Mr. Gladstone Criticises the Irish Local Government Bill.

Mathimal, previous to the fight, burned several ages. The enemy has retreated to the Morley Takes the Premier to Task.

LONDON, May 25 .- Morley, in a speech delivered at Huddersfield, said he certain that the Parliamentary elections would begin before the end of the first week in July. He accused Lord Salisbury of trying to promulgate "vicious, pestilential tariff doctrines." If Lord Salisbury was insincere he was hoodwinking the cople, and if sincere, he intended, in the event of his return to power, to make tariff reprisals on other countries, a proceeding which would inflict the greatest injury on the country's industries. He could not escape country's industries. He could not escape the charge of political incendiarism by say-ing that his plea for Ulster, made in a recent speech, was merely a warning. The case in question was one where to prophesy was to incite and to warn was to provoke.

Gladstone on the Irish Question.

LONDON, May 24 .- The discussion of the Irish Local Government Bill was resumed in the House of Commons to-day. Mr. Gladstonesaid the House was in the singular position of discussing a bill that it was probable would not be proceeded with. In 1886 would not be proceeded with. In 1886 both Mr. Chamberlain and the Duke of Devonshire had promised Ireland everything short of an independent parliament. They spoke of provincial assemblies and of radically reconstructing the whole administrative system. They also spoke of a large devolution of national power to an Irish assembly. (Cries of "Hear, hear.") Now, all these promises were dissolved in the present meagre bill, which stamped Ireland with inequality as compared with England and Scotland, and ralisified rolics of those engagements which were taken by the country as the basis of the commission intrusted to the present Government in 1886. Ireland, Mr. Gladstone said, had not been sighing during the last six years for a local government bill, nor would she regret the loss of the measure now presented. The leader of the Government had warned the Irish members of Parliament that if they did not take this bill instead of the larger measure promised—if they prosecuted the object nearest their heart—it would be at the cost of civil war. Lord Salisbury's language distinctly encouraged civil war. If Lord Salisbury's language meant anything it was a plain incitement of a few misguided persons to resort to violence.

The bill passed its second reading—339 would not be proceeded with. In 1886 both Mr. Chamberlain and the Duke of The bill passed its second reading-339 to 247.

Lord Salisbury's language, Mr. Glad-Lord Salisbury's language, Mr. Gladstone said, distinctly encouraged civil war. Definite explanations ought to be given the House, and to some others who desired to know whether the Cabinet were generally of the same opinion as Lord Salisbury. Did the Ministers believe, he asked, that the people of Uister would rebel against the decision of Parliament or that the employment of the forces of the Crown to suppress such a rebellion would be such an outrage as would rend society in two? (Cries of "Hear, hear.") besien would be such an outrage as would rend society in two? (Cries of "Hear, hear.")
Mr. Gladstone analyzed the joint committee's proposal showing that it was destitute of the popular element and favored the landlords, helping them to nullify all the acts of the county councils. The bill conferred on the Liberals one great advantage as tending to a clear issue. It gave the people power to measure and determine exactly the value of the splendid Conservate promises of absolute equality with the laws of Great Britain. It was the one great compensation promised Ireland at the time of the union for the loss of her own Parliament. Where was the equality in this bill? (Cheers.) If the people of the country were misled concerning the treatment of Ireland with such evidence before them it would be their own fault. Was Ireland wrong, Mr. Gladstone saked, in rejecting the measure? No, the stamp of inequality was the brand of degradation. (Cheers.) If Ireland was capable of accepting a measure so stamped she was unworthy of the great rend society in two? (Cries of "Hear, hear.") was capable of accepting a measure so stamped she was unworthy of the great men who had led her in times of adversity; unworthy of that happy, better destiny he trusted and believed she was about to accomplish (Chi-he trusted and believed she was about to accomplish. (Cheers).

Mr. Baffour, the Government leader, referred to Lerd Salisbury's apeech concerning Ulster, and agreed with his Irish Propositions. He noticed the Liberals conceived that they would shortly be sent back to power for the purpose of passing the Home Rule Bill they contemplated. It was possible that Ulster might be coereed into submission. (Cheers.)

Mr. Gladstone here interrupted Mr. Balfour, saying that he had not uttered a syllable to that effect. He believed that a few foolish people might act upon the opinion of Lord Salisbury.

Mr. Dillon described the bill as a mockery and a violation of pledges tending to confirm the Irish in their placing no trust in British faith.

Mr. Gladstone spoke for an hour. In his speech there were some fine passages, which awoke admiration on both sides. The Irish members cheered for several minutes after Davitt on Salisbury's Speech London, May 25.—In speaking at Brad-ford Michael Davitt reviewed Lord Salisbury's Primrose speech on Ulster. He himself had dabbled in rebellion, and he number had dabbled in rebellion, and he would be sorry to see even his worst enemy in the piebald convict's costume. Lord Salisbury's language, however, justified every illegal act which he (Davitt) committed.

THE RACES.

A Rare Day's Sport at Queen's Park.

Opening Day of the London Turf Association Spring Meeting.

Interesting Trotting and Running Events-A Large Attenda The Winners-To-Day's Programme.

By some extraordinary means the daily rain managed to suspend operations for the greater part of Tuesday, a fact for which the directors of the London Turf Associathe directors of the London Turf Association are truly thankful. It was the opening day of the spring meeting, and the inaugural was a success. Between 1,500 and 1,800 people passed the turnstile at Queen's Park, and had it not been for the weather's threatening aspect the attendance would have been larger. The covered grand stands were comfortably filled, and when a few drops of rain began to fall those in the open ones comfortably filled, and when a few drops of rain began to fall those in the open ones were kindly permitted to go under shelter. The number of vehicles on the grounds was large. A pleasant feature was the attendance of the ladies, who were equally represented with the men. The programme was attractive and held the interest of the crowd during the four hours that it lasted. Contrary to expectations the track was in a very fair condition, the sandy nature of the soil and constant rolling having offset to a great extent the showers of the past few days. The running race was deferred in order to spare the track as much as possible fer the trotters. The starting judge was A. W. McEiroy, of Chicago, who evidently knows his business. He is an excellent starter and imposed fines liberally on the drivers whom Chicago, who evidently knows his business. He is an excellent starter and imposed fines liberally on the drivers whom he thought were to blame. Messrs. J. H. Brown and D. McMillan were the judges and W. A. Martin the clerk. The Cavalry Band rendered music acceptably during the afternoon. To-day and to-morrow should see large crowds on the park, as the programmes tor both days promise good sport and the enterprise of the Turi Association should be encouraged.

TROTTING—THREE-MINUTE CLASS.

The second heat was a procession for the most part, the horses finishing in the same order as the first. Maggie C. forced Little Jake out of second place in the last quarter and kept it by a neck. The drivers of Mamie S. and Little Jake were fined $5 each for tardiness in coming out on the track.

Seeing in the columns of your most valuable and widely-circulated paper of the 21st inst. a communication from Mr. E. J. Mcinst, a communication from Mr. E. J. McRobert, in reply to a letter of mine that appeared a few days ago in the ADVERTISEM and other papers, in which he alleges that my entire communication so gar as relates to phenomena produced at his residence "is entirely without foundation," or the semblance of truth, etc. Now, sir, believing that a love of British fair piay will prompt to the second to me a limited space in vontrace of the second to me a limited space in vontrace. you to accord to me a limited space in your columns, I will in as brief a manner as you to accord to me a limited space in your columns, I will in as brief a manner as possible attempt to say a few words in my own defense, which I think will throw quite a different light upon the subject matter under discussion, and cause reflecting minds to think twice before accepting even the statements of Mr. McRobert as absolute truth. In the first place the letter in question was written some weeks ago at Mr. McRobert's own house, and when finished was, before being sent for publication, read to both himself and family, including a brother and sister-in-law, who heartily and unre-reservedly indorsed all therein contained concerning the phenomena said to have taken place at his residence. Furtnermore, he has made voluntary admissions to various persons whose names I could mention, of personal experiences he has had with certain invisible intelligences, far more wonderful than anything stated in my letter. How many personal daying the last wonderful than anything stated in my letter. How many persons during the last two months have listened with gaping letter. How many persons during the last two months have listened with gaping wonder and open eyed astonishment, as he would relate to them how precisely his little "Guardian Angel," who was ever present, could tell him of his every act, however secret, even to the repeating, word for word, the contents of a letter he had secretely written to a very dear friend, when neither the medium nor anyone else could have had any knowledge of the facts. In a letter to Mr. Wm. Hueston, sen., Thorndale, of April 12, Mr. McRobert writes: "Dear sir and brother: Last night, we had the first good night we have had in a month; Mr. Burton and a lady spirit came to us, illuminated, and my brother playeda waltz on his violin, and they waltzed all round the room; you could see the forms and hear the drapery dispinctly, the heat in fact I ever saw. see the forms and hear the drapery dis-tinctly—the best in fact I ever saw; my brother played two or three tunes, and they brother played two or three tunes, and they danced lovely in the light. Remember, the medium was securely fastened all the time; I am only sorry you could not see it." You will perceive, Mr. Editor, that I content myself with simply giving former statements of Mr. McRobert himself, and will leave your intelligent readers to infer whether the boisterous and belligerent attitude shown in his letter is not the result of an unknown personal pique or spite, rather tude shown in instance and unknown personal pique or spite, rather than from a sincere desire to put down fraud and establish truth. Most respectfully,

BETTER THAN OIL.

A New Method of Subduing the Waves of the Occan.

Much interest is at present being mani-fested in England and France in an inven-tion which has been submitted to the French Salvage Society by Baron d'Alessandro. It consists in covering the surface of the sea with a specially prepared insubmergible and imputrescible thin netting. This reticular fabric does not rise sensibly above the surface, and does not offer resistance to the wind; and it plays, it is claimed, the part of a bed of oil in that it has the effect of

of a bed of oil in that it has the effect of stilling the waves and rendering navigation safer and less difficult.

Baron d'Alessandro's idea is born of the circumstance: that sailors have frequently observed the caim produced by the floating seaweed, technically known as filum, which is met with in various parts of the North Sea. His netting is said to imitate exactly the nature and observed risk in order to the same that the same of is met with in various parts of the North Sea. His netting is said to imitate exactly the nature and characteristics of this marine plant of the Algae class. Experiments with the new wave-stiller have been conducted outside the breakwaters of the Quiberon Peninsula. A netting 1,000 yards square, with a mesh of five centimetres, and edged with a strong bolt-rope, was used, and the results obtained are stated to have been so satisfactory that the French Minister of Marine has appointed a special commission to investigate and report on the invention.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Cil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of and other than salutary consequences. rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

When rings and syndicates have cor nered everything on earth, they will doubt-less turn their attention to the air and water. The sea, it is claimed, produces more food per acre than the land. What a chance for the combines? The Empress of Russia has been at some rouble in order to procure a unique present or the golden wedding of her mother, the Queen of Denmark, this week. The pres-ent consists of a team of six horses, per-fectly white and of the rarest breeds. In order to get the six together the imperial studs all over Russia had to be searched, and the present, which is about to leave St. Petersburg, is said to be one of the most costly-thaw will be sent to the "golden" bride and bridegroom at Fredensborg.

There was recently transported from the nine of the Santa Barbara Asphalt Com pany of La Patera, California, a large block of asphaltum, weighing as it was taken from the mine some two and one-half tons, from the mine some two and one-half tons, and believed to be the largest block of asphaltum ever mined in one mass. The mine in question has only been opened about one year. Though chiefly used, as is well known, for street paving, its employment is increasing for other purposes, large quantities being now consumed in making floors for warehouses, cellars, wineries, breweries, etc., as it renders floors absolutely watertight, besides being not affected by acids or gases. For lining dams, leeves, and reservoirs, a thin coat of the article puton in a melted state presents a permanent watertight surface, preventing loss by seepage, even when backed by only an earth embankment. It is claimed to make conduits of wood almost, if not quite, as durable as fron. durable as fron.

Apropos of rain don't you all remember the awful waterproofs worn by women ten years ago. The shapeless blue things, capes years ago. In essaperess but things, capos scalloped and bound with black, hanging in the slinkiest way imaginable and making the prettiest pair of shoulders in the world look frightful. So fall in the skirts, world look frightful. So full in the skirts, as well as to utterly preclude the possibility of holding it up as it should be and consequently always muddy in patches. Nowadays the gossamer or mackintosh is as stylish a wrap as any of the girls' garments, fitting perfectly, with a tailor cut and finish, made of the daintiest imaginable materials. A charming garment, to he were not the charge of a rain and not here were not the charge of a rain and not be worn on the chance of a rain, and not a hated alternative to be avoided at all pos-sible risk. And then the umbrellas. They are so pretty. THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The Free Library Question. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:
With Mr. Anderson, I am glad the question of a free library has come up for discussion, and thank the workingmen for it.
It might well have a place among the schemes for rendering our city attractive as a place of residence, and if this be the instruction of the discussion by all means given as a place of residence, and if this be the issue of the discussion, by all means give our friends of the union their share of the credit. Only I hope they will not go on much longer imputing statements to me, especially after distinct denials, which they must have known all along I never made.

Mr. Brent, speaking for the unbelieving class, who so patiently tolerate orthodox books in the free library, claims a right to a share of infidel literature on the ground of mutual consideration, and the certainty a share of infidel literature on the ground of mutual consideration, and the certainty that truth will ultimately prevail, and rebukes ministers for their "unwarrantable zeal in spending public funds to which they contribute nothing." To this I reply that Mr. Brent should know, if he does not, that ministers are ratepayers like others, and when the workingmen take our money for the purchase or circulation of books—same thing, the board to the contrary notwithstanding comprising parlor suite, center table, carpets, oil paintings, hat rack, sideboard, silverware, correctery and glassware, curtains, blinds, etc., bedroom suites, springs and mattresses, feather bed and bedding, perforated chairs, machine, Davenport writing desk, parlor stove, cook stove, kitchen utensils, besides sundry other articles. But the objectionable books are still there, and the need of the caution they urge is all the more apparent when men like Mr. Anderson, amid fatherly advice to the Ministerial Association, joins Mr. Brent in urging that 'in a free library all classes of readers must be considered." If that means that any and all books called for are to be supplied, a little reflection will make it so plainly wrong that Mr. Anderson will be the first to say, "Of course, discretion must be used," and periaps to add, "Of course, bad books should be kept out." And that is exactly what the ministers meant. We live in a Christian community, whose laws are founded upon the Bible, and whose Government, by repeated deliverances of its high judiciaries, has been declared a Christian Government, which will not tolerate, for example, the use of its public halls for the propagation of infidel doctrines, and which claims the right to prevent the introduction of immoral or other objectionable books, like those of Bradlaugh and Ingersoll, through its mails and custom houses. It is true, no doubt, that truth and morality would triumph, but that is no reason why we should help error and evil. Ours is a civilized country, and, no doubt, civilization will prevail, but that is no reason why we should help those who do not accept oursanitary standards in opposing or obstructing reforms demanded by "the greatest good of the greatest number." If they won help us to fight dirt and disease, they shall not hinder. Even more important is it, in the moral and mental world, that a high standard should be maintained, and in this I am sure the Ministerial Association would not wish to reflect against the workingmen or their societies indiscriminately. Their letters show a growing sense of its importance, and Mr. Brent's experience illustrates it. If all the members of the Library Board are what the Amal

I am glad of this opportunity to say how highly I respect the manifest purpose of self-culture and self-help as asserting itself among our workingmen, and hope ere long we may have a good free public library belonging to the people, and managed for the people, by a board chosen by the people. Getting Drunk Promptly.

Columbia, S.C., May 24.—Mrs. Hanna
Green, stout, apparently in good health and about 60 years old, arrived in Columbia a few days ago to visit relatives with who her son John was living. John left in mother early yesterday morning and wei to work. Upon returning in the evening he was shocked to find the old lady dead. He decided to bury her in Fairfield.

Upon applying for a permit to remove the body the son was informed that a certificate from a physician must be produced. John sought the aid of the coroner, who deferred action until this morning. The corpse had been prepared for burial and placed in a coffin. This morning, the coroner, after viewing the body and hearing the circumstances of the death, thought it might be a case of poisoning. He decided to hold a post mortem.

case of poisoning. He decided to hold a post mortem.

The county physician was summoned, and was about to insert a knife into the corpse, when, to the horror to all, the old lady slowly opened her eyes and sat upright in the coffin. She said she objected to the proposed dissection. She had been in a trance for nearly eighteen hours, and when she awoke was in her usual state of health. She is a chronic sufferer from dyspensis. John celebrated the event by getting drunk.

THE FREE LIBRARY QUESTION.

Though a little friction has arisen between the Ministerial Association and the Workingmen's Free Library Board over the question of the best means of obtaining suitable books for the library, we believe that both organizations are really desirous

The clergymen know better than we can tell them that a cultivation of the taste for reading standard works on the great questions of the day-aye, even of first-class

the tendency to resort to questionable means of enjoyment by which, by nature, men of every rank and condition are beset.

On the other hand, the Library Board must concede that the city preachers can only

We agree with those of our correspondents who take the ground that if the consideration of this question brings about a well-sustained agitation for the establishment of a free library on a popular basis such as is to be found in every progressive city in North America and in Great Britain, the discussion begun by the Workingmen's Library Board and the Ministerial Association will have far-reaching and most beneficial results. There really is no reason why the Workingmen's their management assumed by the city as a whole. We all admit that we desire our University to be fully equipped, and that no effort should be spared to bring the Normal School to London. It cannot be denied that the splendid sit uation of this city, and its magnificent water supply, its fine natural drainage, render it a most attractive place of abode whether

THE NEW KNIGHTS Sir Oliver Mowat, K.C.M.G., is now the

The Advertiser proper title of Ontario's veteran Premier. The title was conferred on the Queen's birthday, when the Imperial authorities also announced that Hon. Mr. Abbott, Premier of Canada, was knighted, becoming Sir John Abbott, and Chief Justice Lacoste, of Quebec, was awarded the same distinc-IN LONDON: Morning Edition, $6 per annum; Evening Edi-tion, 19c, per week, delivered. tion. Prof. G. M. Dawson, son of Sir Wm.

Dawson, has received the decoration of C.M. G. for services in the Bering Sea investigation. It is understood that Sir Oliver Mowat has been knighted, at the direct instance of the Imperial Power in recognition of his eminent services to his native Province, of which, on 1st October next, he will have been Premier for the extraordinary period of twenty years.

So long as imperial titles are offered to and accepted by Canadians, such a distribution as that now made could scarcely be caviled at, though many Canadians entertain the view that it is more appropriate for our public men to look for honors at the hands of the people of this country rather than to the imperial authorities who know comparatively little about our public men. The misfortune is that favoritism at Ottawa, from which the granting of nearly all the titles is engineered, is in far too many cases the passport to distinction.

DEATH OF SIR A. CAMPBELL.

The death of Sir Alexander Campbell Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, at the age of 71, removes one of the few links that bind the pre-Confederation race of politicians with the present. At one time, he was a prominent member of the Dominion Government, and as a Senator managed affairs in the chamber of the Fifth Wheel for Sir John Macdonald. In later years he has almost dropped out of sight. As Lieutenant-Governor of this Province, he had little to do but spend his salary in a social way, and while he remained in health he kept at his post. Latterly, however, he was stricken with disease, and now, just as his term was about to close, he finally rests from his labors. He was not a man of strong personalty, but he made few enemies.

THE CAMPS STILL PEDDLED. The Kingston City Council declined to pay several hundred dollars to aid in grounds, if by such they could be actuated, they should readily indorse the free library movement, and it is only just to believe that they have a higher aim than defraying the expenses necessary to the holding of the military camp there next month, and in consequence the Dominion Minister of Militia decrees that the camp shall go to Belleville if that city puts up up any misunderstandings that may Is it not about time that a stop were put getting at the root of the subject matter. One-half the human to peddling around the militia camps from one place to another? At one point, as in London, we find an expensive site for a camp purchased with public money, on the assurance that the camp would be permanently located here. Then the militia are dragged away to another place and made an agency, most unwittingly, to buttress up the political fortunes of a party candidate. Every corps, indeed, is made to suffer and to have its efficiency minimized by encampment in a place reported as mos nsuitable by the commander-in-chief, while the grounds purchased for the purpose remained idle, and all because the peddling policy was demanded by a needy

In the east, it seems, the great militia ody is made the suppliant for civic favors just as if the volunteers were public paupers, instead of men giving service for what they obtain. Why should the militia be asked to go begging, hat in hand, for corporation grants, to aid them in holding their camps, while millions of money are annually squandered on favored contractors and on public structures that are not needed ?

FUNERAL REFORM.

The Church of England Burial, Funeral and Mourning Reform Association is one of the most vigorous bodies now working for that the absence of a city free library is the benefit of humanity. It embraces many of the leading men of Great Britain, and its object has the sympathy of thousands of point for us to all consider is whether prominent members of other Churches. or not the time is opportune to raise the Among recent pronouncements is that by question of removing the disability at the earliest possible moment. the Archdeacon of Landan, who, presiding at the last monthly meeting of the association, said that the metropolis needed more cemeteries, and each cemetery should The placing of all religious bodies on an be conducted as a natural underground purifier, where the dead are dissolved by in Great Britain after the much-vexed Irish the action of earth and air. If we are to judge by the excoffin. The Roman Catholic Archbishopperience of the disestablished Episcopal elect of Westminster has written as follows "I beg to express my cordial sympathy with the much-needed work of reform Church of Ireland, the sister Presbyterian Church of Scotland has nothing to fear. when, in 1867, Mr. Gladstone brought in the Funeral Reform Associaties bill to disestablish the Church of Ireland, the supporters of the State Church system prophesied the the Prince of Wales has written commend. direst disaster to religion in Ireland, and some hot-heads even threatened to ing it; the Duke of Devonshire has con-tributed £5 to its funds; Lady Frederick Cavendish has granted the use of her house in London on Tuesday, June 21, rebel if the sacred institution of a State Church, largely supported by men who never entered its doors, were placed on an equality with the Presbyterians, the when an address will be formulated to women upon funeral and mourning reform Roman Catholics, the Methodists, and other denominations. Disestablishment and the Bishop of Wakefield will preside at the fourteenth annual meeting of the association on June 23.

We on this continent, with our finely kept city cemeteries, far removed from the dwellings of the living, do not feel the need for reform that is a pressing question in every large, old world city, with over-crowded graveyards clustered round the the question that comes bome to us all. nowever-the question of needless expense and stupid display at the interment of the which is spent over the dead the more are they honored is a barbaric one, and unworthy of an intelligent Christian people.

There is in Dickens' story of Martin Chuzzlewit a graphic and suggestive description of the expensive funeral which Jonas Chuzzlewit provided for his father whom he believed he had poisoned; his view was that suspicion could best be diverted by "empty and venal display." The only sensible way to honor the dead is to imitate their good qualities, cherish their memories, and continue what-ever good works may have been left incompleted by them. Useless display does the dead no good, even though the living can afford it, while it sets a most pernicious example to the poor, who, in time of death, are certain to have none too much money to pay those expenses that are positively necessary.

PREACHERS AND TAXES. A city clergyman writes to say that it is a mistake to suppose, as some newspaper correspondents have recently assumed, that members of the Ministerial Association do not pay taxes. He pays an income and property tax, he asserts, as well as his friends, and so do all the ministers of evangelical churches in the city. As citizens, therefore, they claim a voice in the administration of those funds to which they contribute their share. At the same time they have the kindliest of feelings towards their fellow-citizens who may differ from their views.

THE Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States has confirmed the five-year limit for the itineracy. There was a disposition on the part of some to extend the ength of pastorates in certain cases, but it was voted down. Many Canadian Methodists would be well satisfied if the ministerial term were extended from three to ive years, leaving it optional for change to take place in a shorter period if the

Sarsaparilla

It would be difficult to find a man better known in the vicinity of Burlingon, Vt., than Mr. R. D. Wheeler of Winooski Falls, the efficient Deputy Sheriff of Burlington county. He says: C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Dear Sirs: If Hood's Sarsaparilla cost

$10.00 a Bottle

I should still keep using it, as I have for the past ten years. With me the question as to whether life is worth living depends upon whether I can get Hood's Sarsaparilla. I don't think I could live without it now, certainly I should not wish to, and suffer as I used to. For over ten years I suffered the horrors of the damned with

Sciatic Rheumatism

for if ever a man suffers with anything in this world it is with that awful dis-ease. It seems to me as if all other physical suffering were compressed into that one. I took about everything man ever tried for it but never got a dollar's worth of help until I began taking

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I have taken it now pretty regularly for ten years and have no more pain and can get around all right. I have dvised a good many to try Hood's Sar-aparilla." R. D. WHEELER, Deputy heriff, Winooski Falls, Vt. Hood's Pills Cure Liver Ills

Weller and all connected with the trip.

The return journey was started from betroit at 9 p.m., and a speed of nearly a ble per minute was maintained to St. Inemas, the train reaching London at 12:30 t.m., discmbarking the most pleased crowd of excursionists that ever left the city for day's outing.

The present on the occasion of the statting of a church for the worship of the most bleasing would rest on the Centennial Church, its crustoes and its pastor.

The Corner Stone of the New Methodist Church

Formally Placed in Position by Miss E. E. Bowman.

The Contents of the Stone-Addresses by Thos. McCormick, Rev. J. V. Smith, Rev. B. Clement, Rev. Geo. Boyd and Mr. C. H. Ivey—Financial Statement, Showing Cost of Church—The Evening

Threatening weather, basebail matches, horse races and excursions did not prevent a large crowd of London's citizens from spending a portion of the Queen's Birthday in witnessing the laying of the corner stone of the Centennial Methodist Church, which is being built in East London, a complete description of which was published in yesterday's Advertiser. At 3 o'clock, the appointed hour, the temporary platform and the ground on the south and west sides of the building were occupied with persons eager to see the stone put in position. Among those on the platform were: Thos. McCornick, chairman, Rev. Messrs. A. C. Courtice, J. Philp, J. V. Smith, B. Clement, Geo. Boyd, A. E. Griffith, Chas. Smith, H. Crews, Stephen Bond, W. Godwin, Geo. Kerr and McVittie, Ald. Yates, ex. Ald. Ivey, J. Frith Jeffers, Wm. Bowman and many others.

Rev. B. Clement, president of the London Conference, opened the ceremony by reading hymn 669, which the choir of the church and the congregation song. Rev. Stephen Bond led in prayer and Rev. A. C. Courtice read the first lesson—Psalm 132—with responses by Rev. Messrs. Philp, Bond, Boyd, Henderson and Clement. The second lesson—I. Corinthians, iii, 9-23—was read by Rev. Wm. Godwin. Miss Lillywhite followed with a well rendered solo. Next came

The Addresses.

Thomas McCormick, chairman, was introduced by Rev. Joseph Philp. Mr. McCormick was pleased to be present on such an occasion. He belonged to adenomination that was aggressive. In 1851, when he came to London, there was but one Methodist Church. Now there were eleven. There had been a great deal of good accomplished in the old East End Methodist Church, and by the amalgamation of the congregations of the Elizabeth Street and Queen's Park Churches a large congregation had been formed. The new church would, he thought, accommodate about 1,000 people, or about one-seventh of the seating capacity of all the Methodist Churches in the city. Mr. McCormick hoped that the new church would be the bitthplace of many souls.

Lightning Speed at Which London Excursionists Travelod to Detroit.

One hundred and cloven miles in 108 minutes was the marvelous time made by the excursion train on the Michigan Central, carrying the people's excursion to Detroit Tuesday. Promptly at 7:15 a train of reven coaches in charge of Conductor L. B. Weller, Brakemen Ed. Adderman and Wm. Major left the M. C. R. depot, carrying 300 people.

After a sight delay at London junction St. Thomas was reached at 7:50. One of the Michigan Central's largest engines, Migul No. 440, with Engineer William Relia at the throttle, with Fireman Robt. Kerr second in command, was attached to thetrain and at 8:03 a start was madeon a trip which proved to be the fastest ever run between St. Thomas and Windsor, breaking the record by five minutes. The first 47 miles was made in 44 minutes, and the run from St. Thomas to Windsor in 1 hour and 58 minutes. Although the extraordinarily fast run of 111 miles in 108 minutes was made, the passengers were not aware of it until the arrival in Windsor, so smooth was the track.

As advertised previously, a colored porter passed through the train between London and St. Thomas and presented each lady on loard with a handsome bouquet of flowers. To much praise cannot be lescowed on the People's Excursion Company and the efficials of the Michigan Central Company for the manner in which the arrangement for the confortable train, the courteous conduct of Conductor Weller and all connected with the trip.

The return journey was started frem Betroit at 9 p.m., and a speed of nearly a mile per minute was maintained to St.

Cormick had really been one of the fathers of Methodismin London. There was someof Methodismin London. There was some thing seemly in having the laying of the corner stone on the same day as the cele-bration of the 73rd birthday of our Queen. The trustees were to be congratulated on having the event on this day. The clurches were built for the glorification of God; and the Methodists were THE people of Canada. Mr. Clement wished the Centennial Church, the trustees, congregation and paster every the trustees, congregation and pastor every the trustees, congregation and pastor every success.

REV. GEORGE FOYD, chairman of the London district, believed that the history of heaven itself would be the better of having a new church in East London. He was pleased to be prosent, and congratulated the Methodists of East London on their undertaking.

EX-ALD. CHAS. H. IVEY considered it a privilege and an honor to be requested to submit the following figures, showing the entire cost of the new building and of removing and fitting up the old church as a Sunday school room: Brickwork for new building, 83,725; carpentering, 82,538; plastering, $425; cuttons, $545; slating, $660; painting, $136; gasfitting, $70; galvanized iron, $210; heating, $230; glass, $320; seating and pulpit, $963 18; gas fixtures, $255; moving and repairing school room, $427; plastering, $25; extending gas main, $22.75; transferring property, $20; architect's fee, $316.30; mortgage on property, $1,200. Total, $12,102.23. Subscribtions to date had amounted to $5,525, of which $2,300 had been paid. There was now due $450, and there would be due on Nov. 15, 1892, $1,400, and on to $5,525, of which $2,300 had been paid. There was now due $450, and there would be due on Nov. 15, 1892, $1,400, and on Nov. 15, 1893, $1,375. There was paid on Nov. 15, 1893, $2,000, and since then, $300. The amount asked for to-day was $700. Mr. Ivey was also pleased to see Mr. McCormick occupying such an important position on the occasion. He could not understand why the trustees had requested him (Mr. Ivey) to stand out as a mark for so many Methodist ministers to shoot at. He paid a high tribute to Rev. J. Philip for having done such a great work in bringing having done such a great work in bring about the amalgamation of the two colgations that will occupy the Centennial

More offerings.

Mr. McCormick said that although Mr. Ivey was a young man he had done a great deal of good work. It was now the congregation's turn, he said, to speak. The trustees then passed around the envelopes to receive subscriptions. Besides many smaller ones the following were offered: Thos. McCormick, $100; Miss E. E. Bowman, $50; Ladies' Aid, $50; Willing Workers, $30; Mayor Spencer, $25; Wm. Bowman, $25; C. H. THE CORNER STONE.

Rev. Joseph Philip then presented Miss E. E. Bowman with the tin box which she was to deposit in the coner stone and a pretty trowel with which to place the latter in position. The crowd made a rush towards the southwest corner of the edifice where a derrick had been erected to hoist the stone. The interesting little event was soon over. The box placed in the stone contained a Bible, Methodist Hymn Book, Discipline and Magazine, Christian Guardian, Wesleyan Guardian, Missionary Outlook, Sunday School Banner, Onward, Pleasant Hours, Sunbeam, Happy Days, Berean Leaf, names of pastor, trustees, building committee, architect and contractors, financial statement, invitation, programmed a copy of the Toronto Mail, Globe and Empire, London Daily and Weekly ADVERTIEER, Wives and Daughters and Free Press.

The singing of "God Save the Queen" closed the afternoon's proceedings, and an adjournment was made to the old church where

CHAPTER VI.

By 9 o'clock in the morning, Professor Meschines and Harvey Freeman had ridden up to the general's ranch, equipped for the expedition. The general's preparations were not yet quite completed. A couple of mules were being loaded with the necessary cutifit. It was proposed to be out two days, camping in the open during the intervening night. It was necessary to take water as well as solid provisions. Leaving their horses in the care of a couple of stable-boys, Meschines and Freeman mounted the veranda, and were there greeted by General Trednoke.

"I'm afraid we'll have a hot ride of it," he observed. "The atmosphere is rather oppressive. Kamaiaken tells me there was a touch of earthquake last night."

"I thought I noticed some disturbance," returned the professor, with a stealthy side-glance at Freeman, —"something in the nature of an explosion."

"Earthquakes are common in this region, arent they?" Freeman said.

"They have made it what it is, and may unmake it again," replied the general. "The earthquake is the father of the desert, as the Indians say; and it may some day become the father of a more genial offspring. Voremos!"

"How are the young ladies?" inquired Freeman.
"Miriam has a little headache, I believe; and I thought Miss Parslee was looking a trifle pale this morning. But you must see for yourself. Here they come."
Grace, who was a little taller than Miriam, had thrown one arm round that young lady's waist, with a view, perhaps, to forming a picture in which she should not be the secondary figure. In fact, they were both of them very pretty; but Freeman had become blind to any beauty but Miriam's. Gloreover, he was resolved to have some private conversation with her during the few minutes that were available. A conversation with the professor, and some meditations of his own, had suggested to him a line of attack upon Grace.

"You look as if you had passed a restless ight. I saw Senor de Mendoza this torning. He seems to have had a restless me of it, too. But he is a romantic person, ad probably, if an earthquake did not make im sleepless, something else might." He oked at her a moment, and then added, ith a smile, "But perhaps this is not news you?"

"He didn't come—I didn't see him," returned Grace, wishing, ere the words had left her lips, that she had kept her month shut. Freeman continued to smile. How much did he know. She felt that it might Casting about for a pretext for retreat, here yes sell upon Meschines. "Oh, there's the dear professor! I must speak to him a moment," she exclaimed, vivaciously; and she slipped her arm from Miriam's waist, and was off, leaving Freeman in possession of the field, and of the monopoly of Miriam's society.

"Miss Trednoke," said he, gravely, "I have something to tell you, in order to clear myself from a possible misunderstanding. It may happen that I shall need your vindication with your father. Will you give it?"

"What vindication do you need, that I can give!" asked she, opening her dark eyes upon him questioningly.

"That's what I wish to explain. I am in a difficult position. Would you mind stepping down into the garden? I twon't take a minute."

Curiosity, if not especially feminine, is at least human. Miriam descended the stops, Freeman boside her. They strolled down the path, and stet her flowers.

"You said, yesterday," he began, "that I would say one thing and be another. Now I am going to tell you why I tell it. In the first place, you know, I'm a civil engineer, and that includes, in my case a good deal of knowledge about gology and things of that stort. I have gology and things of that stort. "There's a reason for doing it that outwelpts the reason against it. I trust you with the secret; yet I don't mean to bind you to secree, you will have a perfect right to tell it; the only result would be that I should be discredited with my employers; and there is nothing to warrant me in supposing that you would be deterred by that."

"I don't ask to know your secret; I think you had better say no more."

Freeman shook his head, "I must speak," said he, "I don't care what becomes of me, so long as I stand right in your opinion—your tather's and yours. I am here to find out whether this desert can be flooded—irrigated—whether it's possible, by any heans, to bring water upon it. If my report is favorable, the company will purchase hundreds, or thousands, of square miles, and incidentally, my own fortune will be made."

"Why, that's the very thing—or the very thing—very thing your father had thought

She stopped.

"The very thing your father had thought of! Yes, so I imagined, though he has not point on of such as many words. So I'm in the prospective fortune of a man whom I respect and honor, and who treats me as a friend."

Miriam welked on some steps in silence at the interpretation of the interpreta

"You owe us nothing. You must carry out your orders."

"Yes; but what is to prevent your father from thinking that I stole his idea and then used it against him?"

"You can tell him the truth: he could not complain; and why should you care if he did it. I know that men separate business from—from other things."

They had now come to the little inclosed space where the fountain basin was; and by tack consect they seated themselves upon it. Mirlam gave an exclamation of surprise. "The water is gone!" she said. "How strange!"

Mirlam gave an exclamation of surprise. "The water is gone!" she said. "How strange!"

"Perhaps it has gone to meet us at our rendsevous in the desert. —No; if I tell your father, I should be unfaithful to my employers. But there's another alternative; I can resign my appointment, and let my place be taken by another."

"And give up your chance of a fortune? You mustn't do that."

"What is it to you what becomes of me?"

"I wish nothing but good to come to you," said she, in a low voice.

"I have never wanted to have a fortune until now. And I must tell you the reason of that, too. A man without a fortune does very well by himself. He can knock about, and live from hand to mouth. But when he wants to live for somebody else—even if he has only a very faint trope of getting the opportunity of doing it—then he must have some settled means of liveihood to justify him. So I say I am in a difficult position. For if I give this up, I must go away, I must give up the little hope I have."

"Don't go away." said Miriam, after a pause.

"Do you know what you are saying?" He

For if I give this up, I must go away, I must give up the little hope I have."

"Don't go away," said Miriam, after a pause.

"Do you know what you are saying?" He hesitated a moment, looking at her as she looked down at the empty basin. "My hope was that you might love me; for I love you, to be my wife." ght love me; for I love you, to be my wife." ght love me; for I love you, to be my wife. "I have known you only three days. But it seems as if I must have known you before. There is somenhing in me that is not like myself. But it is the deepest thing in me; and it loves you; yes, I love you!"

Her hands left her face, and there was a light in her eyes which made Freeman, in the midst of his rejoicing, feel humble and a comfortable meal; after which he rolled a cigarette and reclined on the spot most available, to rest and recuperate. The valley, or gorge, lay before him in the afternoon light. It was a strange and savage spectacle. Had it been torn asunder by some stupendous explosion, it could not have prevented a rougher or more chaotic aspect. To look at it was like beholding the secret places of the earth. The rocky walls were of different colors, yellow, blue and red, in many shades and gradations. They towered ruggedly upwards, sharply shadowed and brightly lighted, mounting in regular pinnacles, parting in black crevices; here and there was t masses hung poised on bases seemingly insufficient, ready to topple over on the unwary passer beneath. A short distance to the northward the ravine had a turn, and a projecting promontory hid its further extreme from sight. Freeman made up his mind to follow it up on foot, after the descending sun should have thrown a shadow over it. The indications, in his judgment, were not without promise that a system of judiciously-applied blastings might open up a source of water that would transform this dreadful barrenness into something quite different.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS.

iFrom the Canada Farmers' Sun.]

A paragraph going the rounds of the press is the following:

"According to the Detroit Tribune, the Patrons of Industry in Michigan have decreased in a year's time from 60,000 to less than 15,000. The reason assigned for this great falling off is that designing men sought to use the order for their own ends, thus producing dissatisfaction and disaster."

soughs to use the order for their own ends, thus producing dissatisfaction and disaster."

The same kind of a story has been told long enough about Ontario even in some of our Provincial papers, but to a great extent in papers elsewhere. Interested parties impose on accommodating or dishonest publishers, and away goes a story that is entirely untrue. If a Patron wants a paragraph inserted, the charge will be so much a line, but these fiery paragraphs go in the papers free. The order has, however, been imposed upon long enough.

The membership in Outario has never decreased, but has always steadily increased and is larger now than that of any previous organization of farmers in the Dominion. Designing men who have sought to use the order for their own ends have had no influence to bring disaster, although dissatisfaction may have temporarily resulted.

have had no influence to bring disaster, although dissatisfaction may have temporarily resulted.

While referring to the possible defection of some of the members of a society, however, it may be truthfully said that if our order either in Ontario or Michigan were deploted of 75 per cent. of its membership, there would still be cause for much encouragement. The members who remained would be true and earnest advocates of the principles upon which our order is built, and their influence would outweigh that of a body of men many times greater for the reason that unity of action might at all times be relied upon.

Co-operation in action, as well as in idea, is a positive necessity when an engagement is entered upon with the enemy, and the men who will forfeit their membership in an association because they cannot see that anything is being accomplished in a day, or a week, or a menth, are not those who may be depended on as workers or voters in the day of action.

United we stand and divided we fall, is a motto that should be remembered when a dissermatical Patron is found. Endeavor to

A barrel full of pennies and 5-cent pieces hasn't been counted yet. Father Tetreau said that he was surprised at the large amount contributed. He told a reporter that the donations would reach between $12,000 and $15,000. This will enable him to complete his parish school. An event of paramount importance to Christian Endeavorers in the Province and of special interest to the local societies is the fourth annual Provincial convention, which will be held in October next in London. Already the local union in the city has appointed a convention committee with full power to make all arrangements for the entertainment of the 600 or 800 delegates that are expected. Rev. M. P. Talling, B.A., pastor of St. James' Presbyterian Church, has been elected chairman of the committee, and by the energetic and whole-souled manner in which he is engaging in the work is proving himself to be the right man for the position. A. J. Clark, president of the London Local C. E. Union is vice-chairman, and W. J. Doherty secretary. Through the kindness of the managers, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church has already been secured, in which to hold the sessions of the convention, and Mayor Spencer reports for the railway companies for all delegates attending the convention, and Mayor Spencer reports for the railway companies for all delegates attending the convention, provided 300 or more avail themselves of this opportunity. This is a lower rate than has ever been had before, and it is likely for this reason and from the fact that London is known far and wide for the generous hospitality of her citizens that the '92 convention will be by far the largest that has yet been held in Ontario. Sub-committees have been appointed as follows: On building, Rev. M. P. Talling, A. J. Clark and R. N. Brebner; finance, Messrs. W. J. Doherty, A. J. Clark and R. N. Brebner; finance, Messrs. W. J. Doherty, A. J. Clark and Rev. G. B. Sage; railroad arrangements, Mayor Wm. M. Spencer and Y. M. C. A. Secretary Chas. R. Sayer.

THE SEVENTH ABROAD.

A Pleasant Holiday Spent Among Berliners.

The First Trip From Home Since Reorganization—They Do Themselves Credit and Spend a Most En joyable Time—The Day's Proceedings.

Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning the drill shed was alive with members of the Seventh Battalion ready for their trip to Berlin. At 6:30 the "Assemble" was sounded and in a few minutes everything sounded and in a few minutes everything was in readiness for the start. The men never looked better than when they marched down Richmond street to the G. T. R. depot, where a special train was awaiting them. They were headed by the band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Hiscott, and the Bugle Band. Lieut. Col. Payne was in command, and the other officers were Major Beattie, Captains Hayes, Dillon, Dawson, Kingamill, Booker, Moore; and Lieutenants Graham, Magee, Mills, Howie and Fitzgerald. The total number on parade was 220.

The train arrived in Berlin about 10:15, The train arrived in Berlin about 10:15, where the Twenty-ninth Battalion Band, the Waterloo Musicial Society and a large crowd of citizens and visitors had assembled to welcome the battalion. They were soon formed into line and marched to the town hall, which served as an armory for the day. The men were dismissed and orders given to "fall in" for dinner at 11 o'clock, which was served in the market house. They "fell in" with a vim. The officers made the American Hotel their home for the day, where Mayor Bitzer and Dr. Bowlby joined them. The procession from the market square to the athletic grounds started about 2 o'clock. There the Seventh fired a feu-de-joie and general salute, formed column, quarter column, and on the double quick formed line, advanced in review order, retired line, fired company volley from right to left; then advanced in echelon from the right, and formed company square to receive cavalry. Volleys were fired from company squares, and the battalion then reformed and marched off in column of route. The movements were splendidly executed, and the crowd applauded libersily.

SCINTHATIONS.

The worst "trust" that hurts some farmers is the "trust-to-luck." Organized farmers are looking after all the trusts. "No trust" should be the rule of individuals and the law of the nation.

—It would be well if boys of every class were taught agtrade, for a trade thoroughly mastered means riches in the arms. There are some foolish people who think that it is more "respectable" to be a clerk and wear a black coat than to practice a trade. A clerk's life, however, is not nearly as healthy as that of a mechanic or a farmer, nor is the work of copying letters to be compared for a moment with interesting work of a productive trade.

—Grand Secretary L. A. Welch and

ing work of a productive trade.

Grand Secretary L. A. Welch and County President B. J. Donaldson, of Middlesex, addressed a large and entinsiastic meeting at Loughlin's Corners, Metcalfe, on the evening of May 17, in the interest of the Patrons. After the disposal of a well-selected programme, which bore the smiles of the comedian and the merry airs of rare musical talent, the gathering dispersed bearing unmistakable evidence of joy that the farmers and laborers are abandoning the old camps of partyism and are mustering their forces in invincible determination to defend the rights and interests of the toiling masses.

THERE IS JUST ONE THING THAT the citizens of London and vicinity would do well to make a note of, that, at 181 Dundas street, books and magazines of kinds and styles are bound neatly, cheaply and tastefully.
