BOARD OF TRADE MAKES DONATION TO FLOWER SHOW

Publicity Committee Recommend the Immediate Procuring
Of Photographs of Town and District—Progress
Reported By Other Committees.

A well attended meeting of the Board of Trade was held on Tuesday evening last and no doubt the good attendance was prompted chiefly by the question of the sewerage system being before the Board.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed and the chairman called for reports of standing committees.

No reports were submitted by the Railway and Transportation or the Public Welfare Committees, but the Publicity Committee was ably represented and progress was reported, furthered by the suggestion that photographs be taken of the town and neighborhood and that cuts be made, and as at the present time a series of one hundred pictures were being taken of the district by a local photographer it was thought that a small amount of money should be set aside to purchase cuts which could be used for advertising purposes.

Another matter of interest to Sidney was the proposed golf links which an English syndicate were looking into, and it was decided that every possible means be taken to get full particulars of the proposition, which if it materialized would be a great advertising feature.

When the question of issuing pamphlets was mentioned a decided stand was taken by one member, that the truth and nothing but the truth be advertised. This was not advocated because of any previous wrong advertising, but the speaker was of the opinion that Sidney while possessing a splendid agricultural district, was not the place for the farmer to come to, but that as a residential district it could not be surpassed, and that advertising along the latter lines be got out. "It would be a shame," he added, "to ask a man from the eastern provinces to come to a country to make his fortune where land was so expensive, and yet," he added, "the land is not high priced from a residential standpoint considering the climate and scenery."

The Sanitation Committee submitted a lengthy report dealing with the disposal of garbage, etc., but as the district considered in the report was not a health district according to the act, no steps could be taken, and as it was the desire of the committee as a whole to have a health district formed along the lines of municipalities, a motion was forwarded that the report be adopted and that the Provincial Board of Health be approached with a view to have the area lately submitted as the proposed municipality of Sidney declared a health district.

The sewerage system was next discussed and the unanimous opinion of the Board was that the plan submitted by the engineer should be adopted, subject, of course, to the vote of the property holders in the district to be served. This district comprises the original townsite of Sidney, and it was specially pointed out by the engineers that if the system as outlined is put in it will in no way interfere with or be liable to any alteration when any further sewerage work is done. Public meetings will have to be called and the matter discussed from a financial and sanitary point of view in order that all shall be of one mind on perhaps the most important factor in the upbuilding of Sidney from a health standpoint.

Correspondence was next in order, among which was a letter from the B. C. Electric Company stating that the matter of appointing a collector in Sidney would have their consideration. A letter was also read regarding the dredging of the Sidney Island lagoon, and a copy of this was ordered sent to Mr. Courtney, of the Sidney Island Brick and Tile Company.

In keeping with the generosity displayed by the Board on all occasions on a suggestion that a grant be made towards the Flower Show, the sum of $20 was unanimously voted.

SIDNEY YOUNG LADIES WALK TWENTY MILES IN FIVE HOURS

An Average of Four Miles an Hour Without a Rest of Any Kind Except For a Drink of Water at a Wayside Farmhouse.

Sidney is honored by having numbered among her residents three young ladies who have in a quiet way made a record for themselves that perhaps has never before been equalled in the history of the town, and may not be equalled again in the near future. As every one knows it is twenty good long miles from Sidney to the city of Victoria, and considering the abundant transportation facilities very few people ever take it into their head to walk the distance simply for the pleasure they find in walking. Yet on Saturday, March 14th, a trio of Sidney's fair young ladies in the persons of Miss M. F. Glen, of the public school teaching staff, Miss E. Griffin, and her guest, Miss M. Edge, of Vancouver, decided to make the attempt, and what is more they accomplished the feat in the remarkable time of four hours and fifty seconds from the time they left Mr. Griffin's residence on Third street at 9.50 a.m., until they arrived at the City Hall, Victoria at 2.40 p.m.

A remarkable feature of the performance is the fact that they refused all offers of assistance from passing vehicles, and they did not stop once

FAMILIAR OBJECT WILL BE SEEN NO MORE

He Performed His Duties Faithfully
and Will Now Receive His Reward.

The canvas bag with the brown leather trimmings, which for the past twelve months has been the faithful companion of one of our respected citizens, who in the paths of duty made daily trips to meet the steamers which touch at the Sidney wharf, will no longer be seen on parade. With the rest of the regalia pertaining to the office of express agents it was sent to Victoria, from which point it will, no doubt, find its way to green fields and pastures new. Its neat and tidy appearance was marked by all and it was as a guiding star to those who preferred to enter Sidney by way of the wharf. In sunshine or rain, it was always there, conspicuous in itself and lending dignity to the officer whose duty and privilege it was to carry it.

S. S. JOAN WILL REMAIN ON SIDNEY AND ISLANDS ROUTE

C. P. R. Officially Deny the Report Circulated Last Week
That the Boat Would Be Transferred to More Important Position—Another Report Denied.

For some time past a persistent report has been in circulation in Sidney, and apparently in Victoria as well, to the effect that it was the intention of the C. P. R. to withdraw the S. S. Joan from the Victoria-Vancouver-Sidney and Islands route and replace her with a smaller and inferior boat. In fact an article appeared in the Daily Colonist of recent date giving out the apparent information that such was the intention of the company. No reason whatever was given for the sudden change.

The matter was brought to the attention of Mr. W. W. Foster, the member for the Islands constituency, who immediately sought an interview with the C. P. R. head officials at Victoria, who were emphatic in giving out the pleasing information that the company did not have the slightest intention of changing the Joan from her present route, as the boat had been giving splendid satisfaction on her run and no complaints had been received. There is absolutely no truth in the statement, said the officials, and they would immediately take steps to have it contradicted.

This will be pleasing news to the residents of Sidney and the many islands at which the Joan calls on her regular trips up and down the Gulf, as they have come to look upon the old boat as almost part and parcel of their daily existence, and look forward with a good deal of pleasure to hearing the sound of her well-known mellow whistle announcing the fact, to residents of the Islands in particular, that they have at least this one trusty link to keep them in touch with other parts of the province and progress in general.

Another rumor that has also been in circulation is to the effect that Mr. W. W. Foster, M.P.P., is closely identified with the new transportation company recently organized for the purpose of running a passenger and freight service in practically the same territory as that covered by the Joan, is absolutely denied by Mr. Foster himself, and he authorizes the Review to state that he is not a director of any new transportation company and has no interest of any kind whatever in it, other than as member for the Islands constituency, and in the interests of which he was at all times prepared to do his utmost in the solving of the transportation problems confronting the people of this district.

LOOKING OVER SITES FOR NEW BUILDING

Location Selected Some Time Ago
Did Not Meet With Approval
of Department.

Mr. W. F. Teetzel, of the Dominion Department of Public Works, was in town Wednesday for a few hours on business connected with the purchase of a suitable site for the new public building to be erected in Sidney in the near future. The site selected last fall failed to meet with the approval of the department.

THE BISLEY OFFICERS.

An official announcement was made recently from the office of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association of the appointment of the officers of the Canadian Bisley team for 1914. The commandant is to be Lieut.-Col. J. G. Ross, officer commanding 1st Battalion, 5th Highlanders, Montreal, and the adjutant, Lieut. C. W. Gibson, 13th Royal Regiment, Hamilton. Lieut.-Col. Ross is a member of the Council of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association and is an enthusiastic rifleman. Lieut. Gibson is one of the best rifle shots in Canada, and in 1913 was third for the Governor-General's prize in the annual matches of the D.C.R.A. at Ottawa. He is the son of Colonel The Hon. Sir J. Morrison Gibson, lieutenant-governor of Ontario.

COUNTRY CLUB WILL OPEN APRIL FORTH

Great Improvements Have Been Made to the Building and Also the Grounds.

The Victoria Automobile Association which last year secured the large stone house and grounds on Third street from Dr. W. G. Cumming, for their country club will hold a formal opening there on April 4th next. This valuable property has been altered to suit the requirements of the club while it is their intention to beautify the surrounding grounds. The active interest which is being taken by the association in our neighborhood towards a successful season goes to show that the climate and scenery in and around Sidney leaves little to be desired along these lines.

A SHOOTING MATCH.

A matched shoot of four men aside between members of the Victoria and Sidney Gun Clubs will take place on Saturday afternoon at the local grounds. It is expected that the following gentlemen will represent the Victoria club: Messrs. Fred White, Sylvester Otto, Weiler and Babcock. The Sidney aggregation will likely be Low Horth, J. Roberts, George Brethour and one other to be chosen later. Each man is to shoot twenty-five birds. The match will take place at about three o'clock in the afternoon.

FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF NORTH SAANICH

Local Athletes Will Row a Mile Over the Waters of the Strait of Georgia.

A sculling match for the championship of North Saanich and a silver medal will be pulled off on Saturday afternoon next at 1.30, between F. L. McKenzie, of Deep Cove, and Henry Muench, of North Saanich, the distance to be covered will be one mile and the rowers will finish opposite the Sidney wharf. The boats to be used will be of the skiff variety.

Mr. John Roberts will start the race, while Mr. Fletcher North will act as referee and Messrs. W. Warne and C. Moses will be the judges at the finish.

CAGED ANIMALS MAKE
A SHOW OF TIMIDITY.

London Zoo Expert Says They Are Afraid Humans May Get at Them.

The announcement that Sam and Barbara, the Polar bears, have been removed, after a prolonged protest, to their new quarters on the Mappin terraces at the Zoo is a sufficient indication that this desirable addition is taking shape. It has been the ambition of Dr. Chalmers Mitchell since he became secretary to the Zoological Society to make the gardens not merely a collection of cages, but a background for animals which, though kept in captivity, might enjoy at least a semblance of the freedom which is their birthright.

The new spirit, as Dr. Mitchell has pointed out, is simply a recognition of the elementary fact that the animals in a menagerie are living animals to be housed and displayed in such a manner that they can live long and live happily, and under conditions in which, as fully as is possible, their natural habits, instincts, movements and routine of life can be studied by the naturalist and enjoyed by the lover of animals.

It is not the perverted taste of those who like to see wild and presumably ferocious animals raging behind bars, nor the thoughtless cruelty of those who like to see them performing unnatural and silly tricks, nor the cold indifference of those who regard them merely as the raw material for anatomy and physiology, or as the counters in systematic arrangement that is to be catered to.

The separation of the bears from spectators by a ditch instead of the usual iron bars is one of the delightful innovations which we owe to the genius of Hagenbeck. It will be a new thrill to see a polar bear a few feet off, standing at the level of one's head, and with apparently nothing to secure him.

But, as Dr. Mitchell points out, this innovation is for the spectators rather than for the animals themselves. It will remove from our minds the idea of a prison and give us a better view of the animals. Still, as far as their views can be ascertained animals have their own point of view—though this perhaps missionary work," said the Grouch.

IGNORANT BUTCHER.—Mrs. Putton-Ayres had picked up a few French phrases which she worked into her talk on every possible occasion. Entering the butcher shop one day, she inquired if he had any "bon vivant."

"Boned what, ma'am," asked the butcher, puzzled.
"Bon vivant," she repeated. "That is the French word for good liver, you know."

PRESS AGENTING.—Diogenes was parading around town in daylight carrying a lighted lantern and a banner, on which was inscribed, "I Am Looking for an Honest Man."
"What is the reason for this?" he was asked.
"I lecture at the town hall to-night," replied Diogenes, "and I will get a dozen columns of free advertising by doing this stunt."

DECEIVED.—Little Willie was left alone with sister's beau.
"Mr. Chumpley," he said presently, "what is a popinjay?"
Sister's beau wrinkled his forehead.
"Wh-why, a popinjay is a-a vain bird."

"Are you a bird, Mr. Chumpley?"
"Certainly not."
"That's funny. Ma said you was a popinjay, and pa said there was no doubt about your being a jay, an' sister said there was small hopes of your poppin', an' now you say you ain't a bird at all. That's funny."

ANCIENT, MEDIEVAL, MODERN.

Bad news and ditto eggs had best be broken gently.
When Luke McLuke wrote it two years ago, it read: "Bad news and bad eggs should be broken gently."

Just so! And when we wrote it four years ago, it ran thus: "How do you tell a bad egg?"
"If I have anything to tell a bad egg I break it gently."
Don't get excited, gentlemen. The thing had whiskers when Noah was a boy.

Not so; it was a female egg. And as The Argus remarked away back in 1893: "News dropt to a woman is like a bad egg—everybody will soon know it, broken ever so gently."

AN EXPERIMENT WITH A DOG.

An experiment in the utility of the "war dog" by Major A. F. Gordon, of Gordon Highlanders, appears to establish the fact that dogs can be trained to distinguish between the men of a regiment and strangers, and thereby safeguard a sentry from surprise attack by an individual enemy.

Before perfection was reached the regiment had many amusing experiments with "Jo," a powerful Airedale, who was presented to the men by their commanding officer. At the outset Jo was given a place at the head of the company, behind the pipers. "He pulled so hard at his chain in his efforts to investigate the cause of the music," says Major Gordon, "and his curiosity so embarrassed the musicians, that he had to be ignominiously removed from his proud position and relegated to the rear."

Other earthly efforts to train Jo were equally disappointing, because, instead of developing a sagacious instinct for the detection of an approaching enemy and hostile scouts he exhibited "a keen nose for young rabbits, and it was woe to any poor bunny who came within reach of his powerful jaws."

On another occasion he seemed to be more alive to what was required of him, for while the color-sergeant, in whose charge he had been taken to the manoeuvring area, saw (and apparently heard) nothing, Jo became suddenly uneasy, and commenced straining at his chain in the direction from which the hostile column was known to be approaching.

At first, continues Major Gordon, the color-sergeant pretended to take no notice, but the dog pulled all the harder and continued on the alert.

Had the dog been with a group in front of the line of resistance, or even with the recruits in the position itself, the approach of the hostile column would not have remained so long undetected.

Perhaps Jo's best performance was when, on one occasion, Major Gordon had gone to visit a sentry with whom the dog was stationed.

I had gone forward alone, says the Major, and was questioning the sentry in low tones, when a cyclist officer, who had halted with the others a short distance away, came up to join me. Without the least warning, Jo sprang forward and fixed his teeth in the coat of the officer. Luckily the chain was short and the sentry very strong, while the officer sprang back instinctively; so the dog only just reached the coat, which was unbuttoned, and no real harm was done. The incident served to show that the dog could distinguish between those with whom he was accustomed to serve and strangers, and tends to prove that a sentry accompanied by a dog would run no risk of being surprised and overpowered by a single assailant.—London Chronicle.

BATCHELOR BOYS AT DEEP COVE

A Large Crowd, Excellent Music, and
By Bob Sloan—What More

The bachelor boys were the hosts at the regular entertainment of the Deep Cove Social Club held on Tuesday evening last in the old Institute hall on North's Cross Road, at which a very large crowd of people from all parts of the northern part of the Peninsula were present.

This little organization, although not very large in numbers, make up what they lack in that respect by enthusiasm, and has done much during the past winter in the way of providing entertainment for the people of the district. They have held many social evenings that were a marked success in the ordinary sense of the word, but perhaps the par excellence was reached last Tuesday evening. They were a jolly bunch of young men, and the optimistic spirit with which they had undertaken the duties of the evening and the thorough manner in which they welcomed their guests, particularly at the supper table, and made them enjoy themselves, was responded to by everyone present with the result that a most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

For the occasion they had engaged the services of the North Saanich Orchestra, a local organization that is fast making a name for itself in the line of good dance music, and good music is a most essential part of an evening's entertainment.

The early part of the evening was devoted to dancing up till about half-past eleven, when a tin dish pan, doing duty as a gong, announced to all that the boys were ready to receive their guests in the dining room. An abundant supply of all kinds of good things to eat met the gaze of the hungry dancers as they trooped in and took their places around the long tables. When all were seated the "trained waiters" of the bachelor brigade began getting in their fine work and the skilful manner in which they handled the tea and coffee urns showed clearly that their mothers and sisters had some pains to give them a few lessons. Everybody ate all they could, and then they ate some more, but the piles of sandwiches, cakes and pies were scarcely diminished.

After adjournment had again been made to the main hall the audience was called to order by the Grand Patriarch, the Noble Order of Bache-

HAVE ANIMALS A LANGUAGE?

A writer in the "Humanitarian" has evolved twenty-three different sounds, which suggest to his mind that domestic fowls have the rudiments of speech. The cries or notes, which are given in tabular form, with annotations, include such sounds as cackling, grumbling, scolding, crooning, purring and crowing, besides many others that have to be defined rather than named. These 23 notes or cries are all very distinct, and convey very clear meanings, and must denote a very considerable degree of intelligence. But in the case of hens there is a good deal to show that the success and precision of their instincts and their attempts to make their wants known have been adversely affected by their long dependence on man. In fact, the domestic fowl is less intelligent than the wild bird, who has a wider range of bird language. This is a curious fact, if it be true, for other animals gain in intelligence by their association with man.

A Large Crowd, Excellent Music, an Abundant Supper, and a Song
By Bob Sloan—What More Could Be Desired.

The bachelor boys were the hosts at the regular entertainment of the Deep Cove Social Club held on Tuesday evening last in the old Institute hall on Horth's Cross Road, at which a very large crowd of people from all parts of the northern part of the Peninsula were present.

This little organization, although not very large in numbers, make up what they lack in that respect by enthusiasm, and has done much during the past winter in the way of providing entertainment for the people of the district. lors, acting as chairman, who announced that Mr. Robert Sloan had a few words to say. Mr. Sloan's speech was short, witty and to the point, and he extended the hearty thanks of the members of the Sidney Social Club who were present that evening for the kind invitation they had received and the hearty welcome accorded all who attended. He also complimented the young men on the brilliant success of their efforts, but expressed the opinion that he did not think there would be quite so many bachelors, young or old in the district a year from the present time with so many beautiful young ladies living in the same locality.

Mr. Sloan was then called upon for a song and responded by singing in his usual rollicking style "Rock-a-bye, Rock-a-bye," which was so heartily received that he was compelled to give an encore.

Dancing was again resumed and kept up till a late hour when through the kindness of Mr. Henry Musgrave and Mr. Colin McDonald, who placed themselves and their automobiles at the service of the Sidney delegation they all returned home well pleased that they had been given the opportunity of being present at the first entertainment given by the bachelors of Deep Cove.

MISS EVA HART WILL GIVE A SONG RECITAL IN SIDNEY

It will be a rare treat for the people of Sidney to hear Miss Eva Hart, the well known soprano soloist, of Victoria, on the Evening of April 15th. Something of how much she has been appreciated outside of the City of Victoria will be seen by a few of the press notices taken from the exchanges:

"Miss Hart brings with her from England a large and up-to-date repertoire, which includes many songs of childhood by Liza Lehmann, her rendering of which pleased the composer mightily, for she sings them with a simplicity which is irresistible. In private life Miss Eva Hart is the wife of a London physician, who has accompanied her out here.—B. C. Saturday Sunset of Jan. 20.

"Miss Eva Hart has a splendid soprano voice."—Vancouver Sun.

"Miss Eva Hart possesses a soprano voice of rare quality of tone and culture. It is to be earnestly hoped that Miss Hart will be heard again clean, fast and scientific, and at no stage in the game had either team apparently the slightest advantage over the other, except that the strong defence of the local eleven might be termed as such. Yet in viewing the game by the number of goals scored the same thing might justly be said of the bank boys. Many brilliant plays were recorded by the forwards on both sides, but when it came to getting in past the defence that was another question.

The visitors scored the first goal on a splendid combination rush after about ten minutes fast play and just when both teams had taken the measure of each other and were entering with zest into the spirit of the game.

After the faceoff the ball travelled back and forth and from one side to the other never getting into the danger zone until finally the whole forward line of the Sidney team saw their chance and with one of the most beautiful combination rushes ever witnessed on this field, they eluded their wary checks and swept down the field, passing the ball from one to the other until they had passed the half-backs and then the full-backs and with a final well directed kick Apps sent the sphere past the goal keeper for a tally, and evened the score.

There were no other goals scored in the first half, and in fact the second stanza had almost reached its end before Sidney again succeeded in making another tally and thereby winning the game by the score of two goals to one.

Following is the way the teams lined up.

Merchant's Bank—Goal, Featherston; backs, Gardner, Robertson; half-backs, Hamilton, MacDonald, Davie; forwards, Campbell, Richards

in Vancouver so that the local public may hear her vocal art in its advanced degree of attainment.—B. C. Saturday Sunset of March 9.

"Miss Eva Hart far exceeded everything expected of her and the English press notices were in no wise exaggerated. There is a finish in every note and each word is articulated with clearness and most pleasing effect. "Comin' Thro' the Rye" took the house by storm and in response to vociferous applause she sang Liza Lehmann's beautiful little song, "Daddy's Sweetheart."—Chilliwack Progress.

"In her garment of green Miss Eva Hart was a veritable forerunner of Spring and her singing of Handel's "Sky-lark" with its trills and joyousness filled in the vision of hay mows. It was also good to hear the charming songs of Liza Lehmann. Miss Eva Hart's interpretation of these fascinating, child-like songs was of the best.—Vancouver Daily Progress.

LOCAL FOOTBALLERS DEFEAT STRONG TEAM FROM VICTORIA

Merchants Bank Staff Are Prominent in the Lineup of the Visiting Aggregation.

It is a pity that the local football association did not see fit to give a little more publicity to the football match played last Saturday afternoon between the Merchants Bank team of Victoria, and the local eleven, on the athletic field on Third street. There are a great many people who would certainly have been delighted to have witnessed the splendid exhibition, but were unable to avail themselves of the opportunity offered for the simple reason that no announcement of the game had been given. Besides it is hardly fair to a visiting team to have them arrive in town and then find out that practically the only spectators at the game would be the opposing eleven.

A few bills distributed early Saturday morning or an announcement in the advertising columns of the Review, which came out on Friday, would no doubt have resulted in a few more spectators being on hand to greet the boys when they lined up on the field.

Sidney has a team of football players of which any town should be proud, as was shown by the match played at Fulford Harbor a short time ago against the strong combination from Ganges, and on Saturday last they played a much superior game and defeated by a score of two to one just as strong a combination as the Ganges players.

The game from start to finish was

Fast driving was responsible for a serious, and what may prove a fatal accident to at least one of the members of the party, on the Mallowmot drive near Duncan on Tuesday last. The two autos collided on a turn in the road while being driven at a high rate of speed, both being completely wrecked and throwing the occupants in all directions. Two of the gentlemen were very seriously hurt and were shortly afterwards removed to the Duncan hospital where their injuries were attended to.

THERE IS MONEY IN CATCHING LITTLE SEALS

The Government Bounty is Being Gathered in by the Indians in This District.

The bounty of $3.50 which is offered by the Government for every hair seal destroyed, has given a decided impetus to the war being waged by the Indians against these marauders of the deep. The tail of the seal has to be produced as evidence of the killing, but an affidavit has to accompany the terminal appendage, stating where and when the slaughter took place before the bounty is paid. The local Justices of the Peace have this week issued quite a number of these death certificates.

PRaises THE BILL.

Professor E. H. Fernow, the prominent authority on forestry, writing
in the last issue of the "Forestry
Quarterly" on the "Timber Royalty
Bill," says that with its enactment
the Province of British Columbia takes the lead in modern and efficient timber land administration.

Professor Fernow said: "A very important and very sane readjustment of royalties for timber licenses has been embodied in the bill by the British Columbia Minister of Lands,
the Hon. William R. Ross. The Minister of Lands, who was responsible for the establishment two years ago
of an efficient Forest Service, has boldly taken hold of the situation and solved the problem of equitable dealing in a most practical manner.

"It gives stability to the lumber business for forty years without fear of disturbances, and, while we miss provisions for improved forestry practice, at least the financial side of the Government interest is better taken care of, and changes to introduce forestry methods are foreshadowed.

"With this legislation British Columbia takes the lead in modern and efficient timber land administration, which, by passing into the hands of a Forest Service promises a final forest management for the future."

AN APOLOGY.

In the writeup of the concert given in last week's issue we failed to give due credit to one gentleman, who, perhaps, in his quiet way did as much, if not more, than several others that received mention towards making the concert the success it was, and without his talent the programme might not have been quite so pleasing. We refer to Mr. James Sloan, who played the accompaniment for Mr. Cochran, Mr. Robt.
Sloan and also the singers who took part in the musical turn, besides two or three short overtures. Our sincere apologies are extended to Mr. Sloan and we wish to assure him that the omission was entirely an oversight
on our part.

CARD OF THANKS.

The Girls of the Basketball Club
take this opportunity of thanking all those who in any way contributed to the great success of the entertainment given recently.

First of all we would extend our sincere thanks to the committee in charge, namely Mr. Tester, Mr. Sloan Mr. Whiting and Mr. Moore, who were so kind as to devote so much time and attention to the interest of the Reading Room.

Secondly to the North Saanich Orchestra which added so much to the evening's entertainment, and to any and all who took part on the programme; also to the Sidney Furniture Company and the Merchants Bank for the use of their furniture
for stage fittings.

As regards the proceeds we might say they were most gratifying and after the expenses are paid will add very materially to the maintenance of the Public Reading Room.

The Editor on the Street.

We heard a good story the other day and one that might have interested the police had it not been for the high sense of humor of one of the parties concerned. Now there once lived near Sidney two men who were fond of domestic fowls and they each kept a flock of turkeys. One of these men, being wise in the distribution of the right kind of feed, and plenty of

it, had very large fat turkeys strutting around his barnyard. The other man was perhaps foolish in this respect and either did not feed enough or did not "savvy" the other essentials. His birds were thin and weakly and were not laying as they should.
One dark night, therefore, he conceived the idea of changing turkeys
with his more fortunate neighbor, which he did quietly and without much noise, being not detected in the act. But say, how that farmer did laugh the next morning when he saw the joke that had been played on him. Of course he knew at once where those turkeys had come from and where to find his own. So after breakfast he went over and had a quiet talk with the man of the lean turkeys with the result that both flocks were returned to their original roosts.

We wonder what kind of a yarn
Lester Patrick and his bunch of puck chasers will hand out when they arrive back from their trip east after the Stanley Cup. It will be interesting reading. For the past two or three years we have heard a good deal of talk about the Patrick Bros.
robbing the eastern leagues of all the best players by offering them big salaries to come west. After taking a long steady look at the result of the three games played for this world famed trophy, we cannot help coming to the conclusion that the great western owners are, and we put it mildly—a sort of easy mark. They evidently did not get all the good players, either that or they develop the speedy players faster down east than the Patrick Bros. can afford to buy them up. It would not have looked so bad if they had even won one game, but to come back with three straight, decisive lickings, is rather hard indeed. Never mind Lester, we will have to break into the game ourselves so that we can help you out
next year.

On Saturday afternoon about two o'clock we locked the door of our sanctum sanctorium and stood debating in our own mind whether to go fishing or find some other means of recreation, when our attention was suddenly directed towards the Sidney hotel where there seemed to be quite a commotion going on around a man with a camera. We took a stroll over and to our amazement found out that the artist was endeavoring to take a picture of a bunch of handsome looking athletes when they suddenly discovered that there were thirteen in the group. We were not aware that athletes were given to superstition, but there they were as panicky as a bunch of women, and to help matters out we were compelled to take a seat and look as much like an athlete as possible. Verily the temptations of an editor are many.

We took a walk on Sunday last down the railway track past the shingle mill of the Converse-Brown Company. Now this progressive firm may be able to saw shingles and sell cedar knots under the guise of stove wood, but we were not aware of the fact that they had a printing office established in their plant, as a large sign prominently displayed on one of the buildings would indicate.
We know now where all our trade is going.

Ever since the trap has been in operation on the grounds of the Sidney Gun Club we have heard stories of the elusiveness of the little clay pigeons as they are called. While we were in attendance at the football match Saturday afternoon the guns
began to pop, and being of an inquisitive turn of mind we decided to take a walk up and see what was going on. On the firing line were some of the best shots of the district, including Jack Roberts, Fletcher North, Leonard North and several others
who have made reputations for themselves. They were not doing so bad either and were breaking all the way from fifty to eighty-five per cent. of the birds sent up. After the round was finished the usual courtesies of such gatherings were extended to us, as editor, and we were asked to take a hand in the game. One gentleman volunteered the loan of his gun and several others supplied the cartridges, for which we were duly thankful, having just begun to feel the effects, as most editors do, of the financial stringency. So we took our place on the firing line for the first time. There is no use in describing that wonderful performance
as that has been told and retold
many times since of how we succeeded in chalking up a record of one hundred per cent. After a few casual remarks on how very easy it was to hit the little pigeons and on the splendid working of the trap, we thanked the gentlemen for their kindness and strolled off down town in company with Constable McDonald.

President Wilson personally appealed to Congress, assembled in joint session on March 5th, to sustain the national honor of the United States in upholding treaty obligations by repealing the Panama tolls exemption against which Great Britain protests.
He asked congress to do that 'in support of the foreign policy of the Administration,' and added that an exemption for American ships not only
was a mistaken economic policy,
but was in contravention of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

The eleven captains and men of the ships which helped in the rescue of the passengers and crew of the liner Volturno when it was burned in mid-ocean last October, have been awarded silver medals by King George, while the British Board of Trade has given pieces of plate to the captains, medals and three pounds each to the officers and medals to each of the men.

Advices received from Dawson are
that the Royal North West Mounted Police patrol, which left Dawson for Fort McPherson, at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, early in January, returned recently to Dawson, having made the four hundred mile trip over the snow in seventeen and a half days, the fastest time on record.
Corporal Hacking, who commanded the patrol on the return trip, reported that Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, left Fort MacPherson
for the Arctic coast shortly before the police patrol began its return trip.

The British Admiralty having abandoned all hope of recovering the sunken submarine "A7" in Whitesand Bay, the funeral service of the Church of England was held last week for the eleven men who perished there,
the cruiser "Forth" anchoring during the service over the place where the submarine went down. A similar service was conducted in the Royal Navy Barracks at Keyham. Thirteen submarines, most of them of the 'A' class, stood by the "Forth" while the funeral service was being read. Their crews stood with bared heads on the decks. Near by was the Royal Navy yacht "Enchantress," bearing Vice-Admiral J. H. Jellicoe, representing the Admiralty. One thousand officers of the navy and army attended the land service. At the close the "Forth" fired three broadsides in salute of the dead and the buglers sounded the
"Last Post."

The army of two thousand unemployed, with General C. T. Kelley commanding, started on March 3rd
from San Francisco on its march across the continent to Washington, D.
C. The "army" is composed of 24 companies of ninety men each, including a company of buglers and an hospital corps. Many carried blanket rolls containing provisions. Kelley says he expects to increase his army
en route, and believes he will enter Washington at the head of 50,000 soldiers. He expects people along the line of march to provide the "army" with food and other necessities, but the army will refuse to do any work
for what is received.

Sir James Wolfe Murray, a descendant of Col. Murray, in whose arms General Wolfe expired, has been appointed commander of the Imperial forces in South Africa. Sir James guished himself in the South African war.

Mr. Asquith submitted to the House of Commons on March 9th the government's proposals for a settlement of Irish Home Rule, on the following basis: Any county in the Province of Ulster may be excluded from Home Rule for a period of six years if, on a poll being taken of parliamentary electors of any county
before the bill comes into operation,
a majority of voters favors exclusion. A poll shall be taken in the county if a requisition be presented signed by one-tenth of the electors
and presented within a certain time after the date of the passing of the bill; the persons entitled to vote will be those entitled to vote at parliamentary elections, and the questions put will be: Are you for the exclusion of the county from the Government of Ireland for a period of six years; or, are you against such exclusion. The areas that vote for exclusion will come within the jurisdiction of Home Rule after six years, unless the Imperial Parliament otherwise determines.

Hordes of starving wolves driven from the Apennine mountains by the heavy snows, descended on March 4th into the valleys of the Abruzzi provinces of Italy and in the vicinity of Rome, and devoured hundreds of sheep. The wolves afterwards took refuge in the caverns of Mount Soracte, about twenty-five miles north of Rome. Parties of armed peasants have gone to hunt them, and, according to the latest reports, have killed a large number of the animals.

The Cologne Gazette and other German papers of the scare-monger order, having worked up a great Russian war scare, it is now reported that another colossal German army increase is under consideration, and that the sum of $125,000,000—half the amount now being spent—will be devoted to increasing and "modernizing the artillery."

Japan's expenditure for naval purposes has been reduced $20,000,000 by the Budget Committee of the Upper House of Parliament. The Premier protested that the reduction would seriously impair plans for the national defence, but he was voted down. The Lower House had previously voted to curtail the naval appropriation by $15,000,000.

The missing will and other property of the late Cardinal Rampella, search for which has been going on for some time in Rome, has so far been fruitless. The magistrate who has the case in hand, while looking through the bedroom of Peppino, the late Cardinal's valet, found $200 in gold and a receipt for another $200 which the valet had lent to Signor Perrana, the Cardinal's brother-in-law. This latter discovery is regarded as most important as showing the intimacy between Perrana and the valet and also for its bearing on the missing will.

Amid scenes of indescribable disorder at which blank revolver shots were fired and miniature bombs exploded, Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst was arrested in Glasgow on Monday night while addressing a woman suffrage meeting in St. Andrew's hall, and taken back to England to serve her unexpired sentence.

A cyclone and a tidal wave on March 3rd devastated Madagascar, many lives being lost, hundreds of buildings destroyed or damaged and shipping wrecked.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that President Frank M. Ryan and twenty-three members of the Bridge and Structural Steel Workers Union, convicted in the iron-workers cases at Indianapolis, must serve their jail sentences. The court refused to review their conviction in the lower federal courts at Indianapolis and Chicago. Denial of the writ of review exhausted the last resource of the defendants.

Owing to a general strike, which the electrical workers have joined, Rome is almost in total darkness.

The price of the London Times was reduced to a penny on March 11th, a reduction of two-pence.

WILL START A CAMPAIGN AGAINST INDECENT FASHIONS

Paris Women Have Formed an Association With This Worthy Purpose in View.

The Patriotic League of Frenchwomen has taken the initiative in the campaign against indecency in dress. A manifesto was issued recently to society women, signed by Vicomtesse de Velard Marquis de Montaigne, Marquise de Jdigne, Mde. Delacourt and several other prominent women in Paris, and is a response to the injunctions recently read by the bishops and Cardinal Amette on women to league together and abolish the use of garments which are contrary to decency. "We ask," says the manifesto, "all elegant and young women who set the tone in France not only not to yield to, but to combine courageously against the present tendency, and by precept and example let them reflect on their responsibility. What they do other women of more modest means, who have their eyes fixed upon them, will do in their turn. Let us also not forget that we must have care for the reputation which France has hitherto borne for elegance and taste."

All who desire to join the movement are requested to register their names at the offices of the league, with the view of bringing pressure to bear on the principle dressmakers and big establishments.

The secretary of the league, a good looking woman in a black dress, with which not even the most rabid reformer could find fault, explained the situation thus: "Fashion has gone beyond all bounds. The youngest and prettiest leaders are to head the movement, and we shall force the chief fashion establishments to confine their ideas within more decent limits, so that the women who desire to be chic need not find themselves compelled to be indecent. As for blouses they are beyond expression. These dresses cannot be tolerated, especially in church. Why, any decent cure is obliged to refuse to give his blessing to a marriage because the bride's dress is so flagrantly transparent. Let the women of the stage do anything they please; but as for us society women, it is a different thing."

Everybody in Sidney is busy making flower gardens just now, and if present indications are any criterion the flower show next July will hardly be accommodated in Berquist's hall. The beautiful sunny weather of the past two weeks seems to have given the citizens the flower fever.

RISK THEIR LIVES IN PERFORMING THEIR DUTY

Mr. John H. Roberts Answers Critics of His Work for the Dominion Alliance.

That the men who do the work for the Dominion Alliance take their lives in their hands was an acknowledgment made at a session of the convention of the Quebec branch of that body by Mr. John H. Roberts the secretary. There was division of opinion as to the adoption of police methods, and the fear was expressed that the resort to such practice had resulted in the alienation of many of the friends of the alliance. "If we are alienating members," said Mr. John H. Roberts, jumping to his feet, "let them get out. If we cannot fight without hurting some weak-kneed, spineless people we don't want them. I am tired of these carping criticisms of a man who takes his life in his hands to do the work."

Despite the protest of some of the members that the Dominion Alliance should not resort to police methods and that its tactics during the past year had been the cause of much worry and expense, the alliance, in the closing session of its annual convention, decided to continue the work of law enforcement and prosecution of offenders, and a fund of $2,500 will be raised to meet emergencies.

In addition the executive committee was authorized to commence the publication of an official journal, while a field secretary and an office secretary will be appointed, to allow Mr. John H. Roberts full freedom in the work of the alliance.

There was considerable discussion on the question of continuing the law enforcement work by means of prosecutions, one section of the Alliance being strongly of the opinion that this should only be done through the municipal and provincial authorities, while the majority held that, so long as these authorities, the Alliance should continue in its actively aggressive work. It was proposed by Mr. W. H. Lambley, in introducing the report of the committee, that the law enforcement should be carried on under an advisory committee.

NEW BUTCHER SHOP WILL OPEN MONDAY

Mr. A. Harvey's new butcher shop on Third street, opposite the Merchant's Bank, will open its doors to the general public on Monday morning next at 8 o'clock.

It had been the intention of the management to open for business on Friday or Saturday of this week but an unexpected delay in the arrival of the lumber being used in the construction of the building, the opening had to be postponed until Monday.

Mr. Harvey is well and favorably known in this district, having been manager of the P. Burns store here for the past number of years and we predict for him in his new venture a fair share of the patronage of the district.

HAVE CLOSED DOMINION EXPRESS OFFICE IN SIDNEY

Residents Will Now be Compelled to Use the Parcels Post System Recently Inaugurated.

A. W. Lee, route agent for the Dominion Express Company, was in Sidney last Saturday to close the local branch office of the company.

Mr. George Cochran, who had been acting as agent, had notified the head office of his desire to terminate his connection with the express company on the grounds that the work entailed in connection with the office was encroaching on the time which he could ill spare in his own business.

Mr. Lee, while regretting the closing of the office at the Sidney Trading Company's premises, could not at the time see another suitable place where the agency could be carried on, and so for the present Sidney is without an express office.

A MAN WHO HAS LIVED BEFORE

Mr. Herbert Burrows, the well-known publicist, lecturer and social reformer, whose "sanity" and responsibility will not be challenged, has been able to recall his previous incarnations. He remembers fighting as a gladiator in the Coliseum of Rome, witnessing the terror and brutality of that time of blood. His next incarnation was during the French Revolution, in which he took part as a Royalist officer, fighting the "sans-culottes" with all the fervor of a follower of the Bourbons. After a time, he says, "I changed my politics, throwing in my lot with the extreme revolutionary section, and was a close friend to St. Just." To him reincarnation has ceased to be a matter for argument, for, as he concludes, "I know that I have been reincarnated."

In the case of this London gentleman, his various incarnations show a perfectly orderly and understandable advance. First from the professional slayer, his fighting spirit was turned into worthier channels by fighting for a cause, that of a king, then taking a democratic turn by his espousal of the cause of the people, whilst to-day it has run into the more peaceable channel of social reformer, in which channel, however, the old fighting spirit still shows itself.

WORK PROGRESSING ON JAMES ISLAND FACTORIES

Satisfactory Progress Reported on Establishment of New Powder Plant.

A considerable part of the work in connection with the establishment of manufacturing plants for the Canadian Explosives, Limited, and the Victoria Chemical Company, the two firms having been amalgamated, on James Island has been completed. The project has been in hand for about nine months, and, when entirely finished, will represent an investment running into the millions.

Mr. H. J. Scott, the local manager of the Canadian Explosives, Limited, stated yesterday that satisfactory progress is being made, although the date on which the plants will be in shape for use is indefinite. He says that about one hundred men are engaged, that a splendid wharf has been constructed at which supplies are received, and that workmen are busy with the various structures in which will be housed the powder and chemical making plants. To reach these centres with material, narrow gauge railways have been constructed, so that the different parts of the island

J. H. BROWN PURCHASES CONVERSE INTERESTS

Mr. Thomas Converse, who has recently returned from a prolonged visit to Menomone, Wis., has disposed of his interests in the Converse-Brown Shingle Mill Co., to his partner, Mr. J. H. Brown. It is the intention of Mr. Converse to take up a 320 acre section of government land in the State of Montana, and accompanied by Mrs. Converse will leave shortly to commence the making of a new home. They will be missed by a large circle of friends in Sidney.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

A bunch of our young bloods made a surprise visit to the house of Mr. J. P. Scarlett one evening this week. The fact that the host was absent when the bunch arrived rather added to the pleasure of the occasion. The light were lit, and also the fire, and the first item on the programme was a toast to "Our Absent Host," which was drunk with great enthusiasm. After a good evening spent in song and instrumental music the absent host returned and a very surprised gentleman he was. After he had somewhat recovered his composure he congratulated the amateur musical housebreakers on their nerve, but promised he would overlook their escapades in consideration of the fact that they were a bunch of good fellows and he believed by their behavior that this was their first offence. After this they enjoyed a light repast and some more musical stunts and wound up a pleasant evening with best wishes and hopes of another evening of the same nature in the near future.

WILL PLAY BASKETBALL

The Sidney Basketball team will journey to Keatings on Monday evening next to meet a team from Victoria West. No doubt a large number of their supporters will accompany the team, which will be made up as follows:

Centre, Simpson; forwards, J. Gehrke, E. Munroe; guards, A. Gehrke and M. Norton.

According to reports the Victoria team will be a strong one but the local boys feel confident that they can handle them as easily as they did the High School Girls.

PRESIDENT WILSON TOLLS AND

President Wilson's message to Congress is a miracle of condensation in less than a five hundred words he says all that is necessary, and does it with a force and impact that must go deep into the minds of Congress and the country. The gravity of his appeal is enhanced by his brevity. Some issues are too serious to be drenched in language. "In the highest matters," saith the preacher, "let thy words be few." The president has laid this to heart. And if there is truth in Voltaire's saying that it is not the book of many pages which move men to great social changes and even revolutions, but the broadside, the pamphlet, the thin volume all aglow with passion, it is certainly true that Presidents are not heard for their much speaking; that long and wordy messages to Congress which nobody reads cannot have the effect of a swift and direct utterance which all can take in in five minutes, and which is yet couched in such terms as to compel thought and thought yet again.

Not the least eloquent parts of Mr. Wilson's message are his omissions and his silences. He does not waste a word on the Baltimore platform. Nor does he note the fact that he himself once appeared to take a view of the Panama act contradictory to the one he now holds. All this he puts aside. Why spend time over such trifles when the whole foreign policy of the government is at hazard, and when the Mexican crisis is every day growing tenser? The President takes it for granted that some things are to be taken for granted. One of them is that a hasty declaration by a party cannot be interposed as a bar to wise and just action. Another is that a man or President has a right to change his mind for good reason shown. Stout Bismarck did not hesitate to admit that he could learn something as he went on. In one of his speeches to the Reichstag he said that he would scorn to belong to the number of those who in their whole life long maintained certain definite opinions from which they never varied. To attempt to reinforce the President's argument is happily needless. It speaks for itself better than anybody can speak for it. But some of its bearings, and the effective skill with which the two main parts of it are juxtaposed, may be pointed out. It was necessary, of course, that the President should state his strong personal conviction that the Panama act violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. This he does unmistakably. Long study of the matter has convinced him that Congress was betrayed into thinking it had a power which it had really parted with by treaty. If Mr. Wilson did not devotedly believe this in his own heart, he could not have gone to Congress with his moving appeal. But he does not rest the case on his own belief. He points, rather, to the consensus of opinion everywhere except in the United States; and throws himself upon Congress as the executive who is directed by the Constitution to conduct foreign affairs, asking for the removal of an obstacle to a good understanding with other nations, and so to the success of our own country in dealing with great problems, to solve which we acutely need the good will and help of European Powers. We do not see how Congress can possibly reject his plea. When the president says, on his official responsibility, that he does not know how he can deal with "other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence"—everybody knows what he means—unless his way is smoothed by the repeal of the tolls-exemption clause, what can Congress do but grant him what he asks? If he had gone to the houses with a request for an appropriation of $100,000,000 to make ready for war, members would have fallen over each other in their zeal to "stand behind" him. Will they not, for the sake of peace do a great deal less?

What the president has done is to make the whole question look large and national. Before, to many minds it had the appearance of a squabble; a pulling back and forth between conflicting interests; at best, a dispute about the interpretation of a treaty, which could be settled by referring it to arbitration, as Mr. Taft had suggested. But all this is now a thing of the past. The whole matter has been lifted into a higher air. The President leads the country to a larger view. We are hailing the completion of the Panama Canal. Let us, urges Mr. Wilson, free our rejoicing from every regret or stain. We are honoring Col. Goethals—who, by the way, is for the repeal of the tolls-exemption clause. Let us make our

WILL RESUME MAIDEN NAME.

According to a San Francisco despatch Mrs. Elvide C. Cheng, white wife of W. Cheng, a Chinese physician in the superior court recently or grounds of extreme cruelty. After six years of married life Mrs. Cheng admitted to the court that as far as she was concerned, inter-marriage of white and yellow races was a failure.

Mrs. Cheng was allowed one hundred a month alimony and permission to resume her maiden name of Neilson. Dr. Cheng made no contest to his wife's suit, but wrote a letter to Mrs. Cheng's attorney advising him how to conduct the case, saying among other things:

"Be decisive, earnest, and fight for all you are worth. I will not contest this suit as it is a batch of lies. Handle the case so that there can be no warning given by the presiding judge. You will have to work hard for my money if you get it. Snap case does not mean snap money."

The letter was introduced as evidence.

THE CURIOSITIES OF AN ANCIENT TRUST IN LONDON

(The Daily Chronicle, London.)

Hidden away in the heart of London there are several acres of freehold land where amid trees and flower gardens stands one of the quaintest institutions in the kingdom. It is the London Charterhouse, or rather to give it its correct title, "the Hospital of King James in Charterhouse". Charterhouse being the old name of the locality, like Limehouse or Whitechapel. On this spot three hundred years ago, when James I. was on the throne and Shakespeare was still living, Thomas Sutton, a wealthy soldier and merchant, founded and endowed two great charities, a grammar school for forty boys and a hospital or home for eighty poor gentlemen.

The grammar school was removed into the country in 1870, and having been developed on modern lines has grown into one of the great public schools of England. But the home has been left on the old spot, with its ancient traditions, and is still the residence of the "Brothers of Charterhouse." The full complement of brothers is eighty, but lately there have seldom been more than about fifty-five. Many of them are officers of the army and navy, graduates of the universities, barristers, solicitors, artists and literary or business men. The "Sutton Trust," from which the income of the brotherhood is derived, has in the course of three centuries grown into a wealthy corporation, having in prosperous times a revenue of £30,000 a year. One half of this however, is allotted to the school and the other half to the brotherhood.

Ancient Usages.

Although through agricultural depression the brotherhood's share of the income is at present below the average, yet even now it has about £11,000 a year, equal to about £200 per head per annum for the number of brothers who usually constitute the brotherhood. With this income, a rent-free residence and a beautiful garden, it is generally supposed that the brothers enjoy in the Charterhouse a very pleasant, if not luxurious home, with full liberty and every modern comfort. But the Charterhouse is a curious survival of a past age, and the tradition exists that the brothers must live as nearly as possible as their predecessors did in the austere days of King James I., under whose auspices the brotherhood was founded. As soon as they enter the secluded precincts of the Charterhouse they are transported backwards into the solemn age of the early Stuarts—they have to reside together permanently in the home, to attend chapel every day, wearing a long black cloak, to be present at the one daily meal in the same antique costume, and to conform strictly to the ancient disciplinary rules. Until 1908 fines were inflicted for non-attendance at chapel, but in that year a protest was made in parliament, and Mr. Trevelyan, on behalf of the Government, intimated that that custom would cease, being out of harmony with the altered religious ideas of the age; attendance, however, still continues to be obligatory. In their entertainment, too, the primitive simplicity of three hundred years ago is retained. They are given on admittance a room with a bed, a table and chair; they are provided with one plain meal a day, some candles, coals, and bread and butter and medical attendance if required. They are paid at the rate of £3 a month, out of which, besides providing for their personal requirements, they have to purchase the provisions for their morning and evening meals, which they have to cook for themselves. As if to remind them that they are living three hundred years ago, the curfew is tolled every night with as many strokes on the bell as there are brothers in the home, just as was done when James I. was king. During four weeks in the summer however, the dining hall is closed and they have to vacate their rooms to give a general holiday to the establishment, and then they receive an extra 35s. a week for their support elsewhere.

Officialism and Finance.

This is very quaint and picturesque but from a financial point of view one instinctively asks: How can the whole of the large income of the brotherhood be spent on such scanty entertainment? Obviously, it is not. The explanation, however, is a simple one which is found in the history of almost all ancient trusts. When a poor trust becomes rich it is not always the beneficiaries who obtain the benefit of the increase, as they should do, but the surplus is frequently employed in the multiplication of officials, the increase of their salaries, and in various other modes of expenditure. Of this the Sutton Trust is only one out of many instances, and no one in particular at the present day can be blamed for it. Thomas Sutton created his trust for the benefit of the brothers alone, and he never contemplated a large and expensive staff. The Master, who is a clergyman, and resides in a rent-free mansion built by one of the Dukes of Norfolk, now draws £800 a year. A registrar, with a residence free of rent, rates and taxes, draws £700 a year. With similar rent free residences, a manciple draws £300, a doctor about £250, and a chaplain £400. Besides these, again, there are, with varying salaries, a matron and a sister and a butler and an under-butler and lodgekeepers and gardeners and workmen, besides a large staff of cooks and servants, as well as various ex-officials, who draw retired pensions. Many of these have cottages or other residences on the premises, and their salaries and allowances absorb a large annual sum belonging to the brotherhood. All these officials and servants are employed ostensibly for the sake of the brothers, but whatever their various duties may be, all that they have to do directly for the brothers, except in case of illness, appears to be little more than to provide them with the one meal a day.

LOCALS and PERSONALS

The St. Andrew's Ladies Guild are busily at work preparing for their sale on April 15th.

Mr. Alex. McArthur, Sr., returned to Sidney this week and intends to remain here during the summer.

During their brief stay in Sidney on Sunday last Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Armstrong.

Mrs. D. J. O'Brien, Miss O'Brien and Mr. J. D. O'Brien, of Vancouver were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown, Third street, for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Converse returned to Sidney last week after spending the winter months visiting friends and relatives in different parts of the United States.

Duncan and vicinity was visited on Tuesday last by a heavy fall of hail and when the storm was over it covered the ground to a depth of two inches. The day was mild and balmy in Sidney with a light rainfall in the morning.

Mr. H. S. Shopland, formerly a resident of this district, but recently of Comox, paid Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Armstrong a short visit this week prior to leaving for Rochester, Alta., where he will put in the summer with his brother.

Mr. W. E. Norman, a member of the Merchants Bank staff in Victoria, and also a member of the football team bearing that name and played here Saturday afternoon, remained over Sunday in town. While here he was the guest of Mr. W. Lait, of the local bank staff.

Sands Funeral Furnishing Co., Limited, Funeral Directors and Licensed Embalmers. Prompt and courteous services night or day. Phone 3306. 1515 Quadra Street, Victoria. Lady attendant.

The trial of the Chinamen arrested in the raid last week resulted in nine of them being fined $16 each, and three of the twelve were acquitted on proving that they were only lodgers on the premises for the night. The case was tried before Magistrate Jay in Victoria and the Chinamen were defended by Mr. W. Morseby, of that city.

A particularly well dressed window in the store of the Sidney Trading Company has been attracting a good deal of attention this week. The display was made by the representatives of the Imperial Tobacco Co., who are just putting on the market a new brand of pipe tobacco called "Forest and Stream." Three of the travelling agents were in town on Friday last in an auto decorated with handsome posters advertising the tobacco.

The services next Sunday in the Methodist churches on this circuit will be conducted by Rev. J. P. Hauch, assistant pastor of the Metropolitan church, Victoria. The subject for the evening discourse in the North Saanich church will be a "Trip Through Japan." Mr. Hauch has just recently returned from an extended visit to that country and no doubt will give an interesting discourse.

Mr. J. A. Kelly, Second street, dug up his crop of Dahlia roots this week in preparation for the season's replanting. One hill alone contained the amazing number of forty-eight separate tubers, and several of the other hills were not far behind this in number. Mr. Kelly has been very generous with his bountiful supply of these beautiful flowering plants and has presented many of his friends with samples of each color and variety.

Rev. J. Wood, formerly pastor of the Methodist churches on this circuit, occupied the different pulpits on Sunday last and preached eloquent sermons in aid of the foreign missionary movement. At the service in North Saanich Church in the evening he took for his text the twenty-first verse of the twentieth chapter of St. John: "Then said Jesus to them again, peace be unto you, as my Father has sent me, even so send I you." The subject was a very appropriate one for the occasion and was dealt with in a masterly manner by the preacher. The response to the appeal was very gratifying.

A man of good taste will appreciate a Morena cigar.

N. Fralick has just received a fine assortment of clocks, including mantle, kitchen, office and alarm clocks. Call and see them. One door north of Beacon Avenue on Fourth street.

The sculling matched race between Henry Muench and E. L. McKenzie scheduled for Saturday, March 28th, in another column of this issue, has unavoidably been postponed to April 4th, at the same hour.

THE I. O. G. T.

The meeting of the Junior Lodge of the International Order of Good Templars, Strathcona Lodge, was held as usual on Monday afternoon at 8.30. The entertainment was given by the sisters of the lodge and a very merry and enjoyable afternoon was spent. In the evening of the same day the meeting of the senior lodge was held. At this meeting the brothers were responsible for the entertainment. Various games and competitions were indulged in after the business had been attended to and until the meeting closed.

Next Monday at the senior lodge meeting everybody will be asked to contribute clippings of any nature which will be likely to prove interesting to the lodge. Probably those on temperance subjects will be preferred.

THEIR ANNUAL MEETING.

The first annual meeting of the St. Andrew's Junior Branch of the Women's Auxiliary was held at Miss Des Barres' home on Friday, March 20th. There was a large attendance and the secretary, Jean McNaught, read a very complete report of the year's work, and then resigned her office, the duties of which she had most faithfully fulfilled.

The report by the treasurer, Margaret Cochran, followed. It was an entirely satisfactory one—no money having been lost! Between $20 and $25 had passed through her hands, $10 of which had been sent to Kangra, India, to assist in the mission work among the children there. A considerable amount had been spent upon materials for the work, but a nice little balance remained to start the new year's work. The treasurer then resigned also, as it had been decided at the first meeting that the officers should change each year.

Nominations were called for, and then things were lively indeed! There were so many nominations and so much keen interest and excitement that many ballots had to be taken before a decision was arrived at, and then Edith Whiting found herself appointed secretary, and Myra Moore secretary-treasurer. If the two new officers do their work as faithfully as the outgoing ones no more can be desired and 1914 ought to be an equally prosperous year.

The next bit of interest to the general public is an "Egg Hunt" which the Mission Band is arranging to have on April 18th, on the ground adjoining Capt. Adamson's house. This is open to all girls on payment of five cents. A prize will be given to the best finder. Come and try your luck! Grown-ups may come and watch.

HE WAS SOME HORSE.

A pair and a half of socks and the south east corner of a red blanket constituted part of the breakfast indulged in by a quadruped of the genus equus one morning of this week.

The owner of these delicacies which had been peacefully taking the air on a line hung on private property, after recovering from the shock, read the riot act; but the visitor not appearing to understand the meaning of the outbreak on the part of the injured one, turned its attention to the lawn. An idea, however, occurred to our neighbor with the result that the intruder was caught and led to the corner of Third street and Beacon avenue and shown the following notice:

"Sidney Pound By-law is now in Effect. The owner of any stray stock found at large will be fined according to the statutes of the British Columbia Pound Laws."

The eyes of the guilty one plainly showed the contempt which is apparently held by its kind in Sidney, and with a snort and a kick he returned to the tennis court to finish his meal.

THE ROMANCE OF THE PEARL.

The modern recognition of pearls dates back to about 300 B.C., but they were known to yet older peoples, and especially to those of the East. The Chinese records go still further back, and oyster pearls were received as tribute in the twentieth century B.C. It is probable they were found in the waters of Ceylon and India two thousand years ago, and the Greeks, of course, knew the pearl and recognized its value. But it was not until the Roman Empire was beginning to rise that the knowledge of the value of the pearl became general. In early times Britain played its part in the production of these gems, and Tacitus refers to British pearls, but calls them dull-colored and dirty brown. Origen, on the contrary, declared that the pearls that came from Britain held the second rank in value. It was not, however, until about the twelfth century that pearls were used in England, when they became conspicuous in church ornamentation. Henry VIII. obtained some costly pearls from the monasteries.
