Freight Increase Has Been Reduced

(Berwick Register.)

The organized fruit growers of Nova Scotia have again demonstrated to the world that co-operation is a mighty fact.

As soon as the unreasonable increase of ocean freight rates was communicated to this office it was recognized that unless immediate action was taken the Annapolis Valley would be subjected to a tax which would be nothing short of murderous to its industry.

The increase of 32 cents per barrel was utterly indefensible; the claim of the steamship companies that additional war risks had to be paid did not form sufficient excuse as less than half the amount of the advance would more than cover any additional cost in that direction.

It was simply an attempt on the part of the combine to take advantage of the war to make those who were forced to ship pay a rate that would make bigger profits for the steamship owners.

There were two ways of combating this menace; one was an appeal to the powers that be at Ottawa and the other was by chartering boats owned by concerned outsiders of the Atlantic combine.

The United Fruit Companies pursued both courses.

A strongly worded protest was immediately mailed to the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

The shippers of the United States were also appealed to with a view to bringing pressure to bear on the combine through the American trade.

It was found that the American shippers were all ready to co-operate with the United Fruit Companies who were alone on the Canadian side in fighting the increase in a determined manner.

The Dominion Fruit Conference was about to be held and the officials of the United Fruit Companies attending that conference were instructed to bring the matter forward to an emergency.

In the meantime the strongest weapon of the organized fruit growers was used.

Steamship brokers were instructed to ascertain what independent tonnage was available for chartering and it was quickly found that no difficulty would be experienced in obtaining all the boats necessary to lift the United Fruit Companies' apples.

The United Fruit Companies informed the International Combine that they proposed chartering independent boats and as an indication that this was no idle threat two boats were chartered.

This had the desired effect and quickly we were notified that the steamship companies had decided to reduce the increase by 19 cents.

Now the moral to be drawn from this short but sharp fight is that organized and united, the fruit growers of the Valley are a power, a power that can demand and obtain fair treatment.

The fact that the organized fruit growers were powerful enough to charter their own boats and powerful enough to be absolutely independent of the regular steamship lines has saved the Valley 19 cents on every barrel of apples that will be shipped.

Consider what this means. If only 600,000 barrels are shipped this year the United Fruit Companies will have saved the Valley $114,000 in the pockets of the growers instead of the pockets of the steamship companies.

You, Messrs. Growers, take a pencil and ascertain how much the United Fruit Companies have saved you. Take the number of barrels you will have to ship and multiply it by 19 cents and there you will realize how much the United Fruit Companies was worth to you on that one item alone.

You, readers who have stayed aloof from the Co-operative Movement, and you, who cannot look beyond parties, just take a pencil and ascertain what has been saved you, and thus realize what your neighbors have done.

It is the same always with Co-operation: All benefit by its work but very rarely indeed will those outside admit it, they will rather continue selfishly to enjoy the benefits it confers on all and never do a thing to help on the good work.

The object lesson of the attempted oppression of our industry by the steamship companies and the successful fight of the co-operators should make a co-operator of every fruit grower in the Valley.

What would have happened this year had the fruit growers been working individually as in years gone by?

The advanced freight rates would have gone into effect and the growers would have had to pay or allow their fruit to rot. The few big shippers probably would not have paid the increase but that would only be a repetition of what has happened previously and the ordinary growers would have had to pay while a few privileged individuals would not, and by taking space and retailing it to smaller shippers, would have become just so much richer at the expense of their less fortunate brethren.

As individuals the growers can do nothing; as an organized body working co-operatively they are a power to be considered.

Ottawa Letter

Mr. Editor:

One more I will attempt to write a line for "The Monitor" and as we at the present time hear so much of the activities of this most cruel war, it may be fitting that I communicate a few thoughts along that line. Probably in no era of the world's history, even in the "dark ages" when Attila, with his hordes of barbarians over-ran all civilized Europe, has greater cruelties been perpetrated than by the German army.

The very manner in which the war was inaugurated proves, that Germany acknowledges no right but force. They who shape Germany's policy recognize no code of honor, no moral or international obligation.

The violation of heroic Belgium was a dastardly act that has few parallels in history, and this infamy has been typical of the German campaign. War is terrible enough under any condition, but this war has been rendered yet more terrible by the pitiless savagery of the German army. Savagery which has placed the Kaiser before the world as the chief of a horde of assassins.

For the massacring of non-combatants, the binding together of prisoners as a shield for German soldiers, the mutilating of the wounded, the perpetration of unspeakable outrages against women and children, the burning alive, and burying alive of helpless men, the indiscriminate sowing of mines in the high seas, those are not acts of war, they are atrocities worthy of fandish assassins.

The German campaign was infamous in conception. It has been diabolical in execution.

An ordinary man who commits a murder is sent to the gallows. The despot who is responsible for this orgy of murder and outrage is hailed as the great and august.

War Lord, of a nation that perches itself upon its intellectuality and culture, "German intellectuality" and "German culture." What grim irony to these terms.

The pitiless destruction of beautiful Louvain, and the dropping of bombs upon Antwerp, attacking a sleeping city, like hyenas in the night, have naturally won for the Kaiser the execration of the civilized world.

He has made a lamentable attempt to justify the savagery of the German army by asserting that Belgian civilians attacked his soldiers, but German soldiers had no more right to march through Belgium than a body of bandits would have to enter your homes, or mine, the Kaiser's attempted justifications of German savagery cannot remove the stigma of barbarism that now attaches to the German army. William the infamous, has well been compared to Attila of Old. Even those who make this comparison, insult the memory of the original Hun.

And then the sippant manner in which the Kaiser has seen fit to associate the holy name of God with his iniquitous campaign. It is impious, it is blasphemous.

Congratulating the Crown Princess upon a victory her husband was alleged to have won, the Kaiser wired her: "I rejoice with you in Wilhelm's first victory. How magnificently God supported him." For all the world as if the Deity had been pressed into firing line as a German conscript, and had done his work sufficiently well to deserve a word of commendation from the Kaiser.

Germany's part in this war has been characterized by duplicity and treachery, by intolerable arrogance, by flagrant contempt for all that is honorable, by cynical disregard for the sanctity of human life, by acts of atrocity not surpassed in any war between savages.

Blasphemy is a fitting climax to the series of enormities that have made the name of the mad Kaiser infamous for all time to come.

Now we realize Britain's honor, and the honor of the whole Empire is at stake. England entered into the war, because of a "scrap of paper" because Britain's honor is a glorious reality, because the Union Jack stands for all that is most noble.

True to its splendid traditions, the Empire is championing the cause of right, against might, of freedom against tyranny, of honor against infamy; if you please civilization against barbarism.

In such a contest we need have no misgivings as to the ultimate result for "Shall the Judge of all the earth not execute justice?" Never have the British colors been borne in a more righteous conflict, never have the resources of the Empire been employed in a more upright war than in this struggle against the dehumanizing militarism of an utterly unscrupulous power, and it is splendid to note that in the forthcoming of the Belgian delegates, in the interest of humanity that your own honored Premier of Nova Scotia, has given the people of Canada a lead in doing something to alleviate the sufferings of the peace-loving, down-trodden Belgians when he has called upon the people to contribute anything, both edible and wearing apparel, and that the people as a whole are not backward in doing all in their power. All honor to Premier Murray, and the generous, loyal, true-hearted people of the Province. Canada as a whole is ready to spend her last dollar and give up her last man in defence of the Empire, and our just cause.

Mr. Editor I did not intend to make this article so lengthy when I began, but as we are all stirred by this awful, I might say armageddon, that when I began I felt I could not write less.

The weather in this part of Canada, has been for over a week extremely hot, some days over 90 in the shade, unusual for the time of year.

Our Central Canada Exhibition which was held last week, was a success, but not as largely attended as last year. The stock, especially in horses and cattle was the finest ever seen here. Crops are good and have been splendidly harvested.

Trusting this will be of sufficient interest for insertion, I remain,

Sincerely,

H. W. M.

WAR BRIEFS

In the village of Podoretel, in East Prussia, the Russians found the body of a Russian subject bound to a stake and burned to the waist. This is official.

A new kind of gun is used by the French to throw turpentine, a substance the nature of which is kept secret, but which is said to produce instantaneous and painless death to every living thing reached by its fumes.

Post-mortem examinations of German dead on the battle field have revealed the fact that many of these starving men had tried to sustain themselves by earth-covered roots hastily dug up in the fields.

It is told on reliable authority that thirteen English nurses returned from the battle field with both hands cut off, and are now being treated in a London Hospital.

Whereas German Cruisers have sunk, captured or caused to be interned ships whose tonnage totals 236,635, the British record of German ships sunk, captured or interned is 1,190,000 tons.

A dispatch from France says that 5000 Italians under General Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of General Ricciotti Garibaldi are leaving to fight the Germans.

German coal owners not being able to fulfil their contracts with Portuguese railroads, British firms will supply the lack.

The German colony in New Guinea has been occupied by Australian forces without opposition.

The sum raised by the women of Canada for a Hospital ship totalled $285,960. It is judged best to devote the most of this amount to a naval hospital near Portsmouth.

Large orders for blankets, socks, boots, sweaters and other clothing are being given by the War Office, London to Canadian firms.

It was a former resident of Manitoba who dropped three bombs from his aeroplane on the Zeppelin shed at Dusseldorf, Germany.

Last Sabbath, the 4th inst. was the day set apart by President Wilson for prayer by the people of the United States for the speedy termination of the war. There was a very general observance of the request.

Persons coming from Europe report that one marked result of the war is that people of all ranks and conditions are flocking to the Churches, as never before. "Our fathers trusted in Thee; they trusted and Thou didst deliver them."

An Englishman visiting Valcartier said, "You Canadians go to war like Covenanters." Gathered around a bonfire, hundreds of lusty voices were singing, "A mighty fortress is our God; 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' Abide with me," and other familiar songs. The B. & F. and Canadian Bible Society presented each soldier with a New Testament.

"For my part I say, that sooner than be a silent witness, which means in effect a willing accomplice of this tragic triumph of force over law, and of brutality over freedom, I would that this country of ours be blotted out of the page of history."—Premier Asquith.

The Imperial Government has issued a proclamation forbidding trade with Germany and Austria. The Canadian custom authorities have advised a similar course. This is to stop supplies to Germany which would help to lengthen the war.

On the 30th September, the Jews of Montreal met on the holiest day of their Calendar, the day of atonement, and during the service prayed for the speedy termination of the war.

Annapolis County Boy Makes His Mark

The following clipping is taken from a recent issue of "Among the Clouds" a paper published during the tourist season at the summit of Mt. Washington. The Mr. Buckler referred to is Mr. Reginald H. Buckler at one time a member of the Monitor staff. He was born in Dalhousie West and learned the printing trade in the office of the Annapolis Royal Spectator.

The writer of the paragraph is Mr. Frank H. Burt, who is associated with Mr. Buckler in the publishing of the paper. The Monitor extends congratulations and best wishes to "Reg."

"To speak in the first person, I want here to put on record my gratitude to my associate, Mr. Buckler, who has managed the paper for five years. Other duties have made it impracticable for me to devote personally the time to the conduct of the paper which I did so many years before the Mount Washington fire. Mr. Buckler's ideas, combined with energy and judgment, have made it possible to carry on the paper successfully under the trying conditions that have existed since the fire, and how well he has succeeded a host of his friends in the mountains will attest. It is pleasure to acknowledge the good work he has done in keeping up the standing and traditions of an old, established newspaper.

There are special causes for congratulations and good wishes to Mr. Buckler, to be shared by another. He was married yesterday to Miss Eunice Walker, of Poland, Maine, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's sister at Mechanic Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Buckler will make a brief tour through the mountains, and will leave in the Fall for Bermuda, where Mr. Buckler takes up new duties as manager of The Imperial Hotel. His experience of several years at the Princess Hotel in Bermuda, and his knowledge of what the travelling public need for their comfort and enjoyment, leave no question of his success, and I am sure that those who have known him in connection with "Among the Clouds" will be glad to meet Mr. and Mrs. Buckler in the sunny isle of Bermuda."

Charged with Murder

(The Outlook.)

In connection with the shooting of Hall and Joudry at Lake George, Aylesford, mentioned last week, Geo. Young of Lake Paul, one of the three young men referred in our report of the affair has been arrested.

Young was separated from his two companions for about three hours on the morning of the shooting. It is reported that Young had been in the habit of coming to Joudry's place to see a girl living there and that he chose occasions when the proprietor was absent; also that he sometimes brought liquor with him. Joudry, therefore had forbidden him to come to his place.

Although Young and Joudry were not on speaking terms it is reported that the former enquired particularly the direction in which Joudry and Hall had gone shooting and that when leaving his companions on the excuse that he had forgotten something he went in the direction in which Hall and Joudry were supposed to be.

When Young returned three hours later his companions referred to the shots they had heard and asked if he had fired them. His answers were of a nature to arouse suspicion when the shooting of the two men was learned.

Young was examined before stipendiary W. H. Robinson of Aylesford and committed for trial at the session of the Supreme Court to be held this month.

Men's overcoats, women's coats and cloaks, men's suits, women's suits, men's underclothing, women's underclothing, boys' dresses and suits, clothing, girl's underclothing, boys' underclothing, men's socks, women's stockings, children's stockings, men's shoes, women's shoes, children's shoes, mufflers and miscellaneous wearing apparel, blankets, quilts and other bedding.

Testimony of Great Men

In all the fields of human effort no fact is more certain than this—that there is never room for the drinker at the top. Let us take the testimony of some great men. Andrew Carnegie says: "I am not a temperance lecturer but I know and I tell you that you are more likely to fall in your career from acquiring the drink habit from all the other temptations that will assail you."

Emperor William requires a chauffeur for his automobile. It is the hand of beer and personal liberty. A man of unblemished reputation applies who seems to be the ideal man but the royal agent asks him "do you drink alcoholic liquors?" The man confesses to an occasional glass of beer and the agent shakes his head. The man says "I was never drunk in my life." The agent answers "yes but many many men are a little drunk when they think they are quite sober—the vision just a little blurred, the hearing a little dulled, the attention a little slowed, the judgment a little confused."

Luther Burbank requires an assistant in the making of new fruits and flowers. Here comes a young man,

War Articles

The "Witness" articles on the War Situation are appreciated throughout Canada by the best informed people, for the clearness and sincerity, as well as for their fine spirit, breath and foresight.

The Montreal "Weekly Witness" is a truly great national paper. It always has been and still is absolutely owned and edited by Dougalls, Mr. John Redpath Dougall being its editor.

While some papers are notoriously and obviously at the beck and call of predatory interests, there are others, like the Montreal "Weekly Witness," that have maintained their independence. It has never grovelled. It has never flouted. It has never pandered. The "Witness" is its unique self, loved by friends, hated by its enemies.

During the past three generations it has conscientiously, devotedly and very efficiently, served its country in many ways, notably in its campaigns for Temperance, Righteousness, Religious Liberty, Education, and Lower Tariffs, looking towards lower cost and higher plane of living. If Canada is not yet enjoying to the full the benefits of these things, it is far ahead of many other countries in most of them, and this is due in no small measure to the stand, or, more correctly, the splendid campaigns of the "Witness" whenever opportunity afforded. The welfare of the Canadian farmer in particular has always been considered of prime importance by the Editor of the "Witness," and the "Witness" has done yeoman service to agriculture.

Generations of our finest Canadian families have literally been "brought up on the Witness," as many of the most eminent Canadians will testify, and they continue its devoted admirers.

Besides the moral and political aspects of this great newspaper, it has attractive features embracing all the interests of the family and a splendid Farm and Poultry Department. Its short and serial stories are strong and fresh, and they alone are worth several times the price—one dollar a year. To bona fide New Subscribers mentioning the name of this paper, one trial year may be had for only 65 cents, or three months on trial only fifteen cents. The publisher, as always, JOHN DOUGALL & SON, "Witness" Office, Montreal.

The "Weekly Witness" has now no connection with any daily newspaper and is the healthier for it.

On Board H. M. S. "Dreadnought"

(From the "Montreal Weekly Witness.")

When them wounded German fellows came a-shakin' up our side I was funny round my stomach, an' my bloomin' British pride trembled like a silly pennant, they was all so human like; They had eyes an' hands an' faces just like any other tike.

But when the horizon's spittin' And we're coughin' back at it Say it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!" An' "I guess—that—hit!"

I was walkin' past a cabin where we kept our prisoners tight, The sentry-go says, "Look here," an' I see a funny sight; There was two of them a-lookin' at a picture in their hand; Just as if there's German mothers in the German Fatherland.

But when we're in the fight line, It's "Forget your thoughts and fire!" While the look-out says beside you, "Steady! Nose her up a little higher!"

When I stopped an' looked to seaward in a tiny breathin' spell I see a Dreadnought starger with her nose deep in the swell; She was struck below the belly, an' she sunk an' gurgled down Very casual like, an' careless; made me sweat to see her drown.

But when we're stripped for action, Say it's "Glory! glory!" then, An' it's "Sweep the sea o' Germans!" As we pick the range again.

We were lyin' close in harbor, coalin' up at Halifax, I was messin' with the range guns, stargin' polish down their backs. There was somethin' in the air—fell like a honny English rain. An' my mate, he says "You're bawlin'!" an' I says, "I guess that plain!"

But when we're sweatin' dirty, An' the sea's unholy red, Says it's "Mates, we'll fight for England Till the sun (itself is dead)!"

ARTHUR L. PHELPS

Two German prisoners were brought from Sydney to Halifax last week because they refused to comply with military orders. They have been sent to Melville Island where they will have the opportunity to repent of their madness, under circumstances which invite repentance.

Canada's Whole Force Will Sail

Dominion Has Given Many Pieces of Artillery to the British War Office

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Sir Robert Borden, who returned to Ottawa from Valcartier today, made the important announcement that Canada has given to the British War Office for use at the front, 104 pieces of artillery of various calibre and about thirty machine guns. Some of these will go forward with the troops. The Premier stated that the delay in forwarding the Canadian force had been altogether due to the difficulty of meeting the requirements regarding transports.

"In company with Sir George Foster and Mr. Rogers, I spent three days at Valcartier Camp," said the Premier. "We met Col. Hughes, and had the opportunity of seeing nearly 25,000 men under review. During the past fortnight the men have improved wonderfully in appearance, and I have no doubt in efficiency. The organization of the camp seems excellent in every way. Everywhere I found most intense anxiety, and even impatience, to get to the front as soon as possible.

"After careful consideration it was determined yesterday to send forward all the effective men in camp, that is, all those who have passed the necessary medical examination. The expeditionary force, including the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will thus number approximately 31,200 men and 7,500 horses. It will comprise eleven batteries of horse and field artillery of six guns each.

British Government in providing guns and rifles have made it essential that Canada should assist in every possible way.

FORTY-SEVEN 18-POUNDERS

Therefore, in addition to the seventy field guns and the machine guns with which the Canadian expeditionary force is equipped, we are arranging to supply the British Government with the following—

"(1) Forty-seven 18-pounders of the most modern type, which had been ordered by the Canadian Government in Great Britain before the outbreak of war to be handed over to the British Government; (2) fifty-one guns of the same type which the Department of Militia has on hand, will go forward on the transports; (3) six 60-pounders will also be sent forward at the same time, (4) about thirty machine guns, ordered by the Canadian Government in England before the outbreak of war. All this is being done by the Canadian Government at the request of the War Office in order to assist in equipping the great army which is being assembled in the Mother Country. It is also expected that a considerable number of rifles will be supplied from Canada to the War Office.

THE TRANSPORT PROBLEMS

"The delay in forwarding the force has been altogether due to the transport requirements, which is very difficult to meet. The force must be under convoy, and the steamers, numbering twenty-eight or more, must sail at the same time. It will be generally understood that the provision of so large a number of steamers suitably equipped for the transportations of men, horses, guns, lorries, field transport and the very numerous articles necessary for the equipment of a modern army is no slight task. The services of Captain Lindsay, of the Marine and Fisheries Department, who is an expert in such matters, have been engaged for many weeks past in assisting the transport department in this matter. A committee of prominent gentlemen experienced in transportation across the Atlantic has also volunteered its services to the Government, and these gentlemen rendered great assistance, for which the thanks of the Government are tendered."

First Dose Ends Indigestion, Heartburn, or Gas on Stomach

The question as to how long you age going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonline Tablets.

People with weak stomachs should take Tonline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonline Tablets.

Go to your druggist and get a $1.00 box of Tonline Tablets and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonline Tablets freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

Tonline Tablets cost $1.00 for a fifty days' treatment. At druggists or mailed by American Proprietary

Artificial Rubber from Coke Oven Gases

(Scientific American.)

Experiments that have been made permit the forecasting of the manufacture of artificial rubber from this source."

Draft Dogs in War

(Scientific American.)

Dogs have long been used in European armies for carrying messages from an advanced post or patrol to headquarters, for watching supplies and the like, for assisting sentinels on the advance lines, and for similar purposes. Shortly before the beginning of the present European conflict, dogs were introduced in the Belgian army as draft animals. American tourists who are at all familiar with Belgium will no doubt recall that dogs are used by the peasantry for the hauling of light loads. It is perfectly natural, then, that the Belgian military authorities should use dogs for the transportation of light machine guns. An interesting article on this subject appears by Capt. Oefele in a late number of Umschau. "In all armies but the Belgian," says Captain Oefele, "machine guns and their ammunition are transported either upon ordinary vehicles drawn by horses or upon the backs of mules and horses. Belgium, which introduced the machine gun only this year, has built specially light vehicles for the transportation of the weapons and their ammunition. The experiments were made with a single company. They were so successful that it was decided to adopt dogs for the transportation of machine guns throughout the army. Each of these machine gun companies consists of three officers, sixty-eight men, six transporting carriages drawn by dogs, and twelve ammunition carts, also drawn by dogs. It was intended eventually to supply each company with forty dogs, which were to be bred and trained at the main dog station at Beverloo. Hence, each company has four dogs in reserve, when its eighteen small carts are harnessed." This idea of transporting machine guns by means of draft dogs was an idea of the Belgian lieutenant van de Putte. A machine gun must be able to follow the infantry, no matter what may be the character of the ground, and must be as invisible as possible on the march as well as in action. Furthermore, a machine gun must be transported as noiselessly as possible and must be set up ready for action as quickly as possible. All these conditions seem to be admirably fulfilled by the system devised by Lieut. van de Putte.

"The gun carriages," continues Capt. Oefele, "are very light, and the harness is so devised that the movements of the animals are hardly impeded. The carts are provided with good springs; their axles run in ball bearings; the wheels are rubber tired; and the carts are so nicely balanced that the dogs need not be harnessed between poles, but simply hitched directly on traces. Each machine gun is drawn by two dogs. The load which can be thus transported is about 420 pounds.

The dogs must not be too heavy. They must be strong and possess considerable endurance. Dark colored dogs are preferred, because they are less conspicuous than light dogs. Still it has been found in practice that even yellow dogs may be used, if they are not too brightly colored. It is very essential, indeed, that the dogs should be anything but combative, and they must not be given to barking. Hence, they must be trained, from puppyhood up, to silence.

In Holland experiments have also been made for the transportation of machine guns by draft dogs, in accordance with the Belgian system. A march of 129 kilometers (77.4 miles) was made in five days, the men, of course, travelling on foot. At night the dogs were fed and slept in stables on straw. They did not suffer at all. After this performance came the regimental exercises. Every day, from seven in the morning until four in the afternoon, the men were put through the usual drill. The dogs showed not the slightest sign of fatigue. They hauled the guns over very difficult ground and were always in position when wanted. While the guns were being fired, they lay quietly on the ground, and were ready on the first signal to haul the guns away to new positions.

During the Autumn manoeuvres of the Dutch troops the animals aroused general admiration. Their endurance and their obedience were remarkable. As soon as the command "Halt" was given or an equivalent signal, the dogs dropped to the ground of their own accord. They had been trained so well that they did not bark either during the manoeuvres or during the night. After the manoeuvres it was thought that they were probably fatigued. The infantry, however, were transported by railway with the machine guns in the same compartments in which the men sat; but although the railway journey lasted from 5 o'clock in the afternoon of one day until 1.30 the following morning, and the dogs were not fed in the meanwhile, they showed no signs of fatigue. They were inspected again fifteen minutes after the manoeuvres, and were found to be in perfect condition.

Home Rule

(The Wesleyan.)

After half a century and more of constant agitation and fruitless effort to pass a Bill for Home Rule in Ireland, such a Bill has now become law by its passage three times in the House of Commons and the consent of the King, such action overcoming the veto of the House of Lords. It received the signature of the King last week. In the meantime its operation is to be suspended until the war is over. Both the Government and the Irish party pledge themselves to introduce an amending bill to satisfy Ulster's demands. During the consideration of the bill Mr. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, said: He hoped that by the time the war was over a settlement acceptable to all concerned would have been arrived at.

There was great enthusiasm when Mr. Redmond invited the Premier to visit Dublin at the earliest possible date, promising to stand beside him in calling for recruits and undertaking that the response would be a striking testimony to the desire of Irishmen to aid England in carrying on "this righteous war."

Referring to the postponement of the act the Premier promised that the Government would introduce in the next session of Parliament another and entirely new amending bill, with the best hope that, under new conditions, something like a satisfactory settlement of the Ulster question might be reached. He declared that any coercion of Ulster was absolutely unthinkable, and "so far as I and my colleagues are concerned this is a thing we shall never countenance or consider."

The Premier asserted that the Government was honestly desirous, at this time of grave national emergency, of acting fairly, reasonably, equitably to all the great interests concerned.

Premier Asquith strongly repudiated the assertion that the Government had violated any of its assurances not to proceed with controversial legislation. To have postponed the passage of the bills until after the termination of the war, he said, would have had a deplorable effect on the Irish race all over the world, and also on Irish recruiting.

A Family of Studio Cats

(By Lida Keck Wiggins)

When posing for my portrait, recently, in a Chicago studio, I was surprised when a soft, round ball dropped into my lap, and settled down comfortably, proving to be a pretty kitten.

"Little Bit is one of the third generation of gray and white studio cats," said the photographer, "and thinks she must pose when any one else does, so just to encourage her and keep her in training, suppose we snap her with you, just like that," and before I was quite sure whether I wanted it, Little Bit and I had been "taken," and she jumped quietly down and curled up in a sunny corner, just like any ordinary little cat!

The photographer then told me the story.

Little Bit's grandmother Lizzie, a stray cat, was first taken to the studio with one of her children. She was taught to pose, especially on top of the camera, to the great delight of children. When Lizzie took her business-like position as if to take pictures, the expression on the children's faces was charming. Lizzie's children and grandchildren were taught this and many other tricks.

"Was it difficult to train them?" I asked.

"Not at all. We trained Lizzie first of all to jump to the new post. Then we gave her to understand that the top of the camera would be an equally advantageous perch. Finally when we would say 'Lizzie, take baby's picture,' she would spring to the camera top and assume such a look of business that every child was fascinated. Then we would say, 'Look, Baby, Kitty is going to take your picture,' and the result was always pleasing.

"One of these studio mother cats adopted a rabbit and a puppy, and who dare molest these children, when woe to other cats, dogs or humans they snuggled up to their adopted mother for their naps! They, too, inherit an ability to pose.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1914

The people of Canada are called upon by the Proclamation of our Ruler to unite on Monday next in thanksgiving to the Giver of all good for blessings conferred upon us during the year now drawing to its close.

It may be that some of our citizens, looking in mind the severe struggle in which the Empire is now engaged, which has taken many of our young men to the seat of war, interested greatly with the customary routine of business, and called for large donations of money and means, which might otherwise have been employed in needed benevolent expenditures at home, have been looking only on the dark side, and imagining that a day of special thanksgiving, at this time to be somewhat out of place.

But, these very events which, when looked upon from one point of view, are so deplorable and even distressing, will, when looked upon from another point of view, furnish real and abundant matter for devout thanksgiving.

For one thing these events have awakened in every patriotic mind sincere thankfulness because the course pursued by the men who are at the head of our national affairs has been so open, frank and honorable, and so plainly in the interest of international peace as to command the admiration not only of our own people, but, of every neutral nation. They have aimed, not at peace at any price, not at peace purchased by a bribe, not at peace which regards solemn treaties merely as "a scrap of paper," but at peace maintained and established in truth and righteousness. That expression "a scrap of paper," will have a place in history through generations and ages to come, as a reproach and disgrace to the Kaiser and his warlords, as well as a reminder of the candor and truthfulness of British diplomacy.

For another thing, circumstances have occurred which have brought clearly to view the fact that the Union Jack floats over an Empire whose people enjoy a measure of civil and religious liberty unsurpassed by any other nation. The very evening the Kaiser proclaimed war, every socialist newspaper was suppressed. No person, no newspaper in Germany dares to express an opinion adverse to the determination of the Kaiser to let loose his warlords against unoffending Belgium in his effort to obtain the sovereignty of the world. In Great Britain it was not so. Lord Morley and John Burns could express their dissent from the course determined upon by the Cabinet and Parliament, but, they suffered no penalty because of the conscientious expression of their opinion.

Another illustration of the same thing comes from South Africa. Brigadier General Beyers, Commandant of the forces of United South Africa, had been consulted in the operations against German South Africa, and his suggestions had been largely carried out. But, he resigned his position and expressed himself very strongly in opposition to what he had before recommended.

General Smuts, Minister of War and Defense, in accepting the resignation reminds General Beyers of the liberty of speech which he enjoys under the British law. Such a letter written in Germany under similar circumstances would have made the writer of it liable to death penalty. Many a German during the regency of William II., has for a less offence been convicted and suffered the penalty of less majesty.

These events of which we have been speaking do not centre in Canada. But, we, the people of Canada, with German cruisers in our waters, seeking to destroy our commerce, and threatening our coastal cities, have been brought to feel more intimately than ever the value of our connection with the British Empire. We may therefore very wisely make these matters subject of careful thought and sincere thanksgiving upon the coming Monday.

Many of our best citizens in every part of Canada, interested in the highest well-being of our people, and especially desirous that the strangers coming from less favored lands to make their home among us should have presented to them examples of the best citizenship, which would be educative and uplifting in their influence, have observed with regret what appears to be a growing tendency to ignore the main purpose of our annual Thanksgiving Day. No one can regret that busy workers in the various forms of industry find respite from exacting toil and opportunity for rest and recreation. Everybody may gladly embrace the privilege the day affords for the reunion of families, the renewal of friendships, as well as for invigorating and healthful sports and pleasures. But, as a Christian people we should not forget the high ideal of thanksgiving furnished in the Proclamation which appoints the day, and which finds amply justification in the ancient invitation, "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise."

THE BELGIAN RELIEF FUND

Previously acknowledged $122.60 From Centreless, proceeds of Pie Social 17.15 Young's Cove 1.00 Crescent Lodge, No. 68, I. O. F. 5.00 Individual Subscribers in Bridgetown 33.25 $159.00

Dear Sir, -In connection with this fund I find there has been a little misunderstanding in some quarters. After consideration it was thought by the Committee that as we were unable to acknowledge all the contributions in "kind" (of food and clothing), and that as donations in cash are in some instances in lieu of "kind" (although in quite a number they are in addition to liberal contributions in other ways), it would be somewhat invidious to publish the individual cash contributions. It was for this reason that, in your last issue, amounts were acknowledged en bloc against the names of those who handed them in, or were paid direct to me simply as Bridgetown or whatever place they came from. Moreover most of the subscribers of the larger amounts asked for no publication. I may say, however, that I have a complete list of subscribers for inspection or publication should it be desired.

Of the amount herewith acknowledged, $125.00 has already been forwarded to Halifax, (see Monday's Halifax papers) and the rest will go forward together with any other subscriptions forthcoming on or before the 15th inst.

Yours truly, ERNEST UNDERWOOD Treasurer.

Round Hill Favors Taxation to Raise Patriotic Fund

A public meeting was held in the hall at Round Hill on Monday evening, 8th inst., to discuss the proposed plan to collect the County share of the Patriotic Fund by taxation. Mr. E. E. McDorman was in the chair, and with him on the platform were Senator W. B. Ross, and Mayor Atlee of Annapolis Royal, who had been invited to attend in order to explain the proposed scheme.

Senator Ross being called upon proceeded in a very interesting manner to explain the origin and purpose of the Patriotic Fund. He was followed by Mayor Atlee, who pointed out that the incorporated towns of the County were prepared to do their full share towards a fund, to which everybody was willing to contribute, and explained why he thought taxation was the fairer and most economical method of collection.

Councillor Marshall spoke in support of the scheme. Several other gentlemen, most of whom frankly admitted that they came prepared to object, spoke in favor of the proposed taxation, and a resolution endorsing the scheme, was unanimously adopted, all present having all objections removed by the able explanations of Senator Ross and Mayor Atlee.

A hearty vote of thanks to these two gentlemen was passed and suitably responded to by both the recipients. Senator Ross in particular being loudly applauded as he pointed out the great benefits enjoyed by all citizens of the British Empire.

After a vote of thanks to the chairman, the meeting, which was characterized by a strong patriotic feeling throughout, closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

R. H. Buckler sends $1.00, G. A. Gossbee, $1.00; the other $2.00 I am sending myself, and you can use it as you think best. Its preparation has cost enormous sums of money, and extensive travel in foreign countries; it is the offspring of fifty years of studious research—and it may be seen for nothing!

London's New Lord Mayor is Sir Charles Johnston

On September 20th, Sir Charles Johnston was elected Lord Mayor of London for the term of one year beginning November 9th, 1914. He succeeds Sir Thomas V. Bowater.

Because of the war there is every probability that the annual pageant in November next will be abandoned and it is probable that the great banquet in Guild Hall which annually marks the installation of the new Lord Mayor will also be omitted.

Col. Hughes to the Rescue

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-lives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th, 1914.
"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by 'Fruit-a-lives'. I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of 'Fruit-a-lives'. I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking 'Fruit-a-lives', I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to 'Fruit-a-lives'."

Through Europe on the Eve of War

A Record of Personal Experience

IV.—PREPARATION FOR WAR AND PREPARATION FOR PEACE GO ON TOGETHER.

When the time for luncheon arrived on Sunday we found that so many of the waiters and cooks of the Insel Hotel had enlisted the night before that it was impossible to serve meals in the garden and we must all have our luncheon together, at one hour, taking the same courses, so at 12.30 we sat down in the great refectory where five hundred years before the monks had sat together eating while some other brother read passages from the Bible or some other holy book. It was also in this room that John Huss had been tried. As a matter of fact the Reformation may be said to have begun in this room. I think that we all felt that perhaps the seeds of Reformation were being sown that day as we sat down fresh from the Upper Chamber and planned together how the church might purge herself of trifles and what she must do to prevent such utter collapse of Christianity as we were witnessing in Europe. These feelings were voiced in the sessions of the afternoon; for after an hour's intermission the Conference reassembled. Even at that hour it was believed that we could go on with our regular Monday and Tuesday sessions. These of our party close to the Kaiser and to the British Government even yet could not believe but what, at the last moment, the unbelievable crisis would be avoided. So, instead of taking up the regular program, the meeting became one of general discussion of what the churches had already accomplished in enlisting their leaders and people in the new order of substituting law for war, justice by courts for force, good-will for hatred, the rivalry of brain and commerce for that of arms and militarism, humanity for a narrow nationalism, patriotism for the kingdom of God for the older patriotism bounded by race and nationality. But of even more importance than this was the discussion of the great task before the church: Where must the new Reformation begin? What must the new Reformation give birth to? What could the awakened church do to extend the rule of Christ over the nations? How could the church be brought to speak the word that should end wars forever?

I doubt if any group ever assembled with a weightier responsibility resting on them than that company felt that afternoon. The time was so short that it was felt best that those who had speeches which had already been printed should simply sum them up and then give them out to be read by the delegates. Mr. Baker then offered his to the assembly. It bore the title, "The Churches and International Friendship." It called attention to the fact that we were meeting on the same spot where five hundred years ago, in 1414, the Council of Constance met. That council was presided over by the Norman Emperor Sigismund and attended by twenty-six princes, one hundred and forty counts, twenty cardinals, twenty archbishops, six hundred prelates, and four thousand priests. Its deliberations lasted three and one-half years. This was the second Council of Constance and he hoped that those gathered here might lay the foundation of a work among the churches of Christendom that, under divine blessing, might promote the peace of the world and Christian brotherhood among the nations.

The Conference of 1414 was concerned with reconciling the warring factions of a single church, with deciding who should be its earthly head, and with establishing unity and harmony where division and dissension had prevailed. We are concerned in finding among the many sections of the church in all Christian countries a basis of agreement which, under the guidance and leadership of our Eternal Head, the Prince of Peace, will enable us to co-operate in bringing near the unity and harmony of his kingdom of righteousness and peace."

Mr. Baker then dwelt upon the fact that the churches must do the foundation work in the peace movement. They must create that disposition and temper which is the soil in which peace may grow; they must educate the people "to look to the moral law rather than to physical force, to right rather than might, for the solution of differences and disputes which from time to time arise." Furthermore Mr. Baker believed that both the rulers and the people look to the church for this leadership. He then surveyed the growth of the movement among the churches of Europe which led to the creation of the British and German Councils. Mr. Baker then called attention to the intolerable condition of Europe arising under armaments, even though no war should come—but they were always a menace and a provocation to war. (It was only one day after this address was made that Mr. Baker's words were verified. It was because all the nations were armed to the teeth that the whole cataclysm came on in a week's time and that no diplomacy could check it. Men trained to fight, with pistols in each hand, will use them under very slight provocation.) He then showed the various agencies at work—peace societies, the Norman Angell group and others—but came back to the final fact, that it will be on moral and spiritual grounds that war will ultimately be stopped. "We believe with Lord Haldane that 'It is not brute force, but moral power, that commands predominance in the world,' and we are here to see if it be not possible to unite these moral forces, as we know them to exist on our Christian lands, and to create such an attitude in our respective countries and among the nations of the world as will, in due time, render war between them an impossible contingency."

ing in heartiest co-operation with the Church Peace Union and had paved the way for its work among the churches. The Council would now devote more attention than ever to this great cause and would work to make the churches of America take that same stand on peace and good-will that Christ himself took. I had also prepared an address for the Conference, but I could not give it in view of what was happening all about me. All I could think of was the collapse of civilization, the din of those falling walls and then and there in our ears, the failure of our Christianity to prevent such a reign of darkness coming upon the earth in the twentieth century of the Prince of Peace, the great primary and elemental work which the church must do after the havoc and destruction were over; even half felt that perhaps a new and different church must be born, just as out of the first Reformation a new church was born. This was so constantly in my mind that every time I spoke, as American secretary of the Conference, I gave voice to these thoughts. I said that the church had neglected itself too much with trifles and had neglected the weightier matters of the law. It had been attacking petty sins, but had not been attacking hatred, revenge, excessive race consciousness, narrow patriotism, and that nationalism which contradicts the kingdom of God. It had been splendidly demanding that individuals love each other (in their own nation), but had not preached that it is just as obligatory that nations love each other. It had preached that was a crime for one man to kill another, but not that it was equally criminal in God's eyes for one nation to destroy another. It had led its people in the weekly commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," but had not led the nations in repeating this universal law of God. It had said to its members, "No Christian will fight his brother with fists," but it had not said, "No Christian nation will fight another nation with iron and powder." It had taught its children that that man was great who loved and served and gave all he had to his fellow-men, but it had not taught them that that alone made a nation great. Indeed, had it not even taught that that nation was greatest which destroyed and subdued weak people, and added empires to its rule? All this will be changed in the church of the second Reformation, the church to be born out of this purging of the nations. Clear and strong its voice will ring out: "There can be but one religion, one law, one standard of conduct in the whole kingdom of God. Nations must come up to the same Gospel as that by which the people live; good men to each other; nations must come up to that same high plane to which the Gospel calls all souls. The kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, while at the same time the people become his also."

Hardly had this afternoon meeting closed when Dr. Sigmund-Schultze received intimations from the local authorities that mobilization was going on fast and the train service becoming more and more irregular. In view of this it was decided to take up at the evening session the most important part of the program, the passing of the four resolutions that had been prepared with a view to determining the future co-operative work of the churches of Europe and America and to making the Conference permanent. In the hour that intervened before dinner several of us strolled through the ancient city. We had been assured of protection and had been warned only in regard to cameras. That very morning we had received a telegram from Dr. Walter Laidlaw and Rivington D. Lord that they had been arrested and detained at Oos, a hundred miles north of Constance, because they had a picture of an airplane on their films. We learned next day that they had been confiscated and deposited in the war museum. Constance was one of the recruiting stations and it was interesting to note the methods the government was taking to stir up the war fever. A big band was stationed in the public square playing "Germany Forever," "The Watch on the Rhine," and other national airs. Officers were strutting about in gorgeous uniforms. Posters were displayed to the effect that Germany was being menaced on every side by her foes. It worked with the young men and boys, but the older men were very grave and sober. No one seemed to have any conception of why the country was being plunged into war. As we walked home we saw the soldiers stopping wagons in the streets and taking out the horses for military uses. Some of the young men were singing but as evening came a very solemn hush settled over the city, broken only by the sound of one company of poor fellows after another being marched off to kill they knew not whom, nor for what reason. All along the streets women were crying as their sons and husbands were driven off to be shot.

We little realized as we re-entered the sheltered Hotel Insel the exciting hour that lay before us. Dr. Sigmund-Schultze had been sent for by the President of the city and informed that all the railroads of Germany were to be handed over to the military authorities the following night (Monday) at twelve for mobilization purposes, and that the only train on which he could offer a certain and safe conveyance through Germany would leave the following morning at nine o'clock; that he could get two special cars on that train which would go to Cologne at least, and perhaps to Holland, under supervision of the government; and that he advised us to take them as there was no telling when there would be another train across Germany. This announcement was made to the delegates as soon as they were assembled and was received with mixed feelings. Some had so set their hearts on carrying out the program of the Conference that they demanded that we stay and take the risks of being kept there for any length of time. Others who had families needing them at home and work which could not be left long insisted on going. But discussion was soon stopped by the sudden announcement sent to me from the hotel office that the bank had closed, that the hotel not only could not advance any of our money, but must close its own doors. There were, eighty people, hundreds of miles from England, with no tickets across Germany and no place to cash our checks. I had letters of credit in my pocket of ample size to get the whole party to London, but they were of no use with closed banks and a bankrupt hotel. What could we do?

Then occurred one of the most interesting events of the Conference, it arose and said, "There are some here who have enough money in gold (the only kind worth anything outside of German paper) to buy their tickets to London but to distribute half a pound to each for food upon the way. There came home to everybody, as perhaps never before, the meaning of the great word community. It was then voted to proceed with the evening session. The first half hour was devoted to prayer and two or three general addresses. Rev. W. P. Merrill, D. D., of New York city, was in the chair and greatly encouraged us all by reminding us that it might be almost providential that we who had been commissioned to lead the churches in the fight against war had been permitted to share these experiences through which Europe was passing. Also we should remember that it was God's world still, although many of his children had forgotten his ways. We were there led in prayer by the Bishop of Lichfield and others, and then we listened to three or four addresses from the representatives of different nations. There was a univocal desire to hear from Professor Sidney I. Gulick, of Japan, and he consequently spoke at this time. His address on "Constructive Methods for Promoting International Peace" made such an impression that I'm printing it as an appendix to this story. The Conference then proceeded to adopt the following four resolutions:

(1) "That, inasmuch as the work of conciliation and the promotion of amity is essentially a Christian task, it is expedient that the churches in all lands should use their influence with the peoples, parliaments and the governments of the world to bring about good and friendly relationships between the nations, so that, along the path of peaceful civilization, they may reach that universal good-will which Christianity has taught mankind to aspire after."
(2) "That, inasmuch as all sections of the Church of Christ are equally concerned in the maintenance of peace and the promotion of good feeling among all the races of the world, it is advisable for them to act in concert in their efforts to carry the foregoing resolution into effect."
(3) "That in order to enable the different churches to be brought into touch with one another, steps should be taken to form in every country councils of either a denominational or interdenominational character (as the circumstances of each case require), whose object it will be to enlist the churches, in their corporate capacity, in a joint endeavor to achieve the promotion of international friendship and the avoidance of war, and that for this purpose a central bureau should be established for facilitating correspondence between such councils, collecting and distributing information and generally co-ordinating the work connected with the movement."

(4) "That the duty of carrying into effect the resolutions arrived at by the Conference be entrusted to a committee consisting of the following members: Mr. J. Allen Baker, M. P., London; Rt. Hon. W. H. Dickinson, M. P., London; Monsieur Jacques Dumas, Paris; Monsieur le Professeur Louis Emery, Lausanne; Monsieur le Pasteur Elie Gouelle, Paris; Rev. E. R. Hendrix, D. D., LL.D., New York; Herr Hofprediger Kessler, Dregden; Herr Konsistorialrat Lutger, Berlin; Rev. Fredrick Lynch, D. D., New York; Edwin D. Mead, Esq., M. A., Boston; Rev. W. P. Merrill, D. D., New York; Monsieur le Senateur E. Reveillard, Versailles; Herr Professor Dr. Ritchie, Berlin; Rev. J. H. Rushbrooke, M. A., London; Herr Pastor Dr. Siegmund-Schultze, Berlin; Very Rev. the Dean of Worcester, with power to add to their numbers, and that the committee do arrange for a further conference to be held at a later date, at which they shall report the result of the work done, and bring forward recommendations for further action."

This committee met in London, Thursday, August 6, and organized with J. Allen Baker, M. P., Chairman; Rev. William P. Merrill, D. D., Vice-Chairman; Rev. Frederick Lynch, D. D., and the Rt. Hon. W. H. Dickinson, M. P., Secretaries. The Conference then adjourned to meet at the Westminster Palace Hotel, London, Wednesday, August 5, at four p. m.

Dehorning Cattle

(F. H. R. In Dumb Animals.)
The cruelty connected with cutting off the horns of cattle is the more to be condemned because it is wholly unnecessary. The time to take off the horns is before there are any horns to take off. It has been published so often in agricultural journals that by the simplest means the growth of the horn can be prevented, that no farmer can plead ignorance. If he has been too lazy or indifferent to take this trouble and prefers to wait till the horns must be sawn off or cut off he deserves punishment for needful and brutal cruelty. A writer in the American Cultivator, while stating that the humane method is the application of caustic potash to the little nub while the calf is under two weeks of age, also says:

"For the removal of grown horns there are many excellent instruments, but thoroughly competent operators often consider nothing equal to an ordinary sharp saw. The horn should be cut off close to the head, even to the extent of removing fully half inch of hair and skin. This is also the least painful method, as one thus cuts where the horn is thickest and the nerve or quick is narrowed down to the thickness of a pencil; and the difference between this and sawing through inches of horn and the same quantity of nerve is obvious. This writer is greatly mistaken in what he says about the nerve or quick being much smaller at the base of the horn. The sensitiveness is greatest the farther one goes toward the base of the horn. At any point it is a very painful operation. Any one who has seen cattle dehorned, heard the moan of the animal, and witnessed the flow of blood, is outraged when told that the animal scarcely minds it. It is a barbarous thing prohibited absolutely in certain countries. Many have an exaggerated notion of the trouble involved in stopping the growth of the horn. Take the calf anywhere under two weeks of age preferably from three to eight days old, moisten the finger in a cup of water and wet well the hair about the little nub where the horn is to start, then rub with a pencil of caustic potash till the place looks quite red. There is no need of clipping off the hair, and to rub till the blood comes is wholly needless. We know because we have done this ourselves repeatedly."

Joker's Corner

She: "But how do I know you love me?"
He: "Why, I can't sleep at nights thinking of you."
She: "That proves nothing. I can't sleep at nights thinking of you; but I hardly think it is love."
You: "I don't know."
"Now, Tommy," said the teacher, "what is a simile?"
"Tommy" hesitated visibly. "I-I-I forgot now," he finally answered.
"But if you said, 'My hours at school are bright as sunshine,' what figure of speech would that be?"
"Irony," responded Tommy.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Ernest was seven years old and was permitted to remain after Sunday School to hear the sermon. Asked at the dinner table if he remembered the text, he exclaimed: "Remember it! Why, good gracious! The preacher didn't remember it himself. He had to get the book and read it."
"Willie," said the teacher, "what shape is the earth?"
"It is an oblate spheroid."
"And what kind of shape is that?"
"I asked father, and he said he guessed it was a scientific way of saying that the world is in mighty bad shape at present."—Washington Star.

Just before visiting the menagerie Johnnie had a passage-at-arms with the young aunt who assisted at his toilet, and with whom he flew into a rage. Arrived at the menagerie, Johnnie was immensely interested by a strange foreign animal with a long like body.
"What animal is that, mama?" he asked.
"It is called an ant-eater, my son. After a long silence—
"Mama, can't we bring Aunt Mary here some day?"

Peep again in your oven. See those loaves, those pleasing loaves you've made. How fat—rounded—substantial. No, they won't fall when colder. Because the Manitoba strength that is in FIVE ROSES will hold them up till eaten. This sturdy elastic gluten has kept them from dropping flat in the oven. No unsightly holes 'twixt crust and crumb—never. All risen evenly—to stay risen. Never heavy—sodden—soggy—indigestible. Yours are the FIVE ROSES loaves—Crabby and appetizing of crust. The proposed method of obtaining money for the National Patriotic Fund by taxing is not meeting with approval in Granville Centre. It is not that people are unwilling to give, for we know of money already sent, and in this great Dominion, which an American paper recently stated "was more loyal than the King," we think there is not another village more anxious to assist our Empire in her hour of need. But the idea of being compelled to give is certainly not a pleasant one to entertain.

On Monday at the Red Cross Committee meeting, it was decided to use the money for the purchase of supplies with which to make Hospital Comforts to be sent soon to the Central Red Cross Committee at Halifax. All are eager to do, feeling that no higher service can be rendered our Empire, than by helping this society in its humane work of caring for our sick and injured defenders at the front, while this horrible war is in progress.
The annual Harvest Festival Services were held in All Saints on Sunday last. The rector, Rev. C. W. Neish, was assisted by the rector emeritus, Rev. F. P. Although the ladies of All Saints always take great pains to make the church beautiful for the thanksgiving service, the result of their efforts this year far transcended that of any other. The abundance of cut flowers, potted plants, fruit and vegetables were most artistically arranged and several were heard to remark the

Mr. Neish, in announcing the social to be given in aid of the Belgians made a splendid appeal to all, irrespective of creed, to do whatever they could in assisting the heroic people, now in such dreadful distress the result of defending their peaceful Belgium against overwhelming German hordes.

Lower Granville's Contribution to the Belgian Relief Work

The past ten days have been a busy time for the women of Granville. On the afternoon and evening of Saturday, Sept. 26, ten of these good ladies met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Elliott there to sew clothing, etc., to be sent on the Belgian Relief Ship, and also to sort and pack such articles as might be contributed by the people of the neighborhood. The workers worked with such a right good will that on Monday four tightly packed barrels were sent forward by rail to Halifax. These barrels contained bedding and much comfortable clothing, and were a credit to the liberality of those who gave. The sewers, reinforced by others, continued their labors through Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday morning a fifth barrel was ready.

Table listing items contributed to the Belgian Relief work, such as 27 pieces women's and children's underwear, 2 women's cloths, 2 women's waists, 1 misses' dress, 1 child's dress, 2 pair boys' trousers, 2 pair mittens, 14 comfort bags.

OBITUARY

MISS MADGE L. BROWN.

A gloom was cast over the home of Mr. Oliver Delancey of North Williamston, when he received the sad intelligence that his grand-daughter, Miss Madge L. Brown, of Monomet, Mass., had passed away on the 1st of September. She died of tuberculosis. She was a patient at the Good Samaritan Hospital for a number of months. A few weeks before she passed away she became an inmate in the home of her uncle, Mr. George De'Lancey, where her death occurred. All that a kind and loving mother could do to ease her only child, and all that medical skill could do, was done, but none could ward off the Angel of Death.

By her loving disposition she was loved by all who knew her. Miss Brown was seventeen years of age. The funeral services were held at her late home on Beaver Dam Road, Monomet, Mass., Rev. T. D. Childs, officiated. Interment at the Monomet Cemetery. The floral gifts were many and beautiful. The heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives is extended to the lonely and grief-stricken mother in her sad hours of affliction. Miss Brown was also a grand-daughter of Mr. J. A. Brown, of Lawrenceville.

Newbro's Herpicide Saves The Hair

And Keeps You Looking Young

Don't look older than you are. It is just as easy to look younger. While lack of hair or poor hair is not always an indication of age, it is frequently accepted as such. A person well advanced in years possessing a good head of hair is always spoken of as "well preserved." Everyone can retain beautiful, luxuriant hair if they make the effort. In almost every instance poor hair or the loss of hair may be traced to the activity of the dandruff germ. Newbro's Herpicide prevents the scalp-like accumulation and puts the scalp in a perfectly healthy condition. With the elimination of the dandruff the hair no longer drops out. The itching of the scalp stops almost at once. Newbro's Herpicide is the remedy for which there are many substitutes, preparations claimed to be "just as good." You don't have to accept a substitute. Insist upon having genuine Herpicide. Sold and guaranteed, and your money back if not satisfied as such. Bear River Drug Store Co., Bear River, N. S. Special Agents.
