

TRIBUTE TO LORD SALISBURY

Who is the Greatest Statesman Britain Has Ever Had.

Ranks With Palmerston and is Still at the Head of the British Cabinet—The Queen's Advisor.

From Wednesday's Daily.

The change in the British cabinet by which Lord Lansdowne becomes the head of the British foreign office do not signify anything of consequence, for Lord Salisbury will really remain the controlling force in Britain's foreign relations, since he retains the premiership. Lord Salisbury has quietly removed Lord Lansdowne from the war office, where he can do no good, to the foreign office, where, under Salisbury's eye in all important affairs, he can do no harm. Lansdowne is not to blame for the inefficiency of the British military system, any more than he is to blame for the military ignorance displayed by the troops in their home maneuvers, for which their officers were sharply rebuked by Lord Wolsey.

Lansdowne, under the eye of Salisbury, ought to make a respectable head of the foreign office. He is 55-years old; has been secretary for India; governor general of Canada, governor general of India, and since 1895 secretary of war. He is a man of fair talents, industrious, and absolutely honest in the administration of official duty. He is a far better man in the foreign office than Mr. Chamberlain, who has too much ability and too much ambition to pose as the mere effigy of Salisbury. A new foreign secretary was necessary, for Lord Salisbury is nearly 71 years old, his health is poor, and he naturally desires to delegate the ordinary routine work of the foreign office to a faithful, well trained, industrious subordinate. Lansdowne is of high aristocratic connections, for the first Marquis of Lansdowne was Lord Shelburne, who, under George III, labored for recognition of the United States, and it was Lord Lansdowne's father whose friendship procured Macaulay a seat in Parliament.

Lord Salisbury's ministry includes his brilliant nephew, Arthur James Balfour, first lord of the treasury and leader of the house of commons, and it includes another nephew, Gerald Balfour, who is under-secretary for Ireland. Mr. Goschen, an able man of business, has resigned as first lord of the admiralty. Mr. George Wyndham, the brilliant political secretary of the war office, is another devoted adherent of the great prime minister, who as long as he lives will be the real brains of the ministry of which he is the head. His responsibility is greater today in the extreme old age of Victoria than it ever was before, and he is wise in turning over the mere drudgery of the foreign office to a laborious subordinate, while he remains clothed with the right of decision and really retains control of British foreign policy. Lord Salisbury took the position of foreign secretary first in 1878, under Lord Beaconsfield's premiership, but he finally became so dissatisfied with the Russophobic policy of Disraeli that he resigned.

Lord Salisbury is among the very ablest statesmen who have governed England since the accession of Victoria. There is nothing of the jingo about him, as there was about Disraeli. There is nothing of the political philanthropist about him, when stern statesmanship is wanted, as there was about Gladstone, whose humanitarianism was responsible for the Boer war, since it gave Paul Kruger's oligarchy a long lease of life when it should have been broken up. Salisbury is more like Palmerston than any other of the great ministers of Victoria's reign. He loves peace and labors for peace with honor with all the world when he can get it, and when he cannot get it he does not flinch from war. The greatest act of Salisbury's career was his consent to arbitrate the Venezuela question at the peremptory demand of President Cleveland. His action in the matter of our war with Spain, when Great Britain not only declined to interfere in Spain's behalf, but declined to approve of intervention on the part of France, was a master stroke of progressive diplomacy and statesmanship, for it was a complete reversal of the British policy of 1873-74, when President Grant earnestly desired to interfere in behalf of Cuba.

Lord Salisbury has been fortunate in his opportunities, but take him all in all, he is the ablest statesman, measured by his foreign policy, that has ruled England since the accession of Queen Victoria, unless we except Palmerston, whom he strongly resembles in not being either a jingo statesman, like Disraeli, nor a Quaker politician, like Gladstone. Sir Robert Peel as a domestic reformer, as the pioneer architect of England's free-trade policy in his repeal of the corn laws, was a greater statesman than either Palmerston or Salisbury, but as architects and executives of a foreign policy that has enabled England to hold her own with honor and safety before the world, Palmerston and Salisbury are England's ablest statesmen since the death of George Canning.—Oregonian.

New Russian Warships.

New York, Nov. 6.—Russia is to place orders with American shipbuilders for five new battle ships during the next year. Secrecy seems to be the order with those in a position to give information, but the bare fact that in prosecuting her naval construction program Russia will favor American builders comes from an authentic source, according to Joseph Spencer Kennard, one of the commissioners from this country to the Paris exposition, who has arrived here on the steamer Touraine.

Contracts for five battle ships will involve more than $20,000,000, and the fact that Russia contemplates placing these orders here is regarded as a recognition of the merits of the American built Variag, which, designed to make a speed of 23 knots, showed herself capable in her speed trials of maintaining a speed of 24.6 knots. Now being pushed to completion by the Cramps, who built the Variag, is the battle ship Retvizan, the first battle ship built here for a foreign country. She was launched October 23. Beyond the information that the order was to be placed here, Mr. Kennard said that he could say nothing, and that he could not with propriety make known the name of his informant.

Waldimir Teplow, the Russian consul general, also returned on the Touraine, after an absence of four months in Russia. He left St. Petersburg October 20. When seen at his home last night, Mr. Teplow said he could not confirm the report of the prospective placing of orders for battle ships in this country, but he said that there was such enthusiasm in Russia over the Variag and the Retvizan, that it is likely that the next warships built for Russia will be laid in American shipyards.

"All Russians," he said, "are perfectly satisfied with the Variag and the Retvizan. They are fine ships. We think the American builders are among the best in the world. Some builders show a sample ship, and obtain an order for one like it, but the finished product likely does not correspond with the sample. But this is not so with American builders. They make us a ship just like the model."

Germany's New Lease.

The news that Germany has obtained from Turkey the lease of a small island in the Red sea, known as Uroan, which is not marked on most English maps, but which is north of Kamaran, where we have a cable station, will evoke no surprise. As far back as 1896 Count von Luttwitz urged that Germany should acquire coaling stations, and the demand has been pressed of late with remarkable insistence by the immensely powerful German navy league.

It goes without saying that the new island will be a valuable possession; Germans do not acquire territory with their eyes shut, and they are certain to have made careful surveys and to have obtained a fine harbor. The chief interest, however, for England is as to the location of the other coaling stations which Germany undoubtedly intends to buy or annex. Positions are wanted both to the east and west of the Red sea, and where are they to be found?

In the Mediterranean it would not be surprising to learn that the kaiser had arranged with Spain for the purchase of Ceuta, the fortress quite useless to the Spaniards, which confronts Gibraltar on the southern shore of the famous straits. There have been negotiations as to this place, and Spain would be not disinclined to do Germany a kindness in return for the sympathy shown in 1898.

The system and care with which Germany is laying the foundation of her sea power merit attention in England. Already in Africa she has sites for coaling stations in Togoland, the Kamerun, Southwest Africa and German East Africa. In the West Indies the fear that she might obtain from Holland Curacao already causes anxiety in the United States. But Germany will go slowly and surely. She is not in a hurry; her preparations are quiet and systematically made; it is not part of her object to cause general alarm, which might be fatal to designs. London Mail.

CREEK NOTES.

Mr. Geo. Moore, of American gulch, is in town on business today.

Mrs. Mitchell, of 91 below Bonanza, was in town on business last Wednesday.

Mr. Smith, of 76 below Bonanza, was shaking hands with his friends in Dawson last week.

Mr. Peter McLaughlin, of 62 below Bonanza, made a business trip to Gay gulch last Monday.

Mr. J. P. Anderson, of 42 below Bonanza, has returned from a month's hunting looking hale and hearty.

Mrs. Rothweiler has again assumed sole charge of the Magnet road house and is doing a large share of the business on Bonanza.

Mr. Wm. Bowen has purchased Pete Wiborg's interest on 33 above Eldorado and will do considerable work this winter. Mr. Wiborg will go out over the ice to return in March.

Mrs. Ella Hunter wife of Col. Hunter, deceased, has opened the Hunter house on 10 below Bonanza. Mrs. Hunter has a nice cozy little place right on the government road, and will be glad to see any of her husband's old friends, and the general traveling public as well.

Messrs. Quiner, Smith, Griffith and Woodale have placed a large boiler, engine and hoist on their claim on Gold Hill, and are taking out a big dump. A pan was taken out last Tuesday that went $2.50. As the claim is but half worked out, the boys will have a fine clean up next spring.

It is not generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact that upper Bonanza possesses a real genius in little Linna Marie Thompson. Early in childhood Linna developed a fondness for poetry, and today is an indefatigable reader. She is yet but a mere child, having just passed her 12th birthday. Some of her best productions, while not those of a finished artist, are worthy of reproduction as coming from a child. She never dreams of assistance from anyone, and only writes when the mood is upon her, and then as rapidly as her little fingers can travel. In a future issue we will produce one of her latest efforts.

For Winter Freighting.

Agent J. H. Rogers of the White Pass & Yukon Route, is in receipt of a letter written by G. E. Pulham, superintendent of the C. D. Co.'s mail routes, which states that it is his intention to put 15 teams to the work of freighting from Whitehorse to Dawson at once. Mr. Pulham is expected to arrive here any day with the first freighting train. Other teams in addition will be put on if the business demands justify, and a general freight and passenger business will be carried on over the ice between Dawson and the railroad terminal.

Feed and all necessary provisions have been distributed along at the various roadhouses where stables have also been erected. The company already has a large amount of freight contracted, and applications for passage are pouring in at both ends of the route. It is possible that as many as 50 teams will be employed by the company at the end of 60 days.

SEVERAL SPECIAL OFFICERS

To Be Appointed From the Humane Society.

The Pound Established on Second Avenue — Mrs. Clark Lost Her Horses.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Members of the executive committee of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are to be sworn in as special constables to carry out the law bearing on the objects for which the society was formed.

At the meeting the other night a committee of one was appointed to wait upon Major Wood in the matter and today the major said he knew of no reason why he should not do so, but before carrying out the plan finally, he would consult with the judge.

This request was found advisable by the society, as several times of late members have remonstrated with the drivers of different sorts of teams for the wrong treatment of animals, and have been laughed at for their pains, and the driver passing on left the remonstrator no other resource but to let the matter drop.

A pound keeper has been found and appointed in the person of Fred Nichols, formerly a member of the police force. The pound has been established on Second Avenue opposite the Dawson City cafe, where, in future the owners of missing animals will do well to look for them.

Recently Mrs. Clark, who lives near the Klondike bridge turned out or allowed to stray a couple of ponies, which, in due time were complained of as being without food or shelter and impounded.

The animals were kept the required length of time and advertised. When, at the expiration of the legal time no owner put in an appearance, one of the horses was sold and as there was no sale for the other it was killed as provided for by the ordinance. Nearly two weeks later Mrs. Clark appeared before the proper official and explained that a hardship had been worked upon her by the law, as she had been looking for the horses all the time.

Laws must be made to deal with the rule in such cases and cannot be made fit the exceptions. If, in this case the law has worked a hardship it is regretted by those who framed the ordinance, but, it cannot be seen where the law is at fault.

Territorial Court.

This morning Jacob Saltman was arraigned before Justice Dugas, charged with having made fraudulent assignment of goods, thereby defrauding M. Marks out of $228.50.

Saltman plead not guilty and elected to be tried before a judge, and, upon his statement that he was ready to go to trial the case was proceeded with forthwith.

Joseph Merryton, agent for Marks, took the stand and testified that he had tried to collect the bill of Saltman and failing, had threatened to take goods back. He had not done so, but had entered into an agreement with the prisoner whereby the latter was to have paid an equal amount of the proceeds to his creditors ten days later. Instead of doing this he made the assignment complained of.

Judgment was reserved till after the case of the Queen vs. Dinnir has been heard, as that is one growing out of the same general facts. It is before the court this afternoon.

Petty Thieving.

The police are frequently complained to these days regarding petty thefts from in front of stores, shops, meat markets and restaurants, but, as stated in this paper some weeks ago, people who keep temptation hung out after dark have but themselves to blame if "Adam" falls. The police have other matters to look after other than that of keeping an eye on a turkey, rabbit or German sock that may be hung outside a door to advertise the business carried on within.

Mad Dog Shot.

Sergeant Tweedy, in addition to keeping things straight and orderly in the jail, gets out once in a while and last Sunday while he and Sergeant Marshall, he who is so eloquent in his daily recital about O'ye in the territorial court, were taking a walk about the point near the barracks, he became the hero of a thrilling incident.

There were lots of people about and all was peace and quiet, as becomes a Dawson Sunday, when suddenly there appeared upon the scene a yellow dog who had a large and growing case of rabies. He snapped at people right and left, and why a small boy who patted him on the back escaped without injury, is a mystery. The brute was frothing at the mouth and rapidly growing worse, when Sergeant Tweedy opened fire upon him, killing him as Sergeant Marshall says, but the modest Mr. Tweedy says it was his companion who shot the dog.

Mr. Girouard's Trip.

Respecting the proposed visit of Councilman Girouard to Ottawa Mr. Herbert Hulme stated to a Nugget representative that the information furnished this paper by him yesterday did not come from Mr. O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien was not aware that Mr. Girouard's trip had any connection with his affairs.

The Weather.

Within the 24 hours previous to 9 o'clock this morning there was a variation, according to the official weather record, of 24 degrees, the minimum temperature being 45 and the maximum 21 below zero. The weather continued to moderate during the day.

THE MYSTERY OF DREAMS.

A Case in Which the Coincidences Were Remarkable.

On one occasion during the civil war I dreamed that I was standing beside a road when there came marching along it a strong column of prisoners, with guards at intervals on the flanks. I asked one of these guards who the prisoners were and where they had been captured. He informed me that they had been taken in an engagement with the enemy on the day before and that there were 1,900 of them. I then asked some bystander what day of the month it was and was told it was such a day of a certain month, some six weeks later than the date of the dream. The whole dream was extremely distinct, and it made a strong impression on me. I related it to a number of my comrades within the next few days and then thought of it no more.

Six weeks later, on the morning of the very day that had been mentioned in the dream as the date when the column of prisoners had passed before me, I was on picket two miles distant from the point where I had seemed to be when I saw them. It was soon after breakfast, and I was standing by the side of the road at the fire talking to the officer of the picket when an aid to the commanding general came riding down the road. He had been a schoolfellow of our officer's at West Point, and he reined up when he recognized his friend. He told us that he had good news; that there had been a sharp engagement with the enemy the day before and that our people had captured 1,900 prisoners, who had just passed the headquarters that morning on their way to the rear.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Stuck to His Post.

When it comes to a battle, a horse shows no fear of death, no sign of being overcome by panic, in all the wild tumult of the battle's roar. A horse in one of our batteries in the Murfreesboro fight was hit by a piece of shell, which split his skull so that one side was loosened. The driver turned him loose, but when he saw the team he had worked with being driven back for ammunition he ran to his old place and galloped back with the rest. When an officer pushed him aside to have another horse put in, he gazed at the new one with a most sorrowful expression in his eyes. Then he seemed to realize that the battle was no more for him, and he walked away and lay down and died. The officer declared that it was a broken heart that killed him.—Our Dumb Animals.

Literary Difficulties.

"She has been talking about writing a novel for years," said one woman. "Yes," answered the other, "but I don't think she'll ever get it completed. She has followed the plan of those authors who study their personal acquaintances for types of character." "Isn't the method a good one?" "Not in her case. When her husband refuses her anything, she wants to put him in as the villain, and when he does as she wishes she wants to make him the hero. It keeps her continually re-writing the first chapter."—Washington Star.

Longevity of Fish.

There are some goldfish in Washington which have belonged to the same family for the last 50 years, and they seem no bigger and no less vivacious today than they did when they first came into the owner's possession. A few of the fish in the Imperial aquarium at St. Petersburg are known to be 150 years old, and the age of the sacred fish in some of the ponds attached to the Buddhist temples in China is to be counted by centuries, if we are to believe the priests.

Somewhat Encouraging.

"Did that rich young Goldbag propose to you last night?" "Not exactly, mamma, but he asked for an option on me for 30 days."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No News From Hootalinqua.

Major Wood has not received any information relative to the late killing at Hootalinqua since the result of the coroner's investigation was reported. He thinks the preliminary hearing of St. Cyr, the slayer of the man Davis, is in progress before Inspector McGibbon and that nothing will be heard until it is completed. If the prisoner is held over to the territorial court, which he doubtless will be, he will probably be brought to Dawson in the near future.

"LOPES TOO BLOOMIN' IGH."

The Englishman's Only Comment When the Broncho Threw Him.

"Most Englishmen are considered pretty fair horsemen, but when it comes to riding a bucking broncho some of them are not in or on it for long," said the owner of a large cattle ranch in Wyoming to the writer the other day. "For instance, a rich young Englishman recently came out to my part of the country in quest of some good investment. He was at my ranch as a guest for a few days, and one afternoon as the cowboys were about to round up a bunch of cow ponies the young man said that he would enjoy a good ride in the saddle. He said he was used to riding only thoroughbreds, and he didn't think we had a horse good enough for him. The boys convinced him that they had one of the finest horses on the plains, and if he knew how to ride he was welcome to the animal. He was apparently insulted when questioned about his ability to ride and answered that he could ride any kind of a horse. A sleepy looking broncho was accordingly brought out from the corral and saddled. Though the beast appeared half dead, he was the worst buckner in the herd.

"'E's lifeless," said the foreigner when the pony was brought to him. The boys said the nag would wake up after the first mile, and mildred got into the saddle. The first buck jump placed him on the horse's neck, and after the second he was in the atmosphere. He turned a double somersault and landed on the sharp end of a cactus plant. When he picked himself up, one of the boys asked what he thought of the thoroughbred now. The question made the Englishman turn pale.

"'E's a good 'oss," he answered, "but he lopes too bloomin' 'igh."—Washington Star.

I and My.

The pronouns "I" and "my" are greatly to be avoided in general conversation. "I" do this or that; "my" children are so and so; "my" cook, "my" house, "my" equipages—such iteration sets terribly on the nerves of the listener, besides being in very bad form.—New York Tribune.
