ENGLAND IN 1909.
 Best Year For Values Known Since 1895.
 Some of the high priced yearlings brought at the Doncaster sales in 1909 justified their plucky purchasers' outlay by winning races in the season of 1910 and these seemed to have helped prices last year. At the late Doncaster yearling sale a better average was secured than had been the case for a number of years past. In all, 213 animals were sold for £170,000, giving an average per head of £79 1/2 gs. Last year the average reached but 38 1/2 gs. and in 1907, 37 1/2 gs.; while in 1908 it was 34 1/2 gs.; in 1906, 32 1/2 gs.; in 1905, 30 1/2 gs.; in 1904, 27 1/2 gs.; and in 1903, 25 1/2 gs. which is quite far enough back to look to prove that prices were better than they had been since 1895, when the grand average was 26 1/2 gs. In 1909 the total value of yearlings sold at Doncaster reached 1,246,000, the entire prices paid for 1,017 yearlings, 1,035 yearlings, 1,028 yearlings, 1,009 yearlings, 1,000 yearlings, 999 yearlings, WITHERS' POLICE RECORD.
 As far as can be learned all that is known of WITHERS, who was born in Birmingham, Ala., came to this city in 1899 from Chicago, when he was arrested for picking pockets by Detective Forest and served six months in the Central Prison. He was here about horses, and a few years ago married the daughter of Mrs. Davis in Buffalo, where he is said to be wanted by the police. He and she got along well together, and she obtained an order of separation against him and later when he still harbored her an order of protection. He served five and six months in the city jail and later when he met at the track, he had not been near the city for nearly a year.
 Two granddaughters of Mr. Davis, who were at the house shortly after the shooting, said yesterday that WITHERS had told them to keep away from their grandmother and that they were going to start "fireworks" in the house sometime.

WILD WEST SCENES.
 Such scenes as that about the three-story brick-faced roughcast house during the three hours bombardment of yesterday afternoon are easier to connect in the mind with the crowd of people who gathered to witness the work of the police in the window of the shabby little house.
 This was evidenced by the fact that during the earlier time, when the shooting was largely confined to the floor of the house, they thronged in close to the danger zone and even while Inspector Duncan was stalking the negro, who was returning his fire from the shuttered attic window, they only occasionally drew back when the shots were actually being exchanged. At other times they pressed upon the effort to get a closer view and passed idle and laughed and shuffled with impatience much more like to wait in front of a theatre door, than many men watching their fellows hunting a human wolf by bay.

APPEAL TO FIREMEN.
 As the day wore on and the dusk began to gather, the need for haste was felt. It was to make the capture and close the drama. Appeal had been made by Deputy Chief Starr to the firemen for their help to drive the man from his barricade. This was refused, although police officers to take all the risk and operate to take the man. Robbed of this method, which has many times proved effective, they returned to the task, and ever when the bullets were being rained from above, the narrow hallways of the little house were thronged with detectives and police officers, who cheerfully took their life in their hand and each vied with the others to be the first to take the post of danger.
 The crowd watched and jeered, but as he body of the old woman was brought out there was an angry and ominous sound as it was borne thru the crowd. And when at last the body engaged with Inspector Duncan, who was firing from the roadway at the front windows. The inspector emptied his automatic Savage pistol and then began operations with the shotgun. Crown found the body of Mrs. Davis lying face downward in the hall above. He, with Deputy Chief Starr, who was standing in the hallway, and a constable, went up to the first floor and brought out the body of Mrs. Davis. She was still breathing when they reached the street and was carried over to E. A. Tomlin's butcher shop at Broadview and Elliott-street. There a doctor saw her, but nothing could be done and she died a moment later.

 Meanwhile the fight in the house was at its height. WITHERS was dividing his attention between Inspector Duncan in the roadway with the shotgun and Detective Miller, Guthrie, Armstrong, Moffatt, Newton and Elliott-street. A doctor saw her, but nothing could be done and she died a moment later.
MURDERER SUICIDES.
 Detective Wallace called to WITHERS, telling him to come down. WITHERS asked if it was Inspector Cuddy and was told that it was. "You come up," he said, "and I'll give you all that is coming to you."
 They again called upon him to come down, but he kept blazing away. At last, after a furious volley, he called, "I'm coming," and followed by a heavy rain of shots and then he called, "Now I'll finish it." There was a single shot, followed by a thud and an outcry.
 Detectives Guthrie and Murray rushed up and found WITHERS still lying in the house could not locate him by the sound of his footfalls.
EARTH WITHOUT AIR.
 If We Could Live in That Way We Would Witness Many Queer Things.
 Without the atmosphere, besides the inconvenience of breathing, a great many peculiar things would be extraordinary to us. The sun would rise straight up in the morning into a black sky as ebony, traverse a black sky and sink down to rest at night into a black bed. No beautiful glories of the sunset and sunrise would appear, no red sun gradually growing brighter, but one that would rise as a fiery orb and remain thus all day. No twilight nor day-break could cheer us, for there would be nothing to diffuse the light.
 Unless the sun shone directly on a thing, we could not see it. Thus our transparent substances, like crystals, would be lit by the sun. No soothing shades would appear in the landscape, but everything would stand out boldly and clearly, every object casting dense black shadows. This would render invisible anyone entering them. No voice or music could be heard, for there would be no medium to carry it, no birds, or insects that fly about in the trees above us, for they would be nothing to enable them to utilize their wing motion. No clouds would be seen in the intensely black sky and no thunderstorms, for lightning would be impossible. No vegetation could exist and no animal could live. In fact, this old earth would be dead as Hector, as far as activity was concerned.
 Yes, this is the exact condition of affairs on the moon, which has no atmosphere and consequently suffers every one of these disabilities. It is rather interesting to contemplate the successive events on the earth if the atmosphere should be quickly removed. The first thing that would probably happen is that every animal, insect, fish, bird and plant would suffer a violent explosion, for each contains air at a pressure of fifteen pounds to the square inch on the outside, which is balanced by an equal pressure on the inside, and would rush outward on the first pressure being removed. This can be shown by placing a glass jar over a pump and gradually exhausting the air; the part exposed will gradually swell. Another illustration is when a tornado sweeps across a house, taking the roof and away for its instant. If the house is closed, the windows and doors will be blown outward with enormous force and sometimes the sides tilted in all directions, the house as if it were being pushed from the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Credit Where Credit Was Due.
 Andrew Carnegie, in a Thanksgiving address in Pittsburgh, once told, according to a Pittsburgh banker, a Thanksgiving story with a moral.
 "Too many men," said Mr. Carnegie, "are not thankful enough to their creditors for their success. This is especially true of self-made men, who are prouder, as a rule, than kings and dukes."
 "A self-made man I knew was talking to a minister. The topic was, of course, his own success.
 "Yes, doctor," he said, "I began life a barefooted newsboy. At 20 I was worth $8000. I was a millionaire at 32. And yet everybody was against me. I have achieved my success, doctor, single-handed and by my own unaided efforts."
 "Here the proud and self-made man seemed to remember that, in conversation with a minister, he ought to adopt a humbler and more religious tone. He said lightly, after a short pause:
 "Of course, I don't deny that Providence may, now and then, have been brought out there was an angry and ominous sound as it was borne thru the crowd. And when at last the body

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA GIVES FOURTH CONCERT
 Beethoven Concerto With Fritz Kreisler Assisting Was Special Feature.
 The Toronto Symphony Orchestra gave its fourth annual concert in Massey Hall last night before a large audience and one which did not lack in enthusiasm.
 The Beethoven concerto for violin and orchestra with Fritz Kreisler as assisting violinist, was the prominent feature and elicited evidences of warm approval. The first movement illustrates the composer's peculiar genius, being rich in individuality and strength and harmonically composed in 1806, was written for a virtuoso of dazzling eccentricities.
 It is interesting to note that the work is a study of the violin, for it contains an eminent violinist of the period. Kreisler in the violin concerto enthralled the audience with his masterly technique and warmth of emotional tone. His double stopping and arpeggios were a revelation in what can be done with the instrument. The orchestral accompaniment was thorough, satisfying and at a time appropriate. The strings were superbly under his direction. Kreisler received recall after recall in his other number harrowed from their emotion evoked with a rare nerve and breadth of tone.
 Kreisler's "Caprice Viennoise" and "Humoresque" and one of Kreisler's compositions, "Caprice Viennoise" in the remainder of the evening, he heard to great advantage, especially in the fugue movement, in which the violinist displayed great brilliancy of tone without at any time degenerating into bombast. The string section rendered Grieg's "Melody For String" and "Waltz in F" which fairly carried the audience away. Massenet's "Scenes Andalaises" was given a rendering of rare distinction.
OYSTER SHELLS.
 Commonly Used for Road-Making Purposes Along Sea Coast.
 The use of oyster shells for road-making purposes is now common along the sea coast. The large oyster shells, according to Michael F. Cowley, a builder and contractor of New York, who is at the Raleigh Hotel, New York, where the shells are being washed every year, their value in building roads is little appreciated. "In certain counties in New Jersey," he says, "they have been used for thirty years or more, and it is a fact that they have given satisfaction all that time, but the cost of shells has been increasing so rapidly that it is not possible to use them for road-making to make a study of oyster-shell road building in order to get the best results from the smallest quantity of oyster shells. Accordingly, it has been found that by mixing

AS TO A LIFE WORK

Montreal Herald's Ottawa Correspondent Makes Interesting Comment.

In a column headed House and Lobby, and dated Ottawa, the Ottawa correspondent has this to say about two well-known Canadians...

Maybe they are only sceptical, but they think they see in the conservation business an opportunity of work...

In the States it would appear that conservation is already a political issue, as witness the fight between Mr. Finch and the Trust Administration...

Another man who has found his life's work is Mr. Creelman, the brainy youngster who runs the Guelph Agricultural College...

Strong Rallying Power Shown By the New York Securities

Stocks Open Off Two Points on Wall Street and Then Recover More Than Loss—Toronto Market Quiet and Firm.

World Office, Monday Evening, Feb. 14. Speculation was exceedingly light in the securities listed at the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Prices were higher and much firmer, yet only a small amount of business was attracted to the market.

It was again incentive to put up stocks to-day it was the rally which occurred on the New York market after a weak opening.

Two essential Canadian stocks, C. P. R. and Soo, were both strong at a considerable advance on the New York market, but with the extent of a couple of trades in C.P.R. and a like amount in Soo, there was no local interest taken in these securities.

It was again rumored that Nova Scotia Steel was to be taken into the Dominion Steel-Dominion-Coal merger, but this received an absolute denial and among traders it was thought that the Nova Scotia pool is trailing on the merger more for market purposes than for anything else.

Latin American securities were strong as they were last week. Prices advanced despite the attempt of some syndicate to influence holders of the shares, by means of advertising the fact that a company had obtained rights, which will be minimal to those of the Rio in the city in which the company operates.

Through the speculative issues there was a general improvement made, and the posted counless centuries ago, soon after the creation of the world. The rock bearing asbestos is cut out, hoisted from the pits in boxes by means of cableways and is placed in cars at the surface. It is then carried to the mills, where the rock is crushed, dried and pulverized, after which it passes over shaking screens and under vacuum pipes. During this trip the fibre is, literally speaking, sucked away from the sand to be blown into dusting and grading machines. It is then ready to be packed in bags for shipment.

Better consumers' demand for copper. Steel still in the market for Bessemer pig-iron. Dun's Review says reports of trade conditions are somewhat conflicting.

Dun's reports show commercial failures lower than last week, but higher than this time last year. Bradstreet says trade reports are quiet and not unusual for this time of the year.

A slight lessening in activity in the pig-iron industry is being offset by an increased demand for copper metal.

WALL STREET ADVICES.

Joseph says: It will be well to go conservatively in the market; don't jump on the bandwagon at the Island. Chesapeake & Ohio are good. Buy Computers at opening bid; bull Truictions.

Information continues bullish on Rock Island; Washash preferred may do better. Reading shows a stronger up-trend since absorbing the 161 offerings.

There are offerings now appearing in Amalgamated around 77. Smelting 83, Northern and Great Northern 137, Consolidated Gas 146 and New York Central 120. All are cheap, however.—Financial Bulletin.

President Taft's speech is presumably the cause of the renewed activity of the bears, who argue that the administration is still unchanged in its policy regarding corporations. It is an open question, however, if Wall-street really expected change of attitude up or on the part of Washington, and in any event the recent drastic decline has been rather thoroughly discounted the worst-Town Topics.

N. S. Steel Company. SYDNEY, N. S. Feb. 14.—There is a persistent rumor here that the Nova Scotia Steel Co. is to enter the Steel-Coal merger. An incident that is taken to lend color to the report is the securing of an option on the Rio property, Sydney, mine, by the Bank of Montreal, where a branch will be opened.

The above despatch was received in Toronto yesterday, and has been repeatedly made by Montreal interests. That there is any intention to take the N. S. Steel Company into the Dominion-Coal-Dominion Steel merger is absolutely denied by Toronto authorities. "No overtures have been or will be made to take in the Nova Scotia Steel Company," was the statement of a Toronto financial official who knows what the Steel-Coal amalgamation is to be.

OUTLOOK MORE SHEERFUL SAYS BANKER CLEWS.

Henry Clews says: It is a source of gratification to once more be able to take a more cheerful view of the broad financial outlook. Fluctuations in prices of securities from day to day may, it is true, still continue erratic; accidents may still happen; but there are distinct indications that the storm is clearing. Indeed, the weight of uncertainty and dread has already measurably lightened and the more general disposition is usually conservative circles now is to appraise the controlling factors of the security market in a calm, sane manner.
