NEW FRENCH LINER 'HOW' HOLDS ALL RECORDS IN TRANS-ATLANTIC TALK

Remarkable Achievement in Wireless Telegraphy by New French Liner La Provence --- She Was in Communication With Both Sides of the Atlantic at the Same Time.

NEW YORK, April 28—The world today says: It is a question whether the officials of the French line are prouder of the wireless telegraph, or the speed record which their ship, La Provence, established on her maiden trip across the Atlantic.

The fact remained for the new French ship. The wireless telegraph operator aboard La Provence was in constant communication with both sides of the Atlantic at the same time.

But other lines who own, who stand today in thought beside the shores of France; beholding, where a city crowned too slopes, the ashes of a people's hopes.

NAPLES, April 28—Another disaster occurred in the Vesuvian region, throughout the past night torrents of rain accompanied by a heavy gale of wind.

A BIG PRAIRIE FIRE

WINNIPEG, April 28 (Special)—A green grassland set fire to his tent in the Lower Little Bow range, Lechburn, and then let the fire get away.

ST. JOHN TO 'FRISCO Commemorative of the Citizens' Entertainment in the York Theatre, St. John N. B. on Thursday Evening, April 26th, 1906, in Aid of the Sufferers From Earthquake and Fire in San Francisco.

BY A. M. BELDING. Why meet we here tonight, or heed the fate of them that dwell beside the Golden Gate? A thousand leagues of continent divide the western bay from Fundy's rolling tide.

For we recall the men of Party-Nine, The Argonauts who sought in western mine To find the fortune ready to be won.

The Argonauts of California trail, Save here and there an aged man whose tales His little circle hear with awe and pride.

All those long since have passed, and time and change Have spanned the plains and pierced the mountain range; With hands of gold and compass of the sun.

And so in thought tonight by Fundy's wave, We see the wasted home, the cot, the grave; And hear the cry of children in the night.

Yet stronger than the deadly earthquake shock The smites and rends the everlasting rock; So strong is hope's death himself withouted.

SIXTY FRUITFUL YEARS

The following, relative to the early history of San Francisco, appeared in an American publication in 1892, and shows that the wooden city is of comparatively recent growth:

"A national and almost world-wide history attaches to San Francisco, less than fifty years ago an inconspicuous Mexican locality known as Yerba Buena. The development of commercial affairs, expanding with the western coast and empire, gradually reached this fair land and bay, so that in 1846, as one of the effects of the war between the United States and Mexico, the population numbered from one to two hundred, with quite a number of buildings—hantios, frame-houses, and shacks. Emigrants of various nationalities increased the population; and church, tavern, even the printing press, were not long in making their appearance, and establishing an organized community. It was by an ordinance issued by the Alcalde, Jan. 30th, 1847, that Yerba Buena became San Francisco. This Alcalde, Lieut. W. A. Bartlett, U. S. N., was the first chief magistrate of San Francisco, under the American flag. This local transaction, at once without formality, and the subsequent absorption, almost contemporaneously, of California itself, together with the tide of events which so quickly set in, constitute one of the most remarkable chapters, military and political, to be found in American history. For the wonderful absorption, almost contemporaneously, of California itself, together with the tide of events which so quickly set in, constitute one of the most remarkable chapters, military and political, to be found in American history. "When the Texas city was destroyed by tidal wave and cyclone six years ago, it was at once placed under the direction of a commission of five of the ablest and best citizens of the place. So admirably have they governed the work of reconstruction that Galveston finds it cannot get along without them. The people refuse to return to the old form of municipal organization and have secured a permanent government consisting of five commissioners, one of whom bears the title of mayor, charged with all the municipal functions. Moreover, the example is followed by other Texas cities. Houston has secured a charter of that sort and Dallas has just voted in its favor, while San Antonio and Fort Worth are agitating for the same purpose. It may be seen that San Francisco will adopt the Texas plan and that in time the old-style city government will die out there also. Whether or no, the southern experiment ought to be watched with close attention, for anything that can purify and make more honestly efficient the conduct of cities will prove a great blessing to mankind."

"France is fearing an earthquake of the people, says the Boston Herald. Her volatile citizens are again restless. A revolutionary spark will at any moment set the entire country in a blaze, it is feared. The law is bending somewhat to this mood, and the question is whether the government dare use its own weapons in an emergency, and it is an increasing belief that they dare not, which makes the danger really great. The alarm has reached many foreign visitors through the consulates, and strangers are preparing to leave. The hotels of Paris and other large cities are laying in stores of provisions, and the banks are sending the bulk of their securities out of the country. No less an authority than the New York Sun looks upon it as a grave crisis in the life of the French nation. Truly these are stirring times."

"Hobson, of kissing fame, has secured a Democratic nomination for Congress in an Alabama district, and that is equivalent to election. His platform is 'A billion dollar navy,' and 'Down with the negro.' Hobson may have elements of statesmanship concealed about him, but it is as a kisser that he will be remembered longest."

"At a meeting of the St. John branch of the Women's Auxiliary of King's College, held in the Church of England Institute room, yesterday afternoon, it was decided to help the society in Windsor to raise $1,000 for the expense of a chair of divinity in the college."

"The Young Peoples Guild of Waterloo Street Baptist church held a social in the vestry of the church last night. There was a very interesting programme of literary and musical numbers. At the close, light refreshments were served. The proceeds of the social amounted to about $25."

ROOSEVELT AND THE CHILDREN

President Roosevelt, like the German emperor, ventures into every field of discussion with a fearlessness suggesting the sage about the fools and the angels. But the president, much as he sermonizes, and trite as some of his deliverances are, generally gives sound advice, or comes pretty near it. His admirers must have trembled when they heard he was to address a congress of mothers, but he acquitted himself bravely and gave the women something different from the milk-and-water doctrine they heard from other speakers. He said in part:

"In bringing up your children you mothers must remember that while it is essential to be loving and tender it is no less essential to be wise and firm. Foolishness and affection must not be treated as interchangeable terms, and besides training your sons and daughters in the soft and kinder virtues you must seek to give them those stern and hardy qualities which in after life they will surely need. If you mothers, through weakness, bring up your sons to be selfish and to think only of themselves, you will be responsible for much sadness among the women who are to be their wives in the future."

"If you let your daughters grow up idle, perhaps under the mistaken impression that as you yourself have had to work hard they shall know only enjoyment, you are preparing them to be useless to others and burdens to themselves. Teach boys and girls alike that they are not to look afterward to lives spent in avoiding difficulties, but to lives spent in overcoming difficulties. Teach them that work for themselves, and also for others, is not a curse, but a blessing; seek to make them happy, to make them enjoy life; but seek also to make them face life with the staidest resolution to wrest success from labor and adversity, and to do their whole duty before God and to man."

IS IT A HABIT?

Do we elect a common council merely because it is a habit? If we were starting all over again would we try another plan? A contemporary critic Galveston's case to show that there at least they got on better after they shook off the habit of electing a common council. Had Galveston suffered no great disaster its people might have gone on as before, electing aldermen but never getting the kind needed. It is now suggested by a thoughtful writer that San Francisco, in making a new start, might follow Galveston's example with profit. He says:

"It is highly interesting just at this moment of San Francisco's hope and determination for the future, to recall the experience of Galveston. 'When the Texas city was destroyed by tidal wave and cyclone six years ago, it was at once placed under the direction of a commission of five of the ablest and best citizens of the place. So admirably have they governed the work of reconstruction that Galveston finds it cannot get along without them. The people refuse to return to the old form of municipal organization and have secured a permanent government consisting of five commissioners, one of whom bears the title of mayor, charged with all the municipal functions. Moreover, the example is followed by other Texas cities. Houston has secured a charter of that sort and Dallas has just voted in its favor, while San Antonio and Fort Worth are agitating for the same purpose. It may be seen that San Francisco will adopt the Texas plan and that in time the old-style city government will die out there also. Whether or no, the southern experiment ought to be watched with close attention, for anything that can purify and make more honestly efficient the conduct of cities will prove a great blessing to mankind.'

"France is fearing an earthquake of the people, says the Boston Herald. Her volatile citizens are again restless. A revolutionary spark will at any moment set the entire country in a blaze, it is feared. The law is bending somewhat to this mood, and the question is whether the government dare use its own weapons in an emergency, and it is an increasing belief that they dare not, which makes the danger really great. FINANCIAL DEMANDS OF RUSSIA

(New York Commercial-Advertiser.) The loan of $440,000,000 which, on somewhat onerous terms, the Russian government has succeeded in placing in Paris, London, Amsterdam, Vienna, and St. Petersburg, does not by any means exhaust the financial requirements of Russia. In an official communication, issued a few days ago, the government has given some hint of these. A bid has been made for the investment of foreign capital by declaring that the construction of the Russian parliament will mark the end of the vexatious restrictions heretofore existing upon the exploitation of Russia's resources, Siberia and Central Asia especially are pointed out as fields for material development. It is quite true that Siberia is the wealthiest part of Russia, and that under a good government it would soon become populous and highly productive. Of the four million square miles of Eastern Siberia there are only about two million people, of whom many are to be found on every twenty square miles. Eastern Siberia has perhaps the best grazing grounds in the world. It possesses a first class black agricultural soil, it is very rich in minerals, and the fisheries are unrivaled in their productivity. But it is also true that during the last fifty years the whole energy of Russia and countless millions of her money have been spent in Asia with but very slender returns, and the foreigner is to be tempted to enter the field in which the Russian government itself has made a failure, it must be under conditions that will subject the whole system of government in Russia to a very severe strain.

In the official organ of the Russian Treasury this suggestive statement was made several years ago: "No correct judgment can be pronounced on the financial machinery of Russia, unless the fundamental fact is borne in mind: the Russian State in the greatest and slowest, the greatest capitalist, the greatest constructor of railways and carries on the largest business in the world. On all fours with this state of things as the position of the Bank of Russia. As the same publication pointed out, the bank has no other capital than that provided by the Treasury. While the sum of 100 million roubles does appear in the assets of the bank under the heading of "non-interest bearing debt of the Treasury for bank notes issued," in the liabilities there may be found say 300 million roubles that the Bank of Russia carries on its loan and discount operations. Instead of advancing to the government the money of private persons, the bank lends to the Government the money of private persons. Under these conditions it is clear that the Government cannot reckon on the bank to absorb its Treasury bills and that it must carefully avoid, not only increasing its balance, but even letting it fall below 200 million roubles. In short, the whole fabric of government in Russia rests on a highly organized and centralized paternalism, and to allow free play to individual enterprise the national conception of the legitimate functions of the State must undergo a radical change. It may be confidently affirmed that no such change is possible unless it is preceded by the equally radical change of transferring to the representative assembly the power of the national purse. At present the Russian is the only government which can raise taxes for any purpose without consulting the representatives of the people. In Russia the people are never asked whether they are willing to pay a certain tax or to approve of the purpose for which it is raised. They are surprised of the command and are expected to obey. It is hardly necessary to add that the Russians are the only civilized people who would brook such treatment, and that even they have found it too much for endurance.

It is to date the money thus raised has been spent in the maintenance of the largest army in Europe, on a navy which, before its destruction by the Japanese, was in the order of international strength, and on thousands of miles of commercially unproductive railway and strategic harbors around which have been built the most ambitious kind of towns for the use of future generations. The attempt to construct a network of railways mainly on strategic grounds has proved financially disastrous. Beginning with 1901 the loss on the operation of the Russian railway net figured out $17,000,000; the estimate for 1905 was nearly three times this amount, and, owing to the necessities of the war, was necessarily very much greater. In all this there is no evidence that allowance has been made for the interest on the money invested on the railways, for the redemption of the railway loans or for the depreciation of rolling stock. Some have recently been found for all this extravagant and waste if the condition of Russian finances is not to go rapidly from bad to worse. Four years ago the Russian bureaucracy began to recognize that it was impossible to wring more money by direct or indirect means from the people, and that in order to pay for the costly policy of his government by going without his food. On the 20th of March, 1905, the Minister of Finance, then Minister of Finance, explained the budget before the council of state and said: "The Minister of Finance must confess that the population is weighed down by direct and indirect taxation to the utmost limit that can be borne. A further increase of taxation would not only be without purpose, but would hardly be permissible in the present condition of the country. That statement is so few emphatically true today than it was in 1902, and circumstances have manifestly given it new force. The key to the future economic policy of Russia will be found in the recognition which the new representative body shall give to considerations like these and to its ability to give them practical effect."

Mr. Geo. Thompson has so far recovered from her late serious illness that her family hope to be able to remove her to her home today.

PRINCE ERRANT ~ HA! HA! GETS THE HA! HA!

P. 4
Q. 22
6/

1. Baron: So the Terrible Hyena is again in the neighborhood? 'Tis well, as our Noble Prince can show his valor by capturing it.
Princess: Oh! Prince! You go to sure death—no man has ever escaped from it alive.

2. Ha! Ha! the Jester: Pray take me with you. I know not where to go, but surely my wit will prove of value to you.
Prince Errant: Your suggestion is a happy one. Yes, you may go as I will have use for your wit.

3. Princess: May your quest be successful, Prince.
Ha! Ha! the Jester: Fear not for his welfare, pretty maid, is not Ha Ha with him?

4. Prince Errant: Quick, now, Spring one of your best jokes and make it laugh. I'll do the rest!
Ha, Ha, the Jester: Great snakes! I thought I was to make a human being laugh.

5. Ha! Ha! the Jester: H-H-H-elp!
Prince Errant: Why! You haven't uttered a word, but you're making it laugh just the same.

6. Prince Errant: Great! Great! it's laughing at your fright—keep it up.
Hyena: Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho! Ha!

7. Prince: It was a clever thought. I'll gag it while it's helpless with laughter.

8. Princess: Ha! Ha! has just told us how he captured the Terrible Hyena for you. He is indeed a jewel.

The Question of Nourishment to be derived from bread is most important, and should not be overlooked by any breadeater.

There is, however, a vast difference in the nourishing properties of bread, which varies according to the flour from which it is made. It is admitted that the Manitoba Hard Wheat from which "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR is made contains more gluten and phosphates than any grain grown on this continent; and as "FIVE ROSES" is made only from the pick of the harvest, by a process which retains the nutritive properties of the grain unimpaired, bread made from it consequently contains more nutriment in more easily digestible form than that made with ordinary brands.

MONSTER SHIPS TO SURPASS ALL

Cunard Liners Soon to be Launched Largest and Broadest Ever Built—Carry 3000, Elevators, Fitted Like Hotels.

LONDON, April 26—The two new Cunard liners, which are being built with the $10,000,000 loan by the government are fast nearing completion, and will be launched in June or July of this year. They will be named the Mauritania and the Laurentia, and will be the largest ships the world has ever seen.

Some remarkable figures regarding the two vessels are supplied by the Cunard company. Each vessel will have a gross tonnage of 33,200, while they are 60 feet longer than any other liner afloat. They are 88 feet in beam, and in this respect are the first to surpass the Great Eastern, which was 83 feet in breadth. They will each have accommodations for 3,000 passengers and carry a crew of 800.

They will be propelled by turbine engines, capable of developing 80,000 horse power, and are expected to travel at a minimum speed of 24 knots an hour. Marine engineers predict that the two vessels will be the swiftest ships on the ocean, and will be fitted in a manner equal to the most gorgeous modern hotels. The decorations will consist of reproductions of the greatest works of art, while the system of elevators between the various decks will provide for the rapid transit of the passengers from one part of the ship to another.

The first-class dining saloon will be unprecedented in marine architecture. It will be a massive and gorgeous apartment 125 feet long and 80 feet wide, and will comfortably accommodate 500 persons at one meal time.

More than one engineering record has been broken in the construction of these ships. The steel frames and brackets are the largest ever known, the former alone weighing 47 tons and requiring no fewer than 40 tons of molten metal in the making. The rudder weighs 70 tons, and each link in the 2,000 fathoms of cables is 2 1/2 inches long and weighs 190 pounds. Each link was tested and withstood a strain of 370 tons.

ALL THAT IS CHARMING IN CHILDREN'S ATTIRE

Choosing and Making the Wardrobe for Little Ones This Summer Is as Fascinating as Providing a Doll's Outfit, so Pretty and Becoming Are the Unnumbered Trifles That go to Complete the Intricacies of Present Styles—Wash Materials Viewed in Bewildering Array.

To every mother who enjoys dressing her children prettily the present styles cannot help but be a delight. It is like playing dolls all over again to get up the dainty little dresses with their appropriate headgear, for everything is designed with an eye to quaint becomingness. Then little mopsy's fashionable wardrobe must contain unnumbered trifles which are truly as charming as doll toys. Parasols, fans, chains and bracelets accompany the finer frocks, dainty silk underdresses, and even separate silk petticoats are for the transparent ones, with other countless appendages in the way of shoes and hair ribbons. One or more little frocks for afternoon summer dancing are also indispensable, which means that little slippers and stockings even call for the ball tints of doll tizzies.

childlike in essence may be had for the same sum. Returning to rough clothes and considering the point of their being bought ready-made, the above which make a specialty of juvenile attire are very complete in this line. There are delightful little linen, gingham and chambray frocks and suits in deep blue, pale brown, buff and red, a touch of white in both the boys' and girls' case giving the note of becomingness. But little of this is used, however, the white only outlining the neck and sleeve cuffs and belt of the girl's frock, and showing perhaps in some narrow braid on the boy's suit.

health and happiness depend upon the freedom and comfort of growing muscles. The sandals long seen and approved are excellent foot coverings, but even better ones are the little gymnasium shoes of soft leather, which lace to the ends of the toes. This lacing expands pleasantly with every jump, while each athletic shoe keeps the feet in better shape than do the more open sandals.

their masses of white embroidery or lace, some of which is set into the material and framed with lovely embroidery. The flower and lace trimmed poke bonnet is much in favor for baby girls, and some of the shapes are quaintly big and fantastically shaped. Broad hats of leg-horn or soft fancy straw are also frequently made up to imitate something of the poke shape, which a folding up of the back brim, and a cunning undulation of the front accomplishes.

IN THE LABOR WORLD

Twelve years ago one hundred and three German cities each boasted a Labor Council. In February of this year there were in existence five hundred and six Central Labor Councils in as many cities in the German Empire.

The Trade Union Bank of Chicago, where 61 unions and their members will be asked to deposit their funds, was opened May 15th, with a capital of $500,000.

Over four thousand linemen and other electrical workers in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone Company in the States of Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama, went on strike recently to enforce a demand for increased wages.

According to the returns received by the British Board of Trade from the district committees under the Unemployed Workmen Act, and from the local correspondents of the department, the amount in February was less than in the previous month, and much less than a year ago.

The eighth annual convention of the German State Federation of Labor will convene in August, Ga., Wednesday, June 20.

An agreement has been signed between the Chicago masons and Builders' Association, and the Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' Union, which provides for an increase in wages that will mean nearly $1,000,000 a year in the aggregate to the men.

According to a preliminary report published by the Richmond Typographical Union, 280 strikers and 41 lockouts came to an end in Germany in the last quarter of 1905.

The street car strike, at Winnipeg, Manitoba, recently ended, the men getting an average of one cent per hour in pay. They asked two cents.

A year's agreement was signed recently by committees representing the Diamond Manufacturers' Association of America, and the Diamond Workers' Protective Union. Under the new agreement, which became effective at once, an increase of about 10 per cent in wages was secured by the Union.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in the Richmond Typographical Union case, has upheld the right of picketing so long as violence and disorder do not result. The decision affirms the Chancery Court of Richmond, which dissolved a similar injunction to prevent all interference by strikers with the employing printers.

Friendly relations which have existed between the Chicago building contractors and the building trades unions since the close of the lockout of 1900 have been seriously strained through the recurrence of sympathetic strikes.

The coal miners' suspension, it is thought, will soon be amicably adjusted.

The house of representatives recently passed the personal liability bill. The bill is entitled "An act to amend the act of March 3, 1879, relating to the liability of employers for the negligence of employees."

Paris, France, postal workers are still striking.

"Picketing" determined by labor unions for half a century has been abandoned by the Associated Building Trades, composed of the oldest labor organizations in Chicago. This body has decided that in the future it will allow non-union workers who take the place of strikers to go to and from their work without interference.

A new way of settling industrial difficulties, as being tried at Omaha, Wyo., where the coal miners and operators disagreed over hours of work. The operators wanted the men to work nine hours, while the miners insisted on eight. Instead of striking the miners employed lawyers, who discovered an eight hour state law which must be put out at 10 o'clock.

The railway contractors, who some time ago met in Chicago, pronounced against government rate making.

By admitting 3,000 members of the Building Trades Council of San Francisco, affiliation, the Associated Building Trades of Chicago and Cook county, has increased its membership to nearly 40,000 members.

The annual Saturday half holiday and general wage and working agreement was signed by the Boston Plasterers' Union and the employing plasterers.

All the metal-working establishments of Dresden, Germany, have agreed to a lock-out of employees belonging to unions, owing to the alleged frequency of strikes. There are 25,000 workers affected.

Encouraged by the signal success of the Building Trades Council of San Francisco, in collecting the whole labor ticket, and having now complete control of the city government, steps have been taken at the recent state convention of California Building Trades Council, to organize a State Labor Party and capture the state government.

At the conclusion of the discourse he bowed and prostrated himself before the preacher and praised his sermon, saying it was the best he had ever heard. ETIQUETTE IN EVERYDAY LIFE

No one invention so intimately connects itself with everyday life in the twentieth century as does the telephone. Its wires are the network which unite both the business and social worlds of today, and its constant use has evoked certain rules of etiquette which cannot be overlooked.

It is well to remember, for instance, that because your friends have a telephone is no reason why you should take up half their time talking with them over it. Nothing is more tormenting to a busy person than to be continually called to the phone to hear a round of insipidities which have no connection with the affairs of the day.

Don't think because your friend pays for the telephone by the year that you can save up all your calls and deliver them over her wire. You would have to be pretty busy to save her the trouble of something from her larder, so remember that the telephone bill is quite as much a part of the household expenses as the grocer's bill. If you haven't a 'phone of your own, try to make your calls over a public wire.

When you take off your receiver remember that there is a human being who may be mistaken in voices which never fail to respond more quickly to a "Please." She also learns to know your voice if you have a private 'phone, and an occasional "Good morning" is appreciated in her routine work more than you can imagine.

In the other hand do not try to burden this same "Central" with too many of your personal secrets. No matter how busy you may be mistaken in voices which never fail to respond more quickly to a "Please." She also learns to know your voice if you have a private 'phone, and an occasional "Good morning" is appreciated in her routine work more than you can imagine.

Having obtained the party called, make sure to whom you are speaking. Never trust your ear when it comes to sounds over the 'phone. In nine cases out of ten you can be mistaken in voices which never fail to respond more quickly to a "Please." She also learns to know your voice if you have a private 'phone, and an occasional "Good morning" is appreciated in her routine work more than you can imagine.

If you have been called unexpectedly or by some one who is speaking in a low voice, you will know how perfectly at a person feels at such a time. Hence it is as a rule, never answer a call unless you are then expect the person at the other end of the wire to carry on the conversation.

If you are giving an invitation over the 'phone, make it in such a way that the invited one will not be obliged to abruptly refuse or accept. The story of the girl who asked a man to dinner is a very apt illustration of the embarrassment which may result from an instant invitation over a wire. He refused for Monday night, then for Tuesday, and then for Wednesday. Thursday's dinner, he replied impatiently: "Well, I'll come Monday."

Some Old Fashioned Spring Beautifiers

IN THE DAYS when our grandmothers were young, beauty specialists with formulas of youth in the way of skin creams and lotions were so common, and yet none of us have heard that grandmother's skin was soft and rosy when she was a girl, and we have also seen with our own eyes many a grandmother today whose skin was as fresh and smooth as that of her daughter, in fact more so.

It was my good fortune to meet one of these dear old ladies very recently—she was 62 years old, although when looking at the clear complexion and fresh, well-preserved skin it was hard to believe it.

TOOK A SIMPLE REMEDY

Twice a year at least, usually in the spring and fall, she got her blood and general system in order by taking a simple remedy.

How to Take Care of the Nose and Ears

By Dr. Emma E. Walker.

THE mouth forms an important part of the expression of the face. The muscles of the rest of the body, molded by habit, give to the mouth its greatest beauty to the extent that one's general appearance is better to brush the teeth downward from the gums than crossing above the line of the gums.

quill toothpick, will remove every particle of food from the teeth. There are certain local causes for this affliction—namely, the teeth, mouth, nose, throat and lungs.

habit of "bolting" food all have a tendency to cause this trouble. There are many remedies for this trouble, but the most effective is to brush the teeth downward from the gums than crossing above the line of the gums.

A DAINTY BREAKFAST

The formula for a dainty cream to use on dry and cracked lips: 1/2 lb. almond oil, one-eighth pound, white wax, one-half ounce, spermaceti, one-half ounce, oil of almonds, bitter, one-eighth drachm, oil of geranium, one-eighth drachm, and the cream may be applied whenever the lips require it.

TO PROTECT THE TEETH

Medicines that inflame the teeth are the liquid preparations of iron and the mineral acids. Such medicines should always be taken through a glass tube. It is well, especially in the morning, to gently wipe off the tongue with a damp cloth of soft tooth brush, as the cavity of the mouth harbors many microbes and impurities.

FOR WHOOPING COUGH

FOR whooping cough, an excellent remedy is to take a spoonful of the following mixture: 1/2 ounce of castor oil, 1/2 ounce of sweet almond oil, 1/2 ounce of honey, and 1/2 ounce of lemon juice.

TAKING A REST CURE AT HOME

A Few Minutes with Dumb-bells

WE HEAR a great deal about acquiring health and good looks by leading a simple life. Most of us feel that this is an absolute impossibility in our homes.

Daily Cold Sponges

She chose a room at the top of the house, and had a simple bed, a good-sized table, a chair, and a few pictures of which she was very fond.

Plenty of Fruit Juices

Upon waking she drank a glass of pure water—the drink ten glasses during the day—then practiced deep breathing for five minutes.

Some Necessary Articles

Then the hair was carefully brushed and combed and arranged for the night. So that the skin should be kept fresh and soft-looking, a good facial cream was applied; and by this time she was ready for a good night's rest.

HALIFAX HEARTILY WELCOMED PRINCE

PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT

Halifax, April 27.—(Special)—Prince Arthur was received in Halifax today amid the booming of a royal salute from the side, by a guard of honor from the Royal Canadian Regiment at the railway station and by the mayor and corporation at the City Hall, where he was presented with an address.

Halifax people are not given to cheering, but they gave His Royal Highness "a rouser" two or three times during the reception proceedings. The royal carriage was escorted to the City Hall by mounted policemen, and at the hall he was met by a guard of civic police. The Royal British Veterans' Society paraded with banners, and the prince inspected them, shaking hands with each member. Leaving the city hall the prince proceeded to Government House, where he remained a short time, thereafter returning quietly to his car, where he stayed till he left for the dinner at Government House at night.

WEARY DAYS AND SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Many men and women to-night after night upon sleepless beds still wear dawn. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose hearts and nerves are right. Worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted. Or, again, you have heart palpitation and sensation of sinking, a feeling you are going to die or perhaps you wake up from your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. Allow these conditions to continue and you will feel your health declining.

It is the nervous heart that are not acting properly. They can be set right by the use of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action and removing all symptoms of heart trouble, which is often the cause of nervousness and sleeplessness.

Mrs. Ennis Chambers, Massey Station, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervous, weak spells and fluttering of the heart. I was so bad at times I could not lie down in bed at night but would have to sit up. I doctored for a whole year and got no relief. I took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and was so completely cured I have not been troubled since. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THREE PILOTS HAVE NO COMPLAINT AGAINST DREDGING

The special committee of the common council, appointed to hear evidence in connection with the charge of dumping dredged material within prescribed limits, met last evening. Today it will be decided whether the next meeting will be held. Three pilots were practically all of the opinion that the depth of water in the channel has not diminished, and that there has been no indiscriminate dumping of ashes or other matter into the harbor.

Leo Smith, a sailor, swore that at low tide the depth in the western channel is but eleven feet, and his evidence was questioned by Mr. Mayor. Ald. MacArthur presided. G. S. Mayes was the first witness. He explained the location of the dumping operations, near Shag Rock. The material, he said, had been dumped as far as two miles out.

Ald. Bullock wanted to know if the witness had ever taken the preference as to location. The witness stated that he was subject to Engineer Shewen's instructions, or as the contract specified. He could not state how many scoops had been taken out. No material had ever been dumped east of the breakwater. "I have never put a spoonful there," he said. Richard Clive was the next witness. He said he did not know of any dumping into the harbor. There was about the same depth of water in both channels, and whatever depositing there might be the tides would shift. He considered the harbor just as safe as it was ten years ago. Steamer captains had never complained to him of shifting groundings. He was not of the opinion that any harm was done the harbor through what might have been thrown in.

Pilot J. Doyle swore that the water at the channels was of the same depth as forty years ago. The average depth was from twelve to thirteen feet. He knew of no dumping from the dredging into the harbor. There was no less depth at the harbor entrance and approaches. He could see no change. "Well, the ships are becoming larger now," remarked Ald. MacArthur. "I know, but there is no danger." Ald. Bullock—"Are the scoops towed out?" "Yes, they are." "I suppose so. I never watch them. But I believe that where the scoops are Pilot Clive as the proper place for them." "Have steamer captains complained to you of groundings?" "Yes, Captain Vipond, of the Virginian, said his ship had grounded, but there was no trouble. The bottom is soft. Steamers often ground. I know they do in Glasgow and Portland (Me.) Captain Vipond said he had grounded in Portland."

Pilot J. McParland was invited to give evidence, but he said he had no testimony to offer. Leo Smith, for twenty-two years a sailor, swore that the average depth of the western channel was fully eighteen and a half feet. Now he considered the opinion of the works now being constructed with the distribution system, and also that for this purpose during such time as Mr. Barbour shall consider necessary, the harbor be placed under his immediate supervision and control.

Ald. Frink presided, and the others present were Peter Climeh, G. O. Ditty and F. J. G. Knowlton, representing the underwriters; Ald. Bullock, MacRae, McArthur, Baxter, Tilley and Engineer Murdoch. The meeting resulted in the unanimous adoption of the following resolution: "That the committee be authorized to prepare a report to the common council on the subject of the proposed system of water supply, and to recommend such measures as may be deemed necessary for the improvement of the harbor."

The position of the underwriters was laid down by Mr. Oty, who read at a statement of the following nature: "The twenty-five cents additional insurance rate will be removed as soon as the water service is improved by means of a sufficient guarantee pressure and fully supplemented by an effective distribution system of the New Brunswick Board of Fire Underwriters. The fifteen cents additional rate charged for lack of chemical engine was withdrawn when the city complied with board requirements."

"The city adopted the plans of Snow & Barbour, of Boston, which if strictly adhered to, plainly indicated that the requirements of the board would be met. The position not having changed, the board now see no reason for departing from them. Snow & Barbour promised certain results if their plans were adopted. These plans having been adopted the city should require that they be carried out in their entirety. The board cannot refrain from pointing out that if the distribution pipes are too weak to withstand the force of an adequate pressure, that fact and better be demonstrated now than in the midst of a conflagration. The board view with apprehension the differences of opinion between the engineers indicated by Mr. Murdoch's adverse criticism of Mr. Barbour's plans, and are strongly of opinion that the operation of the new system, for a year at least, should be under the absolute control of Snow & Barbour."

"Apart altogether from the question of insurance, the board wishes to emphasize the necessity of more perfect protection to reduce the conflagration hazard, which recent experience shows is rapidly increasing over the whole American continent. The amount of property at the owners' risk exceeds in value the liability carried by the companies, and the additional protection is required quite as much in the interests of the public as in that of the companies."

Correspondence which Engineer Murdoch had carried on with the water departments of different United States and Canadian cities respecting the merits of single and dual services in connection with water extension to Loch Lomond, was read, but in the opinion of the underwriters had but little to do with the real matter at issue. Mr. Knowlton pointed out that what was wanted was an adequate supply of water to protect the city in the event of a conflagration. The chairman referred to the report of Mr. Barbour, in which he was quoted as saying that the renewal of the distribution system would mean an expenditure so great as to be hardly practicable. "The city having accepted Mr. Barbour's suggestions," said Mr. Knowlton, "it seems but reasonable that we should expect results. He says that if he is given authority he will bring about certain results. Now let us hold Mr. Barbour to his promise, and not tamper with this system and that system. Let us look at the whole matter we would regard a plain business proposition."

"This committee states one thing," said Ald. Tilley, "and Mr. Barbour states another. The difficulty has now come down to the question of distribution. As Mr. Barbour says, there may be some wrong with the pipes, about which he knows nothing. 'I think you have a misconception of the facts.'" Ald. Tilley—"Then the distribution of the water is a matter which is left out of his hands." "I think so," replied Ald. Frink. Ald. MacArthur spoke of the importance of paying any attention to the correspondence between the engineer and outside water departments. "Mr. Murdoch has said," he remarked, "that if the dual system was under his direction there would be less danger of pipes bursting than under the system advocated by Mr. Barbour."

"I'd have it so," said Mr. Murdoch, "that streams could be thrown over an embankment in the city without there being the necessity for an engine."

Here Mr. Murdoch invited the attention of the fire underwriters to illustrations of different kinds of pressure regulators. "The committee," said Mr. Climeh, "do not care about details. What we want to make ourselves clear upon is that a direct pressure from a lower level is not what we consider sufficient. What we want is the kind of pressure that Mr. Barbour recommends."

BARBOUR'S PLAN OF VALVES ACCEPTED, AND HE IS IN CHARGE

Committee representing the board of fire underwriters and the common council met yesterday afternoon to discuss the adoption of the regulating valve system. The meeting resulted in the unanimous adoption of the following resolution: "That the committee be authorized to prepare a report to the common council on the subject of the proposed system of water supply, and to recommend such measures as may be deemed necessary for the improvement of the harbor."

The position of the underwriters was laid down by Mr. Oty, who read at a statement of the following nature: "The twenty-five cents additional insurance rate will be removed as soon as the water service is improved by means of a sufficient guarantee pressure and fully supplemented by an effective distribution system of the New Brunswick Board of Fire Underwriters. I tried Bright's Disease slightly, Lumbago pills in my lot and at times all over my body. My skin was dry, hard and burning, I could not sleep, the least exertion made me perspire fearfully and my blood was so bad I broke out in boils all over the neck and back. MOVING TIME IS HERE NOW

Cold Lunches and Cheerless Rooms Tell the Tale of the Annual Fitting.

All over the city from now until after May 1st there are cheerless bare rooms, furniture piled high, ready for moving and the general mix-up of household effects, usual at this time of year in preparation of families, changing from one home to another.

Some have already moved their effects, while others are impatiently waiting for a chance to get a start and if possible to get at least part of their goods shifted before Tuesday.

There are also a large number of changes to go into effect as the business portion of the city, some have already been made and others will be effected within a few days.

There is a marked advance in rents this year all over the city and the householders who can keep his residence without paying a higher rent than last year is certainly lucky.

There is also a large number of changes to go into effect as the business portion of the city, some have already been made and others will be effected within a few days.

AN EXCELLENT SHOW

Empire Dramatic Club Scored a hit in West End Last Evening in Clever Production.

Last night's benefit entertainment for the San Francisco relief fund given by the Empire Dramatic Club at Carleton City Hall, was largely attended, and as on previous occasions the amateur performers acquitted themselves in a highly creditable manner. The work throughout showed careful attention and was greatly appreciated by the large audience.

The various members of the casts made the most of the two bright little comedies. A Christmas Chime and The Boston Dip, both of which abound in funny situations. The settings, as is usual with the Empire people, were fully in keeping with the demands of the pieces and elicited much favorable comment.

The assisting talent were Miss Laura Gleason, Miss Julia R. Pirie, Harry McQuade, W. H. Ross, Scott's Companion, Boys' Brigade, and two baby dancers, little Miss Grace Mosher and Gladys Heist.

All were well received, and each was obliged to respond to a hearty encore. The baby dancers made a very decided hit, and especially had their own little fires exit when the audience burst in a storm of applause, and the tots were obliged to return and repeat their clever performance.

It is expected that a good substantial sum will be realized in the relief fund, but the exact amount has not as yet been ascertained.

The Empire people have a new price in mind which will be presented here within the next few weeks. Special features are being added to the specialty list, and the public can look forward to a genuine treat in the line of amateur theatricals.

After the performance the members of the club and assisting talent, were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Gleason, of the Prince Royal Hotel, Prince street.

PAINTERS WILL GET INCREASE

The increase in wages, asked for by the painters, will go into effect on Tuesday next, when $2.25 a day will be the price paid for their services, instead of $2.00 as at present. So far as can be learned there will be no trouble over the matter, and all the master painters will abide by the new scale, though it may mean a reduction in the number of employees in some of the shops, as one of the master painters says he will have to work harder himself and do with one man less, on account of the increase, in order to make things pan out right.

It is understood that the increase in wages to the painters will mean a corresponding increase for all contracts made by the master painters after May 1st.
