San Francisco, July 26.—Instead of abating, the Klondike craze grows more intense. Preparations for the departure of the Cleveland yesterday merely added to the mining fever that has swept over the city. All day long Mission-street wharf, where the steamer was moored, was thronged with men and women. Every longshoreman the tramped up the gangplank was pointed out as one of the "Klondikes," and instantiy that man became a hero.

The crew of the ship counting the general contagion, and paused in their work to discuss plans for dearting at St. Michael's and making their way to Dawson. By night the major to carry out this plan, and an acquaintance of Captain Hall offered to wager a new hat the steamer would be compelled to remain at St. Michael's all winter for lack of men to bring er back.

People who are no excited are aghast at the possible face awaiting the thurstands of unprepared adventurers rushing into the frozen Northwest.

she has issued the following caru of warning:

Fearing that the stories circulated concerning my husband, Mr. J. B. Dyer, may create a wrong impression and induce many to go to Alaska without means, I beg to state that the claim, which promises to be valuable, is as yet unopened, and instead of returning this fall he will remain in Alaska and develop the proporty. It is needless to say that my little daughter and I do not "accompany him in the spring on his return to Alaska." Yours truly,

J. B. Elderidge of Alameda, who has mined all through the Yukon region, warns people not to go unprepared for the winter. "The man who goes up next spring will be just as well off as the man who goes up now." said Mr.

Where the strike was.

Nanaimo Free Press, July 19.

There was considerable excitement in this city yesterday when the noon train arrived from Victoria, and W. Sloan and J. Wilkinson, having returned from the Yukon, unexpectedly stepped from the Yukon, unexpectedly stepped from the train to be heartily greeted by those who happened to be at the station.

Mr. William Sloan accorded a Free Press. The party proceeded to the Stewart and Pelly River section and did considerable prospecting, principally on Stewart and Pelly River section and did considerable prospecting, principally of the Stewart. They worked in this section, is which there were several other particular prospecting, until September, two, and in some cases three years two, and in some cases three years work, cutting ditches, slutcing drainage, etc.

Mr. Sloan, while admitting the undoubted richness of the Klondike section, contends the results and amounts credited are exaggerated. Like every other mining country and mining excitement, there are sure to be very many who will be gievously disappointed with their trip to the Klondike district. The Yrikon is a region of vast extent and great possibilities, but at present every inch of known paying ground has been staked off. Mr. Soan says from what he has seen he really could not conscientiously advise anyone to leave a good situation and a comfortable home to take the chance of being close on hand should a new discovery be made.

Mr. Sloan says that Isw and order is as pronounced in the Klondike section as in any part of the civilized world. The Northwest Mounted Folice, under command of Captain Constantine, have the esteem of the entire community in their careful government of the country. So far the only co gravention of the law has been an assault arising out of a gambling dispute. The police at present have their barracks at Forty Mile, but are now basy erecting new barracks at Dawson City, at the mouth of the Klondike, which they intend to make their permanent headquarters, until another excitement may change the base of operation.

INSPECTOR SCARF'S LETTER. Readile Country.

Ottawa, July 26.—A letter was this morning received from Inspector Scarf, who has recently entered the Yukon territory in charge of the Northwest Mounted Police. The letter is dated Fort Constantine, June 49. He states that from Juneau there is no regular mail, but once in a while people going out take letters for $1 a letter, and if we are lucky enough to strike them in time they can get one out.

Of the journey he says: "We only arrived on the 12th of this month, and this is the first mail which has gonout, and there will not be another for some time. We did not have mearly such a long walk as we anticipated, only having to go about 100 miles, the ice being so unsafe we could not go further. And on Lake Bennett I made my permanent quarters. It took.

grand, 'the nights being as light as day."

Speaking of Klondike he says: "Klondike is booming, and the wealth of the mines is really marvelous; money is thrown about just like water, and things are frightfully expensive. I bought some moose meat the day before I got into Klondike, about 80 pounds, and paid 86 for it. At Klondike I was offered from $60 to $100 for the same.

"Grub is so very scarce that although a miner might have a million in his pocket he might still be starving. This will continue until the boat gets up in about a week. Everybody has to be a supply on the arrival.

Mr. Stanbope, who has been described as "A revolutionary aristocrat without being a Mirabeau," supported his resolution in a vigorous speech. He attacked Company, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Clonies, and Cecil Rhodes, and expressed a desire that the latter should be deposed from his membership in the Privy Council. He also wanted the charter of the company msterially medified.

Mr. Henry Labouchere spoke in the same strain. McQuestion Creek, a branen of the Stewart. They worked in this section, in which there were several other parties out prospecting, until September, when they pulled up stakes, after several months of unsuccessful work.

Early in September the party stared to go down the Yukon River to Forty-Mile Creek, in the hope of obtaining work in the mines in that vicinity, or to find some ground on which they could make at least a grub stake.

When the party were proceeding down the river they met a man coming up the river to hunt moose in the Stewart River, where they are found in great strike that had been made on the Klondike River, and stated that he had himself staked a claim, but wanted to "raise the wind" by moose hunting before commencing mining operations.

He stated that the strike had been made on Aug. 12th.

On arriving at the Klondike the party found that the strike was on Bonanza Creek, but that all the available ground had been staked off before they got there. They then staked off claims on Adams and Eldorado Creeks, being branches or gulches off the Bonanza Creek. On Adams Creek they found tothing, but the Eldorado gulch turned out for the reconstruction of the country. The pay ground is only four miles in length, and as each claim is 500 feet wide, extending from rim to rim of the gulch, there was not room for more than 45 claims. It is from this short gulch that all the rich strikes have been made. The claims to have teached and exceptional pocket that he struk. of interior decoration, and the genuine art which inspires the brush of the painter.

It is almost like paying a visit to some grand gallery, where samples of the daintiest creations of the decorator's pencil and the artist's brush are grouped side by side. There is nothing about the Jubilee which will appeal morestrongly to Her Majesty than will the advance in art shown by the interior of her own car—if she will but turn her memory back to the days of the girlhood. In most trains of this art intended to convey some great propage, the maximum effort in every instance is made upon the particular car which is to convey over the rails the star of the train. In this instance, the men who have constructed and fittled this train seem to have been strongly impressed with the necessity that the most magnificent work shown in the private carriage of the Queen should be maintained throughout the entire train.

Turning from the decorations by the artists, one naturally looks to the result of the furnisher's work. The compartments in either end of the Queen's carriage are finished in ivory, gold and yellow, pink and gold. Possibly one might think that such variety in a single car would be the height of incongruity, but examination discloses the fact that the same excellent taste which is exhibited throughout the entire train is strongly in evidence in this instance.

Mrs. George Glasson Lizotte, a niece of Gen. Lew Wallace, has been on a wedding trip for the last seven years. She was Miss Harlan of Juliette, Ind., and her husband was formerly an officer in the French navy. They became acquainted in New York while Miss Harlan was traveling with Gen. Wallace, and they were married seven years ago. Since that time they have been constantly traveling, and a few days ago they visited the bide's home again while en route from Alaska to Nova Scotia. Both of them are enthusinstic for traviling and they propose to keep it up indefinitely. They have visited 1480 towns in the United States, 235 in Canada, and 45 in Mexico. They have ridden over every line of railway in the three countries and on every boat line.

construction of plots, but even on this side often accomplished most satisfactory results.

She was an exceedingly rapid writer, turning out with great regularity after she began to write a three-volume novel every year. She published over forty works of fiction, in addition to the numerous biographical and historical works. It would be very hard to find her equal in this respect, considering the high and even standard of style which she maintained.

Mrs. Oliphant was born at Wallyford, near Musselburgh, in Midlothian, in 1826, her maiden name being Margaret Oliphant Wilson. Her early attempt at writing for the immediate pleasure of her own circle of friends met with so much approbation that her first novel, called "Passages in the Life of Mrs. Margaret Maitland of Sunnyside," was given to the publisher. With this work her long career of activity was entered upon. Most of her novels were stories of daily life, or were chosen from historical seenes. They were all noted for the exceeding purity of their tone, as she steadily and consistently refused to have anything to do with the criminal sides of life, whether among the higher or the lower classes of society.

Ju some of her latest novels Mrs. Oliphant gave freer reign to an underlying

The wedding feast is not complete without a cake. The correct wedding cake this season is very heavy plum cake. It is frosted and iced until it resembles a block of purest marble, and then the artistic patiesier calls sail his sculptural skill to ornament ft with wreaths and garlands and flaming torches. If the bride is one of the elect he is not permitted to mix any pink wagar, cupids, inscriptions and hearts are alikedenied to him. Solidity and simplicity distinguish the correct wedding rake. Sometimes the top of the cake is perfectly plain, the sides only being decorated with fanciful ropes of leaves and flowers in sugar. Around the edge, on top of the cake, is placed a wreath of natural white roses or orange blosoms, just before it is placed before the bride to cut. At a pink wedding which took place the other day the cake was adorted by a nosegay of June roses stuck in the middle of the toothsome symbol.

Mrs. Oliphant was one of the most prolific and versatile authors of modern times, and her name is known wherever the English language is read. Her novels have been a recognized feature of the best English litrature for many years, and, despite all the changes in standards of taste, they have succeeded in keeping an undiminished popularity. SOME RELIGIOUS STATISTICS.

Increase in Churches and Preachers in the United States in Ten Years.

The United States is the only country in which an official census omits matters relating to the religious beliefs of the inhabitants. In every European country, in Canada, South America, India and Australia, when a census is taken by governmental or local authority, inquiry is made into the religious belief of the inhabitants, and the custom is universal to ascribe to the minor children of a family the religious creed of the parents or guardians. In the United States, however, the antipathy to any admixture of religious creed of the any any admixture of religious served as a bar against isquiries by census officials on religious matters, and the nearest approach to such information has come, therefore, from statistics of church sittings. There is kept, too, but not by any official authority, a record of the number of misnisters of each religious denomination, and a comparison of the figures for the last few years is interesting as showing the changes which are going on in the various denominations.

Ten years ago there were in the United States 38,522 aptist churches and 25,777 Baptist clergymen. There are now 45,892 Baptist churches and 33,672 Baptist clergymen. Things About Indian Affairs

London, July 7.—Hyudman, the English Socialist leader, publishes an article in Justice, the Socialist organ, on the subject of the Indian riots. It is full of accusations against the Government, is insulting to the Queen, and concludes with: "Now let us say plainty, as Englishmen who are utterly sick of the infamous wrong and robbery being done in our name, who would gladly see the villains tried and hanged, from Lord George Hamilton (the Secretary of State for India) upwards, who have created the famine and murdered natives by the millions, that if ever rebellion was justified in British India to-day. No more intolerable tyranny ever crushed and ruined a suffering people."

down and back, then the ladies start from one corner, the gentlemen from the opposite, and they cross each other, one at a ten near the centre, forming a lette X. They end by forming a ring the centre, and winding in and out until the leader has been to the centre and out again. Then they ride out to the dressing rooms and that completes the musical ride.

Next on the program comes a potato race. The leader comes out and places at intervals down the hall three potatoes on the right and three potatoes on the left, the same distance apart. When the signal is given a girl on a bicycle starts down the right side, a man rides down the left side, until they reach the potato which is furthest down the line. They dismount, pick up the potato, and carry it on their wheel back to the leader, and carry it on their wheel back to the leader, and so in until they have each gathered up their row. Usually a girl will mount more, more apt to win in a potato race. Two more couples try their skill in this direction, and then there is a final heat for the winners.

Next comes an overture by the band, when fancy riding may be introduced, and a clown and possibly a stuffed figure tied on to his bicycle will make a little extra fifth item of the program might be the winding of a May pole by twelve little girls in white dresses and garlunds on their heads, and their bicycles also bediecked with paper roses. Then follows an obstacle race. Two long benches are placed across the hall, on which rosts a box of soda crackers, and at the upper end of the hall a table containing several gisses of lemonade. When all is ready a signal is given and four young men on their wheels ride down the centre, lasses of lemonade, after which they make a complete circuit of the hall before the race is ended.

Next the lancers, "daneed," If one may be allowed that word, by sixteen men and maddens on their wheels. They form in two sets and go through the figures of the lancers, circling around each other instead of "turning partners," and ending with the grand chain, making one of the prettient items of the evening.

The thread and needle race consists of four young helps which are suspended from a gibb

Meats and Their Relishes.

Here is a list of meats and their relishes: Roast pork and roast goose, apple sauce; roast veal, tomato or mushroon sauce; mutton, roast, currant jelly; boil, caper sauce; lamb, mint sauce; holled chicken, bread sauce; roast turkey, cranberry sauce; version or wild ducks, black currant jelly; broiled fresh mackerel, stewed gooseberries; holled bluefish, white cream sauce; broiled shad, boiled rice and salad; compote of pigeons, mushroom sauce; fresh salmon, green peas, cream sauce. To make a mistake in serving meat relishes is to offend the taste of an epicure beyond the hope of pardon.

Repeating Alarm Clock. Repeating Alarm Clock.

Repeating alarm clocks are among the new layentions, the rod on which the spring is wound being controlled by a toothed wheel' to prevent its unwinding beyond a certain point at each interval, the rod being released again as soon as the wheel completes its revolution, thus repeating the alarm an indefinite number of times or until stopped or run down.

These messengers of mischief do not exist for millions. Why not? Because they are healthy and strong protected as a crocodile is against gun-shot. It is the weak, the wasted, the thin-blooded who fall; those who have no resistive power wasted, the time-tooled wasted, those who have no resistive power so that a sudden cough or cold develops into graver disease. When Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett was first presented to Im Maurier, who was, in point of fact, rather an undersized man, she exclaimed:

"But, why?" asked Du Maurier.
"Because for these many months." replied Mrs. Burnett, who is considerably denied us the right to live; you have made us feet that a woman who is not six feet tall has not the right to exist."

"Oh, that is only a trick of mine," laughed Du Maurier, "I have started again and again to make my heroine a little woman, but before I know it she has somehow grown beyond my recognition."

the Great Victor Huge.

Francois Edouard Joachim Coppes, who has been reported critically ill act Paris, has been ranked since the death of Victor Hugo as the greatest of French poets, but he has also won distinction as a dramatist and a romaneer. He was born in Paris in 1842, being the youngest child of a poor clerk in the war department. His father dying, he took the modest clerkship is the war department at the age of 21 and became the head of the family. He was not an apt student as a boy, but began writing verses early in youth. Coppee baraed his juvenile verses, but made his literary debut in 1868 with a volume of poems published at his own expense under the title of "Le Reliquatie." A second volume was entitled "Les Intimites," but less than 200 copies of both works were sold. The first golden gleam of fortune came to him in 1869.

FRANCOIS COPPER. "Le Passant," a little one-act comedy in verse, was presented one night at the Odeon, and Frencois Coppee awoke in the morning to find himself famous. During the Franco-Prussian war he did his duty in the ranks of the army, like many another artist in letters and with the brush. He wrote war songs during and even after the short conflict, some of which were very popular. He was elected to membership in the French Academy in 1894.

F. Kniese, Who Holds the Amateur Henors of Germany.

There are few swimmers who have confidence enough in their own prowess to cross an ocean and compete alone against all the experts of another nation. F. Kniese, the German charpion, is the plucky natator who will endeavor to take the United States national swimming championships to the continent. His coming has added much to the events held at Idncoln Park, Chicago, July 3. It gave to the races something of an international aspect. The visitor now holds three world's records, and is qualified to give new world contestants a close contest for the events he enters. His world's performances are as follows: Five hundred meters, German—time 10.34, July 13, 1800; 900 meters, German—time, 17.26 2-5, July 30, 1892; 150 meters, German, on backtime, 2.05 1-5, Aug. 11, 1889. The Tenton did not decide what events he will enter until he reached Chicago, and tried the water of the park lagoon. His stroke is said to be not unlike that of Pr. Neumann, who will swim under the Chicago Athletic Association colors. The latter is a citizen of Austria. The pre-

Road Dust as an Insecticide.
For several years, I have used with good effect road dust against the striped encumber beetles. I sweep the dust up in the track of the wheels and keep it on hand. Put shout four quarts in a loose bag and shake the dust on the plants when they are dry, enough to cover the ground under them. This is also a sure remedy for the little black fleas. I seldom have to dust more than twice.—F. C. Tompkins, in American Agriculturist.

"Have you seen Jerry Simpson's gold tooth?"
That's the question Congressmen are asking each other. The topic is one of paramount interest. Since it came to the front Hawaii, Cuba and the tariff have paled into insignificance.
All is not gold that glitters, but there is not the slightest doubt about the 18-carat quality of this monometallic incisor of the Populist leader from the Grasshopper State. It looms up clear across the House like a lighthouse in a fog when Jerry smiles, which is quite often of late, and Speaker Reed was so nearly hypnotized by it that he almost nearly forgot to adjourn at the proper time on Thursday last.
Various explanations are offered why Jerry got a gold tooth instead of a silver one. Some say it is because he holds that gold should be used only for utilitarian purposes, and that he has no objection to gold, per se, but that as a standard of value it is entirely too high up for ordinary people.—Washington Peat.

I then went to Dr. Dickson of Frankville sud learned from him that it was spinal disease. He prescribed a plaster of paris jacket which I wore for six months, but received no benefit from it. He then prescribed a plaster of paris jacket with a temporary mast to go up and take the weight of my head off the spine and also to keep my head steady. This I only wore a short time, as it was more than I could endure, and I continued to grow worse all the time. Dr. Cluthe, of Toronto, told me he could cure me with a steel spinal appears of their aunt, Mrs. Amasa W. Kelly.

Dr. Cluthe, of Toronto, told me he could cure me with a steel spinal appliance, which I purchased from him and wore almost six months, but from it received no benefit, but still grew worse. I threw off the appliance altogether and went some time without it. In the meantime I completely lost the power of my limbs and had to have an invalid's chair on which to be wheeled around the house. I took paralysis of the muscles and suffered paralysis of the muscles and suffered about the first of May, 1896, 1 wrote to Dr. Dickson to come and see me. He arrived on the 25th day of that Managerial.

Sam Epstein, the well-known theatrical man, tells a good story at the expense of a local theatre, whose "standing room only" sign is no longer needed. One night after the curtain was rung up a small boy was discovered sobbing in front of the box office. The manager of the theatre went to the lad and kindly asked him what the trouble was. "I want my money back," sobbed the boy. by. In surprise, the manager asked his reason for such a request.
"Because—because, I'm afraid to sit up in the gallery all alone," he wailed.
His money was returned.—Chicago

Among the war indemnities exacted by Great Britain during the present with Ohina. Of these the most important was that demanded at the close of the opinium war or 1840-1. It amounted to £4,000,000 in addition to £1,250,000 channed to facility. and en it pending the conclusion of peace.

The heaviest war indemnity of modern times was, of course, that paid by the formany. The hostilities lasted over the war barbing and 200,000 men. The German loss was set down at 45,000 men, who were eithre killed in battle or diel of wounds or sickness. Besides the cession of Alsace and Lorraine, France had to pay Germany 5 milliards of francs (200 millions sterling) in instalments which were allowed to extend over three was 6 milliards, or 40 more. The German of Common. to pay Germany 5 milliards of tranes (200 millions sterling) in instalments which were allowed to extend over three years. The original demand of Germany was 6 milliards, or 40 millions sterling more. There strove in vain to save Metz, but it was to his exertions that the reduction in the amount of the indemnity was due. The cost of the Russo-Turkish war in 1877 has been estimated at 190 millions sterling, and 180, 000 men on both sides. Between the decharation of war by Russia and the treaty of San Stefano nearly eleven nonths elapsed. By this treaty the Porte admitted itself indebted to Russia in the sum of 1,410 million rubles (about 145 millions sterling) as indeanity for the losses and expenses of the war. The items in the account were a follows: 900 million rubles (92 millions sterling) for war expenses; 400 millions (41 millions sterling) for damage done to the south coast of Russia, her expert commerce, industries and railways; 100 millions (11 millions sterling) for injuries caused by the invasion of the Caucasus, and 10 millions (1 millions sterling) for injuries caused by the invasion of the Caucasus, and 10 millions (1 millions sterling) for injuries caused by the invasion of the Caucasus, and 10 millions (1 millions sterling) for injuries suffered by Russian subjects and establishments in Turkey. In accordance with the Salan's wishes, however, and in consideration of the financial embarrassments of he Ottoman Empire, the Caar magnamously and wisely consented to appear to the lower of the total sum the various territorial cossions spacetoned by the treaty of south. cept in substitution for about four-fifths of the total sum the various territorial cessions sanctioned by the treaty of Berlin. This left a Aplance of 300 million rubles due to 'Russia by Turk-y, and with the exception of some 17 million rubles the indemnity is owing still, the amount in October, 1889, being nearly 31 millions sterling.

WHAT KEEPS THE SUN HOT. It Will Probably Keep Warm for Twenty According to the most recent investigations the temperature of the sun is somewhere between 5000 and 6000 degrees centigrade, and there are reasons for believing that for hundreds of thousands, perhaps for millions of years, it has been radiating heat into space with no appreciable loss of temperature. Were the sunsimply a cooling mass of stone or metal it must ages ago have lost both its heat and its light; were it a globe of burning carbon it can easily be calculated that it would have burned out in about 6000 years. Where, then, does it get its heat supply? is a question frequently asked.

heat supply? is a question frequently asked.

We are so accustomed to regard fire, combustion, as the principal source of heat, or at any rate, of intense heat, that it is not easy to realize that there may be other sources, equally abundant, from which the sun may obtain its perential supply of this article. Astronomers for some source of combustion going on in the sus, fits fieat is, more probably, of that soft shown in physics as mechanical heat—heat that is produced by friction, by hammering or compression, We are familiar enough with the first two sources, though only hammering or compression, we are familiar enough with the first two sources, though only hammering or compression, we are familiar enough with the first two sources, though only had been some that which we perceive to be thus developed is not great; but heat produced by compression is not so often brought to our pression is not so often brought to our pression is not so often brought to our amount of heat which we perceive to be thus developed as notice. From a variety of experiments, however, it can be shown that whenever a metal as a piece of lead, or the air, or, indeed, any gas, is forcibly compressed heat is evolved, and this is the source to which astronomers are now inclined to look for the main supply of the solar energy. This idea was first suggested by Hesimhors, and it has been that up and clahorated by Levil Relvin. According to the theory of these scientists the sun, which is simply a mass of gaseous matter, is new and has been for ages contracting its dimensions—is growing smaller, and the mechanical heat produced in this process is precisely that which it is continually throwing off into space. Lord Kelvin calculated that a contraction of the sun, under the force of gravity, which diminished its diameter to the extent of four miles a century, would felly account for its heat supply, enormous as it is. The sun might contract this rate for several thousand years, before there would be any disinution of its size perceptible even through a talescope. Of course, this process has a limit, and eventually the sun, naving become too der to contract further, must begin to cool off; but not for some ten or twenty million years, says Lord Kelvin.—Philadelphia Record.

BOUND BY GRATITUDE Are Britain's Colonies to the Mothe Country. Commer.

London, July 8.—This evening at the Hotel Cecil, the Cordwainers Companygave a banquet to the Cotonial Premiers and their, wives. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Lady Laurier sat on the right and left respectively of the master of the company, and covers were laid for 300 guests.

left respectively of the master of the company, and covers were laid for 300 guests.

Mr. Chamberlain, toasting "The British Empire," said the Jubilee displays of the army and navy were a guarantee to the colonies that Great Britain would spend her all in their defence. If by mo other ties, he continued, the colonies were bound to Great Britain by gratitude for having accorded them free government. He pointed out the delicacy and fragility of the links binding the colonies to England, and added: "In their interests, everything is being done to bind the colonies to that England unto which they belong; and we hope soon to witness the federation of Australasia, which, of necessify must be followed by the federation of the South African colonies, which in turn would lead to the federation of the British Empire."

Mr. Chamberlain, continuing, said: "I believe, however, that I express the feeling of those well qualified to represent the self-governing colonies when I say they are of the opinion that any change in the political relations between England and her colonies would be a matter of such vast importance and complexity, and involve such great constitutional changes, that it ought at all times to be approached with delicacy and reserve. It would be retarded rathors than hastened by any attempt to press it to a premature conclusion. We hope that the coloniests will take back this message from the bottom of all English hearts. We are prepared at any sacrifice to maintain intact their interests and honor and our own, and believe that unity of the Empire is the best guarantee of the integrity of the Empire.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, replying, said: "Mr. Chansberlain has opened up the subject which, more than any other, is engaging the attention." The Empire.

best guarantee of the integrity of the Empire".

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, replying, said:

"Mr. Chauberlain has opened up the subject which, more than any other, is engaging the attention—the Empire. It is of a character that must demand the attention of thinking men. One thing is certain, the colonies should either draw more closely together in the Empire or should separate. The decision, the choice, does not lie altogether in the mouths of the colonies, but rather in the mouths of the colonies, but rather in the mouths of the people of the Motherland. When Camada has her strength nothing else will satisfy her but Imperial representation. If this is thought to be a dream, then it is a dream that should appeal to all men and especially to all women."

STRONG COLONIES

Without Them Beekeeping Is Sure to Be to Disappointment.

One of the difficult things for the notice in beekeeping to learn is that ten strong colonies will store more honey anxiety for large numbers, and each colony is counted one, no matter how feeble it may be. So the inexperienced is often delighted at getting two, three, or even four or five swarms from a single colony, notwithstanding the fact that the last two or three swarms contain only a handful of bees. They make sure to die before the winter is over, and then he decides that he doesn't care for such very weak colonies, but still clings to the thought that one strong enough to live through it is all right.

Many times, however, it is true economy to lessen the number, even with the view of having the largest number possible in the succeeding fall. Suppose, for instance, there are four weak colonies in the spring, each one having enough bees to fairly cover two combs. Unite two of them and leave the other two without uniting. You now have only three colonies instead of four, and yet you may be better out; for the one colony, with bees to cover four combs, will go right on increasing in strength, and by the time the white clover harvest is fully under way it will be strong enough to give you a rousing swarm, and you will now have two strong colonies for it, while the two weaklings have only just begun fairly to build up. They stod still, not showing any increase in number for a long time, evidently needing all the strength they had to keep up existence and make good the loss of the dying bees by the young bees raised. If, instead of trying to increase, the effort be to get all the honey possible, supposing neither colony offers to swarm, the difference is fully as noticeable, if not more so. The united colony will have more bees than there are in both the others. It is easy to see that it will store more surplus. But if you're had no experience in the matter it may be hard for you to believe how much more.—Farmers' Union.

Floral Sunshades.

The new parasols follow the hat vogue in being very fully trimmed with flowers. Onc, for example, is caught with great bunches of daisies. This parasol cannot be entirely closed. Another, not a flowered one, has puffs of chiffon running around it, the puffs being separated by tiny bands of black velvet ribbon. A big chiffon ruffs falls over the edge.

A very new way of using flowers is to make floral handles. A bunch of violets made of some paste material, and carefully covered, formed the handle of a gold and white parasol, and there are many carved wood sticks, painted like flowers. Some of these are small and fine; others make a single big red rose or an Easter lily. Gold tibagl over white satin is very much used. Old white satin parasols may be brought out and treated to a dress of gold at small expense. Dreaden ribbons are much used. An immense bow to match the heart of the daisies was placed upon a parasol trimmed with bunches of these flowers.

Redingote Models.

Redingote Models The relingote model is a favorite for morning gowns, whether blousing over the belt, or whether more on the Princess style. They are characterized by being fastened entirely down the front or side, and usually having a small or side, and usually having a small guimpe beneath.

A charming one at a morning wedding was of royal blue cloth, with a source decolletage, and fastening down one side, the whole top pouching back and front a bit over a white kid belt. The opening and the decolletage were edged with an embroidery of steel and jet, while ruffied epaulettes over the blue sleeves were of white cloth, evered with jet and size. The guimpe was of broader velvet, in red and blue and white, and a Russian turban of blue velvet was trimmed with a cockade of white tully and white feather signetage.
