How Happy I'll Be

A little one played among the flowers, In the bush and bloom of summer hours;
Then twined the buds in a garland fair, And bound them up in her shining hair, "Ah me!" said she, "how happy I'll be,
When ten years more have grown over me,
And I am a maiden, with youth's bright glow Flashing my cheek and lighting my brow!"
A maiden mused in a pleasant room, Where the air was filled with soft perfume:
Beautiful pictures rare and old,
And she, of all the loveliest there, Was by far the loveliest and most fair, "Ah me!" sighed she, "how happy I'll be,
When my heart's true love comes home to me, Light of my life, my spirit's pride, I count the days till thou reach my side."

A mother bent over a cradle nest, Where she soothed her babe to his smiling rest;
"Sleep well," she murmured, soft and low, And she pressed her kisses on his brow, "O child, sweet child, how happy I'll be,
If the good God lets thee star with me, Till later on, in life's evening hour, Thy strength shall be my strength and tower!"
An aged one sat by the glowing hearth, Almost ready to leave the earth; Feeble and frail, she rose she had run Had borne her along to the setting sun, "Ah me!" she sighed in an undertone,
"How happy I'll be when life is done!
When the world fades out with its weary strife And I soar away to a better life!"

"To thus we journey, from youth to age, Longing to turn another page, Striving to hasten the years away, Lighting our hearts with the future's ray; Hoping on earth till the vision fade, Wishing and waiting, through sun and shade, Turning when earth's last tie is severed, To the beautiful rest that remains in heaven."

Local and General News

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.—A fine cutter, with twelve men in it, was a leading attraction this morning. This is forcing the season with a vengeance.

SUICIDE.—A farmer named Dan Harburg, of North Easthope, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself his own barn.

NEW HALL.—The masonic fraternity of Mount Forest have entered into possession of a fine new hall, which is credit to the craft.

THE FAMILY HERALD is at Anderson's, and is just as full of fine reading as the market is of cordwood. We could say no more if we wrote a column. Get a copy at Anderson's.

TRIPPED.—Mrs. W. C. Perry, of Mount Forest, while on her wedding tour, was coming down the main staircase in Rossin House, Toronto, and slipped down the stairs.

TOO THIN.—The editor of the Ingersoll Chronicle says "we claim, and justly, to have the largest town the finest buildings, the bravest men and the prettiest girls in the country to say nothing about gas." Oh, pahaw, have you ever been to Fergus?

DOMINION TELEGRAPH CO.—This company intend to construct a line from Collingwood to Goderich via Kincardine early this spring. New stock will be shortly issued to enable the Co. to make this and other contemplated extensions of their wires.

BROKE A LEG.—An accident occurred to a man named James Ferrier, on the 6th line West Garafra, on Saturday, the 9th inst. While hauling some saw logs with oxen from the bush, one of the logs swung round and struck him on the leg, breaking it below the knee.

BRUN ON A TOUR.—A tame bear, tied up on one of the wharves at Montreal Friday, liberated himself, and went forth to view the city. The police were called upon to put the Vagrant Act into force, and after a short time of enjoyment "on the loose," the wanderer was apprehended.

ACCIDENT.—As Mr Christopher Val-lentyn was stepping on the car at Acton Station, the cars gave a sudden jerk throwing him on the ground. In falling his face struck the step inflicting a severe wound. Fortunately Mr H. McMillan witnessed the accident, and with great presence of mind succeeded in lifting him out of the way of the wheels, otherwise he would have been run over.

STOLE HIS TROUSERS.—The Argus
Records says: On Wednesday of last week Mr. John Hamilton, of West Garafra, laid information before Francis Cassidy Esq., J. P., charging a boy named David Cudney with stealing a pair of trousers from his house on or about the 16th or 18th of Sept. last. The case was tried on Thursday evening, and after hearing the evidence, Mr. Cassidy decided to commit Cudney to jail to stand his trial.
Constable Thomas Hamilton took the prisoner home, and to keep him safe slept with him during the night. Early next morning, while preparing for breakfast, Cudney bolted out of the door bootless, coatless and hatless, and made for a cedar swamp, his wet hair floating behind him like the trimmings of a kite.
Pursuit was made, but without success, and so far as we have heard, the enterprising runaway is still at large. As there was quite a hard frost, the poor fellow must have had a severe time of it.

The Horse Disease.

Another equine disease known as horse dropsy appears to be following in the footsteps of the epizootic, and to be more fatal to our domestic horses, than its forerunner.
It will be seen from our despatches that several valuable American horses have fallen victims to it, and we are told that Mr. Moulton and Mr. Goldie of this town have both lost horses by it. Those previously afflicted with the epizootic are liable to it, we believe.

CHILD DROWNED.—On Saturday last child aged about 5 years, only son of Mr. George Copeland, Erasmus, was drowned by falling into a barrel which was sunk in the ground to answer the purpose of a well. It appears the little fellow went for a pail of water, and not returning as soon as he ought to, his side was sent out to look for him, and found him sticking in the barrel head down and arms outstretched. This is another warning to leave no well unprotected.

ROSA D'ERINA.—This talented vocalist was greeted at the Town Hall by a large, respectable and appreciative audience.
Mrs. D'Erina quite sustained her reputation, and more than equalled the expectations of her hearers. To-morrow (Sunday) she sings at High Mass in St.
Bartholomew's Church, and in the evening gives a grand sacred concert in the same edifice for the benefit of the Hospital.
We advise those who did not hear her last night to do so to-morrow. Those who did hear her in the hall will be sure to attend the church.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday evening last about six o'clock, as Mrs and Miss Schwendemann, of Paisley Block, were on their way home from Berlin, and within a short distance of Waterloo Willage their horse took fright and ran off at a furious rate down the embankment opposite the residence of Isaac E.
Shantz, Esq. When near Mrs Kleeberger's hotel the horse suddenly turned, capsizing the buggy and throwing the ladies out on the frozen ground, injuring Mrs. Schwendemann, it is feared, severely.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.—Mr MacCourt, manager for Mlle. Rosa D'Erina, desires us to return thanks to Messrs Bell & Co. for the favor of the fine piano and organ which they so kindly loaned to us at the Town Hall on Friday night, and which will also be used at the Church on Sunday evening. Mlle. D'Erina was well pleased with the instruments, which under her manipulation, gave forth the most delightful melody. The Irish musical instruments, and her verdict in-dorses the popular one in favor of Bell & Co's instruments.

ACCIDENT.—The young man named Ephraim Falconer who was killed on the Northern Railway, at Toronto, was brought to Georgetown by the Grand Trunk, on Wednesday of last week, and buried by his friends in Scotch Block.
Deceased was a very steady and industrious young man and highly spoken of by his employers. The forethought of the Railway Company in insuring the lives of their employees to the amount of $300 each, will be specially recognized in a case like the present, where sudden bereavement might entail material suffering as well as grief.—Herald.

HERE IT IS AGAIN.—Our friends from the country will insist upon leaving their teams untied when they are doing business in town. It is very kind of them to supply the newspapers with items, as of course "without straw we cannot make bricks," but even runaways are becoming monotonous. A pair of farm horses started off from Ellis's hotel on Friday afternoon and turned the corner at Bruce's carriage works, running down past Raymond's sewing machine factory, tearing up shade trees and creating sad havoc generally in their triumphal march to the sea—how it was themselves. They were arrested by several able-bodied citizens, who were afraid the fractions steeds were endeavoring to steal the wagon, or at least to make away with it, which they were doing, in a lively style. Our devil was delivering his papers in that vicinity and had a narrow escape. Owing to the quantity of mud on his boots he was unable to walk very fast.

TELEGRAPHIC INVENTION.—A revolution in telegraph is about to take place, by which messages may be sent and received over the same wire and at the same moment. The Montreal Company have at work in their offices in Montreal and Toronto instruments invented by an American operator, named J. B. Stearns, of Boston, by which the difficulty of sending and receiving messages by the same wire is overcome, although they can only be worked on through lines on which there is no local business. The use of this invention increases the facilities of the Company two fold. Two instruments are attached to a single wire and operated by a sender and a receiver, and will doubtless be largely adopted by Telegraph Companies.

BONUS.—The Hamilton Spectator says that $15,000 is the amount required from Georgetown for the H. & N. W. R. R.

Telegraph Despatches.

Per Montreal Telegraph Line to the Daily Herald.

Action Against Gould
New York, Nov. 22.—The affidavit of Watson, President of the Erie Railway, avert that the Company has cause of action against Gould for more than the sum of $9,726,543, to which interest is to be added, and that the action arises from the fraudulent detention, embezzlement, and misapplication of the moneys and property of the Company.

Valuable Horses Dead
The celebrated stallion Socrates, owned by Mr. Balch, of Philadelphia, and valued at $40,000, and the noted trotter Comers, owned by Gen. Morris, of Boston, and valued at $20,000, died to-day of dysentery.

The German Government on the Slave Trade
Berlin, Nov. 22.—The German Government reports, in an invitation to Great Britain to assist in the suppression of the Slave Trade on the Eastern Coast of Africa, says it will give all the moral and diplomatic support in its power to the movement, and will instruct the German Consuls in Africa and Zanzibar to place their means at the disposal of the Expedition now fitting out in England.

More German Peers
The Emperor is determined to carry out his intention of increasing the membership of the Upper House of Diet, by the creation of a number of Peers. The list of names of the new Peers will be published early next week.

French Affairs
Paris, Nov. 22.—At a meeting of the Left Centre to-day, M. Picard, an intimate friend of Thiers, was chosen chairman in place of Gen Chanzy, who had resigned on account of official duties. The selection of Picard as presiding officer will serve to strengthen good understanding between Party and President. Committee appointed by the Assembly to draw up a project of Electoral Law, made their report to-day. They recommend that the age of 21 be retained as qualifications for exercise of Franchise, that soldiers in actual service be disqualified from voting, and that officers of the army be permitted to vote only when placed on reserve. The proposed law incidentally disfranchised a large class of the citizens, who, by army law are compelled to do military service until the age of 25. It will undoubtedly give rise to a heated debate. President Thiers appeared before the Assembly and spoke for an hour and a half. He urged them to terminate the present state of indecision, and refrained his opinion that the Republic was indispensable and that he was willing to accept the principle of Ministerial, Responsible and Parliamentary system which would not completely exclude him from the debate. The President will attend the Sittings of the Committee to-morrow. The Left Centre has drawn up a bill prolonging Thiers' present term of 4 years, and providing for the Vice-president, who shall succeed the President in case of resignation or death; the President and Vice-president to be relegible to office only for second term, and one-third of the assembly to be renewed annually, the President to be entitled to suspend the prolongation of the bill passed by any Assembly until after the annual election, then, if the Assembly insists on law, it must be properly understood that this project of law meets the approbation of Thiers.

Reform Bill Passed
BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The country Reform Bill passed its second reading in the Lower House of Diet to-day. All the amendments proposed by the Progressive and Conservative party has been rejected, and the bill is submitted by the Government, and been accepted to, and including the 83rd section. The debate on the remainder of the Bill will continue tomorrow.

Lerdo De Tejada Elected President MATAMOROS, Nov. 23.—The telegram dated City of Mexico, Nov. 18th, announces that the Congress has assembled and proclaimed Lerdo De Tejada unanimously elected President of the Republic.

Chancery Sittings.
Nov 22nd.
McISAAC vs. HENNERBERY.—Action respecting a property for which defendant was trustee, and which was partially sold to one Cushing. Cushing's claim was allowed. Judgment as to costs reserved. Messrs Moss & Watt for plaintiff; Messrs Blake & Drew for Defendant.
Nov 23rd
ROBINSON vs. WEBB.—Action respecting a quantity of land in the village of Harrison, purchased by defendant from plaintiff subject to reservations. Case still in progress.

ACQUITTED.—Dr. May, the American who had shot and killed a laborer in London, England, has been tried and acquitted.

IMPROVED.—The Waterloo Chronicle comes to hand in a new dress and otherwise improved in make-up and appearance. We are glad to see these signs of prosperity in the "form" of the Chronicle, which we have always found an enterprising and fair-dealing contemporary.

Gold and a Skeleton

A little more than a year ago, or on a day of October, 1871, a miner, riding a fine mare and followed by a colt, came into the town of Banack, Montana, for supplies, in the purchase of which he displayed such a liberal quantity of the precious dust as to excite the inquisitive comments of the lookers-on. Responding to the curiosity of these, with apparent frankness and a peculiar air of suppressed excitement, he declared that, after long years of unsuccessfull gold-seeking in all these mines of the world, he had at last found a glorious rich "placer," bearing wealth beyond computation. It was on one of the tributaries of the Big Hole River, in the heart of a great wood; and when he had gathered his own fortune, and called a few faithful friends from the East to gather theirs, the whole world should know the place. Not until then, however, should any mortal be informed of the true trail, and he would not hesitate to shoot any man undertaking to show him the spot, or to speak of the wealth which he had discovered, or to attempt to revenge any attempted abuse of his confidence, he was allowed to ride away from the town unattended, though leaving behind him a strong popular disposition to know more of his whereabouts.
Later in the same season a half-breed Indian came in from a hunting expedition along the Big Hole, toward Sulphur, bearing a bag containing gold-dust to the value of several hundred dollars, which he had had given him by the miner of the woods. He had come unexpectedly upon the latter in his golden solitude and solemnly sworn, after a view down a rifle-barrel, to direct no human being to the place of secret treasure, nor ever intrude there again himself. The bag of gold was his share of the secret, and no argument or bribe could induce him to break his Indian oath. The episode, of course, with its additional proof of the wonderful richness of the "placer" increased the curiosity and cupidty of the townspeople, and several prospecting parties started out to search for the mysterious golden fleece. Not however until a month ago, was any trace of the prize discovered. At that time, as the New Northwest alleges, three strangers from one of the Eastern States arrived at Deer Lodge, summoned thither by a letter from the solitary miner of Banack.
They were the friends whom he proposed to make the shares of his wonderful golden fortune, and were directed by him writing to procure their mining outfits at French Gulch, and then, without following the Assembly and spoke for an hour and a half. He urged them to terminate
the present state of indecision, and re-
indispensable and that he was willing to accept the principle of Ministerial, Responsible and Parliamentary
system which would not completely exclude him from the debate. The President will attend the Sittings of the Committee to-morrow. The Left Centre has
drawn up a bill prolonging Thiers' pre-
the Vice-president, who shall succeed the President in case of resignation or death;
the President and Vice-president to be
relegible to office only for second term,
and one-third of the assembly to be renewed annually, the President to be en-
bill passed by any Assembly until after
the annual election, then, if the Assembly
insists on law, it must be properly un-
approbation of Thiers.

He had sent them to a point where he would await their coming. He had sent them a rude map of the country they were to travel to that point, but he had not inferred that the exact locality of the treasure could be revealed only by himself in person. His own life's grand success was found at last; years of wandering, bitter toil; and renunciation of the fellowship of his mind were rewarded with untold wealth at last, and the miner of Banack only wanted to show his friends where they too could realize their wildest dreams of fortune before entering upon the full enjoyment of the riches and power now his beyond prevention. Guided by this letter, received by them in their home in "the States" two or three months before, the three strangers left French Gulch on the trail given, to follow their map to the point designated for the meeting with their friend. After a few days one of them came back to Ban-ack and Deer Lodge with word that the miner had not kept his appointment, and with a request that some persons familiar with the country should join the party of search. A number of the formerly unsuccessful prospectors for the hidden "placer" went back with the messenger, and are even now exploring a belt of unknown country, thickly wooded, for what they may never find. A mare and her colt have been discovered though, and near where they were grazing with head resting upon a weather-beaten saddle, mining implements scattered all around, and fingers clasping a bag containing gold—a human skeleton!

STRANGE AND PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—A strange and painful accident occurred at Raymond's Sewing Machine Factory on Friday evening. An employee named John Platt was standing alongside of a fly-wheel looking at another operative working, when, by some means, one of his arms became entangled in the wheel, breaking it at least in one place, and it is supposed in two—first above the wrist, and it is thought at the wrist also. Drs.
Herod and Clarke were called, and gave the sufferer all the relief that professional skill could afford, but it will be some time before he entirely recovers and is able to resume work. Strange to say, Platt cannot tell how he came to be caught in the wheel, whether he fell against it or not, but the probability is that he, inadvertently, while thinking of something else, approached too close. He withdrew the injured arm without any assistance from his fellow workmen who only became aware of the mishap by hearing his cries and seeing him dancing about the floor.
We understand that Platt, who is only in Canada a short time, will receive contributions from his shop-mates, who deeply sympathize with him.

"SPEAK NOW!"
There is at least one Grit paper in the Province shrewd enough to see and candid enough to admit that lofty silence is not the proper answer for Mr McKellar to make to serious charges backed up by authentic documents and damning facts. The Seaford Expositor, referring to the Elgin frauds, has the courage to say—

"The charge is a most serious one, and has been repeatedly and persistently made, and by doing himself and those who trust in him an injustice. No matter how outrageously absurd a charge may be if it is persistently repeated without being refuted, there are many who will ultimately come to believe it. We therefore think it is just to himself, and to the public, to give to the public the 'inside facts' of the case. We advise this course the more strongly, because we know that already the constant and unchecked repetition of these charges by the 'Mail' and other prints, are having an injurious effect upon Mr. McKellar's reputation."

We are quite prepared to admit that if the charges were made simply upon the authority of the Mail, the HERALD and other journals politically opposed to the bucolic Minister of Fall Ploughing he might do the silent contemptible business with some propriety and considerable effect, but when proofs of his complicity are produced—written documents signed with his own hand—and when the defence of his partner in the speculation consists merely in charges against "faithless agents" who are not named and in buncombe appeals to the goddess of Liberty, the conclusion that forces itself upon any mind free from prejudice is that the charges are true and the defence, bad as it is, the best that could be made! The Expositor is right in its conclusion that Mr. McKellar's reputation is suffering from his silence, but if possible, it suffers still more from the pleadings of the Rev. Mr King, who may be a well-intentioned man, but whose puerile arguments evince a mind not very fairly balanced upon strict questions of what is right or wrong in business matters. The longer the people reflect upon the transaction exposed the more overwhelming will become the conviction that there was something rotten in the Elgin Association.

Seeing a Sister's Apparition and then Hearing of Her Sudden Death.

From the Providence Journal.
A young lady from New York has been visiting relatives in this city during the past two weeks, and had made arrangements to return home last Friday night, having a strong impression upon her mind that she must go home without delay. For the sake of the company of a relative on her journey home, however, she was induced to postpone her departure until Monday evening last. On Sunday morning, after a quiet night's rest, she was suddenly awakened between 3 and 4 o'clock, and saw a figure distinctly, or was convinced that she did, standing in her room, near the door, looking toward her. The figure bore an exact resemblance to a sister she left at home in New York in her usual health. The young lady got up and went toward the apparition, and it disappeared. She then opened a window and looked out, but seeing nothing more of the figure, or anything else unusual, she returned to her room and fell asleep again. In a short time she was awakened and saw the apparition of her sister again, with the same life-like appearance and in the same position as before. She got up again, and as she advanced toward it it receded from her approach, and disappeared as before. Again she looked about from room to room and out of the window, but saw nothing more of it. Being now too much excited to sleep longer, she dressed herself, and remained sitting up in her chamber waiting for daylight. Her uncle, who is an early riser, heard her moving about the room and on his inquiring why she was up so early, she related her experience as stated above, and when the family had risen it was the subject of general remark and comment. On Sunday noon the young lady received a despatch from New York, informing her that her sister had died suddenly at the very hour the apparition appeared in her chamber.

BREAKING THE BONDS.—A daughter of Rothchild is about to break through the traditions of the family by marrying a man who is neither a relative nor Jew. The almost royal respectability of the family is very much scandalized by the wrongheadedness of the wayward young lady, but love, it seems, is stronger than duty in this case, and Miss Rothchild is determined to marry the man of her affections. The fortunate prospective bridegroom is said to be the Hon Mr. Yorke, son of the Earl of Harlow. The dislike of the lady's father to the match is increased by his failure to discover in him any qualities of either head or heart which justifies his daughter's fondness for him, but the old man isn't in love and the young lady is, which makes a great difference.

Father Newman.

Father Newman has given a speedy denial to the story which, circulated in whispers for the last three years in England, has at last been put into print by Mr. Capes in the Guardian, and circulated by the newspapers and correspondents of England and America. Father Newman claims that, so far from being in disagreement with the head of the Church and the Council of the Vatican on the subject of Papal infallibility, he himself promulgated that dogma in 1852, in his "Discourses, on University Education," delivered in Dublin. He quotes a passage from one of these discourses, reprinted at Rome by Father Cardella in 1867, with the author's permission, in which these words occur: "Deeply do I feel, ever will I protest, for I can appeal to the ample testimony of history to bear me out, that, in questions of right and wrong, there is nothing really strong in the whole world, nothing decisive and operative, but the voice of him to whom have been committed the keys of the kingdom and the oversight of Christ's flock. That voice is now, as ever, it has been, a real authority, infallible when it teaches." (The italics are Newman's.) Numerous sentences are given to other works of the writer, which like reasoning appears. As to the charge that Father Newman has converted himself by some quibble into accepting what his heart could not believe, and that the operation had cost him considerable pain, he says in the present letter: "It is true I was deeply though not personally pained both by the fact and by the circumstances of the definition; and when it was in contemplation I wrote a most confidential letter, which was surreptitiously gained and published, but which I have not a word to retract. The feelings of surprise and concern expressed in that letter have nothing to do with a screwing one's conscience to profess what one does not believe, which is Mr. Capes' pleasant account of me. He ought to know better."

A Telegraph Pole.

An Ancient authority tells us to look for beauty in the old cat's face. Granting that this is an unlikely object for aesthetic admiration, we are still more surprised at its being an object of beauty. But on contemplating the poles recently erected by the Dominion Telegraph Company on Church and Wellington streets we are forced to admit that such an unpromising subject is capable of being "artistic." The beauty of this line principally consists in the arrangement of the cross pieces, and viewed from a little distance our reader will find for himself that the poles in question are graceful and pleasing. One thing leads to another, from the poles without we were led to make some enquiries respecting the working of the Company within, and we were not less astonished than pleased at the extraordinary progress this Company has been making lately. In the published statement submitted at the general meeting held in January, 1871, it was shown that up to that period 629 miles of poles had been erected, 1,119 miles of wire had been strung, and thirty-three offices put in operation. During the year we learn that the pole mileage has been increased from 629 to 1,175 miles; the mileage of wire from 1,116 to 2,265, and fifty additional offices have been opened, raising the whole number to eighty-three in the Province of Ontario. Since the date of that report (the 14th of February last) the number of offices has risen to two hundred, and from twelve to fourteen hundred additional miles of wire are strung, so that now the company taps all the trunk lines and has offices thickly sprinkled throughout the entire province. This speaks well for the enterprise of the Company and the accommodation afforded to the public. With respect to the gentlemanly courtesy of the officers at all times display, it is not requisite to speak, for all who have had any dealings with the Company are fully aware of this pleasing feature.

We will in future respect a telegraph pole, for the contemplation of this particular one led to our acquiring the above very pleasing information.—Exchange.

SWEET.—"Come in, there's a fire in the parlor," were the whispered words we heard while passing a house on one of our principal streets last evening.—It is such little courtesies as these that increase fuel dealers' profits, elevate and to the confectionery business to over six story wedding cakes before the winter is over. They are lovely.

TREMENDOUS SUCCESS!

Ready Pay Principle Victorious

THE NEW STORE

"CASH" is now doing DOUBLE THE AMOUNT OF TRADE for Ready Pay that any Credit Establishment in Guelph is doing.

WHY?

Because for Ready Pay a small profit only is asked, the money is turned over five times when Ready Pay is made, but the credit system entails an extra per centage added in making goods, in order to guard against bad debts. The man who gives credit cannot buy his goods as well as the man who does not.

WHY?

Because he has to buy his stock on credit, and is thereby deprived of the large saving to be made by buying for cash, but the man who sells for ready pay has the money in hand when he goes to market, and can take every benefit that the trade will offer.

Such being the case, who can wonder at the great rush there is going on at present at the new store. Cash is creating quite a panic among the slow coaches who have been living at their ease on large profits, and he is now going to make a shaking among the dry bones.

Hurry up with your money Don't forget the spot,

THE Sleeping Murderer.

The wind whistled without, the rain fell heavily, and the cold was increasing every hour. With a shiver I drew my chair nearer to the fire, and remarked to my companion: 'What an awful night!'

He assented, adding: 'I don't think I'm superstitious, but I can't help regarding this night, the 17th of January, as under a sort of curse.'

'Why so?' I questioned.

'There hangs a tale,' he replied, lighting a fresh cigar.

'Let's have it,' was my laconic rejoinder.

Now, this companion of mine was something of a character in his way. His name was Bill Brentford, and we had been inseparable friends, until at the age of eighteen we parted—he to enter his uncle's store in London, and I to cultivate the farm in Suffolk, which had been in my family for eight generations. From that time we saw but little of each other. Bill soon tired of the monotonous life of a clerk and, following the bent of his own inclinations, he entered the detective force. At the time of which I am writing, he was one of the most efficient officers.

During my rare and hurried visits to London, I always stayed with Bill. He had never married, but he had kept up a bachelor's establishment in two snug rooms, next door to a first-rate eating house, from which his meals were sent to him. A luxurious fellow, was Bill, when off duty, but in the pursuit of his business, nerves and frame alike seemed made of iron.

But to return to the night of which I was speaking. Bill enjoyed telling a story, and told one admirably; so I, too, lighted a fresh cigar, and leaned comfortably back in my chair, to listen with a feeling of delightful satisfaction.

Bill smoked a few moments, in silence and then:

'Did you ever hear of the Rutland murders, Dick?'

'Well, no,' I replied, 'I can't say that I did.'

'Of course not. You country fellows never do hear anything. Jupiter, what a life!'

Jupiter was Bill's favourite expression, and he always said it very slowly, and with great energy.

Well, the first of these happened in 1859, ten years to-night, and the second in 1867. They were both committed on the night of the 17th of January, between the hours of eleven and two.

There was an old man by the name of Clark Rutland, who owned a tall, rather gloomy-looking house, out toward Paddington. He was a widower, and very rich, and his child, having married against his will, he had disinherited her and adopted a nephew, a feeble, indolent, good-looking sort of a chap.

This fellow, David Rutland, was married at the time his uncle adopted him, and had one child, a boy of five years, the handsomest little creature I ever set eyes on. The mother had gipsy blood, they said, and she looked it. Just after they came to live with the old man, a robbery was committed in the house, and I had charge of the affair; so that's the way I came to know all about them.

It was when the child, Mark Rutland, was sixteen, that the first of the murders took place. David Rutland had been dead long ago, and young Mark was looked upon as the old man's sole heir. I had been to the North, on some business, and when I got back the first piece of news I heard was that old Mr. Rutland had been found dead in his bed, with a wound through his heart, made by some sharp slender instrument which must have let out the life instantly. His servant testified that he always slept with a long thin dagger beside him, which he had brought from Spain in his youth, and valued very highly. This dagger was missing and could not be found though the strictest search was made for it.

The case was a very dark one and not a trace of the murderer could be found. I was too young then to have anything to do with the management of the affair but I was greatly interested in it. At length all search after the murderer was given up and Mark Rutland under the guardianship of his mother entered by will into possession of everything.

Now nothing in the world hurts me so badly as to be baffled in a case even though, as in this instance it is not my own. I hated to give this one up, so I took careful notes of it, and laid them aside for future use, if I should ever be so fortunate as to get hold of a clue to the mystery.
