LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

or the Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXXV.

The earl often wondered if he had done wisely in telling his daughter of his second marriage. She had completely changed. Her father's confession had not only wounded her love, but it had also lowered her pride; and now she found that to which she had sacrificed her whole life was a myth. She had nothing to be particularly proud of. If on one side she was well descended, on the other her people were commoners. She had sent her lover away, and had tried her best to conquer her love. She had made herself miserable and unhappy for her pride's sake; and now she found that the quality which was to have been her great moral support and consolation was little better than a broken reed. A certain sadness and gentleness of manner had come to her which was very different from her former brilliant animation.

The discipline had been sharp and severe; but she had benefited largely. She began to understand that the words "held with honor" had a better and higher meaning than that which she had given to them. The honor lay not in adding to the splendor and glory of her house by a great alliance, but in faithfully discharging the duties that fell to the lot of its head. She began to see that her idea of pride was wrong, that there was honor in a noble life; honor in poverty, in labor, in toil; honor in everything except folly, disgrace, and sin. The words "held with honor" bore a different meaning now from that which she had drawn from them in the days of her pride. It had been a sharp and bitter lesson; but it had made a noble and good woman out of a proud and haughty girl.

There had been many long discussions between her father and herself. The earl wished his secret to be buried forever; but she would not agree to it, she would not "sail under false colors."

"Now that I know the truth myself, papa," she said, "I will hold that truth with honor. There must be no more disguise."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Ready and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use for usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of cod liver, Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

She brought pens, ink and paper to him, and stood beside him while he wrote a letter to the editor of "Burke's Peerage," in which he said that he regretted he had not corrected the errors before, but that he had been absent from England for so many years that he had not thought of the matter; but he requested the editor to make an important alteration in the entry relating to himself. In future it was to read—

"Caledon, Earl of, Hugo Francis, Hyllton Payne, fourteenth earl. Born May 24th, 18—; succeeded his father 1858. Educated at Eton and Oxford. Married—first, Guinevere, sole daughter and heiress of Sir Bernard Talbot of Broome, who died March 4th, 18—; secondly, Isabel Hyde, daughter of Ronald Hyde, Esquire, who died June 29th, 18—. Issue, one daughter, Iris, Lady Payne."

"Now, papa," said Lady Iris, "we have done what honor and honesty require of us. When people examine the next edition of the 'Peerage,' some will perhaps wonder that you were married twice, while they will see that I belong to Isabel Hyde, and not to Guinevere Talbot. But I do not suppose that one person in five thousand will care about the matter at all. Still, papa," she went on thoughtfully, "there was a faint suspicion of something having happened, I am sure. Do you remember what that lady whispered about me on the day of the Drawing-Room? I have thought of it a hundred times since, but could never understand it. It referred to your second marriage, you may rest assured."

"Perhaps so," replied Lord Caledon. "I should hardly think it possible that the marriage could quite escape observation. There may have been some slight rumor about it, but it never reached my ears."

"We are beyond the reach of rumor now," she said. "If any one speaks to us about the marriage, we can answer as we please, can we not papa? I shall always make the best of the difficulty by saying that people should not take things for granted, and that every one ought to have known by my face that I was the daughter of Isabel Hyde, papa," she added, "you have one thing more to do, and you must do it. You must send this lovely portrait of mamma to one of our best artists and have a beautiful painting executed from it. Will you?"

The Hair of Bayneham

Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER I.

The time was the close of a bright, warm day in June; the place a little parlor in the most picturesque cottage to be found on the estate of Brynmar; the scene a strange one, the first that lived in the memory of Lady Hutton's ward, and the one that influenced her whole life.

There came at times little or no harmony between nature and man. Outside the cottage, the bonny woods of Brynmar were full of the brightness and beauty of summer. The golden sunbeams lingered almost tenderly on the tall, green trees; the wild flowers gave forth a rich tribute of rare perfume; the birds sang merrily, and the busy bees hummed from flower to flower, gathering sweet honey from the fair blossoms. In the shade of the wood there was a deep silence, unbroken, save by the rippling of the little brook and the faint rustling of the leaves—a summer evening such as poets sing of: a golden flush of color, a glory of perfume and harmony.

Inside the cottage was a scene that told of the deepest human woe. The beauty of sunbeam and flower could not touch it. There was sorrow which nothing human could soften or alleviate. In vain the roses and jessamine peeped in at the bright windows, and bent their fair heads as though in sympathy. In vain the summer breeze came in laden with the fragrance of the hawthorn and the new-mown hay; in vain birds sang and flowers bloomed; in vain did the sweet voices of nature seem to whisper of love and hope; it was all in vain, for a human heart was breaking there, from excess of sorrow and woe.

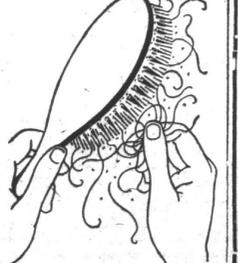

It was a strange scene. The parlor was bare and poorly furnished; no carpet, no pictures, no books, nothing that told of comfort; stern, dread poverty was shown in the few articles of furniture; in a small chair near the centre of the room sat a lady magnificently dressed, costly velvets and rich silks swept the cottage floor. She was in the very prime of life, a tall, stately, well-formed figure, a clear-cut, calm, patrician face, bearing the impress of many troubles. No one ever called Lady Hutton beautiful, but in the exquisite refinement of every feature, in the expression of the clear eyes, and the smiles that at rare intervals lighted her face, there was a charm deeper than that of vivid coloring or perfect form. Her dark-brown hair was plainly braided, her dress, in its simple elegance, was perfection. She looked what she was; a thorough English gentlewoman, calm, elegant, and refined. If any storms of passion had ever crossed her quiet face, there was no trace of it now; if scorn, or hate, or love had ever dwelt in that quiet heart, they were all dead. She seemed as one who looks out upon the world, yet takes little interest in it.

Far different from the calm, passionate lady, was the beautiful woman who half knelt, half crouched upon the floor, and covered with hot, bitter tears, the white, soft fingers of a little child. A wailing mass of rich, golden brown hair fell over her shoulders in splendid confusion and disorder; the face, though deadly pale and stained with tears, was a most beautiful one. There was a supple grace in every line of her figure, a dignity even in her self-abasement, yet Magdalen Hurst was but a simple villager, owing none of her rare beauty to noble birth or high descent. She had no thought of her beauty. If ever woman's face looked as though her heart were broken, Magdalen Hurst's looked so now. Passionately, wistfully, she kissed the child's hands and buried her face on the little head—kissed her as though she hungered and craved for love—kissed her with all the warmth of affection and the passion of despair. "My little Hilda," she cried, "look at me; let me carry your sweet face in my heart; look at me darling!"

The little one raised her wondering eyes to the white, wistful face, and there was a strong resemblance be-

British Warship, Sultan's Asylum.

Former Turkish Potentate Taken to Malta -- Premier Law besieged by Unemployed--Lausanne Now the Focal Centre of Europe

SULTAN IN FLIGHT.

PARIS, Nov. 17. The Turkish Sultan's flight from Constantinople on a British warship for Malta was made after he received information to the effect that the Ankara Assembly had voted to try the Sultan and Ministers for treason, according to a despatch received by the Foreign Office.

REALISTS WILL PROTEST.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17. It is reported here that the Ankara government will make formal representations to Great Britain for the return of the Sultan to the Kemalists, pointing out that only the National Assembly of Turkey has authority to direct the Sultan's movements and that he must face trial ordered by the Government.

LAUSANNE TROUBLES BEGIN.

LONDON, Nov. 17. A great Assembly of unemployed, situated at between twenty and thirty thousand persons, staged a demonstration in Hyde Park this afternoon in support of a demand for maintenance by the National League. Two thousand marched from distant parts of the city. A large number of mounted foot police were at the scene. The organizers of the demonstration asked Premier Bonar Law for an interview, but he referred the matter to the Ministers of Health and Labor. The leaders of the unemployed asserted they would not leave London until they saw the Premier. Up to late afternoon the demonstration had been without incident.

CONSTANTINOPLE SITUATION IMPROVING.

LONDON, Nov. 17. A despatch from Constantinople says Rafet Pasha, Nationalist Governor, has withdrawn the new customs regulations. An agreement is said to have been reached between Rafet and the High Commissioners on police and gendarmerie questions and the situation in Constantinople, according to the message, is considered improving.

A TICKLISH SITUATION.

PARIS, Nov. 17. Before leaving for Lausanne this evening, Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish Nationalist delegation for the coming Conference, said he had full powers from the Ankara Assembly to conclude the terms of peace. It is apparent, however, he wasn't sure he would be able to reach a satisfactory conclusion. "Will it be peace or war, will the Allies let us have peace?" he asked. During his visit to Paris Ismet Pasha was disturbed by reports that the Allies were arranging the terms of peace before opening a

Insects are Man's Enemy

"It is the plain and sober truth that we humans are engaged in a battle for self-preservation; a struggle which will in all probability end in the extermination of one side or the other. The men who are best qualified by knowledge say that the outcome of that struggle is by no means sure." In these words, Bruce Bliven, in Collier's sums up the struggle going on between mankind and the insect world. He lets his imagination run out of curb as follows: "A writer of historical romances could paint a dramatic picture of the closing days of a war in which proud humanity would be the vanquished. He might describe the gradual world-wide multiplication of the insects, at first a subject for jest, then for irritated complaint, then for wild panic terror. He could portray the hasty attempts to devise measures of defence against the myriad hordes of merciless tiny foes springing up everywhere, crawling in a lava carpet on the earth, darkening the sky with their trillions of bodies, deafening the air with the roar of their rustling minute wings."

BRITISH POLITICAL MOVEMENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 17. It is already evident that former Premier Lloyd George does not intend to remain idle. He has taken up permanent political headquarters in London, for himself and his chief supporters, Lord Birkenhead, Winston Churchill, and others who form the brilliant group. Mr. Churchill will not be long without a seat. The Labor Party is preparing to make energetic opposition. The Party will hold its first meeting on Tuesday to elect officers, and it is thought John R. Clynes will be chairman. The session of Parliament beginning Monday will be brief and devoted entirely to Irish Legislation. A general business session will be held in February. The Liberal Press is bitterly lamenting the advent of the Conservative Government, which it says might have prevented the Labor and Liberal parties agreed to a common election policy.

Thrilling Sea Tale.

SCOTS CAPTAIN'S NARRATIVE. The racking 36 hours' experiences of the captain (Robert Gibson, of Edinburgh) and crew of the Newcastle steamer Hopelyn and the gallant rescue work of Lowestoft lifeboatmen make a thrilling story. The vessel was wrecked on the North Scroby Sands, off from Yarmouth. Here is the captain's story: "We were carrying 3,400 tons of coal from Shields to London, and struck bad weather. The steering gear broke down. We patched it up and set a course for Yarmouth Roads, when the steering gear again broke down. "We put down both anchors, but the vessel drove from them and grounded on the sands. At first we sheltered in the saloon till the water flooded us out. Then the engine-room was filled, and it stopped the dynamo, so we had no lights. "Next the aerial mast was carried away, but we had sent out our S.O.S. and received several acknowledgments. Three feet of silted sand came into the forecastle, and then, after the steamer had bumped on the sands, she broke her back, and both poop and forecastle were submerged. "We sent up rockets, and when the lifeboat came out first time we could not show ourselves, and her crew were not near enough to see us. "Next day we cut a strip off the steward's bunk, and hoisted it as a signal to show we were still on board. The lifeboatmen quite correctly understood our meaning, but could not get near us on Friday, though they tried several times. They did all men could do, and you cannot praise them too much. "At low water we could get into the galley, where some potatoes and onions were baked, and this was the only food we had. We were rescued in eight minutes this (Saturday) morning. The lifeboat dropped anchored and gradually came alongside, when her crew flung a rope to us, and one by one we dropped in. It was wonderful seamanship, and we are all very grateful to the lifeboatmen for saving our lives. "Among the saved was the ship's black kitten. The Gorleston lifeboat Kentwell was too badly damaged on her second unsuccessful trip to go off again, and her place was taken by a motor lifeboat, the Agnes Cross, from Lowestoft. But on board her were the first and second coxswains and five other men of the Gorleston lifeboat. "Use STAFFORD'S Phorotone Cough Cure for coughs and colds. It will cure.—oct11,t

The Old Favorite

Is Just As Popular As Ever

And Just as Effective in Relieving Coughs, Colds, Croup and Bronchitis

For over a quarter of a century Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has been the favorite treatment for coughs and colds.

It is still growing in favor, for the simple reason that it can be depended on as a positive relief for Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and Asthma.

Bronchitis
Mr. J. Penrose, 207 Oak St., Toronto, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and had a very bad cough. I had the cough so long I was becoming afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I saw Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine advertised and tried a bottle. I was greatly surprised at the relief I got from the Linseed and Turpentine. I bought five more bottles and was completely relieved."

Severe Cold
Mr. Lloyd Ballen, Sunnybrook Farm, Pownal, Lot 49, P.E.I., writes:—"After I got over the 'flu' last winter, I took a very severe cold. I tried several kinds of cough medicines, but none of them gave me relief and I began to fear it would turn to something more serious. One day, however, I picked up a copy of Dr. Chase's Almanac and saw your Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine advertised. I got one bottle immediately, which completely relieved me."

HOUSE-CLEANING TIME

In the old days, house-cleaning time was a season to be dreaded by most all families of the good housekeeper. The task seemed to achieve titanic proportions and radiate to every room, diligent in its effort to let not one escape its discomfort. It seems different nowadays. The season is welcomed in quite another way. The work is carried on in a much less disturbing manner. Much energy, time and patience is saved.

Cleaning closets, trunks, boxes and tidying the home of all that is useless, is one of the first tasks of house-cleaning. Then, it is a good idea to have all the furniture repaired, to take down the heavy curtains and draperies, clean, dust and set away any particular pictures if the house is to be closed for the warm months, and send the rugs to be cleaned. After this, it is time to tackle the walls, furniture, floors, beds and bedding.

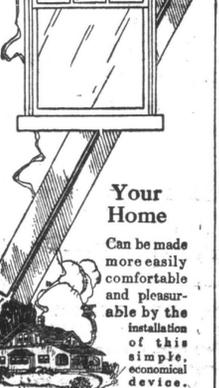

The work of the housekeeper has been considerably lightened during the past several years by the great variety of cleaning brushes that are available for her use. There are brushes for every conceivable purpose. One of the most popular brushes during house-cleaning time is the fine, soft hair wall brush which thoroughly cleans the dust from the walls and does not rub it into the wall paper as in the case where a rag is used.

Then there are the upholstery brushes, the brushes for cleaning wicker furniture, the mattress brushes of heavy hair that get into the edges of bindings and tuftings, the banister and stair brushes, brushes to get the dirt out of the radiators, brushes for the fireplace, brushes for silk lamp shades and lace curtains, brushes to clean bed springs, brushes for the bathtub and the toilet bowl, in fact there is a wonderful variety of these brushes to lighten the work of the housekeeper.

Then for the hardwood floors there are the chemically treated floor mops and the large fluffy dust absorbing dusters for the furniture, stair railings, doors, window casings, etc. There are brushes for washing the windows.

There are forty-five different personal brushes, mops and dusters, sold by The Fuller Brush Company. All of these are brushes of real quality and service backed by the Fuller guarantee. Fuller brushes are not sold in stores. They are demonstrated and sold in the homes by the Fuller man.

The Fuller Man in St. John's is W. R. Johnston, G.W.V.A. Building. Drop him a post card, and he will gladly call and demonstrate the complete line of Fuller Brushes. nov14,22,15

TRINITY.

THE WRECK OF THE "WILLIAM KELSON." (Continued)

By the evening they were very tired from shouting, and as darkness came on they found themselves scarcely able to keep awake. Realizing the danger of falling off the ledge if they both slept at the same time, they took turns during the night to watch and sleep. At daylight they resumed their shouting, and they kept it up till after midday, though they were consciously getting weaker. This second day was the usual fine day after a storm, and Mr. Rex and a boy had come around the Horse Chops in a boat, in search of birds. They heard the shouting, but whilst the old man came to the same conclusion as Thomas Oats had, viz: that it was gulls screaming somewhere, the boy maintained that it was some man shouting. As the boat rounded a point they heard the shouting more distinctly, and looking up from where the sound had come, they saw the men in the cliff. As soon as Mr. Rex saw the men he knew that they had come from a wreck, and beckoning to them, he conveyed to them the message that they would go back to English Harbor for assistance.

They did so; and as soon as the men at English Harbor heard of it, they organized two rescue parties—one went to Wester Point by land, with ropes and other necessary requirements; the other, in charge of Mr. Watson, left for the same place by water, taking with them warm clothing, food, etc. The men on the top of the cliff sent down a rope, with a note attached to the end of it, instructing the men to fasten the rope around their bodies one at a time; then to pull the rope three times as a signal that it was done, and then they would be lowered to the boat at the base of the cliff. This was done successfully, and the men were fed, wrapped in warm clothing and taken to English Harbor. There it was found that John Lander was in good condition, and after rest and sleep would be all right. Gideon Badger's feet were found to be badly frozen, and he was taken at once to Trinity, where he spent the winter and spring at Mr. Charles Ainsworth's. The doctor did his best to save his feet. This was found to be impossible and they were amputated. By the next summer he had fully recovered from his trying experiences, and he lived in Newfoundland for several years after.

Lander went back to his native place, Bonavista, gave up going to sea, and lived to be an old man. Because of his experience in the cliff of Wester Point, he was known to everybody, till the day of his death, and is referred to to-day as "Cliff John." Such were his grateful feelings towards his rescuers from Trinity Bight, that upon one occasion, when he met a boy in Bonavista, and was told by the boy that he had come from Trinity, Lander hugged him and kissed him with such generous secretiveness that the boy thought his last hour had come. Then Lander told the boy why he had done this, and gave him a detailed account of the wreck, and of the kindness of those who saved his life. As a result, however, of the fright the boy had got, he promptly forgot everything that Lander had told him.

For many years after the wreck, and the drowning of Captain Robbins and his crew, the fishermen maintained that when they were fishing off Wester Point, if the wind was soon to blow from the South, they were warned of it by hearing human voices calling, "Haul up! Haul up! Haul up!" This they did in double quick time; first because of the supposed voices, and secondly, because they would have great difficulty in getting round the Chops, and to home, against the southerly wind, that the fishermen say, always followed upon the warning. This superstition, of mistaking some natural causes for voices of dead men, has, I am glad to know, pretty well died out. It took me some time to collect the details that I have thus embodied in these notes, and whilst ninety five per cent. of them are literally correct, the remaining few are substantially so. I am indebted to Mrs. Pittman of Trinity and to Mr. Robert Miller of Trinity, East, for the information that gave me a clue to the date of the wreck. Mrs. Pittman is eighty seven, and has a vivid recollection of Captain Robbins. Mr. Miller is ninety, and probably, is one of the few persons living to-day who has practical reasons for remembering the wreck, as (with his father) hoisted the scene of the wreck a few days after it occurred. Those of Mr. Miller's age, in English Harbor, no doubt remember it. Several of the other details were supplied by a friend from Bonavista who heard of them from John Lander some years before he died; whilst others were given to me by men of English Harbor, who had heard them from the old folk who have passed away and who had personal knowledge of the wreck. Like many other sad, but interesting events in our history; this one (owing to the passing of the old folks) was on the point of going into oblivion. It by my rescuing it, and thus presenting it to my readers, I have given them some details of an interesting event of a well-nigh forgotten past, then I am glad, and I shall be pleased to hear of it from them.

In my notes of the week before last I gave a series of marriage entries from the old Church registers, covering some forty years, in which the bridegroom was from some part of Somersetshire. Last week I gave a like series in which the bridegroom was from Dorset. This week I give a series covering forty years in which the bridegroom was from Hampshire; as follows:

- 1769. William Pottle, Christ Church, Hants, and Honora Bestone of English Harbor.
- 1770. John Bugden, of Christ Church, Hants, and Sarah Bestone of English Harbor.
- 1774. Stephen Hooke, of Christ Church, Hants, and Sarah Ivory.
- 1775. Isaac Hoforth, of Christ Church, Hants, and Dorothy Blanchard.
- 1791. George Ricks, of Long Ham, Hants, and Mary Anderson.
- 1795. John Vatcher, of Christ Church, Hants, and Hannah Cod.
- 1801. George Dea, of Limington, Hants, and Hannah Andrews of Scilly Cove.
- 1805. John Lewis, of Christ Church, Hants, and Tamar Lockyer of Bay de Verde.
- 1806. Captain John Sabbin, of Christ Church, Hants, and Joanna Malone.
- 1808. John Poote, of Brockness, near Limington, Hants, and Ann Ryan.
- 1808. William Gould, of Ringwood, Hants, and Clarissa Embery of Bay de Verde.
- 1809. James Butler, of Ilford, near Christ Church, Hants, and Mary Banister.
- 1810. Humphry Coles, of Ringwood, Hants, and Honora Mesager.

Next week I shall give a list of those who came from some part of Devonshire.

Called to rest: In Collingwood Township, Neaford, Ontario, Canada, October 1st, Charles Grant, aged 82 years, 6 months. Mr. Charles Grant was the fourth child of Robert and Honour Grant, and was born in Trinity in 1840. When he was nineteen years of age he went to Canada, and settled in Ontario. He is referred to in the local press of the County in which he lived and died as "one of the early settlers." He was a most successful farmer; won the first prize at the Paris Exposition for the best seed grain exhibit, together with seven medals for the same in different countries. He never lost sight of Trinity, and so long as he could find some one to correspond with him from Trinity, he was ready to "continue the correspondence"; and his letters always embodied a long series of questions about persons and places in Trinity, that were very dear to him. He was the last of his generation: a life-long member of the Church of England; an office bearer in the old Sons of Temperance; and a creditable representative of Newfoundland in the land of his adoption. May he rest in peace.

Mr. J. Robertson, representing Mr. Henry Blair; and Mr. B. Martin, representing Meehan & Co., registered at the Garland last week, and interviewed the business men of the town, in the interest of their firms. We enjoyed their company.

Mr. George Bartlett has moved his family down to the house that once belonged to him, and was occupied for years by Mr. David Grant, David Grant and Charles Granger were the Village carpenters for many years in Trinity. In addition to work done in the carpenter's shop, Mr. Grant was the house and church builder of his day; in this particular respect he was "a workman that needed not to be ashamed;" and his work, wherever found to-day, is standing the test of time. May God be good to him.

A MATRIMONIAL SEQUENCE.
I was absent from my parish in M. Canada, for a little over two years. Upon my return I met an old acquaintance on the street. I was glad to see her, and I said, "How do you do Mrs. Smith?" She replied, "I am verily well, thank you; but I am not Mrs. Smith." "But," I said, "you were Mrs. Smith when I left M.—two years ago!" "Yes, yes!" she replied, "I was Mrs. Smith then—and then I was Mrs. Mae Dougall, and now I'm Mrs. MacDonald." From my past experience of marriage, minus sentiment, I was not surprised, and lifting my hat I said, "How do you do Mrs. MacDonald?"

Mrs. Randall of Port Rexton went to St. John's on Wednesday last to spend the winter with her daughter. We wish her health and happiness.

There was a fair exhibition of flags on Armistice Day, yet there were over twenty flag-staffs in Trinity from which no flag flew. On one staff there were two flags;—the Union Jack, and the Red Ensign;—but the Red Ensign was wrongly flown over the Union Jack; in other words the Ensign of the mercantile marine was flown over the flag of Empire. Of the rustic, the poet has said:—
"A cowlip by the river's brim, A yellow cowlip is to him—
And nothing more."
So in respect of flags, of many people to-day it may be said:—
"The flag that flies o'er all our kin, A bit of bunting is to them—
And nothing more."

The Church rang out at 11 o'clock to remind us of the King's command, that two minutes silence be observed at that hour, all over the Empire; and every loyal subject obeyed the King's command. Six young ladies sold poppies from house to house, and netted $30 for the fund. The boys indulged in Bonfires and gun firing till midnight, and had a glorious time.—God Save the King.

Mr. George Hoskins, Station Agent at Trinity Junction, has been given his annual holiday, and he left by Wednesday's express for St. John's. George is a fine fellow, whoever gets him, and his uniform kindness to everybody, has added to the popularity of the Reid Newfoundland Co., as well as that of his own. If the chief sees this, I hope he will give George an extension beyond the ordinary holiday. We shall miss you, George; but you deserve the holiday.

Hon. Daniel Ryan came by Monday's express, and registered at the Garland. He will spend the days of his visit between Trinity and King's Cove in the interests of his business in these places. We are always glad to see him.

Mrs. (Captain) Field came in by Monday's express, registered at the Trinity, and was an unexpected pleasure to us. This was an unexpected pleasure to us, and we are glad to know that it was more or less a pleasant event to her too.

Mr. B. D. Parsons, representing Johnston and Ward, Stock Brokers, etc., of Montreal, registered at Garland Hotel on Monday, and canvassed the town in their interests.

Mr. J. Titford the official travelling Auditor of the Reid Newfoundland Co., and Mr. A. J. White, the Station Agent at Trinity Junction during Mr. Hoskins' holiday, are at the Garland and to see them all.

Constantinople Celebrates Passing of Sultan's Power.

Flare of Trumpets and Flare of Flames Mark End of Old Regime After Six Centuries of Misrule and Awful Cruelty -- Turkish Nationalists Will Elect New Caliph -- Country May Become a Republic -- Treaties Nullified.

For the first time in the three centuries of the Turkish Nationalist Government, the Ankara assembly has assumed all prerogative of the Sultan, therefore virtually nullifying away all power of the Sultan.

On March 1920, by the Sultan's order, the Ankara assembly has assumed all prerogative of the Sultan, therefore virtually nullifying away all power of the Sultan.

making, however, and is of great historical importance.

The Ankara Assembly, of course, is the child of the young Turk movement, and the assembly is declaring openly for a Caliphate that the Young Turks have long aimed at but never have achieved.

PEOPLE DO NOT RULE.

The Turkish people despite the overthrow of the Sultanate and the declaration for a periodical election of a Caliph, are not in power. Virtually sole power of rule now is said to be vested in Mustafa Kemal.

Caliph will be selected by the Ankara Assembly and the question of political favor will crop up here in the future.

RECOGNITION FOR TURKEY.

In the form of government just overthrown, the Sultan has been assisted in his rule by the Grand Vizier, his appointee and advisor, who in turn is advised by a cabinet of ten members.

Under the new government, it is stated by the Nationalists, that government will be invested in the nation, which presumably means the people.

THE BOY RULE.

Following the 14 year reign of Achmet I. and his death in 1617, Mustafa I, who had been imprisoned for some time, ascended the throne. He lasted only four months, however, and was again placed in prison and succeeded by Osman II, a boy 14 years old.

IBRAHIM ASSASSINATED.

He was succeeded by his brother, Ibrahim, who continued the reign of debauchery and bloodshed. Wholesale executions were ordered and carried out by him and with his sanction. After a reign of nine years he was strangled by an assassin.

RECORD OF CRUELTY.

Bloodthirstiness, has marked the reign of practically every Turkish Sultan from the beginning of the Turkish nation up to the present time. Mohammed II, who captured Constantinople in 1453 and made it the seat of government, is described as history exposes to the execration of one of the most peridious rulers that posterity. A great conqueror, he was a ruthless one and a man with many vices.

During his reign of 30 years, besides the capture of Constantinople, he conquered two empires, 12 kingdoms and 300 towns. Greece fell under the Turkish yoke during the reign of Mohammed II.

Sultan, Bajazet II, who followed Mohammed and who reigned for 21 years, was responsible for war raids in which unspeakable atrocities were committed against the Venetians and Hungarians. These provoked retaliation by the Christians.

But although Mohammed and Bajazet were cruel rulers, Selim I, who followed, outdid both in bloodthirstiness of a systematic nature. He proposed to massacre all Christians in his realm, but in this project he was sternly opposed by one of the great leaders of the time.

His son, Suleiman, the magnificent, followed and reigned for 46 years, from 1520 to 1566. Although Suleiman was regarded as the "Magnificent" however, his reign was also marked by much cruel bloodshed and the Turks drew to themselves the designation "terror of the world." The Christian nations even suspended their own quarrels with each other and banded together in an Allied war against the Turk.

Following the death of Suleiman the power of Turkey began to decline. Its succeeding rulers degenerated in succession, not retaining even the military courage of their predecessors.

Selim II, son of Suleiman, engaged in a conflict with Russia which then brought into being an antagonism between these two nations that exists to the present time. Eight years was the life of Selim's rule.

The reign of Murad III, who, following Selim II, in 1574, began with the Sultans murdering his own five brothers, an unspeakable crime. His rule was marked by debauchery and intemperance in all things.

Although Murad III was a cruel Sultan, his successor, Mohammed III, went even further into butchery to carry out his own ends. This ruler had his 19 brothers and a son strangled in his presence. But a few days after he had murdered his eldest son, a public favorite, this killing Sultan was himself carried off by the plague in 1603.

Osman, although a youth, had inherited the cruel blood of his forefathers, and put many prisoners to death for drinking wine. He himself was placed in the prison tower after a time and Mustafa was again released and again placed on the throne. Osman later was strangled in his prison tower. Within another year Mustafa was sent back to his cell as Sultan. In all this time Turkey was in the throes of revolution, dissolution and anarchy.

Murad IV, was only 13 when he was made Sultan in 1623. He soon gave evidence, however, of an unspeakable cruel nature, and a tyrannical disposition. All manner of disturbances marked his reign. The treasury of Turkey was empty, the people were starving, the soldiers mutilated and murdered the grand vizier, insurrections broke out and disasters occurred and Murad, after causing the slaughter of thousands of persons, drank himself to death.

He was succeeded by his brother, Ibrahim, who continued the reign of debauchery and bloodshed. Wholesale executions were ordered and carried out by him and with his sanction. After a reign of nine years he was strangled by an assassin.

The rule of child Sultans was not over. Mohammed IV, who took the throne in 1648, was only 7 years old at the time he was declared head of the Turk. Lacking a head the Turkish nation was in a state of confusion. Within a few years six viziers were either disposed of by being killed or strangled. The nation was in a continual state of warfare and the Sultan's troops, defeated and chastised, finally turned against him and dragged him from the throne.

He was thrown into the same prison from which his brother was released in 1687 and was made Sultan of Turkey under the name of Suleiman II.

PESTILENCE IN TURKEY.

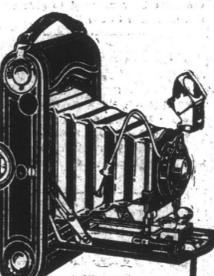

The butchery went on unchecked, and the grand vizier was murdered. Their women of his harum were killed and their mutilated bodies dragged through the streets. Suleiman's regime lasted only four years and he was succeeded by his brother, Achmet III, described as "an imbecile and incapable weakling."

For four years under Achmet, pestilence held sway in Turkey until the Sultan himself finally died, to be succeeded by Mustafa II.

Mustapha opened war against the "unholy Christians," but his army came to grief and in one combat Mus-

Private Art Exhibition.

WILL BE OPEN TO PUBLIC NEXT WEEK.

It is a fore-gone conclusion that few people in St. John's to-day know that we have in our midst a local lady who is not only a woman of no mean ability, in the possession of artistic drawings and paintings. The lady referred to is Miss Gertrude Parsons, residing on Forest Road. A visit to this ladies' studio at her home, where an excellent collection of art is now being displayed, will convince those who have had the pleasure of viewing work of this kind that the local production of art is being fostered by any of the kind seen in the many art galleries abroad. Miss Parsons made a study of oil painting and water color at the Royal Academy, Liverpool, England, twelve years ago, having been a student of the late Professor W. Wardlaw Lindsay, who at that time was known the world over as a brilliant artist. He was President of the Liverpool Academy, and ex-President of the Liverpool Society of Paintings and Water Colors at that time. The gifted artist returned home not long before the world war broke out, and sacrificed her profession in doing her country's duty. It was not until some months ago that Miss Parsons returned again to her studio, and since then she has turned out a most excellent variety of portraits and landscapes many of which are studies from life. Included in the exhibit on display will be found, dainty Christmas cards, showing many of our local scenes, all having been finished in beautiful water color effect. It is Miss Parsons' intention to open her studio to her friends and the public in general, beginning with Monday of next week, when everyone will be afforded an opportunity of witnessing the splendid exhibits that will be on display.

Laid to Rest.

OBITUARIES OF JUDGE PENNEY.

All that was mortal of the late Judge Penney was laid to rest in the Methodist Cemetery, Carbonear, at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The funeral had been called for after arrival of the train. Unhappily, though due to it did not reach Carbonear until nearly 5 o'clock, and having ascertained that it would be so late, the funeral was changed to three. The funeral was very large, being attended by members from St. John's, Harbour Head, Hart's Content, Freshwater, Water towns and villages. A guard of police led the procession, whilst members of the Masonic Fraternity did their last tribute of respect and honor at the graveside, according to the R. W. District Deputy, Bro. Penney had dropped on the casket the words of sacred Portions of the Bible which were read by R. V. Bro. D. Anderson of Hart's Content and R. V. Bro. Leonard Ash of Carbonear. The service at the residence was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Bugden. The casket was covered with a wreath of floral beauty, a fitting tribute to one to whom God's glorious favors were ever a cause of worship and joy. From the House to the Cemetery gates the Sunday School children were lined up and through the ranks the cortege passed, led by his brothers-in-law, Captain Pike and Mr. Robert Simpson. The burial service was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Bugden, Superintendent of the Carbonear Circuit, assisted by Rev. George Willey.

Grand Spectacular Night Scenes Lend Thrill to "The Bronze Bell"

Grand spectacular night scenes, embracing weirdly beautiful lighting effects are included in "The Bronze Bell," the big Paramount picture which is shown at the Majestic Theatre last night. It is an Ince-Vance production, a number of the startling scenes of the story were photographed between dusk and dawn, resulting in a bizarre atmosphere and background which are in perfect accord with the action and characters. The most impressive of the scenes in the picture are those within the "Temple of the Bronze Bell," a massive stone monument which is sharply contrasting with the shadows and fanatic natives portrayed by British soldiers and a revolutionary plot against the government.

May, a dainty Paramount favorite and Courtenay Foote, a well known British stage star, assume the roles of Sophie Farrell, the heroine, and David Amber, an adventurous young American, around whom the plot revolves. The remainder of the cast includes Claire DuBrey, Otto John, John Davidson, Gerald Prince, Noble Johnson, James W. W. directed the production, under the personal supervision of Thomas

THE THISTLE AND THE ROSE.

Scotch folk's humour, being the common gift of Nature to all and sundry to the laird, differing only in degree, slips out most frequently when and where least expected.
Famous specimens of it come down from our lonesome hillsides—from the cottage and farm inglenooks.
Fifty to one hundred years ago native opinion generally would, I believe, have incorporated the thistle and the rose in the motto of the men of the inspired shepherd of the "Noctes," that "the Englishers are the noblest race o' leevin' men—except the Scotch." That very decided compliment, notwithstanding, however, and even although nowadays so many Scotchmen are fain to emulate the Cockney speech and fashion in all things, it is putting the case in the mildest terms to say, that up to and even beyond the period indicated, there had never been much love lost between the denizens of the sister nations, Scotland and England. On all pre-eminent occasions, subsequent to the Union, to the credit of both be it often told, their cherished antipathies —trifles mayhap at the best—have magnanimously been allowed to lapse for the time being, and "shoulder, knee to knee," John Bull and Sandy Cawmill, aided and abetted at all times by their brow-beaten half-brother Paddy, have presented a brave and unbroken front of steel to the enemies of their United Kingdoms. But, the conflicts over the sword is sheathed the old animosity the chronic jealousy has again and again manifested itself between the Thistle and the Rose. Into the causes of this little estrangement in friendly feeling which so long obtained, but has now almost entirely disappeared, though some of them are obvious, we shall not trouble ourselves here particularly to inquire, but will rather review some of the effects as they are illustrated in the records of the many witty skirmishes which have taken place here and there between them, and in which the Thistle has fairly justified its popular motto of "Nemo me impune lacessit!" Yes, and surely it is remarkable—is an extraordinary circumstance, indeed, when viewed in the light of the fact that the English deny to the Scotch any idea of wit—that in nearly every witty encounter that has taken place between them Sandy has had the best of it. They are "a nobb' race o' leevin' men," as the shepherd averred.

"But, no' flustering John Bull is no match for Canny Sandy Cawmill. He would have been delighted in coording him—would have given his right hand to have been able to say, "Sandy, you must!" But as the late David Kennedy, the Scottish singer, used to put it, when introducing the song of "Scots wha hae," "Sandy was buried at Bannockburn." And henceforth, whilst strife with the sword had ceased between them "a wordy war"—a war of wit and ridicule—long obtained instead.

It has been a favorite sarcasm of John that the finest view in all Scotland to the eye of the Scot is the road that leads from it into England. No wonder, for the Scotchman, who has many a living London Cockney, a Scotchman is only slightly superior to a Red Indian savage. "Arry entertains in all seriousness the conviction that every home-bred Scotman is red-headed; and that we all wear kilts, play on the bag-pipes, drink whisky ad lib, snuff, and feed exclusively on kail-brose and bannocks of barley bread." Scotchmen, on the other hand, regarded himself individually as the ideal man—the noblest work of his creator—and has declared the English to be "maybe no sae very bad considerin', but even at the best neither mair nor less than a parcel o' upsettin'; ignorant, pock-puddin' in it." It has been English money in general, but Scotch brains in particular, he has asserted time and again, that he has made London what it is. "All the brightest intellectual luminaries of your London firmament," he has told John Bull, "have been nursed and reared amid the hills o' Bonnie Scotland," the land o' the bonnie purple heather.

"What of Shakespeare?" John has asked. "You don't claim him as a Scotchman, do you?"
"No, oh, no," Sandy has replied.
"I'll no say that Shakespeare was a Scotchman, although the way ye brag o' him do seem to think he was mair clever enuch to be ane."
And as in the opinion of the typical Scotchman there is no man to equal a Scotsman, so there is to his mind no land on earth like his own Scotland.
He may have wandered far away from
it, but distance only made his heart grow fonder, and lent enchantment to the view. And, as almost every Scotchman is a poet, if he took to simple his praises he would do so with such enthusiasm as is revealed in these lines:—
"Land of chivalry and of freedom
Land of old traditional fame,
May thy noble sons and daughters
Long uphold thy honoured name."

And when each had had his fling
the true account would be found in the history of the two. But, oh!
John did like to get a hair in Sandy's neck, and does so still. Nothing delighted Dr. Johnson, the eminent lexicographer, more. He had the meanest opinion of the Scotch, it is well known, and never missed an opportunity of casting ridicule upon them. Thus, when compiling his famous Dictionary, he defined the word Guts as "Food for men in Scotland and horses in England." The definition afforded unalloyed delight to the English mind, until, by and by, it was
"cast in the teeth" of a witty Scottish Lord, who retorted with: "Yes, and where will you find such men and such horses?" Since then, the fun of it has not been quite so apparent.
But the Doctor frequently met his match, and got paid back in his own coin. Soon after his return from Scotland to London, a Scotch lady resident in the capital invited him to dinner, and in compliment to her distinguished guest ordered a dish of hotch-potch. When the great man had tasted it, she asked him if it was good, to which he replied, with
his usual gruffness:
"Very good for hogs, I believe!"
"The pray," said the lady, "let me help you to a little more," and she did.

Of course John Bull had never been loquacious to any great extent on the subject of Bannockburn; and Sandy, I suppose, remembering Flodden, has not reminded him too frequently of the incident. Occasions have arisen, however, when enlightenment was necessary. Thus, when many years ago, a little company of Englishmen were travelling by railway between Glasgow and Strirling, having an old Scotoman and his wife
as fellow-travellers, the weather being wet, they abused the Scottish climate "the dooced weathaw, you know," and anything Scotch to their heart's content. Latterly one of them asserted that "no Englishman could ever settle down in such a region."

By this time the train was emerging from Lambert station, and—
"Nae, Englishmen settle down in this region!" echoed the old Scottish man, who had hitherto not spoken.
"Tools, man, ye're halverin nonsense.
I'll let ye see a pairt along the line-
side a bit here whaur a gey ween o' yer countrymen cam' mair than five hunder year syne, and they're no thinkin' o' leavin' yet, tho' they maun-be gey weel settled down by this time."
"Where is that?" asked several of the Englishmen at once.
"Bannockburn," replied the Scot, and silence deep as death fell on the little company.

A similar reminder was more delicately given when two English tourists a few years ago visited the scene of what has been aptly termed "the best day's work ever performed in Scotland." A local cartwright pointed out with intelligence the positions of the contending armies; the stone where Bruce's standard was fixed, and other features of interest; and the visitors before leaving pressed their informant's acceptance of a small money gratuity.
"Na, na," replied the native with noticeable pride, "put yer siller, I'll hae name o' it. It's cost ye enuch already!"
Speaking of Flodden Sir Walter Scott was wont to tell a good story of a Scotch blacksmith whom he had formerly known as a horse doctor, and whom he found at a small country town South of the border, practising medicine among the natives, with a reckless use of lawdmat and
calomy, and who apologized for the mischief he might do by the assurance that it "would be a lang time afore it made up for Flodden."

Nothing galls the national pride of the true-blue Scot more than the liberties that have been taken with that article of the Union, which expressly declared that Britain should be the only recognized destination
of the United Kingdoms of Scotland
and England. The Queen of England,
the English Ambassador, the English Army, the English Fleet, and similar expressions still in common use, despite the courageous and persistent protests of the Rev. David Macrae, and others, are therefore terms particularly offensive to a sensitive Scottish ear. A striking instance of this feeling occurred at the Battle of Tra-

Some Men Swear--
Others Just Smoke

This is just another fisherman's story. A pipe and tobacco have sometimes done more for a man than
the best of his own luck, a few pulls at the little old pipe help to buck up his courage, make him able to grin and yell, "Next!" But the story of the late William Marion Reddy went tuna fishing off the Pacific Coast somewhere over near Japan. He wrote, "and one of them is released every so often to make the round trip
of the Pacific."
Out in a motor launch with a boatman, he finally hooked one—a sixtypounder—no, by Jove, an eighty-pounder. The boat had to do a merry-go-round to keep the line from going under the keel. He reeled and unre-eled to keep the line from parting.
For 1 hour and 11 minutes man and fish fought. Then the tuna seemed tired out; it began to come in, when:
"The boatman stoops for the gaff and the fisherman raises the pole to an approximation of the perpendicular crack! The line parts like a fiddle-string and one end whips around the pole. The fish sinks like a stone.
"The fisherman looks at the boatman, who looks back one glance, then the tuna strikes a match.
"Some men swear—others just smoke."
It helps a lot to have the right tobacco at hand in times of hard luck.
"That may be Edgeworth."
Only you can tell that.
Without making any foolish claims that it must be the right tobacco for you, we invite you to try it and judge for yourself.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed in flat cakes and then sliced into thin, pointed wafers. One slice rubbed for a second between the hands furnishes an average pipeful. Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is already rubbed for you.
Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly,
and burn freely and evenly.
You will load up the little old pipe,
take back your chair, put your feet on the desk or mantelpiece, and—puff, puff, puff—decide for yourself just how good a smoking tobacco Edgeworth is.

Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin tins, and in glass jars, and also in various handy in-

heather.

"What of Shakespeare?" John has asked. "You don't claim him as a Scotchman, do you?"
"No, oh, no," Sandy has replied.
"I'll no say that Shakespeare was a Scotchman, although the way ye
brag o' him do seem to think he was mair clever enuch to be ane."
And as in the opinion of the typical Scotchman there is no man to equal a Scotsman, so there is to his mind no
land on earth like his own Scotland.
He may have wandered far away from
it, but distance only made his heart
grow fonder, and lent enchantment to
the view. And, as almost every Scotchman is a poet, if he took to simple his praises he would do so with such enthusiasm as is revealed in these
lines:—
"Land of chivalry and of freedom
Land of old traditional fame,
May thy noble sons and daughters
Long uphold thy honoured name."

And when each had had his fling
the true account would be found in the history of the two. But, oh!
John did like to get a hair in Sandy's neck, and does so still. Nothing delighted Dr. Johnson, the eminent lexicographer, more. He had the meanest opinion of the Scotch, it is well known, and never missed an opportunity of casting ridicule upon them. Thus, when compiling his famous Dictionary, he defined the word Guts as "Food for men in Scotland and horses in England." The definition afforded unalloyed delight to the English mind, until, by and by, it was
"cast in the teeth" of a witty Scottish Lord, who retorted with: "Yes,
and where will you find such men and
such horses?" Since then, the fun of
it has not been quite so apparent.
But the Doctor frequently met his
match, and got paid back in his own
coin. Soon after his return from Scotland to London, a Scotch lady
resident in the capital invited him to dinner, and in compliment to her distinguished guest ordered a dish of hotch-potch. When the great man
had tasted it, she asked him if it was good, to which he replied, with
his usual gruffness:
"Very good for hogs, I believe!"
"The pray," said the lady, "let me help you to a little more," and she did.

Of course John Bull had never been loquacious to any great extent
on the subject of Bannockburn; and Sandy, I suppose, remembering Flo-
dden, has not reminded him too frequently of the incident. Occasions
have arisen, however, when enlightenment was necessary. Thus, when many years ago, a little company of Englishmen were travelling by railway between Glasgow and Strirling,
having an old Scotoman and his wife
as fellow-travellers, the weather
being wet, they abused the Scottish
climate "the dooced weathaw, you know," and anything Scotch to their heart's content. Latterly one of them
asserted that "no Englishman could
ever settle down in such a region."

By this time the train was emerging
from Lambert station, and—
"Nae, Englishmen settle down in
this region!" echoed the old Scottish man, who had hitherto not spoken.
"Tools, man, ye're halverin nonsense.
I'll let ye see a pairt along the line-
side a bit here whaur a gey ween o'
yer countrymen cam' mair than five
hunder year syne, and they're no
thinkin' o' leavin' yet, tho' they maun-be gey weel settled down by this time."
"Where is that?" asked several of the Englishmen at once.
"Bannockburn," replied the Scot,
and silence deep as death fell on the little company.

A similar reminder was more delicately given when two English tourists a few years ago visited the scene
of what has been aptly termed "the
best day's work ever performed in Scotland." A local cartwright pointed out with intelligence the positions
of the contending armies; the stone
where Bruce's standard was fixed, and
other features of interest; and the visitors before leaving pressed their informant's acceptance of a small
money gratuity.
"Na, na," replied the native with noticeable pride, "put yer siller, I'll hae name o' it. It's cost ye enuch already!"
Speaking of Flodden Sir Walter
Scott was wont to tell a good story
of a Scotch blacksmith whom he had
formerly known as a horse doctor,
and whom he found at a small country town South of the border, practising medicine among the natives,
with a reckless use of lawdmat and
calomy, and who apologized for the mischief he might do by the assurance that it "would be a lang time
 afore it made up for Flodden."

Nothing galls the national pride of the true-blue Scot more than the
liberties that have been taken with
that article of the Union, which expressly declared that Britain should be the only recognized destination
of the United Kingdoms of Scotland
and England. The Queen of England,
the English Ambassador, the English Army, the English Fleet, and similar
expressions still in common use, despite the courageous and persistent protests of the Rev. David Macrae, and others, are therefore terms particularly offensive to a sensitive Scottish ear. A striking instance of this feeling occurred at the Battle of Tra-

Some Men Swear--
Others Just Smoke

This is just another fisherman's story. A pipe and tobacco have sometimes done more for a man than
the best of his own luck, a few pulls
at the little old pipe help to buck up
his courage, make him able to grin
and yell, "Next!" But the story of the late William Marion Reddy
went tuna fishing off the Pacific Coast somewhere over near Japan. He wrote, "and one of them is released
every so often to make the round trip
of the Pacific."
Out in a motor launch with a boatman, he finally hooked one—a sixtypounder—no, by Jove, an eighty-pounder. The boat had to do a merry-
go-round to keep the line from going
under the keel. He reeled and unre-eled to keep the line from parting.
For 1 hour and 11 minutes man and fish fought. Then the tuna seemed tired out; it began to come in, when:
"The boatman stoops for the gaff
and the fisherman raises the pole to an
approximation of the perpendicular crack! The line parts like a fiddle-string and one end whips around the pole. The fish sinks like a stone.
"The fisherman looks at the boatman, who looks back one glance, then the tuna strikes a match.
"Some men swear—others just
smoke."
It helps a lot to have the right tobacco at hand in times of hard luck.
"That may be Edgeworth."
Only you can tell that.
Without making any foolish claims
that it must be the right tobacco for
you, we invite you to try it and judge
for yourself.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed in
flat cakes and then sliced into thin, pointed wafers. One slice rubbed for a second between the hands furnishes
an average pipeful. Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is already rubbed for you.
Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly,
and burn freely and evenly.
You will load up the little old pipe,
take back your chair, put your feet on
the desk or mantelpiece, and—puff, puff, puff—decide for yourself just how good a smoking tobacco Edgeworth
is.

Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed
in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin tins, and in glass jars,
and also in various handy in-between quantities. Sold everywhere.

It has been a favorite sarcasm of John that the finest view in all Scotland to the eye of the Scot is the road that leads from it into England. No wonder, for the Scotchman, who has
many a living London Cockney, a Scotchman is only slightly superior to
a Red Indian savage. "Arry entertains
in all seriousness the conviction that
every home-bred Scotman is red-
headed; and that we all wear kilts,
play on the bag-pipes, drink whisky
ad lib, snuff, and feed exclusively on
kail-brose and bannocks of barley
bread." Scotchmen, on the other hand, regarded himself individually as the
ideal man—the noblest work of his
creator—and has declared the English to be "maybe no sae very bad considerin', but even at the best
neither mair nor less than a parcel o'
upsettin'; ignorant, pock-puddin' in
it." It has been English money in general, but Scotch brains in particular, he
has asserted time and again, that he has made London what it is. "All
the brightest intellectual luminaries of
your London firmament," he has told John Bull, "have been nursed and reared amid the hills o' Bonnie Scot-
heather.

"What of Shakespeare?" John has asked. "You don't claim him as a Scotchman, do you?"
"No, oh, no," Sandy has replied.
"I'll no say that Shakespeare was a Scotchman, although the way ye
brag o' him do seem to think he was mair clever enuch to be ane."

Message of The Leaves.

Walked among the trees in the autumn time. The leaves were in their brightest colors, as if for a holiday.
 I walked in this wonderful land of beauty, the south wind moved the branches and countless leaves of these leaves fell to the ground in a shower of loveliness. There was sadness even in their falling! I seemed to nod kindly to each other as they fell in a glad, playful way.
 I descended with cheering to the ground. It was the falling to the earth was the climax that finished a glorious life.
 I knew that each little leaf had a quiet grave somewhere in the soil. Going to a grave in the autumn, and in the garb of a beauty.
 I thought of this as I walked. There was a good lesson here, for all. These little leaves, they are not wiser teachers than the ones about in the market place? Who can speak a higher or a more true word than just this: Do well in the summer of life, so when the autumn comes and the winter time, you can go, as does the leaf, in happy confidence to your grave.
 How beautiful! This is the one message of life and the deep meaning of Christian service, in getting ready to live. The door is open to life. Our time is there. "Thou foolish one, which thou thyself sowest is not sown unless it die." So also is the resurrection of the dead. "And so we shall be with the Lord."

Safe Medical Advice.
 The doctor had left his instructions sufficient to carry on during his absence through the afternoon. All went well till the 'phone rang and a sweet feminine voice enquired, "Is the doctor in? May I speak to him?" The assistant per instructions, explained the doctor's absence and inquired if he could be of any use. The lady caller's voice was worried as she went on.
 "Oh, I am so sorry, I am phoning for Mrs. Blank and it is very important. Tell the doctor immediately on his return that Mrs. Blank is having a gymkhana coming on and she wonders if he can do anything for it."
 The assistant made a hurried note and reassured his caller. "I'll tell the doctor as soon as he returns. And, meanwhile, tell her to put a mustard poultice on it and renew every two hours."—Argonaut.

Britain Renders Homage.
 TO THOSE WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES
 LONDON, Nov. 11.—With solemnity that is heightened rather than diminished by the passage of years, Great Britain to-day rendered homage to those who "gave the most that man can give—life itself," in the Great War.
 From the moment heralds signalled the hour at which hostilities ceased until two minutes had gone by everything and everyone in the nation were still. There were elaborate ceremonies in Great Britain to mark the great silence. Even at the cenotaph in Whitehall, the heart of the Empire, the proceedings were of the most simple manner. The King, representing the nation, laid a wreath on the memorial to the silent sons of Britain.

 The ministry, representatives of the army, navy and the dominions, paid similar tribute, and then the people, coming in a great pilgrimage through Whitehall, placed their offerings about the memorial.
 Throughout the day thousands passed in a constant stream by the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey.
 This was poppy day, too, and millions wore the little symbols, recalling the poppies that grew in Flanders fields, "between the crosses, row on row."
 The money received from the sale of the little flowers will go to help the ex-service men and their dependents.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.
Miss Annie McSwiney has joined her sister Mary, now on a hunger strike, and under detention by the Free State in Mt. Joy Prison. She arrived at the jail gates last night, accompanied by twelve other women, and after a Rosary announced her intention of staying at the prison entrance without food, until her sister is given spiritual consolation or released. Her friends stood guard over her all night while she fasted and prayed.

We shall never get anything from Germany so long as we limit our action to prayer and supplication, he is quoted as continuing and we will not do anything until a conference is held, where we should meet all the Allies, probably in December at Brussels.

PRELATE CONDEMNNS REPUBLICANS.

the overwhelming majority of the people, claiming that not one person in a hundred favors action of the irregular troops. The number engaged in the Republican force movement is comparatively small, he said, and it is a wrong and cruel thing for less than one per cent. of the population to continue a campaign of destruction which is ruining the country.

QUAKES CONTINUE.
SANTIAGO, Nov. 18.
Earth shocks continued yesterday at Valparaiso, shaking down the last of the walls left standing. There were no further casualties. Three persons have been taken from debris, living, after being buried six days.

Gypsies and Money.
The gypsies have many queer ways of keeping money. Some of the younger men and women use the savings banks, but the older members of the tribe still prefer to keep their wealth in quaint hiding places.

On the death of Mary Anne Doe, the gypsy queen, her relatives prepared to burn her cart according to the usual custom. It had been broken up and just about to be fired, when sharp eyes detected the gleam of gold between two lengths of board that were nailed together. No fewer than 400 sovereigns were found concealed in this strange hiding hole.

Other queer "banks" are the linings of hats and coats, and hollow heels of boots, which are used for hoarding notes. Even the stuffing of the horses' harness has sometimes been used as a hiding place for gold and paper money.—Pearson's.

TELEPHONE CO. AND HARVEY'S WIN.

On Thursday night last, in the Bowling Alley, of the Seamen's Institute, two very interesting matches were played, the first between Bowling's and the Telephone Co., which ended by the latter winning out by two sets to one in a very closely contested game, while in the second fixture, Harvey & Co. had it all their own way over the Nail Factory four, winning by three clear sets to their opponents nil. The highest scorer for the evening was M. Squires' of Harvey's, with the creditable figures of 439 points. The highest score in the single sets, played between Bowling's and Telephone Co., went to Mr. W. Brennan of the latter team, with 165 points, while Knight of the Nail Factory, ran up a score of 163 points in the second set of his game. The following are the scores of both games as per set.

In Wednesday night's game played between the Post Office and Baird's team, the third set of the series, was protested, which resulted in an extra game being played, and instead of getting the credit of winning two sets to their opponents one, as appeared in the Telegram yesterday, the number should have read three.

The contesting Clubs in last night's Commercial Bowling League were Bishops and the Imperial Tobacco Company fours. The game, which was a spirited contest right through to the end resulted in a victory for Bishop's team by two sets to one. The results of the sets played are as follows:

Sky Whirlpools.

The envelope of air surrounding the earth, which we call the atmosphere, is in many ways like the waters of the sea. Its currents take the form of winds; and just as is the case with the sea and river currents, they form great whirlpools every now and then.

If the huge eddy of wind currents is revolving in the opposite direction to that taken by the hands of a clock it is called a cyclone, an anti-cyclone whirl in a clockwise direction.

There is another difference between the two, which is of greater importance. The cyclone is a whirlpool in which the greatest pressure is on the outside edge of the current and the lowest at its centre. In an anti-cyclone these conditions are reversed. Pressure is lowest at the fringes and highest in the centre of the eddy.

High pressure means a high barometer and fine weather; low pressure gives a low glass and rain. The cyclone, therefore, when it settles down, always brings bad weather. The anti-cyclone is rainy and equally at its fringes, but its centre is always calm and dry.

Sulphur Rains.
Strange stories are sometimes told of the wonderful things that have fallen in rainstorms. Occasionally it is frogs, again it is splashes of blood, or some mineral such as sulphur. Frequently there is a foundation for these stories, and investigation furnishes an explanation of the phenomena.

Mines of Wax.
(By George H. Holden.)
Have you ever heard of natural wax? Well, on the west coast of the Caspian Sea, and in Galicia, the wax mines provide work for hundreds of people, and the wax brought up from the bowels of the earth so closely resembles genuine beeswax that it is difficult to tell the difference.

Stand Shoulder to Shoulder.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—There is no doubt but Wednesday night's meeting in the C. L. B. Armory showed that the United Fishermen and the large gathering of citizens of St. John's, who were present, are determined that the present conditions must cease. With the movement and the resolutions passed at that meeting, I am in full accord. Keep it up friends, and carry on until Newfoundland gets the spirit, until we all speak and act as one. Let north, south, east and west walk shoulder to shoulder. Too long have we slept. It is time that we woke up and demanded that the present election promise of reduced taxation be fulfilled. It is time to demand that taxes be reduced, useless offices abolished, huge salaries cut down, and useless expenditure curtailed. Keep the movement going, friends, and even if your just demands are not accorded to the country will be at your back. We must each of us get behind this movement, then when next polling day comes we will know who is who, and the present Government of good intentions (?) will be buried forever. Never again let us elect such squandering and round trippers. Let each one voice the sentiments of the Fishermen and throw the bunch overboard.

Respectfully yours,
MARK FREEMAN.

Practical Joke Causes Doctor's Death.
A perverted sense of humor was the cause of the death of Dr. John Jacques of Fisherville and the narrow escape of his son from sharing the same fate early on Sunday morning, October 29. At the coroner's inquest held at Hagersville it was brought out in evidence that some practical joker had removed the red light which was hung on the barrier across the road at Nantkoke Creek, near Fisherville, where the contractor had demolished the old bridge, preparatory to installing a new structure. The light was found later hanging on the Garret Bridge, six miles from ### Disease Facts Curb Sickness.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY.

New York, Nov. 18.—According to Dr. Donald C. Balfour, of the Mayo Clinic, one of the great movements of modern medicine has been the dissemination of knowledge on matters of individual and public health. Dr.
Balfour makes this statement in the leading editorial in a recent issue of Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, the official journal of the American College of Surgeons. The editorial deals largely with cancer, and points out that one of the most common misconceptions is that the knife spreads the disease.

"If the cures of cancer by early operation could be given the publicity that is given to failures to cure by late operations, this misconception would be quickly dispelled," says Dr. Balfour. "The desirability of more comprehensive and organized efforts to acquaint the public with the vital facts concerning cancer led to the formation of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

"Since the only immediate prospect of bringing about a decline in the death rate is through greater familiarity on the part of the public with the fact that in early diagnosis and treatment lies the one hope of cure, it is certain that such a campaign, particularly if followed up by continuous educational propaganda, as has been urged by the Journal of the American Medical Association, will save many persons from death by cancer.

"The American Society for the Control of Cancer, having as its chief aim the circulation of information concerning cancer, deserves the encouragement and aid which comes from the interest and active support of the medical profession. Of equal importance would be the efforts of the profession to decrease the fatal period of delay between the time the patient seeks advice and the time proper treatment is advised and carried out."

Mae Edwards Players Coming to Opera House Next Week.

"The Moth," chosen as the opening play for Miss Edwards and her splendid company, has surely proven an irresistible vehicle to ever increasing numbers of amusement seekers. Few stock companies have established the reputation which Miss Edwards and her associate players are enjoying throughout the New England States.
Their name is a guarantee of more than average histrionic ability, and they never fail to justify anticipations. "The Moth" there is ample room for clever acting and each and every member will be seen to the very best advantage. Miss Edwards is supported by Jack Werner Corbin and a splendid cast with Mal Murray and Miss Gertrude Riggs in the comedy.

The usual high class vaudeville between the acts will be greatly benefitted by the Mae Edwards Novelty Orchestra under the direction of "Bill" Otis.

The Mae Edwards Players have been termed for years "The Big Fun Show," and this season finds this attraction hitting on all, and is far in advance of all competitors.

WILL SPECIALIZE IN WOOLLENS

The well known dry goods store conducted by Cross & Co., on Duck-past week. Under the new management a first class stock of dry goods particularly suitable for export trade lens will be made a specialty. It is anticipated that the store will be well patronized, filling as it does a long felt want in this section of the city.

Obituary.

MRS. ALEX. CUMMING.
Mrs. James of Springville St. has received the sad news that her aunt, Mrs.
Alex. Cumming has died at Aberdeen, Scotland, after a brief illness. The deceased was the daughter of the late Phillip Grouchy, of Pouch Cove. Besides a devoted husband, who held a commission in the Gordon Highlanders in the late war, and who is also a veteran of the South African war, she leaves to mourn her daughter, the one son; three sisters and one brother.

Mr. Jennings is Indignant.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—If the two "sneaks" who vented their spleen and malice against me in your columns yesterday, under fictitious names, will call at my office in the Public Works Building between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock on Monday next, I will tell them a few things about Green Bay and its other matters, of which they are in the depths of ignorance. Their craven hearts need not shrink within themselves for fear, as I shall be alone and unarmed.
These cowardly anonymous character assassins, too much ashamed of their own names, to see them in print, are not worth wasting paper and ink over anyhow. Mongrels usually choose to "yap" behind fences.
Yours truly,
W. B. JENNINGS.

Mr. Pearce Explains.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Upon reading your edition of last evening, I noticed in your Police Court news a reference to a man named Pearce who was convicted for "selling liquor on his premises." I know that when I ask you to retract
this statement and confirm the truthfulness of it through your columns, you will readily do so in the interests of the reputation your paper is noted for. To anyone who attended the Court session of yesterday the facts will be quite apparent and the evidence shown that I was selling lumber to a man on Duckworth Street who gave me a bottle of lemonade—as I thought, he told me so. At Cochrane St. a policeman named Rideout asked me for a drink. Thinking to joke with him, I offered him as a hoax the bottle of lemonade. He took it away and a prosecution was the result. The judge sympathized with my dilemma, it being hardly possible for any sane enemies hands voluntarily, and moreover into the hands of a thirsty policeman eager for fame and notoriety of a very dubious nature. This was the evidence in the case and I know you will publish this letter in fairness.
Your humble servant,
D. J. PEARCE.

Hockey Season Approaches.

ST. BON'S GETTING READY.
A meeting of the Old St. Bonavent-ures' Hockey Club will be held in the Aula Maxima tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the necessary preparations will be made for the season's games. St. Bon's can boast of a good Hockey team; they have all last year's material in their ranks with the exception of one man, Mr. "Coke" Cahill, who is now in Halifax. His place will be taken by Mr. Charles Es-gan, who two winters ago played very flashy hockey before the sporting public. The annual meeting of the Newfoundland Hockey Association will be held very shortly, when the various Clubs will get busy and line up their material for the coming series. It is quite probable that a Canadian team from Montreal will visit here this season, while it is said that Briggs are looking forward to coming early in January to play a series of games.

Acknowledgment.

The Superintendent of the Methodist Orphanage desires to thank the members of Wesley Church Choir for their generous donation to the orphanage of two pairs stockings each, caps and snuffers, soap, etc., etc., and for the lovely tea and entertainment given to the children on Thursday last. Many thanks are due to the Misses Nichol and Taylor for their thoughtful and kind efforts in promoting it, and to Mr. H. Chaplin and the Methodist Guards Band for making the entertainment a success.

CORNS Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Fressone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with your fingers. Truly!

"Fressone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irrita-

Poor Mr. Jennings.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I was very forcibly struck with a letter which appeared in your paper of 17th date from one of your correspondents who was replying to our genial, but unequalled Minister of Public Works on a letter written by him with reference to something, one of the United Fisherman Movement Committee had said about Green Bay, to which I belong. What struck me probably more forcibly than anything else, was the rapid quick outburst which seized the Minister so suddenly. It was very evident that he has been sleeping, for this has been the first time since his election that we have seen him coming to the fore, and no doubt this would not have occurred had not there been someone treading, too heavily on Mr. J.'s toes.
Your correspondent of last evening referred to the Deer Lake Rd. and its construction. I tell you Mr. Editor that the hat will never be told. For the hardships these people endured were unpeakable. I know whereof I speak, for I was employed on this road and knew practically every man that was on it. Let me tell Mr. Jennings and the Government that if they think that it carried any influence for them, I am very much afraid that they are badly led. No doubt Mr.
Jennings will reply to this letter but I know that when I ask you to retract
this statement and confirm the truthfulness of it through your columns, you
will readily do so in the interests of
the reputation your paper is noted
for. To anyone who attended the Court session of yesterday the facts

dence shown that I was selling lumber

being hardly possible for any sane
enemies hands voluntarily, and more-

evidence in the case and I know you

The Gold Fish May Now Be Claimed.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—We were members of the deputation from the United Fishermen which waited on the export merchants and the Government some days ago, without success. When we waited on the Government, the Hon. W. F. Coaker was present, and he agreed with his colleagues in saying that nothing could be done to aid us. Afterwards we waited on Mr. Coaker personally, thinking that perhaps he would be more favorable in his expressions than he had been when with his colleagues. But he told us that it was impossible to pay $5.00 for Labrador fish and $7.00 for Shore fish; that if the Export Tax were taken of the fishermen would not get it.

 As he talked with us he was dangling a gold fish on his watchguard, and taking it in his hand said he would give it to the man who could get a better price than he offered. We hope, Sir, Mr. Coaker will at least keep this promise. The deputation will willingly wait on him for it, and will see that it goes to the man who really succeeded in getting us the increased price.
 We asked him "to give the amount of the Export Tax to the fishermen directly as a bonus," and he did not agree. He said that it was the merchants, not the fishermen, who paid the Export Tax. He also said that the Government could not reduce salaries; that the Ministers had to pay away so much charity that they needed all the salaries they got, and he referred to himself and Mr. Jennings, as two who couldn't do with any less than they were getting. He showed himself, distinctly hostile to our ideas that public expenditure and taxation should be reduced.

 Our interview with Mr. Coaker was before the deputation returned from St. John's, and the deputation never saw him after it returned, as he wrongly states.
 When we saw him, Capt. Stanley Barbour said to him: "Now, Mr. Coaker, this is the chance of your life to take hold of this movement and lead it"; but Mr. Coaker turned the suggestion down, and then he hurried off to Port Union to get away from the fishermen.

 The telegrams passing between Chairman Winsor and Mr. Coaker show that his presence was requested here, and then demanded, and that to both request and demand he turned a deaf ear. The only way to get him here, apparently, is to go for him and bring him here.
 Yours truly,

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT S.P.C.A. WEEK ENDING NOV. 17.

Was called at 6 a.m. Sunday morning to humanely destroy a horse owned by the Municipal Council. The animal was past its labor and in pain. I destroyed another which fell on Allendale Road and could not get up, it was owned by Mr. Bulger; also humanely destroyed a valuable dog on Chrapasian Avenue; also one on Bond St. being a very vicious animal; another on Flower Hill, which was an annoyance to the neighbors. Attended to the landing of 100 head cattle, sheep, pigs and horses from the "Canadian Sapper," one cow dying on the passage. The animal calved a day after having been taken on board at Charlottetown. In my opinion it should not be taken on board in that particular condition unless hoisted aboard in a box or allowed to have walked up the skids, as when strapped in a sling, and put aboard whilst in that condition humanely speaking it shows a lack of good judgment and is a cruelty to the animals. Attended three sales of cattle at Neal's Wharf, saw that the best possible under the circumstances was done for them. Attended to the landing of 25 head cattle from the "Sable L." and 14 head from the train. Interviewed some people who had cattle out, but as far as I know all cattle around the suburbs are now housed. Received report that people taking sheep from town to the nearby settlements are tardy in getting them from the express. Interviewed those people who said that they make no delay in pleasing the sheep when they get home. Some sheep have arrived here on the decks of schooners, the masters say that they know nothing of the law concerning the same, as in some places they never see a copy of the "Royal Gazette," which gave them due warning. Quite a number of accidents happened on Tuesday owing to the slippery conditions of the streets. Two box carts were broken up on LeMarchant Road. I may state here that Mr. C. Lester sent down several loads of ashes to the Furness Withy and Harvey & Co's archways, this helped matters considerably. Mr. Harvey Thomas, truckman at Job Bros., had a lot of salt spread over Job's Cove and near Shea's archway, this was also helpful and shows right sort of humane spirit. Received word of dogs being a great annoyance at night time in the East End of the city. Owners are asked to try and keep the dogs in cold nights and see they are properly fed or I shall issue summons against all owners for wilful neglect and public annoyance.
 JONAS BARTER,

water on everything" was like that friend of mine. And it does seem to me that one can be reasonably honest and frank without being so much of a wet blanket.

If I had to choose between, on the one hand, being honest and making a person who has bought a hat and has not to live with it for the winter feel that every time she put it on she looked her worst and, on the other hand, being utterly dishonest and risking my eternal soul, I doubt if I should save my soul.

But I do think a tactful person can manage to save both his own soul and the other person's feelings.

Why Not Admire First?
There are always good points and bad points about anything on which you are called to pass an opinion. A hat may be an ugly shape but it may have a lovely flower in it. A dress may be an unbecoming color but of smart cut. Can't one speak about the good and just keep quiet on the other points. If you want to suggest the remedy of some defect, can't you make a pleasant first impression by admiring in the first place and then later tactfully suggesting that the effect would be even more charming if some minor defect were removed.

PUBLIC MEETINGS BEING HELD.
The movement of the United Fishermen is being endorsed all over the country and meetings to this effect are being held. A message to a city business man, received yesterday, states that a public meeting was taking place last night at Willingdale. At Carbonara last night an enthusiastic Committee meeting of fishermen was held in St. James' club room, when a resolution was unanimously passed to co-operate with the United Fishermen's movement at St. John's. A public meeting will be held in St. James' Hall, Carbonara, on Monday night.

Capt. Jesse Winsor Replies to Mr. Coaker.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In reply to the message from Hon. W. F. Coaker, dated from Port Union on November 15th, and published in the Advocate yesterday I wish to say:

First, he remarks, "I regret exceedingly that the Wesleyville movement was not continued as started on non-political lines." This is the first admission by him that it was so started. His organ, the Advocate, has from the outset treated it as a political movement. Telegram's addressed to Mr. Coaker, which must have been furnished by him, have been published in the Advocate, stating that the movement was entirely political, and that the F.P.U. had and would have no part or lot in it. His organ has rung for weeks with a false charge that Mr. Morine started the movement and that it was for political purposes. Second, he says, "I was not consulted, nor was my opinion asked, by the officials, until after the deputation returned from St. John's. This statement is utterly false. He was NOT consulted AFTER the deputation returned, but he WAS consulted by the deputation when it was here in St. John's. The whole deputation consulted the Government when Mr. Coaker was present, and part of the deputation consulted him personally, immediately afterwards. I personally sent him a telegram before the deputation started for St. John's, asking for his help, and tomorrow I will give you a copy.

To Mr. Coaker's statement that, "because it was intimated to him that if taxation was not reduced twenty-five per cent, a demand for the Government's resignation would be made, he would not whole-heartedly join in a movement directed against the Government," the plain answer is this: if a substantial reduction in taxation were made, even though it did not amount exactly to twenty-five per cent, no sane person would on that account demand the resignation of the Government, and if Mr. Coaker was in favor of reducing taxes, and wished to serve his colleagues in the best possible way, he would have connected himself with the movement, to help secure a real substantial reduction, and when, if ever, the movement became unreasonable, Mr. Coaker would have severed himself from it.

Mr. Coaker makes two conditional statements: first, that "provided the tax is paid (directly through the Customs) to the men who sold their fish this season to the merchants, he will favor the abolition of the Export Tax." That is to say, he will only agree to take it off in the future, provided what has been collected during the year, on fish shipped this season, is paid to the fishermen. My answer is this, there is no good reason why those who have fish to sell should receive a lower price than they would if the tax was removed, simply because the tax was on when other fish was sold; and in the second place, that the repayment of the tax directly to the fishermen, on the fish already sold, and how it shall be paid, whether through the customs or other wise, is a matter of detail for the Government. All that Mr. Coaker had to do was agree with his colleagues that the amount of tax collected should be repaid, and how.

By the letter received from the Government this day it appears that the Government have not agreed with Mr. Coaker as to how the tax already collected shall be repaid; but have decided to give it to the merchants for distribution, which I regard as wrong and impracticable. In the third place, Mr. Coaker has said, with the plain purpose to de-

Worn-out Housewife Tells How She Quickly Regained Her Health and Strength.

"Only a short two weeks ago I was so tired, nervous and worn-out from the strain on my nerves and strength of household drudgery, that although I could not sleep, I could not get up. I was so weak and nervous, that I was a typical hypochondriac. I was so nervous that I was unable to do my household work. I was so nervous that I was unable to do my household work. I was so nervous that I was unable to do my household work."

ceive and humbug, that "if other buyers will pay $4.50 for all dealers' fish taken at least, I am willing to pay the same." My answer to this, Sir, why is Mr. Coaker not here trying to get the other merchants to agree with him: to pay $4.50, or a higher price? Why has he left it to us to bring about such an agreement? What have we got to do with making an agreement between other buyers and him? How is he to be bound to keep his agreement with other merchants? We asked him to come here. We demanded his presence. When he refused, we asked for his resignation. We have even threatened to bring him here by force. If he had been here to help us in the way his office would have enabled him to do, we would have been successful long ago.

Finally, Sir, Mr. Coaker said, days ago, whatever the Government decided would meet his approval, and that day the Government positively refused to abolish the Fish Export Tax. Yesterday morning, the Acting Prime Minister refused to consider the matter. This morning the deputation again waited upon the Acting Prime Minister and insisted upon a further reconsideration of our petition, but were informed by Mr. Shea, that while he was personally favorable, it was necessary for him to consult with his colleagues, and he promised to call a meeting of the Executive for the afternoon. We then again met the Government and were told that the members then present (Hogg, Gibb, Hellyard, Barnes, Foote and Campbell) were in favor of remitting the Export Tax, subject to the approval of the Prime Minister, which they had called for, and they would be in a position to give a final answer to-day at 2.15 p.m. Before that hour, the Advocate was on the street with an attempt to give Coaker the credit, but from the above it will be seen that we practically had the Government's assurance twenty-four hours previously. The decision reached by the members of the Government here was not because of any action by Mr. Coaker, but was due to pressure from us.

Yours truly,
JESSE WINSOR,
Chairman United Fishermen,

Terrible Weeping Eczema.

For the year 1909, I suffered with weeping eczema on my hands which caused me very much pain and worry for I could not use my hands for but very few things. I tried many remedies but they all failed to give me any relief and I was obliged to give up my work and came south at the same time continuing to use any preparation recommended to me but my hands continued to get worse until I was told to try D.D.D. Prescription, also soap, which I at once did and the first two or three applications gave me the greatest relief and when I had used but half a dollar bottle my hands were healed. I am indeed very thankful for your splendid prescription and may its fame spread world wide, is the wish of

D.D.D. Lotion for Skin Disease

GOOD INFLUENCE.
What, singing, angel-throated, I cleared my place of weeds, and all the neighbors noted my wise and righteous deeds. The neighborhood was shabby, much rubbish was in view, with here an old dead tabby, and there a kangaroo. The houses were unpainted, and were the gates and stiles, and all the air was tainted by many many garbage piles. I said, "Though all my neighbors may let things go to smash, I'll spring some useful labor, and clear away my trash. I'll make my place so nifty that passers-by will stand in groups of ten or fifty, and say it beats the band." My deeds the neighbors noted, and cried, in terms refined, "That bard, so fat and bloated, can't leave us all behind. If he, in hat and sweater, can make things neat and clean, we too can make things better, we wot and wot and wot." And so they all got busy, and labored through the day; in barrow and in little they hauled the trash away. And now when strangers wander along our village street, they gaze and mark and ponder, and say we can't be beat. They say, "This town is giving new curves in human bliss; there is some sense in living in such a burg as this."

Bachelor of Arts' Rights

FORMERLY IT WAS HIS PRIVILEGE TO TEACH, HATLESS IN THE SCHOOL OF A MASTER.

"By virtue of the power vested in me by the board of trustees of Podunk University, I do hereby admit to you the degree of Bachelor of Arts and to all the rights and privileges thereof."
What could comfort such knowledge may bring to the budding A. B. will be made still clearer by the information that this particular degree means virtually nothing, remarks a New York Sun writer. Historically, the A. B. Degree was simply a license to teach and to proceed to a higher degree. In the thirteenth century at Paris it was conferred upon students who had passed certain preliminary tests—notice the "preliminary."

At Bologna it meant that one might teach in a master's school; it, permitted one to be a sort of pupil teacher. But even his benefit was qualified. Let us to the chronicles:
"Bachelor lectures were apparently looked upon rather in the light of academical exercises for the lecturers than a means of instruction for the pupils. It was sometimes necessary for an ambitious student who was anxious to have an audience to bribe the scholars under him by gifts or loans of money."
And what's more, an A.B. had to teach hatless. The right to wear a hat while teaching was reserved to the masters and the placing of the biretta or cap symbolized the entrance from bachelordom to mastership.
And are these the "rights and privileges" for which the ambitious student works or bluffs for four long years? Shouldn't proxy free himself from the bonds of precedent and deliver a more meaningful formula? But stay? There are some rights to which the new-fledged graduate may cling.
When once he may add his name to those first two letters of the alphabet he may also get in line for the honored position of "oldest living graduate." His degree confers upon him also the privilege of complaining that "it wasn't like this in the olden days" and of the beginning of his tales with "Do you remember when—"
