FURTHER AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

The number of Automobile Accidents, doing both injury to life and damage to property, is increasing daily. In many cases the auto owner cannot avoid these unfortunate occurrences, but whether to blame or not, he is invariably held responsible, and often called upon to pay large sums of money, far beyond the average man's ability. No owner, therefore, can afford to operate a car without the financial backing of the Automobile Policy. OUR Policy not only indemnifies the Insured against loss from the liability imposed by law, but also provides for the Defence and all expenses of Court. The premium for this protection is but small.

Earthquake in California Brings Disaster and Death to Santa Barbara

New Canadian Offices in Trafalgar Square Opened by the King---General Strike May be Called by U.M.W. of America.

SERIOUS EARTHQUAKE IN CALIFORNIA

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 29. All the brick buildings in Santa Barbara were demolished this morning including the Arlington Hotel by the earthquake which swept the state, and it seems to have centered its ferocity on this city. Water mains and river reservoirs were broken and the city was partly flooded.

EARTHQUAKE ZONE EXTENSIVE

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif., June 29. A Southern Pacific relief train is leaving here at once to assist Santa Barbara. Reports received here by the Southern Pacific officials say that the railroad round house, the city reservoir, the San Marcos building, and the Arlington Hotel have been destroyed. It also was reported that the State street had been torn up by the shock. Reports from Los Olivos, Santa Maria, Tompoc, Orcutt, and Nipomo south of here said that those points had been shaken but not damaged. All telegraph and telephone wires between here and Santa Barbara are down.

DISASTER TO SANTA BARBARA

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 29. Santa Barbara, the picturesque little city, perched high above the ocean in Southern California, suffered disaster, the extent of which has not been determined late this morning, in an earthquake which was general over Southern California, shortly before 7 a.m. but apparently struck lightly in other towns. Communication with Santa Barbara was cut off immediately after the shocks, but meagre reports which filtered into San Francisco and Los Angeles within the next two hours said most of the buildings on State Street had been destroyed. The famous Arlington Hotel, a leading hotel and school building, was said to have been demolished. There was no mention of loss of life or injuries. Other hotels reported destroyed were Cabrillo House and Big Beach Hotel. Witnesses returning to Ventura from Santa Barbara reported that Santa Barbara's water mains had burst, flooding the city. No fires were reported. The

CUTICURA HEALS CHILD'S ECZEMA

On Face in Red Pimples, Itched and Burned Terribly. Lost Rest.

"When my niece was six months old eczema broke out on her face in small, red pimples. It itched and burned terribly causing her to scratch, and she was very cross. She lost her rest at night, and her face was disfigured. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased more, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment she was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Marchand, Box 12, Archa, Nova Scotia.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for all toilet uses. Baths with Soap, a scrub with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

dian Building henceforth will be one of the landmarks of London, like the offices of the Australian and South African Governments here. It says, these fine Dominion offices are more than an embellishment for London, than a business investment for the Governments which possess them; they are symbols of the Imperial connection which none of the millions of people who pass them can overlook.

MONUMENT TO VICTIM OF RBS DISASTER

LONDON, June 29. Alonzo B. Houghton, United States Ambassador, to-day unveiled in the library of the Royal Aeronautical Society, a tablet to the memory of the British and American sailors who were killed in the RBS disaster near Hull, England, on August 24, 1921. The dirigible, R38, British built and purchased by the United States from Great Britain, exploded over the river Humber near Hull while on a trial trip preparatory to flying to the United States. Twenty-seven officers and men of the British Navy and seven officers and men of the United States Navy were killed.

CANADA'S FISHERY IN MAY

OTTAWA, June 29. Canada's sea harvest increased in value in May 1925, $7,264,500 pounds sea fish were landed on both coasts and the value of the catch, $2,832,165, and the value of the catch, $2,832,165, is nearly a million dollars higher than in May, 1924. On the Atlantic coast the catch of mackerel, shad and scallops was plentiful and lobster fishing brought more than twice the catch in the previous May in spite of rough weather towards the end of the month. Four fishermen lost their lives on the Atlantic coast in May, 1925.

Child Welfare Prize Essay

The following Essay written by James Grive, Bishop Field College, won 1st prize among the boy students aged 15-18 in the competition held in the schools under the auspices of the Child Welfare Association:—

MY DUTIES AS A YOUNG CITIZEN.

1. What is a Citizen.
2. A young citizen must learn to: (a) Submit to law and order; (b) Uphold the authorities; Resist disorder.
3. A contemplation of city improvements required from every young citizen.

The word "citizen" has its origin and derivation from the Latin noun "Civis" which meant an inhabitant by birth of the Roman Empire. So to-day a citizen is a member of a community whether it be great or small. In practically all countries a citizen enjoys various privileges, the two greatest being the right to vote in political and the right to vote in Municipal elections. Thus a citizen has a share in controlling both his country and city. The young boy of ten or twelve years is not expected to take a very extensive interest in the government of his country or city, but as he grows older this consideration is demanded of him.

It is extremely important that the young citizen should learn by experience what his duties are, and thus be enabled to use his privileges to the best advantage of his community when he is a full-fledged citizen. He first must learn to submit and obey public laws. When he considers these laws he will understand and appreciate them as they are made by public officials for public benefit. He should also aid the authorities at all times to the best of his ability and thus see the reason why this and that movement is being made.

Perhaps the greatest help a young citizen may be to his city is to resist disorder and vandalism. There is a great opportunity for the young citizens of all towns and cities to prove their material value by restraining the smaller children and preventing them from damaging other people's property becoming a general nuisance to the community. Most young children delight in marking and scribbling on house-sides and board fences with chalk, and by doing this they make their city appear shabby and neglected. It is impossible for the police to prevent this in many cases, but the general public have many opportunities which should be taken and the offenders punished.

CANADA HOUSE OPENED BY KING GEORGE

LONDON, June 29. King George accompanied by Queen Mary to-day formally opened Canada House, the new Canadian headquarters in London. Their Majesties drove from Buckingham Palace by way of the Mall and Admiralty Arch to the main entrance of the building on Cockspur Street, and were received at the foot of the steps by Hon P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, who handed the key of the building to the King. When the doors were opened His Majesty returned the key to Mr. Larkin.

SYMBOLS OF IMPERIAL CONNECTIONS

LONDON, June 29. The London papers give prominence to to-day's ceremony in connection with the opening by King George of Canada House, the new quarters of the Canadian Government in Trafalgar Square. The Daily Chronicle in a leading editorial, says the Canadian

Why Use Radio Frequency Amplification?

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

The vacuum tube detector is said to have what is known as a "threshold value" below which a radio signal impressed upon the grid of the tube will be too weak to sufficiently affect the grid to cause any audible sound in the plate circuit. There may be lots and lots of radio signals wandering in and out of your detector tube and you are totally unaware of the fact because they are too weak to be detected by the ear. We used to think that the more audio frequency amplification we added the longer would be the receiving radius. Please note we said audio frequency amplification.

One stage of audio frequency amplification will increase the receiving range over that which is obtained by using a detector alone, but it is very doubtful if more than one stage adds anything to the range of reception. There will be some signals which are still strong enough to affect the detector tube but are too weak to be audible. One stage of audio frequency amplification will bring these signals out into audibility. Two stages will not bring out any others. Instead of amplifying the signal after it has been changed into an audible frequency we can add a stage, or stages, of amplification ahead of the detector tube and amplify the signal at radio, or inaudible, frequencies, and that is what we do in the radio frequency amplifier. We increase the amount of energy available in the detector tube by making the weak radio signal pass through an amplifier which magnifies the signal while it is still inaudible. After it has been amplified it is then passed on to the detector, where it is converted into an audible signal in the usual manner.

Radio frequency amplification should be considered as a means whereby very weak signals can be brought out stronger, or a means whereby signals which are inaudible in the detector alone can be amplified so much that they become audible. In other words, radio frequency amplification is used to increase the range of a receiver. On a comparatively strong signal one stage of audio frequency amplification will increase the signal strength much more than one stage of radio frequency amplification will. Radio amplification for range or distance, and audio amplification for louder signals—that is the rule to remember.

Science in Industry

DUKE OF NORTHUMBERLAND AND RESEARCH.

"The most distressing feature of the times is our failure to link up scientific methods and discovery with the public services," said the Duke of Northumberland, speaking as president of the Royal Institution at the recent centenary celebration of Michael Faraday's discovery of benzene. Manufacturers and producers were slow to recognize the value of scientific research even when the profit to themselves was apparent, he went on; but statesmen were still slower to recognize the immense benefits which the nation could derive from the encouragement of research. It might be that in face of the present serious state of many of our great industries and the necessity for finding new methods and new sources of power, our rulers would be induced to seek in science for the solution of those problems which had proved so baffling to this generation. What Faraday accomplished in his time could be achieved by our rising generation of scientists. Scientific truths and principles of great importance were awaiting discovery, and there were vast fields of knowledge to be developed.

Mr. James Morton, of Carlisle and Grangemouth, had been asked to accept promise of the first medal in recognition of his services to chemical science and industry in developing the manufacture of anthracene dyestuffs. ### LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL

B.I.S. . . . . . 1
C.E.I. . . . . . 0

The B.I.S. eleven were victorious last night in their match with the C.E.I. by a score of 1 to 0. A high wind somewhat interfered with the fine points of the game, but it was heavily contested and provided considerable excitement for the spectators. Several changes had been made in the B.I.S. line-up since the previous game. Dr. Power again turned out and played full back, and Constantine replaced McGrath in the half back line.

First Half:

Play was started with the C. E. I. defending the western goal, with the sun in their favor, but the B.I.S. set a hot pace from the kick-off and in a short time made first score, with a shot sent in by Brown, who caught Knight out of his goal. The C.E.I. made strenuous efforts to equilibrate, but despite their advantage failed to beat Phelan who gave a good exhibition of goalkeeping.

Second Half

When the teams turned round it was thought that the B.I.S. would increase their lead as the wind had considerably increased, but the difficulty of controlling the ball made accuracy impossible and Knight, in the C.E.I. goal, was impregnable. As a result the game ended as already shown.

The great attraction to-morrow will be the G.W.A. Sports on St. George's Field, for which great preparations have been made. The following A.A.A. officials will be in charge of affairs:—Field Captain, Hon. W. J. Higgins; Starter of events, S. P. Cullen; Road Race, C. J. Ellis; Megaphone Steward, C. Bellis; Timekeepers, E. - (c) Pole Vault.
- (d) Scout and Brigade Race.
- 13—Half Mile Race.
- 14—Tug-of-War (Final).
- 15—Football Sixes (Final).

The prize for the winner of the 10-Mile Road Race, the chief event of the day, is a gold watch, and other awards will be given for 2nd and 3rd places. The race starts at 3.30 from the vicinity of the Octagon and will finish with two laps around the field. C. J. Ellis will be the starter and together with A. E. Thomas, will check the time. Those who will look after the runners on the road are Messrs. E. Robertson, E. Churchill, H. J. Wyatt, S. Dewling, J. C. Heppburn, Gerald Harvey, M. Chaplin, Gordon Higgins, J. M. Tobin and A. Stevenson.

During the afternoon the massed bands of the city will entertain matters, and the catering by the Ladies' Auxiliary, under the direction of Miss May Furlong, is certain to be up to the usual high standard.

BRITISH BOXER WINS BACK TITLE.

Milligan Beats Fratini and Becomes Champion—Thrilling Contest—90-Year-Old Lad's Great Display of Skill and Courage.

By boxing skill and rare courage, Tommy Milligan, a young Scot, twenty years of age, won back for Britain a championship at Holland Park Rink last night.

He beat Bruno Fratini, the conqueror of our own Roland Todd, fairly and squarely, in a fine battle, which thrilled a tremendous crowd.

Lord Tweedmouth was one of the judges, and London Italians were present in great force.

But it was a wonderful house, and so orderly that only occasional staccato cries from tensely-strung enthusiasts broke the silence during the rounds.

Bruno Fratini came here with the reputation of a strong fighter. He retained it at the end, and made friends by his clean work in a desperate bout.

Milligan is little more than a growing boy. He earned fame by completely outpointing Kid Lewis. He enhanced it last night for his cool, grim courage when things were going against him.

Always the boxer and the stylist of the past, Milligan had won the first four or five rounds by a good margin.

Terrific Blow.

Then in the sixth round the Italian cut himself loose, and using both hands with terrific effect, drove Milligan round the ring. Milligan bowed before the storm.

He looked rickety all through the seventh round, but in the last half minute of the round came back with a fast finish.

Fratini swung both hands, drove in some terrific punches with the left to the body, and twice caught Milligan high on the cheek and damaged his left eye. And at the end of the round he said in his corner: "His punches do not hurt me now. I will punch; I will knock him out."

But Milligan did not lose his head, and boxing carefully and well, he gradually weathered the storm.

I liked this phase of the bout best of all. Many boxers—nay, most of them—would have gone all out for one devastating punch to stop this insistent and terrific attack. Milligan used his skill to pull him through. It was great judgment for so young a head.

But he mixed it as little as possible with Fratini after that. He usually led and landed with his left. Fratini got close after the lead, and generally tucked his left hand under the Scot's arm, and tried to hook and upper-cut with the right.

He did it with effect at times, but, generally, Milligan was the faster at even this work, and although the Italian hit harder in the close stuff, blow for blow he was outpointed.

So the bout went, perhaps to some a trifle monotonously, but to the man who knew the game and was near enough to watch the combatants, as full of intense interest as could be.

The fourteenth was a terrific contest. Fratini by this time must have realized that chances of victory were slipping away. He, too, was feeling the effects of Milligan's relentless straight left.

So nearing the end of the round, he tried to rush the Scot, and in his impetuosity landed several hard body blows with both hands. Milligan winced under the attack, but his cool courage never left him.

Fratini carried his charge into the fifteenth round, and almost fought himself to a standstill, with the result that Milligan was the attacker when the gong went.

Fratini's Last Big Effort.

It was now or never with the Italian when the sixteenth started. He rushed at the Scot, who met him flush on the mouth with a fine straight left. Another and another followed, and the pair got at close quarters.

In this, too, Milligan outpointed his man, and then it was seen that the Italian was shaking at the knees. His spirit and body were strong enough, but his legs would not quite position him for attack, and his punch lost its sting.

The seventeenth and eighteenth rounds were Milligan's by a street.

But there were thrills enough in the nineteenth. Battling with courage as true as Milligan had shown earlier, Fratini desperately strove to turn the tide. The Scot was now the master. Youth was telling the inevitable story.

The twentieth was another fine round, but always with the boxer beating the fighter, and the cheers that rent the air after the final gong did not carry a single note of protest.

Fratini's compatriots realized that their man had lost, a gallant loser, true, so they cheered Milligan, and then everyone cheered Fratini.

It was the best championship bout of the season, and in winning as he did against a hard, awkward fighter, Milligan, in my mind, accomplished something far greater than beating even the redoubtable Kid Lewis. He moreover, showed his adaptability and versatility.

Every one was pleased to see Mr. Peggy Robinson back at the ringside after his illness. He tells me he is going for a long voyage thoroughly to recuperate.—Daily Mirror.

Empire's War Memorials

—NEWFOUNDLAND.

By LT.-COL. T. NANGLE in the June B.E.S.L. Monthly "Our Empire."

From the North Sea to Switzerland the Western Front is marked by many memorials, but none are more striking or grip the imagination more than those erected to the memory of the Newfoundland Contingents. The majority of the memorials are either crosses or obelisks and seem to be long more to the Grande Place or Cathedral Close than to the wild and bleak land of devastation in which they are erected. Newfoundland, in commemorating the battle exploits of her sons, has broken away from the traditional form and adopted a most original and unique scheme.

At Beaumont Hamel the Dominion Government purchased eighty-four acres and preserved them in their war-time condition. This area comprises the famous "Y" Ravine, the German lines, No-Man's Land, the British trench system, Hawthorn Ridge No. 2, "Y" Ravine and Hunter's Cemetery, while just outside the boundary is the mine crater, and behind the ridge lies Knightsbridge Cemetery. This was the line of advance followed by the Newfoundland Contingent in their gallant attack on July 1st, 1916. So many were left on that field whose bodies were never recovered that the Newfoundland Government decided to purchase the whole area and make it a Memorial Park.

On the highest point in this area, a huge mound of granite and clay has been raised to look like a natural hilltop. This has been planted with stunted spruce, mountain ash, silver birch, mosses and ferns, all brought from Newfoundland. Surmounting this mound on an outcrop of granite stands a colossal caribou, the emblem of the Contingent, bugling his battle challenge. Mr. Basil Gotto, of Twyford, Hants, who is responsible for the sculpturing of the caribou, designed the antlers from a head shot by Selous.

From the base of the caribou one obtains a splendid view of the country, from Hebuterne in the north round to Bapaume, and Le Transloy ridges in the east to Villers-Bretonneux in the south; the main places of interest being indicated by arrows. The Park also contains the 51st Highland Division memorial unveiled by Marshal Foch last September, and the 29th Division memorial, of which the Newfoundland Contingent formed a unit. Dug-outs have been preserved and trenches cleared out and reverted, and some thirty thousand trees have been successfully transplanted from Newfoundland.

The park has been designed and the memorial erected by Mr. R. H. K. Cochius, landscape architect, who spent many years in Newfoundland and Canada, and has been working at the park for more than three years.

A Visit to the S.S. Newfoundland

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE.

On Saturday past, whilst Mr. Leo A. Duffy was paying a visit to the Furness liner "Newfoundland", he came in contact with a gentleman from across the Atlantic with whom he entered into a very pleasant conversation. As various matters were being discussed the question of English imports into the country came up and our English visitor was quick to enquire of the agent representing Sir Wm. P. Hartley, Ltd., of Liverpool and London, England, as he stated that just before sailing last week the Furness sheds at Liverpool were filled practically to capacity with the famous jams, jellies, and marmalades to be shipped by the following boats for dealers here. He added that it was indeed a grand sight to see the Hartley wagons and motor vans pouring into the premises with their mighty loads for the deep sea voyage and stated that it surely was an interesting sight for him as he did not think the Newfoundland territory great enough for such a consumption of high class preserves. The strange part about the incident was that our mutual friend did not know of Mr. Duffy's representing the Hartley House and not only did he had finished did the local man make him wise to the fact.

We understand that the next shipment to arrive will be the biggest in thirty years and arrangements are now being made at the Furness sheds for the storing of same. Incidentally our local truckmen are looking forward to a busy week as a result. Wholesalers and retailers throughout the Dominion report active sales and our larger city dealers state that the demand throughout the Outports is increasing to a very great degree indeed. All Hartley's Products are guaranteed absolutely pure and are made only from fresh fruits gathered in the fresh fruit season. Beware of imitations.

The Power of An Idea.

The Story of the Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign--Written by Captain H. L. Wells of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In the spring of 1912, an idea was born that has saved millions of dollars and the lives of thousands of American people.

This idea was not born in some great experimental laboratory, nor in some university. It came into the mind of a plain citizen who possessed the power of straight thinking and the executive ability and the energy to transmute his thoughts into practical action.

This man was not the first who saw that our American cities and towns, for all their comparative newness, are woefully dirty and unkempt; but he was the first to conceive a practical and popular plan to make them clean and attractive and kept in that condition. The desire to clean them up was not a new idea. What was new was the plan that solved the problem of how to do it and keep it done.

Nobody knows everything that the author of this idea imagined for its future when he launched it through the press in May, 1912. But he saw and said this much in that announcement: "The object is the organization of a national campaign, recognized, observed, and practiced everywhere, every year; national in its scope and its recognition and utilization by the Public, the Press, the Civic Organizations, and the Business Community."

That definite plan and object was the result of clear thinking, and once he had thought out the big idea and its scope, he felt that it should be put to test. Like most new ideas, however, its inventor had difficulty in getting others to see it—they declared it "too theoretical" and even "too altruistic!" Indeed, the plan itself would have amounted to nothing if he himself had been without the determination and ability to put it through. Therefore, ever since he has been directing a nation-wide campaign for cleaning up American cities, destroying disease-breeding refuse and making "homes and towns beautiful," with ness, so that the wanton desecrator will respect and not defile them with further accumulations of filth and disorder.

This was the gist of Mr. Clark's idea, that prompted his creation of the plan by which the people might be induced to get into this cleaning up and keeping it up.

There is a whole lot of the burrah spirit in our way of doing big things. The way we took hold of the big thing that had to be done during the war was proof of this. When public interest is aroused and the people get the idea of acting together to put something over, that thing is bound to go "over the top." That is the secret and success of this idea. In cities and towns, now numbering several thousand, where the people have caught the idea and had their active pride aroused, they have taken hold of the Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign and performed wonderful prophylactic feats. Thousands of tons of refuse have been carted away, and many square miles of dirty backyards, alleys and vacant lots have been cleaned up and made, and kept, both sanitary and presentable.

An old shack may be a fire risk that menaces adjoining buildings or a whole block, but anything that breeds or spreads disease menaces the lives of the whole city. That fly does not belong to you, not to me, nor to anybody. Neither does a mosquito. I maintain the breeding conditions, and he may take disease to a neighbor; or a neighbor may be his godfather, or he may visit my family with his germs; or he may be the product of a refuse-strewn vacant lot belonging to some absentee owner. Therefore it makes little difference in the menace to my family if I merely keep my own premises spick and span. That is my first duty, but from the health standpoint alone, no man, owner or tenant, can say that he has no interest in the property conditions of his neighborhood.

Health Not The Only Reason.

But health is not the only reason for this campaign. The clean city, the beautiful city, the attractive city, and therefore, the prosperous city, just as it is necessary for the individual to keep himself clean and his clothing looking well, if he wants to be well received and do business, so it is necessary for a city to present a clean and attractive appearance. The great idea is to get the people to go into this campaign through a spirit of awakened loyalty to their town as much as, or more than, for the benefits in health and living conditions and the preservation and increase of their property values.

How To Have Good Neighbors.

Are you proud of your city? Do you think it is a fine place in which to live and do business? Do you feel a sense of satisfaction when sight-seers from other cities drive past your own home and notice your yard and its shrubbery and flowers and lawn, that make the fitting setting for your attractive, well-kept home? Well, you know that one swallow does not make a summer. One single clean and attractive home will not impress visitors except to show the hideous contrast of its surrounding neighborhood. It is the whole neighborhood and the whole city which furnish visitors their impressions. The cleaner you keep your own premises the more interested you should be in seeing that the whole city is kept clean to match your own standards. It is your right to expect cleanliness and orderliness all around you for the protection of both your health and your property.

As do the men of the business advantages, of the preservation or increase of property values, of the inducement for new industries, the new residents. But the love of cleanliness and orderliness and beauty makes the women the most aggressive organizers and workers in this campaign.

Women's clubs have supplied some of the most zealous and successful managers of the campaign details. In many cities where this campaign is an established institution, conducted regularly from year to year, its steady, continuous inspiration comes from the women. They hold the initiative, keep the men's organization and the city authorities starting new features of the work, and then keep right along with them in doing it. Women are not only idealists, but they are practicalists in behalf of their ideals, and for that reason this campaign, with its means for arousing community cooperation, finds in them its most earnest promoters.

The Symbolism of the Slogan.

This great idea does not stop with getting the city cleaned up. Its originator did not quit thinking there; he thought it clear through to the end to "keep it clean." He said, "What's the use of urging a seedy, unkempt, unfortunate, almost a down-and-out, to 'take a bath' unless the man is certain to go further and wholly restore himself, and publicly commit himself to self-respect and its maintenance in all its forms? There must be the basis of physical fitness in condition and appearance to justify his self-respect and that basis must be so substantial and visible to all as to be a constant incentive to stay clean and presentable. Accordingly, he must abjure his old and seedy garments and clothe himself in new habiliments that reflect his restored self-respect, that publicly pledge him to his continued maintenance, and that are a constant actual incentive for his observance of all the things necessary thereto."

Some Simple Psychology.

"Paint a neglected back yard or vacant lot," said Mayor Henry W. Kiel, of St. Louis, "with the green of grass or shrubbery or a thrift garden, or publicly commit it to any other useful purpose, and it will not revert to its former disorderliness. Otherwise it inevitably and speedily will do so."

In household and neighborhood and community cleanliness there is no such constantly impelling incentive as money through this campaign. That was no abstract generality. Cincinnati's first Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign, in 1914, reduced the annual fire loss more than $900,000, and brought an annual saving of $160,000 in fire premiums, as the result of these campaigns, is reported by Capt. Jno. J. Conway, the superintendent of the City Salvage Corps, who for all this period has been chairman of the Cincinnati Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign, conducted annually by the Chamber of Commerce.

The Results of An Idea.

All over the United States there are better homes because of this great idea. From one end of the country to the other there are cleaner and healthier cities as a result of putting this idea into practice.

Cities are profiting in many ways from the spirit aroused and the cooperative energy created.

Where the spirit has been properly developed the Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign is conducted every year and almost all the year round, in the continuance of some of the features of the campaign throughout the year. In cities that have been cleaned up, the work now is to keep clean. Food conditions are constantly looked into. The thrift gardens and flower gardens are kept up. Vacant lots are not permitted to revert to the tin can and tall weeds state. Health and police officers find it easy to keep their forces and the people keyed up to vigorous enforcement of the sanitary ordinances and regulations. Formerly neglected properties and neighborhoods find themselves on the map of restored values and respectability. Civic spirit pervades all classes and is constantly on the alert.

That is the ideal condition. When that condition shall have been reached in every city and town in the United States this great idea will have achieved its highest purpose.

The Power of Community Spirit.

Of course, if a man does not keep his premises clean and attractive as a measure of health and economy and personal pride, he is not likely to do so as a concession to good neighborliness, unless the moral pressure of such a campaign as this is brought to bear upon him. But this, power of community sentiment works wonders in stimulating the improvement of neglected premises.

Saves Cincinnati $850,000 a Year.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceeded Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 19.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a spur, but a steady, healthful climb."

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

"Over the hills and far away Where the Little Balmie Breezes play, The Fairy Bunnies dance to their tune And the roses smile in the month of June."

sang Bobbie Redvest at the window of the little rabbit's house in the dear Old Bramble Patch one morning, oh so early, as Mr. Happy Sun along the pathway of the skies his journey had begun.

"I'd love to see the Fairy Bunnies," cried the little rabbit, hopping out of bed and into his clothes. Then parting his hair down the middle of his back, he hurried down to the kitchen where Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother was making the breakfast. Such a nice breakfast, Clover, Cereal, Carrot Cakes and Turnip Tea, and, Oh yes, I almost forgot, Lettuce Leaf Marmalade.

"Do you know where I'm going today?" he asked, as he fitted with bird seed the pretty Canary's dish.

"Haven't time to guess," answered busy Lady Love. "Cousin Cottontail is coming over for lunch with the Lady Grasshopper Postmistress. You tell me while you polish the front door-knob."

"To see the Fairy Bunnies," cried the bunny boy. "I believe in fairyies, don't you, Mother?"

"Of course I do," she answered, with a smile. "All mothers do."

As soon as her little rabbit had brought in the knitting wool, he put on his knicker cap and, kissing his pretty bunny mother goodbye, hopped down the winding path through the bushes out to the Sunny Meadow. Then up the Old Cow Path he went, clattering clip, lipperty lip, his little knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. By and by, after a while, and a bump and a smile and more than a mile, he came to a clearing in the Shady Forest, where the sunshine twinkled on the grass and the bluebells twinkled in the wind.

"This 'must be the place," thought the little rabbit. "It's over the hills and far away," and sitting down by a bush, he slipped off his knapsack and looked about him. All of a sudden out of a beautiful Jack-in-the-Belt flower peeped a fairy bunny. What a pretty fellow. Little wings on his shoulder and a pink pointed cap on his head. The next minute from hidden places here and there and everywhere out sprang the fairy bunnies, and forming a ring they danced on their hind legs over the green grass.

Little wings on his shoulder and a pink pointed cap on his head.

"Hip, hurrah!" shouted the little rabbit. But, Oh dear me! At the sound of his voice, away went the fairy bunnies, goodness knows where. But in places where the little rabbit couldn't see them, wasn't that too bad? Well, I guess it was. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that unless, of course, the Rugged Rabbit Giant should all of a sudden blow on his great whistle and scatter dry leaves all over the dancing place of the fairy bunnies. But I guess he won't.

Queenly Efforts in Journalism

A CANDID CRITICISM.

The Queen of Rumania continues her journalistic efforts in a Sunday paper. She has moderated her style, or, at any rate, grown more discreet in her choice of subjects. Still, one cannot help feeling that it would have been more dignified and a great deal wiser if she had kept her opinions to herself, or aired them only in the presence of those privileged with intimacy. Even in these democratic days it is a little jarring to find a Queen Consort writing in the style of a movie star or musical comedy actress. The literary quality of her Majesty's contribution on the subject of "Beauty: Is it a Blessing or a Curse?" is negligible, and her reflections are no more profound than those of a "Social Butterfly" in the current number of a magazine.

Truly the old order changes (writes our Society correspondent). Queen Victoria, for all that she was misguided as to allow her journal of "Our Life in the Highlands" to be published, would have shaken her head over these effusions of her lovely granddaughter, who herself is a grandmother. Perhaps she would have done more (had she the power) than shake her head. By the way, Princess Heana, Queen Marie's youngest and (as she told a journalist friend of mine) favourite daughter, is undergoing "finishing" touches at the school at Ascot where her sister, the Queen of Yugo-Slavia, completed such education as the august receive at schools other than the school of life.—Liverpool Post.

IS "THE AGE OF INNOCENCE," NOW PLAYING AT THE NICKEL.

Literary gem in motion pictures! This statement may sound a bit strong but "The Age of Innocence," which opened at the Nickel Theatre last night, is not "another one of those pictures made from a book." On the contrary, it is Edith Wharton's greatest novel come to life, a breathing, vibrant thing of emotional and social struggle for love, untrammelled by narrow conventions.

Beverly Bayne, in the leading role of the Russian Countess Olenska, is unbelievably lovely to look at and her interpretation of this character is nothing short of an artistic triumph. Playing the envied part of her leading man in this photoplay, Elliott Dexter completes a very happy combination, by matching her subtle, European irregularities by his own restrained ardor and sympathetic personality. A third outstanding player is Willard Louis, the "Bluesbeard" of the story, who gives many laughable interludes by his inimitable drollery.

"The Age of Innocence" is actually a photoplay that no one should miss!

The Will to Overcome

The Monument recently unveiled at Beaumont Hamel, the place where, seven years ago tomorrow, the Royal Newfoundland Regiment won imperishable fame, is surmounted by its emblem, the Caribou.

endurance which it showed that the race possessed; think of the superhuman efforts that were made to supply from the resources of the Empire materials in quantities, which in peace time had never been imagined possible, and think, too, of the high moral effect of willingly offering our all to champion a rightful cause.

Is there not a tendency today to be unmindful of such matters, to rest on our oars at a time when a vigorous effort is required, to allow petty personal grievances, political differences, class distinctions, and industrial disputes to destroy that unity which the war fostered, and to render inoperative the wonderful force of energy which it produced?

Just Before Beaumont Hamel

(By BLUPUT.)

The village of Louvecourt, June 30th, 1916. It was the eve of the first real attack of the Newfoundland Regiment, for on the morrow we would all "go over" together.

It was the privilege of, comparatively speaking, a few of the people of this country, and of all countries for that matter, to bear arms against the enemy; to others fell the responsibility of providing a continuous supply of the food and materials required by the forces.

All honour to those who met the enemy face to face and defied him with all his devilish cunning and elaborate designs to sweep them from his path!

Home's Report

Capt. Norman of S.S. Home, which arrived at Humbermouth last night, reports to the Railway Management as follows:—"Made all ports of call to Battle Harbor going north, but had to pass Daniel's Harbor, Parson's Pond and Cow Head on the return trip owing to stormy weather and dense fog. Very good fishing on the Labrador side for trawls, but none for traps. Schooners in the vicinity of Blanc Sablon are trawling from 100 to 120 tubs of fish daily and at St. John's Island and Port-au-Choix, there is a (between two men), two days' rations, and the poor bombers, an apron full of bombs. But, although we knew what we had to carry, there was not a man who did not think that he was going to "get there".

A Female Burglar

On Tuesday night last a resident of LeMarchant Road, whose husband is out of town, left her home about 9 p.m. to do a short distance away. Before leaving she put out the electric lights and locking the door put the key in hiding. Returning shortly after 10 p.m. she found the front door open and the light in the hall on. Going to her bedroom she discovered a man's umbrella, standing by a dressing table and what appeared to be a female in hiding underneath the bed. Becoming frightened she ran out of doors and called a neighbor to her assistance. Returning she found that the person under the bed had made a get-away. A gold watch missing from a dresser was discovered later in another part of the house. The police are investigating the case.

Without Friends

A pitiful case of an aged spinster named Hickey, who spent a number of years in the United States and returned here nearly two years ago on a visit to her brother, has been reported to the police. When she arrived here she was in fair circumstances but since all her savings had been spent paying board, and a few days ago, being unable to pay her bill, she was turned out of doors and the few articles of clothing which she possessed were held for the debt. Since then she has been sleeping in the woods as she cannot find anyone to give her shelter. In November, 1923, a short while after coming here, this old lady was run over by a team of horses and as a result spent some months in hospital with a fractured leg. Since her discharge all her savings has been spent in paying for lodgings.

The railway station is being painted by a staff of men from the railway car shops and presents a greatly improved appearance. Fire on Vessel at Curling

The schooner Gladiator of Buckport, Me., lying at Curling took fire there yesterday and would have been destroyed but for assistance rendered by E. B. Daisey. The fire started in the fore-cabin and was the result of a gasoline explosion. The Daisey had just arrived from Labrador when the fire broke out and hauling alongside the burning craft, a stream of water from the ship's hose was applied with good effect.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

June 29th—This the hottest day of the year, and do make me think it is indeed time that men should have lighter clothes to wear in the summer. Povey thinks that shorts and open-throated collars should be worn, but he was ever an extremist, yet I do think that it would be a good thing if men's suits could be obtained in lighter materials. Reading in a scientific book this day, I do learn something that I did not know before, being that ice cream placed in a copper kettle over a roaring fire will not melt if the kettle becomes heated to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. This indeed an interesting fact and I will know how to melt very hard ice cream in the future. Talking this day with Captain Winsor, that is Minister of Fisheries, he tells me how his Department now has divers men travelling about the fishing districts, and their business to obtain accurate statistics of the catch of fish which will be given to the Board of Trade at the end of each month. This a good thing, and the first time that it was ever done. Night profited by the heat this night, I do remain at home, and read in a most excellently written book which is called "Blind Raftery," to my great content.

Supreme Court

(Before Mr. Justice Kent) In the matter of the Nfld. Banking and Trust Corporation and the Reid- Newfoundland Co., Ltd., Mines and Forests, Ltd., and the Newfoundland Power and Paper Co. Mr. Hunt for the defendants yesterday afternoon closed his address which had lasted seven hours. The evidence for the defence taken on commission in London and Montreal was then read.

This morning the examination of Mr. C. O'N. Conroy, General Counsel and Solicitor of the Reid firm and a director of their subsidiary companies, was examined by Howley, K.C.

In referring to evidence given by plaintiff re the segregation and registration of the Reid assets, witness, when asked what his opinion was, said witness for plaintiff had confused two separate and distinct problems, and explained that the matter of segregation was brought by him to the attention of Mr. H. D. Reid in 1918, and that on May 31st, 1919 he gave Mr. Reid an opinion in writing on this subject. A copy of the letter was produced. Mr. Emerson for the plaintiffs objected. Argument on the point ended in the letter not being admitted as evidence. Up to recess hour Mr. Conroy's examination had not concluded.

Body of Child Recovered

The body of Chealey Vincent, the five year old son of Mr. Harry Vincent, fisherman, at the Lower Battery, was recovered by the little fellow's brother or beneath the father's fishing stage shortly before 3 p.m. yesterday. The child was not missed from home until dinner hour and apparently had been playing around the stage and fell overboard. Dr. Donahue, who was called to examine the body, pronounced death due to drowning. In reporting the accident in yesterday's issue the name of the child was given as Benson. This was due to a misunderstanding of a 'phone message.

Empire Day

MR. BALDWIN'S MESSAGE. Empire Day celebrations in the Mother Country centred in the great collective act of worship that the British nation has ever known. One hundred thousand people thronged the Stadium at Wembley to thank the Almighty for the British Empire, and—the most significant fact of an occasion that was pregnant with meaning—the King was just one of the vast congregation. The dais of purple and gold was reserved for the clergy; his Majesty sat among his people to unite in their thanksgiving for what the Empire has been and is to-day, and for the promise of what it yet may be. In that great concourse every part of the Empire was represented, and every one of its ensigns was given a place of honour near the flag which unites them all—the Union Jack. And in the procession of the Empire's servants marched one venerable figure whose heart must have thrilled with pride in the presence of so complete an embodiment of his dreams—the Earl of Meath, the father of Empire Day.

Elsewhere, throughout Great Britain, the celebrations were spread over the Saturday, Sunday and Monday—May 24th fell on the Sunday—and the children in particular were told something of the greatness of their heritage. But the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, undoubtedly spoke to the largest audience of all when, on May 25th, he broadcasted a message which was heard by thousands in every part of the land. "Know your Empire" was the text of his homily; its burden, an appeal for unity in the face of our post-war problems.

Brief extracts from the Prime Minister's message are appended:—"Twenty years ago Empire Day was first celebrated throughout His Majesty's Dominions. Twenty years hence the Prime Minister of Great Britain may be able to make his voice heard not only, as I am to-day, to listeners in the home country, but to men, women and children in all parts of the Empire. We, too, in Great Britain may listen to Empire Day messages spoken by the Dominion Prime Ministers and by leaders in the Crown Colonies and the Dependencies. The direct interchange of speech could bring home to every dweller under the flag a vivid sense of the unity of the British Empire. According to my mind, the existence of that unity to-day and in all days since the foundations of our Empire were laid, is a far more impressive phenomenon.

"In more than one sense the Empire came home to us at Wembley. There are many ways, apart from the exhibitions, by which we can see our Empire at second hand, but nothing to my mind can prove so enlightening as personal visits overseas and personal intercourse with dwellers in our Dominions and Colonies. We are accustomed to look upon oceans as dividing us from our brothers and sisters in the Imperial family. I personally regard the seas as highways which unite us. "Empire Day affords us an opportunity for joining with other parts of the Empire in impressing our common pride in our heritage, and our common determination to build worthily upon the foundations which the great Empire builders so well and truly laid. If I were to attempt to crystallize its message in a phrase I might take the words 'Know thyself,' in which the ancients expressed the duty of the individual man, and add to it the words 'Know thy Empire.'"—B.E.S.L.

Work at Mount Carmel Begins

Beginning on Thursday morning the erection of the new retaining wall at Mount Carmel Cemetery will be begun. The work will be supervised by D. F. Whittle, one of the members of the committee, and will employ quite a number of men. This, and other improvements to the Cemetery, will mean a large outlay, but the committee feel confident that the sympathetic support received from the community in their undertakings in the past that no great period will elapse before it is finally liquidated.

Proposed Celebration Feasible and Desirable

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I read with great interest your editorial of this date, suggesting the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the British Empire, on June 24th, 1927. I think it is a capital idea, first to boost our native land; secondly to tell the world where we stand in the making of the Empire, and thirdly and not the least important, to help to inaugurate the great Tourist traffic policy in which we are so vitally interested. If any of our Sister Colonies had such an attractive drawing card, I venture to say they would find energy and enthusiasm enough to make it a great success. Many of us saw the affair of the Diamond Jubilee celebration. With our increased facilities of every kind we could double and treble the success of that occasion, I believe we ought to begin now. Get a Committee from the Legislature, Board of Trade, and Rotarians to consider it, and I believe that the result would exceed your most sanguine expectations.

It won't matter if the knockers and grouchers try to throw cold water on it. We can summon patriotism, energy and enthusiasm enough to make the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the British Empire worthy of its importance.

Yours truly, TERRA NOVAN.

Outer Cove Garden Party

EXCEEDS ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS. The Garden Party at Outer Cove, on Sunday last, was splendidly patronized. St. John's sent its usual large quota of all classes and creeds, while adjacent settlements were well represented. The ladies in charge of the various refreshment and tea tables were kept very busy, and as usual placed their patrons on very good terms with themselves. Outer Cove is recognized for the very excellent teas served, and this year the ladies easily sustained their reputation in that respect. Early in the evening all tables were entirely cleared of their delicious contents.

In addition to the clergy there were also present among many notable and prominent citizens, Sir M. P. and Lady Cashin, Hon. W. J. Ellis, Hon. W. J. Higgins, Dr. and Mrs. Fallon, S. D. and Mrs. Ryall, W. F. and Mrs. Graham, E. J. and Mrs. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Thistle, J. T. Martin and M. W. Myrick. The various city societies were splendidly represented, the genial J. C. Pippy and popular "Joe" Murphy being conspicuous. During the afternoon and evening Father O'Callaghan was glad to greet so many old friends, amongst whom were very many from the Holy Name and Star of the Sea Societies, with both of which he was intimately associated as Chaplain in days gone by.

The Pastor and people of the Parish are exceedingly grateful to all who patronized the affair; grateful too, to the table-layers, all of whom labored so willingly, so gladly and successfully, grateful too, to "Our Own" Orchestra for their delightful renditions which added so much charm to the afternoon; grateful to the good Brothers of Mount Cashel for the use of canvas, tables, etc., as well as for the kindly act of conveying the members of the orchestra to and from the Garden Party in their motor bus; grateful to all who contributed so generously to the funds of the Garden Party prior to the event and since; and grateful to Messrs. John Kelly and M. W. Myrick for flags, etc., and to all who kindly lent cooking stoves, crockery, ware, etc., for use of table holders. To one and all most grateful thanks and good luck.

Fragrant and Appealing!

"I find Three Flowers Face Powder the most delightful powder I've ever used, it's so fragrant and appealing." In such words a society lady expressed her views on these renowned cosmetics. Every fashionable lady uses Three Flowers. You cannot get better than Three Flowers! Richard Hudnut, the Master Perfumer, has put his best efforts into Three Flowers Creams and Face Powders. It is a real delight to use these fragrant, dainty toilettries. For beauty and charm, insist upon Three Flowers. They are distinctive and immediately point a woman out as fashionable, for Three Flowers preparations are fashion's favourites.—June 29, 25

CHEA'S BOUY.—The large from buoy which in former years stood off Shea's premises, and which was used in mooring the Allan liners, was raised from the bottom this morning during the course of operations in building the new pier for the Nfld. Products Co., and landed on the King's Wharf. The buoy was hauled ashore about six or seven years ago and it sank a short while afterwards.

NEYLE'S TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

- EARL HAIG'S GREETING TO VETERANS. OTTAWA, June 29. "Old comrades, I thank you for the honor you have done me in re-selecting me Grand President of the British Empire Service League. I want no thanks for anything I have been able to do. You can depend upon me to do my utmost for the League." Thus Earl Haig acknowledged the ovation which greeted him on his return to the Conference Chamber after his re-election to the Grand Presidency. His re-election was proposed by Capt. Ian MacKenzie, of Vancouver, seconded by Capt. James Quessell, of Australia. Their speeches in praise of the Field Marshal were greeted with great applause.

OTTAWA, June 29. The Canadian Government steamship Arctic leaves Quebec for the North, Tuesday noon, with a party of Royal Canadian Mounted Police, scientists and administrators from the north-west territories branch of the Interior. The party is headed by G. P. MacKenzie, who was for 25 years Canadian Gold Commissioner in the Yukon. Dr. L. J. Weeks, of the Geographical Survey will also accompany the party. The Mounted Police will be under command of Inspector Wilcox, who is returning to the north where he will probably remain for two years. Canada will establish a new northern outpost at Bache Peninsula on Ellesmere Island. At a spot near Bache Peninsula a cache of supplies was deposited last year, and the new post will use the supplies left from last year and whatever they are able to carry in with them. The Bache post will be approximately 75 miles from Etah, on Greenland, where the expedition under the command of Mr. MacMillan is to establish headquarters. The Arctic will be navigated by Captain Jos. Bernier.

DROWNED IN THEIR BERTHS.

NEW YORK, June 29. Most of the fifteen men who lost their lives when the fishing schooner Rex was rammed and sunk by the steamer Tuscania, yesterday east of Halifax, were trapped in their berths. Captain Bone of the Tuscania informed his head office in a wireless to-day that the collision occurred early Sunday morning in a fog, said the Captain's message. The Tuscania suddenly heard the horn and bell ahead, and before the helm took effect struck the schooner amidships. She sank immediately. The Tuscania stopped near the wreckage and lowered a boat, picking up nine survivors of the crew numbering twenty-four. The loss of life was largely due to the fact that most of the men were below, sleeping or preparing work, and to the schooner's sinking immediately. The Tuscania remained four hours but no other survivors were found. The survivors are all well except Edward Suret, who had some injury.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 30. A check this morning of the casualties and destruction resulting from the series of earthquakes which have laid waste to a large portion of this city showed that nine people had lost their lives and thirty-five were seriously injured in the disaster. Conservative estimates of the material damage which cannot be definitely established until an architectural survey is completed to-day fix the loss at fifteen million dollars. Other estimates place it as high as thirty million dollars. The injured were treated at a cottage hospital, the only hospital remaining fit to receive patients. Premier Armstrong Bows to Popular Will "Latest information unmistakably indicates that a substantial majority of the electors have come to the conclusion that a time for a change had arrived," said Premier Armstrong, when he was interviewed at Shelbourne last night. "The outstanding majority in many of the Counties show that a popular verdict has been rendered against the Government. It is quite impossible at this distance and without the full facts before me to arrive at any well reasoned cause for the defeat of the Government. The Liberal Party had a fine line-up of candidates in the field as ever presented themselves to the electorate for support and that they all put up a gallant fight against overwhelming odds will be admitted. The decisive character of the verdict would seem to indicate that there is no very practical desire for a redress of our economic ills. I am satisfied, however, that the determination of our people to secure a redress of their grievances will have to be dealt with. "I wish to express my sincere and warmest thanks to all candidates and party friends for their splendid support and hard work during the campaign," continued Mr. Armstrong.

STANDARD OIL OF NEW JERSEY.

NEW YORK, June 24.—It is understood directors of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey are considering redeeming the preferred, of which there is approximately $200,000,000 outstanding. It is redeemable in entirety at $115 a share.
This is part of a programme that would mean bigger dividend payments to common stockholders, now receiving no more in dividends than in 1912, at dissolution of the parent company. Consideration of redeeming the preferred is in preliminary stages, and no formal action is expected for some time.

An increase in dividend on the common is slated for the third or final quarter this year, according to talk in Standard Oil circles.
Standard Oil of New Jersey made its first issue of approximately $100,000,000 preferred in August, 1919, and followed that with a like amount in June, 1920. The stock is 7 per cent. cumulative, calling for dividends of $14,000,000 a year on $200,000,000 outstanding.

Proceeds from sale of preferred, amounting to approximately $195,000,000, together with surplus earnings, were invested in the business in 1919 and 1920. The total so invested was approximately $250,000,000, spent as follows:—Refineries, $25,000,000; ships, $20,000,000; pipe line, $6,000,000; producing oil properties, $50,000,000; working capital, that is securities, inventories, receivables and cash, $13,000,000.

Remarkable results were obtained from investment of that money, notable among which was the development of Humble Oil Company in Texas and International Petroleum Company in South America. Both of these organizations have secured vast resources of oil, certain to be big sources of revenue for Standard of New Jersey in future.

There is the suggestion in Standard Oil circles that the New Jersey Company will follow the lead of Standard Oil Company of New York, which paid off $30,000,000 serial 7 per cent. debentures at 105 January 31, last, apparently from proceeds of sale of its Government securities. On December 31, 1923, Standard of New York owned $33,543,265 in Government securities, but as of December 31, 1924, owned no Government securities.

Standard Oil of New Jersey investments December 31, 1924, amounted to $172,737,094, of which $90,387,438 were United States Government securities and other marketable investments. In addition, it owed large sums by subsidiaries which can be drawn in its accounts receivable at close of last year were more than $347,000,000, and surplus was $274,509,330.

Vanished Millions

WHAT HAVE BOLSHIEVICS DONE WITH £40,000,000?

No Power in Europe is interested in the financial condition of Russia to the same extent as France. Before the war there were in France no fewer than 4,000,000 holders of Russian Government and Russian industrial securities. Little wonder that these investors are curious to know what became of the large amount of Russian gold that was transferred abroad during the war. At the moment a thrilling piece of detective work is being done in Paris by these creditors of Russia, Russia, according to the "Economist," had about £180,000,000 of gold at the outbreak of war, and about £117,000,000 at the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk. About £70,000,000 of it was lodged for safe keeping at Kazan. What happened to this? The answer to this question must easily provide one of the most exciting yarns ever penned. Koltchak seized it at Kazan. About half of it was sent to Vladivostok to ensure credit for supplies. But over one-sixth of this amount never got there. Semenov, the Cossack general, got hold of that portion and sent it to Tchita, his capital. His representatives lodged it in an Eastern branch bank. What they got for it is not known, but they never had it back. There was still About £40,000,000 of the hoard, which Koltchak secured at Kazan. Where did it go to? "All that can be established as to where this enormous sum went is vague and unsatisfactory," says the "Economist." Presided by the Bolsheviks, Koltchak's army loaded the gold on a train (for speedy transference to the rear) at Omsk. That train had a collision some distance away, and a lot of the gold was scattered on the line. Afterwards the Koltchak forces and the gold train came into the Czechoslovak Legion's area, and only two of the five locomotives—one for the Admiral's train and one for the gold train—were not seized. Later the fugitive commander came into the hands of the Bolsheviks, and was executed. But what of the gold. The French inquirers say the Czechoslovak irregulars got it. Other evidence seems to show that at this time Russian gold currency was plentiful at Kharkin, and that it was so abundant among Czechoslovak legionaries Bank was created at Prague. On the other hand, Czechoslovakians say the legionaries had to hand over all the gold to the Bolsheviks to save their lives. According to some reports, a substantial part of the £40,000,000 of the Kazan gold found its way back to Moscow. The searching inquiry in Paris is still going on and the mystery may eventually be cleared up.

OTHER PEOPLE'S FINANCES.

Is there anything more interesting than to speculate about other people's finances? How much money they make; why they don't spend more; why they spend less; why they don't spend more; how they can afford such an expensive car; why they get along without help; when could easily afford it; whether X really makes as much as his tries to make out he does; how much Mr. W. paid for that second hand De Luxe; whether the Z's really moved out of that big house because it was so hard to get help or because they couldn't afford to keep two maids. Not so earthy. It is supposed to be of the earth earthy to think too much about money, but when you come right down to it what we do with our time and our money is what we do with our lives, and therefore it isn't unnatural, if we have a human interest in those about us, that we should be interested in what they do with their money.

For my own part I am most deeply fascinated by the spectacle of people who with small visible means of support manage to have all sorts of things. There were the Jacksons. The father died when the children were small, they owned the house they lived in and had some insurance, rather a good one as insurance went in those days. They dismissed the maid but they went on living in the big house, they had nice clothes, they had one of the first talking machines and were among the first to put in a telephone. The children had bicycles. If there were automobiles in those days I presume they would have had one.

But The Crash Didn't Come. It seemed inevitable that a crash would come some day, but just at the time when the house was in bad need of repairs and they were beginning to look a little shabby, there came a building boom because the big city was reaching out toward the suburb, wherefore they sold the place to a land development company for twice what it would have been worth a few years before, and moved into a smart little apartment. . . . We lost sight of them then but I heard the other day that they had just bought a six cylinder car and I am sure they have a radio and overstuffed furniture and gold fish, and all the other modern necessities. I think everyone knows families like that who defy all the laws of reason and common sense and yet come through somehow.

If We Only Knew Their Economics. I suppose they have their pet economics, somewhere, invisible to the naked eye. The pity of it is that they are invisible, for most of the discontent in the world comes from the feeling that other people have more than we, and if we could only see other people's economics as well as their extravagances some of the discontent would vanish. I questioned if there was anything more interesting than to speculate on other people's finances. I do know one thing that would be even more intriguing. To be able to listen in when other people speculate on ours.

WHO SEEKS FOR FAME.

Who seeks for fame, these things must do: First to his fellow men be true. Next to the art of craft he serves. Must bring the love which it deserves. A love, which finds its greatest pride in doing well the task supplied.

He must be strong enough to keep His course against the current's sweep. Must keep his standards lofty, when Small gains are made by baser men.

He must have patience and the pluck To trust to merit, not to luck. Though heeding profits, never take A cheaper course for profit's sake. Who does these things, and makes his name A badge of worth will come to fame.

Fish Reveal Ages

BY RINGS IN SCALES IN YEARLY SERIES.

Salmon and trout, like rattlesnakes, have a way of telling their age, according to John N. Cobb, Director of the College of Fisheries of the University of Washington.

"Every year adds a series of half-circles to the scales of trout and salmon," said Dean Cobb. "Each series is distinguishable from the preceding ones by a line. The lines are similar to those on a cross-section of a tree, and the method of telling the age of fish is like that used by woodmen to ascertain ages of trees."

"Salmon reveal the amount of food consumed each season. When salmon have a good year with plenty to eat the lines are wider than in lean years."

Experiments are being conducted by Dean Cobb in telling the age of other species of fish.

The Slang of the Flying Corps

Just as the army and navy have their special slang expressions, so the Air Service has developed a vocabulary all its own, says Popular Mechanics. An officer who cannot, is known as a "kiwi," after the New Zealand bird with undeveloped wings. "Ground flying" describes talk about flying; a man is in a "flat spin" when he becomes confused in conversation, and if a speaker at a banquet talks too long, he is given a gentle hint to "land" by making the letter "T" of two matches, the outline of a plane. "Washed out" is the aviator's equivalent for getting killed, and "crashed up" means wrecked. Anti-aircraft guns are called "Archies." A plane of any kind is spoken of as a "job"; "prop" is short for propeller and "give 'er the gun" is the aerial equivalent of the motorist's "step on the gas." To "set down" is to land, but if a flyer falls a few feet when running parallel to the ground, he "pancakes." Training planes with Hispano-Suiza motors are called "hisso," a "Jenny" is a plane with a JN-type motor. The "barrel roll" is a complete revolution lengthwise, "zooming" is to climb sharply for a short period, and "sausage" is the name for a small dirigible or balloon.

Oxygen Used to Age Rubber

How rubber can be speeded up and made to go in a few hours what ordinarily takes several years was revealed to the American Chemical Society in Baltimore recently by J. M. Borer and C. C. Davis of Boston. By increasing the concentration of oxygen, they reported, natural aging could be duplicated in a short time.

A Holiday Feature at the Majestic

FANS DELIGHTED WITH "MY WIFE AND I"

"My Wife and I," the attraction at the Majestic Theatre again to-night, is a picture of zip, action and gripping drama. Movie goers will leave the theatre with the pleasant feeling of having enjoyed an interesting picture, and spent an evening very agreeably.

The plot of "My Wife and I" is taken from the story by Harriet Beecher Stowe, and tells the exciting events that follow the sudden blooming of deceptive romance in the rather colorless life of a middle-aged husband. As if that were not enough to disrupt the routine of any happily-married couple, Mr. Borden becomes infatuated with none other than the girl his son loves, which makes a triangle of double-dose explosive possibilities.

The acting is remarkably good, Irene Rich's performance in the role of Mrs. Borden being spectacular from the angle of emotional expression and repressed passion. John Harron and Huntly Gordon, as Mr. Borden, Sr., and Jr., respectively, make the production realistic and utterly fascinating, while the balance of the cast comes in for a goodly share of praise.

"My Wife and I" weaves its fascinating and fantastic way around a unique triangle that actually has four points—a father and son both fighting for the love of a naughty little creature of the primrose path, with the gracious mother and wife waiting, waiting, waiting.

Majestic patrons were more than delighted with "My Wife and I" last night. It is entirely the best nine part feature shown for some time and those who cannot take it in to-night should do so to-morrow afternoon or night: Remember the admission to any seat at the Majestic still continues twenty cents.

Last Shattuck Thief Quickly Convicted

Paul Camilleri Will be Sentenced—May Get Sixty-Year Term.

Paul Camilleri, "Little Francois the Jockey," last of the robbers of the Washington Square North home of Albert R. Shattuck to stand trial, lost his battle and was convicted of burglary in the first degree by a jury that deliberated less than half an hour.

When sentence is pronounced it is not likely that the diminutive man who twice has been expelled from France as an undesirable, will spend the next sixty years, if he lives, behind prison bars. It was from forty to sixty years that Moses Bagnoll and Eugene Diastet ("Horace" Connecticut) were sentenced to serve when they pleaded guilty of participation in the 1923 robbery.

Gabriel Alphonse Mouray was sentenced to the guillotine after his trial for the robbery in France, but Shattuck pleaded for clemency and sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Bagnoll and Diastet were the star witnesses against Camilleri. They alone identified him as a participant in the robbery. A deposition of Mrs.

Shattuck taken before the court last fall also was considered most incriminating.

World's Oldest Known Forest

A hundred million years ago many millions of years before man himself appeared on the earth, there grew a forest, near what is now Gilboa, N.Y. Dr. John M. ### Coal to Displace Oil

DR. HALDANE ON STEAM MOTOR CAR ENGINES.

Presiding at the Institute of Mining Engineers' annual meeting at Cardiff Dr. J. S. Haldane read a paper on "The future of coal and steam as motive engines," in which he attacked the view that the use of coal for steam engines will in time be superseded.

He believed that the future, where steam was raised by coal or oil, would take the place of internal-combustion engines in a great many cases where these were now employed.

The development of the steam engine would be along the lines of increased steam pressure with smaller and lighter engines. Boilers would be reduced in size as the pressure went up, so that the complete engine and boiler would be much smaller and lighter than an equivalent internal-combustion engine, and would be superior for use in aeroplanes and motor-cars. He did not think that steam engines would ever fight, but the steam engine would beat the internal-combustion engine.

Mr. Sam Major, of Glasgow, said that experiments in steam had produced an engine which in the smaller sizes showed economies hitherto unrealized.

Sir John Cadman said the importance of oil to this country had been much discussed; but he looked upon oil as a phase which was passing. What oil was doing to-day coal would do again to-morrow, although oil would go into certain channels of use which coal would never be able to regain.

VAIN HOPES.

Some men look, sublimely hopeful, for John Barleycorn's return, with his steins and flagons doleful, and his gaze that scars and burn. Barleycorn will be a comer from the realm of outworn junk, when the tree that fell last summer stands again upon its trunk; when the rivers change their courses and their waters roll uphill. John will triumph o'er the forces which have closed his ancient mill. It is good to see men hoping, if they hope for better things. If in darkness they are groping for the swish of seraph wings; but it is sad to see them yearning for an evil that is gone; for the Rum Hole, lights a-burning, for the storied demijohn. Prohibition has its evil, as all honest men declare; in the wheat is also there. And the government is toiling like a hired man with a spade, every day or two it's spilling lawless plans the scotflaws made. And it makes its purpose clearer every time it swats a jaw; every triumph brings us nearer to the drouth without a flaw. Uncle Sam is bound to dump it, all this traffic in old booze; you may like or you may loathe it, but results you cannot choose. Barleycorn is banned forever, and if he, with vicious will, for a footing makes endeavor, he's a hoary outlaw still. Men may wish his restoration but their hopes are all in vain; outlawed by this moral nation; here again he'll never reign, till the rum fleets, where they're resting, are dispensing bonnet teas, till the piebald cows are nesting in the sizzling ginger trees.

REDS RIOT IN HYDE PARK

Police baton charge. Communists, British Fascists, and police took part in a battle in Hyde Park, W., shortly before midnight on Saturday, in which the police had to make baton charges and arrest several men before order was restored. The fight, which resulted in several people in a crowd of 3,000 being injured, was due to a mistaken belief by Communists who had attended a meeting that one of their number had been arrested.

Just after 11.30 p.m. a policeman arrested a man for an alleged breach of the park regulations, and to assist the officer, who was hindered by the crowd, black-shirted National Fascist rallied their comrades with the cry of "Law and Order!" and linked arms in front of and behind the arrested man.

Many Minor Fights. There were minor fights all the way to the Park police station. On the threshold, however, a more bitter fight began, in which the police again used their batons and arrested five men, a charge being made to rescue one police officer who had been cut off from the others.

A minute later another attack on

Rings True and False

It is stated that jewellers in the United States report that wedding rings are losing their true significance. In other words, a wedding ring on a female finger is not a sure indication that that female is married. Many girls are buying cheap wedding rings and wearing them for entirely opposite reasons. Some believe that the ring will make them more attractive to men. They like to create the impression that they are forbidden fruit, and it has always been said that forbidden fruit has an especial lure. But this mentality indicates that marriage vows are lightly held in the States, a view that is supported by divorce statistics. Other girls, it is said, wear wedding rings because they believe that such rings offer girls' protection against men. This type is probably neurotic or exceedingly vain, for the girl who thinks she requires protection against men is as a rule not in the slightest danger. Engagement rings are also being worn by American girls who are not engaged. This practice is stated to be due to the desire on the part of these girls to prove that they are sought after by one man at least. This again is vanity, though it is the type of vanity that should make a strong appeal to jewellers.

In America a league has been formed which is opposed to the practice of a woman taking her husband's name when she marries. Such a charge, it is maintained, is a blow at the independence of women, and the campaign is to be extended to this country. Women either in England or America do not appear to have any great objections to changing their names on marriages. The curious fact about this league is that some of its most ardent supporters are spinsters who have never been asked to change their names, and do not appear to run any risks of this nature. They have no usually this type who indulges in imaginary grievances and makes a fuss for lack of something better to do. No woman is compelled to marry, and if she prefers the name which she received from her father to a husband, the world will still revolve. America appears to be building up a reputation as the home of silly causes, and this is one of the silliest that has been launched for some time.—Liverpool Post.

the money, when a motorcyclist rushed back to the van, which kept on the move the whole time.

A Manoeuvred Collision. The van had apparently been following Mr. Affinder. The collision appeared to be very skillfully manoeuvred. One of the front wheels of the van caught the rear wheel of the motor-cycle, and as the cyclist fell to the ground the driver of the van turned his steering wheel slightly so as to avoid running on to the cyclist.

It was noticed that there were four men in the van, but no description of them is available, owing to the great rapidity with which the attack was carried out and with which they got away. The affair was only a matter of seconds. The men went away in the direction of Romford.

The manager of the Goodmayes branch of Barclays Bank told a Press representative later that Mr. Affinder was uninjured as the result of the

"Smokes" May Cost Less

Prospects of Cheaper Tobacco.

Cheaper tobacco from Imperial Preference was promised during the Commons debate, on a proposed amendment to postpone the operating of clause 8 of the Finance Bill.

This is the clause providing for Imperial Preference in tobacco, dried fruits and wine.

Mr. W. Guinness, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, resisting the amendment, said the clause was embodied in the Finance Bill as a vital part of the Conservative policy. It fulfils the undertaking given eighteen months ago at the Imperial Economic Conference.

Sir R. Thomas (Lab., Anglessey) objected to the clause because neither the home consumer nor the colonies derived benefit from it, and it would mean a loss of 1,474,000 pounds to the British revenue.

Mr. Churchill said in regard to tobacco some advantage would immediately reach the consumer. The Imperial Tobacco Co. proposed to produce pure Empire tobacco at a retail price of 12 an ounce lower than any other tobacco.

The clause was agreed to.

Daring Daylight Robbery

£1,000 TAKEN OFF BANK CLERK.

A bank clerk was the victim of a daring attack in the street near Seven King's Station, Essex, June 4 when he was robbed of £1,000 by motor thieves.

The victim was Mr. Affinder, an official at the Goodmayes branch of Barclays Bank. He was travelling on a motor-cycle with a bag containing the money, when a motorcyclist rushed back to the van, which kept on the move the whole time.

As a result of the collision the van was thrown to the ground and the driver of the van was injured.

The manager of the Goodmayes branch of Barclays Bank told a Press representative later that Mr. Affinder was uninjured as the result of the robbery, and had returned to his office. The numbers of the notes which had been circulated, and the police making a search of the district.

MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Can't do Without MINARD'S

"When we came back to England we brought a bottle of Minard's with us, but since then we can't get any liniment to come up to it. Will you please write and let us know how much it would cost to have 100 bottles sent over."
MRS. R. ADAMS, Old Town, Hastings, England. We receive dozens of letters from far away countries asking for Minard's. For sprains, bruises, burns, colds, inflammation, etc. it has no equal.

The Producer and Other Matters

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Following our recent letter as promised we beg the continuance of your favour to allow us your valuable space.

Having shown that every worker engaged efficiently in the building up of any useful article or commodity from Mother Nature or from raw materials from any source is a producer of wealth to himself and to the country or community in which he works, we beg leave to go on as follows.

We only have to export because we need so many materials that we do not produce and our exports are necessary to exchange for these materials. When we export fish what do we get back? Someone answers quickly—money.

No we do not get money, we get goods and if we were guarding our own birthright and that of our sons and daughters we would only take back materials upon which we could employ our own labourers, creating wealth at home by further manufacture, thus providing that bread and butter for which so many homes are today almost dying.

Of course some essential products would have to be accepted in their finished state, such as tea, etc. Our exports and imports are not a measure of our wealth but rather of our poverty. England, for instance, is one of the greatest commercial countries of the world, yet she produces very little comparatively of the raw materials that she works up in her factories and mills.

Her great wealth has been produced by importing raw materials in various states of finish and working them in her factories into finished products for the use of her own people and for export to pay for her raw materials, all the time retaining as added wealth the profits made in the processes of manufacture, both by her factories and her working men and women engaged therein.

Her real wealth lies in the intelligence of her men and women, who have organised her great manufacturing plants. Herein lies the difference between her and this her eldest son in that our intelligence is nearly all in our feet and not in our heads. We are reminded here of a very apt little figure used some years ago by our great friends the one-time editor of the Harbor Grace Standard, who compared us Newfoundlanders in some particular case to a pair of coal tongs—all legs and thighs with a very small and insignificant head; and in comparison with the activities of the Motherland in this great question of industry the figure is very true.

Otherwise Newfoundland is very like England in that we have to import a great many of the necessities of life; but let us see to it that when we export payments in fish that it be as much as possible at twenty-one dollars per hundred pounds instead of seven dollars. When we export products of the forest let us insist that it must be at sixty dollars per cord in the form of paper and not six dollars per cord as raw wood. And so when we import let it be as far as is absolutely possible only raw materials that we can use in our own factories to produce wealth for Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders. We hear a lot of talk at times about new markets for our fish; this is the last analysis is equivalent to saying we want new markets for our labour contained in the fish product. Well, here surely is a market for our labour over which we have full and lawful control. We only need to convert our labour into commodities or articles that we need for our own consumption in this our own market.

It reminds one of the knight of the Holy Grail who wore himself out in searching the distant foreign lands, and at last when broken and poor and on his return to his own land he finds the much coveted Holy Grail at the very gate through which he set forth. If we, like the knight, would only tender that much needed food and drink to our own neighbours, our own poor, we also would find the Holy Grail which would solve our economic problems, bringing happiness and joy along with the resulting prosperity.

The above are the sources of our economic life and these are the key to all our questions of unemployment, of poverty, of borrowings, of increasing public debt.

To bring this about is the simplest economic problem imaginable, and it will be brought about just as soon as our people take it seriously and make it a policy.

Party politics and sectarian harangues and breaking governments will not solve this the greatest question of the day. Those questions are very much alive and the economic question is allowed to drift.

Let us get to work, let us gather up all the scattered forces, let us unite our efforts. It is the bounden duty of every thinker or worker who sees this or standing, whether he be master or servant, it behooves us one and all to express it each in his own way and for the sake of uniting the individual effort I shall be pleased to be used as a centre of registration. Just send your name and address to be registered as one interested in the economic betterment of Newfoundland. This registration simply means that you are willing to study or have all ready, become a convinced student or worker in this great field of the material and social happiness and prosperity of the whole people.

This is above party politics as much as the sun is above the earth, and is common ground for the union of all parties. Those who have minds to think and are using them have this very hour an exceedingly great responsibility, greater far than at any other period heretofore. Let us examine ourselves and see if we are not just shelling and calmly sitting back on our incomes, which we think secure, while our multitudinous neighbours are for the most part suffering the very real pangs of poverty.

Are we just sitting again to dangle before the bewitched minds of the people the same old red rag of party politics and sectarianism. This is not a solution. We want economic reforms forthwith and just ordinary British fair play for the working man and woman and we cannot stand any more delay.

The people are crying for relief, they are agonising for that work and employment that make possible the essential relationship of the and practical brotherly love.

Yours sincerely,
H. HERMAN ARCHIBALD,
Hr. Grace, June 22nd, 1925.

Outposts of the Past

Visitors to the Sussex and Kenton seaside resorts are familiar with the round Martello towers, which are to be found on the south-east coast.

They were originally built by the Government during the Napoleonic Wars to serve as a defence against invasion. A deep ditch surrounds each tower, and it is interesting to learn that these and other fortifications undertaken at the same period cost the country a million sterling. Their military value was, however, never put to the test.

The name Martello was borrowed from a famous tower of similar structure in Corsica, which really proved of immense use during an invasion of the island in 1794. But to-day, when a gun at Calais could drop a shell into London, the Martello towers are valueless except as relics.

Shaking Hands Under the Thames

TWO TUNNEL-BORING PARTIES MEET.

A record engineering feat reached its climax recently, when the workmen of Messrs. William Mulholland, MacDonald Wilson and Co. Ltd., the contractors, who since December have been boring under the Thames at a depth of 59 ft. between Barking Creek and Woolwich Arsenal, completed the excavation of a tunnel 3,000ft. long, about 2 1/2 times the width of the river at London Bridge.

The tunnel will ultimately carry lines of cable connecting the new London County Power Station, recently opened by the King, with Kent. The experience gained in its construction will be most valuable to the Ministry of Transport in connection with their project for tunnelling the river farther down to connect the arterial roads of Essex and Kent.

First Boring of Its Kind.

For the first time in engineering history, the boring through the chalk has been carried out in compressed air at a pressure of 40 lb. to the square inch. By this concentration of force an express train, could be driven, and a Daily Mail representative was told that it is impossible to live in such a compression for more than three hours, and that sometimes even a short period leads to temporary illness, when the sufferer has the sensation of being torn limb from limb.

Some of the men who are employed in this class of work are paid at the rate of £1,000 a year. Forty feet of solid chalk stand above the tunnel.

Sixty-four men have been engaged on the job, 32 working from the Woolwich side and 32 from the Essex side. At 2.30 yesterday morning the last barrier of chalk was pierced, and the gangs shook hands heartily. By careful mathematical calculation the two parts of the tunnel met exactly in line and level, and even the bolt-holes of the linings were opposite each other.—Daily Mail, June 17th.

What it Costs to Make a Dollar

According to Charles S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, it costs one and seven-tenths cents to print a dollar bill and it has a very short life. But a silver dollar can be minted for one cent and it lasts indefinitely. This is said to be one of the reasons for the Government's desire to put the metal coins into circulation. It is estimated that 40,000,000 silver dollars, replacing that many paper bills, would save the Government $1,000,000 a year.
