AGRICULTURE Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY. Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Help pays when it is needed. The Derry cow is a "rustler." Raise more corn on less land. Machinery is condensed labor. It is safe to breed of the horse. Neglect seldom pays in anything. It costs little to keep a clean dooryard. Sheep need a dry soil and good shelter. It is slow starting on good sweet corn. Lime and sulphur are injurious to wool. Don't be afraid of working between meals. When applicants appear, see to lightkeepers. Whatever you do be prepared for criticism. Merino sires will continue to be in demand. Quality in the horse is preferable to color. Everything has its limit, the cow included. Good tillage leaves a clean soil after harvest. There are limitless stores of nitrogen in the air. In the hurry of work, don't forget your wife. If a leak appears in the roof, stop it at once. We breed the best blooded animals in the world. Ashes mixed with salt are excellent for sheep. Goats among sheep are said to ward off infection. Coddish is sometimes more reliable than turkey. It is better for the soil to grow weeds than change. Farming successes or fails, like any other business. When doing well, be not rash in making a change. Every machine is liable to wear, rust and decay. Tomatoes that were behind have come to keep. Whenever you find a screw or nut loose, tighten it. The public is always ready to help a man down hill. Home-grown beef will some day become the fashion. Hens, hogs and sheep are all beneficial to an orchard. Sheep prefer foods well charged with minerals. Do not allow apples or fruit of any kind to rot and waste. All non-agricultural soils should be made tree-producing. There is more wealth in larger crops than in larger yields. Ashes are worth more as a fertilizer than for making soap. Good mutton sheep are excellent to keep, but better to sell. A machine running by the roadside does not keep the roads. A farmer should buy nothing which he can successfully raise. Every-cow should have its place and be in it when not in use. Timothy is the least economical grass that is generally grown. Don't allow your sheep to get wet and chilled in the fall. If your pigs are uneasy, find out what they are squealing about. When you find a board loose on the fence drive a nail into it. Skimmed milk is worth more to feed than to make into cheese. In setting out an orchard make a judicious selection of varieties. The more intelligent the farmers become, the fewer they will be. Let the weeds grow until you get ready to grow something better. Pears need to be ripened at an even temperature in a dark place. Loss of the cod by the cow is much like loss of appetite by man. Some people try so hard to keep up that they keep themselves down. Sell as cheap to your neighbors as to any one else, and a little cheaper. There appears to be no good use for vagabond dogs or vagabond men. Mutton is improved by crossing; wool never; it demands pure blood. Try to exhibit at the Exhibition something that indicates more than luck. Don't expect a good colt from a poor dam, nor a good crop from a poor soil. The man who cannot manage hired help generally cannot manage himself. Oatmeal and linseed make good additions to skimmed milk for feeding calves.

Flavor must be put into butter by the cow, but can be spoiled by the dairymaid. There is nothing lost in leaving the poorest fat in the milk for the calves and pigs. The waste of butter in cheese-making is not so much before as after going to press. Judgment is required in hiring and employing help as well as in other things. Science in farming does not necessarily mean the array of large tables of figures. A mortgage does not always imply money borrowed; it may mean purchase money paid. It is human nature to try to make one's self believe that his own section of country is the best. The English are adopting the German system of tattooing the mark on the inside of the ear of the sheep. The following are good average fat percentages: Milk 4 cream 20, cheese 23, butter 35, skimmed milk 4, buttermilk 6. There is seldom over-production, but always under-consumption because the rewards of labor are not equal to its fruits.

THE POULTRY YARD. Meat would be more generally used but for the difficulty in procuring it. What is meant by meat is that from the butcher. True, there are such materials as ground meat, animal food, etc., which can always be used with advantage, and which are well worth the price asked for them, but meat from the butchery is the only one that is not adulterated. In judging of the price of any article, however, one must be guided by the results obtained from it. A lot of food costing $1.00 which gives eggs to the value of $2.00, is a good deal better than one costing fifty cents which produces eggs to the value of $1.00. There are periods when the hens do not lay at all, and any food that will induce them to lay will be a high price for the farmer. Eggs were also high, and the advantages over balanced the cost and gave a profit. It is estimated that one pound of lean beef is sufficient for sixteen hens one day. Just sixteen cents per pound it is just one cent a dozen for each hen. At thirty-two cents per dozen six eggs from the sixteen hens will pay for the beef. It is true that "circumstances alter cases," and the hens may not lay at all, etc., yet the use of the meat will give more eggs than without its use. Warm quarters in winter, and the use of a variety of food, as well as judicious management are all to be considered, but we believe that if experiments are made in feeding meat when eggs are high it will give a profit. The scrap or refuse portions of meat, which are so common when on the table, that the pig or the dog should be lean and not fat, as it is nutritious food that is being sought in meat.

The Turkey and Dark Legs. If we compelled the turkey to have yellow legs there would be but few turkeys sent to market. We accept its dark legs and white skin, and are satisfied from our knowledge of its condition when on the table, that the color of its legs and skin do not affect its quality. Now, if we look at the Langshan fow, we find that it has legs and skin almost identical with those of the turkey, and the quality of flesh is far ahead of any breed with yellow legs, yet buyers will go to market and pay a higher price for yellow leg fow, when the dark leg fow is really superior. However, if buyers prefer to pay something extra for legs and color it is the duty of farmers to endeavor to satisfy them, but buyers should be educated to know which is the best fowl. Large Eggs. When shipping eggs select the largest from among the lot and try the experiment of attempting to secure something more than the regular price for them. We believe that it can be done, and that buyers will pay more for large eggs than small ones, especially when they are arranged alongside, in order that a comparison may be made of them. Lined Eggs. It does not pay to preserve eggs in lime solutions for market. It is seldom that eggs which have been preserved by the usual lime process sell for more than half the price of fresh eggs, and with eggs now selling at eighteen cents per dozen wholesale, any attempt to preserve them in order to obtain better prices hereafter will be a risk. The only correct way of preserving eggs is to remove the yolk from the shell, keep the eggs on racks or trays, in a cool place and turn them twice a week. They will then keep for three months, and be in excellent condition. Eggs from hens running with the male will keep one half the time that the eggs from hens not with males will keep and this point should not be overlooked, as it is the most important.

ParagrapHS On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad. ANECDOTES, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS. Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe. In history, as to meteorology, the firing of a cannon has often brought down a reign. "Bring up a child in the way he should go"—and then follow him and see that he keeps off the grass. On the 300th anniversary of the creation of the Cossack Army the Czar on Tuesday presented colors in the 9th Regiment. A young naval prisoner jumped from a train at Sittingbourne, Eng., to escape from his escort, and he now lies in a critical condition at Chatham Hospital. The organist at a Cardiff church found several of the notes of the organ. An examination revealed the fact that fewer than six birds, including a robin, had built their nests in the pipes. Messrs. Edison and Sims have designed a torpedo-boat which is to be propelled by electricity, and which will require only two men to steer it. There is to be a force of thirty-two home-pigeons. Mr. John Bell, of Melrose, Scotland, who died last week, is described by many people as having been "an intimate friend of Sir Walter Scott." It may be as well to remember that Sir Walter has now been dead for 59 years, and no mention of the alleged "friendship" is to be found either in Lockhart's delightful biography, or in any of the very entertaining life works of Lord Cockburn. The fact is that Scott was, to a certain extent, the "friend" of every one who lived within his sphere. Fred. VI. of Denmark, while travelling through Jutland, one day entered a village school, and found the children lively and intelligent, and quite ready to answer his questions. "Well, youngsters," he said, "what are the names of the greatest Kings of Denmark?" With one accord they cried out, "Canute the Great, Valdemar and Christian IV." Just then a little girl, to whom the schoolmaster had whispered something, stood up and raised her hand. "Do you know another?" asked the King. "Yes, Frederick VI." "What great act did he perform?" The girl hung her head, and stammered out, "I don't know." "Be comforted, my child," said the King, "I don't know either."

Judging from the gradual and steady increase in the number of applications for patents each year, the inventive genius of the country is being maintained. According to the report of the Patent Office the total number of applications for patents made during the year 1890 amounted to 21,207, being an increase of 300 as compared with the applications of the preceding year. Of these 14,000 emanated from persons residing in England and Wales. The applications for designs and trade-marks, amounting to 22,235 and 14,258, were respectively less by 135 and 18 than the similar applications in 1890. An amusing anecdote is told of Dean Swift. On one occasion he was going out riding, and ordering his boots to be brought, discovered they had not been cleaned. Upon his asking for an explanation of this, his servant informed him that he had not thought it worth while to clean them, as they would get dirty in the roads where his master was going. Almost immediately after this speech the same servant asked permission to clean the boots, and he repeated the old joke and anecdote of all kind of do you want it for?" inquired Swift. "That I may have my breakfast," the Dean replied, however, that it was not worth while to eat anything then, because he would want food again in a few hours time. A good story is told of Bay Middleton, whose name is a household word for jokes and escapades of all kinds. It seems that in the house was a guest who, for some reason, did not bring a smoking jacket with him, and committed the heinous offence of appearing in the smoking-room in a dress coat. Bay Middleton, vowed vengeance against him, and promised him that if he repeated the offence he should tear the coat from his back. On the following night the man appeared in the smoking-room very late, wearing, as usual, his evening coat. He took his position before the fire-place with his arms on the mantelpiece, gasping contemplatively into the fire, and presenting his coat in a tempting fashion to Bay Middleton. The offer could not be refused, and Bay Middleton seized the coat tails and split the coat up to the collar. The victim never moved or said a word. The joke seemed to fall flat. Some one asked him of the split coat why he did not make any objection, upon which he said, "Why should I? As I came downstairs I went into Bay's room and put on his evening coat. JINGLES OF HONOR. A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading. Pat—Phwat place is that boyant there? Attendant—New Jersey. Pat—Bogles! I him on the wrong ship. I want to come till Amerlyk. Judge—Why did you steal this man's gold watch? Handson Prisoner—I wanted to have a good time. Judge—You shall. Seven years penal servitude. Call the next case! Every dog has his day, and the cats seem to be quarrelling over the nights. Sunday School Teacher (rather severely): I'm afraid Johnny, that I will never meet you in heaven. Johnny—Why? What have you been doing now? "I feel it very much, my dear little boy," said papa, after he had spanked Billykins. "I've," sobbed Billykins, "b-but n-not from the same p-place."

"My wife is a lecturer and I am an entertainer," said Hobbs. "Indeed! I know your wife appeared in public, but I did not know that you ever did." "Oh, I don't. I stay at home and entertain the baby." Much has been said about feats of strength, but it is an actual fact that a man of but ordinary stature recently knocked down an elephant. The performer of the great feat was an actioner. Puncher (describing his last great fight): "There he let out at me with his right, but I stopped the blow." An Admirer: "Did you? How?" Puncher (significantly): "With my nose!" Bantlinghouse Keeper: "I shall have to give you notice to leave, Jan." Cook: "Why, mum! Don't I look well enough?" Bantlinghouse Keeper: "You've got to go. You make the dishes so savory that my boarders absolutely gorge themselves. You're ruining me!" A new Scotch lad joined the local volunteers and on the first parade his sister came to gether with her mother, to see them. When they were marching past Jack was out of step. "Look, mither," said the sister, "they're 'oot o' step but oor Jack."

Doctor: "Does your husband enjoy sound slumber, Mrs. Murphy?" Mrs. M.: "Sound slumber, doctor! Rayther why, he snores like a pig." Eminent Personage: "May I ask whether you are related to the Mr. Smith whom I met at Yonico last year?" Mr. Smith: "I am that Mr. Smith sir." Eminent Personage: "Ah! that accounts for the remarkable resemblance." One Hundred Years Too Late. Some years ago a newspaper published in Newcastle, Eng., commemorated its centennial by reprinting its first issue. It was a very small sheet, as a copy of the reprint was folded inside every one of the current number. During the afternoon of that day a middle-aged couple called at the office, and informed the clerk that they had come in answer to the advertisement in the morning's paper which directed applicants to inquire at the office of the paper for particulars—the man to attend to cows, and the wife to act as general servant in the house. The clerk could not remember any such advertisement, but to oblige them, and they were evidently from the country, and very positive, he went with them through the advertisement columns, but nothing of the sort could be found. But they repeated they had both seen it in the morning's paper, both noticing the day of the month. Then it occurred to him to look at the reprinted copy of the one-hundred-year-old paper, and there he found it. It was with some difficulty that he convinced his disappointed visitors that they were exactly one hundred years too late.

Divorces in America. In the space of twenty years, according to official statistics, from 1866 to 1886 inclusive, 360 divorces were granted in the United States. The number of divorces has steadily increased since that time, and beyond all proportion to the increase of the population. Divorces are granted on the most flimsy pretexts, and throughout the country divorce courts are established which are very appropriately called "divorce mills," since they grind out divorces with such rapidity. Insufficient Damages. At the battle of Hasterbeck a French soldier had both his arms carried off by a cannon ball. His colonel, by way of consolation, offered him three francs, which the man refused, saying: "You seem to think I've lost a pair of gloves." A strange recovery has been made in the Chateau Paris, which caused considerable sensation in the neighbourhood. A vine grower found that his vineyard was encumbered by an old decayed wall, and obtained permission to have it pulled down. His surprise may be imagined when in the interior of a sort of cavity he discovered two male skeletons with their necks, hands, and feet riveted together with iron fetters. Some remains of clothes reduced to dust were found on the ground where the skeletons lay, as well as some rusty iron fragments. A doctor expressed the opinion that the skeletons had been their seven or eight hundred years. They will be preserved in the position in which they were found pending an inquiry, and finally sent to Bordeaux Museum.

A terrible fight among farmers is reported from Oshawa, O., Wednesday morning, when James Lewis and Tom Johnson were running a threshing machine on John A. Cole's farm, Lewis cut Johnson on the hand. He claimed that the act was accidental. Johnson, however, would listen to no explanation, and rushed at Lewis, striking him a terrible blow in the face. Lewis fell under the threshing machine and was drawn between the cylinders. He was killed instantly.

John Johnson, charged with stealing a wagon from Edgemoor & Sons, was tried under the Speedy Trial Act before Judge Stedman on Tuesday last. Mr. J. H. Barry appearing for the Crown and Mr. Geo. A. Hughes for the prisoner. He was adjudged guilty of misdemeanor, and sentenced to three days in the County jail.

Sunday night last the house of Mr. H. E. Kemmer, Dorchester was broken into and a gold watch and chain, a gold ring and several other articles stolen. From All Over the Country Will Parade Look Place in Each Officer's Cabin.

Invitations have been issued by the Pythias lodge No. 6, K. of P. U. R. to all uniform ranks in the Maritime Provinces, for a grand meeting here on October 25th, the second day of the exhibition. St. John Exhibition.

By Mr. James Macdonald and Mr. E. J. Wetmore a special plan is being prepared for awarding prizes for competition among farmers, truckmen, cabmen and private team owners. The prizes are being generously contributed by private citizens and they will be awarded for general care of the horse, judged on appearance, ease and comfort of harness, mode of draught, use of shafts and every thing contributing to the comfort of the animals. Besides these prizes the association will award diplomas throughout all classes. Arrangements are being made for a man's show parade of horses, and not to interfere with the excellent programme of races at Moorpark it will be held on the morning of the opening day. It is expected the racing horses will join in this turnout, and if successful, a good parade will probably be arranged. The Street Railway Company are taking an interest in this feature and will make a fine parade of all their horses, which will shortly be offered for sale. These turnout will be a very fine one. They will award prizes to their groomers, drivers, etc. After the Governor has opened the exhibition he will proceed to the Moorpark grounds, where the animals will be paraded before him and they will then be formed in line for inspection by the judges. His undersized number of horse fanciers will be here and some sales may be commensated. All of the railroad lines will give special rates for horses coming here for exhibition.

The Ring.

Jack McCallin and Austin Gibbons fought in the ring of the Granite Club in Hoboken last night to a finish for the light-weight championship, a stake of $1,000 a side and a purse of $4,000.

The Wheel.

Records were broken at the Hartford, Conn., bicycle races on Tuesday last. In the mile, safety 2:49 class, G. M. Warner, Manhattan Athletic Club, made the last quarter in 29 4/5, squalling Zimmerman's time yesterday, when he broke the record.

The mile tandem safety world's record for a mile in competition was broken in a hand-some handicap race by Banker and Brinker, Buffalo Scratchmen's team, 2:39 4/5. The race was won by Herman and Fuller, Hartford, in 2:28, with 150 yards start.

A. R. Rich, New York Athletic club, made the new American record for two mile race safety bicycle; he was scratch man in a handicap, time 5:11 1/5 lowering the previous record about 12 seconds. He came in second, the race was won by Fred C. Graves, Springfield, with 60 yards start.

In the mile safety consolation race, J. W. Schaefer, Manhattan athletic club, in the last quarter equalled the world's record 2:45 4/5 made by Zimmerman yesterday, and won in 2:54 4/5.

Tom Eck, of Minneapolis, who has been a promoter of six-day bicycle races for many years, is in New York City for the purpose of making arrangements for a big six-day bicycle race to be held at Madison Square Garden during the latter part of October. He was making the plan for three or four months and has received many entries. Out of these he has selected the twelve riders with the best records. Several are foreigners, and the idea is to make an international contest out of it. Short distance races will ensue in the evenings.

Base Ball.

Mike Kelly has returned to the League. He has not done that which others have done before him, and for which they were patting on the back. He was faithful when others made their raid on the league and got away with it. Now he is simply getting in out of the net, even while the capitalists line up to poor showing in the grand parade of the exhibition. The same will be a very large one and will be distributed all over the province and through different sections of the exhibition. The same will be a very large one and will be distributed all over the province and through different sections of the exhibition. The same will be a very large one and will be distributed all over the province and through different sections of the exhibition.

Who Can Blame Him?

The size of Kelly's salary for the Boston League Club is undoubtedly grossly exaggerated. Twelve or fifteen thousand dollars would be much nearer the mark than $22,500. Kelly claimed to have been signed for $22,500.

Redburn will pitch no more this season. He left Cincinnati for his home in Bloomington, Ill., with a new baseball, a fifty yard sprint, and a trunk full of cartridges. He will put in his spare time hunting, of which he is passionately fond.

John Morrill, in speaking of Kelly's jump, says: "I don't think that Kelly's leaving the Association will have any effect upon the attendance at the Congress next week. It surely will not hurt it any, and won't help it any. Kelly is a big drawing card, and with his assistance the Boston have a much better chance of winning the League trophy."

All Stars.
