Tonsillitis, Sore Throat, Chest Colds, Can be Cured Over Night

They Vanish Quickly if Nerviline is Well Rubbed In.

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief.

takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

"ECHOES of the Past;"

The Recompense of Love!

CHAPTER VII.

"No, I don't think you ought," he returned, with a quietness and gravity that reassured her. "Let me put it this way: If you were me, and you had sent me something that I wanted very badly and could not get, would you have expected me to be angry, offended?"

She shook her head at this piece of sophistry.

"But—but I told you about the piano; it was as if—as if I had asked for it," she said, in a low voice, the trouble more plainly showing in her eyes and the quiver of her lips.

"Nothing was further from your thoughts, I know," he said earnestly.

But she was not satisfied; and she stood, her hands—once again Clive noticed how long and slender they were—working nervously.

"I did not think—I was so glad, so pleased—it was as if it had come from the skies—that I did not think that I—I ought not to have it."

"If the sight of me has made you unhappy about it, I'm sorry I came," he said. There was silence for a moment, then a way out of the difficulty occurred to him. "See here, Miss Mina—"

She raised her head quickly and the color rushed to her face.

"Why do you call me Miss Mina, as if—as if I were a young lady?" she asked half-resentfully.

Clive drew up a chair and sat down; he knew that she, too, would sit, and she did so.

"If I were so impolite as to call you Mina, you would have to call me Clive—and you wouldn't like to do that," he said laughingly.

"No," she faltered, her brows bent.

"Then why should you think yourself better mannered than I am?"

She sighed as if she knew herself vanquished by this argument, but was not satisfied.

"I sing in the streets for my living; I'm not a young lady," she said.

"Excuse me; I don't agree with you. But we won't argue it. I was going to make a proposal."

She looked at him with suspicion at the corners of her delicate lips and kept her eyes on him.

"If you'd rather not accept my little memento of the other night, you shall have your way, and pay me for the piano."

Her eyes and lips opened and she stared at him.

"Pay you! Why, you know I couldn't. It must have cost a great deal of money. Elisha says that it is one of the grandest and most beautiful pianos he ever heard; and Elisha knows."

"Quite so," said Clive. "Well, when you are a great singer, earning ever so many pounds for a couple of songs, you shall pay me for the piano—five-and-twenty pounds. Is that a bargain?"

She drew a long breath and her face paled.

"Do you think I shall ever sing well enough to—to earn enough to pay for it? Do you? Ah, don't say 'Yes' just to please—just to deceive me!" Her hands gripped each other and she held her breath for a moment, her eyes searching his as if to wring the truth from them; then she went on, in a lower voice: "I don't know why you are so kind. I don't understand. Nobody, even rich people—you are very rich, I suppose?"

Clive was about to declare laughingly that he was anything but a Croesus; but he bethought him that his modest income would seem an enormous one to her, and contented himself with a non-committing shrug of the shoulders.

"Other people don't give away pianos," she said.

"You forget our bargain. I'm not giving you this."

Elisha came back with clean hands and moved to the piano.

"I'll ask you to hear Mina sing to it, sir," he said nervously. "It gives her voice a better chance than the violin does."

He put a hassock on the chair, and lifted himself up and began the prelude to one of Hope Temple's simple melodies; but, strangely enough, the girl—a street-singer!—seemed shy reluctant; the color came and went in her face, and her lips quivered with timidity; but Elisha struck the chords again and looked up at her with faint surprise and interrogation, and she began. Her voice shook for a moment or two; then, like all true artists, she forgot her audience, and the notes rose clearly but with infinite softness. It was a pathetic little song, and deeply moved Clive, whose love for music amounted to a passion. He did not watch the girl's face, pale now and spiritual with the artistic effluvia, but sat with downcast eyes and compressed lips.

"A beautiful instrument, sir," said Elisha; but the exquisite melody of the young voice was ringing in Clive's ears.

"Yes," he said, "it's all right. But Miss Mina must not sing in the open air again. It is too delicate a voice for so fierce an ordeal."

Elisha nodded a quick concurrence. "You hear, Mina?" he said, as if they had been arguing the question. "It is far better to wait until you can show at a concert; there's more money in it, isn't there, Mr. Clive? It's what I've been telling you."

"Far better," assented Clive emphatically. "And you'll be able to pay me all the sooner, Miss Mina."

She flushed and her eyes rested on him with mute appeal. "And now I must not stay any longer."

He held out his hand and she put hers into it. He felt the long slender hand shake and quiver with the flutter, the warmth of an imprisoned bird; then she withdrew it quickly, as if she were suddenly conscious that it was trembling, and turned away.

Clive went down the stairs and in to the street; the sweet voice was still ringing in his ears; he felt confused by an emotion which he could not understand, much less name for himself; and he stood for a moment outside the door as if in deep thought.

The little cul-de-sac was almost crowded with women and girls coming from their marketing at the costers' barrows; and they jostled against him with their baskets of fish and meat and vegetables. Some of the women had children hanging onto their skirts, and one of the mites stumbled and fell close to Clive's feet. He picked it up and held it at arm's length as it yelled lugubriously.

"I don't think you're hurt," he said in a confidential tone, and with the smile which, when it shines in a man's eyes, children find irresistible. "A big little woman like you doesn't cry, you know, what?"

The child stopped its yell, and taking its dirty fist from its eyes, stared down at him in amazement, and still waiting for the accustomed smacking. The mother also stared.

"Troublesome little toad," she shouted. "I'll give you something, Emily Mord. No, o' course she ain't hurt; she's allers tumblin' an' fallin' about," she added to Clive, as she snatched the child from him and commenced to shake it.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that," said Clive, in his persuasive way. "She couldn't help it; I saw how it happened. All good kiddies who are worth anything tumble about, don't they Emily Mord?"

He slipped something into the woman's hand. "Buy her a doll and they'll learn together to keep their feet, you'll see. Good night."

As he turned away, the woman stopping the traffic to stare at him in open-eyed wonder, he ran sharply some one, and a voice cried angrily: "Now, stupid! Where's your dog?"

Clive recognized the voice, and looked down with a smile and a nod at the quaint little figure of Tibby.

"Good evening," he said. "Dog?"

"Yes; blind men ought not to be without one. Oh, it's you, is it?" It is scarcely necessary to say that she had been looking on during his adventure with the mother and child.

"You seem fond of this neighborhood. Thinkin' of takin' a 'ouse here?"

"I've just been calling at your place," he began to explain; but she cut in with a vicious tug at her bonnet.

"Been to measure the room for a new carpet—or is it a d'orin'-room sweet this time? Look 'ere, I'm almost glad to meet you, for I got somethin' to say about that planer. It's going back, and I'll trouble you for the address o' the place to send it to."

She hitched up her basket in which a piece of mutton, some carrots and potatoes, a pound of candles and a bar of soap, were lying amicably together like a happy family, and glared up at him defiantly from under the curlers in which her hair was tightly bound in preparation for Sunday.

"Sorry, Miss Tibby," said Clive, "but it's sold, and I can't take it back."

"Sold? Who's bought it?"

"Your father, or rather, Miss Mina," replied Clive, smiling down at her. But Tibby was not so easily pacified as the child; and her sharp retort came swiftly as a flash of lightning.

"Oh, on the instalment dodge. And s'pose you'll be comin' reglar for the weekly payments, mister?"

The significance in her tone and her expressive countenance brought the color to Clive's face.

"On the contrary," he said, "I shall not come again—until I am invited."

"Then you've seen the last of Benson's Rents," she said, with an emphatic nod. "We're rather pertickler about our acquaintances, and we don't want no truck with gentlemen in the musical instrument and furniture line. You understand me?"

"I'm afraid I do, Miss Tibby," said Clive gravely, his eyes resting on hers steadily; "and I'm afraid also that I could not convince you that you are doing me an injustice."

"Not in a month o' Sundays," she said; "any more than I could persuade you to—mind your own business."

She gave a toss to her bonnet, and her eyes fixed defiantly on him to the last moment, swang away. Clive walked on, but presently felt a tug at his coat, and turning, looked down at her quaint face. It was pale and troubled and uncertain.

"Look 'ere," she said, drawing him aside; "I didn't mean to let on so hard. But I'm puzzled like. I see you with that child—you can't be a bad sort—"

"Thank you, Miss Tibby."

"You'd better 'ear me out; I ain't finished yet," she said quickly and significantly. "What I mean is, you can't be a right-down bad lot—you've got a good 'eart. But Mina," she laughed her breath, "Mina's all we've got, and—and—she's only a kid herself—and more of a kid than most of em. You and your planners 'll be putting all sorts o' ideas in her head—like the things you read in the 'loveletters'. See? Oh, ah, yes; you see right enough, though you fix me with your eyes as if you was a lamb in a slaughter-house."

Clive's face was red and his lips so tightly drawn that they made a straight line. For a moment he was silent, then he said in a low voice: "Yes; I understand. You are wrong; but you have my promise. Good night."

She hesitated a moment, then she held out her hand.

"Shake on it," she said laconically; and he shook hands with her.

Tibby's words rang tormentingly in his ears as he made his way toward home; and he put himself on the inquisitorial rack. Why had he taken such an interest in this strange family? Would he have followed up their acquaintance, have sent the piano, if—Mina had not been a member of it? It was useless to tell himself that he was more keenly interested in the welfare of that particular family than he was in many another which he had helped; and he admitted, after a turn of the rack, that the girl's beauty, and her extraordinary voice, the refinement of her speech and manner and presence, so strangely inconsistent with her surroundings, had influenced him.

That being so—well, Tibby was right in laying stress upon his promise. And, of course, he would keep it. Why, what difficulty would there be in keeping it? Surely, he did not want to see the girl again? He did not attach the least importance to Tibby's statement that his visits would put "ideas" into Mina's head; the eyes of a child could not have been more pure, more free from coquetry than those which she had lifted to him; the eyes through which the innocence of her mind and heart shone as through crystal; but, all the same, Tibby had a right to rely on his promise, and it was well he had given it.

BRITISH WARSHIPS BOMBARD ZEEBRUGGE.
AMSTERDAM, Sept. 25.

WHAT FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH REPORTS.
LONDON, Sept. 25.
 Field Marshal French reports that German positions were penetrated on Saturday, in some instances for 4,000 yards, in the La Bassée region, and the western outskirts of Hulluch and the village of Los. The mining works around it and Hill No. 70 were wrested from the Germans. Seventeen hundred prisoners, eight guns and a number of machine guns were captured. French troops report gains. An official statement says that an energetic attack was delivered north of Arras, and the enemy lines were pierced at several points. General attacks all along the front with good progress were made.

RUSSIANS REPORT SUCCESSES.
LONDON, Sept. 26.
 The Russian statement contains good news, according to a statement received this afternoon. It tells that more than ten thousand prisoners have been captured, together with machine guns, etc. Hot engagements continue at many points on the eastern battlefield, and the Russians are more than holding their own.

BULGARIA ARMED TO DEFEND HER RIGHTS AND INDEPENDENCE.
LONDON, Sept. 26.
 The Bulgarian Government this morning officially communicated to the Powers a note stating in the most categorical fashion that the mobilization of the Bulgarian army was ordered in the national interest; that it had not the slightest offensive character. The note states that why Bulgaria has gone into a state of armed neutrality is explained by the changes which have recently occurred in the political situation; that Bulgaria has not the slightest aggressive intention, but is firmly resolved to be fully armed to defend her rights and independence. This official note to the Powers was despatched from Sofia on Sept. 23, so that it was framed before Greek mobilization had been decided upon. Dr. Ghemadoff, Bulgarian Foreign Minister, whose inclusion in the Sofia cabinet is reported as a possibility, has been known lately for his pro-Entente views. It is believed here that unless he was certain of the Government continuing good relations with the Entente Powers, he would not have assured them of his support.

AIR RAID COMMITTEE REPORT.

The number of claims reported for personal injuries is 987, of which 178 were fatalities. The number of claims for damage to property, which have been investigated, is 10,297.

"Choked by Invisible Fingers."
 This is about as near as we can come to describing that suffocating sensation caused by Asthma or Bronchitis. There is nothing else like it.

LOSING GROUND.
 Old Booze is slipping slowly; some day his graft unholy will fizzle or t or burst; then all of us will totter to hydrants for the water to slake our raging thirst. Old Booze his grip is losing; for workmen are choosing to leave the suds alone; long years of earnest thinking has shown them how the drinking good man has overthrown. Not sentimental speaking, not lurid platform shrieking, has brought this thing about; not irony or scoffing, not frantic John B. Goughing, has put Old Booze to rout. An age of competition won't stand for the condition that Barleycorn entails; the world a weary state is for one who blows his wages to open kegs of nails. Employers need no longer with one whose breath is stronger than is a gas exhaust; they say, "You're quite too frisky; you're touching up the whiskey, and so your job you've lost." No sentiment is wasted; if they suspect he's tasted a pannikin of beer, they fire him through the transom, his luck is also-ransome, he's in the street named Queer. Some men of sense are quitting the touching up and hitting of all drinks that foam; they drink from babbling brooklets, and have their saving booklets, and happy kids at home.

A "Gag" that Spoils a Scene.

The other day, Madame Sarah Bernhardt, the great French actress, made her first appearance on the stage since her recent severe operation, and it was characteristic of her that she stipulated that the profits of the performance should be given to war funds.

Madame Bernhardt is fond of relating a very funny experience she had, during her early days as an actress, with an actor who was something of a wit, and who was addicted to "gagging."

"It is so long ago," she says, "that I recall neither the play nor the scene, only the part wherein the scene was spoiled. The hero said to me, 'Do you object to this cigar?' which he had already lighted and was puffing vigorously.

"No, no, no!" I answered, which was the cue for him to tell me the story of his life.

"He looked at me instead, and said, rolling the cigar between his fingers, 'That, madame, is because you do not have to smoke it!'

"The audience appreciated the fact that he was smoking a cigar furnished by the property man, and roared with laughter; but this interference made him forget his lines. He could not recollect a word, so, taking my arm, he said, 'Come with me for a walk, and I will tell you the story of my life.'

"We walked off the stage, and on at the next entrance, which required no more than two seconds of time, and then he said, 'Now I have told you the story of my life.'

GERMANS FIGHTING TO RETAIN CONTROL OF POTASH DEPOSITS.

Paris, Sept. 20.—One of the reasons for the determined fight which the Germans are making to hold the ground between Guebwiller and Mulhouse is the importance of the potash deposits in Upper Alsace in this vicinity, which are estimated to be worth 80,000,000 francs ($16,000,000) says a despatch to the Havas News Agency from Geneva.

Despite the war, the industry continues in active operation, and about 100 freight cars loaded with potash are sent daily into the interior of Germany.

Household Notes.

To make a tiny Christmas tree, stand it upright on the table and plant it in a jardiniere filled with sand.

Warm soda water is the best thing with which to remove dirt, etc., from old furniture which is to be refinished.

A good salad is made of white grapes and sliced pineapples on a bed of lettuce leaves. Serve with mayonnaise.

To keep a meringue from falling, mix a teaspoonful of baking powder just before putting the meringue on the pie.

Apples and pears should always be wiped with a clean cloth and then rinsed under the tap before using for dessert.

Fine white felt hats, past their usefulness, can be thoroughly washed and cut into soft little moccasins for the baby.

If you hem your table napkins, it will be found a great help if the linen is hemmed at each end and washed before cutting.

Always cover newly baked bread with a clean cloth—preferably an old table cloth—to keep it free from germs and dust.

The white of an egg, whipped stiff with a ripe banana makes a delicious cream to be eaten on a simple gelatine pudding.

A two or three pound crock of fine butter is one of the presents a farmer's wife will find very acceptable to her friends.

Wear a sewing apron while ironing, and you will often find it possible to do a bit of mending while waiting for the iron to heat.

It pays the housekeeper to get the best bedsprings and mattresses in the market, even if she has to economize somewhere else.

Pour boiling water over the raisins and let them stand a minute; then pour off and you can pinch the seeds off at each end.

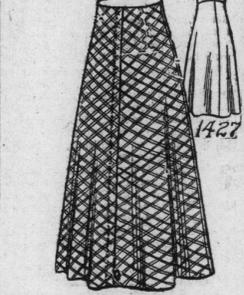

All the strips of fat left from a steak should be left in a dish and fried out in the oven. They will make excellent fat for frying.

The cellar for winter storage should be neither too dry nor too wet. If there are two rooms, one should be warmer than the other.

Telegram Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Fashion Plates. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

Germany's Mistake.

London Daily Telegraph.—German professors were eager to assure the world that "one good shove" would break asunder the ill-fitting mosaic of the British Empire; it was Germany in fact, that welded the British peoples together as with hoops of steel when she overran Belgium, invaded France, and proclaimed her contempt for freedom. The mere threat of war sufficed to silence the voice of controversy among our kith and kin, no less than in these islands.

SEPTEMBER 27.
Full Moon—23rd.
George Cruikshank born 1792. English caricaturist, chiefly remembered by his squibs and George IV and the Comic Almanack, the predecessor of Punch. He illustrated many of Dickens' books but it was as a moralist that he is best remembered in most of his later works.
BOSSUET born 1627. An eminent French Bishop and theologian, whose sermons are of striking eloquence, and whose historical and controversial works are of high literary merit.
BATTLE OF BUSACO 1810. An engagement between the French and Wellington in which the latter was forced to retreat, which he carried out in such a masterly way that the English troops reached Torres Vedras undefeated and in good order.

At the College Hall.

The Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., conducted both the Cochrane Street Church services in the College Hall yesterday. After announcing the following double text: "Neither will I give to the Lord my God, and that which cost me nothing; Upon the first day of the week let every one lay by him as God has prospered him," the rev. gentleman prefaced his remarks by saying that he was now on his fourth year in the city ministry and had not as yet delivered a sermon altogether on Christian giving. Three points in the sermon were especially emphasized, that of individual giving—everybody to give, a giving that costs, systematic giving, regular weekly giving to the cause of God, and proportionate giving, as God has prospered us. We were also to consider our money as a part of ourselves, money is given for high and holy uses. Giving is a Christian act and thoroughly scriptural.

An important announcement was made on behalf of the Finance Committee for the consideration and having been promised and during the coming month it is confidently expected that the majority of the congregation both old and young, will return the cards duly signed at any of the church services.

The Pastor at the evening service, spoke on the "nature of the transformation in human character and helpful sermons suitable for the times, bright singing and devout worshippers tends to make the Sabbath services in every way the success that they really ought to be.

Wedding Bells.

On Sept. 25th a very pretty wedding took place, when Mr. Reuben Gush led to the altar Miss Catherine Moss, daughter of the late Mr. Benson Moss, Salvage, Bonavista Bay. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Edgar Jones, Rector of St. Thomas's Parish. The bride looked neat in white all-over embroidery and had to match and was attended by Miss Ella Oldford. The groom was attended by Mr. Walter Baggs, and Mr. James Calder brother-in-law of the groom's father. A reception was held at the groom's father's residence, Mr. William Gush, Lower Battery Road. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Gush years of happiness.

Perry's Island school has done well again in the C.H.E. exams. Two in Intermediate Grade passed with two distinctions, and one in Honors in Preliminary Grade with five distinctions; one Primary sat and we congratulate that little fellow in securing a pass. This school is closed from July until Nov. 15th. Out of a total of five candidates, four passed, so we may well say, Well done, Perry's Island school!
On Sept. 15th the Methodist Sunday School held their annual picnic. At 12.30 p.m. teachers and scholars assembled at the appointed place, and with flags flying paraded around the village. One feature of the parade was worthy of notice. On reaching the church a circle was formed around the flag, and all joined heartily in singing God Save the King. They then paraded to the picnic grounds where the teachers did all they could to make the afternoon an enjoyable one for the little folk. Racing and games were indulged in and cake and tea was served sumptuously, and on the whole the day was a very enjoyable one.

Croup Cough Cure is extremely useful in cases of bronchial cough and where there is a good deal of expectation. In many cases, too, of long standing cough and what is known as "winter cough" this remedy if taken with some persistence will usually effect a cure. Taken at the beginning of a cold it will nearly always cut the attack short. Very pleasant to take and does not affect the appetite or disturb the digestion. Price 25 cents a bottle.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

The real home, in which the parents are good pals, can give points in rearing children to the old order. The wise make comrades of their growing up or grown children. There is a drawing together of youth and middle age that is good; good for the elders, and conducive to freshness of spirit. The high wall between parent and child is down, and they do not talk a strange language to each other as do many.
To make real comrades of your children is to let them feel that you have gone with them step by step all the way, and one day you will realize they are falling into your step, going back to childhood and blaming themselves for their failures toward you, even as you failed toward yours, and never again will you complain of their ingratitude.

Increased Munitions Make Possible New Plan of Campaign.

After the apparent deadlock on the Western front for the past four months, and the great retreats and abandoning of fortresses and lines of defence by the Russians in the East, it is cheering to learn that something encouraging was being done last week. It will be remembered that months ago called for more and more guns and more and more shells of a highly explosive character. The character of the German trenches showed that they must be pounded and pounded continually by high explosive shells, a mere pounding for a few hours and then an infantry charge led to very great casualties. Last Wednesday the news came along that the entente allies on the Western front were in a position owing to the increasing supply of guns and high explosive shells to begin their new plan of campaign which involves the almost continuous use of artillery in a vast scale. A report issued last Wednesday, says: "The allies are now methodically maintaining their shell fire for days at a time without infantry attacks, dropping projectiles upon the charred front in every fifty yard square, and repeating the process—a deadly, automatic, unceasing pounding. The heavy calibre guns send their storms of shells upon emplacements of first reserves behind the lines, and upon bridges and provision trains."
Official reports obtained by the French army officers from their own observers, from prisoners, and from photographs made by aviators show that parts of the opposing lines which have been subjected to this unceasing bombardment have been rendered entirely untenable, and that the best the Germans can do is to reoccupy their abandoned works after the bombardments have let up and then leave quickly when the showers of projectiles begin to fall again.
According to the message received yesterday, this continuous bombardment for several days was followed upon Saturday by attacks all along the front with good progress. The enemy lines were pierced after an energetic attack north of Arras. The most notable gains appear to have been in the

BRILLIANT ADVANCE

20,000 GERMANS TAKEN PRISONERS.

The Following Bulletin Posted St. Pierre.

(OFFICIAL, Midnight, 25th.)—Our attack north of Arras, secured us a fresh advance. We have occupied from sheer strength the whole of Sonchez Village and advanced eastward in the direction of Givenchy, further South we have reached La Folle and pushed forward to north of Thelus reaching the telegraph station which is destroyed. During this engagement one thousand prisoners were taken. In Champagne our troops continue to advance. After crossing the entire front running between Autherive and Ville Sur Tourbe the powerful trench works, forts and other complete fortified German organizations held by enemy for many months fell into our hands, and our troops marched northward, compelling the Germans to fall back on their second line of trenches, situated from three to four kilometres further behind. The struggle continues on the whole front. We have reached the Vedegrange passed the hut on the road from Souain to Sommepey and the barracks on the road from Souain to Tauré. Further east we held the farm and houses of Campagne. The enemy has suffered by our fire and body to body struggles, very heavy losses. They also abandoned in trenchworks and positions and lost a very considerable quantity of material which has not yet been computed. Up to the present twenty-four field cannons have been taken and the number of prisoners is progressing and actually superior to sixteen thousand men unwounded, including two hundred officers. The total number of prisoners secured on the entire front made by the allies in two days are over twenty thousand. In Belgium the German artillery is rather quiet. During the evening of the 25th, our troops captured an observation post belonging to the enemy on the right bank of the Yser. The garrison was taken, 15 men and a sub-officer. A grenade thrower was also taken. The occupation of this post by our troops compelled the Germans to evacuate two hundred metres of trenches on the Yser.

Damaged Steamer Reaches Port.

The pit-prop steamer Carisbrook, which has made some history within the past few weeks, crippled into port yesterday, having come from Burlington where she was towed by the s.s. Prospero, after being taken on a reef near Little Bay where she went ashore a fortnight ago. The 60 fathom wire hawser used in assisting the stranded ship became entangled with her propeller and it took diver W. Butler nine days to clear it. The work of the diver was very difficult, as each day he was below the surface from morning till evening. An examination of the ship's bottom showed that several holes were punched in the forward part of the ship both on the port and starboard bows. Two of the holes were each two feet wide. Bags of bread were put in the holes to stop the ship from leaking. Regarding the trouble that occurred on board before the ship went ashore, we learn that an American seaman struck a Norwegian seaman on the head with an iron instrument. The victim is now in hospital at Little Bay and his assailant is in jail. The ship discharged her cargo of pit-props at Burlington. She will be dry docked for repairs which will take several weeks, as soon as the Norwegian barque Ravenscourt comes off the stocks.

Here and There.

CATTLE VESSEL HERE.—The schr. Arabic, 8 days from Montazuc, C.B., arrived here yesterday after a very stormy passage. She brought a cargo of cattle.

YOUTHFUL VAGRANT.—A 12-year-old lad named Crossman, who has been sleeping in hallways and on wharves for some time past, and who says he has no home to go to, was found on Baird's wharf yesterday by the police. To-day he was sent to the Penitentiary while the authorities are arranging to get him somewhere else.

FRACAS ON SATURDAY.—On Saturday evening a big row occurred on Water Street, with the result that policemen Day and Kelly were badly beaten and two elderly citizens who attempted to interfere, also fared badly. The adversaries were five volunteers, two of whom were arrested and warrants have been issued for the arrest of three others.

GERMANY'S REAL OBJECTIVE.

London Times.—The real objective of German policy is the command of the sea, which would reduce the United Kingdom to a state of vassalage. That has recently emerged with growing distinctness, though it has always been obvious to well-informed students. It is now candidly avowed. The occupation of Belgium and Serbia, the subjugation of France, and the smashing of Russia's offensive were all to be steps towards that supreme end. It has not been abandoned, and will not be so long as the present spirit prevails among the German people, and supports the present regime. If it cannot be compassed now it will be postponed till a more favorable opportunity by means of a peace which will leave Germany free to recommence her preparations afresh, and with the advantages gained by the war. Such a peace would be only a truce, and would mean for us a state of complete, constant and vigilant armament by land and sea.

French Won His Bet.

Sir John French has the reputation of being one of the wittiest officers in the Army, and he is fond of playing practical jokes of a clever, but harmless nature.

Some time ago he was dining with a number of brother officers, when a discussion arose on proficiency in shooting.

"I'll bet anyone here," said Sir John, "that I can fire ten shots at 500 yards, and call each shot correctly without waiting for the marker. I'll stake a box of cigars on it."

Another officer immediately accepted the offer, and the next day all the diners went to the shooting-range to see the trial.

Sir John fired the first shot. "Miss!" he announced. He fired again. "Miss!" he repeated. Still another shot. "Miss!"

"Here, I say," protested the officer with whom he had made the bet, "what are you doing? You are not shooting at the target at all."

But French fired his ten shots, calling "Miss! Miss! Miss!" each time, before he replied.

"Of course I wasn't shooting at the target," he said calmly, when he had finished, "I was shooting for those cigars!"

After the War--What?

Will a National party arise after the war which will put national watchfulness and national defence—economic as well as military—as the great legend on its banners? Will a man appear among us able to rise to the height of that great argument? Social reform could go hand in hand with such a policy, for it is certain that the British people will never again tolerate the spectacle of the man broken in the wars, or his wife and children, holding out their hands for alms at the corners of our streets. For such a cause and such a leader the nation earnestly longs and waits. There are millions, I believe, willing to put aside their old party ties and claims and attachments to welcome such a man and such a programme.—A. W. Woodbridge, in "The English Review."

A DISCOVERY OF THE WAR.

London Chronicle.—The unlimited importance of shell-fire under European conditions is one of the discoveries of the war; neither the South African nor the Balkan war prepared us for it; nor did any General Staff foresee it. There is abundant evidence that the Germans have been surprised by it, and that in spite of the special stocks with which they started and the productivity of their vast armament works, they have latterly felt a need for economising ammunition, which our own troops have not.

PRIZE COURT DECISIONS.

The only question, here, will be one of fact, for the principle of law is well known and firmly established. It has been laid down by our own prize courts and affirmed by our Supreme Court in the many cases growing out of the trade between Great Britain and the neutral ports of Nassau and Matamoros during our civil war. In the case of the Petehor the Supreme Court sustained the condemnation of a contraband cargo nominally destined to the Mexican port of Matamoros, on the ground that while the goods would have been free of liability in good faith intended for sale in the market of Matamoros, "there is nothing in the case which tends to convince us that such was their real destination," all the circumstances indicated that they "were destined for the use of the rebel forces then occupying Brownsville and other places in the vicinity." In their appeal, therefore, the owners of the cargoes now condemned will be asking for a reversal of a British prize court decision based on principles long ago declared and upheld by our own Supreme Court. It would seem that the success of their appeal would depend upon their ability to overthrow the conclusion of the court that goods in these unusual quantities consigned to Copenhagen were not really intended to enter into the general stock of trade in that port, but were actually destined for German consumption. They complain that the prize court put the burden of proof upon them. But from the greatly augmented volume of these commodities shipped to Copenhagen the inference of an enemy destination was certainly very strong.—New York Times.

EDUCATING THE DEMOCRACY.

New York Post.—The war is stretching out indefinitely. A decision will be won by endurance. That gives time for the full development of England's strength in accordance with British traditions, not by curtailing democracy, but by negotiating with and educating the democracy to the need of the moment. As the labor unions see the problems, England has raised men for the field without compulsion, and she can obtain munitions for her armies without destroying what may regard as the fundamentals of British liberty.

Mrs. Selby Garland and family left for Burgeo this week, where Mr. Garland is employed at his trade, that of cooper. We would much rather have to report people coming to our pretty town to settle down than to record removal of our families to other places. The best wishes of their friends follow them.

The schr. Baden Powell, Capt. A. Parsons, arrived from Labrador this forenoon, with the ensign up, showing they were all well on board. This is the first of our Labrador fleet to arrive.

Mrs. Sellars of the West End, mother of Mr. Mark Sellars, of Bell Island, passed away this morning, after a long illness.

Rifle - Shooting Competition.

On Saturday afternoon a well contested "Shoot" took place between two teams of eight men from the Musketry Instructors, and the Regiment. Lieut. O'Grady selected the best available shots from the Volunteers and acted as Captain of the team. The Musketry team was under the leadership of Captain W. H. Rennie.

The weather conditions made good shooting difficult, the light being dull and variable, with occasional showers. The conditions were one sighting shot and five counters at the 200 and 500 yard ranges. The scores were as follows, the possible over the two ranges being 40 points.

The Musketry Instructors thus won by 39 points. A small sweep stake was arranged, and the first prize was awarded to Private Caines, the second going to Private P. G. Smith.

The volunteers taking part have had only a limited amount of practice, and the result did them much credit. A return match will probably take place at an early date, with, perhaps a different result.

From the Duders.

Lieut. Stanley Duder, R.N., Commander of H. M. S. Whitey Abbey, and son of Mr. Charles R. Duder, this city, in a recent letter writes of his having met his cousin Surgeon-Major Macpherson, at Madros, which is the base to which our Regiment went from Cairo. He says that "Cluny" whose work at the War Office has been so highly appreciated was expected to be at Madros for some little time.

Frank Duder, brother of Lieut. Duder, writes a cherry and encouraging letter after his first month in the trenches. Frank is with the Cameron Highlanders, received their commissions the same day.

On Houses.

By RUTH CAMERON.

These are a few of the things they have learned:

To have plenty of cupboards everywhere. What they cost to build is as nothing to their value in keeping the house tidy. Half the reason we don't put things in their places is that we have no convenient places to put them in. (In a summer cottage I saw a unique idea: the second lowest step was on a hinge and the space underneath was thus utilized for an over-shoe cupboard.)

To remember that a square (or oblong) house and rooms are the cheapest. It is the fancy work of carpentry that costs. A man I know put a fancy Dutch roof on his house, because he liked the picture the architect showed him. This fancy roof gave his upstairs rooms sloping ceilings (a serious disadvantage in renting the house when he moved to another city) and it cost $200 more than a plain roof.

What Will Gas and Electricity Cost? To find out what gas and electricity are going to cost in the community selected. Some people I once knew made up their housekeeping budget, reckoning gas and electricity at the rate they had always paid. Their new home was in a new community and they found both gas and electricity cost one-half as much again.

To be sure to find out what the tax rate, water tax and insurance will be in the community you select. Water taxes vary very widely. I once considered buying a house in the country. In studying out whether it would be a paying proposition I reckoned the water tax what it was in my old home, $12 a year. On investigation I found that my tax on the property would be $50. Insurance is another thing which varies according to location.

Space does not permit me to say more, but if my reader friends are interested in the subject, we'll have another chat on it some day. I'd be especially pleased if anyone who has built a house will pass along, through me, some house suggestions and house warnings.

Some Mistakes But Not So Many Of course they will make some mistakes in the end. Everybody does. But I'm willing to wager they will make rather less than people who do not try to take advantage of other people's failures.

Obituary.

After an illness of three months duration, Capt. Giles Foote "crossed the Bar" yesterday afternoon at the advanced age of 82 years. Capt. Foote was born at Exploits, and when only nineteen years of age owned and commanded a vessel at the seal-fishery, and was a very successful master. For a period of thirty-two years he was connected with the mining industry—for fifteen years at Little Bay and seventeen at Tilt Cove. In 1894 in a bye-election he was elected by the District of Twillingate as its representative to the House of Assembly on the Liberal ticket, and sat for the balance of the term. He was then appointed sub-collector at Bell Island which position he held up to a few years ago, when he was pensioned and came to St. John's to reside. He was well known in fraternal societies and was a member of the N.H. British Society for 48 years. Capt. Foote was one of the links of the great past (which are breaking away one by one), and his stories of the old days were very interesting, of which he never grew weary of telling. His friends, of which he had very many, will be sorry to hear of his passing. Mr. Foote's wife predeceased him three years ago. He leaves four sons and two daughters, one son, Mr. Charles Foote, residing on Bell Island, and one daughter, Miss Jessie, at home; the other members of the family reside in Canada and the United States. The Telegram extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

Temperance Meeting.

COLLEGE HALL. An audience of about 500 school children, the officers of the W. C. T. U. and others interested in the Prohibition movement attended the lecture given by Mrs. Howland at the College Hall on Saturday afternoon last. The meeting opened with a marching song and prayer, after which a concert programme was given by the following young ladies: Misses Amy Chaplin, Flo Glavin, Maude Oke, Sybil Chalke, Mildred Marshall, Mildred Udle, Stella Pike, Leah Rendell, Stella Brazile and a class of boys. Brief addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Cracknell and Mr. P. G. Butler, the latter offering a prize of $3 for the best competition on Prohibition, the essays to be prepared after the children had been given a course of lectures by their teachers. The announcement was received with much enthusiasm by the children. Mrs. Howland then addressed the gathering, and in simple language pointed out the evils which, she said, resulted from the use of intoxicants. She dwelt at length on the effects of liquor on the blood and the system generally, and exhorted her hearers to abstain from its use. She then spoke of the different rally cries of the Temperance classes in the States, explaining each fully and expressing the hope that all present would sign the pledge. She hoped to have an opportunity to address them again and was pleased to be able to carry home a good report of them, and of their interest in the work of Temperance. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

GREENFELL HALL.

Last night Mrs. Howland addressed a large gathering at the Greenfell Hall. She outlined the growth of the Prohibition movement in her homeland, and the great advances that are being made in every direction. She made a strong plea for Temperance reform and predicted a bright future for the Colony should the coming contest result in the abolition of liquor. Mr. W. H. Jones presided, and during the evening musical selections were given by Messrs. Hirst and Wallace.

Rescue Ship Arrives in Port.

Anchor Liner Tuscania, With Passengers and Crew of Abandoned Steamer Athinal, Docks at New York—Fought Fire at Sea.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Anchor Line steamer Tuscania arrived in port to-night with 339 passengers and 70 of the crew of the Greek steamer Athinal, which was abandoned at sea late Sunday afternoon, after she had been afire for thirty-six hours. Every soul on board the burning vessel was rescued. The steamer Roumanian Prince is due here to-morrow with 56 of the crew and five passengers, rescued at the same time.

The officers of the Athinal said to-night that they did not know what caused the fire. It was discovered at eight o'clock Saturday morning, which was her third day out from New York on the Athinal's voyage to Piraeus, Greece. It appeared to have broken out simultaneously in four different parts of No. 2 hold, which was largely filled with cotton bales, printing paper and other inflammable merchandise.

Although there was much excitement among the passengers when the seriousness of the fire was learned, the officers succeeded in allaying their fears, and until were safely aboard the Tuscania before dark the next day, the passengers behaved coolly, with a few exceptions in the staterage. There were 32 Americans aboard among them several bound as missionaries to Turkey, and they united in drawing up a memorial praising the conduct of Captain McLean of the Tuscania and his crew for the "coolness with which they dealt with a very dangerous task."

The crew of the Athinal, assisted by a number of passengers, fought the fires all day Saturday with apparent success, and at dusk they thought they had it under control. The flames broke out again, however, during the night with increased fierceness and at 9 a.m. Sunday the captain decided to send out "S. O. S." calls, to which the Tuscania, Latouraine and Roumanian Prince responded. The Tuscania, proceeding at full speed, arrived at noon, and sent a crew aboard with chemical fire extinguishers and smoke helmets, with which the Athinal was not provided. First Officer McNeill, of the Tuscania, and some of his men went down into the hold and reported that the fire could not be controlled. However, Captain Boziazios kept up the fight for the rest of the afternoon before deciding to abandon the ship. The wireless then brought eight lifeboats from the Tuscania and with a few of the Athinal's boats the passengers were transferred without accident, the weather being mild and the sea calm.

Bicyclist Under Sentence as Spy.

GENEVA, Switzerland, September 18, via Paris.—The professional bicyclist, Doerflinger, a resident of Basel, has been condemned to death as a spy by a German court martial. The Swiss Government has intervened in his behalf with a request for clemency.

An account of Doerflinger's experiences is given by the Journal de Geneve. It appears that after the war broke out he travelled in Alsace and Baden as a representative of a business house. He received an anonymous letter asking him to meet a stranger at Montreaux, Switzerland. It is said this man engaged him to supply military information. Through his acquaintances with a German, now an aviator, who had conducted a factory at Freiburg at which military aeroplanes were manufactured, Doerflinger was able to take a trip in a warplane. All he learned he is alleged to have communicated to a foreign agent, being heavily paid for the information he gave.

C. A. Doerflinger, the bicyclist, is widely known in America as a professional rider. Several years ago he took part in one of the six days races in Madison Square Garden.

No Time for Politics.

London Daily Telegraph:—We cannot rebuild our political system in the hurricane that is now raging. We have got rid of Party for the time, and we have a National Government, formed from the three great parties in the State, and containing the men whom the nation is best content to trust. We have eliminated practically all the defects of our party system. We have got the best man in the Empire as Secretary of State for War. The Cabinet may be somewhat unwieldy in point of size, but there are inner as well as outer circles even in Cabinets, and it is in the inner circles that the decisive steps are taken. We repeat that we are quite prepared to accept any conclusions reached by the leading statesmen of the Cabinet, and we regret exceedingly that attempts should be made to force their hands.

NAOMI CHILDERS IN "ROSELYN" AT NICKEL.

The Nickel Theatre has another great treat in store for patrons to-day and to-morrow, and consequently the audiences promise to be large so patrons should go early. The beautiful story of "Roselyn" will be told, and that brilliant actress Naomi Childers will appear in the leading character. Naomi Childers is one of the best known actresses of the day. In "Roselyn" she excels herself. "The Red Blood of Courage" is an exciting two-reel play remarkable for thrilling incidents. "Our Mutual Girl" will be continued, and Margaret has an exciting experience. "Giddy, Gay and Ticklish" is one of the funniest Keystone comedies ever shown at the Nickel. The Harmony Days, Messrs. Huskins and Cairns, will be heard in new songs and there will be most attractive music. All lovers of the music should attend and enjoy it. "Roselyn" in itself is an attraction which all should see.

BRITISH THEATRE.

It can be truthfully said that no performer ever had a more enthusiastic "send off" from this Island than the one given to Madame Olive Timmons on Saturday night at the above Theatre. The management had kindly given the popular lady a farewell concert and she was most ably and kindly assisted by the well known local favorites Mr. S. W. Conrick, Miss Mary Ryan and Mr. Charles Hutton who acquitted themselves admirably. Madame Timmons will be succeeded to-day by Donora Sabatano, a lady with a rich mezzo-soprano voice and who comes here most highly recommended by the leading Chatavura circuit managers in America. This new film service which has been secured and which was introduced to the public on Friday last has taken the town by storm as the three-part photo-play "The Nobleman's Triumph" has been declared by thoroughly competent judges to be the best picture as yet to have been shown here. To-day an entirely new programme will be submitted wherein the great old English Society drama of the 17th century will be portrayed when the patrons will have opportunities of seeing two of the most-talked-of and versatile performers on the English-speaking stage, Mr. Seymour Hicks and his talented wife, Miss Ellaline Terriss. This beautiful play is too well known to require recapitulation, all that remains to be said being that it will prove itself to be one of the most popular, correctly staged and played society dramas ever seen in Newfoundland.

"REGANS DAUGHTER" AT THE CRESCENT.

The Crescent Picture Palace shows to-day a great Vitagraph feature in two reels entitled: "Regans Daughter." This is a thrilling detective drama acted and staged in the Vitagraph masterly way. "His Unwitting Conquest" is a comedy drama produced by the Vitagraph Company. "The Deacon's Son" is a fine melodrama being the story of a young man who took the wrong road. "The Fable Proving That Spongers are Found in Drug Stores" is a classy comedy written by George Ade, America's foremost humorist. A good musical programme has been arranged for the evening by the Vitagraph Company.

AT ROSSLEY'S EAST END THEATRE.

The chance of a life time is offered to the people of St. John's in the presentation of that great emotional drama "Camille" and figuring the most wonderful actress the world has ever seen. Not only her own compatriots adore and reverence this gifted lady but the whole civilized world has been captivated by her magnificent talents. It will be a subject of regret to all who fail to avail themselves of the privilege offered at Rossley's East End Theatre this week. In addition to this film and others of great attraction there will be another complete change in the amusement programme, Ian MacKenzie, the great Scottish baritone, in Scotch and Irish songs, as well as Miss Rex-Geurin, the gifted and popular soprano, and Mr. William Wallace, the wonderful violinist. Look out for the competition on Friday evening next.

MIRARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAIT IN COWS.

Life Drill on a Transport.

How Tommy Prepares to Meet Peril on The Sea.

Life drill is one of the most important things the Tommy on a transport has to learn. At any moment the ship might be attacked by hostile craft from air or sea, or fire might break out. In order to be ready for any such event the soldiers are constantly put through rehearsals of their life drill. Suddenly the bugler sounds an alarm. Every man rushes on deck to a place, which has been previously pointed out to him, to await orders. With lightning-like rapidity life-belts are hauled up from below, and served out. By the time the Colonel comes round to inspect the life-belt parade, everybody on the ship, with the exception of the invalids, is expected to be attired in a cork jacket. Even the patients in the sick bay display the belts though they do not put them on. Before going to their allotted boats the men fall in as though on parade. An escort takes charge of the regimental Colours. The pioneers go to the magazine to remove the powder if necessary. Water-tight doors and scuttles are shut. At each boat two armed sentries are mounted to prevent undue haste or panic. The strictest discipline is maintained. Indeed, until the "Dismiss" sounds, perfect silence has to be observed.

Our Navy and the Submarines.

The Nation (London):—The Navy has not astonished its organizers; it has merely revealed the resource and adaptability they knew it to possess. The devices used against the submarines are of its devising; they have been wonderfully clever, varied and successful, almost completely so against the smaller boats. They can not, of course, be mentioned; but their effect has been to make the daring captains and crews of the submarines more afraid of our Navy and what it can do than the Navy of the submarines. When the war began there was one chief foe of these vessels. Now there are many, as dark and elusive as they. A great secret sea-war has been carried on, much to our advantage.

OLIVES.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash." The olive is a fruit with the manners of a pickle. It belongs to one of the oldest families and was mentioned in literature two thousand years before the alligator pear was invented. The olive grows on a dusty colored tree and prefers countries which are dryer than Kansas after a local option election. It has two specialties—producing pickers and oil. When the olive is eaten in its green state it acts upon the human frame like an unripe persimmon and ties the face of the eater into an exceedingly hard knot. Eating a fresh young olive newly plucked from the tree is more unpleasant than eating a few fresh words addressed to the boss in a moment of anger. When the olive is plucked at the proper time and squeezed in a sort of prehistoric cider mill it produces olive oil. This is very nutritious and fattening. Most of the characters mentioned in the Bible had olive oil for a steady diet. There are many tribes to-day in old and dusty portions of the earth which would dry up and blow away if they were not moistened regularly with olive oil. The olive tree originally grew only around the Mediterranean Sea, but like every other good thing has emigrated to America and can now be found in vast numbers in California. It is not a large tree, rarely attaining a height over twenty-five feet. However, it consumes several hundred years in getting its growth. Nothing is more permanent in the fruit line than an olive orchard. The armies of the B. C.'s wiped out the population of a country without any hesitation, but were careful not to destroy the olive orchards. However in the present state of international law it would be a very reckless orchard which did not move out at the approach of a modern army. When the olive is not ground into oil it is pickled and eaten whole. Shiploads of olives are eaten in this country each year, but very few people who eat an olive for the first time forget their manners in grabbing for a second helping. Learning to like an olive is as much of a task as learning to appreciate impressionist art. Many a young man has sat at a fine party, slipping olives into his pocket and eagerly shouting for more, because his early education was neglected.

STEADILY IMPROVING.—The many friends of Capt. Baxter Barry, of Glovertown, B.F., who has been in hospital for some time past undergoing treatment for compound fracture of the leg, will be glad to hear that he is steadily improving, and that he will likely be able to leave the institution a few weeks hence.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

All parents and those interested in the education of children know how then that the habits and tastes are formed that have most to do with the development of character. In this yourself if you had the time, money and literary judgment, has been done for you by the best critics who have spent their lives in the study of literature and in whose opinion you may have perfect confidence.

The editorial work that had to be done was enormous. The literature of the entire world has been drawn upon and the selections have been made from thousands of volumes.
These books constitute a complete library for children and grown-ups, one in which pride will be taken and which will encourage the habit of good reading; and furthermore, this is the first time that a collection of such unusual merit has been offered at a price so low.

Here is a volume beautifully illustrated on Heroes, Heroines, Hymns,
Legends, Myths, Operas, Pictures,

Wonders, Wild Animals, Wild Flowers, Birds; 20 books in all—the best collection of stories ever gathered for children. Come in and see them, or
