A Terrible Disclosure;

What Fools Men Are!

CHAPTER IV.

He smiled sadly.
"I never see a girl about Lela's size but I am smitten with the wild idea that it may be she!" he murmured, and he flung his cigar away and went down toward the inn. Then he paused; there was nothing to be done there—it would be better to wait in the open air, in the pleasant moonlight than shut up in the little parlor. He turned back and sauntered around the church. He had traversed three sides, keeping to the path, when, as he turned the last corner, he came face to face with the figure he had seen and so suddenly lost. There was not much light, and the girl started a little and swerved aside at the unexpected appearance of a stranger. Lord Edgar raised his hat, and as he made way for her, murmured gently—
"I beg your pardon," expecting her to pass on.
But with a low exclamation and a gesture of surprise, almost fear, she stopped, and let fall a basket which she had held in her hand.
Lord Edgar stooped and picked it up, and looked up to offer it to her, when he saw above him the lovely face of his lost darling.
For a moment he knelt motionless, speechless, fearing that his trouble had overturned his reason, and that this was the vision of a disordered brain; and in that moment she drew the hood across her face, and taking the basket turned swiftly from him.
Her movement broke the spell that bound him. With a cry of joy and amazement he sprang toward her and caught both her arms, with the one word, full of love and entreaty, upon his lips—"Lela!"
Panting and trembling, she gazed at him, her lovely face white to the very lips, her eyes suffused with a glow of passionate devotion, and—yes, sorrow!
"Lela!" he cried, drawing her near to him. "Lela! Oh, my darling, do you not know me? Why do you look like this? Why do you not speak? What is the matter? What does it all mean? Lela, Lela! Speak to me!"
Her lips opened and quivered, and she made a faint, futile attempt to draw away from his grasp. He saw the eyes bent wistfully upon him slowly fill with tears, felt her tremble like a leaf in the wind, and his heart gave a great leap of sorrowful, impatient love.
"My darling," he murmured, soothingly, "I have frightened you! No, do not speak for a moment. There." He paused, and held her gently, firmly, for a space, and looked at her, all his honest, passionate love in his eyes.
"Now, Lela, my dear, dear love; speak to me! Tell me what it all means! Why you ran away from me? Come, have some pity on me. You owe me something in return for all the misery I have undergone. There!

And the Worst is Yet to Come—
"Lela!" he cried, drawing her near to him. "Lela! Oh, my darling, do you not know me? Why do you look like this? Why do you not speak? What is the matter? What does it all mean? Lela, Lela! Speak to me!"
Her lips opened and quivered, and she made a faint, futile attempt to draw away from his grasp. He saw the eyes bent wistfully upon him slowly fill with tears, felt her tremble like a leaf in the wind, and his heart gave a great leap of sorrowful, impatient love.
"My darling," he murmured, soothingly, "I have frightened you! No, do not speak for a moment. There." He paused, and held her gently, firmly, for a space, and looked at her, all his honest, passionate love in his eyes.
"Now, Lela, my dear, dear love; speak to me! Tell me what it all means! Why you ran away from me? Come, have some pity on me. You owe me something in return for all the misery I have undergone. There!

You are not frightened now?"
"No," she murmured, "not frightened, but sorry—ah, so sorry!" and her lips quivered.
His brow knitted.
"Sorry," he repeated, bewildered, but patient. "Sorry that I have found you, Lela?"
"Yes," she said, looking at him, and trying to drive the tender, wistful love from her eyes, in which it would shine and glow, try as she would.
"Yes, sorry, sorry!" she breathed, her hand pressed against her heart. "I have looked forward to this moment, dreaded it, for I knew that it must come. Oh, Edgar!"
His heart leaped as she breathed his name.
"Yes," he said, restraining the impulse to catch her to his heart, and another the beautiful face with kisses. "Yes, you were right in that. You could not have hidden from me much longer, Lela. Now tell me why you have hidden at all! See, I am trying to be patient and calm—if you knew how hard it is you would be proud of me! But don't keep me in suspense longer than you can help. Here, come into the light. Ah, my darling, how I have longed for this moment! What a cruel week you have caused me!" and his strong voice broke.
The tears ran slowly down her face, and she turned her head aside, lest he should read her weakness in her eyes; and she meant to be so strong, so staunch!
"Will you not go now—at once?" she said, in a low voice. "Do not be cruel to us both—Lord Edgar—"
"Stop!" he said, and his lips twitched. "If you don't want to send me mad outright, don't call me Lord Edgar. Remember, I know nothing of your reason for deserting me."
"Deserting! Ah, yes, yes!" she murmured.
"Yes, deserting," he said, firmly; "that is what it was, Lela. How you could have done it I don't know. I could not have treated you so, my poor darling!"
"Oh, don't!" she pleaded. "Have some pity on me. Do you think it—cost—me—nothing?"
He smothered the passionate exclamation that trembled on his lips, and controlled himself with saying, quickly:
"Why did you do it? Tell me, Lela, the truth, and all the truth."
And he drew her hands to his heart and held them there. She looked up at him, her beautiful eyes glowing solemnly with self-sacrifice.
"I left you, Edgar, because I knew that it was for your own good that I should do so."
A hot flush covered his face, but he kept a tight hand on the reins. He meant to learn the whole truth before he gave way to the passion which surged in his heart and brain.

"Because it was for my good! Not for yours?" He looked at her, and noticed how thin and pale—but still so lovely!—her face had grown. She seemed slihter than ever, so slight that he could have carried her across the stream with one arm now. "Not for yours?"
She shook her head, with a little scornful wonder in her eyes.
"For mine? Ah, no!"
"Good!" he said, as if he had made one point. "You left me, knowing that I loved you as I did, and do, without a word of explanation, of good-by even, for my good!" He laughed bitterly, impatiently. "For my good! Will you explain, Lela? You owe me a full explanation. I must be satisfied if I am to leave you, as you ask me, mustn't I?"
The voice was as gentle and tender as a woman's; it was as if he were addressing a child.
"Yes, for your good," she murmured, as if repeating a phrase she had well rehearsed. "Was I who loved you to drag you down to ruin?"
Light was beginning to dawn upon him.
"I see—you did not want to drag me down to ruin?"
"Ah, no!" she breathed, and her hand clasped his hand. "I did not know. When I let you love me, when I let you make me tell you that I loved you, I did not know. But I do know now."
"Know what?"
"That it would be your ruin to marry me—a mere nobody—you the future marquis. You would have grown ashamed of me, and—and ceased to love me; and I should have been a weight and a clog in your way through the world. And—and—" The tears streamed down her face. "Ah, Edgar, I saw it all when he pointed it out—I saw it all, and I loved you too well to bring you harm."
Lord Edgar's lips closed tightly—he too saw it all now; but he controlled himself with an effort.
She was silent, and her head drooped.
"You need not answer, Lela. I know. It was my father who told you this?"
She was still silent.
"—My affectionate and devoted father," he said, with the first touch of bitterness in his voice that had ever sounded in its connection with the marquis. "What else did he tell you, Lela?"
She shook her head sorrowfully.
"It does not matter," she murmured. "It was all true; the hard, bitter truth! I did not know—how should I!—that that day when you told me you loved me, and I knew that I loved you. I thought nothing else mattered. But now—"
"But now the marquis has opened your eyes," he said, calmly; "you see differently?"
"Yes, I see that my love would only have brought you sorrow and misery, and so—so I left the Abbey, Edgar, and saved you."
The sense of the cruel, wickedly cruel, wrong that had been done them both silenced the passionate outburst that trembled on his lips.
He was silent for a moment, then he raised her hand to his lips and kissed it. She tremblingly withdrew it, as if she had condoned a sin.
"Yes, you left me—without a word; you sacrificed yourself, Lela; and then? How did you come here?"
"Grandfather had a friend at the school on the hill there—he did not follow her glance, his eyes clung too hungrily to her face—"we came here thinking that he would help us, and he has done so. Grandfather teaches in the school. He—he is quite happy, and—her eyes filled again. "I must go now, Lord Edgar. You will let me go?"
He drew a long breath.
"We shall see!" But instead of releasing her arm he drew it through his own, and taking her with him, paced slowly up and down. What could he say, what could he do to move her?
Like most gentle women, Lela, when once her mind was made up, could be steadfast. The marquis, with his sardonic cleverness, had thrown such a glamour over her that it seemed to envelop her like a veil, to be a veritable wall between her and Edgar, a wall against which their hearts beat flutteringly on either side.
He looked down at her, at the lovely face, pale as a lily, with the tender lips half parted with the pain and excitement of the situation; he could feel her trembling on his arm. All sorts of wild ideas flew into his head.

Had Piles for Ten Years

And Tried Nearly Everything Except a Surgical Operation Without Obtaining Relief. How Complete Cure Was Effected.
There are reported here three cures of chronic cases of piles. In all three cases many treatments were tried before it was discovered that Dr. Chase's Ointment is about the only real cure for this distressing ailment.
Mrs. A. Oates, 23 Gilkinson street, Bradford, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for ever so long, and am particularly indebted to it for a cure from Piles. I had suffered from this annoying trouble for ten years, and tried nearly everything I heard of. After using Dr. Chase's Ointment a short while I was completely cured."
Mrs. Wm. Shantz, 156 Albert street, Kitchener, Ont., writes: "For several years I was troubled with bleeding piles. I tried different remedies for relief without success. I read in Dr. Chase's Ointment the benefits other people were receiving from Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I sent to your office for a sample box. I found it gave me such relief that I went to a drug store and purchased a full-sized box. I have used several boxes since, and have derived more benefit from its use than any remedy I have ever used."
Mrs. F. Cussons, Victoria street, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "About two years and a half ago I was suffering from Piles. I had tried many different remedies for this distressing trouble, but nothing helped me. Finally I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after using it found that I was completely cured and have not been bothered in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering as I did."
Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. There are no returns on Dr. Chase's Ointment as a treatment for Piles.

What if he caught her up and carried her bodily to the inn, and rode away with her? It would solve the difficulty in the easiest manner possible! But that could not be done, alas! Argue with her? She could beat him at argument, and give him points: her very love for him made her fearfully strong. She had become possessed of the idea that her love would ruin him, and how to disabuse her mind he knew not.
They walked up and down in the moonlight slowly, he with knitted brow and troubled spirit, she, womanlike, in a mingled ecstasy of pleasure and pain.
At last he stopped and spoke.
"Lela, listen to me. Look at me. I have thought over all you have said. Perhaps—his voice faltered at the approach of the falsehood—"you and my father are right; might get tired of you."
A little sigh broke from her lips, and he saw her wince as if he had struck her. His heart smote him, but he persisted. "I never saw it in that light before. It may be true. So we will part."
"Yes," she murmured brokenly, and her hand slipped from his arm; he was about to catch at it, but restrained himself. "I don't know what will become of me; perhaps I shall marry some one whom you and the marquis think more suitable; perhaps I shall go abroad, to Mexico, anywhere; it doesn't matter. I know for a certainty that, whether you would have ruined my life, as you call it, it is ruined for the present."
"Ah!" she breathed. "If we had never met!"
"Yes," he said, slowly. "But we did. And now you have convinced me we had better part, I suppose?"

From the Lower Deck.

Generous Recognition of Merit in the Navy.
Fifty naval warrant officers—four chief gunners, 41 gunners, two chief signal boatswains and three boatswains—have been specially selected by the Admiralty and promoted to the rank of Lieutenants. This may be taken as the first instalment towards full recognition of lower deck merit. The new Lieutenants are all between the ages of 35 and 42, and the commanding officers who have recommended them have been required to prove their confidence by agreeing to employ them as watch-keepers in Lieutenants in their own ships. Five D.S.C.'s are among the new Lieutenants, including Gunner Harry Morgan, who did fine work with the torpedo tubes of the Liberty in the first Heligoland fight, and was awarded a bar last year. The junior promoted goes over the heads of about 300 seniors, and in the ordinary course of routine would not have become a Lieutenant for 15 years or more. A committee presided over by Rear-Admiral E. Hyde Parker is now investigating the general condition of the warrant ranks, and it is expected that one result will be a considerable acceleration in the routine advancement to lieutenancies. Under present conditions, a senior man has to serve more than 20 years as a warrant officer before a commission comes.

Fashion Plates.

2441—This style is very nice for foulard, organdy, lawn, batiste, plain and figured voile, also for taffeta, satin and linen. The fronts are finished with a shaped plastron. The closing is at the side. The tunic may be omitted.
The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires 8 3/4 yards of 27-inch material. The skirt measures about 1 3/4 yard at the foot.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PRETTY MODEL WITH OR WITHOUT BOLERO.

2424—This is a good model for combinations of material. Gingham and organdy, voile and lawn, foulard and crepe could be used. The style is nice also for linen, percale, dimity and other lingerie fabrics. The bolero may be finished separately.
The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 3 yards of 36-inch material for the dress, and 3/4 yard for the bolero.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Enemy Campaigns Showing Up Weak Resolution Opposed

BRITISH OFFICIAL.
LONDON, April 21.
The text of the statement from the British headquarters this evening says: There was local fighting to our advantage this morning in the neighborhood of Robecq, where the enemy troops were successfully ejected from some of their advanced positions. The hostile artillery has shown considerable activity in this part. Comparatively quiet on the other parts of the British front.

THE GERMAN PLANS.
LONDON, April 21.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Telegraphing from British headquarters in France last evening, Reuter's correspondent says: Captured maps show that when the enemy broke off his attack south of Arras to develop an unexpected success at Arras, he was calculated on breaking through, but he has been held now for almost a week. He will probably assault chosen positions with masses of men and guns. The evidence is that the chain of hillocks running from Mount Kemmel will be successfully attacked. The enemy may revert to his original plan of separating the Anglo-French armies, but it is no longer possible for him to reach the Channel ports. Prisoners admit the task set them when the offensive was launched has been much more bitter than they imagined. The fighting of the past week has created numerous casualties on both sides, and which will oppose the enemy's advance. The new line of a week ago which is now variegated with blue French uniforms, will much less likely yield to any sudden stupendous thrust.

BRITISH OFFICIAL. LONDON, April 21. The text of the statement from British headquarters this evening says: There was local fighting in the neighborhood of Rebecq, where the enemy troops were successfully ejected from some of their advanced positions. The British artillery has shown considerable activity in this part. Comparatively quiet on the other parts of the British front.

energy was waiting to be released today at numerous points along the battle zone, but up to noon little of it was concentrated on the surface. The slowing down of hostilities since the Germans suffered such a grievous defeat Thursday has represented one of those lulls which inevitably must come in any battle. There were plenty of signs, however, that hostilities might be resumed on a big scale at any moment. In the meantime the Allies with their reinforcements are solidifying lines and waiting complacently for the Germans' next move. The defenders are extremely satisfied with the outcome of the operations in the past few days. Not only have they held their lines steadily in the face of furious attacks, but they have inflicted most serious losses on the enemy. It was a bit of a sentimental shock to pull back from the Paschen daele system over which the British standard was carried in such invincible fashion last summer, but the wisdom of the move shows today.

ALL ROADS BARRED. PARIS, April 21. The great German offensive on the western front has now been going on for a full month, and the French press is unanimous in its optimistic attitude. The Temps says: "The formidable assaults which for a month past Hindenburg has thrown against the British Army, have not succeeded in breaking our Allies' resistance. They have given ground, but 600,000 soldiers always finds confronting them lines which may have been bent, but have not been broken. After months' operations the one enemy, with the battlefields everywhere strewn with bodies of his soldiers, is compelled to abandon the attacks." The intrenchment of the British struggle is entering its second month. Calm reigns. The third attack is being prepared, perhaps as tremendous as the previous two, but our optimism is reasoned and justified. They shall not pass." Lieut.-Col. Roussell, in the "Liberte" says: "Where will the enemy strike now? All the roads leading to the objectives desired are barred. The essential thing is not to waste precious reserves which may turn the tide at any moment."

ROYAL APPRECIATION. LONDON, April 21. The Minister of Munitions has received the King's command to convey to the officials of the Ministry of Munitions and to the munitions workers throughout the country, both men and women. His Majesty's high approval of the exertions made during this critical time and his satisfaction at the remarkable results achieved. The King has learned from the military authorities that practically all the losses and expenditure during the battle have already been made good, without any undue depletion of the normal reserve, out of resources which have been held in readiness and by the additional effort which has been made. There are now actually more serviceable guns, machine guns and aeroplanes with the British armies in the field than there were on the eve of the German attacks. Other supplies of all kinds are forthcoming in abundance.

THE IRISH TROUBLE. DUBLIN, April 20. (By the Associated Press.) Fifty-five members of the Irish Party met here today with John Dillon presiding, and unanimously passed a resolution, "That in the present crisis we are of the opinion that the highest and most immediate duty of the members of this party is to remain in Ireland and actively co-operate with their constituents in opposing the compulsory military service in Ireland. The enforcements of compulsory military service on a nation without its assent constitutes one of the most brutal acts of tyranny and oppression of which any Government can be guilty. The present proposal of the Lloyd George Government to enforce conscription in Ireland is an outrage and a gross violation of the national rights of Ireland."

FRENCH RECOVER GROUND. PARIS, April 20. Fighting between Franco-American troops and German forces in the vicinity of Secheprey, northwest of Toul, where the Germans yesterday launched a strong attack against the French and American positions, continued throughout the night. The war office statement issued this afternoon says the French recovered nearly all the ground overrun by the Germans. The American troops in this sector repulsed the Teutonic assaults on their line. EXEMPTIONS CANCELLED. LONDON, April 21. Following the passage of the Man-Power Bill, a Royal Proclamation was issued last night cancelling the exemptions granted by tribunals and Government Departments to men from nineteen to twenty three years of age. There are certain exceptions, the chief ones being doctors and men holding certificates granted by colliery recruiting corps. Major General Fredk. Barton Maurice, chief director of military operations in the War Office, has been promoted in accordance with arrangements made some time ago to duty in the field. He will probably be assigned to work in relation to the united command on the British and French armies. His post at the War Office will be taken by General Delmas Badcliffe, formerly Chief Staff officer of the Canadian Army and Chief of the British military mission at the Italian headquarters. Radcliffe will take over the weekly interview with American newspapermen which had been a part of General Maurice's duties.

BRITISH CASUALTIES. LONDON, April 20. British casualties reported during the week ending to-day are 12,370, divided as follows: Killed or died of wounds, officers 677, men 1638; wounded or missing, officers 2173, men 7521. The casualties reported for this week are approximately half as large again as those reported in the preceding week. Although heavy fighting has been in progress a month, however, the losses have not begun to approach in size those of last year in the months of active operations when the British were on the offensive. There is no means of determining how far the casualties now being reported represent losses in the fighting since the German offensive was started in the several weeks. Proceeding last week, however, when 8129 names were listed the totals had been going no higher than between 3,000 and 4,000.

THE SPEAKER WILL VOTE. CAPE TOWN, S. A., April 21. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) A joint sitting of the Assembly and Senate, the first under the constitution, was held Wednesday last in order to consider the bill amending the franchise Act to enable the overseas members of the South African contingent to record their vote outside the union. The morning session of the sitting was occupied with a discussion of the special rules and procedure. General Hertzog, invoking the Constitution, contested the proposal of the Speaker to have a deliberate vote on the third reading. The speaker declared that whatever the decision of the House was he intended to exercise his vote under the Constitution. General Hertzog's amendment to deprive the Speaker of his deliberative vote is important owing to the difficulty of raising the necessary two-thirds majority because of absentees overseas.

THE EFFECT ON STRIKES. LONDON, April 21. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) Sir George Cave, the Home Secretary, speaking at Kingston on the Thames, yesterday, said that since the onset of the war, workers had joined up in greater numbers than ever, and the effect of strikes, of which we used to hear so much and so often, is now that of the smallest. The total lost time among war workers in strikes was really in twelve months about 25 per centum of the total.

NAVAL SCRAP. LONDON, April 21. An Admiralty announcement states that British light forces operating in Heligoland Bight on Saturday obtained victory over the normal German force which retired behind the minefields. A few shots were exchanged at an extreme range. One enemy destroyer was observed to be hit. All our ships returned without casualties.

HAIK COMPLIMENTS TROOPS. LONDON, April 20. Field Marshal Haig British Commander-in-Chief has sent his congratulations to General Holland and all the ranks of the first corps on "The gallant and successful way in which all the enemy's attacks were repulsed yesterday." The message apparently refers to Thursday's fighting in which the British on the southern side of the Lys battlefield held firm against desperate all day attacks by the Germans on the Givency-St. Venant.

THE IRISH MUDDLE. LONDON, April 20. The grave and menacing situation created by the determination of the Nationalist in Ireland united as seldom before to resist conscription has aroused deep interest throughout Great Britain. Particular emphasis is laid on the decision of the R. C. Bishops to throw in their lot with the Sinn Feiners, who have openly proclaimed Germany as their ally. The Bishops have counselled against violence, but this Dublin correspondent points out, might easily be turned into active resistance by a few hot heads when the time comes to conscript the young men of the country. The pledge which is to be administered on Sunday to what one authority estimates at nine-tenths of the entire Catholic population of the country binds them to resist conscription by the most effective means at their disposal. This gives wide latitude and pleases the advocates of both

REINFORCEMENTS FOR VLADIVOSTOK. LONDON, April 20. Owing to increased anti-Japanese demonstrations at Vladivostok it has been necessary to arrange for reinforcements. LAKE MOOR TORPEDOED. WASHINGTON, April 20. The U. S. ship Lake Moor was sunk by submarine on the night of April 21, in European waters. Of the 10 officers and 52 men on board, 5 officers and 12 men have been landed at an English port. HUNS BADLY WHIPPED THURSDAY LAST. LONDON, April 21. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) Telegraphing from British headquarters in France this evening Reuter's correspondent says: Apparently the enemy has suffered a more severe and greater repulse on Thursday between Givency and the Forest of Nieppe than was supposed, for his hard pressing tactics have so far not been resumed. The night and this morning passed quietly. Doubtless the enemy may make another thrust for possession of the hill system between Kemmel and Mont des Cats, but tomorrow we will be even better prepared to receive him than to-day. No leader of a democratic army dare throw away man power as Von Ludendorff is doing. No General of any nation dare set a million and a half lives as the price for the Channel ports. At the present rate of casualties to progress it is unquestionable whether twice a million and a half will achieve the result. After quoting striking figures gathered from officers' prisoners to support the statements of heavy enemy losses, the correspondent says that enemy have been eating fallen horses along the Bapaume Road and have expressed much dissatisfaction on discovering that the reports that the British troops were starting were untrue, which fact was borne out by the capture of well stocked canteens during the recent advance. French troops and artillery have been in action shoulder to shoulder with our men and it is impossible to overrate the moral effect upon the latter who have unbounded confidence in the heroism and fighting quality of our ally. The liaison between the Anglo-French armies is working with the utmost harmony and high efficiency. President Poincare, visiting the Flanders area this morning, reviewed the British battalions and expressed unfeigned satisfaction with all, and saw our improved position. Last night east of Rieux di Vinage we took some

WHOSE IS THE FAULT?

The expected has come and Newfoundland is faced with the inevitable. The Regiment has been in the recent big battle, as this paper has maintained all along. But now is not the hour for recrimination. The responsibility for neglect will be placed on the right shoulders later. Our present duty is to hasten the much needed reinforcements. The time for delay and indifference has passed. The word is "Get busy." The Regiment needs men. The accompanying imperative demand for soldiers to fill the gaps made in the recent fighting, which has been sent the Minister of Militia, and which has been handed by him for publication, tells the whole story. More men are needed at once. There are not any reserves to meet the demand. What are you going to do about it? Your pals are "over there" calling, praying for you to come. Will you not respond? Don't wait to find out who is to blame for the present unhappy state of affairs. That will be done for you, and severe indeed will be the penalties meted out to the blunders. Following is the dispatch:—

From Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion: "Have received urgent appeal for strong reinforcement of 1st Battalion to replace casualties in recent heavy fighting. Unable to meet demand. Absolutely imperative to maintain immediate and continued drafts of recruits."

The Duty of the Hour.

Any attempt made by the Government to prolong its life, by act of Parliament at the session of the Legislature, opening to-morrow, must be fought to the bitter end, and a universal protest, if necessary, carried to the foot of the imperial throne. If the exigencies of the war demanded this no objection would, possibly, be raised and the country would suffer in silence rather than do anything to embarrass the nation in the present struggle for humanity's rights. But there is no such exigency, and nothing that the Government or its apologists can say can create one. We shall be told, with the usual shouting and claptrap oratory, as well as writings, that the times demand an extension and that the work begun (save the mark) by the Government must be continued and finalised by them. All manner of excuses will be put forward to lull the country, but we read the signs of the times wrongly if any one of them will now serve. We go a little further to-day when we declare that the proposed extension of term is to be for the duration of the war. This has been freely discussed, and whether correct or not, shows that the minds of men are turned towards such thoughts, and therefore should occasion no surprise if this intention is put in motion. The country has reached the stage when it is surprised at nothing the Government might do. We shall be mistaken, however, if this move does not arouse the deepest hostility. We hear of pacific having been made and agreements entered into in connection with this new move. Newfoundland has had enough of these. The pact which produced the present National (?) Administration; the agreement by which Sir Edward Morris received a peerage; the re-shuffle of offices brought about the usurpation of the functions of Government by the greatest crowd of incapables that ever grasped power are all too fresh in the public mind for any attempt to be made to hang on to the spoils, without protest. The whole story of these disclosures has yet to be told. When the truth is divulged some astonishing revelations will be made public. The time for these disclosures is, however, not yet. The duty of the hour is to watch closely every move that the Government will make aimed at the overthrow of the present administration, and every scheme which points toward the carrying through of the rumored legislation. Every man who wishes to see his country rise from the slough of political despond into which she has been cast, must constitute himself a watchman. A newspaper cannot do anything, but whatever this paper, backed by popular sentiment, can do, it will perform in order to prevent anything approaching the extension of the present Government's term from being accomplished.

When the House meets to-morrow, but twenty-three members out of thirty-six will take their seats. Four districts are absolutely unrepresented and four others partially so. The four unrepresented are Carleton Place, Fortune Bay, Burgeo and St. Barbe. The four with some representation being Bonaville (2), Placentia (1), St. John's East (1), St. John's West (1), while at the moment Twillingate will have but two members and Bay de Verde one. It might be interesting to give the names of the members who are incapacitated from taking their seats and representing their districts, from the causes other than death. They are: R. Moulton (Burgeo), A. B. Morine (Bonaville), W. M. Clapp (St. Barbe), left the country; J. R. Goodison (Carleton Place), J. Morris, R. J. Devereaux (Placentia), C. H. Emerson (Fortune Bay), a c e p t e d offices and Lord Morris (unrepresented), St. John's West, Hon. James M. Keat (elected to bench), St. John's East, Hon. J. A. Clift (Twillingate) and Hon. A. E. Hickman (Bay de Verde) at present out of the country. Dead: Messrs. J. Dwyer (St. John's East) and M. J. Kennedy (St. John's West). Thirteen all told. It is an unrepresentative Assembly and we request that His Excellency the Governor take cognizance of these facts. Why are four districts left unrepresented absolutely? The answer is because the Government fears to open them up in bye-elections. So far as the District of Burgeo & LaPoile is concerned, it has been practically unrepresented since 1913, though it is true that the sitting member has attended the sessions of the House, but so far as the needs of his district are concerned and looked after, he might as well have remained at Halifax. This then is the state of affairs which exist at present. Perhaps the Governor does not know or is not aware of it, and when he does, it is open to believe that he will not stand for any attempt on the part of his advisers to lengthen their term of office. In the meantime the people will have to make their protest in the usual way. Don't wait for St. John's to give you a lead, voters in the outports. Take the initiative yourselves and by mass meetings and other means protest strongly against the outrage which is about to be done. As we stated at the outset, we must be prepared to carry our petition to the foot of the Imperial Throne if necessary, for the safeguarding of our Constitutional rights.

Intercessory Services

GOWER STREET.
The spacious auditorium of Gower Street Church was quite full last night. Rev. Mr. Hemmon presided. After alternate reading of the 46th Psalm and singing of "O God of Bethel by whose hand, Thy people still are led," a very able address was given by Rev. W. Henry Thomas, of the Congregational Church, and prayers were offered by Revs. Dr. Curtis, T. B. Darby, M.A., and Arthur Mews, Esq., C.M.G. Another hymn—"For Those at War"—was sung and Rev. Dr. Bond pronounced the Benediction.

WESLEY.

At Wesley Church also there was very large congregation, and Rev. H. Royle delivered an excellent sermon.

ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. Mr. Dickie, preaching at St. Andrew's Church last night from the words, "Save yourselves from this untoward generation," made a strong plea that something should be done to "Save the Boys." He stated that 119 lads had been before the police court during the past two years, chiefly for petty larceny, and the cases did not show that they stole for need, such things as clothing or boots, but cigarettes, tobacco and chocolates, or money (perhaps to attend the picture shows). Thus the city is rearing and annual crop of fifty delinquent lads who will develop into criminals. He thought a remedy would be, enforced school attendance, and an industrial school, and some place of correction other than the Penitentiary.

St. Andrew's Congregation.

Unanimously Support Selective Conscription.
At a joint meeting of the Kirk Session and Board of Management of St. Andrew's congregation, it was unanimously agreed to approve the Resolution re Selective Conscription, passed by the General Assembly, representing all the Presbyterian congregations of British North America, at its meeting in June, 1917.

The Resolution is as follows:—
"The Assembly desires to express its approval of every legitimate effort to arouse the youth of our country to a consciousness of duty and to enroll those who are available as soldiers in a great crusade for the world's freedom."
"The Assembly endorses the policy of Selective Conscription and expresses the hope, that in this crucial time, when united services and sacrifice are so urgently demanded from us, all minor difficulties be put aside in a common enthusiasm to win the war."

The Right Spirit.

X906 Samuel Osborne, of Greenspond, recently honorably discharged from the Royal Naval Reserve, and awarded the special medal for long service, offered at Headquarters yesterday for enlistment with the Regiment. He states he could not stand back when the boys "Over There" were so appealingly asking for reinforcements to replenish their ranks. Surely, after 15 years' service to the Empire, one would imagine that "he had fully done his bit" but this is not the spirit of the Osbornes, and he had to answer the URGENT CALL! If there were more men of his calibre, the Royal Newfoundland Regiment would not to-day be fighting short-handed, endeavouring to stem the onward rush of the German hordes.

At the Casino.

FROM BELGIUM TO MONCHY.
Lieut. Leo Murphy will lecture at the Casino Theatre to-night, his subject being: "From Belgium to Monchy." Those who attend the lecture to-night will hear much to be proud of about our Royal Newfoundland Regiment. Many real incidents will be recorded by Lieut. Murphy.
Prof. Hutton will attend to the musical programme, which will include numbers by Misses Keegan and Brown, Capt. Campbell, M. T. H. O'Neil and the C. C. Band under Capt. A. Bulley. There will, no doubt, be a very large attendance.

NEWSPAPER FOR N. I. W. A.
The executive of the N. I. W. A. are arranging for the publication of a newspaper to be known as "The Industrial Worker." It will be issued twice monthly and will be the official organ of the Association.

TRAIN MOVEMENTS.—Yesterday's outgoing express left Glenwood at 8.35 a.m. to-day. The incoming mail and freight is due early to-morrow morning.

IN MEMORIAM.

On St. George's Day, 1915, at Ypres, John R. W. Hollands, (the first Newfoundland to make the supreme sacrifice on land)—R.I.P.

An Appeal

I am addressing this Appeal to all the people of Newfoundland, but especially to those of the Outports.

Your Government have decided to make another special attempt to obtain further recruits for the duties forced upon us by the War. I am anxious to explain to you in simple and strong words why those duties are yours.

In your sea-girt home you have, I know, your own dangers and anxieties to face. As I write this your mind is still full of the appalling disaster to the Florida. But War you do not realise; you are beyond the sound of the guns which, in the South E. at corner of England, I have heard day after day breaking in upon the beauty and calmness of the summer air.

That awe-inspiring rumble of the guns which I ask you to imagine—that lurid light on the horizon which I ask you to picture are the signs of a terrible struggle for Right—a mighty effort to save from ruin, not only France, but every bit of free soil in the world, including this island of which you are so proud. The awful struggle seems to be approaching its climax now and your close kinsmen are in the middle of it.

Some may ask, What is the danger? and it is my purpose to endeavour to make it clear to you.

By some permission of Divine Providence, which we do not understand, a nation of criminals is now attacking all that is just and true in the whole world. Germany has set herself deliberately to violate every law of Right and every principle of Humanity.

Never before in History has a War been planned like this. Hitherto all wars have had some sort of pretext of right or impulse of passion. It has been reserved to the German military party to plot willfully and wantonly a great crime against the peace of mankind.

And the hypocrisy with which Germany supports the crime makes it still more abominable. As Judas treated the Christ, Germany is treating Civilization. Under appeals to God, Germany masks the utmost malignities of the devil. The German nation to-day knows no Law except that of the pagan, the liar, the ravisher, the murderer. They are a curse let loose on the Earth. And the task demanded of all of us is to fight and conquer this curse just as in our moral life we are bound to fight and conquer Sin. The Cause is a far broader and holier Cause than that which impelled the Crusaders against the Saracens.

We may thank God that the greater nations of the World have realised the justice of the Cause; and I believe that every man in Newfoundland will one day be thankful that he was at least asked to face this question—"Is it not my Higher duty to go out and save humanity from destruction?"

Remember that your wives, your children, your cottages, your boats, are in positive danger if the German breaks through France. As he is treating the foolish Russians, so he will treat every nation whom he touches—America, Canada, Newfoundland, are to him mere objectives for his greedy brutality. He is entirely evil, he has no sense of right and no feelings of Mercy.

This mass of incarnate selfishness is held back by the strong arm of the Allies in France. Will any man of British race decline to do all he can to defeat and crush it?

At this moment the need is specially great, for the Germans are now desperate. They begin to realise the truth of that dread decree "He that takes the sword, shall perish with the sword". At no horror will they hesitate if they can but escape the punishment that is their due.

Now on every man and woman among us lies the duty to bear a hand in administering that punishment a duty not only to ourselves but to posterity. If age or health prevent some of us from going they do not set to mankind and making the greatest example ever set to mankind and making the sacrifice of that which is dearest to our hearts.

You young men I ask to listen carefully to the appeals which will once more be made to you in the next few weeks. Believe me that the voluntary act of a man, impelled by the high sense of duty, is far nobler than the mere obedience to the provisions of a public enactment.

One special word I say to women. Try to realise the sufferings of women and children wherever the Germans come: think of the little children starved in Belgium and slaughtered in cold blood in Armenia. Let your men folk stand out and protect you, for in helping to defeat the Germans they are protecting the honour and safety of all their dear ones at home.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS.
The German high command having been unsuccessful in piercing the British front in Flanders, and separating the British and French armies, they have turned their attention to the American and French, northwest of Toul, where they also seemingly failed early to bring its plan to fruition. Although the Germans attacked in great numbers, with greatly superior numbers of machine guns, the Americans and French held all their positions, and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. The British were made in the initial attack, and have been entirely retrained, and Sunday night saw the British and French lines restored. The latest Berlin official asserts that the drive, 183 American prisoners were captured, 25 machine guns were captured. ## ATTEMPT TO PIERCE BRITISH LINES FAILED

Attempt on Franco-American
Positions Repulsed

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS.

The German high command having been unsuccessful in piercing the front in Flanders, and separating the British and French armies, a stroke against the American and French lines was attempted. The attempt was also seemingly failed, but it is believed that the Germans are trying to bring their plans to fruition. With greatly superior numbers, the Americans and French were able to hold their positions, and inflicted a tremendous payment for it in German killed and wounded. Although the enemy was able to reach the shell town villages of Seicheprey, the Americans rallied and in bloody hand to hand fighting reversed the situation and regained the town. Likewise all the terrain which the French in this region were forced to give up, temporarily, has now been retaken. The German official report has no confirmation of this report, or of the added claims that the Americans sustained heavy casualties. It seems evident, however, that the fight was bitter and that it was the ambition of the better trained Germans to crush the Americans. Everything the enemy had in stock, was brought into play in the fighting, which lasted from Saturday well into Sunday. Shells of all calibres, including gas missiles, were used profusely and gave ground by inches, and then only when they had exacted a tremendous payment for it in German killed and wounded. Although the enemy was able to reach the shell town villages of Seicheprey, the Americans rallied and in bloody hand to hand fighting reversed the situation and regained the town. Likewise all the terrain which the French in this region were forced to give up, temporarily, has now been retaken. The German official report has no confirmation of this report, says that the attack was repulsed and the Germans lost what they gained. The report says, the Germans, after the destruction of the enemy works, returned to their lines of departure. Just what the Germans are planning for the future, on the long line northward from LaBasse to Ypres, where they have met during the past week with a stone wall of resistance, has not yet become apparent. Nowhere have they thrown down the gauntlet, and offered further battle against the staunch line that is facing them; they have, however, in many sectors carried out violent bombardments, but in those they have been answered shot for shot. The only fighting in which men of either side left their trenches, was near Robecq, northwest of LaBasse, where Field Marshal Haig's men threw out the enemy from several advanced positions. The losses the Germans have sustained in the new offensive daily, are becoming more apparent. In addition to the reports of the numerous dead which strew the battlefields, advices from Berlin, through Holland sources, are to the effect that hospitals, monasteries, convents and schools in Belgium are filled to overflowing with wounded, and that even private homes are being requisitioned for use as hospitals. Cattle cars, in which hay is placed for bedding, are being used to transport maimed men from the front. That a sea battle is in prospect at an early date, seems probable as following up their recent voyage in the Cattegat, where they destroyed German trawlers, British naval forces have penetrated into Heligoland, and have offered fight to the German warships which retired behind the mine fields. The British opened fire on the enemy at long range and one of the enemy's destroyers was hit. British and French troops have landed on the Kola Peninsula, projecting into the Arctic Ocean, and are co-operating with the Bolshevik troops to protect the Murmansk Coast against the Finnish White Guards. This operation probably has in view the safe-guarding of Archangel, Russia's principal port on the Arctic.

CALIFORNIA SHOCKED.

LOS ANGELES, To-day.—A severe earthquake, of approximately 20 seconds duration, shook the entire southern portion of California at 3.30 p.m. to-day. Dozens of plate glass windows in Los Angeles stores were broken, and many women were injured in a panic in a theatre. The damage was quite extensive. One fatality was reported—a man trampled to death in the rush of a crowd on the Municipal pier, at Santa Monica.

PUTTING IT OVER THE GERMANS

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, (Via London. By W. W. Wilson, special correspondent of the Canadian Press.)—During the past twelve hours, the Canadians have carried out the biggest combined projector gas and shell bombardments in the history of the west front. From early last night, till early this morning, our heavies and howitzers rained shells upon the hostile battle positions and used Lethal gas, Lachrymatory gas and high explosives, while at 2 o'clock a.m. to-day, 1,200 drums of lethal gas were hurled against the enemy trenches and support areas. In an intensive concentrated bombardment of the Lens area, immediately north of Lens, bombardment followed bombardment at great and less intervals, in a scientific, carefully thorough programme of destruction, to silence the enemy guns and kill the gun crews, or make the operations of their batteries impossible. The success of the bombardment was early seen in the lessening of the enemy fire, while some estimate of the damage caused may be seen from a similar bombardment on April 8th, when 22 of 32 of the enemy batteries, were put out of action and have not since fired a shot.

HOLLAND HAS TO MAKE HER CHOICE.

LONDON, To-day.—According to the Telegraph's Rotterdam Correspondent, a plot is being hatched in Berlin, deliberately designed to compel Holland to participate in the war. Holland, he says, may be faced in the course of the next few weeks, perhaps days, with the most serious peril she has encountered since the outbreak of hostilities. The facts have not yet been made public, and cannot be stated, but the correspondent has reason to believe that the German Government has already made, or is about to make, demands which if pressed, would force the Netherlands to enter the war on one side or the other.

AT IT AGAIN.

PARIS, To-day.—The long range bombardment of Paris was resumed to-day.

WHY NOT OTHERS?

QUEBEC, To-day.—Lieut. Paul Gouin, son of Sir Lomir Gouin, is in charge of Quebec detachments of recruits for the Royal Canadian Tank Corps, and it is expected they will leave for overseas very shortly. Herre Bellefleur, aged 17, and Andrew Bellefleur, 19, sons of L. C. Bellefleur, advocate of this city, enlisted with this corps last week. This patriotic family of French Canadians now has three members on the service, an elder brother being "over there" with the Royal Flying Corps for some time.

A QUIET SUNDAY.

LONDON, To-day.—The British troops near Robecq, northwest of Bethune, to-day drove out the Germans from some of their advanced positions, according to Field Marshal Haig's statement, issued by the war office. Aside from artillery engagements, there was little other activity along the front on Sunday.

BERLIN VERSUS GENEVA.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.—A fire on April 18th at Friedrichshaven, involved an old Zeppelin hangar, and was quickly subdued, according to an official statement issued in Berlin. The damage was slight, and work in the Zeppelin yards was not hampered. A despatch from Geneva, on April 18th, reported that enormous loss was caused by a fire on the preceding Saturday in the Zeppelin works at Hanzel near Friedrichshaven. The plant was destroyed, and vast quantities of raw material were burned. Two large Zeppelins and forty airplanes were also lost. The number of victims was said to be considerable.

PRISONERS TO BE PUT IN.

MONTREAL, To-day.—Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, has intimated that his department will extend the employment of prisoners on land, according to an announcement made by Robert Bickerdike, ex-M.P., at a meeting of the National Criminal Reform Association, of which Mr. Bickerdike is President.

SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS.

PARIS, To-day.—Analysis of the German long range gun bombardment of Paris, shows that shells have fallen on seventeen days since March 23rd, and that with the figures for two days missing, 113 persons were killed and 230 injured. Paris was shelled by nine German batteries, from January 5th to January 27th, during which period 105 Parisians were killed and 369 injured.

IN CONTRADICTION TO OTHERS.

LONDON, To-day.—The Bishop of London yesterday publicly announced himself as a scripturist, and said that calling up notifications would be sent to all the clergy in the London District under the new Act; the principle to be observed being that one Priest should be left for each parish. He appealed to the Church to rally to the national cause, which regard to the exemption favoured the clergy, and added that he believed other Bishops would adopt the same line.

BETTER WEATHER FOR AIRMEN.

LONDON, To-day.—The British official communication dealing with aviation last night, said: The weather improved Saturday but thick clouds prevented flying at high altitudes. Twelve tons of bombs were dropped during the day on various targets, including men in Armentieres, and the Therout railroad junction. During the last few days, owing to better weather, there has been more air fighting. Six hostile machines were downed and three others disabled. Three of our machines are missing. Our night flying squadrons bombed Basmeux and enemy billets and the roads leading to the front. Hostile railway junctions were also attacked at Chauines, where a large fire was caused. At Juneville, twenty miles northeast of Rheims, and at Bethenville, all our machines returned.

AN ADVANCE ON BOTH FRONTS.

LONDON, To-day.—The British advanced their lines slightly last night in local operations on both of the principal battle fronts, the War Office announces.

A CONTRAST.

LONDON, To-day.—Throughout Ireland yesterday, the Covenant to resist the imposition of conscription by all possible means has been administered by priests and subscribed to in a quiet unobtrusive manner by hundreds of thousands of people. From every Catholic pulpit conscription was the only subject of discourse, and the Bishop's action and that of the political leaders was explained.

DEMAND A GOVERNMENT.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.—According to a telegram from Budapest, a half hour demonstration strike took place there Saturday. All the factories stopped, tramways ceased service, and workmen signed a protest demanding the appointment of a Cabinet, which would carry out the demand for secret suffrages.

REMOVING TEMPTATION.

LONDON, To-day.—The military authorities have taken over control of the principal Irish railways, the post offices and the Telephone Exchange, according to the correspondent at Cork of the Daily Chronicle. It is added that the police on Saturday removed all rans

TWO MAILS DUE.—Two foreign mails, one by rail and the other direct, are due to arrive in the city early tomorrow morning.

OFF RECRUITING.—Lieut. Watson, Sergts. Innis and McKinley left for Grand Falls by yesterday's express. These returned heroes will hold recruiting meetings in the interior towns and the Telegram wishes them every success in their efforts to secure men to fill the "gaps" in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

CLYDE'S PASSENGERS.—The following first class passengers arrived at Placentia by the S.S. Clyde yesterday:—C. Brace, T. LeFevre, Pte. May, W. Wexer, J. Miller, P. L. Collins, P. J. Alyward, W. Hilliard, W. Penwell, J. Cohen, W. Webb, W. Moulton, Mrs. J. White, Ensign Rose, S.A., Miss N. Burnham, Miss L. Beck, Miss M. Molloy, and six second class.

FILLED TO OVERFLOWING.—AMSTERDAM, April 21.—The streams of wounded Germans from France and Flanders, says the frontier correspondent of the Telegraph, continue so great that all hospitals, monasteries, convents and schools, not only in Brussels, but in many towns south of the Belgian capital, are filled to overflowing. The Germans have requisitioned private houses for hospitals. Forty ambulance trains entered the North Station at Brussels daily last week. Many of them were made up of cattle trucks in which were litters of straw for the wounded men.

OPORTO PRICES.—A message to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries Department this morning from the Consul at Oporto, states: Large 68 to 70 shillings; Small 60 to 65. Poor demand.

Confirmation at St. Mary's.

His Lordship Bishop White held a confirmation service at St. Mary's Church, South Side, yesterday afternoon when 87 candidates, of whom 47 were girls and 40 were boys, received the laying on of hands. A large congregation was present and witnessed a most impressive ceremony. At Evensong the Lord Bishop again officiated and delivered an eloquent and highly appropriate sermon.

Reids Boats.

The Clyde arrived at Placentia at 1.30 p.m. yesterday and left for St. John's at 2.30 o'clock the same afternoon. The Ethie arrived at Port aux Basques at 9.35 p.m. yesterday. The Home not reported since leaving Burin on the 20th, going west.

Here and There.

WEATHER REPORT.—The weather across country is light S.W. wind, temperature 20 to 35 above.

PERSONAL.—His Lordship Bishop Power, accompanied by Rev. Father Callan, left for St. George's by yesterday's express.

REV. DR. JONES LEAVES.—Rev. Dr. Jones, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, left by yesterday's express for Boston, to see his son Harry, who is dangerously ill. A message to that effect was received by Dr. Jones on Friday evening.

Why She Forgot.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

The shampoo lady is actually a very cheerful and optimistic person whose philosophies are as much appreciated as her shampoo. But she arrived at our house last time in a distinctly ruffled state of mind.

"People," said the shampoo lady when urged to explain what had banished her customary atmosphere of good cheer, "make me cross sometimes."

"They expect a person to be all wrapped up in their affairs and their interests, and then if a person forgets something else, they laugh at her or blame her. And yet, very likely, the reason she forgets, is that she is thinking so hard about them."

She Gave Up Her Errands.

She paused to shake out my hair and take out her paraphernalia for a "treatment," and went on, evidently somewhat calmed by the familiar routine. "Now, a customer of mine called me up this morning and wanted to know if I could give her her treatment to-day instead of to-morrow. I looked at my book and I found I had two treatments and, besides, that I had planned to do a little shopping for myself when I came to town. I knew it would mean giving up my own errands and hurrying, and nothing tires me more than hurrying. But she said it would be a great accommodation, and I said I'd try. So I rushed over there and I gave her the treatment. And then I had to rush to get to the next place."

Just Because She Was Hurrying.

"And when I was packing my bag, I didn't get one of my tonics in, just because I was hurrying so. Well, when I called her up to ask if I had left it, she made a great joke out of it—said it was just like me. I know it's just like me, but it's because I'm always hurrying to get some place to accommodate somebody, or because I'm being interested in things people are telling me. And I say it isn't fair to laugh at me."

The shampoo lady has my full sympathy.

For it is just another example of "defauts des qualites."

They Take The Good For Granted.

Just another example of the way people will take a good quality for granted, and laugh at, or complain of, the defect that is the almost inevitable complement of that quality. And I hold, with her, that it isn't fair. To fight these complementary defects in oneself, and to learn from the discouragements of that fight to expect and make allowances for them in others, is the only fair, kind way.

Your Boys and Girls.

The pudding tag nightgown is best for baby under one year old, while the baby over that age should wear the one piece night drawers which button up the back. Both of these little night coverings eliminate any possibility of the feet becoming uncovered during the night.

One mother I know accounted for her baby's peaceful frame of mind by saying that until he was three months old he was ignored. This seems absurd but there is an element of truth in it. A baby is an excitable little being. It wants to play and be played with, and it means real self-restraint to keep from kissing and cuddling it and romping with it a good deal of the time.

But the more the baby is left to itself, provided it is comfortable and well, the better for its nerves. It must sleep many long hours in the fresh air, and, of course, if it is excited and stimulated, it will not wish to settle down to sleep. Rest, proper food, quietness and fresh air are the things needed to establish good nerves in a child.

Our Daily Story.

MYSTERY.

"Doctor," said Thorax Glump, "I've got the worse toothache anybody ever had since the world began, and maybe before. It's terrible, it's frightful, it's terrific. I fear the tooth's about to explode."

"Let's have a look," said Dr. Cramer, a dentist of the good old fashioned school.

And he examined the tooth and put a drop of oil of cloves in it and painted the suburban gum with iodine, and the pain disappeared immediately.

"Merely a drop of oil of cloves on the tooth and a little iodine on the gums," smiled Dr. Cramer. "That'll be one dollar."

Glump paid and departed. "Gosh, a dollar for a drop of oil of cloves and a little bit of iodine! I could 'a' done that myself," he grumbled. "I'll go to some other dentist next time."

And, the next time, he did, rushing into the office of Dr. Dipple.

"Doctor," said Thorax Glump, "I've got a toothache that's so bad it can only be compared to one I had once before."

Dr. Dipple, a dentist of the new modern school, examined the tooth, coughed a learned cough and applied a drop of oil of cloves and a little iodine, and the pain disappeared immediately.

"That ought to fix you up," said Dr. Dipple. "First I applied a little oil of the genus aromatics, a natural healing preparation, and then I painted the contiguous parts with an astringent of unquestioned efficacy. That'll be six-fifty, including the war tax."

Glump paid and departed. "These young dentists can't know somethin', with their modern methods," he thought. "And only six-fifty—not so dear at that, considerin'."

Everyday Etiquette.
"When making a formal call and it is time to go, what shall I say?" asked Mary.
"In departing simply rise and shake hands with your hostess and remark that you must go as you have several other calls to make or errands to do," advised her mother.

PERFECT TEETH.

The perfect teeth are pretty because of their unobtrusiveness. They should be an even, unbroken line of whiteness between the parted lips. They should not make themselves unduly conspicuous by protruding and they should not call attention to themselves by gold fillings. They should be just a set of teeth that appear to have grown correctly in their appointed places and to be white and well kept because of careful attention.

Such a set of white, even teeth make a great difference in the charm of a smile. As a matter of fact, however, they may be sadly neglected teeth. They may be naturally white because their possessor has a perfect digestion, not because of a persistently applied tooth brush. They may be even because the jaw they grew in happened to be plenty large enough to accommodate them, yet they are a more precious possession than another set of teeth upon which many dollars have been spent in enamel fillings, bridge work and plate devices for straightening them.

After adolescence little can be done to alter the position of the teeth, although there have been cases where very crooked teeth have been straightened and brought into line at the age of thirty. Wonderful things are being done in dentistry now, in the way of forming the shape of the jaw in childhood and youth by forcing the teeth into proper position by plate wearing, and the next generation will see fewer reddening chins, peaked jaws and overlapping front teeth, than now spoil so many otherwise attractive faces.

Modern dentistry is doing wonders also in the replacing of the hideous old time false teeth on plates with cleverly built in teeth that are as much a part of the jaw as the natural ones.

luscious squash, the juicy beet, the wholesome sparrowgrass. And every time I reap a bean, according to the dope, I queer a Prussian submarine, and bust a Tauton hog. In times of peace this raising peas is work that I shudder; but I am raising greens like these, for peas will win the war. I'd rather mount a pawing steed, and charge, with lance at rest, to make the frightful foeman bleed, and knock him galley west; but since I dare not sit a horse that has no iron spine, I'm busy raising prunes and gorse, I'm pruning plant and vine. Oh, prunes are things I don't admire—which is no metaphor—but I soil on and never tire, for prunes will win the war. At night I dream of crimson fields where I have strewn my dead; I dream of steeds and swords and shields till I fall out of bed. At dawn I chant a martial lay by Julia C. R. Dorr, and then I hoe my spuds all day, for spuds will win the war.

Wait for the Third Act

Chicago Evening Post: "The first act is ended," says Von Hindenburg. The gentleman is in error. It is the second act that has ended. In the first act, if we have not forgotten our melodrama, the diabolical plot is conceived, the villain makes his plans and vanishes, with every prospect from the hero's standpoint seemingly full of promise. In the second act the villain puts his plans into execution; the curtain falls upon the hero about to perish beneath an on-rushing train, or to be blown to pieces by a bomb. Vice is triumphant and the villain gleeful. It is this act that we have just witnessed, with Von Hindenburg rubbing his hands and chuckling as he looks upon the success of his work. But the third act is the act where the villain "gets his." And the third act is to come. Wait for it.

"Passing the Buck."

Christian Science Monitor: "Passing the buck" is a pure Americanism, and one that is entitled to precedence over "Let George do it." It has been practiced in American civil life for many years, and now, it seems, some of the more observant of the men in khaki have discovered its insidious workings in the new army. Thus, as one of them points out in homely verse:

The Colonel tells the Major
When he wants something done,
And the Major tells the Captain,
And gets him on the run.
So started on its way, the "buck" passes from the captain to the first and second lieutenant. Then to the trusty sergeant, and The Sergeant calls a Corporal to see what he can see,
So the Corporal gets a Private
And the one he gets is me.

Amazing War Prophecy

Margaret Callaghan and the Lights at Sea.

In the wild bog-land near Ballycroy, overlooking Achill and the sea, was an old peasant woman, known and wide as the "Woman of the Rock," and who is the "humble heroine" of a most remarkable prophecy, towards the close of the eighteenth century, so this amazing story runs, she lived in the wilds of County Mayo a man called Carabine, famed as a seer; and among his many prophecies (all of which, with this solitary exception, it is said, have come true), was the following:

When the War Will End.

In four generations, he declared, there would be born a woman, Margaret Regan, who would see the most war the world had ever known, and he killed at its close. She would descend from the mountains of Ballycroy, marry there a man named Michael Callaghan, and have a son and two daughters.

One day towards the close of the war Margaret, wearing a check dress, would be walking to a neighboring well to fetch water, when she would be startled by a great noise at the sight of many lights out at sea. She would run to give the alarm, overtake by strange men speaking a foreign tongue, and be killed by them at the Rock of the Horse. Now, mark the sequel. Thirty years ago a country girl came to Ballycroy, called at the house of a doctor in the place, and in a situation. She gave her name as Margaret Regan, and said she came from the Dale Mountains in Tyrone. "Then," exclaimed the astonished doctor, "you must be told to tell her the story of the prophecy of which she was the unborn heroine."

Waiting Death.

Handed by the prophecy, Margaret entered the doctor's service, and a few years later married his coachman, Michael Callaghan, with whom she went to live in a tiny bog-holding near Ballycroy, bearing to him one son and two daughters. And there Margaret Callaghan, in a check dress, may be seen to-day, at the Rock of the Horse, where she fully expects to meet her tragic end, as predicted by Carabine a hundred and twenty years ago. "There," she will tell you, pointing towards the sea, "where I'll see the ships, and then there'll be men coming and me running to tell the people. But sure, what is to be will be, and there's no good going against it."

Such a philosophical spirit does Margaret Callaghan await the last days of the prophecy which alone remains to be realized.

The German Long Range Gun.

A Development of Long-Established Principles of Design.

The German long-range gun, which is bombarding Paris, has a value more spectacular than military. The principles that govern the construction of such a gun have been familiar to artillerymen, and the materials for its construction have been available, for many years past. The Allies have not built any such gun for the reason that there was no military use to which it could be put. Furthermore, its unwieldy length and weight, its great cost and its very limited life, due to erosion, have been recognized as rendering it, when built, an impracticable weapon under the existing conditions of warfare, either on land or sea.

The construction of an enormously costly gun, such as this, can be justified only if it is highly efficient; and a gun that shoots so far that it is impossible to plot the fall of the shots is so inefficient as to be practically valueless. No airplane would be allowed to circle over Paris for observation, and if it could do so, its wireless would not carry to the gun. The feat of throwing a shell over 70 miles is unprecedented and sensational; but the design and construction of such a gun does not call for any radical change in the theories, materials, or practice of gun construction. If we could visit the emplacement, we should find there probably, a half-up, rifled, steel, 9 1/2 inch gun, that differed from the ordinary high-powered, high-velocity gun only in the great size of its powder chamber and in the great length of the bore.

The Allied nations could have built such a gun, built a dozen of them, if they had wished to do so. But seeing that they are in this war to smash Prussia, and not to play to the gallery, or to do circus tricks, and certainly not to practice frightfulness, they have been content to build guns that would hit their military objectives up to the limit of distance which observation of the target is practicable.

So far as the gun is concerned, the distance to which a shell of given caliber and weight can be thrown depends upon the velocity with which it leaves the muzzle of the gun; and the muzzle velocity depends upon the size of the powder charge, the mean pressure of the powder gases upon the base of the shell, and the time during which this pressure is exerted; which last condition depends upon the length of the bore.

So that when the German or Austrian artilleryman, or whoever it was, had decided to use a 9 1/2 inch shell, all he had to do was to select his powder, and then design a 9 1/2 inch gun with an unusually big powder chamber and a sufficiently long barrel to secure a sufficiently high muzzle velocity to carry the shell to Paris, a distance of 70 miles. The construction of the gun would not present any special difficulty, except that the great length and weight of the barrel would cause it to sag or droop at the muzzle. To prevent this, the gun has either been stiffened by a vertical truss, or (and this is more likely) it is mounted for its full length upon the sloping face of a concrete base, inclined at 43 1/2 degrees—the angle of elevation which gives the greatest range. In this case, the gun can neither be elevated nor traversed—and, theoretically, the shots should fall, practically, in the same spot. This, according to despatches, is exactly what is happening—the dispersion of the shots being due to varying atmospheric conditions, and not to intelligent aiming of the gun.

It is an odd coincidence that, two weeks before this gun made its appearance, we should have drawn attention to the fact that, 20 years ago, a wire-wound gun was designed whose maximum range, as calculated by Colonel Ingalls, our greatest authority on ballistic, was about fifty miles. Now, that gun was only 45 calibers, or 38 feet in length, and its powder chamber, though larger than usual was not abnormally large. Its powder pressure was higher than is allowed in our Army and Navy guns. The heat of the powder gases, due to the high pressure necessary to secure 4,000 foot-seconds velocity was so great, that the rifling would have been burned out of the gun in a very few rounds. In firing tests of a previous 5 inch gun of the Brown type, the powder charge was increased until a muzzle velocity of 3,850 feet per second was secured; so that there is little doubt that, with the 10 inch gun it would have been possible, had it been put to the extreme test, to secure the calculated maximum muzzle velocity of 4,000 feet per second.

Judged as a problem of construction, we do not hesitate to say that a wire-wound gun could be built that would throw a 9 1/2 inch shell for a distance of 70 miles or more. In the case of the 45-caliber Brown, wire-wound gun it would have been sufficient to enlarge the powder chamber, increase the number of wire windings; lengthen the gun from 45 to, say, 75 calibers; stiffen it against drooping by means of a steel truss or a vertical plate girder below the gun, and then provide a powder that would give the necessary mean pressure to develop the required muzzle velocity. —Scientific American.

Charlie Mitchell Dead.

Former English Champion Pugilist Passes Away.

Hove, England, April 3.—Charlie Mitchell, one time middleweight champion of England, died here to-day of locomotor ataxia.

Mitchell was born at Birmingham, Eng., November 24, 1861. Although he fought many ring battles against big men, his weight was never more credited than 165 lbs. His remarkably fast foot work and skilful boxing offset this disadvantage in weight. He had a stiff punch, and most of his English battles were with bare knuckles.

After winning the middleweight championship of England in 1882, Mitchell came to America in 1883, and after defeating Mike Cleary in 3 rounds, met John L. Sullivan in a four-round bout. Mitchell surprised the 12,000 spectators by meeting Sullivan's rushes in the opening rounds, and scored a clean knock down with a right smash to Sullivan's jaw, sending the Boston man to the floor amid the wildest excitement.

Sullivan with left swings to the jaw knocked Mitchell down twice in the third round and with another left he had Mitchell hanging over the ropes when the police stopped the bout.

Mitchell always insisted that he would have been able to continue had the police not interfered and he never ceased to challenge Sullivan until the latter consented to another encounter, which took place five years later at Chantilly, France. In the meantime he boxed a four round bout draw with Jake Kilrain, two draws from Jack Burke, lost to Dominic McCaffrey in four rounds, and drew with Patsy Cardiff.

In his fight with Sullivan they fought with bare knuckles for 39 rounds for $2,500 a side, and the bout lasted three hours and eleven minutes. Mitchell drew first blood in the eighth round but Sullivan got the credit of a knockdown. The bout was declared a draw by mutual consent. After Corbett won the world's championship from Sullivan, Mitchell challenged him, and at Jacksonville, Fla., on January 25, 1894, Corbett knocked out the Englishman in the third round. This was Mitchell's last fight in the ring.

Play Up to Them.

Americans have learned almost as many new things about the English in this war as they have learned about the Germans or about the French; and this applies not only to those whose previous knowledge of the race had been limited to legends of Pitcairn and Tableton, but to Americans who thought they knew England well. It applies, for that matter, to Englishmen who thought they knew England well, and who were sadly disturbed by the drift of social and intellectual movements in the reigns of Edward and George. But surely of the many impressive lessons that England has given to her allies in the last four years there is none finer than the temper of the English people under the stress of the great battle.

In matters like this, immediacy of presentment carries a good deal of weight. The unsurpassed heroism of the French people since the war began might not have been attained at a single bound if the war had not been carried at once into French soil, where memories of 1871 were still alive. So England has to work up to it. In the first month of the war, when only the few thousands of the first expeditionary force were engaged, when the great citizen armies of England were still to be levied, when things were obviously only beginning, the temper of the British people was admirable but not perfect. There was easy credulity for impossible good news, a certain amount of reaction between desperate pessimism and baseless optimism.

To-day, when the whole nation is in arms and the fate of the people literally hangs on the outcome, the British race as a whole seems to be displaying all of the admirable qualities that have characterized the individual Briton in times of hurry and danger. To half-ready America, watching from three thousand miles away as a one-legged man watches his brother struggling in the stream, the steadiness and grave confidence of the British people ought to be an example as good as the unforeseen humor of the British soldier in the long years of trench warfare. We have troubles of our own, but our allies, in the face of much more urgent if not greater danger, are showing us how to bear them.

There are classic instances of public steadfastness—the Athenians with Hannibal under the walls; to say that the British this week are worthy companions of these peoples is not to say enough. Say that they are worthy of the French since the first day of August, 1914, and you have said it all.—(N. Y. Times.)

A Story of a Masterpiece.

Mouldering away on the wall of an old mansion in Milan, Italy, hangs the famous "Last Supper" of Leonardo da Vinci. Like every masterpiece, the painting required many years of patient labour, and as a result of that labour it is perfect in its naturalness of expression and sublime in its story of love. In addition to these qualities, it has an incident in its history that contributes not a little toward making it the great teacher that it is. It is said that the artist, in painting the faces of the apostles, studied the countenances of good men whom he knew. When, however, he was ready to paint the face of Jesus in the picture he could find none that would satisfy his conception; the face that would satisfy his conception; the face that would serve as a model for the face of Christ must be dignified in its simplicity and majestic in its sweetness. After several years of careful search, the painter happened to meet one Pietro Bandinelli, a choir boy of exquisite voice, belonging to the Cathedral. Being struck by the beautiful features and tender manner that bespoke an angelic soul, the artist induced the boy to be the study for the painting of the face of Jesus. All was done most carefully and reverently, but the picture was as yet incomplete, for the face of Judas was absent. Again the painter, with the zeal of a true lover of his art, set about in search of a countenance that might serve for the face of the traitor. Some years passed before his search was rewarded and the picture finally completed. As the artist was about to dismiss the miserable and degraded wretch who had been his awful choice, the man looked up at him and said: "You, have painted me before." Horrified and dumb with amazement, the painter learned that the man was Pietro Bandinelli. During those intervening years Pietro had been at Rome studying music, had met with evil companions, had given himself up to drinking and gambling, had fallen into shameful dissipation and crime. The face that now was the model for the face of Judas had once been the model for the face of Christ.—The New World.

Successful Recruiting Meeting at Bell Island.

THIRTY-SIX YOUNG MEN OFFER FOR KING AND COUNTRY.

At 10 o'clock on Saturday the S. S. Fogota, Capt. Dalton, left here for Bell Island, having on board Capt. Campbell, A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor; Lieut. C. Carter, Lieut. James, Sergts. H. Mitchell, J. Robinson and Corporal Mansfield (all returned heroes) and the C. C. Band.

The recruiting party found the island decorated with bunting from one end to the other, while Magistrate Power, Manager McDougall of the D. I. S., Mr. C. F. Taylor, other members of the Bell Island Patriotic Committee, the C. L. B. with band and C. C. C. and hundreds of citizens were ready to receive them. Immediately after supper the recruiting officers with the C. C. Band, the Bell Island G. C. C. and C. L. B. Band and citizens met at the C. L. B. Armory and later proceeded to Wabana theatre where the meeting was held with Magistrate Power in the chair. The building was packed, many being unable to gain admission.

After brief introductory remarks by Magistrate Power, Sergt. Harold Mitchell, President of Returned Soldiers and Rejected Men's Association, addressed the meeting and explained the object of their visit and the crying need for men to fill the gaps "Over There." Mr. Mitchell received a most enthusiastic reception, his address evoking considerable applause and cheering. Miss Mary Keegan, who accompanied the party, recited, and was followed by Corporal Mansfield who made a brief but spirited speech. Owing to the lateness of the hour the meeting was adjourned till 2.30 p.m. Sunday, when the recruiting squad, the Catholic Cadet Corps and C. L. B. Bands, the brigades and citizens met at the C. L. B. Armory and paraded to Wabana theatre, but owing to the large numbers attending it was decided to hold an open air meeting. A band stand had been erected and Magistrate Power ascended the stand and gave a very able address about the war and how it affected the British Empire, the World and Newfoundland and referred to the deeds of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment which were upholding the traditions of those who had gone over first.

Lieut. James, Sergt. Robinson, Lieut. C. Carter told of some of their experiences at the front and what it meant to the men to be short of supports. A recitation was given by Miss Keegan after which very able and stirring addresses were made by Mr. C. F. Taylor and Sergt. Harold Mitchell. At the close when the appeal was made for recruits the following (37) came forward:—

Another Hero Dead

In Saturday's casualty lists appears the name of 1771, Private Thomas J. Grouchy, of the Royal Nfd. Regiment, who died from wounds at the 1st Canadian Hospital, Etaples, on the 17th April. Private Grouchy who was in his 22nd year, was a son of Elias and Elizabeth Grouchy of this city, and before enlisting worked as a jeweler at T. J. Duley's. Nearly three years ago he answered duty's call, and for more than two years was with the Regiment in France. On October 13th last, he was gassed and wounded, but recovered quickly and went back again to the line, receiving the fatal wounds April 14th. Private Grouchy was well and favourably known in the city, and one of the best soldiers in the Regiment, having the fullest confidence of both officers and men. His passing will be deeply regretted by his parents, but they have the all consoling knowledge that their son died a hero and a man.

Selective Conscription and a Newfoundland Victory Loan will help win the war.

Realising the Urgent Call from the Boys "Over There" to fill the Gaps, we are only too pleased to place our advertising space at the disposal of the Regiment for their big Recruiting Appeal now being made to the Young Men of Newfoundland, in the hope that this, and that of other advertisers, will show them—if they have not yet offered—WHERE THEIR DUTY LIES!

Who so Unselfishly and Bravely Are Giving Their Boys to Help Their Pals--Over There!

"O! broken woman I, my treasured only son;
Still would I not have ought that he himself has done!
Pitying I see them look sometime as I pass by,
But I have borne A MAN,—tears do not clog my eye.
For I might pitied be, mine perhaps might be the slur
Had I A MAN not raised, but just a yellow cur;

And I a title bear—what ask you then?
I'm of that Motherhood, those who are MOTHERS OF MEN,
Which mothers send their boys—MEN—forward to the fight
To help all mothers' boys who battle for the right."
