THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES

The San Juan Arbitration.

Railway Accident.

Australian Telegraph Line Completed.

Fire in Boston.

A Conductor Shot.

London, Oct. 23. - A written judgment on the San Juan Arbitration has already been given by the Jurists, by whom the case was submitted. It only wants the signature of the Emperor. It decides in favour of the United States and in making the channel De Haro the boundary. The cause of delay in communicating judgment is that an English diplomatic intrigue is on foot, the object of which is to so modify the Emperor's judgment as to cause the arbitration to become a failure. Mr. Odo Russell, the English minister at Berlin, therefore strives to prevent the Emperor in acting on the judgment rendered by the Jurists, and is endeavoring to raise a false issue. The article in the Times of October 18th, was inspired by foreign office. It presents the view the government urges at Berlin, saying that the Emperor may decide upon any one of the three charges, and falsely the words of the Treaty. The judgment is required on two specified points. Should Mr. Russell fail to get a declaration favoring the intermediate channel for boundary, he is to labor for negative judgment, that is, that neither De Haro nor Rosario is the channel described in the Treaty. Thus the Arbitration will fall like that submitted previously to the King of the Netherlands, who, instead of giving a definite decision, recommended a compromise. The efforts of Princess Victoria, the wife of the Crown Prince, have been enlisted by those engaged in the intrigue. M. Bleichroder, a Jew banker, and an intimate associate of Bismarck, is very useful in the matter to Mr. Russell, and has just been appointed British Consul General at Berlin.

Portsmouth, Oct. 22. - The Pullman train on the Eastern Railway, hence for Boston, at three o'clock this morning ran into a freight train at Seabrook, 16 miles from here. One man killed and a number injured.

London, Oct. 22. - The Australian Telegraph Line is completed, and communication is now open with Melbourne. A despatch from that city dated the 21st inst. is published this morning, but it contains nothing of importance.

Boston, Oct. 22nd. - The building known as the Pavilion on Tremont street, occupied as a dry good store, was damaged by fire to-night to the amount of $70,000 or $80,000.

St. Louis, Oct. 22. - As a passenger train on the Atlantic & Pacific Railway was leaving Marsville, between 9 and 10 o'clock last night, Conductor Perch, on entering the car, was shot by an unknown man, and killed. It is supposed the deed was committed by a man who had been put off the train for refusing to pay his fare. The murderer escaped, but the citizens are after him.

The steamship Hibernian had a narrow escape from going ashore on George's Island, while trying to enter Halifax harbor in a fog on Saturday night.

A telegram from London states that the steamer Zetonia, while proceeding from Blackwall to the river Rhine, collided with an unknown vessel, and sunk down afterwards. All on board except two persons were saved.

The Manitoba Liberal understands that the Merchants' Bank of Canada is about to open immediately an agency in the Province of Manitoba, under the management of Mr. Duncan McArthur, who has for the last seven years conducted the investment department of the Hudson's Bay Company in Montreal.

FIFTY HORSES BURNED IN CHICAGO. - A fire broke out on Monday evening in a large barn belonging to the West Side Omnibus Company, West Madison street, and spreading with incredible rapidity soon destroyed the entire structure and its contents. Fifty horses were burned to death.

LETTERS FROM DR. LIVINGSTONE. - Miss Agnes Livingstone, daughter of Dr. Livingstone, has published a letter from her father, in which he says, "I have written two letters to Mr. Bennett. I meant to keep the materials to myself, but because the expedition was expensive, I gave Mr. Stanley what would help him to write a book. In his hands it is harmless, for Americans are good and generous friends."

HAMILTON AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY. - At the meeting of the Hamilton City Council on Monday night, the Mayor brought up the subject of the Hamilton and North-Western Railway, and urged the granting by the city of a bonus of $100,000. Notice having been given, the matter will come up at the next regular meeting of the Council, and there seems no doubt that a by-law granting $100,000 will be passed both by the Council and by the people.

The herring-fishing of Labrador is likely to be up to the average of previous years.

The Allan Line of Steamers.

We have just seen a long description from the Liverpool Journal of Commerce of Sept. 16, of the splendid new steamship Polynesian, which was launched that month, and made her first trip across the Atlantic in the beginning of this month. She is one of the largest of the Allan fleet, of 4000 tons burthen. The passenger accommodation of the "Polynesian" is very extensive and of a high and superior character, sleeping and other accommodations being provided for fourteen hundred adults. Of these two hundred can be comfortably accommodated in the cabin as first and second class passengers, whose state-rooms or sleeping apartments are on the awning and spar decks. From the great size of the vessel these dormitories are large, roomy, and fully lighted, and most comfortably ventilated. They are, moreover, furnished in a style of commendable elegance and good taste.

The stowage accommodation of the "Polynesian" is most ample, being sufficient to accommodate 1,500 individuals. The dormitories and mess rooms required for the conveyance of so large a number of passengers are necessarily extensive, and the utmost care has been devoted to the arrangement of this department as to insure salubrity and comfort. The space appropriated to this important department of the passenger trade has been studiously arranged to secure thorough but regulated ventilation - indeed, the ventilation of every part of the vessel has been most attentively considered and capiously provided for. The sanitary arrangements of every part of the ship are of the most perfect character, and also ample in extent. She is fully provided with hose and other means for extinguishing fire, and carries ten large life boats of the strongest and best construction. In fact every improvement which could conduce to comfort and safety has been adopted. This line now consists of first-class steamers, all thoroughly equipped, and everything is done by the owners and officers to make the passengers, whether cabin or steerage, comfortable.

D'Aubigne, the Historian.

The great historian of the Reformation has just died, at the advanced age of 78. Jean Henri Merle D'Aubigne, D. D., was born at Geneva in 1794, and was educated partly in his native city and partly in Berlin. After his ordination he was for many years pastor of a French church in Hamburg, and for a still longer period filled a similar position in Brussels, where he was the favorite court preacher of the King. In 1830 D'Aubigne returned to his native city, where he received the appointment of professor of church history in a newly established theological school. His first publication was a volume of sermons, but he was afterwards a voluminous historical writer. His principal productions, such as the "History of the Reformation in the 16th Century," "Recollections of a Swiss Minister," "Character of the Reformer and the Reformation of Geneva," &c., are nearly all intimately connected with that stirring period which he had studied so deeply and which he so well loved to depict. His "History of the Reformation" has, in the English translation, become familiar to every reader of history, and, partly by its artistic excellence, partly from the ability and philosophic tone of the writer, places him at once in a lofty and enduring position as an historical writer. M. D'Aubigne died, as he had for the greater portion of his life lived, at Geneva, his native city - a spot more famous than almost any other in Europe, both for its literary associations and for the turbulent impetuosity with which the waves of ecclesiastical struggle once surged around it.

Departure of the Governor of Manitoba.

(From the Liberal) We were not a little surprised to hear that some night during the past week Lieutenant Governor Archibald left this Province for good, without even bidding his friends or enemies good-bye. For once during the last two years, we believe that he has treated both friends and foes alike, and has left the province unnoted, unloved, and unmissed. Governor Archibald no doubt leaves Manitoba a sadder and a wiser man. It is said that some time back he felt heart sick of this country; but all the difficulties which he met with, and the obstacles which he had to overcome, were those of his own creation. He had a glorious prospect before him had he acted the part of a statesman, shown a more independent spirit, and not allowed himself to be led away by wily and designing men. Mr. Archibald, when he came to the Province two years ago, could have given satisfaction had he endeavored to deal justly with all parties. This he did not do, and the result is that he now leaves the country to his successor, Mr. Morris, in a state of anarchy greater by far than that which prevailed two years ago. It is to be hoped that the successor of Mr. Archibald will take a lesson from his shortcomings, and although the task is a difficult one, immediately set himself to rectify the errors of the past. It is to be hoped that the successor of Mr. Archibald, whether Governor or Administrator, will at once show the people that he will make their representatives in the Cabinet responsible to them, and that every Cabinet Minister must discharge his own duty. By the manner in which Governor Archibald assumed the whole management of affairs in the country, he looked the challenge to the people that he will make their representatives in the Cabinet responsible to them, and that every Cabinet Minister must discharge his own duty. By the manner in which Governor Archibald assumed the whole management of affairs in the country, he looked the challenge to the people that he will make their representatives in the Cabinet responsible to them, and that every Cabinet Minister must discharge his own duty.

CHAPTER XXII.

A FOUL DEED—THE MISSING ONE.
And now the silent, solemn solitary night reigned over the scene, and no voice broke the stillness to tell of the crime which had been done. The great hush of peace and quiet was universal, and nowhere deeper and more profound than round the shaft of the old mine, down which poor George had been so ruthlessly thrown. After that one last despairing cry all had become still—terribly still, and the stillness remained undisturbed. Nothing but the broken bars of the wooden protection, and a trampled tuft of grass here and there, gave indication of the deadly struggle—the fearful tragedy—the cruel murder—that the spot had witnessed. Gently as ever the low night breeze rustled along the ground and stirred the branches over head, sweetly and calmly as ever the stars twinkled in the vault of blue, so supremely indifferent is Nature in her magnificent life and motion to the sins and sufferings, the crimes and wrongs, which human weakness inflicts and human innocence endures. Surely oh surely, behind that veil of earth and sky, which neither shudders nor trembles when the most horrible crimes are perpetrated, and marking and reserving all things for a day of accounting. Nothing but this thought can reconcile us to the majestic apathy of the universe in presence of the foulest deeds and crimes. But for such faith, the hush of silence resting this night on the woods and fields of Ardgowan would be a sad and hopeless mystery.

The Horse Epidemic

The following letter from Mr. D. McEachran, V. S., to the Council of Agriculture, Province of Quebec, may prove useful to those with affected horses:—

Keep them in the stalls; keep the stable warm, 66° to 68°; clothe the body and bandage the legs; give them whatever they will eat.

When the ears and legs become cold, with the pulse weak and the breathing quick, rub the sides well with ammoniacal liniment, and give two fluid ounces of ammonia acetatis, with half an ounce of spirits of nitrous ether, in a bottle of good old beer three times during the twenty-four hours, with as much gruel or linseed tea as can be drenched into them, if they don't drink.

On no account let them get chilled, either by being taken out, or the doors being left open; but see also that the stable is kept perfectly clean, all manure immediately removed, and the floors well dusted with carbolic powder.

And may I add to the owners—if you wish to save the lives of your horses, do not force the poor staggering animals to work. Even if they do not drop dead on the streets, as many have done, and supposing even they do not die from the disease, the injury done to the lungs and system generally will render them almost worthless. Old horses more especially seem to suffer from the congested condition of the lungs and weakened circulation, and require all care possible.

Grief, excessive anxiety, or prolonged study will produce infirmity in the nervous system, in proportion as the strength of that system is expended upon the mind in troubled thought, so are the organs of digestion, assimilation and nutrition, rendered inactive and sluggish in proportion as the system becomes infirm. Every individual has some one organ weaker than the rest, and this is always the first to suffer during nervous prostration; for example, ailing news sometimes causes total suspension of the muscular action of the heart, when the patient is debilitated, producing sudden hemorrhage and death. No doubt any longer remains of the practicability of restoring the nervous system, and through the nerves the muscles of the impaired organs. Fellow's Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites has been proved to possess such power in numerous instances. It will impart strength to overcome trouble and affliction. Persons who are accustomed to look upon the dark side, and who see no pleasure in living, on using this Syrup soon learn to value and enjoy life, and those who study deeply or through long hours, will find in the Syrup a promoter of the power of endurance in the brain.

To better evidence of the progress of the disease can be added, than the fact that there has, or will be, opened out this fall in the vicinity of the market about twelve or fourteen new stores, and two or three new foundries in other parts of the town.
