How Rightly to Apply Hellebore.

The destruction of currant bushes

for years past by worms has been the means of enhancing the price of that very valuable fruit in most markets, while with a little care it can be cheaply protected. It is a wellknown fact that white hellebore is sure death to the currant worm, but at the same time many will not try it, while others apply it in such a way that it is soon washed off by rains, or only touches the tops and outside leaves, leaving the inside of the bunch of bushes for the worm to feed upon. The whole secret is to apply it on the under side of the leaves, where the worm fastens to them .-To do this I take a piece of cotton cloth that the powder will shake through sparingly, about 10 inches square; put in about four ounces of the powder, and gather it up around the end of a stick about 3 feet long and tie on, making a sort of bag at THE PUBLIC ARE INVITED the end. I then make the application in the morning before the dew is off by opening the bunch of bushes and putting the bag end down nearly to the bottom and shake it, the cur- THE SALE will commence rent of air is then upward, and the leaves being damp, the powder sticks on the under side. If the current of air is a little sideways, shake low on the wind side, on the outside of the bunch of bushes. It is not best WITH CATALOGUE OF PRICES WILL to wait the appearance of the worm, but doctor the bushes as soon as the blossems are well de eloped and the leaves are half or two-thirds grown, and again after the fruit has fairly NEW GOODS set. This will usually do the work for the season. The main point is to rightly apply the hellebore, and with I BEG to announce that I have my usua these hints and a careful attention, with the use of a little judgment, the currant bush can be preserved .- BRITISH, We have a row about six rods long that we have preserved for over 12 years, in fine, healthy condition, producing from $15 to $20 yearly beside what we use, at a cost not to exceed $1 per rod .- Cor. It is simply one or two grains of flax seed.— SLEIGHS AND PUNGS. These may be placed in the eye without injury or pain to that delicate organ, and shortly they begin to THE Subscriber is now making up swell and dissolve a glutinous substance that covers the ball of the eye, enveloping any foreign substance that may be in it. The irritation or FANCY AND PLAIN, IN ALL cutting of the members is thus prevented, and the annovance may soon be washed out. A dozen of these grains stowed away in the vest pocket may prove in an emergency, worth their number in gold.

To REMOVE GREASE SPOTS .- In removing grease spots from clothing with henzole or turpentine, the usual way is to wet the cloth with the detergent and then rub it with the sponge or the like. This only spreads the grease, and does not remove it. The proper method is to place soft blotting paper beneath and on the top of the grease spot, after the latter has been thoroughly saturated with the benzole; then press well. The fat is thus dissolved and absorbed by the paper, and entirely removed from the clothing.
