MUST EAT IF THEY STUDY.

A very sensible writer in the Christian Register reminds parents that to work intelligently, a child must be well.

But they can only suggest and children do not comprehend the importance of such things.

The ability to enforce healthful ways of living lies with the parents. They should so regulate the home life that the children can go to school in a fit condition to work.

If the child is afflicted with any physical disability or peculiarity, it is the part of wisdom to speak to the teacher about it.

Many a nervous, sensitive girl would be saved much trouble if the mother would but inform the teacher of the cause of the difficulty.

For all teachers are ready and glad to vary their methods and to make reasonable allowance for peculiar cases.

If this information is not given time is lost in acquiring it, needless pain is often inflicted, and the child suffers mentally as well as emotionally.—Ex.

KEEP FARM ACCOUNTS.

The almanac style of farm accounts should be out of date and I do not favor the cheap account books advertised.

Three or four books to last for years is better economy. Each farm should have a book for inventory, which should be posted up each year.

The debit and credit page and this will render the cash account very simple.

This cash book should be balanced monthly, and it is a good study to compare the balance of one month with that of another.

Another book should be kept to write the sales of all the produce, especially if it be sold to several parties on credit.

This can be written in from a day book in which these accounts can be set down when delivered, and when they are ready to be made up.

The farmer employing much help should keep a neatly ruled time book in which to keep each man's time, what has been paid him and how much he has at the end of each week, month or year, according as he is employed.

These can be bought at little cost and will save many disputes with hired help. A farm diary is also a very useful book. I have kept one for years and would not give it up.

It saves many disputes as to how this was done or when that was brought about. All unusual events in farm routine should be written here.—W. E. PENNINGTON.

YOUR COUGH

Has not yielded to the various remedies you have been taking, it troubles you day and night, breaks your rest and reduces your strength.

Now try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, before the bronchial tubes become enlarged or the delicate tissues of the lungs sustain fatal injury.

As an anodyne and expectorant, this preparation has no equal. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, and induces repose.

The worst cough

Can Be Cured

by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I have cured many cases of coughs and colds by the use of my Cherry Pectoral."

"After the gripe-cough. This was my experience—a hacking, dry cough, with an intense tickling in the throat, keeping me awake nights, and during the day I tried a great number of 'cough-cures,' but they gave me no relief. At last I concluded to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and before I had used half a bottle, I had my sleep all night long. I continued to improve, and now consider myself cured."

By Using

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, many have been cured from the most obstinate coughs.

E. D. Balfour, Canterbury, N. B., writes: "In the winter of 1890 I was severely afflicted with a cough, which was attended by much suffering. I tried many remedies, but they failed to cure me, and it was thought I was going to die. On the advice of a friend, I began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and less than half a bottle completely cured me."

ROSE CULTURE.

You can succeed with roses as with other shrubs, with but little time give to their care, but that care must be in the line of the needs of the plant.

Three "plenties" are absolutely essential to success in growing roses—plenty of sunshine, plenty of water and plenty of manure. They will not flourish in gravelly soil nor in its opposite, clayey soil.

Good loam is the thing. Now that spring is here, clean away the rubbish about the plant; if the soil be already prepared in barn manure about it, then cover a place as large round as a each bush with the manure three or four inches deep about each rose bush; a half wheelbarrow load to a bush is not too much.

This mulching is better done in the fall than in the spring, but it will do good now. In dry seasons the bush must be watered freely. Except with yellow roses, it is the new growth that blossoms, so cut your bushes back to within a foot of the ground, that will give the new growth a better chance.

Rose bushes should set where the sun can hit them freely upon them. Perian insect powder used with a blower, and blown over and under the leaves will kill the white lice; white hellebore, such as is used on currant bushes, will kill the slugs (worms). Three or four applications of the same will usually suffice. Your eyes, and heart will be delighted with the result.

Oil from Sunflowers.

In 1842 a Russian farmer named Boroff conceived the idea of extracting oil from the seed of the sunflower. His neighbors told him it was a visionary idea and that he would have his labor for his pains.

It was, however, and from that humble beginning the industry has expanded to enormous proportions. To day more than 700,000 acres of land in Russia are devoted to the cultivation of the sunflower.

The area devoted to the crop has nearly doubled in five years. Two kinds of sunflowers are grown, one with small seeds which are crushed for oil and the other with larger seeds that are consumed by the common people in enormous quantities, very much as people eat peanuts in the United States.

MANURE SHOULD NOT BE EXPOSED.

Manure of all kinds does better service when not exposed. It should be properly sheltered until used. For an experiment, two acres were measured with dressing from a barn-yard which had been exposed to the weather, and another two acres alongside with dressing which had been sheltered from the weather.

The same quantity of manure was applied to each piece of land and the whole planted in potatoes. The yield on the part dressed with sheltered manure was nearly twice as large as that of the part dressed with the manure which had been exposed in the yard. This difference did not cease with the crops the first year.

The following year the whole was sown to wheat, and the land which had been dressed with sheltered manure produced a much larger yield than the other part.—Farm and Home.

NEGLECT OF THE ORCHARD.

Nothing is starved and abused like the apple tree. Forgotten till fruiting time, the land where it stands is stripped of two crops of hay and then pastured. If the fruit is not abundant and fair the owner denounces the way the orchard trees, "just as if they had paid it some attention," and determines to neglect it more than ever.

He forgets to reason that anything else neglected would not make half the returns he gets from the apples. In the interest of common sense, if one cannot devote time in summer for feeding and cultivating this most neglected work let him at least get the men to covering the ground with manure before the busy season begins.—Farm Journal.
