Mr. Steeves explained that if the animal had been killed by him it was through a mistake, and was the result of a stray shot from long range shooting at other game. He and three others, he said, were hunting at the time and were all firing at the same time. It was not known who was to blame and the parties were not aware that the steer had been killed. Mr. Steeves said, until its body was discovered.

The explanation with the paying of the damages was satisfactory to the complainant and his attorney, A. W. Bray, and the case was accordingly dismissed.

Last year the institution was overcrowded, there being as many as 215 students at one time, while there is adequate accommodation for not more than about 240 or 250 students. Indications point to a smaller attendance this year than last.

Dr. Bridges has prepared statistics which show that out of 518 applicants who wrote examinations for normal school entrance 215 failed absolutely.

Quite a flutter was caused this morning by the announcement that Police Sergeant Paul Phillips, who has been a member of the force for twenty-eight years, has tendered his resignation.

A special meeting of the council was held tonight, where the report was referred to the water and sewerage committee to consider. Some of the aldermen are in favor of trying artesian wells for a new water supply, but it is probable the brook sites will eventually be decided upon, as this source is recommended by the engineer.

The abundant hay crop in this locality this year is much above the average both in quantity and quality. In many cases the farmers will either have to stack hay out of doors or else thresh their grain in the fields as the hay and grain crops will greatly overtax the barn room.

The difference in the total number of arrests for this offence during the months of June and July, 1909, and the corresponding months this year is fifty-four.

The case growing out of the recent seizure of liquor at the Hotel Touraine was concluded on Monday at the police court. The complaint was laid against Peter Archer, manager of the hotel. Robert Murray, K.C., represented Mr. Archer.

In making his defence he claimed that the suit should have been brought against the company which owns the hotel. The court took a different view and Mr. Archer was fined $200 with the option of spending one month in jail. The liquor which was seized was ordered destroyed by the court.

Miss Mary J. Lawson and Harry H. Simmonds, two well known young people of this town, were married on Thursday last.

The defence asked that the destroying

"I feel it my duty to give to you and the world an unobscured statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-Tives.' He was repaid generously. He was in favor of the grant.

Coun. Dean was in favor of making the grant now. In Musquash, he said, the people were raising subscriptions and he believed that the case was the same in all the parishes.

Coun. Cochrane urged the necessity of making the grant now. He thought the municipality would like to grant more, but $2,000 would be quite a help to the people of Campbellton.

Coun. Frink—"It simply helps itself down to this, Mr. Warden, that the city will be asked to give $1,750 more and the county $250."

The question was finally put and carried. Coun. Willet moved that the indemnity fund be credited with the allowance due each member for attendance at the council yesterday afternoon. This was seconded by Coun. Barnhill and carried, and the meeting adjourned.

Wednesday, Aug. 10. At a special meeting of the municipal council yesterday afternoon a grant of $2,000 was made towards the relief of the Campbellton fire sufferers. Those present, besides Warden Connelly, were Councillors Dean, Cochrane, Black, Corscadden, Barnhill, Curran, Adams, Holder, Elkin, Frink, Spruy, Willet, Potts, Baxter, McGoldrick and Vanwart. Warden Connelly called the meeting to order and the secretary read the communication asking for a special meeting to consider the question of granting financial assistance to the town of Campbellton.

Coun. McGoldrick said that while waiting for the chairman of the finance committee, he would like some information as to the project of lighting the court house by electricity. He asked the secretary what had been done. The secretary said that Architect Brodie had completed specifications for the work. These would be handed to Coun. McGoldrick and tendered called for.

Coun. McGoldrick suggested that the buildings committee have power to act with the sheriff. He made a motion along these lines adding that the committee should call for tenders where they deem advisable and have the work done by the day where this was not desirable. It was pointed out that the committee had ready had this power. Coun. McGoldrick withdrew his motion and the matter was allowed to drop there.

Coun. Potts then moved that $2,000 be granted to Campbellton if the chairman of the finance committee can provide the funds. This was seconded by Coun. Curran.

Coun. McGoldrick spoke of his recent visit to Campbellton and the needs of the people. Coun. Curran thought it would be well to take the whole $2,000 out of the funds of the municipality.

Coun. Baxter said the money could be taken out of the contingent account. He thought the feeling in the community was to give the money now when it was needed. It would be a very pleasant thing if, as Coun. Curran proposed, the parishes would bear the whole burden.

Coun. Curran said that the chairman of the finance committee had misunderstood him. He had not suggested that the whole burden be borne by the parishes. What he had meant was that the whole municipality ought to be assessed equally for the $2,000 if it could be done.

Coun. McGoldrick thought the county members ought to be responsible. The city pays eighty-eight per cent. of the money. Coun. Black said there had been collectors out in the parish of St. Martins. The

NEW BRUNSWICK AGRICULTURE

The Telegraph has received the following letter, dealing with important matters in connection with New Brunswick agriculture; and, both because of the writer's connection with the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association, and the practical and progressive nature of his communication, it would be well if it were given close attention by the provincial government and by all in this province who believe in its agricultural possibilities and who are anxious that modern methods shall be adopted by the Department of Agriculture.

"To the Editor of The Telegraph: "Sir,—Since New Brunswick is an agricultural province, and the farming population pay most of the revenue, would it not be both wise and beneficial to discuss in your columns questions which are of prime importance to the farmer and the country? During the coming year the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association have several important matters to deal with, and as president of this association, some of these I would like to briefly refer to.

"We note that for years our government has given money in various ways for the improvement of farm stock and illustrating better methods of land culture. All of this has had beneficial results, and helped materially, but as yet nothing has been done for the improvement of the land itself.

"As a matter of fact, most of the province, particularly the hilly portion, is of a spring nature. The land is for the most part wet and cold. In a dry season this is not as noticeable as in one like the present. At the same time our wet land in the most favorable season will not produce like the dry places, and in a season like the present nothing will grow there.

"I estimate that fully two-thirds of the land under cultivation, at least the hilly portion, is of this nature. Of course grass will grow fairly well on this land, but even that is of poor quality.

"The remedy is tile draining. "In the Old Country, and the older sections of Canada, we find that the basis of good farming is under draining, principally tile.

"Years ago, Ontario, realizing the importance of drainage, decided to loan money to the farmers for this purpose, at four per cent, taking as security first claim on the land. They still do this. A special course has been added to the Agricultural College at Guelph, and students are sent out at the request of farmers—who pay their traveling expenses—to properly lay out the drains. Also, companies are being formed to undertake the digging of ditches by machinery.

"In Nova Scotia we find that the government has purchased a traction ditching machine, and is operating it at cost price plus interest on the investment. Professor Cummings, of Truro, under whose charge the machine is, speaks most enthusiastically of the splendid work it does.

"Now, what does New Brunswick intend doing? Think of two-thirds of our land producing a minimum crop every year! Realize, that if this same land was properly tiled, it would be more productive than the best of that naturally drained! As to cost of draining: If the ditching is done by traction machine and medium sized tile used, the cost should not exceed forty cents per rod. Very wet land would require one-hundred rods of draining, but on the average farm, one field with another, much less would be required.

"Realizing all these benefits, a number of farmers in the vicinity of Fredericton have guaranteed a quantity of ditching to be done in a period of three years, and petitioned the provincial government to buy and operate a traction ditcher along the same lines as that in Nova Scotia.

draining, or who do not realize its value, would do well to investigate its advantages.

"In another letter I would like to take up the question of stock improvement. "Yours very truly, (Signed) "S. B. HATHEWAY."

Fredericton (N. B.), Aug. 1. "P. S.—The Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Landry, has refused to consider our petition; at the same time we are continuing to get signers."

Dr. Landry doubtless has his own reasons for having declined to comply with the request which Mr. Hatheway sets forth; but, of course, Mr. Hatheway and those associated with him will be eager to know what work Dr. Landry's department is carrying on that is as useful to the province at large as this, mentioned by Mr. Hatheway, would be.

The letter printed today will remind many of the statement, so frequently made and so frequently disregarded, that we never shall make a success of the agricultural and public works departments in this province until we have taken them out of politics. True, the elected representatives of the people, on whatever side of politics they may be found, must continue to direct the several departments of the government; but it should be realized that the executive work should be done by experts in agriculture and road making and bridge building, rather than by politicians who think of political capital first and of the benefit of the province afterwards.

Laurier and John Bright Speaking at Birmingham on January 29, 1884, on the progress of the nation, John Bright, after referring to the Reform Bill and the emancipation of the slaves in the colonies of England, went on to speak of the repeal of the corn laws. He said in part on that occasion:

"The Whigs had settled comfortably into their places. They, I believe, have a motto, which they have not publicly announced. It is this: 'A place for every man, and every man in his place.' That means, of course, every man of their own respectable party. Well, at this time they became very much indisposed to go further, and the satisfaction of the country with them was considerably diminished. Their majorities in Parliament were reduced, and, finally, they came to a general election in the year 1841, but nine years after the passage of that great measure of reform. They were thrown out of office by the constituencies, and Parliament reopened with a majority against them of a little under a hundred votes.

"At this time there came another great change in the State—the adoption of the principle of Free Trade. This question was brought before the public very much in consequence of the sufferings which arose from the bad harvests that we had immediately before that general election. It took from the year 1838 to the year 1846 to bring about the great change of the abolition of the Corn Law. Parliament was elected in 1841 with a majority of ninety pledged to oppose the abolition of the law. Sir Robert Peel was the great leader of that great party, and as these men found themselves in Parliament with this enormous majority, they looked down with contempt upon all who were moving in that objection, and considered that they were absolutely sure to maintain the law and to maintain their places. The result shows how much is to be done by continuous and disinterested labor on behalf of a great cause, and by appealing to the sympathies of the whole nation. In 1846, partly at that moment owing, no doubt, to the failure of the harvest and the difficulties which threatened from an impending famine in Ireland, this vast majority melted away. Men who had pledged themselves in every form of language to their constituents in 1841, who had attended meetings opposed to Free Trade, subscribed to newspapers which opposed it, found their whole power melting away, and their leader himself converted to the necessity of a change; and the change took place—a change so great that there were members of both Houses of Parliament, and I believe a majority of the House of Lords, who believed that to them at least the world was brought nearly to an end.

"I recollect that a lady—a relative of mine—sat below the bar of the House of Lords on the night when the Corn Law Repeal Bill was read a second time. It was very late—or, rather, early in the morning—when the division was approaching, and a lady sitting near her, who was a connection of some peer, spoke with him as he came from the House, and she said, 'How will it go?' It was just before the division, and, pointing up to the clock, as it were in an agony of excitement, he said, 'In twenty minutes—or in some number of minutes which it would take to go to a division—we shall be no better than dead men.'

"Well, now, the Corn Law was abolished, and if they had not told the farmers—that those poor terrified farmers, and landlords still more terrified—I am not sure that any of them would ever have found his way out. The country would have found that it was much better off, and the people would have discovered that by some power, the force of which they could not perhaps understand, loaves of bread and provisions to the amount of more than twenty millions sterling per annum had been deposited in their homes for the sustenance and enjoyment of their families, and they would scarcely have known how it was brought about. But we know that it was brought about by the repealing of a single Act of Parliament. It was not by a number of benevolent ladies and gentlemen forming societies all over the country and giving people alms, but it was by repealing the Corn Law—by a simple act of justice, an act that was so just that I have never heard a man, or have scarcely heard a man deny its justice, except on some thing which they call political considerations, which means that there were political reasons why that great act of justice should not be done.

"I recollect that a pious banker whom I happened to be traveling with in the North of England admitted that it was very unjust that there should be a law to make food scarce and dear, but said: 'I accept it because I believe it necessary to maintain the hereditary aristocracy of this country.' And further, he said that he thought that our greatness in the eye of the world depended very much upon the maintenance of the wealth and power and the display of the aristocracy of England. That is exactly the sort of reason which people give. Weak-minded men are taken by reasons of this kind, and they give you reasons now that are not a bit better for opposition to make changes which wiser men wish to promote, and which doubtless by and by will be effected. And then results will show that the reasons of those who have opposed them were just as silly and just as little worthy as those of my fellow-traveler, the pious banker."

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier in a western speech the other day referred to Bright and Cobden he gave offence to those persons in England who are today strenuously advocating a revival of protection, and to those persons in Canada who are not content with the protective tariff we have but who want it increased—for the benefit of those whom high protection benefits at the expense of the great mass of the people. In the United States and in Canada today the tendency is toward lower tariffs, not higher. The people are finding out. They are beginning to recognize class legislation when they see it.

When the Common Council met on Monday it was soon made evident that a few of its members were honestly in favor of a rigid investigation, not only of the circumstances attending the letting of the Main street contract, but also regarding several of the civic departments, notably the board of works. It soon became clear, however, that the reactionaries in the Council are still in the saddle. There were several motions suggesting the need for a real investigation such as might tend to bring out the facts which the public man, and every man in his place. That means, of course, every man of their own respectable party. Well, at this time they became very much indisposed to go further, and the satisfaction of the country with them was considerably diminished.

perhaps understand best why one now finds the following letter in the Vancouver World:

Laurier's Loyalty. Editor World—I wish to congratulate Mr. L. E. Carp and the Hon. D. W. Higgins on their timely and effective replies to the abusive and distorted references to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude in assisting the Mother Country during the Boer war, recently made in the editorial column of the News-Advertiser. The newly-imported paper has not yet seen fit to withdraw the statements which he must have known at the time of writing were untrue. It is amusing to find an editor from the green fields of Eastern Canada telling the people of the Province that the word of Mr. Bernard M. P. for Victoria, must be taken in preference to the statements of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Fortunately we have not yet forgotten that the M. P. for Victoria gave his seat to the use of a bogus telegram, and other like methods.

Readers of the News-Advertiser must regret that the Hon. Mr. Carter-Cotton no longer controls its editorial columns. During Mr. Cotton's management of that paper all parties and classes were given fair and courteous treatment; it is already apparent that fair or even truthful treatment cannot be expected from his successor.

BRITISH COLUMBIAN. Evidently it is not any easier to deceive the well-informed people of British Columbia than it was to delude the well-informed people of New Brunswick. It is true, also, perhaps, that the more extreme partisans in Vancouver are willing to accept much the same sort of stuff that was formerly fed to the Conservative partisans in this city through the columns of the Standard.

CONTINUED INACTION For the last two or three years there has been considerable agitation in this province, and particularly in this city, with respect to organizing a systematic campaign for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. There have been investigations, and meetings, and reports by experienced medical men, prepared after considerable hard work had been done in order to place the salient facts before the public and the local government of the day. It was supposed many months ago that New Brunswick would have a sanitarium for the treatment of a certain number of cases, and that the government ere this would have co-operated with every municipality in New Brunswick in order to carry on an aggressive campaign of education and supervision that would soon result in checking materially the ravages of consumption.

But what has the Hazen government actually done? This is a question which every elector in the province should ask himself. There is no sanitarium, and there cannot be any for a long period to come. As in the matter of agriculture, of roads, of forests, of water powers, and many other public questions, the Hazen policy has been one of pretension and inaction. On several occasions members of the government have been seen taking off their coats and rolling up their sleeves, as if at last they were about to set to work to carry out a score or so of the promises with which they deluded the people of New Brunswick just before the last provincial elections. But while this taking off of coats and rolling up of sleeves was sufficient to deceive some at least for a year or so, people soon began to notice that these preliminary flourishes were not followed by any useful action or by any real evidence that the government either intended, or knew how, to make good the promises which it sowed with such good effect at the beginning of its career. The Evening Times mentions the case of a young man, apparently hopelessly ill of tuberculosis, whose friends contrived to send him to Muskoka for treatment, and who made a remarkable recovery. The case is one that is bound to direct attention once more, and in a very pointed fashion, to all that which Mr. Hazen has not done in regard to tuberculosis in this province. And, damaging as such evidence must be to the reputation of Premier Hazen and his unruly colleagues, the case is all the worse because it is not in this matter of tuberculosis alone that the government has failed; in regard to many other leading public questions as well the failure has been equally signal. Truly, the people have found Mr. Hazen out.

SOME ADVICE Advice is cheap. It is easy to give, and hard to take. The recipient is seldom grateful, whatever the value of the advice may be. There are exceptions, but not many. Good advice, however, is not so plentiful that it may be disregarded carelessly. Some of the best that is on the wing at present is contained in the following editorial appearing in the Canadian edition of Collier's Weekly, and which is unmistakably the handiwork of Mr. Franklin Gadsby, the quick-firing editor of that publication. Quoth he:

This is the season of tourist travel when the whole accessible world is being scanned and annihilated from steamboats, yachts, automobiles, and summer hotels. A word of advice just here. Let there be as much sight-seeing as sight-seeing. When you are so jaded with scenery that you can swallow a mountain with your breakfast egg and never lock up at it—the mountain, we mean, not the egg—why just stop over a train and climb a mountain and you'll take more interest in it than thereafter. Don't linger in the dining-car too long nor seek it too often. Twice a day is about enough for long journeys where you get no exercise. Some people explain that they eat on the train to put in an hour, but they put in a meal at the same time, and that meal may be one too many. People who gorge don't get much out of their holiday except a varied assortment of toothpicks. When you stop at a hotel in the mountains don't sit about on the veranda and swap troubles with your neighbor or wish you were back home. Get out and stretch your legs. Fill your lungs. If there is driving, drive. If there is bathing, bathe. If there is climbing, climb; even if it's only half-way up the hill. If there is riding, ride. It's better to be saddle sore than bored to death. You are taking a rest and the best rest will be found in new forms of motion.

Some people will wonder, or should, how the editor of Collier's knows enough to put this good advice together in such a convincing way. The explanation is, doubtless, very simple. He has rushed about the continent, climbing mountains, wrestling with the bills of fare on the trains and in the hotels, and taking overdoes of scenery, yachting and summer resorts, and has learned by bitter experience that pleasure, and peace of mind, and general serenity, are not to be bought over the counter or run down by hard riding, but are rather, for the most part, to be found at one's hand if the seeker after these things will consult any reliable authorities—for example the man who puts up the editorial guide posts for Collier's.

Somewhat more than one-half of the people of this world fret continually because they are persuaded that they need something, or because they do not know what it is that is worrying them. Health and equipage—these your tourist, your wanderer, your fretful and uneasy person, seeking he knows not what, may usually find at his own door more easily than by pursuing them half way round the world.

We are strong on education in this country. We esteem ourselves a modern and a progressive people. We have much to say about primary and secondary education, about technical education; we even speak sometimes about hygiene, and sometimes, when we are in a more reckless mood than usual, we may even discuss the condition of society, and—very guardedly, of course—the distribution of the products of the earth, as that distribution is worked out under the social system we support. Some day there will be established a school of living. They may call it a school of philosophy, or something else, but it will be intended to teach children as they grow up what is worth seeking in life, and how best to seek it. When that school is first founded it will be scoffed at by busy men as the scheme of dreamers, because it will not be proposed, first of all, to teach the young how to amass money. There will be some attempt, one may guess, to tell school children more about human life and their place in it, more about true values, and less about a thousand and one things upon which we place great stress today. For, after all, there is no great use in bringing up a child so that he will pursue some one of our modern will-o'-the-wisps all his life, to find himself some dreary day a useless member of that walk of life into which he was born, standing at the end of the journey, still ignorant and unsatisfied. Some of the ancients did these things better. The editor of the Canadian edition of Collier's sometimes gives evidence of fitness to undertake the founding of some such school as has been glanced at here, and, as he is in the way in which he is now engaged, it must be hoped that in the golden years to come he will move on to that greater theatre of action indicated. True happiness, Dr. George R. Parkin reminded a St. John audience not many moons ago, consists in the conscious pursuit of some great object. Think of the unselfish and productive happiness of the editor of Collier's if he were to remove from his present sanctum to the fields and the groves and set up a school of living!

PEACE There are several peace celebrations under discussion, one being the observance of the hundredth year of peace between Britain and the United States, in 1814. Another proposal is that there shall be a similar celebration commemorating a thousand years of peace between the British and the Teutonic peoples. It is recalled that since the beginning of the middle ages Britons and Germans have never met in a national battle. If good sense reigns in both countries no cause for war between them will be found for generations to come, for, though they are both strong, aggressive, and dominating races, they represent in the main the same ideals of civilization and the world should be large enough for them both. If they must have some blood-letting occasionally, there are enough "lesser tribes without the law," as the poet has it, who sometimes call for correction at the hand of the strong and the law-abiding.

It is the fashion often to quote "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," but that has been quoted so often that the tremendous meaning clothed by these words has to some extent been lost upon the great mass of men who sometimes talk of peace and of war, of the manifold blessings of the former and of the untold and indescribable horrors of the latter.

At the next great peace conference, and to the next great national conference at which war, or the matter of going to war, is the subject under discussion, there should be a demand for more expert testimony. And expert testimony regarding war is not to be had from statesmen or politicians, or the home-keeping officials of a nation in whose hands often lies the great decision. Expert testimony should come from those who have seen and experienced the horrors of war for themselves, who have seen the field after the battle, who have lived and worked in the field hospitals, and in the greater hospitals far removed from the field, where trainloads of sick and injured have been carried. That would be part of the evidence necessary, but only a part. Expert testimony should include the stories of bereaved relatives, of the widow and of the orphan, of men and women living far beyond the powder smoke who have been ruined because a war swept away their savings and their property. Other experts should tell of the burden of debt carried by generations on account of wars; the very causes of which are forgotten; and experts should tell, also, how much real good might be accomplished should all the millions paid out now on account of old and well-nigh forgotten wars be turned into ameliorating channels year after year.

They do well who keep before the public the wisdom of celebrating these anniversaries of peace—with honor. It is the easiest thing in the world to drag a country into war, and too often the country needs no dragging but is off at a gallop at the first call of the drum. But once in, it is the hardest thing in the world to get a country out of war until it has been blebbed white in men and in money. Blessed are the peacemakers.

NOTE AND COMMENT The Chatham World strongly endorses a suggestion, recently made in this paper, that Campbellton should try church union, by uniting for the erection and support of a single religious temple until such time as the community has recovered from the effects of the fire.

The Hon. George E. Foster addressed the Canadian Club last evening. The subject of his address was "Public Service." Mr. Foster's testimony drew tears from the most hardened sinners present. This sort of thing does us a power of good.

The London Daily Express has been asking the newspapers of Canada what they think of a proposal it is putting forward, that on the day of his coronation next year, King George shall proclaim himself Emperor of the British. This is an idea representative of a sort of uneasy imperialism of which there is much in the United Kingdom and some in this country. King George is already Emperor of the British and any variation of his titles would be neither useful nor wise.

La Presse of Montreal, speaking of the growth of the West, estimates that after the next census there will be forty members of Parliament representing constituencies west of Ontario, and says that eventually the representation of the West will exceed that of Quebec. No doubt it will. Yet the Dominion will remain a united and fairly well balanced country. We have begun to get our second growth here in the East, and, if one might paraphrase a famous remark of the late Mr. Tarte, "Wait till you see us ten years from now."

"The life of a king," said one of the Georges after a bullet had embedded itself in the framework of the royal box at Drury Lane, "belongs to any man who will play his own." There is, in a word, no complete safeguard against the insane assassin whose purpose is hidden until a blow or a pistol shot proclaims it. No sane man had any reason to shoot Mayor Gaynor. His rule in New York has been much more enlightened and creditable than many people hoped for when Tammany placed him in power. The would-be assassin is undoubtedly mad, but unfortunately a crazy man is likely to hold a pistol as true as a sane one. The tragic incident is bound to recall the melancholy list of Americans murdered by lunatics, a list headed by such names as Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. The English King's epigram perpetuates is highly disquieting truth.

Lord Strathcona, who celebrated his ninetieth birthday in London last week, is one of the famous young-old men of the Anglo-Saxon world. His mind is as clear as ever, and while physically he feels some of his years, he is truly wonderful when one considers how far he has outrun the Psalmist's three-score and ten.

Ottawa announces that the revenue for the first four months of this fiscal year shows an increase of five and a half million of dollars as compared with the same period last year. At this rate the surplus at the end of the fiscal year will be a very large one, much greater even than that of last year—twenty million dollars.

The large number of people who visited the exhibition buildings yesterday came away fully satisfied that the Dominion exhibition next month will be a great success. The alterations and additions have made a vast difference in the appearance of the buildings and grounds, and the many improvements will benefit exhibitors and visitors alike.

There is still some doubt about the crop in the West, though it will probably turn out better than is now generally expected. But the crops in the East are generally reported to be very good indeed, and, while we are accustomed to talk a great deal about the western harvest, the harvest in the East, containing all crops, is quite as important. And here in the East there never is a real crop failure. It is said now that the harvest excursions from the Maritime Provinces to the West will be abandoned. It is time.

Conservative newspapers continue to publish dark hints about the report of Sir John French on the state of the Canadian militia. Whatever the Inspector General has said about militia conditions in Canada will be published in his own words, or an authorized summary of it will be published, in the near future. It may be just as well, then, to wait and see what he really has said before forming too many conclusions. It is universally known that the militia of this country is in very much better condition today than it was ten years ago, and there is a steady improvement. Nobody expects that perfection has been reached; they are still far short of perfection in such matters in every other country under the sun. It is extremely unlikely that General French's report is at all sensational or damaging.

Mr. Carleton was an admirable inspector when the city engineer appointed him some weeks ago. Since his resignation, which resignation evidently was offered in the interest of the taxpayers of this city, Mr. Carleton's reputation among certain of the aldermen has not been so high. Yet it must be very clear to everyone that it is not the province of the aldermen to assail Mr. Carleton, or to deprive his contentions, so much as it is their province to investigate to the bottom all of the circumstances and conditions involved in the Main street contract and the administration of the spending departments of the city. When the electors send a man to the city council to represent them they expect him to look after matters of this sort, and if he does not do so, and demands that they shall themselves go and seek the evidence necessary in cases like the present one, they are forced to conclude that he is not doing his duty. If a whole lot of the taxpayers of the city should get such a commonplace and sordid idea into their heads, what a lot of fun we should have in this town before the next great jubilee in April next, when we shall be called upon once more to choose, install, and consecrate our City Fathers.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher Old Ajax was weary upholding the globe, his shoulders were creaking, his backbone was sore; all wringing with sweat was his calico robe, and oft, as he shifted his posture, he swore. Old Vulcan came up with his optimistic smile: "Cheer up, Colonel Ajax." He merrily said: "I'll bring you a substitute after a while, and you may retire to a long rest in bed. We've found such a man, and he laughs at your stunt, and says he could hold seven worlds at a time; he puts up a dauntless and jubilant front, and his bearing is bold and his nerve is sublime. He calls you a weakling and meddlesome Mat, he says you're a skate, that you've frosted feet; he also insists that you talk through your hat when saying your record's a hard one to beat." # WILLIAM DOLLAR FIRE IN BOSTON

Many Firemen Were Injured

Whole Department Out and Have Strenuous Battle

Help from Outside Towns Called in and Work is Found for Them Shortly After in Fighting $50,000 Blaze in Another Section.

Boston, Aug. 9.—Causing damage estimated at about $1,000,000 in the lumber and wood-working section in the north end, and necessitating the calling of the first general alarm in years, the fire broke out directly to the headquarters of the Boston fire department tonight. But although Chief Mullin was absent on vacation the Boston department and outside apparatus and firemen successfully confined the flames to the section bounded by Fort Point channel on the east, Dover street on the north, Harrison avenue on the west and a point between Thayer and Randolph streets on the south.

The lumber yards of Blacker & Shepard, at the corner of Dover and Albany streets, where the flames started from a cause unknown, together with their docks 60 feet long, piled high with 8,000,000 feet of lumber; the Boston fire department repair station, with several pieces of apparatus; four brick buildings of four and five stories, occupied by wood-workers and several wooden tenement houses were the principal buildings destroyed. There were no lives lost.

Nearly a score of firemen were injured, a dozen seriously, by falling walls, collapsing ladders, falling glass, etc. More than four hours after the fire started, half a dozen fire fighters were buried beneath the debris which came crashing down from a wall of the John Paull wood-working mill on Albany street. Several sustained broken legs, but all will recover.

Big District Swept.

The flames, which started in Blacker & Shepard's yards, shortly after 6 o'clock, spread great headway and swept down Albany street, igniting the piles of excessive lumber in the firm's yards, and docks on one side, and the first fire engine, and the fire department plant on the other. The fire centred along Albany street, burning to the edge of Fort Point channel on one side and extending almost to Harrison avenue on the other.

Mayor John P. Fitzgerald, who was at the scene, ordered flood gates to be opened to supply more water, called for help from all departments, within fifteen minutes had several hundred additional policemen sent to the fire zone and gave words of encouragement to the fire-fighters.

Second Fire in Another Section.

Eight out of town fire companies successfully fought a four alarm fire in the heart of the city's business district, while the Boston department was engaged so busily with the greater conflagration that it had several hundred additional policemen sent to the fire zone and gave words of encouragement to the fire-fighters.

LAURIER NEVER FEELING BETTER

Sir Wilfrid Tells Red Deer Audience of His Perfect Health

Declares It Makes Vigorous Men, No. 1 Hard Wheat and Beautiful Women - Approves of Kipling's Appellation, "Our Lady of the Snows."

Red Deer, Alta., Aug. 10.—Red Deer gave Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party an enthusiastic welcome today. A procession, headed by bands, wended its way under a canopy of arches to the city park, where the civic addresses were presented. Alluding to his congratulations upon his health, Sir Wilfrid said:

"I thank God that I am in perfect health. I do not know that I ever felt better in my life. The only thing of which I can complain is that I am growing older. But that is a very prevalent complaint. But if I am growing older in time I am growing younger in spirit these days. I fancy I am imbuing something of that spirit of perennial youth, buoyancy, courage and hope which belongs peculiarly to this country. The west is doing me good in many ways."

The premier rested tonight and will address a meeting here tomorrow. Sir Wilfrid assisted by the minister of railways, drove the first spike in the construction of the Canadian railway. The company is operating under its own charter and plans to connect with the Pacific.

A reference in the civic address to the climatic conditions in the winter elicited from the premier the following replies: "For my part," said he, "I have no fault to find with the Canadian climate. Some few years ago, Rudyard Kipling, imperial poet, referring to Canada as Our Lady of the Snows, caused some critics to find fault with the title. I approve the appellation. The climate of Canada is the glory of Canada. It is the climate of Canada which makes No. 1 hard wheat. It is the climate of Canada which puts bloom upon the cheeks of the better half of the audience before me. When I rise on a winter morning and see smoke rising in the atmosphere 100 feet above the chimneys, perpendicularly in the cold, clear air, I know what it is that makes our men strong and our women beautiful."

"This country has not been made by God for the effete, timorous or lagard, but the strong and willing will find their reward as in no other part of the world."

Speaking from his car at Ponoka, Sir Wilfrid Laurier welcomed his welcome to the newcomers, of whom there are many in that district, and urged them to contribute by energy and effort to the future of their Canadian home-land.

At Lacombe, where a stop was made to enable the party to visit Alberta's experimental farm, the premier addressed himself especially to the women. He also found no agitation for woman suffrage, but he had been proud to notice the important part the women of the west were performing in making a country of happy and contented homesteads. He appealed to them to keep the standard of Canadian life high and to inspire their husbands and brothers to take an active and intelligent interest in civic and national affairs.

NEW YORK MAYOR SHOT BY EX-CIVIC EMPLOYEE

Bullet Entered His Head

Two Shots Fired at Gaynor on Board Liner

Was About to Start on Holiday Abroad When He Was Assailed in Presence of Crowd Around Him— Would-be Assassin Overpowered After Desperate Struggle.

New York, Aug. 9.—Wm. J. Gaynor, mayor of New York city, was shot in the head and seriously wounded today as he stood on the promenade deck of the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, by James J. Gallagher, a discharged and disgruntled city employe. Gallagher was almost instantly overpowered and arrested.

The shot was fired at 9:45 o'clock this morning, fifteen minutes before the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse was due to leave her berth at Hoboken (N. J.), and the mayor was receiving good-bye from a group of friends preparatory to a vacation trip to Europe.

The bullet struck him behind the right ear and ranged downward, inflicting a dangerous though not necessarily fatal wound. Unless blood poisoning develops surgeons are confident of a complete recovery, although at his age—59 years—such a wound is essentially grave.

Tonight the mayor is at St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, surrounded by specialists, with members of his family gathered near awaiting the outcome with anxiety. All early reports from the hospital were hopeful in tone and this evening six X-ray negatives of the wound were taken to facilitate an operation for the removal of the bullet. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, is locked in a cell at Jersey City, held without bail. He expressed no remorse.

The big liner was gay with flags and singing with shouts of approval when tragedy occurred. Most of those who had been aboard the ship to say farewell to friends or relatives, had gone ashore, but a little group remained to talk with the mayor. They were standing on the port side of the vessel near the promenade deck forward, and were in the act of posing for a group photograph, when Gallagher, unnoticed, pushed his way along the mayor's side and fired point blank at his head.

He used a 38 calibre revolver and an examination later disclosed that the first cartridge had missed fire. This probably saved the mayor's life, for Gallagher, when he first pulled the trigger, was than two feet away. Backing away slightly in his excitement, he pulled the trigger a second time and sent a bullet crashing into the mayor's neck below the ear.

Made Desperate Resistance.

Wm. H. Edwards, commissioner of street cleaning, and the former Prisoner No. 1 ball star lunged forward with his 390 pounds just as Robert Anderson, the mayor's secretary, struck Gallagher's arm. As he did a second shot pierced Edwards' sleeve, inflicting a slight flesh wound on the commissioner's right arm, which remained undiscovered for hours, because of the excitement.

Unmindful of his wound, Edwards hit the man a crushing blow in the face and they fell to the deck together. Gallagher, struggling with the strength of desperation and pulling viciously at the trigger in an attempt to fire another shot. But Edwards was too much for him. He rained blows after blows until the mayor lay motionless, while Anderson and Archibald R. Watson, corporation counsel for the city, flung themselves on the struggling mayor in an attempt to grasp the weapon.

When Mr. Watson, who had obtained possession of it, Edwards and Gallagher engaged a bitter struggle about the deck, Edwards now crying and shouting in his anger and excitement and Gallagher panting as exhaustion began to grip him. When completely subdued in the former football star's vice-like grip, a pair of steel nippers were slipped on his wrists by a special officer aboard the ship and he was pushed through the hatch into the waiting crowd of the vessel into an automobile and arraigned before Recorder McGovern of Hoboken.

During the struggle with the man, who was attempting to design to grip him, Gaynor though badly wounded and bleeding from the mouth and nose, did not lose consciousness. The impact of the bullet did not even throw him from his feet, but he raised his hands to his ears and with his face contorted with pain, he staggered in a daze and leaned limply across the ship's rail until Adams came to his assistance. Then some one drew a steamer chair to his side and he was evidently sunk with relief. A few minutes later he was removed to a state room where the ship's surgeons temporarily bandaged the wound, preparatory to his removal to St. Mary's hospital. He was taken there in a special automobile.

Rutus Gaynor, a son, was the only member of the mayor's family present when he was shot. His wife and other children were at the Gaynor country place at St. James (L. I.).

When Mrs. Gaynor was notified by telephone of the tragedy, she made a spectacular run by automobile, accompanied by her son, Norman, crossed the Queensborough bridge to Manhattan, sped across the island to the Hudson River and was taken to Hoboken in a police patrol boat. She was almost overcome when she reached St. Mary's hospital, but she was permitted to see her husband for but a moment. She was joined there shortly by Mrs. Ethel Vineout, a daughter recently married, and they began their vigil near the bedside.

Gaynor Displays Nerve.

Rarely has wounded man evinced more fortitude and cheerfulness than did Wilfrid J. Gaynor today. He evidently thought as he was being carried down the companionway from the ship on a stretcher that his wound was fatal, for he smiled faintly and said to those near him: "Tell the people good-bye. My only wish is to see my wife and my children."

To his wife and his son Rutus he said at the hospital later: "It is very strange, very strange. I wonder why he did it. He expressed ill-feeling toward the man who would have killed him. And that he looked calmly on the over-pressed prospect of assassination as indicated in the tone of a recent letter to a citizen who had warned him of the danger of going in the subway without an escort. To this solicitous friend, Charles Weinblatt, a lawyer, he wrote on March 22 last: "Don't kill him, Bill," was the cry I heard."

"Through the seconds of that scene that seemed to pass like hours I could hear that voice calling. They tell me that Edwards' big hand had closed about Gallagher's neck in the grip of a vice. He would have choked him to death right there if others present had not restrained him. Some one called out: "Let's lynch him!"

"By that time they had dragged Edwards off, and he had regained some of his calm. "Get me a pair of handcuffs," he ordered. There were no cuffs at hand, but Henry Goering, one of the local detectives, passed Edwards his chains. They were nipped around Gallagher's wrists and he was led away."

Gallagher is a short, thick-set man, weighing close on to 200 pounds. He smoked a cigar cheerfully after his arrest, and at no time expressed sorrow because of his deed. On the other hand, he repeated stolidly that the mayor had robbed him of a livelihood and that he had meant to kill him. He is fifty-six years old. It was a dayman, he said in a signed statement issued in Hoboken after his arrest, who introduced the mayor to him before he fired the shot.

"The man appeared perfectly rational and sane to me," said Commissioner Edwards tonight.

Mr. Thompson severely criticizes the conduct of affairs at St. Mary's Hospital. "When we arrived," he said, "we had to ring the bell for four or five minutes before any one responded. Then a nurse came to the door and said that there was no doctor in at the time. A little later an intern came out, smoking a pipe and seemingly not much concerned, and when I asked the mayor of New York how he shot and is here," he said, "I will see what I can do, I will try and get some one immediately." Apparently there was not a doctor in the hospital and Rufus was I had to help to understand the mayor. While we were doing that Dr. Wm. J. Arltz, a city visiting physician, arrived. He wanted to probe for the bullet, but Rufus and I objected to his doing that. The New York physicians arrived on the scene. While we were waiting for them Mayor Gaynor turned to me, smiled and said: "Don't let them discourage me, Thompson. The mayor was put in a private room and cared for by the surgeons of the hospital, who arrived about one-half hour to three-quarters of an hour after our arrival."

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN BOSTON HOUSE

Thomas J. Maher Shot to Death as He Stood at Piano

Hudson A. Sherman, a Retired Sea Captain, Believed to Have Become Suddenly Insane, Kills Himself After the Assault.

Boston, Aug. 10.—In a sudden fit of insanity, Hudson A. Sherman, 73 years old, a retired sea captain, living with a granddaughter at 156 South Fairview street, West Roxbury, shot and fatally wounded Thomas J. Maher, 23 years old, of 122 South Fairview street, as he was standing at a piano singing; slightly wounded his grandson-in-law, George F. James, and the killing himself. The shooting took place at 156 South Fairview street last evening.

Maher, who was shot in the back and right side, was rushed to the City Hospital in an ambulance from station 13, but died before arriving at that institution. The tragedy occurred without a word of warning. Maher had gone to the James home to spend the evening with Mr. James and his wife, Grace L. James, who was at the piano singing.

Suddenly there was a noise in the doorway, and Sherman appeared with a leveled revolver in his hand. Without a word he commenced firing. He directed his aim at Maher, who was nearest to him, and fired two shots, both taking effect. As the young man staggered, he fired again upon time at James, his aim, however, was wild and only one bullet struck James, causing a slight wound in the right elbow. Mrs. James escaped unhurt.

After the shooting the aged man turned and walked upstairs to his room on the floor above where he placed the revolver at his mouth and fired one shot which caused his instant death. Maher, despite his wounds, managed to stagger to the office of Dr. Stevens at 942 South street, where after telling of the shooting he collapsed. After he had been given first aid he was removed to the hospital.

The police of station 13 were notified of the shooting and upon arriving at the James house found the old man lying on the floor of his room dead. The bullet entered the mouth and had penetrated his brain, coming out at the back of his head.

No other explanation than that Sherman had become crazed could be given by the police as the cause of the shooting. The man had been living for some time with his granddaughter. He had appeared perfectly contented and there had been no unpleasantness. He had, moreover, showed no sign of insanity, and had had no recent illness.

P. E. ISLAND BY-ELECTION LEAVES NO CHANGE IN PARTIES

Candidate Re-elected Conservative

Candidate by 30 Majority—Legislature Stands as Before.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Aug. 10.—The by-election took place in the Canadian district today, and the Conservatives retained the seat. The district is ordinarily a close one, and this fact together with the narrow margin between the two parties in the legislature last strong interest to the contest. The opening of the polls found both parties hopeful.

Both candidates were new men, and the final result left J. A. Brewer, Conservative, 499, and Horatio Nelson, Liberal, 469, a majority for the Conservatives of 30. This leaves the political situation practically unchanged. Cardigan district remains Conservative and the strength of the parties in the legislature is Liberals 18, Conservatives 14.

Father Cables Her to Be Silent

Publication to Employ Best Counsel for Her and Crippen

Story of Typist's Life to Be Published by It in Return—Ottawa Thinks Extradition Proceedings Will Be Prolonged.

Quebec, Aug. 9.—Ethel LeNeve received a cablegram late this afternoon from the penitentiary from her father, signed "Dad," urging upon her to maintain the strictest secrecy and informing her that the money for her defence and Crippen's was being supplied by a famous London newspaper.

The father also mentions that he had given the story of her life exclusively to this same journal on the understanding that the money would be given by this paper for his daughter's fight for freedom. The reason, then, for secrecy and silence on her part was obvious.

Of course Dr. Crippen comes under this agreement as he also will be defended by Miss LeNeve's counsel. Both of them are charged with the murder of Belle Elmore. The name of the newspaper was not given in the cable. This disposes of the highly incredible story which has been floating about in the newspapers during the past few days that the money for the prisoners' defence was being supplied by certain wealthy British in London who were in the grip of Crippen and who were in terror lest he should tell the world the many secret discreditable things he knew concerning them.

The case, it is understood, will then be fought by the ablest lawyers procurable in London by this journal.

Crippen's Extradition a Lengthy Process

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—(Special)—Inquiry from an official versed in extradition procedure elicited today the fact, hitherto overlooked in the press, that in order to comply with all the requirements of the law, Crippen will probably have to be kept in Quebec jail for at least three weeks longer. It has generally been supposed that Crippen will be forthwith sent back to England in charge of Inspector Deane on the expiry of the fifteen days remand granted last week. The proceedings, however, have been taken under the fugitive offenders' act. By provisions of the act a warrant of arrest issued in England, together with the evidence on which it was issued and proofs of the prisoner's identity, must be submitted for consideration of the judge who first dealt with the case in Quebec. This will be done probably on Monday next on receipt of the official papers from England. On the finding of the judge that the prisoner is a fugitive from justice a commitment will be made out for submission in charge of Inspector Deane on Monday according to the act, fifteen days must elapse before the governor-general's warrant is made out directing the governor of the jail in Quebec to deliver the prisoner to the charge of the person designated by the English courts to insure his return to England. The carrying out of all these formalities will take until Aug. 31.

It was suggested that Crippen might waive extradition proceedings, thus obviating delay, but it was pointed out that procedure under the fugitive offenders act was on a different basis from ordinary extradition proceedings. British officials would not be likely to give any loophole for technical objections being raised by Crippen's counsel in England on the score of irregularity in procedure in bringing him into the English courts without having first complied with all the formalities of law.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The work of reconstructing the round house and shops of the I. C. It is estimated that the buildings will cost at least a quarter of a million dollars, and the tenders will be called for at once.

SCOTLAND WANTS HOME RULE, TOO

London, Aug. 10.—Now it is Scotland that demands home rule. Twenty-one Liberal members of parliament from Scotland have issued a manifesto declaring that the time had come when that country should be ruled by the Scotch people. Scotland's grievance is that parliament gives no adequate attention to the discussion of Scottish affairs; in other words, that the country gets short shrift in matters of importance.

Now they demand that they be permitted to manage their own affairs in their own way, instead of having them managed from London, as at present. The manifesto declared that Scotland is getting tired of being governed by absentee legislators. Whether the demand will receive consideration at the hands of the ministry remains to be seen.

PLAIN TALK FROM MAYOR CARLETON

Ready to Replace Blocking at Own Expense if His Charges Are Disproved

MANY WEAK LINKS

Declares City Is Not Getting What It is Paying For, and He Would Like to See Thorough Investigation of the Whole Work—Mayor Gets Ad- vice of Outside Engineer.

Wednesday, Aug. 10.

James L. Carleton, ex-inspector of paving, in conversation with the Telegraph last night regarding the motion of Ald. Smith passed at the meeting of the council Monday, said that, in his opinion, it was not necessary in investigating the paving work in Main street to dig up a block of the concrete. All that they had to do was to remove the granite blocks from a section near the center and they would find a sand cushion four inches in depth whereas the specifications called for not less than an inch and a half, and the pavers should have been satisfied with that.

He further said that the charges were not substantiated, he would replace, at his own expense, the blocking if the city would provide him with the necessary materials. He would hold himself in readiness at any time to point out to the board of works the place in which to dig. He would much prefer, however, not to confine himself to any particular spot. What he thought ought to be done was to get some indifferent person to go over the whole work and dig with a bar at random, stopping when the ground was reached, then measuring, and it would be found that there were many places where the required thickness of concrete had not been laid.

Mr. Carleton continued that probably it would be found that there were spots here and there where the Hassam foundation would be found perfectly good. The foundation, however, was not stronger than its weakest link and that there were many such links he was convinced, it was impossible, he said, to roll six inches of concrete with a twelve-ton roller the way it was being done in Main street, and do it well. An inch of concrete could be rolled that way, but not more.

Unfortunately, Mr. Carleton said, there was no mechanical test which he knew of that would determine with any degree of accuracy the lasting qualities of cement. That would have to be left to the test of time, but he was satisfied that he was not getting what it was paying for by any means and while he repeated that he had no charge to make against anyone, and nothing to gain by the position he had taken in the matter, he would like to have a thorough investigation of the whole work.

Got Engineer's Opinion.

Speaking of the Main street paving contract last night, Mayor Frink said that last week without the authority of the council he had employed an engineer to go over the whole work. He refused to divulge the name of this engineer, but said that his reputation was such that the most critical test would be satisfied with his judgment. At first when the engineer in question was shown the specifications and had them explained to him he had expressed strong disapproval of the way the work was being done. Afterwards, however, when he had gone over the whole work and examined it thoroughly he had said that in his opinion Mr. Murdoch was quite justified in approving of it. The only thing with which he found fault was that the broken stone used was, in his opinion, a little too large for the purpose.

Press Comment.

(Globe, editorial.)

The Common Council has decided upon a partial enquiry into some of the conditions connected with the pavement which is now being laid. At present the Council seemingly thinks it necessary to confine itself to an investigation into the nature and character of a portion of the work done at the point at which the late inspector withdrew from the work. This enquiry ought also to cover the grounds, the conditions of the whole business when Mr. Carleton resigned from the work, and the motives which inspired him to the action which he took. Some members of the Common Council at one or two late meetings of that body seem to have been infected by the idea that the city press in its observation in regard to this pavement business, is affected by some particular motive or influenced by some feeling against the Council. We do not believe that there is any special motive affecting the attitude of the press. Perhaps it may be unduly influenced by the public feeling upon the subject; but even this cannot be admitted. The resignation of the inspector on the grounds which he gave for his retirement would very naturally arouse and excite public attention, and it has done that. The examination which is now to be made is good enough so far as it goes, but it is difficult of obtaining that something of the kind was necessary.

INCH-ARRAN CONCERT

Dalhousie, N. B., Aug. 7.—Inch Arran House, Dalhousie, (N. B.), on Friday evening, Aug. 5, was the scene of a delightful concert, given for the benefit of the young people's literary and social club of Dalhousie (N. B.). A large audience composed of the guests of the hotel and a number of prominent Dalhousie people, filled to overflowing the spacious drawing-room of the house. The programme was of unusual merit.

The concert opened with a piano solo by Miss D. B. Taylor, followed by a piano solo by Miss Rivington, of St. John.

The Misses and Messrs. Greaves, of Ottawa, played a flute, piano, piccolo and violin quartet, while Miss Bowles, also of Ottawa, delighted everyone with several songs beautifully rendered. Mrs. Caldwell, wife of Prof. Caldwell of McGill University, captured the audience by an exquisite solo on the cello.

The local talent was much appreciated. Two recitations were given by Miss LaBilios, daughter of Hon. Mr. LaBilios, and the evening ended with a burst of applause, called forth by a humorous duet by Miss Haddow and Mr. Trueman, of Dalhousie.

After the singing of God Save the King, the results of the silver collection were announced, which amounted to $22.

THE KENT COUNTY LICENSE COMEDY

(Richibucto Review).

The curtain has lifted on the second act of the Kent county license comedy. When the three license commissioners appointed by the late government, were dismissed for no other reason than that they were Liberals, and three good Tories appointed to the board, it was expected that everything in connection with the matter of liquor licenses would be arranged to the satisfaction of the provincial government in this county. But "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley." When the question of cutting out one of the licenses in Kenton came before the board, the new commissioners, on the advice of their good judgment, saw fit to sacrifice a publican of their own political complexion and then the trouble began. The provincial secretary was called into the county to settle matters and incidentally to read the commissioners in general and in respect to the duties in general and in respect to the Kenton licenses in particular. It was charged that the chairman of the board had been instrumental in having this particular license cancelled, and the reason given for his action was that the licensee had taken a prominent part against him in the late municipal election. To this charge the chairman pointed out that he had taken no part whatever in the matter; that the motion to cancel the license had been moved and seconded respectively by the two other members of the board. Thereupon it was suggested that the order of the motion had been mislaid through a similarity in the names of the applicants. The upshot of the matter was that the commissioners were ordered to meet again and rectify the mistake. They met, but refused to make any change, and as a consequence the government has cancelled the Kenton license. The man who will be awarded with interest, meanwhile, the applicant who was refused a license by the board has been permitted to sell liquor without license.

READY REPLY.

Quite recently a warship of the Atlantic Squadron found it necessary to call for a few hours at a military port on the coast of Ireland. Tommy Atkins, meeting a full-bearded Irish tar in the street a couple of hours later, said: "Pat, when are you going to place your whiskers on the reserve list?" "When you place your tongue on the civil list," was the Irish sailor's reply.

Many Receiving Help From Funds of the St. John Relief and Aid Society—How Good Work Has Been Carried On.

Wednesday, Aug. 10.

H. D. Everett, secretary of the St. John Relief and Aid Society, said to a Telegraph reporter yesterday that the total funds now at their disposal were something over $10,400. The annual outlay for the last three or four years has been about $3,400. The society has on its books twenty-nine regular annuitants, besides which several special grants are made from time to time. The ages of these annuitants range from 55 to 90 years. Eight of them were over 82 years; seven, from 75 to 80, and the rest from 62 to 65 years.

Only one was 55 years old. This was an invalid lady. Most of these annuitants on the fund were not in good health.

When the fund was first brought into existence, Mr. Everett said, the president who had to give his whole time to the work, was paid $1,000 a year. The secretary was also paid a small salary. The late James Reynolds discharged the combined offices of president and secretary for some years, and refused all compensation. For some years the whole expense in connection with the administration of the fund has run from $125 to $300 a year. The fund was originally invested in debentures, and had it not been for this there would have been no fund now as the original principal disappeared some fifteen or twenty years ago.
