all who would betray,
They are handing out to-day
The Judas gold, for which they're sold,
In promises and pay!

The Burst of the Big Balloon.

Though noisy shouters were sent adrift during the past few weeks to stampee the public into the idea that the Squires trio would win St. John's West, there were many silent observers who knew otherwise, who felt that the hearts of the voters of St. John's West would not be turned towards a politician of the class of R. A. Squires. The man who at the outset was condemned as unfit to lead a party and who, as the Telegram so often pointed out, was not worthy for such a position, is now already classed as a political outcast in the District he selected as his battle ground; all the vim has gone out of those who, up to a few days ago, were his staunch supporters, and most of them have abandoned him altogether, whilst the small following who still cling to him for selfish reasons, are ashamed to openly admit their connection. On the other hand to the hundreds who stood silently by and listened to the blares of his hee-lers, there are thousands now who openly declare that neither Squires nor his colleagues will receive their support, so thus is seen before the battle has begun, the shattering of all his blustering hopes and hollow prospects. The voters of St. John's West have been much belied all over the city and country by the Squires shouters and the Squires press since this campaign begun, because these shouters and their organs kept on repeating in parrot tones that the voters of that District were strongly supporting him. It was a gross reflection from the very outset upon the men who live in St. John's West, for those who know these intelligent people best, never once faltered in their convictions that the District would never elect Squires or a single one of his colleagues. Neither Squiresism nor Coakerism would St. John's West permit to encroach upon its precincts whilst those who now dwell therein continue to exist, for it would be a reversion of all the high standards of political repute which the people there have ever set up. It will be a profound satisfaction then to all our outport readers that Squires will meet his Waterloo in St. John's West, and will go down to a most ignominious defeat. It was a safe conjecture from the first that he would not win, but the past few days has witnessed such an outpouring of public sentiment against him and his followers, that the most doubting man is now firmly convinced that what we say is right. All honor then to the brave and manly voters of St. John's West for this public repudiation of R. A. Squires; all honor to the men whose pride it is that they belong to that great District; and all honor to every member of their families, their wives and children who altogether comprise a community of which any country would be proud. The sentiment prevailing to-day will not, we are confident, be slackened in strength by polling day, but it behoves every man to be alert, for the enemy is still at the gate, expecting to steal away your franchise by every known expedient that slick intriguers can devise. Stand fast then to the political faith which you now hold, voters of St. John's West, and when your Returning Officer, the genial F. J. Doyle steps forth to proclaim the fact that Bennett, Mullaly and Martin are your chosen representatives, there will go up into the air such cheers from thousands as were never heard before upon the echoing slopes of "the dear old Southside Hills"; cheers that will be taken up along the coast through Ferryland District and continued in one unbroken chain around this Island home of ours. Your victory will be the greatest since the days that our first Parliament was elected, and its memory shall never be forgotten.

WHICH?

In last evening's Advocate three messages appear, on page four, purporting to have come to them from Tilling, Current Island and Lamaline respectively but, strange to say, each bears the heading (Special to the Evening Telegram). We should like to have the Coaker mouthpiece tell us whether these messages were really addressed to "The Evening Telegram," and opened by them or if the heading were put there in order to deceive the electorate. It is quite evident that either the "Advocate" is so badly beaten that it does not know its own name or it has sunk to such low depths that nothing is too despicable for it to do. We leave it to our readers to judge what reliance can be placed in a paper that will stoop to such methods to further its ends.

Take It Up.

There was an olden battle cry
When the invader came,
To snatch this infant Colony
From England's diadem.
When Baltimore upon the Downs
Amongst his yemen stood—
A trusty, sturdy band were they
Of sterling British blood—
He pointed where the enemy
His vanguard frigate steered
And said, "Are we the offspring of A breed that never feared?"
That glory in the battles roar—
The fierceness of the fight—
Whose hearts are loyal to the crown—
And lovers of the right?
There in the offing lurks the foe—
Then did the echoes ring
With this grand shout: that shook the hills,
Ferryland for the King!"
Then every valiant man arose,
(Forgive us if we boast)
They dug the ditch, they manned
the guns,
They sentinelled the coast.
The fleet-foot courier went forth
To spread this flaming news,
"The ships of France molest our bays,
They slay our fishing crews.
To this plantation I'd announce
The tidings that I bring—
Here ye! this land must arm in haste
And arm to serve the King!"
From lip to lip 'twas taken up
Till Bonavista heard,
Till Bristol's Hope and Carbonar
Were by its vigor stirred;
Till Harbor Grace and St. John's Caught
Upon the morning's wing
The shout that rang along the coast
Ferryland for the King!"
That day that humbled foeman's fleet
Departed from our shore
With battered hull and riven sail
And came to fight no more.

Now once again there stands a man
Where in the days of yore,
Stood England's champion of that day
The lord of Baltimore;
And for the same old land he stands
And with a heart as true,
He comes to fight his country's cause—
As noble deeds do do.
About us still are enemies
That would our land ensnare,
Still in the offing lurks the foe—
My native land beware!
Join in one shout like those of old
Those men of whom I sing
"The man of Ferryland for the land
And Ferryland for the King!"

VICTORY MESSAGES.

HAYSTACK SURPASSED ITSELF YESTERDAY!

Warm and Whole-Hearted Reception Given Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott—Who Got a Rousing Vote at all Surrounding Places—Reported that Brown and Jackman Who Not be Nominated.

Special to Evening Telegram.

HAYSTACK, To-day.

Haystack surpassed itself yesterday in the reception which was tendered the Liberal Progressive candidates, Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott. When the Ingraham came in, the whole settlement, as if by magic, was decorated with flags, and as the steamer entered the beautiful harbor of Haystack, the hills echoed and re-echoed as volleys of musketry were fired from each side of the harbor. It must have assured Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott that Haystack is going to do no small part in piling up that enormous vote, which reports from all sections of the District go to show, that Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott are going to poll Nov. 3rd. A splendid meeting was held here last night and the old veteran merchant of this settlement, Thomas Wabery, acted as chairman. He introduced the speakers in most flattering terms, and the general opinion is that the meeting here last night was the finest ever held here. It is rumored in this section that, owing to the very cool reception that the Coaker-Squires orphans have got within their canvass of the eastern portion of the District and the frost they met with on Monday night at the meeting held in Placentia, that Brown absolutely refused to continue the canvassing of the District and that Devine is at the end of his tether, because Brown knows something of the District, and reports also says Jackman is led by Brown and they have both refused to go into nomination. So John M. will likely have to go it alone, and a man like John M., who comes from Bonavista Bay, a man who ran the Union store in St. John's, a man who is a close personal friend of Coaker, and a man who, according to Mr. P. J. Shea, Mr. Coaker insisted being put on the team as his man, is not likely to even save his nomination money. Well done, Brown and Jackman, you are to be congratulated in dropping out because you are on the wrong side. Good old Haystack knows Cashin is coming back and they are taking no chances. Bolardtown and Woody Island are doing their part, so is Spencer's Cove and Haystack is prepared to do theirs. J. A. DUNPHY.

WON'T GET FIVE VOTES AT CHANGE ISLANDS.

Special to Evening Telegram. ENGLISH HARBOR, EAST. Via Terrenceville, Oct. 21. Splendid reception here to-day and found sentiment among the people strongly in favour of Government. BUNYAN'S COVE

Will Give 80 Per Cent. Vote for Morine, Winsor and Forbes. (Special to Evening Telegram.) BUNYAN'S COVE, Via Port Blandford, To-day.

Hon. A. B. Morine and Capt. Winsor arrived here on the 20th inst. at 5 p.m., quite unexpected, but in less than an hour the place was ablaze, everyone enquiring as to where the meeting would be held. The Orange Hall was the chosen place. On arrival of the members three cheers were given and one would think the roof would be lifted. William White was chosen chairman and introduced Capt. Winsor as the first speaker, then came the "People's friend," Hon. A. B. Morine. He spoke for one and half hours and a plea could be heard drop in the hall. The meeting closed with three cheers for the Liberal-Progressive Party. Bunyan's Cove will give 80 per cent. vote for Morine, Winsor and Forbes.

Excellent Meeting at Bunyan's Cove and Musgrave Town. (Special to Evening Telegram.)

LETHBRIDGE, To-day. The Government Candidates held excellent meetings at Bunyan's Cove Monday night and Musgrave Town last night. The attendance was the best ever known and order and attention remarkable. Both meetings were most effective as shown by the remarks of the people afterwards and both made votes for the candidates. We regret the inconvenience caused to patrons of the street cars, but are sure they will realize that the needs of the factories and houses of the city must be the first consideration. Yours very truly, J. P. POWELL, General Superintendent. St. John's, Oct. 22, 1913.

GOOD MEETINGS AT RAMEA AND BURGO.

Opposition Candidate Admits Cashin's Manifesto is an Excellent One. Special to Evening Telegram.

BURGO, To-day. Mr. James, the Liberal Progressive candidate, had held two fine meetings at Ramea and Burgo, at the latter place, Mr. Small, Opposition candidate, was present but did not offer any strong criticisms. He agreed that the Manifesto of Sir Michael Cashin was excellent in every respect and told the audience that later he would discuss the policy of his party. People are wondering what Squires' Manifesto contains, as Small has not introduced it anywhere yet, contending himself with weak criticisms of Government. Burgo is determined not to be led astray by the Coaker-Squires combination, and will vote for James on Polling Day. The popular candidate leaves for the eastern part of district by motor boat to-day.

CONFIDENT OF ELECTION.

FOX COVE, Oct. 21. Arrived here this evening. Had most successful meeting at Harbor Mille, with full house and the gathering orderly and enthusiastic. Every place I visit I am more convinced that this district is ours and that we will have a sweeping majority on polling day. H. ELLIOTT.

Supreme Court.

Tuesday in the Supreme Court Mr. Justice Johnson handed down his decision in the case of W. A. Munn vs. George Hawes.

Justice Johnson's Decision.

The question raised by the pleadings is whether the defendant, a fish seller's agent, at Alicante, purchased the plaintiff's Labrador fish then on the way to Spain in the chartered schooner Triton, or negotiated for the plaintiff, a sale to the third parties at Alicante, who on the vessel's arrival rejected the cargo. The evidence leaves us in no doubt that the defendant on plaintiff's behalf concluded an outright sale to the buyers named at the hearing, and that the plaintiff, misjudging the fact handed over the rejected cargo to another Alicante agent. Let judgement be entered for the defendant with cost.

(Before Full Bench.)

In the matter of an application against the Daily Post Publishing Co., Ltd., for contempt.

Sir John C. Crobie, plaintiff, and the Daily Star Publishing Co., Ltd., and Harris W. Mossell, defendant, the Chief Justice adjourns the application into court. Mr. L. E. Emerson for applicant asks leave to amend summons and asks for sequestration of the property of the company and for the committal of H. M. Mossell. Mr. H. A. Winter for defendant is heard contra.—C.A.V.

Street Car Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—The increased use of electric power in the city since the war broke out has thrown such a strain on the hydro-electric development at Petty Harbor that a new and enlarged dam had to be constructed at Big Pond this year, and for this purpose the level of the pond had to be lowered to admit of piling and concrete work. This, together with the unusually long dry season since the end of July, has caused a shortage of water, and the Company is obliged to take every precaution to maintain a sufficient supply of electricity for light and power purposes, both commercial and domestic. Accordingly it has been found necessary to discontinue running the street railway cars, commencing this afternoon; but as soon as sufficient rain has fallen to enable the cars to be run without damage to industries and domestic consumers the service will at once be resumed. We regret the inconvenience caused to patrons of the street cars, but are sure they will realize that the needs of the factories and houses of the city must be the first consideration. Yours very truly, J. P. POWELL, General Superintendent. St. John's, Oct. 22, 1913.

ANOTHER PRINCE ON THE DEATH LIST.

GENEVA, Oct. 21. Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, who commanded the German forces in Northern France and Belgium, learned yesterday at Davos, where he had been staying, that he is included in the French list of six hundred or more names for the Allies for trial for crimes against International Law. He became furious and said he would never give himself up. Prince Rupprecht is accused of being the first army commander to employ poisonous gases when several of the commanders opposed such a project. It is reported here that Count Brechold, former Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, is on the Italian list as one of the principal instigators of the war. Several other officers, at present in Switzerland, appeared on the lists. The question of extradition from a neutral country is expected to be settled with Switzerland, thus creating a precedent for Holland in the case of the German Emperor.

THE ONTARIO ELECTIONS.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 21. In one of the most remarkable elections Ontario has ever experienced the Hearst Conservative Government went down to defeat yesterday. Sir William Hearst and all but two of his Cabinet who were not elected by acclamation, went under in the landslide, and of the strong following of seventy members who sat behind the Prime Minister in the last Legislature, only some twenty-six members remain. According to the Mail and Empire, the chief Conservative organ, the defeat of the Conservatives was due almost entirely to the tremendous vote polled up by united farmers' candidates, and by labor men, who took forty-two and eleven seats respectively. The Liberals, despite their win of five seats in "Tory Toronto", stand in the new Legislature practically as they were in the last House. The largest single party in the new House will be that of the farmers who, by an alliance with either of the older parties and the labor members, can command a large working majority.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S COAL.

MONTREAL, Wednesday. That in the next quarter of a century the coal mines of Newfoundland will produce an appreciable unit of the output of coal of North America was the opinion expressed last night at the Newfoundland Society's meeting by the guest of honour, Mr. Isaac C. Morris, Deputy Mayor of St. John's, Nfld. Mr. Morris stated that he based his conclusions on personal observations of forty years, in which he has travelled out of way districts of his country and also on official reports of the late J. P. Howley, official Geologist for the Govt. of Newfoundland.

THE LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.

NEW YORK, Wednesday. Not a Longshoreman went to work on Chelsea piers in response to seven whistles this morning, although hundreds of dock workers were congregated in the vicinity of the big Transatlantic steamship piers at an early hour. Promises yesterday to return to work on Chelsea Docks, the most important on the New York waterfront, brought no result. It was on the word of Chelsea Longshoremen that officials based their prediction of a break in the strike here.

Liberals of Newfoundland! Have nothing to do with Coakerism which your former great Chief Minister so strongly condemned and refused to tolerate.

A vote for a Coaker candidate is a vote against the true principles of Liberalism, according to Sir Robert Bond. A vote for a Squires candidate is on a par with one for Coakerism.

At midnight last night, Jane D. H. Withycombe Campbell, beloved wife of William Campbell, aged 66 years. She leaves a husband, three daughters, two sons and one sister. Liberals of Newfoundland! Have nothing to do with Coakerism which your former great chieftain so strongly condemned and refused to tolerate.

A vote for a Coaker candidate is a vote against the true principles of Liberalism, according to Sir Robert Bond. A vote for a Squares candidate is a par with one for Coakerism.

IN LOVING MEMORY

of my dear son, No. 394 Pte. Thomas Rodgers, who was believed to be killed in action, somewhere in France, Oct. 12th, 1917.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord
Where love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard, oh hard, to speak the word
We must forever part.

Forget him no, we never shall Although it was God's will,
His memory is as fresh to-day
We feel we have him still.

Go to Bed and Grow Tall

How many people are aware that we are shorter when standing than when lying, and taller in the morning than in the evening?

An Englishman was the first to discover this, but afterwards Dr. Marand, of the Royal Academy of France, made several experiments to prove the theory. He found after a year's trial that usually in the night he gained almost three-eighths of an inch, and lost almost as much during the day. The cause of this is to be found in the different state or condition of the cartilages which go to make up the spine.

The joints of this part of our bodies are separated and yet joined by particular bony substances, every one of which has a springy resilience. These are capable of yielding on all sides without bending the backbone or spine itself. Of course, the difference is scarcely perceptible in one joint alone, but the combined effect is appreciable. Naturally, when the spine is supporting the weight of the head it is liable to be contracted, and we are taller after lying down for some time than after we have been walking about all day with our bodies in an upright position, with the spine supporting the weight of the head.

At night-time, when we lie down in a more or less horizontal position, these top parts do not weigh so heavily and the springy muscles being expanded, our spines consequently become longer.

Another proof of this is to be found in the increase of height sometimes experienced by invalids who have spent a long time in bed; and also

The World's Fattest Folk.

In the fact that the more rest a young child has, the taller he will grow.

Jack Wilson, the 46-stone fat man of Coney Island, who has just died, was one of America's big things. But his avoirdupois is by no means a record, and has been beaten by several heavy-weights in this country. The 52st 11lb. of the historic Daniel Lambert still remains to be beaten, although Leo Whitton, the Canadian Colossus, who died at Maclessfield some years ago, ran him close with 50st.

Then there was Thomas Longley, proprietor of the Star Inn at Dover, who died fifteen years ago after attaining enormous proportions. His height was 6ft. 3 1/4in.; chest measurement, 70in.; girth, 85in.; calf, 26in.; weight, 46st. Shortly after the death of Longley another heavy-weight, Jesse Amos Baker, better known as "Billy Bonno," died in the Blackburn Infirmary. Baker weighed 44st, and the coffin in which he was buried measured 7ft. in length and about 3 1/2ft. across. The record of Hilda Plack, of Buckhurst Hill, who, although only thirteen years of age, weighs 15st.; and that of Elsie Hopton, of Rayleigh, Essex, who weighs 14st. 11lb. at twelve years of age, calls to mind Johnny Trundle, the fat boy of Peckham, who weighed 10st. 4lb. at the age of five.

The fattest child on record, however, was a Worcestershire girl who died in 1816, and who, at the age of five years, was 4ft. in height, 4ft. 2in. round the chest, and weighed nearly 16st.!

Big "Its" in History.

One would have said that the most momentous event of 1798 was the fall of the Bastille. Yet on a summer day of the same year a young artillery officer, bathing in the Saone, was seized with cramp and nearly drowned. If he had been drowned, Napoleon Bonaparte would never have added a single line to the history of Europe. It is believed that Oliver Cromwell was on the quay ready to depart from his native England when he was detained by the soldiers of King Charles. If it is true, then the king must have regretted it later. But if Cromwell had gone! In that case it is quite likely that Charles would have won the Civil War, and that his House would still be in possession of the British throne.

The fate of India was decided at Plassey. Surajah Dowlah had an army of 60,000, and Clive one of 3,000. He called a council of war, which said "Don't." Clive pondered for an hour and decided to reject the advice of the council.

With a loss of twenty-two killed and fifty wounded, Clive scattered the 60,000. But if he had been a reasonable, sensible man, and taken good advice, India would not now be British.

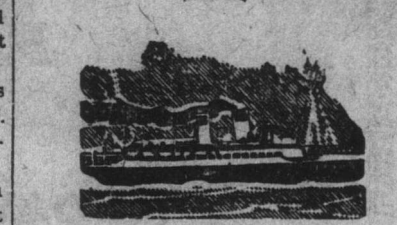

Canada became British when Quebec fell, but if Wolfe had not encountered a man who knew the way up the cliffs from the river, Canada would, in all probability, have remained French to this day, and the whole history of North America would have been different. It is possible, indeed, that there would have been no United States!

This country nearly lost the tremendous start which the invention of the locomotive gave her in the world's trade. George Stephenson at one time struck a bad patch. His wife died and left him an infant son, the son who later on built the North-Western and half the trunk lines of Britain. His old father met with an accident which deprived him of his sight. Whilst Geo. himself was drawn for the Militia, and had to find a substitute, or pay a big sum—for him.

The Plantagenet Flower.

Broom is a plant with old historical associations, but it received its distinction, according to legend, in a fashion scarcely worthy of the high place it held. The story goes that the first Earl of Anjou, feeling remorse for his many peccadilloes, journeyed as a pilgrim to Jerusalem to expiate them. Having been soundly scourged with boughs of the broom abounding there, he took the name Plantagenet, from "plants genet," broom plant—"genet" being French for broom—and the name was retained by his descendants. Nowadays broom has fallen from its high estate to one more lowly, but more useful. In place of being the badge of kings dyers' broom has for centuries been used as a yellow dye, and, with wood, to give a green tint to wool, while from the ashes an alkaline salt is obtained. Even in the days of its glory, however, the medicinal services of broom were utilized. The bitter buds, pickled, were thought to improve falling appetite and the "teeches" of the times were wont to burn to ashes the young tops and infuse them in wine, to extract the salt for their physic. After a debauch Henry VIII was accustomed to drink water distilled from broom flowers "against surrets and diseases arising therefrom."

Disturbed Slumber.

We had a dream the other night
That we had organized
An Eaters' Union that high cost
Of food antagonized.
We made a scheme of the price
We'd pay for fish and meat
And vegetables and other things
That human beings eat.

Our maximum on sirloin steak
Was thirty cents a pound;
For halibut 'twas twenty-five,
Fifteen for fish called ground.
Pork chops we set at twenty-eight,
Spring lamb at twenty-four,
And we just told producers all
We'd pay that and no more.

The fish, meat and provision men
Refused our terms outright,
And then we voted to declare
On them a hot old fight.
We threw down knives and forks and from
Our dining rooms marched out—
Just then we woke and how the strike
Came out we are in doubt.

Whales Caught
From Shore.

Whale hunters do not always have to "go down to the sea in ships," out upon the fathomless depths of the ocean to capture the leviathan of fishes. He is often captured almost from the very shore. In fact, the Eskimos of Point Hope, Alaska, when the wind is blowing from the shore in the spring causing the ice to break up into "leads" wait on shore for the sperm-producer to "run him down,"
and then set out in canoes to "run him down."
Workers for the Episcopal Church's mission at Point Hope, the most northerly in Alaska, have described the sport vividly, for it is not only a business by which the natives help to make their living, but actually a sport.

As the ice begins to break up, the Eskimos come out of their igloos, where they have lived for the winter, and the men form themselves into canoe crews, each in charge of an Oomalik, or captain. Six or seven men form the crew of a canoe and they work on shares. The whaling season there lasts from six to seven weeks, and while it is on the men never undress. They take turns sleeping on a sled drawn up on the ice. Four or five men are always on the watch for a whale.

When the sea monster is sighted the crew making the discovery, launches its canoe and makes for the victim's head. The whale cannot see directly ahead, because his eyes are on the sides of his head instead of in front.

When the canoe nears the whale's head, the Oomalik gives a sweep of his paddle which sends the canoe along the whale's side, and as it passes, the boat leader throws a harpoon, fastened to a wooden handle, with a long line, attached to the end of which are tied three or four seal bladders.
To the harpoon a bombgun with trigger is attached. It is released after the whale is harpooned, the 12-inch bomb explodes in the whale's interior. As it dives to escape, its progress under water is marked by the seal bladders at the end of the line, which remain above water.

The Oomalik then hoists a flag, which is a sign for the other canoes to join in the hunt. If the whale is killed, its body is drawn up on the edge of the ice.

Alarming Gifts.

OUR MONARCHS ARE OFTEN RE-CIPIENTS OF USELESS AND STARTLING PRESENTS.

The recent visit of Abyssinian nobles to London, who are bearers to our king and queen of rich gifts of silk and ivory from their empress, and who will take back to their monarch on their return gifts from King George and Queen Mary, only serves to emphasize the fact that the gifts given and received by Rulers have not always been so fitting or so welcome.

Washington Society was greatly amused just before the war by the singular present the late Mr. Roosevelt made to a bride of that city.

This was the tail of a rhino, uncounted—a hunting trophy, and doubtless highly prized by the donor.
It was, moreover, a gift which had cost more than mere cash.

Pipes For the Queen's Use.

Even the presents which Royalty bestow upon Royalty sometimes cause embarrassment. In 1863 Queen Victoria sent Sir Richard Burton on a mission to the King of Dahomey bearing various presents, including a silk tent and a handsome silver pipe.
The King was grateful, but added that,
as the tent was too small to sit under in that climate, and he preferred a clay pipe to a metal pipe, he would have been better pleased with a carriage-and-pair and a white wife.

However, to show appreciation of her Majesty's kind intentions, he sent in return some native pipes and tobacco for her own smoking, a collection of loin cloths, and an umbrella to be held over her head when drinking.

Some years ago, King Edward, when taking his usual summer holiday at Marlborough, received in twenty days over three hundred presents, including jewellery—from studs to gold watches—cigars and cigarettes, and an assortment of other articles—from gloves, lies, and walking-sticks to sweets and scented soap. These gifts were never accepted.

One of the funniest presents King Edward ever received was a prize potato weighing over five pounds. The sender evidently imagined that the King of England lived at Westminster for the potato was addressed to House of Parliament, England, and the postmark was "Vermont."
But the weirdest present to Royalty surely is the mummified hand of an Egyptian prince who lived three thousand years ago. It was presented to the King by a famous Egyptologist, and is regarded as a paper-weight.

Cottagers Who Became Famous.
Now that the war is over, thousands of people will once more be making their way to Doonside, near Ayr, to visit the humble cottage in which was born that wonderful genius, Robert Burns. This famous cottage the poet's father built with his own hands.

Though most people can claim that there were at least four walls around them when they came into the world, even this modest boast was denied Abraham Lincoln, the shed in which he was born having only three sides.
With all its historic buildings, few spots in Fifeshire are more romantic than the unpretentious little cottage from which the late Andrew Carnegie first saw the light of day.

In Kirkcaldy one can still see the humble dwelling in which Carlyle lived when engaged there as a schoolmaster.
Think of the wonderful writings produced in De Quincey's cottage at Lasswade, some of them as strange as the life of the man who penned them. At one time, so poor was De Quincey that many a night he spent on the doorsteps of Old Edinburgh.

THE COLUMN WRITER

The column writer's life's a cinch
And not a vale of tears—
He writes his column inch by inch
With his old friend, the Shears.

A GOOD GUESS

Teacher—"Who was it supported the world upon his shoulders?"
Tommy—"Atlas, Ma'am."
Teacher—"Who supported Atlas?"
Tommy—"The book don't say, but I guess his wife did."

YOU SAID IT, BO!

Lazy Lorenzo and Dog-tired Dick were discussing something they knew little about—work.
"I think," said Lazy Lorenzo, "that if they did away with work altogether, I'd put an end to these 'ere strikes."
"Yes," said Dog-tired Dick. "That'll be the time when everything's done by electricity. Only got to press a button and the job's done."
A slow horror dawned in Lazy Lorenzo's eyes.
"That won't do!" he said emphatically. "Who's a-goin' to press the button?"

A SOCIALIST KING.

It is said that King Peter of Serbia desires to end his days in a monastery. This would not be his first experience of the simple life. During long years of exile he lived as plain Peter Karageorgevitch, in a little flat on the third floor in the Rue Joffrey, Paris, and supplemented a very modest income as best he could. He was something of a Socialist in those days and also an enthusiast for athletics.

London bridge is crossed every day by 110,000 foot passengers and 22,000 vehicles.

THE EVOLUTION OF NELSON'S MESSAGE.

Apropos of Lord Nelson, a historian remarks that his famous message, "England expects every man to do his duty," was originally written by him, "Nelson confides that every man will do his duty." At the suggestion of one of his officers, "England" was substituted for "Nelson," and another officer pointed out that "expects" would be much more easily signaled to the fleet than "confides that." So the famous message took its present form.

HIS EQUIPMENT.

Young Man: "I want half-a-dozen cheap engagement rings, assorted sizes."
Jeweller: "One is usually enough at a time, sir."
Young Man: "I know it, but I'm going down to the seaside for two weeks."

A REASONABLE QUESTION!

The commercial traveller entered the small restaurant in Manchester and chose his seat with the discrimination of the careful diner.
Then he took up the menu.

NOT WHAT IS USTER BE!

The latest development of simple country life is the milking of cows by electricity in the accompaniment of slow, sweet music. This makes them sad and thoughtful and prevents them putting the foot in the bucket or walloping the milker in the eye with their tail. They are also supposed to forget themselves and deliver more milk than before. Life on the farm ain't what it used to be, by heck.

HIS APPETITE COULDN'T STAND IT!

Nervous Gentleman (from the country): "Oh, a little lamb and some potato."
Brisk Waiter (shouting up the restaurant): "One lamb, one potato."
Nervous Gentleman: "Waiter, waiter, a little less lamb, please, and—a little more potato."

MAYBE, MAYBE.

Dobbles: "What does this author mean by saying that the hero had 'well-carved' features?"
Dobbles: "Perhaps he shaved himself with a safety razor!"

Married in the Air.

The newest thing from America is a marriage in the air—a rather fantastic marriage, perhaps, but interesting for the bride and bridesmaids were in one aeroplane and the clergyman in another, wireless telephones carrying the reading of the service from machine to machine, while the responses of the pair were heard on the ground through megaphones attached to wireless telephone receivers.

Beaded georgette is a safe choice for an afternoon dress.

Black taffeta with black metre ribbon is an odd dress combination.

Absent-Minded Beggars

WOOL-GATHERERS WHO FORGET LITTLE DETAILS LIKE CLOTHES, TIME, AND PLACE.

Absent-mindedness with regard to dress has at times produced some very laughable episodes, for onlookers at all events.

Charles Monselet tells of a friend of his who lived in Bordeaux who was a very keen book-worm, and never missed a chance of buying any book on which his heart was set. One day a catalogue reached him by the morning post from a Paris bookseller, and in it he saw the title of a book long out of print, he had been seeking for thirty years.

Looking at the clock, he saw that he had just time to catch the Paris express, and immediately setting forth, he secured a place in the train. Arrived at the French capital, he secured the book he had so eagerly sought, and while wrapping it up the shopman observed to him: "I suppose you live in this street, monsieur?"

"No, I have just come from Bordeaux," was the reply.

A look of intense astonishment spread over the worthy bookseller's face, and the customer discovered that he had come 300 miles dressed only in his dressing-gown and slippers, and in his eagerness had not noticed it.

Some time ago the mayor of a certain well-known North of England town gave a municipal ball, to which was invited a somewhat unpopular member of the Corporation, who was given to pomposity and a pronounced squiremanly strut. This gentleman, lacking a long overcoat, got his wife to pin up the tails of his dress-suit under a short overcoat, to avoid rude comments, as they intended to walk the short distance from their house to the ballroom.

But the sequel proved much worse than the good councillor had expected. He parted with his wife to go to their respective cloak-rooms, and that good lady was not a little horrified a few minutes later to see her husband, the observed of all observers, calmly strutting down the centre of the reception-room with his coat-tails still safety-pinned up to the small of his back.

A Nonconformist minister, who was occasionally absent-minded, once made a slip whilst dressing for his Sunday morning service. He forgot to notice that his "Sunday best" trousers had a pair of braces already attached to them, so with a good deal of unusual difficulty he put on another pair from his week-day garments, leaving the superfluous pair hanging down behind.

In this guise he walked the short distance to his church, and, not having done a surplice, they were not hidden from the congregation as he descended the rostrum.

It is generally supposed that though a lady, in the privacy of her own domain, may occasionally appear just a little shabbily attired, yet when she goes forth she is always arrayed to the very utmost of her ability, and especially on a Sunday.

One young lady was in the habit of going to Sunday school each Sabbath afternoon. She had a good distance to go, and prided herself on being very punctual, nevertheless. One Sunday she found herself more than usually pushed for time, but she found time to deck herself out in a new silk dress and stylish hat, and went out rather pleased with her appearance.

On the way she happened to notice that many people were apparently struck with her smart appearance, and then she noticed that they always looked down at her feet. Judge of her amazement when she found that in her hurry she had forgotten to change a very old and shabby pair of house shoes for a more presentable pair. Notwithstanding her passion for punctuality, that afternoon she was late at the Sunday school.

Another young lady tells a somewhat similar story. She also was a Sunday school teacher, and had duly met her class one afternoon, when she noticed the girls looking at her slyly, and nudging one another.

At last one of the girls plucked up courage to blurt out, "Excuse me, miss, but do you know that you've got your apron on?" Sure enough she had, and it was but the work of a moment to take off her black apron, which, owing to the fact that her dress was of a very dark material, she had not noticed.

Shirring in the back at the waist is a new feature of the separate skirt.

Tears of the Great.

Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg would seem to think he has made a score at the expense of Sir E. Goschen in his revelation of the fact that our Ambassador in Berlin shed tears at the fateful moment, but history will surely place that weakness among those which it does not condemn, especially when it is remembered that if Sir Edward was the servant of one of the great countries passing into war, he had ties of ancestry with the other.

The tears of the world's notables fall into very different categories. No one wastes sympathy with George II. in his tears he shed when he was forced at last to receive the elder Pitt; no one withholds it from poor little Queen Victoria when, her face red and swollen with weeping, she faced the necessity of parting with the Minister who had been a father as well as a servant to her. King John's tears at Runnymede only carry him deeper into the pit of contempt; but there was something which demands silence and respect in Wellington weeping over the carnage of Waterloo.

Vegetable Love-Letter

There is no limit to the ingenuity of lovers.

One bashful wooer recently hit the idea of sending the girl he loved a basket of apples, on the skin of each of which was pricked her name as the message "I love you," while a Canadian soldier proposed to the girl of his choice in a love-letter spelled out in mustard and cress.

But the palm must certainly be awarded to a Sussex swain who made a vegetable marrow do his courtship for him. The plan he adopted was to trace with a bradawl his written proposal of marriage on the outer green skin of a young marrow growing in his beloved one's allotment.

Among other unique proposals mentioned that of Cyrus Field, the American millionaire, who harnessed the famous Bridal Veil Fall in California, causing it to "spill out" a love letter in the Morse code.

FOREIGN PRESS OPINION

AMERICAN.
Chicago Stops A Marriage.
Chicago health authorities have prevented the marriage of a man in an advanced stage of tuberculosis. Their action seems drastic, according to sentimental standards. But there is more than sentiment to consider in a marriage. The welfare of future generations is involved. A feeble-minded young woman is brought to the General Hospital. Her baby is born there. She returns home after a time and in the course of a year or two the same thing is repeated. Because society makes no provision for the care of its feeble-minded, they continue to bring feeble-minded into the world to be a burden on generations to come. The let-alone policy might be followed if only the individual immediately affected were concerned. But in matters of health, and physical and mental, no one lives to himself alone. The misfortunes as well as the sins of the parents are visited on the children.—Kansas City Star.

The Helgolander.
Heligoland is left to the Germans. In 1890 England swapped her real and actual possession of Heligoland to Germany in return for Germany's renunciation of altogether fictitious rights in Zanzibar. It was a characteristic swap. Germany systematically created fictitious rights here and there over the surface of the earth in order to trade them for real rights. This is no application of the doctrine of self-determination. The handful of men and women who live on Heligoland are Frisians, nearer to the English than to the Germans. The Frisian language is almost English. The Frisians have a saying that Butter, bread and green cheese is good English and good Frizee. Every word in this couplet is English and Frisian, and the pronunciation is almost the same. In Leeuwarden, the capital of Friesland, an Englishman or an American can make his wants known without any knowledge of the Dutch language or Frisian dialect. It may be surmised that the Heligolanders would eagerly welcome a transfer to Britain. If left absolutely to their own choice they would probably prefer a transfer to Holland, the nation which includes the majority of the Frisian people.

Self-determination cannot be carried to the point of absurdity, and perhaps Great Britain feels that a plebiscite in Heligoland would be too much. To couple Heligoland on the say-so of a couple hundred fishermen would perhaps seem outrageous, and Heligoland is left to Prussia with out any attempt to discover what Heligoland desires.—Plain Dealer.

Poor, Guileless England.
The British people are becoming alarmed at the national outlook and their newspapers are urging the Government to institute reforms in order to stave off bankruptcy. The jealousy which it exhibited over the commercial rise of the United States is am-ing to say the least. The radical "John Bull" denounces America and Wilson in one breath. In the editor's opinion Wilson urged the formation of the League of Nations in order to secure commercial supremacy for this country. In other words, poor, guileless British statesmen, like Lloyd George and General Smuts, fell easy victims to an American confidence game.

This view of the matter will prove interesting to Americans. It is the first time to our knowledge that Great Britain was ever out-jockeyed in the game of diplomacy. We have believed ever since our President threw his fourteen points into the waters of the Seine and brought back a covenant which gives to England the hegemony of the world that the shoe was on the other foot. Now that we know the truth, we regret exceedingly all the unkind things we have uttered regarding innocent England, whose statesmen were so shamefully taken in by the designing Wilson.—Charleston American.

How Much Is "Too Much"?
The sapient Secretary of State of the State of New York remarks that reckless automobilists are killing too many persons on the public highways. We should be interested to know just how many people they ought to kill. There is, of course, the classic example of the Indian chief, who, when remonstrated with imbibing too much firewater, sententiously declared, "Heap too much just enough." We should be inclined to adopt the converse of his apothegm to the murders of the motorists and say that even one killing is too much.—Harper's Weekly.

Mark Twain's Injun Joe.
A number of men each claiming to be the original Mark Twain's Injun Joe have sprung up at various times and used the claim to aid them begging. According to the Macon Republican, one of these, begging in Macon, was recently cured temporarily at least, by a local attorney. When he came to the lawyer's office asking for money and admitted he was Injun Joe the lawyer called the police and when they arrived told them that the man was a murderer. Despite vehement protestations of innocence he read aloud to the beggar the extract from Twain's book which describes the way Injun Joe killed the doctor. The man was allowed to escape as soon as the police understood that the murder was committed sixty years ago in a book.—Kansas City Times.

Pay of Members of Parliament.
A movement is afoot at Ottawa to increase pay of the Dominion Cabinet from $7,000 to $15,000 and the members of parliament from $2,500 to $4,000 per annum. The members have power to raise their own indemnity to any figure they see fit. The only check on the process is the subsequent general election, when each constituency must decide for itself whether it thinks its representative worth the sum at which he estimates his services.

Had Good Reason.
Boston's police would never have wanted to form a union if they had received proper treatment. They have been dismissed. There has been looting and death. Heavy expense has been incurred by the having to use soldiers to maintain the law. And the upshot is that the higher wages, which the police demanded, will be paid to their successors.—Vancouver Sun.

Finland Adopts Prohibition.
Finland, fifty years ago, was reckoned among the most alcohol-drenched countries of the world. Tens of thousands of home distillers were in existence on the farms throughout the country. To-day it is on the eve of better conditions. The first step was the abolition of home distillations in 1866, but total prohibition has been definitely aimed at since 1883. After the adoption of universal suffrage in 1906, a Total Prohibition Bill was carried in the lower House of Parliament, but was objected to by the Senate. By the Russian Revolution, Finland gained her political freedom in 1917, and a Prohibition law was sanctioned in May of the same year, the enactment to come into force on June first of the present year. In the new Parliament of Finland at the present time, the Social Democrats, with the small farmers, form a decided majority, and both stand for Prohibition.—Montreal Star.

ENGLISH.
Four and a Half Millions a Day.
Though the main war is over, expenditure continues at its breakneck speed, and there are signs that the public is beginning to take it seriously. When we were first told during the war that we were spending three millions a day we rightly thought it something colossal, but consoled ourselves with the reflection that even the great war could only endure for a limited time. Now it is nine months since the Armistice, and Mr. Auston Chamberlain tells us that we are still spending at the rate of 4½ millions a day.—Manchester Guardian.

They Loved and Lost.

Celebrities Who Were "Turned Down."
There is a well known picture representing a girl earnestly gazing at a framed portrait which she is holding up before her. Entitled "Vain Regrets," it requires no further explanation, as it merely portrays what, in real life, has happened thousands of times over. A story is told, for instance, of how a pretty but dowdier damsel was once approached by a humble sergeant in the French Army with an offer which she contemptuously rejected. As the years went by, the obscure sergeant rose by degrees until he became a Brigadier. He was present at Fieurs, Corunna, Austerlitz and Waterloo. What must the woman who, years before, had scorned the offer of his heart have thought when she heard men speak of the mighty exploits of the Marshal of Napoleon? At the time when the Emperor was overthrown by Wellington, she was living in pitiable penury in a garret on the Quai Conti. A poor Fleet Street scribbler once raised his eyes to the fair and comfortably dowered daughter of a City banker. All that the latter did, however, when she heard his piteous tale of love was to inform him that she would not have him if he brought her all the jewels in Asia. The humble scribe took this rejection very much to heart, but the day came round, and that in the space of only a few years, when his name had become famous throughout the length and breadth of the land, for he was no other than Charles Dickens.

Years afterwards, the girl who had once scorned his affections actually went to him for financial assistance. A strange reversal of fortune! The author of "Pickwick" was not overjoyed at the sight of her, as readers of his biography need not be reminded. "I left her a lily—I found her a penny." That she lived deeply to rue the day she had rejected the rhapsodical addresses of the great Victorian novelist, is a matter of common knowledge.

Everybody knows the sad fate of the famous artist over whose creations Ruskin delighted to wax eloquent. As the result of the machinations of an unscrupulous step-mother, Turner's sweetheart and he became estranged. The girl eventually married someone else, and Turner registered a vow that he would remain single for life, an oath to which he remained tragically faithful. Before the girl had been married many months she discovered that she had made the mistake of her life, and as the disappointed Turner mounted higher and higher in his profession, often did she wish that step-mothers had never been invented.

Instead of enjoying the companionship of a brilliant and successful genius—a man who, from small beginnings, soon came to possess vast sums of money, and to count among his friends many of the most outstanding people in the realm—all she could boast were circumstances anything but affluent, and a home darkened by the cloud of misunderstanding. Often when, in 1889, Dorothy Tennant read of the heroic adventures of Henry Morton Stanley, must she have deplored the fact that she had not been a little kinder to him in the days when he was her humble suitor. This lady was more fortunate than many others, however; for when, in the midst of the lionizing which heralded his return to London, the heroic adventurer once more hastened to her side, this time, instead of saying "no," her answer was just the opposite.—Tit-Bits.

Foreign Herring.

Arrivals of Scotch cured herrings are coming in very slowly, due to the recent railroad strike in England; 1919 large matjes are quoted at $26.00 and $32, with mediums bringing around $20 and $22. Contracts have been signed by Germany for Scotch herring valued at $3,750,000 to be taken by Germany proportionately from traders on the east coast of Scotland represented at a meeting. Credits have been arranged for the Germans, and deliveries will begin at all ports as soon as shipments can be arranged; 36,525 packages herring arrived here October 6 on the steamship Veendyk. Referring to conditions at Peterhead, the latest issue of "The Fishing News," has this to say: "The season commenced about the middle of May, but they did not run continuously. Two stoppages took place during the month of June, the cause being dissatisfaction which existed among fishermen regarding the prices they were receiving for their fish." The landings for the season amounted to 140,230 crans, and their value was $210,078. Prices throughout the season ranged from 8s. to 12s. per cran, while the average price was 26s. 11d. per cran. About 60 per cent. of the catch was cured, 32 per cent. kippered, and 8 per cent. fresh.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Wonderful Meeting and Great Entertainment Shows Up Squid District Will Retain Cashin Governor

HOLYROOD, Oct. 21.
The Hindenburg line, which was attacked by the Squires whiz bang on Thursday night, was found to be penetrable, the only casualties being on their side. The big guns of S. P. Cashin, Mr. M. Murphy was unanimously appointed chairman. Upon rising, thanked the meeting for the honor conferred on him in selecting him to preside over such a large and enthusiastic and representative gathering, which included practically every voter in Holyrood Parish, sides a large representation of ladies and had much pleasure in introducing the Hon. He referred to the meeting of their opponents, on Thursday night, the of whose argument was abuse and vilification of our respected and highly honored gentleman, Cant. J. Lewis and Mr. R. J. Lewis, was unparliamentary and his position some time ago, but he impress on you that the Government were very glad to accept services of Capt. Lewis to look after our fishing interests on the coast, and no more capable man could do it. At this point the speaker went wild with enthusiasm, cheered Capt. Lewis to the skies. He dealt with some charges against himself re the passing of the Conscription Act. This cry was the position's only hope, upon which based their expectation of defeat Woodford. Wonderful Meeting at Holyrood and Great Enthusiasm--Dr. Jones Shows Up Squires' Tactics--District Will Return Two Men For Cashin Government.

HOLYROOD, Oct. 21. The Hindenburg line, which was attacked by the Squires whiz bangs Thursday night, was found formidable, the only casualties being on their side. The big guns of Sir P. Cashin proved too heavy and their much-boasted success into a fiasco. Last night the old war horse, Sir P. Cashin, was again in the saddle. His opponents like to call him "Wm. Woodford" with his able lieutenant, Dr. Jones, securely captured the very few weak parts of the line with a great call to arms in the Star Hall. The meeting was called to order at 8.30 and on motion James Crawley seconded by John Byrne, Mr. M. Dunphy was unanimously appointed chairman. He, upon rising, thanked the meeting for the honor conferred on him in selecting him to preside over such a large, enthusiastic and representative gathering, which included practically every voter in Holyrood Parish, besides a large representation of ladies, and had much pleasure in introducing the Hon. Mr. Woodford and Dr. Jones, the standard bearers of the Liberal-Progressive Party for the District of St. John's, under the leadership of Sir P. Cashin, who, he said, was not only a credit to his native place but to the country in general, having risen from the little black punt to the highest position his country had to offer. (Cheers and shouts "Cashin is coming back"). He then called on Mr. Woodford, who, coming forward was greeted with thunderous applause and cheers. He referred in length to the meeting of their opponents, on Thursday night, the bulk of whose argument was abuse and vilification of our respected and highly honored gentlemen, Capt. John Lewis and Mr. R. J. Kennedy. (Cheers for Lewis and Kennedy). The attack, said Mr. Woodford, upon Capt. Lewis, was unfair, and ungentlemanly, as he was not in the net of the Government, having resigned his position some time ago, but, let me impress on you that the Government were very glad to accept the services of Capt. Lewis to look after our fishing interests on the other side, and no more capable man could be found in the country and it was only a man of marked ability who could do it. At this point the audience went wild with enthusiasm and cheered Capt. Lewis to the skies. Continuing, Mr. Woodford said that the people of Holyrood as a whole district, would resent this vilification of Capt. Lewis on Nov. 3rd, by giving the Opposition candidates stowing under or "ballots", from which they shall never again extricate themselves. (Cheers and shouts of "Cashin is coming back"). He then dealt with some charges made against himself re the passing of the Bill. He said that the Opposition had based their expectation of defeating Woodford. But had the Opposition candidates been present last night they would have found after Mr. Woodford's explanation that their only hope was shattered. He appealed in this case more especially to the ladies in the gallery, and said that the Government of which he had the proud distinction to be associated with did not force even one man to go to the war. Here Mrs. Hickey, mother of ex-Pte. Michael, shouted from the gallery: "If they weren't towards they would go," whereupon the audience roared, and the applause and cheering literally shook the building. This indeed was a poor sign that the Conscription Act was Woodford's doom. After dealing with other public matters Mr. Woodford asked for a continuance of their confidence which was answered by shouts of "sure thing," "Cashin is coming back," "Hr. M. Jones will do, but if he does I will be so tight to him that I'm afraid there will be very little room for anyone between us. I have every confidence of getting the largest majority on record, as never before, said Mr. Woodford, have we met with such receptions as we have in this campaign despite the false reports of the Opposition scribes. (Cheers).

On Dr. Jones coming forward he was greeted with tremendous cheers and indeed must feel delighted with the warm and whole-hearted reception he received. Never in the political history of Holyrood was a public man accorded a warmer or more sincere ovation. After the applause had subsided Dr. Jones exposed the tactics of the Opposition; they had no policy, he said, and the only thing left for them was to resort to personal abuse and the vilification of their opponents. (Cheers.) He dealt with the cry of Woodford's knifing George Kennedy, and explained the real facts so clearly that not a shadow of doubt existed when he closed this part of his address. (Cheers.) He then told the audience how and why he had entered the political field as one of the upholders of Sir M. P. Cashin's policy. He refuted the charges made by Capt. Kennedy that he (Jones) went on his knees to Squires to let him on the ticket. "I never had any communication with Mr. Squires, said Dr. Jones, but Mr. Squires did make more than one effort to get me and the inducement held out was a seat in the Executive. This brought forth shouts of "Squires can't be trusted." He referred to his visit to the Old Country, and compared conditions there with those in Newfoundland, and said we should congratulate ourselves upon the existing conditions. He paid a high tribute to the ability and statesmanship of Sir M. P. Cashin. He told how Coaker drove Sir Robert Bond out of politics, and what's more, his dominating spirit will also drive Squires and anyone with whom he is associated, out. "Whom will you support," asked the Doctor, "Squires and Coaker, or Cashin?" The audience shouted in one voice, "Cashin."

This was followed by cheers for Cashin and the L.P.P. After dealing extensively with Sir Michael's Manifesto, Dr. Jones thanked the audience for the loyal reception accorded him, and took his seat amidst loud and prolonged cheering. Mr. Woodford then moved a vote of thanks to the respected chairman who, he said, occupied the same position in our last victorious campaign, and it was a good omen that he would again lead us on to a still greater victory. This was ably seconded by Mr. Edward Kirby, and unanimously carried by the whole audience standing and cheering. This brought to a close the most enthusiastic and best political meeting ever held in Holyrood, and the brightest prospects that Woodford and Jones can't lose, and that Cashin is coming back--VOTER.

political meeting ever held in this settlement. The Ingraham arrived here at 5.30 and as she hove in sight flags were unfurled to the breeze and volleys of musketry made the hills ring. A large number of people met the representatives as they landed and escorted them to the hall. Mr. Mitchell presided, and in a nice little speech introduced Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott. The meeting lasted over two hours and, judging from the reception tendered the Liberal-Progressive candidates, Sound Island is prepared to do its part in helping to poll the largest vote ever recorded in the district for the three local men, Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott. North Harbor was also visited and a cordial reception was tendered the candidates and a very successful meeting was held. Mr. A. Beck acted as chairman and introduced the candidates. North Harbor like the other settlements visited, is prepared to support in no half-hearted manner Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott, because they trust the local men who are appealing to them for their support and they know that their interest can be best looked after by men like Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott who know the district and who the people know will fight for their interests. Volleys of musketry were fired in honor of the candidates on their arrival and departure. North Harbor has made up its mind that Cashin is coming back, and they are giving Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott their loyal support on November the 3rd. SOUND ISLAND.

Notes and Comments.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

In the hill country of Georgia, Tennessee, and North and South Carolina the fiddle is an important musical instrument, and fiddlers are necessary and admired personages in the social doings of many a community; so many of them are there that every year a fiddlers' convention is held at Atlanta, Georgia. A current photograph of a group of fiddlers who were busy with their beloved instruments, and who also a smile from many who look at it, for the happiness of the fiddlers at their fiddling shines out from their faces, and one sees in each of them a variation of the kind of man who is likely to be spoken of as a "character." Old and quaint, to musically sophisticated ears, are the tunes they play: "Rocky Road to Atlanta," "Sold My Hoss in Tennessee," "Whose Mine, I can't Git the Bridle On," "Hop Light, Ladies," and other melodies of an older time in the southern United States.

A rather despairing observer, looking at the American stage and comparing the genre of its musical comedians with those of the older and the past generations, feels that the refinements of a Gilbert and Sullivan opera are hardly to be considered among the possible pleasures of the ment. Briefly, he foresaw much that has since come to pass in the United States as a natural result of conditions and characteristics which he had observed in the colonies. "By constant intercommunication," he wrote, "America will every day approach nearer and nearer to Europe. Unless the great potatoes of Europe can prevent men's quitting this Old World, multitudes of their people, many of the most useful, will emigrate to the new one." One might say that Pownall knew America far better than America now knows Pownall.

Three a Year.

Mrs. Howarth, the Yorkshire farmer's wife, who has given birth to four children, "including three bouncing boys," within the past twelve months, has every reason to be very proud of her achievement; but her feat has been eclipsed by not a few of her predecessors in the records of maternity.

An amazing story is told of an Italian woman, Signora Granatta, who counted her offspring to sixty-two--all the children of one husband, and all born within the short space of nineteen years, after their mother had passed her twenty-eighth birthday.

Eleven times in nine years, we are told, triplets followed each other with clock-work regularity; on three occasions twin boys entered the world together, and on one memorable day the Italian Census figures were increased by no fewer than five--four boys and a girl. Of the signora's progeny, fifty-nine were males.

Signora Granatta's record stands supreme and unchallenged, but she has had many formidable rivals. In a French scientific book we read of the wife of a Paris baker who presented her husband with twenty-one children, in batches of three at a time, and at the rate of one set of triplets annually for seven years.

Looking backward into American history, an interesting item of casual reading has been produced by a writer who recalls the memorial which Thomas Pownall, in 1780, addressed to the crowned heads of Europe. Pownall was a member of the British Parliament who had seen civil service in various parts of the then American Colonies, and set down his opinion of their future develop-

Who Who's

AND WHY IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA--1919-20.

"Who's Who and Why" is designed to provide a record of the men and women who in one capacity or another are contributing to the building up of Canada and Newfoundland.

In the brief account of their career in these pages their relation is shown to the outstanding events of the history of the sister dominions, and the book, therefore, has a value for the historian quite beyond its use as a current work of reference. Included also are portraits of persons dealt with in the biographical sketches, thus adding to the permanent value of the book. Only a few copies on sale.

Foreign Herring.

Arrivals of Scotch cured herring are coming in very slowly, due to the recent railroad strike in England; the 1919 large matjes are quoted at $28.50 and $32, with mediums bringing around $20 and $22. Contracts have been signed by Germany for Scotch herring valued at $3,750,000 to be taken by Germany proportionately from traders on the east coast of Scotland represented at a meeting. Credits have been arranged for the Germans, and deliveries will begin at all ports as soon as shipments can be arranged; 36,525 packages herring arrived here October 6 on the steamship Veendyk. Referring to conditions at Peterhead, the latest issue of "The Fishing News," has this to say: "The season commenced about the middle of May, but they did not run continuously. Two stoppages took place during the month of June, the cause being dissatisfaction which existed among fishermen regarding the prices they were receiving for their fish." The landings for the season amounted to 140,230 crans, and their value was £210,078. Prices throughout the season ranged from 6s. to 12s. per cran, while the average price was 20s. 11s. per cran. About 60 per cent. of the catch was cured, 32 per cent. kippered, and 8 per cent. fresh.--N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

MOTORISTS!

I have just purchased the Highlanders' Armoury and have storage space for 100 cars. In order to facilitate quick repairs and the most up-to-date service, I am leaving for the United States and Canada about the 27th and while abroad will purchase the finest service station equipment obtainable, also a line of repair parts and accessories for Briscoe, Ford and Chevrolet cars, and can guarantee first-class overhauling and repair work. When you are finished with your car send it in and we will overhaul it and put it in first-class condition for next season. One part of my new equipment will be an electric drive motor test stand where engines will be thoroughly tested under their own power before being put back in the car, where oil or other leaks can be detected and rectified, thereby insuring a good and lasting job. Parties storing their cars at my garage will be supplied with a key so that they can get their car at any time; cars will be so arranged that there will be no necessity to move other cars to get any one car out.

Thanking my customers for their past patronage and assuring those and others I am doing the best possible to obtain quick repairs and prompt service.
