CONSERVATIVE LEADERS.

Some of the Liberal papers are very much concerned over the death of leaders in the Conservative party. Which reminds us; before Hon. J. P. Whitney swept the province on Jan. 25th, 1905, we heard the same sort of croaking, and not by any means from Liberal sources alone. Mr. Whitney was deprecated and sneered at mainly by Liberal orators and Liberal editors. He was termed a third-rate country lawyer and his associate leaders as incompetent nonentities. The Conservatives heard this sort of thing week in and week out, and, we regret to say, many of them were poor-spirited enough to be influenced by it and to lack confidence in their own political generals. When the independent vote caused by a strong revulsion of public feeling against the utterly discredited Ross Government placed Mr. Whitney and his lieutenants in power in Ontario it was found that the much deprecated country lawyer and his associates were strong, able and honest men, who have given this province the best government it has ever received.

Now the same process of depreciation is in progress. R. L. Borden is belittled by the Liberal papers and there are some Conservatives actually fools enough to be influenced by this mode of political warfare. It is true we do not know how capable an administration Mr. Borden will make because he has never had an opportunity of showing his worth. But we do now, that he could not possibly give a worse administration than has been given by the Laurier Government, with its unbroken record of scandals and "wine, women and graft."

Mr. Borden is all right and he has plenty of good material for forming a clean, honest and capable Cabinet. To argue that the Conservative party does not possess the material to furnish a good government for the Dominion is too childish to be taken seriously. All that is necessary for the Conservatives is to give their support to and place confidence in Mr. Borden and his lieutenants.

The St. Thomas Times says it is not generally known, but nevertheless a fact, notes an exchange, that there are people still living who can remember the time when tomatoes were raised merely for their beauty, as we now raise roses. While its beauty was admired, it was considered like the poisonous oak, dangerous to even handle, except by "dark complected" persons. Years of acquaintance, however, wore off its superstitious, and a few "foolhardy" actually owned up to having tasted the fruit. From this small beginning has gradually grown a use that makes to-day an industry with a combined capital of over thirty millions of dollars, which disburses millions of dollars to its employees each year and aggregates an output of 240,000,000 cans.

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Chopin and Chess.

There is, perhaps, no sounder musician living than Sir Walter Parratt, the Master of the King's Music, and it would require something of a musical genius to accomplish the feat Sir Walter performed when staying with some musical friends at Tenby some years ago. To while away the evening chess was suggested, and Sir Walter proposed that he should sit at the piano and play from memory, while he opposed two friends on the chess-board at the same time. The challenge was accepted, and, with his hand to the board, Sir Walter sat at the piano and played Chopin and Mendelssohn, calling out his moves whenever necessary. He won the game in three-quarters of an hour.

THE CAUSE OF HAY FEVER.

It's a microbe that floats in the air, gets into the throat and lungs, develops rapidly, excites inflammation, etc. The cause is as simple as a thistle in the finger. Extract the thistle, away goes the pain. Destroy the Hay Fever germ—you get well. That's why Catarrhose acts so successfully in Hay Fever. Its fragrant vapor to you brings cure, but to the microbe death. Catarrhose is as quick to act on these microscopic organisms as lightning. Prevents as well as cures, and is always successful. Druggists, 25c. and $1.00, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Killed by Train.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Alex. McDonald of this city, a foreman in the construction department of the G. T. R. was killed by a train near London yesterday, directing his gang of men and failed to get out of the way of the west-bound Sarnia local. He was hurled 50 feet and had his back and ribs broken, his skull fractured and his collar bone broken. He died in Victoria Hospital, London, a few minutes after arriving there.

Deceased was 70 years of age and had been railroading for thirty years.

DON'T USE GREASY LINIMENTS.

A century ago they were popular. To-day people want something easy to apply, certain in results, and, above all, a clean liniment. When Nerviline is applied aches and pains disappear as the pores absorb its soothing, healing properties. Nerviline penetrates to the core of the pain, eases instantly, and leaves no oily, bad smelling, memory behind. Good to take in, capital to rub on, and five times more powerful in destroying pain than any oily liniment. Don't fail to get a large 25c. bottle.

Losers and Finders.

Some days ago a more or less careless person was strolling in a public park in one of our big cities and dropped a wallet containing $1,000 in currency, which a laborer found and restored to its owner, who offered him a cigar as a reward. Commenting on an episode like that, the average American drops into invective and denounces the one of these two as everything mean and despicable, and concludes with the other as the victim of a wrong and a much injured man.

That is one way to look at it and the common estimate of it. But why should this man be taxed for a misfortune? Why should the other make a merchandise of his honesty? What is the argument in its last analysis, but that honesty should not be practiced unless it reaps reward in dollars and cents? One man loses a purse; another man happens along and picks it up. The purse is not the property of the finder. It has cost him nothing. Why should he expect any reward other than a "thank you" and the approval of a conscience at rest when he restores the property to its rightful owner? No proud man, whatever his necessity, would accept other reward than thanks for an act of simple and ordinary honesty, and it is small compliment to tender for such service other than ordinary courteous acknowledgment.

In conversation avoid the extremes of forwardness and reserve.

A MATRIMONIAL VOYAGE.

How to Keep a Log Book of Happy Happenings.

This blissful time of the year, so melodious with the sound of wedding bells, so fragrant with the scent of orange blossoms, prompts me to tell the brides, both actual and prospective, about the book my husband and I compiled when we were young—more than twenty years ago—of the delight we took in the making of it then and of the abiding interest and satisfaction we as well as our three boys feel in it now.

We had been married nearly three weeks when Darby came home one evening carrying a large and heavy book.

"That's that," asked I. "That," said he, giving the thick and substantially bound volume an affectionate thump, "is now a discarded business ledger, but soon will be our matrimony book—yours and mine, dear Joan—our patchwork diary, the daybook of our matrimonial firm."

Accordingly, after we had washed the dishes together, Darby cut out the first few dozen used pages and every twentieth page after that to allow of inserting newspaper cuttings and pictures, while I ransacked writing desk and albums for "matter" for the preliminary two pages, the preface to our life journey together, as it were, and for the first page, the wedding page.

The book lies before me as I write. The outside leather cover bears in ornamental lettering the title, "A Pilgrim's Progress." The fly leaf is inscribed in ornamental India ink lettering, "Pilgrimage of Darby and Joan, 1885-1905."

Upon the preface page is a picture of the garden in which Darby played as a very small boy, a faded photograph of him as a long robed baby on his mother's lap, a copy of the tiny newspaper edicts by himself and two small boy chums and an antiquated print cut from a local paper, of the military school parade with Darby in the foreground.

On the opposite page is a tintype of Joan at the tender age of four, lovingly clasping her favorite dolly, a newspaper cutting describing the graduation exercises at Mme. Bouton's school in which Joan chose as valedictorian and the programme of the first concert to which she went with Darby. The next page—the wedding day page—holds a bit of silk from Joan's wedding gown and a tiny sprig of maiden-hair fern from her bridal bouquet, one of the wedding cards, the newspaper wedding notice, the railway time table by which we tripped it to Niagara, some lovely photographs of the falls and the letter heading of the hotel at which we stopped.

Then comes the neatly drawn floor plan of the tiny flat in which we first went to housekeeping, with all the different articles of furniture properly located; pictures cut, in the absence of a camera and consequent photographs, from an illustrated article describing streets and buildings in the immediate neighborhood of our home, passed and repassed on many happy walks together, and so on through the book until, far on toward the end, a page contains a newspaper cutting from the "extra" telling of the attempt on President McKinley's life, the subsequent account of his death and pictures cut from newspapers of buildings draped in mourning.

Such is our book—to both of us and to our children full of a never failing interest; teeming with associations, funny, sentimental and pathetic and alive with recollections of the honeymoon year in the first tiny flat and the nineteen happy, busy years succeeding it—Brooklyn Eagle.

Geometry of Cake Cutting.

A correspondent of Nature recently set himself the problem of cutting a round cake in such a manner that it would last three days and after each cutting be left with no fresh edges subject to drying. His solution is illustrated by three figures. First cut out about one-third of the cake along the dotted lines. When this central piece is removed, the two remaining halves are closed together in the form of the middle figure, and a rubber band holds them in contact. For the second cutting follow the dotted lines of the middle figure. The remaining four pieces then close together in the figure shown on the left.

THE WAY TO CURE.

Olive Oil and Nerves.

If one is neuragic, anaemic or nervous, try the oil cure. Buy only the very best olive oil and take one teaspoonful three times a day as a dose, or, if you must cultivate a taste for the oil, begin by using a very little on lettuce leaves, adding enough elder vinegar to almost disguise the taste. Gradually increase the oil and lessen the vinegar until you grow fond of the oil, as you surely will in time.

Blanchard's Fares.

By LILLIAN WHITMARK.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

"What's up?" Blanchard smiled down into Kitty's tear-filled eyes. "The boat," she sobbed. "It left me." "Most discourteous boat," said Blanchard severely. "How did it happen?"

"I was late," she explained. "They had just thrown the ropes off, and the horrid captain would not tie them up again, and there's all the girls, and I can't go."

"That's the Sunday school excursion, isn't it?" he asked.

Kitty nodded her head. "They're going to Beaver Island, and I've got a brand new dress, and the boat had the lunch box, and the house is all shut up because everybody is on the boat, and I've got to sit on the steps until they come home, and—"

"Stop," implored Blanchard laughingly. "Three more 'ands' and you will have totaled the world's unhappiness. Not for millions would I have you sit on the front stoop all this pleasant day bereft of your family and friends. This is a serious matter, Kitty. I think that we shall have to go after that boat and make the captain apologize. Now, you wait here a little while and see what happens."

He perched the child on a dry goods box on the dock and went off toward the street. Kitty looked out over the lake at the departing steamer, but her tears had dried. There was something so comforting about Guy Blanchard. He was so big and strong and so kind to little folks. He would do something, he said he would.

Presently she heard a soft coughing sound, and then came Blanchard's voice in cheery hall. She slipped from her perch and peered over the edge of the dock.

There, just below her, was Blanchard standing in front of a gayly striped awning that all but concealed the gunwales of a saucy little power launch.

"Jump, kiddies," he called cheerily. "Don't be afraid. I'll catch you. This boat for Beaver Island and the Sunday school picnic; fare one kiss; all aboard!"

"I'M GOING TO HAVE A PICNIC ALL BY MYSELF."

Kitty summoned her courage and made a leap, landing in the strong arms and finding herself transferred to a wicker armchair softly cushioned and delightfully shaded by the awning. On a locker stood a box of candy invitingly open, and Guy was smiling at her from a funny little pen up front.

"Now we're off," he announced briskly. "Shall we catch up with the steamer or beat them to the landing?"

"You can't get there first in this little thing," she said, with a sigh. "Can you, Guy?"

"Sure," he declared confidently. "We'll be fishing from the dock when they come up." He pushed some funny levers and things, and the coughing began again, to rapidly change to a sharp staccato bark. The high-powered motor ran so smoothly and they slipped through the water so easily that Kitty did not realize how fast they were going until she turned to look back at the dock and found that it was rapidly dwindling.

"We're going awful fast," she called. "That's what we want," he answered over his shoulder. "We shall catch the Republic in no time at all."

"I wish Mabel was here," she said regretfully. Guy's lips set in a straight line. His heart echoed the wish even while he knew that, had Mabel been left behind, too, he could not have come to the rescue. It was only a lovers' quarrel, but for two weeks it had made him miserable to think of it. He was too proud to beg when he was in the right, and he could not tell from her laughing face that she was as miserable as he.

"Don't you wish Mabel was here?" demanded Kitty, receiving no reply to her first remark.

"Sure," he answered, "but she's on the Republic. What's the use of wishing for what you cannot have?"

The child lost the meaning of the wistful tones. "You haven't been around lately," she commented. "I don't like it when you don't come. Why don't you?"

Blanchard smiled grimly. How was this child to understand? "I have not had the time," he said evasively. "I've an idea," he went on to change the topic. "Suppose you hide when we go past the steamer. Then when they get there and find you waiting for them you can tell them that you flew like Peter Pan."

Kitty clasped her hands at the conceit. "That'll be fine," she declared. "How can we do it?"

"Unfasten the awnings on that side and let them drop," he explained. "It will be impossible to see you if you sit right in the middle."

Kitty flew to carry out instructions, and she was just in time, for the launch had gained rapidly on the steamer, and presently they were slipping past the slow moving excursion boat. It was still an hour's ride to the island, and the Republic would take an hour and a half. Kitty was so full of her new idea that she forgot the earlier conversation, and Blanchard gave a sigh of relief when at last she was safely landed without having pursued her investigation further. He was backing away from the dock when she called to him. He ran alongside again.

"You forgot your fare," she reminded as her little arms went about his neck and the full red lips were laid against his own.

"I am afraid that I am a poor captain to forget to collect my fares," he laughed. "Take care of yourself, kiddies, and don't fall off the dock. It will be half an hour before the boat gets here."

"Why don't you stay?" she demanded. "Mabel will give you some of our lunch."

"I have some here," he laughed as he indicated a locker. "I'm going to have a picnic all by myself."

He was clear of the dock now, and the launch gained speed. At the south end of the island was a little cove where he could go ashore and have lunch. It was a short task to broil the ham over the coals and heat the coffee. Then he filled his pipe and lay back to enjoy a smoke before starting back to town.

The cove was difficult of access from the picnic grounds, and not even an echo of the merry-makers reached him. He dozed off and finally fell asleep to dream of Mabel.

He roused to find her sitting on the sand beside him.

"You are not very courteous to your guests," she scolded in mock anger. "Here I've walked all the way from the picnic grounds to visit you and find you asleep."

"I wasn't expecting company," he said. "How did you know I was here?"

"Kitty said you had gone off to have a picnic by yourself, and I guessed where you had come. You brought me here twice last year. It was awfully good of you, Guy, to bring the poor child."

"She seemed so broken up," he explained awkwardly. "Mabel, he hated to be thanked."

"And I want to tell you," she went on bravely, "that I am sorry that I was so horrid the other day."

"We were both to blame," he conceded, "but it's all right now, dear."

"And, please, will you come around to the picnic grounds?" she asked.

"For the same fare that Kitty paid," he offered as he took her in his arms. "But I took Kitty for half fare," he added, and their lips met again.

Pardonable Offenses. After a careful canvass these have been found to be pardonable sins: Lying about fish. One can hardly be expected in explaining the length of his fish to use a microscope.

Saying you're not at home. This is the pardonable sin of social circles usually, and of men who have calls from collectors frequently.

Lying about your remarkable children. Of course a fellow doesn't really lie, but when he thinks of something bright his four-year-old might have said he hesitates through modesty to admit authorship, and so it is properly attributed to the four-year-old.

Suppressing, altering or otherwise disguising the facts of your age, false hair and wrinkles.

Beating the other fellow's story. Example: Jones has just finished a story; Smith waits impatiently to the end and then begins: "That's nothing. Why, when I was touring the west with Ouster," etc.—Baltimore News.

He Was a Good Booster. A minister was assigned to a small New England town not long ago and upon his arrival found his new field of effort almost all that could be wished, with one exception, this exception being old Bill Johnson. Old Bill was very much addicted to looking upon the wine when it was red, and the new minister at once announced his intention to bring him to see the error of his ways.

"Well, of course, we know you mean right, parson," one of the elders said slowly, stroking his white beard, "but it would be a mighty bad thing for the town if old Bill was to quit drinkin'."

"Why, what do you mean, brother?" the puzzled minister asked.

"Well, parson, it's like this," the elder explained. "There ain't a more convinced talker nowhere than old Bill, an' every time he gets drunk and sobers up he gets somebody to sign the pledge with him, an' the other fellow pretty nearly always keeps it."

—Harper's Weekly.

Procrastination and Ideals. A man is much less apt to fall in love at twenty-seven than at twenty-two, and a woman is much less likely to be fallen in love with at twenty-five than at twenty. The damsel therefore who makes up her mind that the proper age for her to marry is twenty-five and the proper age for her husband twenty-eight and who acts up to this idea in her youthful days runs a great risk of achieving something quite different from her ideal.—London Times.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them remedies of known composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the closest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it in plain English a full and complete list of the ingredients composing it, but a small book, less than one of our common standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of the leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the most forcible manner every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicine. These little books will be mailed free to the reader on request.

By letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral poisons, or any of the dangerous ingredients that are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of our best medical writers have testified to the fact that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of our best medical writers have testified to the fact that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of our best medical writers have testified to the fact that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value.

THREE ARRESTS ARE MADE. Italian Bank Mystery Develops Another Phase.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Three arrests were made in connection with the "Banco Giannetti" tangle yesterday morning. Another man is wanted and a day-long conference of detectives, lawyers, prisoners and interpreters led to the discovery of documents which cast some light upon the affairs of the "Banco," though it still teems with mystery.

The suicide of Giannetti, too, is slightly cleared by the discovery of the man from whom he purchased the razor used for the deed.

The men arrested are: Domenico Vetromile, 160 Mulberry street, New York, broker.

F. E. Martini, same address, clerk. D. Conforti, Yonge street, Toronto, clerk.

The man wanted is Coroneo of this city, a clerk for Giannetti. He cannot be found, and is supposed to be in hiding, either from fear of arrest or of the threatened violence of his countrymen the police cannot say.

The warrant charges that the men "did conspire with one another, and with another, by deceit and other fraudulent means, to defraud Gennaro Gorra of the sum of $2,300 in money, his property." Gorra lives here and paid the money in at the local office of the "bank" in July. It is said to have been sent to New York, but cannot be shown to have been sent further.

The evidence which led to the arrest of the trio is a card found among the defects of the dead man. It purports to set out the branches of the bank, and their managers. It reads:

Banco Giannetti, 160 Mulberry street, New York. Sig. Domenico Vetromile, director.

Banco Giannetti, 300 Victoria avenue, Fort William, Ont. Raggiatore G. Vetromile, director.

This directly contradicts the statement of V. D. Vetromile that he is in no way connected with the bank, save as a friend of the dead man.

Mr. Eric Armour, counsel for the creditors, says that to date there has been found among the papers taken from the bank safe a partnership agreement drawn up by Messrs. Bandonin and Bandonin, notaries, 99 St. James street, Montreal, between Archimede Giannetti, thought to be the dead man, and Giuseppe Vetromile, the brother of the prisoner of that name.

It sets out that both agree to devote all their time and energy to the business of transmitting money to Italy and other points and the sale of steamship and railway tickets.

Asks, but says nothing of the banking business. It bears date Nov. 12, 1906.

A further find was made last night of books of entry purporting to show the despatch of moneys from Toronto, to the stubs of which are attached official looking receipts.

These are dated from Genoa and Naples. These are thought by the detectives and Mr. Armour to show that these sums were actually received in Italy. The attached receipts stop in June, but the other entries continue, which, leaves the sending of these moneys in doubt.

The ledger of the bank taken from the safe opens the door for a second long avenue of fraud. In this book long columns of deposits appear, against which stands only $24.75, the balance to the credit of the bank in the Merchants' Bank here, against which the last draught was made Aug. 19 for $355. These withdrawals, as shown by bundles of returned checks, were made by Coroneo, since the beginning of June, by which Giannetti had done the signing.

The check book of the bank shows a steady stream of remittances, each for about $300 going to the Fort William branch till June, when the tide turned in favor of New York.

Miss Eva Armstrong, of Westmount, Montreal, says that she was engaged to Giannetti, but knew of no reason for him to suicide.

Giannetti was well known as a business man in Montreal. He was a member of the Chambre Commerce and was prominent in its commerce. He was a friend of C. H. Castelli, the president of the chambre, and spent a few days recently on his private yacht.

TERRIBLE SNAKE FIGHT

New Jersey Blaster's Battle With Poisonous Reptile.

Attacked by Huge Pilot Snake—Was Swinging Over Chasm in Mid-Air on Rope Ladder—Serpent Crawled Down — Fought With One Hand While Clinging to Rope With the Other.

New York, Aug. 24.—A despatch to The Herald from Trenton, N. J., says:—Half a dozen laborers and fifty or more convicts at the stone quarries of the Mercer County workhouse farm yesterday helplessly watched John Hutchinson, blaster, as he fought for half an hour in mid-air with a big mountain pilot snake, a poisonous species, that had crawled down a rope ladder to attack him as he was swinging half-way to the bottom of a chasm one hundred and fifty feet in depth, preparing to place a dynamite blast.

None was able to render aid, and Hutchinson was obliged to fight alone until he beat off the reptile with an iron drill in his one hand, while he clung to a rope with the other. He dared not drop the dynamite lest he exposed an explosion that would have blown him to pieces, and he was obliged to keep a tight hold on the rope or fall to the bottom of the pit. He slipped the dynamite into his pocket, and as the snake dropped within his reach he struck it with a small drill. The swinging of the rope spoiled his aim and he missed. He struck again and again, the snake's progress was impeded, and finally it uncoupled from the rope and dropped to the pit below.

Hutchinson signalled for help and was drawn to the top in an almost exhausted condition. As he stepped back two other pilot snakes struck at him, but his heavy boots blocked their fangs. They were quickly killed.

PRAYER PREVENTS MURDER.

Incidentally It Keeps Desperate Man Behind the Bars.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Prayer prevented the escape of a prisoner from the Mt. Holly jail early yesterday morning. George R. Clark, who recently attempted to murder Thomas J. Berrell, had his plans to flee from the institution, but his threat to kill Joseph Misler, his cell-mate, proved his undoing.

Clark was engaged in removing bricks from a chimney in his cell. The noise awoke Misler, and when Clark realized that his effort to escape had been discovered, he removed the blade from a razor, rushed toward Misler and commanded him to pray, saying: "I am going to kill you and then commit suicide."

Misler prayed so fervently that Charles Williams, a "trust" prisoner, heard his voice. Williams summoned Deputy Sheriff Fleetwood and Turnkey Gaskell, and the crime was frustrated.

A DESERTER MURDERED.

Done to His Death by a Band of Italian Counterfeiters.

Palermo, Aug. 24.—The finding yesterday of two half-burned chests containing portions of a human body in the forest of Belletempo brought to light a brutal murder and led to the discovery of an extensive plant for the manufacture of spurious bank notes. Italy has recently been flooded with counterfeit money. The victim of the murder was identified as Henry Francois, a deserter from the French army.

A local engraver, his wife and two mechanics were arrested both as the assassins and as counterfeiters. The motive of the crime is alleged to have been the fear of betrayal by Francois, who was a member of the gang.

DANGER IS PAST.

Crop Report From West Indicates Crisis is Over.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—The general belief of grain men is now that the danger point in regard to frost has been passed, and that the chances are good for fine harvesting weather for the next two weeks.

Reports received by the Canadian Pacific Railway from all parts of the west indicate that no serious damage has been done by frost. Garden stuff, potatoes, etc., were nipped, but wheat was not hurt, except in rare spots.

Pastures Burning. Brockville, Aug. 24.—A fire of alarming proportions is raging in the pasture lands near Carthage. Hundreds of acres of land have already been burned over. Serious fires are also raging along the east bank of the Black River, between Carthage and Nainburg.

Hotels Will Be Tried. St. Catharines, Aug. 24.—James Wadsworth, the Queenston hotel-keeper, announced the charge of receiving stolen goods from freight cars by boys at Niagara Falls, yesterday elected to be tried summarily by Judge Carman and trial was set for Sept. 10.

Clavet Vetoes Race Track. Port Arthur, Aug. 24.—Mayor Clavet has condemned the instructions issued by the Electric Railway and Light Commission, and as a result there will be no race track at Current River Park. The stakes had been driven for the track.

Cobalt Silver Coinage. Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 24.—Director of the Geological Survey A. P. Low, in an interview here, favors coinage from Cobalt's silver. He says it would suit better than the silver five-cent pieces, which are too small.

To Stop Export of Coke. Nelson, B. C., Aug. 24.—The Board of Trade passed a resolution calling upon Premier McBride to enforce the law against the Crown's Nest Pass Coal Co. exporting coke to Montana smelters.

"Face the Music."

There are several theories concerning the origin of the slang phrase, "Face the music." It is said to have come from the army. One of the difficulties in training horses for the military service was that of getting them to face the regimental band without crying up a rumpus.

Another authority says also that it is of military origin, but that it was applied to soldiers when they were drummed out to the tune of "The Rogue's March." Still another version is that it is used by actors behind the scenes when preparing to go on the stage to face the music literally.

Umpires—Lou Cook and Bob Stewart.

MOTOR CARS 19-TAMMANY

HEELERS 15.

The above is the woful result of the second game, for which the fans had been waiting so anxiously. Before the first innings was over, however, the rooters saw that it was all off so far as a close game was concerned. The Healers started out by doing the diamond six times.

From that on the game was one of awful carnage, each team piling them up every time they came to bat. Though the score was lopsided at the commencement, the Tammany got too confident. They had just returned from cleaning things up down Dresden way, and probably got the idea in their heads that they were invincible. Manager Cottingham and his bunch from the honk factory waited for the luck to switch their way, and then they took every advantage that was coming. Rumor hath it that Chauncey Depew, whose many form decorated the pitcher's box for the Motors, carried a rabbit's foot in order to offset any hoodoo effects which might result from a fresh shave. Anyway, Chance had the shave, and many of the ladies were inquiring who the nice looking man was who pitched for the Car people. Peek pitched for the Healers. He has plenty of speed for a youngster, but the big fellows got next to him before the game was half over. Pleasence pitched an eleven innings game the day previous and wisely kept away from the box Saturday. The line-ups were as follows:

Motor Cars—Elliott 1 b., Summers s. s., Waterworth 3 b., Cottingham 2 b., Depew p., Snell c., Head c. f., Merrill r. f., Titus 1 f.

Home runs, Titus; three base hits, Snell; two base hits, Summers 2, Depew; base on balls, Summers, Waterworth, Head, Merrill 2; errors, Cottingham 5, Merrill 1, Elliott 2, Waterworth 4, Summers 2; stolen bases, Depew, Head, Titus, Wood; struck out by Depew 8; safe hits off Depew 12.

Tammany Healers—Woods 2 b., Trotter 1; stolen bases, Trotter, Pleasence, Raynor, Woods 3, Hardaker; struck out by Peek 5; safe hits off Peek 4.

Umpire—Guy Bunting.

Official score-keeper, both games—W. N. Austin.

Lighthouse Burns.

Bush Fires Doing Great Damage in Wingfield Basin.
Warton, Aug. 24.—Word has reached here from Wingfield Basin, one of the most northerly points on the peninsula, to the effect that bush fires are doing great damage to property in that locality, by destroying the timber lands of Thompson Bros., together with their sawmill, office, men's quarters, stables and all the camp supplies.
It is also reported that the light-house fell a prey to the flames, and the keeper, Charles Webster, with his family, were forced to take refuge aboard a steam dredge, then at work in the basin.
These fires are likely to continue unless heavy rains come.

FATAL BLUNDER.

London Paper Says Sir Edward Grey
Should Guard Fisheries.
London, Aug. 24.—(C. A. P.)—The Standard says that Sir Edward Grey will be committing a blunder fatal to his well-earned reputation if he allows himself to be used as a second instrument of American enterprise.
England cannot expect that the people and Government of Newfoundland will assent to a continuation of the anomalous oppressive interference with their rights.

ERIEAU

Erieau, Aug. 26.—Mrs. E. R. Snook was in town on Saturday.

Miss Tena McMillan was an Erieau visitor on Sunday.

Miss Margaret McCormack and Miss Edith Reycraft, who have been spending the past two weeks very pleasantly at the Bungalow, returned to their homes on Saturday.

Mr. F. D. Laurie is spending the day with Harry W. Anderson at the Eau.

Miss Northwood, of Victoria Ave., who has been the guest of Miss Grace Houston, returned to the city on Saturday.

Miss Kate Garrett spent Sunday in town.

Miss Edith Tackaberry, who has just lately returned from Muskoka, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. V. Bray.

Miss Mary McDougall is visiting her friend, Miss Belle Stringer, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beeston and Miss Emily Beeston are the guests of Miss Helen Young.

Miss Mildred Turner, of Belvidere, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. Harry Northwood spent the week-end with his brother, Mr. Ed. Northwood.

Misses Ella and Mary Abram, of Underwood Farm, returned to their home on Saturday evening, after enjoying a few days at Bhagganap-pee.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robinson, of Dufferin Ave., spent Sunday on the bar.

Mrs. Norman McLeod spent Saturday in Blenheim.

Mrs. James Glenn, of Killarney, was in town on Saturday.

It is reported that all the marsh land to the west of the bar has been leased by a number of men in Chatham for the purpose of creating a shooting preserve. It is the intention of these men to place a man on the preserve to keep off poachers and feed the duck. This preserve will include all the ponds in the vicinity of the creek and peat works. This will force all transient shooters to procure their game by open shooting or from the lily ponds. It is said that the leases are in Dr. DeCov's name.

There was a huge bonfire on the lake shore, to the rear of Ben Oban, Friday evening. Who the fire was burning the young folks were delighted with a fine display of fireworks.

Mrs. W. H. Lugdin spent Saturday in Blenheim.

Mr. S. P. Wright beached his boat, the Argo, the end of last week in order to make some needed repairs. The Argo, has been leading badly, and, as Mr. Wright expects to spend most of the winter here, he wished to have her in prime condition for the fall sailing. The Argo's skipper is one of the most daring on the bay. No breeze is too strong for his little craft.

Mrs. George B. Merritt and daughter Grace, of Emma street, spent Friday evening the guests of Mrs. W. J. Bennett.

Mr. A. Vieck, who was registered at the Lake View, has returned to his home in Cleveland.

Misses Rena and Calmie Merritt, who have been charming guests on the bar for the greater part of the summer, have returned to their home in Chatham.

The project of securing a pier into the waters of the Eau from the bar, probably at or near Centreville, which was suggested in The Planet recently, will have the approval and co-operation of Mr. D. A. Gordon, M. P. for East Kent. Discussing the project, Mr. Gordon said that, while the Eau was not within his constituency and he would consequently hesitate to take the initiative in an enterprise which was located in the western constituency of Kent, he would be pleased to assist and co-operate in bringing before the Dominion Government the needs of the cottagers and residents in this respect. A pier on the bar would be a great advantage and convenience. It would complete a circuit of navigable lands with the splendid Erie harbor, and is a necessary accessory to the piers at Government Park and Shrewsbury.

Visitors at the Eau this season have made a suggestion for the winter months which has occasioned much discussion. In winter, heretofore, the popular resort has been practically deserted. The frozen Eau, however, for about two months in the ordinary winter season, offers unrivalled opportunities for ice-boating. There is talk of resuming, securing two pleasure ice-boats on the Government Park side for the coming winter and the idea has been mooted that it would be a very pleasurable and profitable enterprise to run a few winter afternoon or evening excursions from Chatham and Blenheim for the purpose of inaugurating this grand sport. An annual winter carnival at the Eau would be an additional advertisement and attraction, and prove besides a splendid and successful outing.

The amusement-seeking tars on the big coal boat Bessemer were in the limelight last evening—at least they operated the limelight on the bar and for miles around was interesting, not to say amusing, results. They reached port with their vessel from Connaut early in the evening and as the shades of evening fell brought their brilliant search-light into requisition. The search-light is no respecter of persons—or occupations, and from the suddenly lit verandahs of private cottagers to the unexpectedly illuminated strolls of amorous couples the search-light circled its brilliant path of light. So interesting did its operators find its revelations that they kept it working overtime far into the evening until its victims had all decamped or found places of greater seclusion.

Sunday is usually the popular "sailing day" with the cottagers and pleasure-seekers at this resort. Yesterday was an exception to the rule. From early morn the "white caps" glistened on the turbulent waters of the wind-swept Eau and a stiff nor-wester blew. As a consequence all but the most daring skippers remained on shore. A couple of the boats, however, reefed down and went out for short spins, splitting the spray and peeling over merrily to the periodic puffs. It was an ideal stiff-sailing-breeze.
