KING'S COLLEGE

Notes Dead Against Amalgamation With Dalhousie.

The Rejected Alumni in Convocation

And the Proposition by a Large Vote.

Windsor, N. S., June 17.—The associated annual of Kings College met in the Convocation Hall at 10.30 a. m. today. The attendance was very large, there being about 300 present. On all sides there were signs of an approaching conflict between the champions of the amalgamated propaganda and those who opposed removing the college. An air of suppressed excitement characterized the opening proceedings. The president, Dr. Trenaman, called the meeting to order, and after prayers by the Bishop of Nova Scotia the president welcomed the new alumni members. Two hundred had been added during the year. Proxies were then called for and upon scrutiny about fifty-nine were accepted as being voted. Twenty-five new members of the alumni were elected, including many prominent New Brunswick chancellors, T. C. Allen, Dr. A. Stockton, Dr. Elias Alward, G. Teed and A. J. Pipes being among the number. The report of the executive committee was considered and a resolution was passed which expressed with much satisfaction the success of the work of the agent of the alumni, Rev. A. Weston Jones. An expression of regret was recorded in the minutes that the relative strength of the two parties, it was moved by Rev. Mr. Armitage, rector of St. Paul's, Halifax, and a champion of the cause of amalgamation, that the resignation of Archbishop Kebleck be not accepted. A warm discussion followed, participated in by Judge Hanington, Dean Partridge, Rev. Dr. Bullcock, Rev. Chas. Schofield and Rev. Mr. Armitage. The motion was then carried, sixty-three voted to accept the resignation, while twenty-one voted to retain the archbishop as governor. Archbishop Kebleck was in favor of amalgamation, and his resignation was submitted because of the alumni's vote of last year against removing Kings to Halifax.

Chas. Giles of Kingsclere was made a member of the alumni. Mr. Giles has promised an annual contribution of $100 to the college; this entitles him to become a life member. The actual strength of the opposition to amalgamation was manifested in the vote for the resignation of Archbishop Kebleck. Rev. Canon Crawford, Thos. Brown and H. H. Pickett. The result was a decisive victory for the opponents of amalgamation. The successful candidate gained a majority of about one hundred votes over the advocates of amalgamation.

Dr. M. A. B. Smith, Rev. S. H. Cunningham and Maynard Bowman were elected on the executive committee of the alumni. All of the above are strongly opposed to the idea of amalgamation. Rev. Mr. Armitage that the financial condition of the college justified the efforts being made for a federation with Dalhousie. Judge Hanington, who has been such a valiant opponent of amalgamation in the press, in the synod of Fredericton and the board of governors, rose to the occasion and strongly combated the amalgamationist interpretation of the financial outlook. After a spirited discussion the resolution was endorsed. The report of Rev. S. Weston Jones, agent of the alumni, showed a total sum contributed of about $4,000, with an expenditure of less than $300. This report created the greatest enthusiasm, and Mr. Jones was applauded continuously, receiving an ovation as he closed. He was thanked by a very cordial resolution moved by the bishop of Nova Scotia, who complimented him on the success of his efforts in awakening a new interest in the college.

The women's auxiliary of the friends of Kings held a meeting for organization this afternoon. Aided officers for the three districts and reported that they had raised by their efforts $1,750 for the salary of a new professor in divinity. They have sent a delegation to meet the governors this evening to ask that a new chair be known as the "Alexandra chair," be founded at once for the faculty of divinity which they desire to pay. The governors are now in session. The new board contains about twenty in favor of the reorganizing of the faculty of the college to about fifteen at Windsor who favor amalgamation.

The Gazette of the university shows J. W. Stewart of Hampton, N. B., as having won the highest distinction of the year, the governor-general's gold medal. Mr. Stewart made an average of over eighty per cent.

(Special to the Sun.) WINDSOR, June 17.—Kings College will tomorrow confer honorary degrees on D. C. L., Sir Alexander MacKenzie, London; D. S. H. S. Foots, Halifax; D. S. C., Dr. Edwin Gilpin, Halifax; D. C. D., Bishop Ristlerick of Havana.

WINDSOR, N. S., Thursday, 18.—The governors of Kings College sat till 3 o'clock this morning, when they adopted, by a vote of 14 to 18, a motion declining to adhere to their resolution of a year ago favoring consolidation with Dalhousie. The scheme is thus practically killed. They also asked Dr. Willets to resign the presidency and offered him the professorship of classics. Professor Demille resigns the chair of English literature. He goes to Harvard.

DEATH OF DR. DEWART, One of Canada's Foremost Methodist Divines.

TORONTO, June 17.—Rev. E. H. Dewart, D. D., for years editor of the Christian Guardian, and one of the most distinguished ministers of the Methodist church in Canada, died suddenly this afternoon, aged 75.

Dr. Dewart was apparently in good health up to within a few minutes of his death. The immediate cause was a clot of blood in the heart.

Dr. Dewart was born in Ireland in 1832, and came to Canada with his parents when only six years old, settling in Peterborough, Ontario. He was called to the Methodist ministry in 1851. In 1889 he was chosen editor of the Christian Guardian, the principal organ of the Methodist church in Upper Canada. Through his long career Dr. Dewart rendered valuable service to his church. He took a big part in editing and compiling the new Wesleyan hymn book, his practical taste being of especial value in this connection. He was a keen debater, a vigorous writer and an all round strong man. In politics he was a staunch Methodist liberal.

NEWCASTLE. Laid Corner Stone of the New Orange Hall.

NEWCASTLE, N. B., June 18.—The corner-stone of the new Orange Hall being erected here was laid last evening with imposing ceremonies. At 7 o'clock the Newcastle lodge, with visiting brethren, marched from their lodge room, headed by their band, to the site of their new building, where a large number of citizens had gathered to witness the ceremony. After the usual ceremony, in which R. G. W. M. Helme, of Moncton, spread the cement and laid the stone, speeches were delivered by Mr. Helme, Mayor Morrison, Grand Treasurer, H. G. Wadman, of Moncton, and D. B. C. J. W. Clarke, of Moncton. This completed the public services, after which the members returned to the lodge rooms, where a very pleasant evening was spent, and a large number of citizens had gathered to witness the ceremony. The new hall is to be of brick with stone trimmings, has been let out to John McDonald, Charlottetown, for about $9,000, but it is expected to cost about $12,000 when completed.

She lost all her sails.

TARTE MADE A HIT.

The Ex-Minister Wants Canada Protected for Canadians.

Yesterday's Proceedings in the House of Commons

—St. John and the Roman Catholic Reformatory

—A Party Division—Opposition Caucus.

OTTAWA, June 17.—Hon. Mr. Pringle's act respecting the Good Shepherd Reformatory, St. John, was taken up into committee of the whole.

Col. Hughes asked why legislation was not passed for New Brunswick Protestants as well as Roman Catholics, so all denominations would secure equal rights.

R. I. Borden spoke favorably of the working of the religious reformatories already established in Nova Scotia.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 17.—In the commons today Sir Wm. Mulock announced that in British Columbia, Manitoba and the Northwest there are 326,685 acres of land available for settlement.

Mr. Tarte, on the motion to go into supply, moved his amendment calling for immediate revision of the tariff, so as adequately and firmly protect Canadian industries, and the inauguration of a policy which will provide Canada with ample facilities for transportation.

Mr. Tarte did not press the point. He considered the time for revision of the tariff opportune, as the government had a buoyant revenue and a large surplus to work upon. The present government favored foreigners at the expense of Canadian resources.

Mr. Tarte stated that everything was in favor of high protection as against free trade. The Canadian tariff should be as effective as that of the United States.

The concert given at Rotheray last Thursday under the auspices of the Netherwood Bee Hive, a missionary society whose energetic members are pupils of the Rotheray School for Girls, attracted a large number of visitors from the city. The receipts of the concert are to be applied towards the support of a little Methodist girl in Mr. Floyd's mission school in Tunis.

A long programme, which was very carefully selected, showed careful study and preparation on the part of the students. A piano duo, including a minuet and mazurka from Von Weber and a waltz from Chopin, was given by Florence Murray and Louise Murray. 2nd class—Olivia Murray, Lilian Ratchford, and Charlotte Vassie. Miss Florence Murray delighted the audience with a reading entitled "Watermelon Seedings," her impersonation of the different characters being exceptionally good.

The Burleigh, a reading full of humorous aspects, was given to advantage by Florence Pittfield. A waltz impromptu from Raff was very tastefully rendered by Louise Murray. Miss Murray's execution is very neat, and speaks of careful training. May Day was sung in good voice by Mrs. C. Taylor. A violin solo, embracing a minuet from Verandee and a waltz from Godard, was masterfully rendered by Olivia Murray and greatly pleased the audience. Ouzanyana's Rival, a reading, was given with effect by Louise Murray. A Norwegian song from Henri Loge was given with taste and expression by Miss Ethel Brown. A selection from Moszkowski was beautifully rendered by Alice Richardson and Violet Hilyard. Mr. Allan and Harold F. Hall added materially to the programme in two vocal renderings. "Night Time," from Beardsley, and "My Queen," from Blumenthal. Melville Robinson displayed eloquent power in a selection from Frank Stockton entitled "Baby at Bedside." A BRITISH MONITOR

Went Down on Her Way to St. John from Bermuda.

Fifteen Men Rescued by the Crew of the Tug—A Big Storm—Saved by Life Lines.

BOSTON, June 17.—The old British monitor Scorpion, which for years has been used as a target for the guns of the British war vessels on the West Indian station at an anchorage off Hamilton, Bermuda, sunk 80 miles off George's bank yesterday when in tow of the British tug Powerful on her way to St. John, N. B. The tug reached here tonight, when her master, Captain Russell, reported the loss of the monitor.

The fifteen men who were on the monitor were rescued by the crew of the Powerful after a struggle, as the weather was very heavy at the time. Captain Russell stated that the tow left Bermuda last Wednesday, the monitor being bound to St. John to be broken up as old metal. On Friday the tug ran into the easterly storm and the monitor began to lurch, her low foreboard being no protection against the high seas. As the storm increased the monitor began to strain and then to leak. Captain Harding, her master, signalled the tug to sheer off in order to save the vessel and sent the crew to man the pumps. The storm did not abate, and finally the pumps gave out. Early Tuesday the tug was unable to take off the Scorpion's crew, as there seemed no hope of keeping the monitor afloat. Terrific seas began to fall on the monitor's deck in order to save the vessel and sent the crew to man the pumps. The storm did not abate, and finally the pumps gave out. Early Tuesday the tug was unable to take off the Scorpion's crew, as there seemed no hope of keeping the monitor afloat.

It was announced some weeks ago that the British monitor Scorpion, which had been broken up at Bermuda, would be brought here to be broken up. The iron to be taken from her having been sold to the Portland Rolling Mills. The vessel was under way in Bermuda for a long time, but was abandoned. A valuable stow was removed from her for use in other British war vessels. Finally she was purchased by Boston parties, including James and L. E. Edvard and Thomas Butler and L. E. Lunt, all of whom are well known to St. John. They floated the big vessel, and Mr. Lunt came here to negotiate with her sale. The matter was arranged, the Portland Rolling Mills agreeing to take the iron. Then it fell that the big ship of the war had been owned by F. E. Sayre, who was in which to break the ship up. The iron to have been paid was reported at $150 per month, and full payment would have been consumed in the operation. Yesterday a despatch was received here stating that the Scorpion, which left Bermuda for St. John, was lost on the way up. The news came from Boston.

BOSTON, June 17.—The Scorpion had been bought by Thomas Butler & Co. of this city to be delivered at St. John. The Scorpion carried many tons of metal and was valued at $40,000. The crew lost all their effects.

QUEBEC LABOR MATTERS.

MONTREAL, June 17.—A unique case was entered in the police-court today under the provisions of a law enacted by the Quebec legislature. The president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has been summoned to appear before a judge to explain why the union is doing a beneficiary society business. The labor leaders claim that the law does not apply to them, as they are not registered or incorporated. On the other hand, it is asserted that this is simply an acknowledgment of guilt, as the union's charter evades the provincial law.

BOSTON LETTER.

Long Period of Cold Weather is Killing Summer Trade.

OTTAWA LETTER.

Every Conservative Member from the Maritime Provinces.

Voted in Favor of Borden's Resolution to Increase the Duties on Iron and Steel and the Products Thereof.

Humiliating Attitude of the Minister of Finance on the Question—Cares Nothing for the Prosperity of Cape Breton—'Let the People Dig Potatoes'.

OTTAWA, June 19.—(Special Col. of the Sun.) Much to the surprise of the members of the Conservative party in the House of Commons, the resolution in favor of increased duties on iron and steel and the products thereof, introduced by Mr. Borden, was carried by a vote of 107 to 55.

When Mr. Fielding speaks so strongly in favor of the iron and steel industry, it is not surprising that he should have been one of the few members of the Conservative party who voted against the resolution.

Mr. Fielding can hardly recommend the digging of potatoes and the catching of fish to the iron and steel industry. He has said that the iron and steel industry is the backbone of the country.

Mr. Fielding's attitude is amusing. For the finance minister to deliberately state that it was Mr. Borden who first intimated to him that the iron and steel industry was the backbone of the country is a little amusing.

It is of course, humiliating to the minister of finance to be compelled to approach the manufacturers of iron and steel and beg of them to refrain from presenting the government too far.

dependent upon the iron and steel industry for a living. Yet he would not oppose the motion favoring an adequate protection of capital and labor, but calls upon those who depend upon the chances of the iron and steel industry ever becoming great in Canada.

Mr. Fielding has ever been the enemy of iron and steel. From the time he recommended to Nova Scotia the digging of potatoes in preference to the manufacture of iron and steel he has according to his record, hampered at every turn those who had faith in the production of these articles.

The iron gentleman had hardly reckoned on this because they were submitted by the leader of the opposition and proved beyond peradventure that the liberal party since it came into power in 1896 has made up its mind to reduce in iron and steel duties.

Mr. Fielding lays great stress on this discovery in replying to Mr. Borden's able argument in favor of protection of the iron and steel industry. He said: "There is much in the hon. gentleman's speech to commend my respect and admiration, and in that class I would include the excellent quotation he gave us from the report of the minister of finance."

But Mr. Fielding's demeanor did not suggest the same course conveyed by his words. He was nervous, he was nervous because he knew that his position in the tariff dealing with iron and steel, then he has to reckon with a hundred and one other industries.

Mr. Fielding's attitude is amusing. For the finance minister to deliberately state that it was Mr. Borden who first intimated to him that the iron and steel industry was the backbone of the country is a little amusing.

It is of course, humiliating to the minister of finance to be compelled to approach the manufacturers of iron and steel and beg of them to refrain from presenting the government too far.

route existing between Lewis and Montreal over the Grand Trunk railway and which had the further merit and advantage of avoiding the chain of mountains which are adjacent to the St. Lawrence river near Richmond, but suspicious as to the dealings of the government with the company in question—the Drummond County Railway Company—has been shown to be to the public, the government deem it their duty to court every enquiry and to see that all charges may be properly ventilated.

Mr. Justice Mills, whose recent death called forth eulogies from all parts of Canada, left behind him an opinion on the subject of parliamentary enquiry which is well worthy of note. Mr. Mills was one of the best exponents on constitutional history and law in the liberal party, and these are his views in regard to the right of parliament to enquiry.

But let us pass from Mr. Fisher to something more interesting. The government has made it the quality of an investigation into the Treadgold succession frauds. It has passed over the petition signed by thousands of Klondike miners in his propaganda to the electors.

Hon. Andrew G. Blair again manifested his interest in Mr. Treadgold, but in doing so he has been obliged upon charges, which, so far as can be ascertained, have never been made by the opposition and had their origin in the intrigues of the members of the Yukon and consequently justice is denied to the thousands of miners whose rights as free men are threatened.

ST. JOHN'S LOSS IS BOSTON'S GAIN. It is rumored about the Carleton streets, and the rumor is likely to have a pretty good foundation, that Merritt Lord, who is out on bail on a charge of stealing a horse, has removed to Boston, where he intends to make his future home.

BOSTON, June 19.—Mrs. W. H. Delap, wife of Capt. Delap of the Digby, N. S., who was wrecked in the terrible storm off Portsmouth, N. H., last Friday, proved herself a heroine in that trying ordeal. In the face of a certain shipwreck and almost certain death she remained on the sea swept deck assisting the men in every way and inspiring them by her coolness and bravery, until forced to go below by her husband, much against her wish.

At low tide the captain managed to crawl over her shoulder to the shore. Procuring assistance he had Mr. Delap, dripping wet, but still full of courage, brought ashore, and then the crew of the vessel, who were all exhausted, a total loss and both vessel and cargo are uninsured.

WORK OF METHODIST CONFERENCE HAS BEGUN.

First Open Session Held Wednesday -- Ministerial Conference Concluded--Several Clergymen Get Year's Leave of Absence -- Rev. J. C. Berrie Elected President of the Conference.

CENTENARY BEFORE THE FIRE.

The open sessions of the Methodist conference began 17th. As these meetings one hundred ministers and one hundred lay delegates, representing a Methodist population of 35,973 in this province and 13,402 in Prince Edward Island. The ministers have already disposed of that part of the business which is in their exclusive charge, and now the ministers and laymen meet together to consider matters relating to the general policy and administration of the church.

THE CONFERENCE CHURCH

The history of Centenary church as a separate organization reaches back to 1828. The old German street sanctuary having become too small for the congregation worshipping therein, another place of meeting became a necessity. In the earlier part of the present year four lots of land on the corner of St. George--now Wentworth--and Princess streets were purchased at a cost of $2,000, one-fourth of which amount was given by a donation by the late J. B. Gaynor. The corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremonies in the presence of about two thousand persons, by the late John Ferguson, an aged and highly respected member of the church, on July 16th, 1833. In the afternoon of the day, Rev. Messrs. Sheppard, Busby and Wood participated. The corner stone contained an almanac, a copy of the "Christian Reporter and Temperance Advocate."

by almost two thousand voices, rang through the lofty arches of the church. Rev. Mr. Daniel then pronounced the benediction, and the great gathering dispersed after singing God Save the Queen.

Brewer, Edwin Evans, D. D., Howard Sprague, D. D., second time, John J. Teasdale, John Read, D. D., G. M. Campbell, now in charge.

SECOND SESSION.

The second session of the ministerial conference was opened at 10 a. m. yesterday by the singing of hymn 784, reading of the Scriptures and prayer.

Confession opened at 2.30. Hymn No. 474 was sung and prayer was offered by Rev. George A. Ross. After reading of the minutes the remaining disciplinary questions were proposed and the ministerial conference was held. Mr. Morris was asked to read the list of those who are to go to college. Rev. Dr. Brecken was on motion leave of absence for one year. Rev. Joseph Perkins, who had the matter in charge, read the pastoral address--a well written, comprehensive and eminently practical paper which will, when some slight corrections are made, appear in the minutes of the conference. The Revs. Fisher, A. Rogers, and Matthew R. Knight were appointed to prepare the address for 1904. The following are the supernumerary ministers of the ensuing year: Charles Comben, John J. Clarke, A. M., Henry Pascoe, Stephen T. Teed, Douglas Chapman, Charles Stewart and Elias Stewart. The ministerial conference then adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

The first open session of the Methodist conference was held Thursday in Centenary church in the interests of young people. Rev. Dr. Paisley, dean of the faculty of theology at Mount Allison, presided. Rev. A. Lucas read a portion of the first chapter of Romans, and Rev. J. A. Rogers of Fredericton, led in prayer. After a solo by E. H. Brown, Rev. G. M. Campbell, the pastor, received a young man into the membership of the church. Addresses were made by Rev. A. C. Crews of University of New Brunswick, Rev. Mr. Crews, who is general secretary of the Epworth League, gave a strong address on work among young people. He considered this branch of Christian work one of the most important and worthy of the closest attention and most strenuous efforts of the church.

This age had been termed the young people's age. Means were being taken on all sides to enlist the sympathy and support of the young in the cause of religion, and they had responded nobly. But all those who were in the church were not of the church. Leaders in church work were anxious that the numbers of young church members might increase, and that such members become zealous workers in the cause of religion.

A few years ago one great question was, how were we to get at the masses? Now no longer a question engaged the attention of divines and church workers. The momentous now engaging their attention is, how are we to save the children? It may be seriously questioned if we are giving one-tenth of the time that should be given to such work. He considered that teachers and preachers should devote at least one half of their time to the children. Their hearts are often more susceptible of religious impressions than those of adults. At every conference Mr. Crews said it is a custom to dwell some time upon the young man problem. He was sorry to admit that the Epworth League is not engaging the interest and intelligence of the young men in the way that he would like. The only way to grapple with the young man problem was to reach the young boys.

The speaker made a strong plea for the better training of Sunday school teachers. He favored the idea of a normal class in connection with each church. The work should be followed and taken part in by pastors, whose duties were to teach as well as preach. Mr. Crews' account of Epworth League work in the west was most encouraging. In it he pointed out the most aggressive missionary force in the church. Large memberships and hearty and liberal responses to financial calls for missionary work were characteristic of the majority of the western Leagues.

Prof. A. M. Scott, Ph. D., of the University of New Brunswick, was the second speaker. He stated that many seemed to be erroneously under the impression that that institution was not engaged in any of the work of the Methodist church. He stated that he was pleased to have the opportunity of making the statement before those assembled.

He stated that he had noticed that more girls attended Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues than boys. The reason might be due to a want of interest of religion. Some had an idea that the church was not interested in the part of parents. Several had an idea that if they sent their children to Sunday school they had done their duty. Mr. Scott accompanied their children to Sunday school, the boys, as they grew older, would be in apt to continue attending.

CHURCH DEBT GONE IN SMOKE

$3,000 St. Luke's Church Bonds Burned Last Thursday Night.

A special service was held in the vestry of St. Luke's church Thursday in commemoration of the raising of the debt of $3,000 against the church. The bonds were burned before the audience amid great applause. On the platform were the rector, Rev. R. P. McKim, Henry Willard, W. H. Smith, Arthur Farmer, M. D. Brown, Robt. Rubins, Robt. Adams, Wm. Cronk and Thomas Graham.

After the reading of the 150th Psalm, singing of the 46th hymn, and offering of prayer, the rector said that he felt sure in speaking his statements would have an echo in every heart of the congregation. He had thought of this occasion for eight years and rejoiced that through God's providence it had at last come.

There were three reasons for being thankful--1st, because the debt was a thing of the past; 2nd, because it was the consummation of many strenuous efforts to get clear of the debt; 3rd, because it was the clearing away of a big pile of a big black cloud, which he often thought stopped the prayers offered up to God.

Mr. Willard was quite in accord with the thoughts expressed by the rector. He gave a brief history of St. Luke's church, stating that after the former building was burned the present one was erected by means of subscriptions taken up among the members of the congregation, and with assistance rendered by their friends. It was found on the completion of the building that funds were lacking which to purchase an organ. Mr. Kennedy offered to advance the amount necessary for that purpose, and his offer was accepted. Notes were made out by the vestry clerk in favor of Mr. Kennedy for the amount advanced at $8 per cent.

There was there was the amount of $300 due for pew rents, and the debt of $400, leaving a balance of $400 in favor of the church. Mr. Willard said he hoped the corporation would ever continue to have a balance in its favor. He was aware that additional facilities were needed for the Sunday school, but the vestry had decided not to incur any indebtedness for that purpose. Whatever addition might be needed for the Sunday school would have to be paid for out of contributions made for that purpose by the members of the congregation and others.

The burning of the bonds was then proceeded with. The rector asked that the bonds be presented for that purpose. As the Sunday school contributed $500 towards paying off the debt he wished representatives of the church to have a hand in the proceedings. Let Miss Ruby Morrison lead the torch by which the bonds, after being duly examined and identified by the vestry clerk, Francis Kear, were set on fire. It was the first time in the history of the church, said Mr. Kerr, that its corporate seal was burned, and he hoped it would be the last.

While the embers were still warm the audience rose and sang "Praise God from whom the blessings flow." Mr. W. B. Wallace acted as Count and Countess DeBury had granted 40 feet of land at the rear of the church for the purpose of erecting on it a building in connection with the church for the accommodation of the Sunday school. He held in his hand a document vesting the title of the land in St. Luke's church corporation. He hoped that a building for Sunday school purposes would soon be erected. The choir sang the anthem, "Rejoice in the Lord."

Arthur Farmer, secretary of the Sunday school; Mr. Brown, Mr. Kilpatrick and the rector spoke on the additional facilities that will be needed for Sunday school work. It was also suggested that apartments be equipped for the pleasure, exercise and instruction of boys who did not belong to any church such as those belonging to the tanyard gang.

Mr. Scammel presented and described plans for the proposed new building. Miss Rubins and G. R. Craigie sang voloes most acceptably.

As the choir sang the closing hymn envelopes were distributed for subscriptions for the proposed new building. One was returned containing a promise to pay at sight $100.

Dr. Carman paid a high compliment to the New Brunswick conference. He said that everything in this conference was a serene and flourishing condition.

He always stood for the rebuking of iniquity in high places. He thought that the military should always stand for a high standard of public morality. Corruption in governments should be most strenuously fought against. He said that the church must be a different kind of a church, and that the revelation of such corrupt political practices was degrading to the public morals.

A FISHING TRIP NEAR THE SEA.

Among the Trout Streams and Salmon Pools of New Brunswick—Lakes That Abound With the Finny Tribe.

(Cor. of Toronto Star.) Now the Fourday Lodge is opened; the New Brunswick wind is again blowing; the Smokes of Spring go up to clear the brain, and the Sea-Trout's jumping crazy for the fly.

There were five clear days for sport at the end of May and the beginning of the June month. What should be done with them? The old spring-trot would take no denial.

The Maritime express on the Intercolonial took a very tidy company of fishermen—those lucky fellows who had rivers on the Bay of Chaleurs—the Grand Cascapee, Bonaventure, Peches and so on.

Plunging into the forests on the I. C. R., beyond St. Roalee, there was smoke in all directions, and fires were sometimes visible, once in a while so close to the little settlements around the sawmills that it seemed only a miracle could save them.

Salmon rivers are among the most valuable assets of the provinces, and the right to fish sells for fabulous prices in some instances.

Mr. Fowler of Kings Co., N. B., called for an explanation as to why the Free Baptists in New Brunswick had been confused with other bodies.

Mr. Fowler declared the explanation was ridiculous, and asked for the correspondence in connection with the dispute.

Mr. Fowler charged that Rev. Dr. McLeod had distorted the facts in the religious intelligence. He started to read census commissioner's letter's version of the matter, but Mr. Fowler called upon the minister to give both sides of the story.

A FISHING TRIP NEAR THE SEA.

Among the Trout Streams and Salmon Pools of New Brunswick—Lakes That Abound With the Finny Tribe.

(Cor. of Toronto Star.) Now the Fourway Lodge is opened; Now the Humber and the Gaspere; Now the Smokes of Spring go up to clear the brain, And the Sea-Trust's jumping crazy for the Fly.

There were five clear days for sport at the end of May and the beginning of June. The weather was just what was needed for the old spring-fret would take no denial. The trout were fat and the bass were plump. The hatcheries were busy and the anglers were happy.

The Maritime express on the Intercolonial took down a goodly company of fishermen—those lucky fellows who had a chance to get a head and a tail of the Grand Caspasia, Bonaventure, Fabos and so on—over members of the Restigouche Club, filled a couple of boxes with trout, and a few rods and reels—it was a little early but salmon were up, and there was nothing like being on hand in good season.

Plunging into the forests on the I. C. R., beyond St. Francis, there was sometimes visible, once in a while so close to the little settlements around the sawmills that it seemed only a miracle could save them. Below Quebec at Montserrat—a conflagration was in progress, which had already burned two factories and half a dozen houses, and but for the Quebec firemen, who had come to the rescue, the whole village would have been wiped out. Then out of the fire belt and eastward into the darkness of the night.

Gray daylight at Metepedia, where one sleeper was left, and a few miles farther at Tidewater—a birch canoe, with a couple of silver fish on the shore, waiting for me. Here there were sea trout in plenty, with a good chance for a salmon, and on water as free as air.

Salmon rivers are among the most valuable assets of the provinces, and the right to fish in them is a matter of some importance. The Restigouche Club, whose initiation fee is $10,000 controls most of the water on the Restigouche, and the other clubs and tributaries, but quite a few stretches are owned by private parties. The ownership of fishing extends only to tide-water, and the salmon belong to anyone who can catch them, and this is the only chance the editors and other poor people can get, except by special favor.

The sea trout is first caught or stepped to him of the brook, but running larger, up to six pounds or more, a bright silver fish, with a few spots, and for gamesters leaving nothing to be desired. He follows the stream from the sea, and goes himself on the trout, and the trout are in thousands the smelts are in millions, and cover the bottom of the river, a scoop of the landing net furnished with a hook, and a few minnow salmon, a fingerling that might pass for a miniature trout, the trout lose their spots and grow scales like the sea trout, and give as much as a bright or fresh-run fish, which is handed after a struggle of half an hour or so, and weighed about 25 pounds.

There are all sorts of salmon pools—some there is a heavy rain, with a deep pool below, with others a long stretch of comparatively smooth water, from two to six or eight feet deep, in which one can see the stones at the bottom. The canoe is run up to the head of the pool, and a few yards from shore is anchored, tailing out twenty or thirty feet of rope. One casts the net with twenty or thirty feet of line, letting the fly drop lightly, and working it up and down. More line is taken off the reel and you cast again, till you get eight or nine feet, which is as much as an ordinary man can handle. When every inch of water has been covered the anchor is hoisted, the canoe drifts down to the limit of the fast cast, and the process is repeated.

One who has not done much trout-fishing is more than likely to lose his first salmon. He sees the fish come up, take the fly, and can hardly resist the inclination to strike; if he does he jerks the fly out of the fish's mouth or loses it altogether, with perhaps a very small trout. If he has his wits about him the angler lets his fish have the fly; then it turns over, and he strikes with the hook, and off it goes. It will usually run twenty or thirty yards and jump, and then your heart is in your mouth. You can hardly realize that the huge creature which sprang several feet clear of the water and shook the glittering drops from his gills is your fish, but he is. He will try all kinds of tricks on you, however, and if you don't keep a tight line will leave you sorrowing. But when you vanquish him at last, and see him flopping on the gravel, you will feel that you have fought a fight worth talking about, and enjoy the keenest delight known to anglers.

It was not long after landing the first fish that there was another rise—a black one this time, as Ferguson said, but he had to be fought with all the same, and handled carefully at the last, as he lost without losing the fly, all of which was successfully accomplished.

Then there was another, which seemed sure, until just as the fish touched him at the water's edge he made a mighty splash and got away, and still another—a nice mate to the first, which gave a merry laugh down the river and was safely landed just at nightfall.

With two good salmon rolled up in wet sacks which were kept in the twenty-four hours or less without freezing, we drove back to Metepedia in the moonlight. There is a sleeper on the boat, and the eggs, which are taken up by the boatmen, are placed in a pond near the shore, where they are kept till the spawn is ripe, late in the autumn. They are then set out on the gravel, and the female fish added and stirred in to impregnate the ova, which are placed in troughs to hatch, a process which takes a couple of months or more. The process is watched with great care, and the percentage of eggs that become fry is large. There are a good many opinions as to the practicality of artificial hatching, some contending that the bulk of the fry are gobbled up by the trout, some frightened when first placed in the big water, but there is no doubt that the eggs hatch justly the expense.

There died in Montreal the other day "Gus" Roche, for many years sporting editor of the Gazette, and in his time one of the best known sporting writers in Canada. Roche was always to be found at any of the big athletic events. His judgment on sports was unrivalled, even in Montreal, which, outside of lacrosse, affords little field for the writer who gives his time to sports. Roche was a native of Quebec, Roche was well known, and after his death a few of his intimates well remembered the event in which he was killed. Roche was an Englishman, and was in 1888, before the execution of Louis Riel, that Quebec was in a ferment. Bergeron and other conservative were present at the great meeting which was held in the Champ de Mars, at which Sir John Macdonald's government was bitterly denounced for permitting the leader of the insurrection to be executed. Roche was a member of the scaffold of Regina. Riel was held up to public vengeance as a martyr, a victim of English-Canada's blood-thirstiness, and the scaffold was a fortunate reason that Sir John Macdonald was "an Orangeman." They were hot in their denunciations, and Roche, who had for years been conservative, announced in voluble French that they would never vote for Macdonald or for his party. The Champ de Mars meeting was one seething mass of heated French-Canadians, who were wild with rage. They cooled down in the time of a day at Deserides, which is a year afterward again showed; but, at the time, the feeling was intense.

Then it was that John Roche and another newspaper man proceeded to pour oil on the flames of the French-Canadian wrath. They must be premised, had no absolutely no anti-French feeling, and he was a Catholic, and his friend was, and is, a very broad-minded French of Englishman. They were both employed in the same office, and Roche, who had for years been conservative, announced in voluble French that they would never vote for Macdonald or for his party.
