WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXX.

She was quiet enough now, and thanked me almost in her usual manner, but on the hand she held out I saw Fraser Froude's ring shining again. She meant to be obstinate—that was evident—and in more ways than one too, for, try as I would now, I could get no further word from her, and was at last fretfully desired to go down-stairs, and leave her to herself—a pettish request which I complied with just as Virtue came in softly with the key of the jewel-cabinet and as the dinner-bell was clanging away its loudest down-stairs.

A doleful dinner it was, and served to a doleful couple of diners. Madame merely toyed with her knife and fork, and sent her plates away one after another barely touched; and I was almost as bad. Natalie would not come down, sending a message to the effect that she was tired and would go to bed; and mademoiselle, on the plea of continued headache, kept upstairs too. That wretched ball was partly to blame for our low spirits. I dare say, for I am sure I sat yawning until my eyes watered; at any rate, it was not ten o'clock when we both gave up the pretense of being sociable, and said good-night, madame bestowing upon me an affectionate salute, a piece of ceremony which she never indulged in unless unusually troubled or softened. And I went drowsily and drearily upstairs, sleepily wishing two things—that I possessed some spell capable of neatly and comfortably annihilating Fraser Froude, and that I had one yet stronger which should be able to keep Roger Yorke in Whittlesford.

CHAPTER XXXI.

I do not exactly know what passed between madame and her ward on the subject of that miserable engagement. All I know is that, coming down rather late on the following morning, yawning and feeling that I had still considerable arrears of sleep to make up, I found both Nat and my mother already in the breakfast room, and saw in a moment that whatever explanation there had been to make between the two was over. And by and by, when the meal was finished, and madame called me into her little office room to help her with a batch of business letters, I was none the wiser, for she only told me calmly, although still with the heavy look of trouble upon her face, that for the present at least she could do nothing, and that she was too worried to talk

How He Escaped An Operation

And Was Completely Cured of Piles of 14 Years' Standing by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. Beauvais. Doctors say that about one person in every four suffers more or less from piles, and who can imagine a more annoying, torturing, disagreeable ailment. After trying a few treatments without success, and as the ailment grows worse, the medical doctor is consulted. An operation, he says, is necessary. You think of the suffering, expense and risk to life itself, and hesitate before taking such a step. In many thousands of such cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has made thorough and lasting cures. Read this letter for the proof. Mr. Charles Beauvais, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief. "However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value." Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Chapped Hands AND Cold Sores

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, and the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Zam-Buk also cures chafing, rashes, winter eczema, piles, ulcers, festering sores, sore heads and backs, abscesses, pimples, ringworms, skin cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, sprains. Of all drugs and stores, or get free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Price 60c a box.

about it any further. So I had to repress my impatient curiosity, and apply myself to the letters.

They were a pretty heavy batch, for the ball had upset madame's usual methodical exactness, and when they were disposed of it was close on luncheon time. A message from old Batterbin called madame away as we crossed the hall, and going on to the morning-room, where the interval between breakfast and luncheon was usually spent, I found that the chair in which Nat had been sitting was vacant—that only Mlle. Valigni was there. She was on the opposite side of the fire, knitting away at some white woolen work.

"Halloo," I said, looking round—"where's Nat, mademoiselle?"

"Mademoiselle Natalie has gone out," returned the lady, equably.

"Out?" I echoed, with a blank look at the window. "Why, it's snowing like one o'clock! What on earth did she do that for?"

"She did say that the house did choke her, and that she should scream if she did not have the air," answered mademoiselle, composedly.

"She oughtn't to have gone. A fine fuss madame will make! It's enough to give her her death of cold. How awfully foolish!"

"Bah, Monsieur Ned," cried the governess, impatiently, giving her needles a click—"it is you that are foolish, I think! Mademoiselle Natalie is not what you call an enfant a babe—that she can not look after herself. If it does snow and she does not like it, she will come in. She did go of her own accord."

Just so, but it seemed to me that in her present state of mind Miss Nat might do a good many things of her own accord which could not be accounted precisely sensible, though I did not choose to say so to mademoiselle. Instead, I went out into the hall, put on my hat and overcoat, and, calling to old Styles, who passed toward the plate-room with a tray filled with spoons and forks, to tell madame that I had gone to fetch Miss Orme, I went out.

She would be somewhere in the park, I guessed, and tramped off down the drive, first peering between the clumps of bushes and thick trees, but failing to catch a glimpse of the cardinal-red dress which I knew she wore on. Evidently she was not on the lodge side, for, although I whistled and called her name loudly, I received no reply. Turning back again, I crossed over and got into the Lady's Walk, and made my way toward the little gate in the fence, wondering if she could be there. No; there were no signs of her; and then a sudden thought struck me that she had probably wandered off to the little lake, where in the summer I had taught her to row. It had always been a favorite spot of hers, and in fine weather was a pleasant enough lounging-place, though it made me shudder to think what it must be like on such a day as this. No doubt I should find the ridiculous little goose trying to freeze herself to death there! The snow was falling faster now, and I quickened my rapid walk into a run, hurrying down the broad path which led to the lake. I was almost within sight of it, and was congratulating myself on the luck of having thought to bring a thick shawl over my arm, when a sudden sound on my right brought me to an abrupt halt. I heard Natalie's voice, and a man's which I at once recognized. Springing in among the trees and round the trunk of a huge oak I came upon them, standing in a little clearing carpeted by the dead leaves which the wind had not yet swept away and scattered, Nat looking pale, angry, frightened—all at once—and close before her, so close that he could have touched her, Raby St. George.

I have said how she looked; but his face, its dark beauty distorted with passion, and of a dull white pallor, was quite horrible. Whatever it was that she had last said, it seemed for the moment to have stricken him dumb, for he stood with his eyes dilating as he glared upon her pale, scared, defiant face, and his arms hanging beside him as though they had been arrested in some passionate gesture. Then Natalie made a quick start as if to leave him, and in an instant his hand upon her stopped her and pulled her back. That was more than I could stand. I sprang toward him, clutched his shoulder, and dragged him back with such violence that he staggered and then fell heavily among the leaves.

I did not mean to use such force, for I was stronger than he as well as a head and shoulders taller, but my blood was up just then. He rose almost as quickly as he had fallen, and stood eying me, his breath coming fast.

"You will be sorry for this one day, Chavasse," he said, slowly, bringing out the words with a short pause between each. He breathed as though he had been running violently.

"I'm sorry enough now," I answered—for, though I did not like him, yet I did not want to hurt the fellow in his feelings or otherwise. "But it isn't my fault, you know. Whatever you have to say to Miss Orme must be said without that sort of thing, Mr. St. George."

"What do you mean?" he demanded, fiercely.

"What I say," I returned, doggedly, putting one arm round Nat's shoulders, for she had given a scream and was now clinging to me—"that I won't see her treated as I wouldn't see my sister treated if I had one;

MRS. GREATON'S AWFUL EXPERIENCE

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. MAMON SWEET GREATON, No. 1 Jefferson St., Natick, Mass.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultant) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

and I say that that sort of thing won't do. We're not used to it. Gentlemen in England don't as a rule, bully women. And, as I came out to take Miss Orme in, it would be as well if you put off what you want to say to her until some other time, if you please!" I concluded, flustered in my way as much as he was in his.

"As I have had my dismissal from her, I need not stop to take it from you," he retorted. "But I tell you at parting, Ned Chavasse, that, if you are sorry now, and the day ever comes when the madness which is in my blood rages in yours, you will be more sorry yet."

He said not another word, nor waited for any reply, but, without a glance at Natalie, turned and disappeared rapidly among the trees. The snow was coming down so thickly now that the traces of his footsteps were blotted out almost as they were made; and Nat, still holding fast to my arm with her face hidden against my sleeve, was shuddering violently, although I hardly thought with the cold. I put the shawl round her.

"Come, Nat—we must hurry! This is awful. A fine cold you'll catch! It was lucky I found you. What made you go out?"

"The house stifled me," she muttered.

"Ugh! That's better than having the snow bury you. How came that fellow here after you?"

"He saw me and followed me."

"What for?"

"Oh, as though you did not know!" she cried, impatiently. "For mercy's sake do not torment me, Ned! He came to plague me as he has plagued me before, and to threaten me as he used to threaten me in Jamaica, when I was first afraid of him."

"Threaten?" I interrogated, indignantly.

"Yes—threaten. If you had listened you would have heard. It does not matter—nothing matters! I don't think we shall ever see him again—I hope not. Do hurry—I am so cold!"

From the tone of her voice I knew there would be little use in saying anything else, so held my tongue as I helped her through the narrow paths leading to the Lady's Walk, and so on to the house.

The hall was empty, and, as I took off the snow-laden shawl and assisted her to unbutton her fur jacket, a sudden thought made me ask—

"I say, Nat—you didn't tell St. George that you were—that you were—"

"Engaged to Mr. Froude?" she put in, looking at me deliberately. "Yes—I told him."

You Can Never Tell.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A young man, previously much respected and liked in his community, was convicted of forging a check.

Said the young man's former friend: "Isn't it shocking? To think how we were deceived in him. And yet no wonder we were. Look at the care he took of his mother, and how nice he was to his sisters, and how courteous to old people and generous to any one in trouble. And to think, it was all hypocrisy, and that he was like this underneath. Well, it shows you never can tell."

A young woman of excellent standing and good family made a fatal mistake because she loved "not wisely, but too well."

Among her acquaintances the conversation ran like this:

"Would you ever have thought it of Elizabeth?"

"No, she's the last person I would ever have believed that of."

"She had such ideals about things and thought so much of people who were really good. It just shows that oftentimes the people who pretend to be so good are much worse than other people."

"I believe you. I always mistrusted Elizabeth, anyway. She seemed too good to be true."

So the two communities decided that they had been greatly mistaken in seeing good traits in the young man and in Elizabeth, and sadly came to the conclusion that humankind are much more unregenerate than we realize.

That is, some came to the conclusion sadly, but more with the smirking, smug, unacknowledged, but none the less, keen sense of gratification with which erring men and women discover faults in those they had feared were better than they.

But the point is that, as a whole, these two communities condemned these two people and wondered how they could ever have been so deceived in them.

All of which is a commonplace happening in every community. But there's something I wonder. It's this: If a convict should suddenly do some astonishingly good deed why shouldn't we all join in saying: "And to think we thought he was a forger," or "To think we thought he could have tried to kill a man, etc., etc. How mistaken we were. We must take him out of prison at once and reinstate him. A man who does anything so good as that can't have any bad in him. That bad must have been mere pretense."

Wouldn't that be quite as logical as our wholesale condemnation of the young man who forged the check or the girl who made a cruel mistake?

No human being is all good or all bad. Most of us are Jekylls and Hydes. When the Hyde in a man or woman violently offends public morality, as in the case of the woman, or breaks the law, as in the case of the man, that does not necessarily mean that the Jekyll is not just as real and desirable and lovable as it ever was.

Remember that when you would decide that you were mistaken in thinking anyone good because he commits some one unlawful or unpardonable act.

Remember that in your own case, when you would give up the battle because you have failed signally in some one direction. No matter what evil manifestation the Hyde within you may have accomplished, the Jekyll is still there. Believe in him, and encourage him, and no matter what power the Hyde may have attained, you will not have failed utterly.

Ruth Cameron

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that the disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "Every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes Mrs. M. M. MURPHY, of Corona, Calif. "I had suffered from it off and on for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally I was told to try my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grow strong fast. To-day I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Army Wedding.

Lord Roberts' Second Daughter Engaged.

A marriage has been arranged between Lady Edwina Roberts, daughter of Field-Marshal Earl Roberts, V.C., and Major H. F. E. Lewin, R.F.A.

Lady Edwina Roberts is the younger of the Earl's daughters, and was born in March, 1875. Major Lewin is two years older. He went out to the Egyptian Army in 1894, as a second lieutenant. In 1900 he was made captain, and in 1901 was transferred to the Royal Field Artillery, of which corps he now commands the 142nd Battery. From January, 1909, to March, 1911, he was military secretary to the Sir-

dar (Sir Reginald Wingate.)

It may be recalled that when Lord Roberts was promoted to an Earl in 1901, there was granted with his new title, in default of male issue, a special remainder to his elder daughter and her heirs male, and in default of such issue to his younger daughter and her heirs, male, and in default of such issue, to every other younger daughter successively and their heirs male. This arrangement was, doubtless, made in consideration of the heroic death, in 1899, of Lord Roberts' then heir, his son, the Hon. Frederick Roberts, when saving the guns at Colenso—for which act of gallantry a posthumous award of the V.C. was made.

Thus, if a son be born to Major and Lady Edwina Lewin, he will succeed to his grandfather's honored title.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded if it Fails.

This recipe makes 15 ounces of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (sixty cents) worth in a 16-ounce bottle, and add five Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features. Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, pine resin, gualiac and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equalled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or writes for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Pope Pius' Economy.

Abolishes Expensive Luxuries, using Money to Spread Faith.

Rome, Feb. 10.—Pius X is slowly and steadily carrying out the programme with which he began his pontificate, of the greatest possible economies, in order to devote all the funds offered by Catholics throughout the world, to the spread of the Faith.

Leo XIII, even in his short drives in the Vatican Gardens, used always to appear in state, escorted by members of the Noble Guard on horseback and an officer riding at the side of his carriage. When Pius X was raised to the Chair of St. Peter, the first thing he did was to stop everything of the kind, as his pleasure consists in going about the gardens on foot without officials or dignitaries.

The horses left in the Pontifical stables remained for a few months inactive, after which orders were given to sell them, and since then (for about ten years), the Noble Guard has been employed only in attendance on the Papal antechamber or at the few great functions given by the present Pontiff.

To be sure, they are not largely paid, as their salaries vary from $40 to $100 a month, but when this is multiplied by nearly 100 members it makes at the end of the year a considerable amount, which Pius X. has decided to economize.

The members of the Noble Guard are far from being satisfied with the pay they receive, and henceforth the Guard will be an entirely honorary body and will no longer be recruited from the aristocracy of the former Pontifical States, but open to the Catholic youth of the whole world, thus forming an international body more adapted in essence and scope to the Catholic church, which wishes to be universal.

The announcement of this decision has caused many applications to come from foreign countries, especially from Spain, Ireland, Austria and Poland.

From America there are forty-two candidates, belonging to distinguished Catholic families, chiefly of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Chicago and St. Louis.

Other applications come from Catholic French-Canadians, claiming almost as a right to belong to the new body of the Noble Guard as descendants of the Canadians who belonged to the Papal Zouaves.

Threepenny Novels.

New Publishing Enterprise of "Answers."

The effect of the latest enterprise of "Answers" is to place within the reach of everybody the best novels by some of the most popular authors of the day. The first two of these threepenny novels, in beautiful three-colored covers and named after the famous periodical, have just been published, and offer astonishing value at the price.

One of these is "The Devil's Keg," by Ridgwell Cullum, a story of life on a Canadian ranch, and a more vivid tale of the great North West was never written; the other novel is "Timman," by Tom Gallon, and is usually considered the masterpiece of that well-known author.

These novels will be followed at short intervals by other equally attractive books, arrangements having been already made with a number of notable authors for the issue of their works in the "Answers" Threepenny series.

If a Laxative is Needed—"Cascarets"

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills are violent—they act on bowels as pepper acts on nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headaches, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Bible Society's Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Bible Society takes place in the Methodist Church, to-night. At this important convention His Excellency the Governor will preside and as it is his first appearance on a local platform, we feel assured that he will be given a loyal and hearty demonstration of welcome. Rev. Canon Bolt, M.A., and Rev. C. A. Williams, M.A., will be the speakers, while the musical portion of the proceedings will be conducted by Mr. Allen of the Anglican Cathedral. During the collection he will render a voluntary by Hayden. The Seven Last Words, a beautiful oration, and the choir will render an anthem. The collection will be for the funds of the Society. This meeting, which will be of great interest, opens at 8 p.m. and with His Excellency presiding, and the other eloquent speakers to be heard, a most profitable and pleasant convention is in prospect. In the great work of the dissemination of the Scriptures throughout the world, the various Protestant denominations are engaged so that all being interested equally a large audience should be present at to-night's meeting.

Slightly Better.

At 1:30 p.m. to-day, the Hospital authorities informed us that Dr. Lloyd seemed slightly better than at any time since he entered the institution.

The Police Court.

A young man who was remanded yesterday on a charge of larceny was discharged to-day.

Two young men were charged with using a disorderly conduct on the public street. They pleaded not guilty but were convicted and fined $5 each. A drunk was discharged on payment of cash here.

A youth charged with the larceny of a cash box pleaded guilty. He was held over for sentence.

A case brought by the S. P. C. A. against the owner of some horses for keeping them in a stable which was not in a fit condition to provide shelter for them, was tried this morning, and the defendant was fined $5. A case of threatening language was tried.

Florizel Here.

The s.s. Florizel, Capt. Smith, entered port at 2 o'clock today bringing a full freight and a couple of passengers. She left New York on Sunday last coming direct and made the passage in four days. She passed Cape Race at 8:15 this morning when ice was met. The Florizel will be discharged with despatch and will then berth at Bowring's Southside premises to be outfitted for the sailing voyage. Capt. Joe Keen will command the ship at the Icelanda.

INSTITUTIONS FILLED.—All the cots at the General Hospital are now filled and a number of patients are now waiting to be admitted. There is lack of accommodation also at the Penitentiary, nearly all the cells being occupied.

More Smallpox.

Dr. Brehan has been apprised of two more cases of smallpox having developed at Herby's Common. This makes the third patient to be stricken with the ailment at that place, and all three are living in the one house, which is quarantined.

Lawrence Delahanty, aged sixteen, of Duggan Street, who contracted smallpox two days ago, was removed to the Signal Hill hospital to-day.

Got Four Months.

The her whom Detective Byrne arrested last evening for entering a shop in the West End and stealing a purse, containing $10, and a cash box containing $10, was tried before Judge Knight at 1 o'clock to-day. The defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four months imprisonment. The prisoner is 35 years old and only a month ago was released from H.M. Penitentiary after serving a three months term for an offence similar to the above.

Train Notes.

The Tropic having been cleared of snow by No. 1 rotary, Tuesday's and Wednesday's expresses passed there last night and are due at Port aux Basques this evening.

A local express from Port aux Basques is due here at 10 to-night.

A local express and the shore train arrived here after 1 p.m. to-day.

An express for Port aux Basques leaves here this evening at 6.

Personal.

Mr. Gus Collins, of Parker & Monro's, has been ill the past two weeks of pleurisy.

Mr. Harold Bishop, of Bishop & Sons, left here by the City of Sydney and will go to England later on business and pleasure combined.

Messrs. Burr and Somerville left here by the City of Sydney to spend a holiday in England.

Here and There.

SAILED YESTERDAY.—The scho. Annette sailed yesterday for Oporto, fish laden by Goodridge & Sons.

BRUCE STILL JAMMED.—Up to 1 p.m. to-day, the Bruce was still jammed in the ice off Cranberry Head. Her mails and passengers went ashore to Sydney on the ice Monday. As tomorrow promises a change, it is hoped the ship will get clear.

HURT BY RUNAWAY.—This morning a man named Bennett, was driving up to the city from Port aux Basques, his horse took fright and ran away. The man was thrown violently to the ground, was dragged some distance and was badly cut about the head and face. On arrival in the city Dr. Anderson had to stitch the wounds.

THE CLUTRA HERE.—The largest Clutra Capt. Josce, arrived here last evening to Bishop & Sons, after a run of six days. She had several severe storms but sustained no damage and on this coast met a body of very heavy ice with intense frost and gales of wind. Her captain and crew are well.

Miss Julia Barrett, of the Royal Stores, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. While skating at the Prince's Park, she fell and broke her right arm in two places. Miss Barrett suffered a great deal of pain and became unconscious. Doctors Mitchell and Macpherson, who were summoned, chloroformed the patient and set the broken bones, after which she was driven home in a sleigh.

CAPT. DAVIDSON HEARD FROM.—Mr. A. Moore of this office, received a letter by last mail from Capt. Davidson, who is whaling in Japanese waters. At the time of writing the captain was well and doing well with the whales, though the weather was very stormy. Capt. Jacobsen, late of the Puma, who left here last fall for Japan, had also reached there and at the time of writing he had secured several of the large fish. They wish to be remembered to their many friends here.

The Best Bread is Ayre's

FOR PLACENTIA.—The Argyle sails this evening for Placentia to take up her regular route on the Bay.

STILL DETAINED.—The s.s. Kite is still at Trinity, awaiting a chance to get north, being detained by ice.

For Pure Milk, delivered daily, try J. W. Campbell's, Ltd.—Jan 27, 11

HARBOURS BLOCKED.—According to messages received from different places north to-day the harbours are all blocked with heavy ice.

SAGONA SAILS.—The s.s. Sagona sailed for Louisbourg at 3 p.m. yesterday and will there take her coal supply for the sealfishery.

If you want good Fresh Eggs go to KNOWLING'S. They are only 30 cts. doz.—Feb 27, 11

STAYS MEET ACCIDENT.—Yesterday a slight containing two Sisters of Mercy capsized. The occupants were thrown out and one of them received injuries.

ADJUSTING COMPASSES.—The s.s. Eskason has not left port yet, not having her compasses properly adjusted. She has secured her crew of foremen and sailors.

Phosphorus and other salts in the body are essential to the proper function of the nervous system. Phosphorus will take you a new man. Price $10 a box, or two $18. Packaged in any quantity. The Standard Dispensary, St. John's, Newfoundland.

LADY HURT.—Last night a lady passing down Garrison Hill became ill and fell heavily to the ground, striking her head and being severely hurt. Mr. John Pigg and others coming out of the S. I. S. rooms assisted the woman to her home.

Stafford's Prescription "A" cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Catarrh and Nervous Dyspepsia. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle. Feb 11, 11

SEALERS ARRIVE.—By the morning and evening trains yesterday over 200 men arrived here from Port de Grave and other ports in Conception Bay to go to the sealfishery. They sign on the Viking, Southern Cross and Neptune.

FROST GOES DEEP.—Men employed by the Council and contractors who are from time to time engaged at such work, say that in digging up the ground they find that the frost has penetrated the earth to the depth of 5 feet. This shows that the frost this winter has been more severe than for several years past.

STUCK WITH TIN CAN.—Two lads were playing hockey on a street in the East End yesterday and were using a tin can for a puck. A middle aged man named Whelan, who had happened to pass at the time, was struck with the tin can in the face and badly cut. Playing hockey on public thoroughfares is becoming a nuisance.

A Note From Delegate Woods.

Either Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Would you kindly grant me the space to contradict the statement the "News" made this morning? The "News" was speaking of Mr. E. Bowring yesterday and he said local men had been employed on the two Red Cross boats, the Florizel and Stephano, but hopelessly neglected their work; but I would like to tell Mr. Bowring in regard to trouble that there is more trouble with Dagna; there is trouble every trip since they went ashore of her, because they are leaving her every trip she reaches New York. As for the Florizel, last summer the little grievance our men had was the first since ever she came to the country. They did not have to do with our local men, what they had to do with the Dagna. They give them, according to Mr. E. Bowring's own word by the Delegate, $5.00 if they stay two months on the ships. They get $35 a month. Now this $5 unless the Dagna be held on for three months. The public can see what the Company goes through to keep these Dagna on these ships. Now, I would ask him did he ever give that money to our local men to keep them on the boat, or did he ever offer any, I say no, he never did, neither had he any occasion to do so. Our men always stayed on her since she was built, except one or two leaving after a long while, some who left her last year went home after the Florizel, and pretty nearly the same crew went for the Stephano, and I might say to the public that Mr. Bowring told me

Terrible Accident.

Yesterday while at work in the shops at Bell Island, a man named Murphy, a resident of the town of Conception Bay, was in the act of cutting up a part of a wire cable with an axe. He was lightly cut at his work when suddenly a piece of the wire embedded itself in his side and went in through the intestines. It is over two inches long and the doctors could not extract it. The man is in a dangerous state and an effort will be made to get him to Hospital to-day.

Umbrellas

BY H. L. RAYN.

The umbrella is a form of portable roof which can be put up at slight expense, but cannot be kept in the same family over two days in succession without clamping it to the hall tree with a Yale lock and a dog chain. The umbrella has never been discovered, however, which is portable enough to drift around to the original owner.

As it is considered a virtue, rather than a crime, to steal umbrellas in this country, these articles change hands faster than a stout girl in a plain quadrille. Whenever one of these exchanges takes place, which occurs in about the same ratio as the Chinese birth rate, the owner of a $5 silk umbrella finds that somebody has stung him with a decayed calico specimen with a hook-nosed handle and several broken ribs. People who carve their initials on pet umbrellas or paint "thou shalt not steal" on the inside of the cover lose them with more accuracy than anybody else.

No one should attempt to hoist an umbrella in a high wind without putting on goggles, as one of the ribs is likely to become impatient and work loose, causing a total eclipse of the eyeball. Every once in a while some umbrella which has always lived a careful, sedate life will backslide in the rear of a head wind and turn inside out, thereby enabling the owner to get rid of all of his packages and shed profane parts of speech from curb to curb.

Some people have the very disagreeable habit of precipitating head-on collisions with umbrellas by charging through a rain storm with their eyes shut and necks bowed like an irascible buck sheep. Others take particular pains to carry an umbrella so that the party they are walking with will get his share of the rain and all that was intended for the umbrella. The greatest delusion of all, however, is the self-opening umbrella, which has to be primed with a tack hammer, while the greatest nuisance is the thoughtful visitor who brings his umbrella into the house and allows it to weep copiously all over a new Brussels rug.

Here and There

BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.—The first games in connection with the T. A. billiard tournament were run off last night.

NOT HEARD FROM.—No reply is to hand from Point Amour regarding the schooner "Merry Widow" which was reported missing.

DANGEROUSLY ILL.—We regret to hear that Mr. Joseph Horwood, ex-sergeant of the St. John's Fire Department, is dangerously ill at the General Hospital. Mr. Horwood has been unwell for several weeks past and last night his condition was critical.

PLACENTA STILL BLOCKED.—Placenta Harbor and Bay are still blocked with ice, the slab which drifted in there freezing together with the ice made in the bay and harbor. This forms an impenetrable barrier to shipping, and the Ethie, which is to take up the Glencoe's route, is still detained there.

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.—Two hundred million pesos is the amount the Minister of Finance will probably ask Congress to authorize the Government to secure by means of bonds for the pacification and rehabilitation of Mexico. Emilio Rabas, a member of the Senate, regarded as the greatest authority in Mexico on international law, has been appointed Ambassador to the United States. Rafael Tapia and ex-Governor Hidalgo, of the State of Tlaxcala, who are in the rebellion, were conferred with President Huerta, offering surrender on condition that the Government gives recognition to their officers, according to rank and pay in demerits, and expenses. Huerta has refused to comply with the conditions regarding the payment of money and declared with emphasis that the Government was through with loyalty.

LONDON, To-day.—Operations of the five armies engaged in the Balkan war, has been brought practically to a standstill by wintry weather. News from the neighbourhood of Adrianople is of a conflicting nature. The Bulgarian war department at Sofia say that only desultory fighting has been in progress, while a despatch received from a French correspondent inside the city says that since February 3rd the Bulgarians have been delivering desperate, but ineffective assaults on the fortress, bombarding it cruelly and uselessly. The Greek fleet has extended its blockade of the Albanian coast as far as Port Teurazzo, in order to stop revictualing of the Turks in the fortress of Scutari and in Macedonia. This action may give rise to objections by Italy and Austria on the ground that the blockade is ineffective.

GOOD NATURED AGAIN

Good Humor Returns with Change to Proper Food.

"For many years I was a constant sufferer from indigestion and nervousness, amounting almost to prostration," writes a Montana man. "My blood was impoverished, the vision was blurred and weak, with moving spots before my eyes. I was a steady daily condition. I grew ill-tempered, and eventually got so nervous I could not keep my books posted, nor handle accounts satisfactorily. I can't describe my sufferings. Nothing I ate agreed with me. Till one day I happened to notice Grape-Nuts in a grocery store, and bought a package out of curiosity to know what it was. "I liked the food from the very first, eating it with cream, and now I buy it by the case and use it daily. I soon found that Grape-Nuts food was supplying brain and nerve force as nothing in the drug line ever had done or could do. "If wasn't long before I was restored to health, comfort and happiness. "Through the use of Grape-Nuts food my digestion has been restored, my nerves are steady once more, my eye-sight is good again, my mental faculties are clear and acute, and I have become so good-natured that my friends are truly astonished at the change. I feel younger and better than I have for 20 years. No amount of money would induce me to surrender what I have gained through the use of Grape-Nuts food." Wanderers vs. St. John's.

St. John's Team Wins With Ease—Visitors Given Good Send Off.

Before another large gathering of onlookers the visiting team of Halifax accepted their third defeat from the city, the score being eight goals to four. The exhibition was far above the best of the series as far as good hockey was concerned. The City had a change in their line up, Jack Higgins playing rover, and in that capacity proved an acquisition to the home team. Although out of practice, he did not forget his knowledge of the stick and was responsible in no small degree for the success of his team.

The players were:—

Goal Judges—W. Hearn (City); N. Vinnicombe (Halifax).
Time-Keepers—W. J. Martin (City); J. A. Carmichael (Halifax).
Penalty—J. I. Vinnicombe.
Referee—J. Tobin.

The game opened lively, both teams doing their utmost to score an advantage and for a while a good exhibition was evident. Dwyer, the Halifax point, controlled the puck and gave a fine display of stick handling; he lost to Higgins who made a brilliant run but when about to gain honours near the mouth of the Halifax goal was fouled by Smith who was ordered to the penalty box for three minutes to mend his habit. Not being discouraged Higgins resumed possession of the rubber, in zigzag fashion he passed the majority of his opponents and with a well judged shot netted the first goal for the City much to the delight of the spectators who showed their appreciation by prolonged cheering.

On facing off again the fastest bit of play witnessed since the visitors were here was then served out to the spectators. Halifax assumed the aggressive; each of their forward line made runs and pressed the home team hard in endeavouring to equalize, but their efforts were unavailing. Gus Herder and Higgins made a couple of effective dashes but were driven back by Dwyer who in company with Smith and Barstead brought the rubber to City territory. The shots were sent to Walsh who proved equal to the occasions. Amongst St. John's supporters excitement was intense whilst Nova Scotia enthusiasts did not lack cheering, their team to victory. Some give and take play took place at mid-rink when Pinsent was sent to the penalty box for two minutes, followed by Dwyer who was ordered to retire for a similar period. During their absence Stiek, who gave a creditable exhibition, notched up the second goal for the City. Time, 10:30.

On resuming the Halifax team had the advantage, but their spurt did not last long and Stiek was again successful in beating Stensrud. Supporters of the Wanderers were disappointed. They thought the team would meet a bad defeat but the visitors themselves were not in the least disheartened and ere long Monahan secured an opening and dropped the puck behind Walsh for the first time. Twenty-six minutes of the game had then expired and about fifty seconds before the half time whistle sounded Stiek landed the fourth goal for the City. Score, 4 to 1.

SECOND HALF.
On resumption play was not as fast as in the first half, the players appearing to be tired. G. Herder made a pretty dash and notched up the fifth goal, followed soon by Smith who gave a run outside. Pinsent covered the second half for Halifax. Scarcely was the puck centered when Gus Herder, sweeping the rink, registered No. 6. Barnstead then retired, being replaced by Reardon who netted the third goal for Halifax after Collier had beaten Stensrud. The game was fairly fast and interesting towards the close. Reardon scored the fourth goal for Halifax and Pinsent added the eighth goal for the City team.

NOTES.
After the match the Halifax boys applauded the City team who responded fittingly.

The series of games played were without doubt, interesting and enjoyable to spectators and players. The visitors, indeed, played the game as best they knew how and took their defeat in a sportsmanlike way. They took passage to their homes by the City of Sydney which left at midnight, and before their departure were given a right royal send-off by about a hundred sports from the city who wished the visiting team bon voyage and hoped they would favor us with a visit next winter.

WILL NOT CARRY WIRELESS.—We learn that A. Harvey & Co.'s ships—Adventure, Belleville, Bonaventure and Newfoundland—will not be equipped with wireless apparatus at the sealshanty, the owners having decided this owing to the returns not being sufficient to warrant the expense.

ing that Thorpe's punishment is disproportionate to his offence, says that, knowing himself disqualified for his competitors at Stockholm, Thorpe "should have spared us the inevitable criticism which will now be directed against us from quarters where the misdeeds of American athletes are a favourite subject for comment."

The Evening Mail says: "By the abnormal looseness of his ideas on the subject Thorpe has made a shocking mess of the Olympic business and has tainted the record of America. We shall enter subsequent international competitions under a cloud. Our English cousins will take advantage of the discovery of Thorpe's early lapse to taunt us with every athletic crime."

The Pentathlon which Thorpe won comprised the broad jump, javelin-throwing, a 200 metres race, throwing the discus, and a 1,500 metres race. The Decathlon comprised the 100 metres race, broad jump, high jump, putting the weight, 400 metres race, 100 metres hurdle, the discus, the javelin, pole jump, and 1,500 metres race.

Concessions of a Champion.

Olympic Games Surprise.
James Thorpe, the American Indian athlete, has forfeited the trophies he won at the Olympic Games in Sweden last year by acknowledging that he played baseball as a professional in 1909 and 1910. He must therefore surrender the Pentathlon trophy presented by the King of Sweden and the Decathlon Cup presented by the Czar, both of which he won.

In awarding the prizes at the time the King of Sweden described Thorpe as the greatest athlete in the world. Thorpe made his confession to Mr. James Sullivan, of the Amateur Athletic Union. His statement is ingenious. Writing from the Indian School at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, he refers to "playing baseball for pay" away from home in the holidays with college students who were regarded as amateurs at home and who played under false names while he used his own name.

"I was not very wise to the ways of the world, and did not realise this was wrong and would make me a professional in track sports," he says. "Although I learned from other players that it would be better for me not to let anyone know I was playing, and for that reason never told anyone at the school about it until to-day. I never realised until now what a big mistake I made in keeping it secret about my baseball playing, and I am sorry I did so. I hope I will be partly excused by the fact that I was simply an Indian school-boy and did not know all about such things. In fact I did not know it was wrong, because I was doing what I know several other college men had done, except that they did not use their own names."

Thorpe's punishment partakes of the Fire Alarm.

At 2:58 p.m. yesterday, an alarm of fire was turned in from box 31, bringing the Central and Western firemen to O'Dwyer's Block, Water St., for a blaze which had started in the work-room of Mr. Samuel Zaraloff, ladies' tailor. Mr. Zaraloff's premises occupies the second flat of the building with Mr. Alfred McNamara's Jewellery Store on the ground flat and Mr. Fred Moore's boot and shoe room in the upper flat. The fire occurred in the Zaraloff work-room at the rear of the building and when the firemen got there the blaze was well under way the rooms on the upper floor being filled with dense smoke.

When the firemen rushed up the stairs in the hallway a hole had been burned through the partition and the men could not breathe in such an atmosphere. It was evident that the place had been burning some time before the fire was discovered, and on the arrival of the firemen the chemical hose was used to great advantage, while a stream of water taken from a hydrant on Water Street was thrown into the burning apartments. After a fight of about 15 minutes, the firemen had the blaze under control and the all out signal was turned in at 3:30. A Dangerous Accident.

Yesterday, the large ladder truck imported for the fire department, responded to the alarm sent in for the fire at O'Dwyer's Block, and as the box rang in was at the foot of Adelaide Street, the apparatus came down Theatre Hill and up New Gower St. to that thoroughfare. The streets were ice-covered and wild and very dangerous for driving, especially so with such weighty apparatus. As John Cooke, the driver, came up New Gower St. with his two horses going at a gallop, he noticed a sleigh ahead going up New Gower Street, and despite the warnings of the gong which he kept clanging the whole time, the boy who was driving an old lady paid no heed but jogged along and did not attempt to pull his horse aside. The sleigh was passing the head of Adelaide St. when Cooke caught it and he knew if he were to turn down that thoroughfare he would kill the occupants of the sleigh and possibly lose his own life too, or at least be seriously injured. There was nothing for it therefore but to keep the horses going as they were—they were headed in a southerly angle and they collided with the door in Soper and Moore's grocery going east. The horses bit it with terrific force and the crash could be heard blocks away. The apparatus shot ahead and both horses came back on their haunches, one of them by the twisting of a ring in the traces containing clear of the apparatus altogether.

The door was smashed in pieces and the building trembled with the shock. Cooke, the driver of the apparatus, narrowly escaped death. He was pitched headlong off his seat and but that he held the reins and thus broke his fall, he might have been killed. He struck the sidewalk with great force and pretty severely cut his hands and received a shaking up but escaped serious injury. The end of the front runner of the sleds under the truck was driven through the flanks of one of the horses drilling a jagged hole through the flesh for several inches while large pieces of flesh adhered to the runner. It was also cut about the legs. On arrival back at the station Dr. McNair had to put several stitches in the wounds received by the animal. Cooke deserves much credit for his action in risking his own life to save those of the woman and boy driving ahead of him.

Smoking Concert.

The smoking concert and supper held by St. Andrew's Society, at Wood's West End Restaurant, last night, proved a great success. A splendid programme was rendered and thoroughly appreciated by all. During the evening the Society through its President, was the recipient of two parcels of cigarettes, etc., from the Imperial Tobacco Company, which added not a little to the enjoyment of the affair. The singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne brought to a close one of the most pleasant gatherings of its kind yet held.

At a suffragette meeting in Southampton, Miss Kenly and other militant suffragette speakers were howled down yesterday. The suffragettes dropped into many pillar boxes, tubes containing phosphorous, which burst into flames, destroying considerable mail. A meeting of militant suffragettes at Worthington, last night, was also howled down. Mrs. Israel Zangwell, and Mrs. Elbra Drummond were unable to get a hearing despite their appeal to the Mayor of the town. Banners were torn from stands, trampled under foot, and the promoters of the meeting were obliged to seek police protection and took refuge in the police station to escape the angry mob.

MORE VESSELS DUE.—Both the Ada Peard and Mary Duff are making long runs from Bahia and should soon show up. These with the California are now over 50 days on the run, the latter being from Cadiz with salt. No doubt ice and storms are delaying them.

The Coming Day

There'll come a day when we must make full payment for all the foolish things we do to-day, a n d sackcloth t h e n perchance will be our raiment, and we'll regret the hours we threw away. We loaf to-day, and we shall loaf to-morrow, hard by the pump or in the corner store; there'll come a day when we'll look back with sorrow on wasted hours, the hours that come no more. We say harsh things to friends who look for kindness, and bring tears to loving, patient eyes; we scold and quarrel in our fretful blindness, instead of smiles, we call up mournful sighs. Our friends will tread the path leads us only to rest and silence in the grass-grown grave; there'll come a day when weary, sad and lonely, we'll think of them and of the wounds we gave. In many of trade we're prone to overreaching, to swell our roll, we cheat and deal in lies, forgetful oft of earthly moral teaching, and all the counsel of the good and wise. It is, alas, an evil road we travel, that leads at last to bitterness and woe; there'll come a day when gold will seem as gravel, and we shall mourn the sins of long ago.

The Public Building.

The Public Building at Harbour Grace is being slowly pushed on, and is an insult to the town. Hear what Mary says:—
Editor Evening Telegram.
'Tis lonely and tired I feel to-night, As by the fire I sit and Tom, to. My thoughts wander back to the Public Shack.
That's being built by Conaractor LeDrew.

The promise came fully four years ago. To give Harbour Grace something good, A $50,000 public building, you know. If you'll vote just as we think you should.

The voting went so, although many said no. But the party to power went straight. The building began, the foundation laid low. 'Twill be finished at no distant date.

Then Johnny did strut and Johnny did shout. To get fairly ahead with his work; But the fish striking in, said he 'tis a slip. In the waters my traps must go out.

So out went the traps and in came the fish. 'Tis now I'm doing business galore; I have plenty of time to finish my job. Before the members shake hands with the poor.

"I'll stand myself if ye's want me," he said to the boys. As the labourers with buckets the building did rise; While again he would strut and try to look wise.

Believing he was winning the hearts of the boys. But three years are now up, and the shell is complete. The place is kept closed from the man on the street; It's a benefit to none, as no labour it gives.

But will be a monument to Johnny as long as he lives.

One man is employed at building the stairs. 'Tis cruel to have him alone all these years; What Morris must think of this contractor, true. It puzzles my brain as it no doubt does you.

Freshwater's below us, wise men from the east— Commenced their public building last spring, at the least; They laboured right hard and never did cease, They will open it long before their ballots they'll cease.

But with fishing, hotel-keeping and other small fry. Our building's in slings, with small chance of completion. But if Morris expects to get votes here, my boys, He'll have to give to Johnny a bit of a squeeze.

Yours, etc., MARY. P.S.—Tom's in the woods to-day.

OBITUARY.

After an illness of some months duration, she passed to her eternal reward at St. Bride's, Alice Foley, beloved wife of J. White. Alice was a beautiful singer and was for many years a member of the Church choir at St. Bride's. The deceased bore her pain and suffering with exemplary patience and Christian resignation, fortified as she has been with the rites of Holy Church. She always showed by her word and action, a sweet and gentle dignity, with a gracious charm of manner, and was ever ready to oblige and give that which cost her some effort and self-denial. By her genial disposition she had won the friendship of all with whom she became acquainted. Only her most familiar friends had the privilege of knowing her sterling qualities. Her funeral was held on Ash Wednesday morning, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, at eight o'clock, and a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. A. Pynes. On the coffin were beautiful wreaths from Mrs. J. Griffin, Mrs. Martha Doyle and one from Mrs. D. Young and Mrs. P. Foley, with the daughter of Nora and the late Patrick Foley, was aged 38 years. The deceased leaves a mother, three brothers and three sisters, two little boys and an infant boy. Her husband will miss a devoted and affectionate wife, her children a fondly attached and loving mother. R.I.P.

JOHN McELROY'S HEART DISEASE CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Was Ill For a Year and On Work All Summer But Found a Quick and Complete Cure.
Benton, Carlton Co., N. B., Feb. 26. (Special)—After being laid up for an entire summer and feeling sure that he was to be another victim to heart disease, Mr. John McElroy, a well known young man of this place, is a well man again. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"I went to a doctor, who said I had palpitation," said Mr. McElroy to a reporter. "But his medicine did not seem to reach the spot."
"I suffered for over a year and all last summer I was not able to do a day's work. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the least exertion."
"Reading what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for others I made up my mind to try them. Before I had finished the first box I felt different, and by the time the second was half gone I was working in the woods and doing good work."
"Clogged kidneys mean clogged circulation. Clogged circulation means heart trouble. Dodd's Kidney Pills make a good circulation and cure heart trouble."

EPPS'S GRATEFUL-COMFORTING

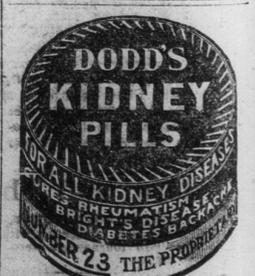

United Service.

The congregation last night was one of the largest that has yet attended since the series of meetings began and the service also was a good one. The Rev. Mr. Bartlett, the esteemed Pastor of the Church, was in charge; and in all his efforts he was deeply in earnest, and very evangelical. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Dr. Rogers, whose address was marked with his usual zeal and earnestness, and which was listened to with deep attention from beginning to end. Among the special features of the meeting the singing of Mrs. Cochrane was very notable, and is being quite a help in the services. Another special feature of last night's meeting was the short and touching address given by Mrs. Dr. Rogers, which was very effective and which was delivered with much sincerity.

But perhaps the most interesting of all that was said last night, was the story of Western life, as told by the leader. It was a simple tale, but one that depicted the daily experiences of toiling men; and showed that very often beneath a rough exterior and crude surroundings, there lie feelings the most worthy and sincere. The story as told by Mr. Bartlett, reminded us of the illustrations used some fourteen years ago by the Rev. H. E. Hunter, the noted evangelist, who visited here at that time. It was Mr. Hunter's great tact in using such illustrations that tended so largely to the success of his work; and while none of his addresses went more than twenty-five minutes, and seldom that length, in that short time he made wonderful impressions, which led to the conversion of many souls.

"Reading what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for others I made up my mind to try them. Before I had finished the first box I felt different, and by the time the second was half gone I was working in the woods and doing good work."
"Clogged kidneys mean clogged circulation. Clogged circulation means heart trouble. Dodd's Kidney Pills make a good circulation and cure heart trouble."

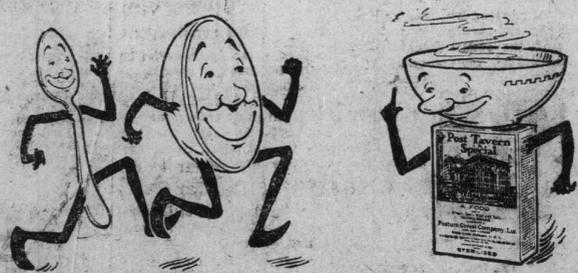

We feel safe in saying that last night's service was edifying and encouraging; and proved very helpful to the people, and must certainly be a great encouragement to the ministers, who during all the winter have worked hard in hand and heart to lighten their load and truly has been great, for both people and pastor have reached a better place, and are experiencing higher Christian ideals. It is believed the services will continue for many weeks longer, and that even greater blessings will be realized.

Scott, The Victor.

The following appreciation of Capt. Scott and his brave comrades, was written by Mr. H. L. Bridgeman, Secretary-Treasurer of the Peary Arctic Club, and editor of the 'Standard Union,' of Brooklyn, N.Y., which paper prints it. Mr. Bridgeman is known as "The Old Guard" and has always taken a deep interest in Arctic and Antarctic exploration. His home in Brooklyn is ever open to them and hospitality and good cheer are extended to all who become his guests. Capt. Robert Bartlett is an especial friend of Mr. Bridgeman and the captain speaks in highest terms of his kindness and hospitality.

SCOTT, THE VICTOR.

The sober second thought on the Scott tragedy follows hard on the surprise and the sorrow. Time, months, maybe years, must pass before the scientific fruits of the expedition are fully gathered and tabulated, the data discussed and the forces which they express and the laws which they reveal are determined and formulated. But sentiment is swifter and surer than science, and some things have, in a few days, and ready been definitely and finally established. Until competent estimate and calculation are made of the results of the expedition, no good purpose is served, either for the living or the dead, by sensational statements and indiscriminate blame. Cardigan of the Light Brigade executed his order at Balaclava even though certain that somebody had blundered, and Scott, in that immortal, dying message to the world and posterity, makes no complaint nor intimates censure for the shortage of fuel which may have spelled for him disaster. In due and regular course, all the facts which are real facts and can be substantiated will doubtless be disclosed and recorded, for Scott was on active duty and an official investigation into the circumstances of his death will doubtless be made by naval court martial, according to the usage of the service. Until this is done, modest forbearance on the part of the world at large will be both respectful and becoming. Insinuations and charges like those so abundant after the return of the Cape Sabine survivors, prove only the ignorance or perversity of those who make them and are to be deprecated and discouraged.

Enough is already known, though, to make it certain that on the scientific side Scott has greatly enlarged exact knowledge and established many valuable facts which await further detail and definition; for example, that Antarctica is a continent and not an archipelago and that the ice barrier rests on the waters of a great bay deeply indenting the land mass is fully established, a definition which greatly increases interest in the work of the just-returned German expedition from the opposite side of the continent and of which next to nothing has been reported. The subsidiary expeditions East and West, along the coast of King Edward's Land, return laden with a rich harvest of observations of weather, rocks, land and marine life; so that the work of the Scott scientists may almost certainly be marked in breadth of scope and refinement of research with that of Charcot in his two expeditions in West Antarctica, exceeding in detail and accuracy all others. Geography and geology are already under heavy debt to Scott and his comrades for their labours and data will doubtless go far to establish the history and evolution of the forbidden continent, and how it came to be severed from the other great land masses of the globe, though it once bore vegetation like that which we, to-day, call tropical.

But to this country Scott rendered a service far greater than to science, which knows no frontier. Men have been said to wake to find themselves famous. Scott in one day achieved immortality and placed his name on the roll of England's heroes along with Hudson, Drake, that other Devon man of olden time; of Nelson, Franklin and the long list of whom the mother country and all her colonies and descendants the world round are justly proud, and will hold in honor and veneration. But the honour is much more than personal and individual. Scott's tragic and heroic death at the post of duty is a national victory, and means more and is worth more to Great Britain, in prestige, influence, in the diplomatic councils and circles of the nations, than if her dreadnoughts had sunk an enemy's fleet. It serves notice on all the world of what stuff her sons and officers are made, what their ideals of duty are, and with what spirit and to what last ultimate test they answer the call of country. For though war is reduced nowadays almost to a science, and an exact one, the human factor is rather more than less dominant, and any flag under which men like Scott and "never surrender" O'Leary serve and fight, must conquer. Time at last makes all things even. Fickle fate was never kind to Scott and those who knew him well admired him all the more for the knightly chivalry with which he played the game. Rivals indifferent to rights of precedence, to ethics and courtesy, which Scott himself and his countrymen always scrupulously observed, pushed into his own field to snatch the prize from his grasp, but he pluckily and gallantly toiled on, determined all the more that the work to which he had set his hand, and on which he had staked his life, should not be abandoned. And at the end he passed into history victorious, attaining not only the ultimate, physical goal of years, but a place of honor which no explorer to the end of time will ever presume to dispute. Immortality is not measured by degrees or comparisons, and words are inadequate, but so long as the five stars of the Southern Cross swing their vigil around the far and lonely cairn of Scott and his four comrades, so long will the whole world do them honor and cherish their memory.

And because this is the plain and eternal truth, countless men will be proud that they are of Scott's race, and some will lay his example to heart, realising as never before that the concrete thing is but a dead sea apple unless it has been won fairly and nobly; and that to die as this brave Briton did, with hands and conscience clean, with honor untarnished and duty well done, is a privilege rather than a misfortune, since it raises the standard of manhood to all men for all time to come.—New York Standard Union.

And wreath their brows with immortal flowers. Whenever a noble deed is done 'Tis the pulse of a hero's heart is stirred; Wherever right has a triumph won There are the Heroes' voices heard.

And because this is the plain and eternal truth, countless men will be proud that they are of Scott's race, and some will lay his example to heart, realising as never before that the concrete thing is but a dead sea apple unless it has been won fairly and nobly; and that to die as this brave Briton did, with hands and conscience clean, with honor untarnished and duty well done, is a privilege rather than a misfortune, since it raises the standard of manhood to all men for all time to come.—New York Standard Union.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The many friends and admirers here of Dr. Lloyd, are very sorry to hear of his serious illness, but hope soon to hear of an improvement in his condition.

Miss Annie Tetford returned from St. John's by Saturday evening's train after spending a very pleasant visit to friends there.

Mr. Patrick Hare, of this town, who was scalded by the bursting of a steam pipe at Bell Island, a couple of weeks ago, is now fast recovering and will soon be able to get to work again.

Mr. Peter Butler and his brother Mr. Robert Butler, both of Bristol's Hope, met with heavy losses on Sunday last. A fine milch cow owned by the former, got into a bog and perished, while the same day another milch cow owned by his brother Robert slipped on the ice and broke its leg.

Mr. John LeDrew and family have lately moved into that fine residence known as Donnelly Hall. It is said Mr. LeDrew intends keeping an up-to-date hotel. The place is admirably suited for this purpose.

Mr. W. Chafe, of the Telegraph staff, of Heart's Content, spent a few hours of Sunday last with his parents here, and left the same evening for home. Mr. E. L. Oke, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Carbonar, also spent Sunday with his parents here, returning to his duties on Monday.

Mr. Max Duff, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, St. John's, was in town for a short time last week, returning by the Duff-Special on Thursday night.

67 Years of Marriage.

Queen Alexandra has sent a present of £2 to Mr. and Mrs. William Mobbs, of Castle-acre, Norfolk, both ninety years old. They were married sixty-seven years ago, and the husband worked as a laborer on the same farm for the same family for seventy-three years.

Queen Alexandra in a kindly letter described them as two worthy individuals, and said the facts she had learned about them were most interesting. Mr. F. G. Highe, of Castle-acre, who informed her Majesty of the case, which he believes to be unique in Norfolk, took the royal gift to the old couple. "Tell the Queen," said the old lady, "that she has an old woman's blessing, and may God richly bless her and all belonging to her."

Upwards of 200 people were killed and wounded by the ill-timed explosion of a charge of 7,000 lbs. of black powder, which had been laid by the engineers in charge of the new harbor works, to raise an enormous block of rock. An immense concourse had gathered to witness the demolition, on a hill separating Gijon from the harbor of Massal, a mile and a half distant. When the explosion occurred, instead of the rock being blasted, hundreds of tons of clay and small stones were hurled by the artillery projectiles among the assembled spectators, and whole families were mowed down, as well as many engineers and municipal officials; 24 bodies have been recovered, but the fatalities are certainly greater.

LONDON, Feb. 26.
The Commonwealth authorities in London this morning issued a statement by Senator Pearce, the Australian Minister of Defence on the question of Imperial Naval Defence. The Minister explains that the Australian Government attaches no importance to its being represented on the Imperial Defence Committee, because it is purely advisory in character. Australia is concerned with questions of policy rather than of administration. He then refers to the decision at the last Colonial Conference, when Canada and Australia adopted the fleet unit scheme. Australia's agreement, he says, is the only one being carried out. It therefore becomes necessary for Canada and New Zealand either to carry out the scheme adopted in 1903, or to propose some other to take its place. He could not say whether there was any truth in the reports that the Admiralty authorities had been parties to the suppression of the Canadian Naval scheme and the substitution of contributed Dreadnoughts and an annual subsidy or of New Zealand's plan. Australia had not been given any hint of the British Government or Admiralty having changed their minds. The agreement for fleet units did not originate with Australia, but with the representatives at the Conference. The Australian Government was of the opinion that it would be advantageous to the Empire, as a whole, if Australia, Canada and New Zealand could see their way to an agreement as to the defence of British interests in the Pacific. Our policy, Senator Pearce added, is known and has the approval of the Admiralty. It can be adjusted to meet any development of the Canadian or New Zealand policies. We are hopeful that the three countries may yet fall into line for the purpose of promoting this union of action.

Pot of Tea Trick.

Forty-Four Pounds For "The Bogle Man's Week's" Work.

Known to the police as "the bogle man," Thomas Patrick Jones, twenty-one, appeared at Guildhall to answer two charges of obtaining parcels from two errand boys in the City by means of a trick. In one case the parcel contained valuable leather trimmings, and in the other a motor tyre valued at £9. His method, it was said, was to stand in the doorways of warehouses or offices, either without his hat or without his coat, and to ask messenger boys carrying parcels or valuables to get him a pot of tea for his luncheon from the coffee shop round the corner, promising them some halfpence for their trouble. If they consented he would promise to take care of their parcels until their return. On their return he and the parcels were missing.

He pleaded guilty to two other charges of obtaining silver trays, worth £5, and a parcel of jewellery, worth £30. The clerk mentioned that in one week Jones had obtained goods to the value of £44 18s. Sir George Woodman sentenced him to six months hard labour for the tyre and three months for the feathers—nine months in all.

Horse Stamped.

Yesterday when the Sagona's whistle blew Mr. P. Gladney's horse took fright and dashed across the street and in amongst the horses standing opposite the post office. The runaway badly smashed Mr. W. Baird's sleigh with which it collided and a shaft striking the head of Mr. John Reid's horse cut the animal seriously. Before the horse was stopped the sleigh was badly damaged.

Notes of Long Ago.

I. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER XVIII.—THE STORY OF DR. WALSH.

We must not tire our readers by unduly prolonging our notes, but twenty chapters is what we started out to write, and this story will probably complete the number. In the four stories that I have written, I met the persons myself, and was well acquainted with them; but for the facts of this story I am indebted to Captain Henry Hollett, of Great Britain. Of course all who know Captain Hollett are aware of his sterling worth and high character, and therefore they have confidence in his words. The hero of the story was Dr. Walsh of the Royal Navy; who served on the North American frigate about one hundred and fifty years ago; or about twenty years before the American Revolution. He was the great grandfather of Captain Hollett who gave me the facts, and with Mr. Inkpen, was the first man to settle in Great Britain.

Captain Hollett is one of the few of those who fifty-five years ago went as a lad to Corbin Island to the scene of the wreck of the Swedish barque "Monasco," which has since been known as the tragedy of Silver's Cove. Some twenty-five years ago, in the columns of the "Colonist," Mr. Dobbin, the renowned diver, told the story of that terrible tragedy by which some seventy lives were sacrificed for the sake of a clandestine marriage; and in the last issue of the "Christmas Quarterly," the same story was definitely related by His Grace the Archbishop, and the main facts of the case were given to the public. These tragedies are part of the price of our colonization, and they all tend to show us how much we owe to the men who have gone before us. Capt. Hollett's description of the wreck was very pathetic, and as he worked for several weeks recovering the victims and the cargo, his impressions of the tragedy are very vivid. He has now in his store, at Great Britain, an iron tong which was specially made for the purpose of gripping the bars of iron with which the Swedish barque was loaded. I said to Captain Hollett, that with such a tragic history attached to the tong, they would be a fitting memento, with other relics of the past, to be placed in our museum; and he readily agreed that if anybody wanted them, or they were required for the purpose, he would willingly give them up. But this is only by way of introduction to our story, and therefore we must not delay our readers, but begin our recital at once.

The date would be fully one hundred and fifty years ago, before steam was known, and when the naval fleets were all propelled by sail. While the British fleet was the equal of any, at best the ships were small,

To make a fowl tender, it should be wrapped—after being drawn and stuffed—in two thicknesses of brown paper and tightly bound with twine. When it is a rich brown, it is nearly ready to cook in a very hot oven in its paper envelope for one or one and a half hours. Remove the paper and replace the fowl in the oven, basting it every few minutes with its own juice. When it is a rich brown, it is nearly ready to be served with a good gravy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.
The Cabinet now looks more hopeful on conditions in Mexico, as despatches from Consuls all over the country indicate that American interests are not endangered.

HALIFAX, Feb. 26.
Archdeacon Kahlbach, of Truro, was accidentally killed last night, by falling down a hose tower in Truro fire station. He was one of the best known Anglican clergymen in Nova Scotia, and was 75 years old.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 26.
The new land discovered by Dr. Mawson, in the South Polar regions, will be called King George V. Land. The explorers sent a message to the King, through Lord Denman, asking his permission to name the land after Victoria Land and Adelle Land.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.
General Giuseppe Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian Liberator, and prominent in the Madero revolution against Diaz, arrived by the Kronprinzessin Cecily. He is deeply grieved by Madero's death; and stigmatizes his murder as one of the blackest crimes in history. He will not proceed to Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26.
Hopes of immediate peace are now slight. Rebel activity in the north is increasing, and efforts to arrange with the Zapatistas have failed. Huerta insists that his administration will not be one of retaliation or vengeance, but will be devoted to the pacification of antagonistic factions and the stern repression of active enemies. As indicating his sincerity, most of those arrested immediately after Madero's overthrow, have been released.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.
Those closely connected with the Wilson interests, say that his Cabinet has been completed, with the exception of the portfolios of War and Agriculture. The reported Ministers are: William J. Bryan, Nebraska, Secretary of State; William C. McAdoo, New York, Secretary of the Treasury; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina, Secretary of the Navy; Albert Sidney Burtleson, Texas, Postmaster General. A. Mitchell Palmer, will not, it is said, enter the Cabinet. Colonel Goehs, Chief Engineer and Chairman of the Panama Canal Commission, is under consideration for the Secretaryship of War.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.
The United States Government officially recognized Dr. Friedmann's claims, when by order of the Surgeon General, Dr. Foster was sent to meet the young German physician, on his arrival by the Kronprinzessin Cecily. Dr. Friedmann has consented to turn over a quantity of his bacilli to be tested by the Government, and to demonstrate the efficacy of his cure before Physicians of the Hospital Service. He comes here on the invitation of Charles E. Finlay, a New York Banker, who hopes to have a cure effected for his son-in-law. Dr. Friedmann declares his remedy is not secret, and that he purposes making the method known to all. It consists of bacilli taken from turtle, into which tubercle bacilli have been injected. He said he had been working at the cure for fourteen years, and in less than 2 1/2 years have treated from 2,600 to 3,000 patients. How many had been cured he could not estimate, but the number ran into hundreds. He wanted all mankind to benefit by his discovery. Some of the bacilli had been turned over to the Government. It was untrue that he had been offered $1,000,000 if he would cure 95 out of 100 patients in America, though he admitted that he would receive substantial compensation, if Ralf Paris, son-in-law of Banker Finlay, was cured. I am not mercenary, he said. All I want is a sufficient reward to enable me to demonstrate my cure to the world.

Sir Evelyn Wood's Accident

Horse Killed in the Hunting Field.
Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C. who is within a few days of his 76th birthday, had a narrow escape in the hunting field recently.

While hunting with the Essex fox-hounds in the neighborhood of Aythorpe Roding, his horse jumped short at a fence and was staked. It is rare that a horse thus impaled, will recover, and in this case the injury was so severe that there was no hope of saving the animal.

Of all the accidents in the hunting field none is so calculated to upset the nerves of a rider, but Sir Evelyn kept his seat in spite of his horse's fall. Sir Evelyn was compelled to borrow a gun from a neighboring farm and shoot his horse. After doing so he returned home.

Sir E. Wood served in the Crimea with the Naval Brigade and in India in 1858 with the 17th Lancers, and in both campaigns was mentioned in despatches. In the following year he was granted the Victoria Cross. He also fought in the Ashanti, Kaffir, Zulu and Transvaal Wars.
