The Sound of Wedding Bells Won After Great Perseverance!

By BELVEDUE. Dulcie drops a courtesy—an aggravating, exasperating courtesy—and smiles. He reddens. "I am merely giving you the contents of the will," he says. "It is not my will."

Great Skin Cure Stirs Country.

A new scientific discovery for skin diseases is attracting the attention of all doctors in Newfoundland and Canada. This discovery gives instant relief to the most aggravated cases of Eczema and allied diseases and brings about permanent cures in a fortnight.

It is called the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. Apparently no case of eczema can stand against this simple remedy, D. D. D. Prescription. As soon as the first few drops of this cleansing, soothing liquid are applied, the itch is gone.

D. D. D. cures because it penetrates the skin and washes away impurities, unlike greasy salves which merely clog the pores and aggravate disease.

D. D. D. is being used with great success for all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Pimples, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Barber's Itch and in fact all skin diseases.

Test this great cure; don't delay. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere. Recommended by T. McMurdo & Co., A. W. Kennedy, M. Connors, Peter O'Mara.

Is it dear? For if ever I made a spec-ifican effort I always fail and do worse. Never mind! After all, England is a free country, and if we don't like Holme Castle we can leave it.

How ever, no message is sent to Sir Hugh, and on the morrow at midday they are ready.

At the foot of the stairs stands Sir Archie, pale and apparently heart-broken. Never has his perfectly handsome, boyish face looked so melancholy and despairing.

"Is this possible, Miss Dorrimore?" he says, staring wistfully at Dulcie's face, shadowed by her dainty traveling deer-stalker.

"You will never wear all the dresses you have bought, my dear," reconstructs Mrs. Fermor; but Dulcie laughs.

"Would you like me to appear before the ladies of Holme Castle looking like a dowdy, aunt?" she asks.

"But at least there is no occasion for me to have so many," pleads Mrs. Fermor. "One good silk dress, and a stuff or two—"

"That's nonsense," says Dulcie. "You can't wear the same dress for six months. No, aunt, with whatever."

"Yes, he says, eagerly, coming up a step and standing close beside her, his blue eyes devouring her beautiful face. "Yes, of course I shall, soon too. In fact I think I shall go over at once. After all, Rome isn't everything, is it? I wonder," he adds, with sudden earnestness, "I wonder if Lady Falconer would give me an invita-tion for a fortnight, you know?"

but distinct enough to reach Sir Hugh's ears: "Oh, I do hope so! Shall I ask her? Would you really come?" "Would I?" he exclaims, reproachfully. "Of course I would."

"Then, Sir Hugh standing waiting on the stairs, Dulcie drops her voice till it grows sad and tender.

"Indeed, I shall not! Forget you! No, Sir Archie! Good-bye," and she gives him her hand and allows him to hold it, while Sir Hugh waits grimly, watchful and impatient.

"Now, if we are to catch the train," he says, impatiently. Dulcie gives a little start as if she had not seen him.

"Oh, you are waiting? Must we really go?" with a sigh. "Good-bye, good-bye," and then she permits Sir Hugh to help her into the omnibus.

And so the journey commences. Long before it is over, and they reach their destination, Dulcie makes Sir Hugh's martyrdom very real and un-questionable. He is patience itself, and though she tries him to the utmost, he never loses his temper or re-tallates.

In railway carriage or on board steamer he is always the same—at-tentive, considerate, and unselfish; and Mrs. Fermor is overcome with her sense of his worthiness, but Dulcie is stone itself. Nothing he can do touches her; she is sometimes icily polite, at other times gracefully im-pertinent. There is no guessing or anticipating her mood one minute to another. And he bears it all with the same grave, princely quietude which distinguished him on the first night of their meeting in the carnival mob.

He is anxious to reach England as quickly as possible, and without any stopping by the way; but Dulcie ob-jects—she declares that she must stop at Paris at least three days, to "get things," and he submits.

At starting, he had handed Mrs. Fermor a check, so large in amount as to fill that economical lady with awe and misgivings; but Dulcie, long before the three days have expired, re-duces that amount to four-fifths, and the result is at once apparent in the number of additional boxes.

"You will never wear all the dresses you have bought, my dear," reconstructs Mrs. Fermor; but Dulcie laughs.

"Would you like me to appear before the ladies of Holme Castle looking like a dowdy, aunt?" she asks.

"But at least there is no occasion for me to have so many," pleads Mrs. Fermor. "One good silk dress, and a stuff or two—"

"That's nonsense," says Dulcie. "You can't wear the same dress for six months. No, aunt, with whatever."

"Yes, he says, eagerly, coming up a step and standing close beside her, his blue eyes devouring her beautiful face. "Yes, of course I shall, soon too. In fact I think I shall go over at once. After all, Rome isn't everything, is it? I wonder," he adds, with sudden earnestness, "I wonder if Lady Falconer would give me an invita-tion for a fortnight, you know?"

Dulcie can't say, and does not look so eager as she might, until suddenly she spies Sir Hugh coming down the hall in colloquy with a porter, then her manner changes, and with a little sigh that makes poor Sir Archie's heart beat, she says in a low voice, feelings Sir Hugh's relations regard us, shame for our appearance shall not be amongst them."

She puts on one of these new dresses—an evening-dress in the most perfect taste. Dulcie's taste, even when it had to expend itself on cheap satens and washing silks, was always perfect; she puts on one of these on their last evening in Paris, when Sir Hugh takes them to the theatre. And as he stands behind her in the box, he sees a dozen opera-glasses directed to her, and hears that indefinable buzz which denotes that watchful eyes have found something to admire.

She looks ravishingly beautiful, and he stands and watches her with mingled feelings—feelings he finds it hard to analyze. What will they say at home to this beautiful wild animal he is bringing to them?

It is a bad passage across the Chan-nel—rain and thunder, and a sea mountains high. Mrs. Fermor goes down to the cabin and resigns herself to misery, but Dulcie will not de-scend, though he begs her with all the emphasis of his wonted grave, earnest manner.

"You will be very ill, and get fear-fully wet," he says, standing beside her with his hands on the rail, her fresh face turned skyward with a wild, glad, life-full look on it. She shakes her head and laughs, and the music chimes in with the rattle of the ropes and the roar of the sea.

"No, I shall not be ill. I never am. And I like getting wet—such wet as this! It is beautiful! Go down be-low into that awful, close, oil-smell-ing cabin! No, thank you very much!"

"Better," he says, looking down at her. She shakes her head and turns her eyes upon him with a bright, defiant smile.

"Have you not yet discerned that I am one of the most obstinate of mortals, and that the surest way to con-firm me in a determination is to try and persuade me out of it?"

"If I have not," he says, "it is no fault of yours. Well, if you will not go—and he leaves her, but he turns back presently with a rug and a sheet of tarpaulin, which she de-clines with a shake of the head."

But for once he exerts his will, and, taking her arm, wraps the rug round her and envelops her in the water-proof. She looks inclined to throw them off, but, for a wonder, does not, and stands beside him quiescent, watching the sky. Presently she turns her eyes upon him.

"Why don't you go below?" she asks. Sir Hugh smiles. "You will be ill! No! Then you will be wet—wet through."

"I like it," he says. With a jerk she is about to throw off the water-proof, but he stops her, almost sternly.

"Do not," he says; "I cannot per-mit you to get wet. There is a long railway journey at the end of this, and you would be certain to catch cold. Keep it on, please; I insist."

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. John McDonald, who met with a serious accident in company with her son, Michael, on Sunday last, died of her injuries on Monday evening last at Newbridge, Salmononer.

As previously mentioned in the Telegram, Mrs. McDonald and her son were driving home from church at St. Joseph's, on Sunday evening last. Passing Culch Bridge, their horse be-came frightened and leaped over the bridge into the gulch, capsizing the carriage and spilling the occupants, who were dangerously injured, Mrs. McDonald suffering greatly from shock. Twenty-four hours later she succumbed to her injuries, without having regained consciousness. Her son, Michael, who was seriously in-jured about the head and side, is im-proving and his chances of recovery are good.

Chief of Police Blacklists Objectionable Side Shows at Circus. Inspector General Hutchings paid an official visit to the Circus at the Prince's Rink last evening, accom-panyed by Supt. Grimes and Detective Byrne for the purpose of putting a stop to some objectionable side shows which had been the subject of adverse comment. After being shown all the different shows and exhibitions, Mr. Hutchings ordered the blacklisting of the Wheel of Fortune and Palmistry Reading Camp; also an improvement to the Parisian Models and other "sides" contrary to our laws. The police then received instructions to carry out the orders, which were ad-hered to by the management of the Circus.

Suffering from Diphtheria.

A patient who recently entered the General Hospital for medical treat-ment was pronounced ill of diphtheria last evening and was immediately re-moved to the Fever Hospital.

A young woman, 21 years of age, was removed to the hospital yester-day from her home on Carter's Hill suffering from diphtheria.

Motor Car Emergencies

Comparatively little skill and prac-tically no technical knowledge are re-quired to enable a person to drive a motor car under ideal conditions. The real test of motoring qualifications comes with the unexpected situations. Recently an owner-driver stalled his engine on a busy New York street crossing. When he kicked his start-ing motor pedal the engine cranking mechanism failed to operate, due to a run-down storage battery. The frantic search that followed failed to disclose a hand starting crank in the tool box or under the seat. In dis-gust the traffic officer helped to push the crippled machine to the curb.

Just then a young man stepped out of the crowd and offered his assist-ance. He searched for several minutes to find a hand starting crank in the tool box or under the seat. In dis-gust the traffic officer helped to push the crippled machine to the curb. "If your engine is all right," he sug-gested, "I think I can start it for you." "Go ahead, if you can," urged the owner dubiously. Picking up a jack, the young man raised one rear wheel from the ground and threw high gear into engagement. Then he turned the jacked-up wheel in a forward direction, being careful to pull up and lean away from the car. In an instant the motor was humming, and after throwing the gears into the neutral position and removing the jack, the friend in need smiled his appreciation of the owner's courteous thanks and went his way.

It was a simple plan, as most suc-cessful mechanical adaptations are when demonstrated. Early this summer a New England motorist found himself on the road several miles from any garage with a flat front tire and no jack. Nothing but a rail fence at the side of the road, he selected a straight, sound piece of timber. Next he built a solid pile of stones two and a half feet high in the road in front of his car. Then he laid the rail on the pile so that it made an angle of about fifteen degrees with the road, and ran his car up against the incline with sufficient force to raise the damaged tire clear of the road, and permit an exchange of rims. Having his rear wheels on solid ground, it was a simple matter to back off from the improvised jack when the repair was completed.—Scientific American.

Hostile artillery has shown activity during the day in the neighborhood of Lagnicourt, Vimy and Neuport. There was again great artillery activity on both sides in the Ypres sector. Despite lower clouds and a very strong west wind a considerable amount of artillery work was carried out by us yesterday with airplane observation. Three hostile machines were driven down out of control in air fighting, but combats were few owing to the small number of German machines in the air. Three of our machines are missing.

CANADIAN COURAGE.
Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Sept. 18 (By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—Awards are still being made for heroic conduct and sound judgment, that is almost as much a factor as modern war may indicate. Canadian courage never reached a higher point than in the battle of Lens. Case after case is to be found in authenticated records in which our men performed prodigies of valor or faced death in order that their comrades would be saved by their self-sacrifice. Here is a record in laconic official language of deeds that surpass anything in war action and that are vouched for in writing by a number of eye-witnesses. A non-commissioned officer of a British Columbia battalion attacks the enemy. He led the section which had a difficult task in mopping up cellars, craters and machine gun emplacements. In one cellar he himself bayoneted three Germans and attacked, single-handed, seven others in a crater, killing them all. On reaching his objective a machine gun was found to be holding up his right flank, causing many casualties. This officer rushed forward, entered the emplacement, killed the crew and brought back the gun to our lines. To-day he again attacked, single-handed, another machine gun emplacement, killed three of the crew and destroyed the gun and emplacement with a high explosive charge. He alone killed at least 10 of the enemy, and during the two days of actual fighting carried on continually till wounded in the neck. Then he wouldn't go out till all the fighting was over. The name of this amazing fighting man is withheld for the present. Another hero of the Sask battalion, when the bombing party which he was a member of was compelled to retire in the face of superior forces, having exhausted their supply of bombs, covered the withdrawal of his comrades by mounting on the parapet of a trench in full view of the advancing Germans, and brought such a rapid, accurate fire to bear upon them that he alone held back the enemy till the withdrawal was completed. Another indomitable soul, after three attacks in which he took part had been made against a heavily wired machine gun emplacement and strong point, and had failed, organized a fourth attack. All his company officers had been hit, but this N.C.O. rallied the survivors, led them against the enemy, penetrated the wire, personally bayoneted three of the defenders and killed the fourth with the butt of his rifle. The machine gun was silenced and the position captured. But for his daring and determined handling of a desperate situation, says the official record, our attack would not have succeeded. This superb soldier is also a British Columbian. His name will be published later.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE TO PROGRESS.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.
Russian forces on the Riga front continue to progress in their drive against the Germans. On Sunday the Russians occupied a German position southwest of Hapsal, and also forced the Teutons out of Sadzen Farm to the south of Sisselau.

PORTUGUESE OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 18.
An official communication from Portuguese headquarters gives the following information regarding the Portuguese: During the past week the situation has been quiet on the whole. There were daily patrol encounters and artillery activity on the latter part of the week. On Saturday the enemy raided our trench at Neuve Chapelle; he was driven out leaving five prisoners and three dead, including an officer, besides other casualties inflicted on them.

LIEUT.-GEN. SMUTTS INTERVIEWED.

PARIS, Sept. 18.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Interviewed by the London correspondent of Le Journal, Lieut. Gen. Jan. Christian Smutts, South African soldier and statesman, referring to Germany's present position, said she has little or no improvement to hope for. Can one doubt on the other hand the growing feeling of terror which possesses her as she sees the nations enter themselves side by side against her. Her food problems are daily becoming more acute, her economic future hopelessly compromised, her name more and more detested, in short she is faced with the prospect of being strangled to death unless the Entente re-opens the doors of the world to her. What does the future offer to her even in an impossible hypothesis of a reversal of the military situation? There is nothing that Germany longs for more ardently than peace. All her people feel their position is desperate. But before thinking of peace, we must be certain of having finished with military imperialism; before accepting peace those who are charged with the destinies of nations should give serious reflection to terms, for on the peace that we sign will depend for generations the peace and future of the whole world. The stake is the largest the human world ever played for. Patience and confidence are all we now need in order to be certain of obtaining it. This war is a war of machinery. Instructed by experience we have adopted tactics which may not be very showing, but the results of which are mathematically certain.

A GERMAN REPORT.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.
(Wireless Press)—General Von Ludendorff, in his official report to-day regarding the military operations on the French battle front, says: Western theatre, Army group of the German Crown Prince—On both sides of the Laon-Soissons road and on the right bank of the River Meuse, fighting activity by both our artillery and that of the enemy at times reached considerable intensity. Forefield engagements developed at several points and resulted favorably for us. Army group of Duke Albrecht—Our storming troops made a surprise attack against the French positions west of Apremont and brought back prisoners. Eastern war theatre—In the bend around Lutakou at the lower course of the Zorocou and in the mountains east of Kedzi Vararchy basin, the enemy was quieter than recently. On the front of Field Marshal Von Mackensen—West of the Sereth the Roumanians, after copious artillery preparation, made several local attacks near Varnitza and Muncelu, which failed with heavy loss. At the confluence of Rimnitha, prisoners were captured as a result of an enterprise by us. On the Macedonian front there were no military operations of major importance.

PRISONERS CLOSELY GUARDED.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.
Twenty-three Generals and other officers, arrested on Friday with General Korniloff, are being closely guarded. Korniloff is imprisoned in a hotel at Mohilev, where he is writing a statement which is expected to be finished to-day.

NORWEGIAN STEAMERS SUNK.

CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 18.
The Norwegian steamer Askelad, 2,825 tons, was sunk by a German submarine. One boat with 11 men was lost. The Norwegian steamer Rein, 2,155 tons, was also sunk by a German submarine off Cape St. Vincent. Ten men lost their lives.

CLOSER CO-OPERATION.

LONDON, Sept. 18.
Albert Meun, Under Secretary of State in charge of Blockade, has arrived here from Paris with a number of expert advisers to consult with the British Government on closer co-operation in the blockade.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.
The text of to-day's official statement follows: On the western front the situation is unchanged; in the region northeast of Friedrichstadt our detachments, after an engagement, occupied a wood south of the village of Bldadz. We captured a machine gun. On the remainder of the front here there was fusillades and shooting. On the Roumanian front on the Right bank of the River Zutis, the Germans, after artillery preparations, yesterday attacked and occupied a sector of fortified positions in the region of Varnitza. During Sunday evening, after strong artillery fire with chemical shells, the enemy endeavored to attack the Roumanian positions in the Pantziu-Marschoute region, but were frustrated by rifle and artillery fire.

GERMAN PRISONER SUICIDES.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18.
Gothold Prusse, one of the designers of the German merchant submarine Deutschland, which came here on her first voyage, committed suicide in the city jail to-day by hanging. Prusse had been imprisoned as an alien enemy. He was arrested by the United States authorities on August 20 for leaving the restricted zone without permission. He was 41 years old and born in Germany.

ARGENTINE RECOGNIZES NEW REPUBLIC.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 18.
Argentina has recognized the new republic of Russia. President Irgoyen signed a decree to-day to that effect.

THE QUEBEC BRIDGE.

QUEBEC, Sept. 18.
The central span of the Quebec Bridge was to-night dangling 82 feet from its destination. It was raised 42 feet during the day. Another day and a half must elapse, the engineers announced, before it could be made a permanent part of the bridge. The work of the day was not as successful as had been anticipated, owing to the snapping off of a bracket in connection with the gear for the removal of the raised links of the hoisting chains. The falling bolt from the bracket hit one of the workmen and inflicted a deep flesh wound by his nose.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 18.
The Associated Press to-day carries the following: Cleopatra's Needle, presented to the British Government and erected in London in 1878, narrowly escaped destruction in a German raid over London on Sept. 4th, according to Americans who arrived here to-day from England. One said he was near the scene at the time, and asserted that two bombs fell within less than a dozen feet of the historic Obelisk, the explosion shaking it on its foundation. Another bomb fell a block distant and hit a street car, killing several of its occupants. Cable reports of the raid said 11 persons were killed and 63 injured.

An Extraordinary Discovery.

The invention of the X-rays startled the world, and its use has been most valuable to medical science. Now, it seems, a new discovery has been made which will develop self-made pictures of internal organs, and prove of incalculable benefit to the Nation. It is stated that the name of the inventor is James Shearer, aged 30, at present a sergeant in the R.A.M.C., and working at a casualty clearing station. By birth he is a Scotsman, but he received his late education in America, where he graduated M.D., Ch.M., at the University of Washington. He could not be given a commission, as the medical degree he holds is not one of those recognized in Great Britain. With the X-ray, in a darkened chamber, it is possible to obtain a picture of the bones and more solid structures, but by means of his discovery it is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ of the body, brain, liver, kidneys, spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. Thus it is possible to see the blood vessels in the brain, to observe a blood-clot in that organ, to detect abscesses in the liver and wounds or cuts in any organ. In one case a "concern" in the appendix was seen clearly when the picture was complete. The miracle is achieved by utilizing the currents of electricity which the body is believed to generate. This conception is not new, and we owe to it instruments like the electro-cardiograph. The difficulty was to make the current coming from any organ active and dynamic—i.e., to cause it to reveal its message, if that popular figure may be used. It is impossible here to enter into details, but it may be said that two electrodes, each ending in a perforated zinc plate or zinc wire screen are employed. These are connected with batteries in the ordinary way, but are not placed in contact with the patient's body. One screen stands on a pedestal in a vertical position near the patient, the other is hung horizontally at right angles to the first one. In this way an electrical field coming from the first screen is always at right angles to that of the second.

RUSSIA.

Certain opinion in Washington sees no small likelihood that Russia will shortly conclude the oft-threatened peace with Germany and Austria. It would be a great mistake to dismiss the rumour as an idle canard. He is a wise man who can read the real meaning of recent events in Russia or discern the forces behind and actuating the different figures therein, but it is certain that these are more important far than the figures themselves, of whom Kerensky alone can be said to derive his ascendancy from the vigour of his own personality. It is because of the sane and sound policy which Korniloff represented that his complete failure is deplored by the other Allies. He wanted an efficient army and took the only course that he could see to procure it: he was backed by the only efficient and loyal part of it, the Cossacks. It is reasonable to conclude that the forces which engulfed the attempt so thoroughly were inspired to a large extent by views the opposite of his. The surmise is supported by much that has been happening in the political field for weeks past, in which, as the despatch states, the sober, clear-thinking conservative elements have everywhere been defeated. Whether a shameful peace with the enemy is the result or not, it is plain that Russia is controlled at present by a combination of mad socialists and pacifists, both adroitly manipulated by the Maximalists and German secret emissaries and the whole working upon the impressionable minds of a populace almost unbelievably childlike. The one comforting feature of the whole situation is the firmer stand of the army against the enemy, offset in turn by a natural doubt how long it will be able to continue.

The Postal Telegraphs and the Messages.

It is a long time since we made a complaint on this score, but the fact is to be attributed rather to our exemplary patience than to lack of an occasion. Occasions have, in fact, been frequent. Yesterday one occurred which passed the bounds even of editorial patience. A message of unusual interest, if not importance, was received, or began to be received, by the Postals at 1.45 p.m. It had not reached us when we went to press at 2.40. If three quarters of an hour was too short a time in which to transcribe a sheet of cables, the courtesy of a telegram that it was worth holding the press back for would have been appreciated. We are not suggesting this latter in any way as a duty of the department; its obvious duty is to replace the archaic and absurd system which it uses by one more speedy and correct.

We note that the Postmaster General, in his excellent report, deals fully with this matter. We are ready to make all due allowances. We do not complain, and have never done so, of the service itself. It is not at all bad on the whole. It occasionally contains items that are of little value but it spares us a great deal of rubbish that chokes the columns of foreign newspapers, and if it now and then omits matters of importance, it generally gives a very fair and comprehensive gist of the day's news in a summary that can be read and understood in a few moments. It is the manner in which the service is presented that we complain of. The mesand things happen when they get there. Hats off to Capt. Paterson and his gallant men!

McMurdo's Store News

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 19th, 1917
We have just opened a new stock of Water Glass or Egg Preservative. Since Eggs are certain to be very expensive this winter it will be wise to put away a few dozen for later use. The only really successful means of keeping eggs fresh for an indefinite time is by use of a solution of Silicate of Soda, popularly known as Water Glass. Eggs kept immersed in this solution will keep quite fresh for months without losing in any way their flavour or healthfulness. If you have not tried this method, do so this fall; if you have, you will of course want to go on using the process. Price 20c. a tin; puts up 6 to 8 dozen eggs.

Incorrigibles Dealt With.

Four incorrigible lads named Reed, Evans, Connors and Dillon, who were arrested a few nights ago for house-breaking and theft, were before Judge Morris to-day, for the larceny of a camera, 4 watches, 3 flash lamps, 2 tins of tobacco, 3 pocket knives, a quantity of cigarettes and a pack of playing cards. All the stolen property was recovered except a flash light. Evans, in view of his tender years (19) was not sent to jail, but was ordered to get six strokes of the birch switch; Reed, aged 12, was sentenced to 10 days and to be lashed 3 times going in and as often coming out; Connors and Dillon, the oldest and most hardened of the gang, were each sentenced to sixty days imprisonment, with hard labor.

The long list of decorations bestowed upon men of the Regiment will be read everywhere in the Island with keen pleasure. Its publication happily synchronizes with that of the Times' account of the gallant performance which was without doubt the service that won the rewards. Late English papers settle the question of its 'locality'. The little Stoenabek river runs through a swamp just south of Langemack, the capture of which took place on the day our troops did such good work and has been acclaimed the best performance of the feat of the Newfoundlanders must have contributed materially. THE ARGUING MAN.

I hired a man to work around, to groom the cow and feed the snakes, and after seven weeks I found he wasn't worth a brace of shakes. I'd say, "Oh, James, I wish you'd start and paint the fence dark blue and show that arctic pink." He'd say, "Have some respect for Art! That combination of red and green, the colors nicely would combine, and every passer-by, I mean, would cry, 'Oh, cheer! That fence is fine!' Then I'd reply, 'I pay the man to have that fence the way I wish; my way I'll surely have it done, or you will lose your job, odsfish!' Then he would quote a lot of jays, old Rembrandt, Titian and that mob, to show that arctic folk would raise a clamor o'er the measly job. So we would stand in joint debate, until the sinking of the sun, and when the daylight pulled its freight, there was no job of painting done. Now, James is poor, and always was, and always will be till he dies; he labors too much with his jaws to satisfy employing guys. My way of doing things is punk. I'm always in the wrong, I know; but when for toll I pay the plunk, I guess my way will have to go.

Pains Over Left Kidney.

Warned This Captain That the Kidneys Were Responsible for His Pains and Aches—Freed of Pain and Suffering by a Well-Known Medicine.
Hereford, Que., Sept. 19th.—Captain Peabody is well known all through this section, and his cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has aroused great interest in this great medicine.
The Captain had been suffering for a long time, and could never get any treatment to afford lasting relief until he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.
Captain A. Peabody, Hereford, Que., writes:—"For years I suffered from indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia. Lightning-like pains would shoot all through my body, and I also had severe pains over my left kidney and through the hips. I doctored for years and tried all kinds of remedies, but the only result was money spent without relief. At last I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of his Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. One boy made such a change that I sent for five more. Before I had finished them the pains in my kidneys and hips had disappeared, and I was clear of those sharp shooting pains through the body. I still take these Pills occasionally to keep my bowels regular, and would not be without them, as I have them to thank for my cure.
"I can also speak highly of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder and Linseed and Turpentine. The former cured me of catarrh in the head, which caused frequent headaches. I am completely cured of this now, and breathe freely as when a boy. The Linseed and Turpentine proved of great benefit for a bad cough which bothered me continually for three winters. Last winter I took one bottle of the Linseed and Turpentine, and have not been bothered with a cough since."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Don't be talked into accepting anything said to be just as good. Imitations and substitutes only disappoint.

Light on Sweden's Role.

When Count Luxburg, in the dispatches he sent to Germany through the Swedish Legation at Buenos Aires, recommended that the Argentine ships whose sailing dates he gave be either spared or "sunk without a trace being left," he meant that if sunk the crew and passengers should be murdered to a man. But why? So that the German Government should be able to state upon its honor that they had not been sunk at all, and that, therefore, no reparation need be made to Argentina. If the honor and good faith of the German Government were not already a matter upon which the case is made up, this would illuminate it. If we did not already know how many things a German diplomat is called upon to do that diplomats from other lands would be insulted at the suspicion of doing, this would illuminate that question, too.

But no such illumination is needed. The illumination that was needed was on the part Sweden is playing in the war, and this, too, is fortunately lit up with a blinding glare by the revelation of what has been going on in Buenos Aires, with its inevitable implication that similar things have been going on in other capitals where Swedish and German diplomats can meet. That Germany was capable of using the sacred immunity of a diplomat's correspondence for the purpose of forwarding sailing dates to waiting submarines we already knew; it had been demonstrated in Norway. But that these unsuspecting ships were betrayed to their fate by the medium of the carefully respected diplomatic correspondence of Sweden we did not know. Now that we know it, much about Germany's uncanny knowledge of what goes on in other countries is clear to us.

Of course, the unfortunate Minister in Buenos Aires who forwarded Luxburg's frightful communication under cover of his own sacred diplomatic character will be made a scapegoat. There is no legal evidence as yet which involves the Swedish Government. But international courtesy cannot be stretched to the point of endangering the Allies' cause or the lives of their sailors. The Allies may have to accept Sweden's forthcoming protestations that she knew nothing of what was going on in her legation at Buenos Aires. But they should insist, since these unfortunate accidents happen, that Sweden consent to forego during the rest of the war the international courtesy by which her diplomatic correspondence is allowed to pass the censorship. Too many queer things have been happening. The British Government has already had occasion to warn Sweden, and this time there should be no more warnings. If Sweden should feel humiliated by this plain intimation that she cannot be trusted, she has invited the humiliation.

As for Argentina, her education on the subject of German faith is progressing. She is at present in about that stage of negotiation with Germany that we were at the time the Arabic was sunk, but events like this may hurry the process.—N. Y. Times.

CONFLAGRATION AT BRITANNIA.

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed and 10 Families Left Homeless and Destitute.

Meagre information reached the city last night from Britannia, Trinity Bay, to the effect that a big forest fire was raging there and that residential sections of the settlement were threatened with destruction.

This forenoon Deputy Minister of Justice Summers received a message from Mr. J. Leawood, J.P., at Britannia saying that a fierce forest fire yesterday swept the shore from Aspen Cove to Britannia destroying the

THE THRILLING GRAND FALLS SERIES.

From the results of the Inter Town series just finished it is clearly evident that St. John's in future will have to regard the out-of-town aspirants to the championship more seriously than they have in the past in view of the showing made by Bell Island, and particularly Grand Falls. Strenuous endeavors will be made by both next year to cop the much coveted Reid trophy.

THE SECOND RATERS.
This is a toast to the fellows that tried with a courage unflinching and clean. When greatness and fame through the years that were. When the boys of their brothers were green. Ah, many the battler, who gives of his best. Through seasons of soul-testing strife, And few the bright victors who smile on the crest. Bedecked with the haubles of life.

THE GARDEN OF MAN'S ENDEAVOUR.
At the end of the long, long trail, Each soul that tried in the weary race, Though blessed by victory never leaves its shaft of light a blossoming bright.

CLOUSTON & BRAZIE—THE HEROES.
With one game each to the credit, the final game between Grand Falls and St. John's found the score tied at the end of the 9th inning. The spectators were tense with excitement. The paper men went to the bat first in the extra inning but Hall threw the first batter out, caught the second stealing third, and the last batter hit a short fly which was grabbed in right field.

A Bad Man at Large.

Sheriff John L. Moon, of Lee county, across the river from Columbus, aggrieved because a prisoner who recently escaped from his charge tried to swipe the official patrol buggy, sends the following note to the press: "I want $100 worth anywhere on earth (except in Germany) Robert Turner, alias B. WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day.
Russia, having recovered in great measure from the effects of the recent internal difficulties, is preparing to make a firmer stand against the common enemy. The Russian Northern army which made some progress toward driving the Germans back to the Dvina line in the Riga region on Sunday, occupied several German positions between Pskoff and Riga. On Monday they captured Teuton defences northeast of Friedrictstadt, south of Riga. In its official report Berlin makes no mention of activity in this region. General Scherbatoff, commander on the Rumanian Front, carried out a successful offensive movement in the Suchitza Valley, northwest of Fokshani. A section of fortified Austro-German defences near Varnitza were occupied by the Rumanians. German attacks in the Pannetiu region to the southeast were repulsed. Raids continue on the northern end of the Western front with both British and Germans as aggressors. Berlin, however, mentions no infantry activity on the front of Crown Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria. Artillery and aerial activity on the Western Front remains intense. From Neuport to near Arras, and especially in the Ypres sector, the opposing guns are showing increased activity. In two efforts against the French positions on the Aisne Front the German Crown Prince again has met with failure. Near the Mietto River, on the Neufchateau Road, the Germans reached the French advance lines only to be thrown out again. In Champagne and on the right bank of the Meuse artillery fire has been more spirited. The Italians are still withstanding successfully the Austro-Hungarian efforts on the southeast edge of the Bainsizza Plateau, while big guns are hurling their monstrous shells over the battle-torn area of the Carso Plateau. France, her new Premier, Professor Painleve, says, will continue the war till Alsace-Lorraine is restored and the Germans have made payment for the damages caused by their ruthlessness in the occupied area of the Republic. He urges that the allied powers consolidate their strength in a common effort. France by the end of 1917 will have expended 109,000,000,000 francs for military operations and civil administrations since beginning of the war; for the last quarter of the year its expenditures will total 12,150,000,000 francs.

Another Boy Writes Home of U-Boat Attack.

Says Four Submarines Were Destroyed.
Another letter written home by an American boy, serving at the front, tells of an attack on our transports by German submarines, has reached The Times. In a letter published yesterday morning an American boy told how a fleet of transports from this country was attacked by twelve German submarines. The writer said that four of the U-boats were sunk in the encounter and forty-seven German sailors were drowned. On the day after the battle with the transports American destroyers went out from a French port and, according to the letter, succeeded in sinking five more submarines.

GERMANY PREPARING FOR PEACE OFFER.

LONDON, To-day.
The flood of so-called peace rumors which the German censor is permitting to sprout in the leading German newspapers convinces the London press and public that Berlin is preparing home opinion for another adroit peace manoeuvre, which probably will take definite shape before the snow flies. The Central News from Amsterdam says: "A careful reading of the German papers leads to the belief that reports of a British peace offer were circulated simply with the object of making it easy for the German Government to rally to the attitude of the Reichstag majority, and the whole thing is a manoeuvre engineered by Dr. Von Kuhlmann, the German Foreign Secretary."

STILL ENSLAVING BELGIANS.

LONDON, To-day.
The Times prints an article entitled "Slavery in Belgium." The Germans have not given up the deportation of Belgian workmen. After a show of deference to the insistent protests of various neutral states and the Pope, they are endeavoring to revive the practice of forced labor in another form.

SIGNIFICANT WORDS.

ZURICH, To-day.
Herr Erzeberger delivered an important speech to his constituents yesterday at Biberach on the question of peace. He said that authoritative and unauthoritative persons lectured the people on unrestricted U-boat warfare in an irresponsible manner. In spite of the fact that fifty per cent of the guaranteed shipping of Britain had been sunk, it had not been noticeable and England remained unconquered. Therefore, before voting the new war loan it was the duty of the Reichstag to consider whether a way could not be found to shorten the war. In the fourth year of the war it would cost fifty milliard marks and a daily death toll of 1,250 men. The world's harvest was bad and a general shortage in coal, fat and leather was threatened which would cause belligerents greater hardships this winter than they had endured in the last three winters put together. After referring significantly to the necessity for Germany to consider the desires of her allies, Erzeberger continued, "we have a peace dependent on might and oppression that would lead to future war. We must find the solution in enabling all nations to live side by side."

LIVING UP TO HIS NAME.

MINEOLA, New York, To-day.
Caleb Bragg, an aviator, made a claim yesterday to a new American altitude record, asserting that he reached a height of 22,000 feet in a flight in an airplane equipped with a 150 horsepower motor of a new type. The claim will be investigated by the Aero Club of America.

N.Y. LONGSHOREMEN THREATEN STRIKE.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The pierers of the principal trans-Atlantic steamship lines in New York Harbor are affected by a strike called yesterday by the Longshoremen's Union because the International Mercantile Marine Company insisted on putting a foreman back to work against the protest of the Longshoremen.

The Fruits of Fear.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Nothing in the world makes me much crosser than a little scene such as I witnessed the other day. It was the bathing hour at our summer place. A dear, chubby baby boy between two and three was carried into the water by his father. He was crowing and laughing. And then all of a sudden his father loosened the baby's clutch from his neck and ducked him. He came up spluttering and screaming. First his father laughed and then he told him to stop being a little coward or he would duck him again. Talk about being a coward. Isn't a bully always the worst coward? And wasn't that father being the worst kind of a bully? When the mother scolded he said he wanted to teach the boy not to be afraid. He couldn't have chosen a better way to plant fear. As if he could select a surer way of planting the seeds of fear in that child. One can never be a successful swimmer unless one is at home in the water. And practically the only way to be at home in the water, is to go into it as a child and get used to it in one's own time, without being urged and certainly without being dragged in or ducked. Many a drowning is caused by nothing in the world but panic. Just recently I read of a death in the water where the girl was not drowned at all but died of heart failure because she feared she was being carried out by the tide. The child who gets acquainted with the water in his babyhood and learns to play with it as with a comrade will not be so liable to that insane fear. The Baby Wanted to Eat The Snake. It is a sin to plant any kind of fear in a child's mind. The fruit of fear is cowardice and suffering and limitations. A normal child is almost fearless. Many of the fears we think are instinctive are really acquired. For instance we hold a tiny harmless snake out to a year old baby girl to see if she would shrink from it. Instead she crowded, reached out for it and tried to put it into her mouth. Don't Tell The Child All Bowwows Are Cross. Of course one must warn a child but one should be careful to make such warning sane and intelligent and not absurdly exaggerated. To tell a child that all bowwows are cross and will eat him up, will keep him from touching strange dogs but it will also inculcate a lifelong distrust of man's truest friend. Surely the warning can be fitted more closely to the end than that. St. Joseph, Levis, July 14, 1903. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May, and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. THE PIPE ORGAN. The pipe organ is a mammoth music box which is run by wind. Other things are necessary in order to produce a good effect, but when the wind falls off the organist is as helpless as a three-masted sloop in a dead calm. The pipe organ is superior to the reed organ because it costs more and has to be played with the feet. There are any number of people who can sit down to a reed organ and bring forth music which can be recognised as such by listeners with a trained ear, but agile pipe organists with swivel ankle joints and perfect equilibrium are harder to secure than a front seat at a free show. It takes years to make a good pipe organist, and it also takes several years to accustom the congregation to the change.

Pipe organs are subject to spells of despondency, making it necessary to drag in an upright piano from the basement. The pipe organ has a divine mission, as it soothes the savage breast of the listener and prepares him for what is coming in the form of a sermon. After a hard-working vestryman has listened to several numbers on a pipe organ which is suffering from some internal malady, followed up by a soul-stirring anthem which skillfully avoids any contact with the accompaniment, he will welcome a sermon on the missionary movement in southwest Africa with a sigh of relief. Upon some people the pipe organ has such a soothing effect that they will fall asleep bolt upright before the sermon has run forty-five minutes, waking up with a dislocating jerk when the organ assaults the closing hymn.

The pipe organ consists of several hundred wood and metal pipes which are concealed from the congregation by a false front and the feet of the organist. These pipes need tuning every day or two, and as they get it every third year they sometimes refuse to cog, producing a weird brand of unflattering harmony, very similar to a male quartet with the quintsy. This does not annoy anybody in the congregation who likes music in a raw and unstrained state, but it is very disconcerting to sensitive souls who know the difference between the treble and bass clefs.

Pipe organs are also subject to spells of despondency and at times will not utter a word, making it necessary to drag in an upright piano from the basement by its hind legs. Once in a while some high-pitched pipe will decide to sing a solo, and many a long, tortuous prayer has been ruined by this interruption. Despite these drawbacks, every church wants a pipe organ, and without one is as unfinished as a bungalow without a bath tub.

It was, in 1315, assigned by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's to the Priory of St. Bartholomew, Smithfield, and after 200 years as a chantry chapel was assigned to the ministry at Sheen. The pulpit dates from 1568. In most Hindoo villages there is a sacred pipal tree, among the leaves of which the gods are said to sit. The Times the New

Following is the article in the London Times to which Lieutenant Murphy referred in his recent telegram to the Governor. The substance of it has already appeared in our columns, quoted from a despatch of the Montreal Star.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS TO THE FORE.

Gallantry in a Morass.—Mud Deep.

In proportion to their numbers there are no troops in the Army which have earned for themselves a reputation than the Newfoundlanders. Nothing could have exceeded the splendour of their sacrifice on July last year on the Somme. No hero could have been sterner or braver than their later fighting there on the Switch Line. This year at Ypres beyond Monchy, they behaved as gallantly, and, as I told in my dispatches at the time, inflicted heavily on the enemy's ranks, and more in the recent fighting here than have done superbly.

It was in the advance beyond Serrebeek, when they were among the troops whose task was to cross some 600 yards of what is known as "Floating Swamp" to attack a strongly fortified position with concrete defences on the farther side. Floating Swamp is the name for a quagmire morass which gives no foothold anywhere, but heaves and sways and bubbles to unknown depths as you wade through it.

In this case experience showed that the depth varied from the height of a man's waist to his chest or throat. When a man sank much above his waist he had to stay there to be pulled out, if fortune favoured him. Those who were only knee-high or waist-high or less than up to the armpits went on. There was no time to stay then to pull a comrade out of the barrage like a pillar of rock, but by day, moved on before, and he must follow as close as might be behind it.

Swept by Machine-Guns. The swamp itself was a fearful thing to breast, and it was swept by machine-gun fire, which, however spluttered blindly through our barrage. The Times Tribute to the Newfoundlanders

Following is the article in the London Times to which Lieut. L. C. Murphy referred in his recent telegram to the Governor. The substance of it has already appeared in our columns, quoted from a despatch to the Montreal Star.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS TO THE FORE.

Gallantry in a Morass—Mud Through Deep.

In proportion to their numbers there are no troops in the Army which have earned for themselves a finer reputation than the Newfoundlanders. Nothing could have exceeded the splendour of their sacrifice on July 1 last year on the Somme. Nothing could have been sterner or braver than their later fighting there upon the Switch Line. This year at Arras, beyond Monchy, they behaved magnificently, and, as I told in my dispatches at the time, inflicted relatively colossal losses on the enemy. Once more in the recent fighting here they have done superbly.

It was in the advance beyond Steenbeek, when they were among the troops whose task was to cross some 500 yards of what is known as "Floating Swamp" to attack a strong fortified position with concrete defences on the farther side. Floating Swamp is the name for a quaking morass which gives no foothold anywhere, but heaves and oozes and bubbles to unknown depths as you wade through it.

In this case experience showed that the depth varied from the height of a man's waist to his chest or throat. When a man sank much above his waist he had to stay there to be pulled out, if fortune favoured, later. Those who were only knee-high or waist-high or less than up to the armpits went on. There was no time to stay then to pull a comrade out, for the barrage, like a pillar of smoke by day, moved on before, and they must follow as close as might be behind it.

Swept by Machine-Guns.
The swamp itself was a fearsome thing to breast, and it was swept by machine-gun fire, which, however, spluttered blindly through our barrage. Among the Newfoundlanders are men of the hardy fishing class, and especially trappers and lumbermen from the woods, accustomed to fight with Nature in all her moods, whom nothing in the way of floods or swamps or man can appal.

Behind our barrage they went doggedly on in the grey of the early morning, wading, stumbling, forcing a way as best they could. Those who were badly hit sank into the dreadful ooze. Some lightly wounded went on after their comrades or made their painful way back. But the rest went on, and, mud from head to toe, with only their rifles held above their heads still dry, panting and almost worn out, on the heels of the barrage they rushed the German fort. There was a short burst of wild fighting, and the fort was theirs after as fine an exhibition of mere physical endurance as men have often been called on to show. Then, when it was over, they turned to help their comrades who were still embedded in the slime, and, in bodies of three or four together, they pulled them out and got them safely to shore. It is largely owing to them that our line here is now well beyond the Broenbeek, up the first stages of the ascent on the other side of the dip to the little valley bottom.

While the Newfoundlanders breast the morass English troops on their right worked round the south side of the great swamp and stormed the fortified positions which the Germans had established there. They had drier going, but were even more exposed to the machine-gun fire which swept their advance, and they, too, behaved with the greatest dash and gallantry.

At the Crescent.

Go to the Crescent Picture Palace to-day and see the city's best mid-week show. The Essanay Company presents Marguerite Clayton and Richard C. Travers in "Lost Twenty-Four Hours," a masterly production in three reels. "The Trail of Graft" is a very thrilling adventure of "Grant, Police Reporter" series with the fearless George Larkin as Tom Grant. Rosemary Theby and Harry Myers are featured in a refined feature comedy entitled "Hubby's Chicken." The usual classy musical programme accompanies this big mid-week show.

DOG FISH PLENTIFUL.—People at Portugal Cove are getting plenty of dogfish and are using them on their gardens.

GUESTS OF MOTORISTS.

A number of ladies and gentlemen interested in the little children of the Church of England Orphanage took them for a spin in their motor cars yesterday afternoon. Leaving the institution the motor cars, eleven in all, proceeded around Quill Vidil Lake and then countrywards in the direction of Mount Pearl. A liberal supply of candies and fruit were on hand and the little people thoroughly enjoyed the trip. Those car owners who gave up their machines on such a pleasant afternoon for the benefit of the orphans are to be congratulated.
