In the Greatest Danger.

LONDON, JAN. 22-4:35 P.M. A bulletin posted at the Mansion House reads as

"Osborne, 4 p.m.-"My painful duty obliges me to inform you that the life of our beloved Queen is in the greatest danger. (Signed),

"ALBERT EDWARD."

Osborne, Jan. 22 .- The Queen is expected to live until Thursday morning unless unexpected complications

The slight improvement, so frequently mentioned in the official bulletins, merely indicate a postponement of the inevitable. The end may be a matter of days or only of hours; but the members of the royal family, who are now dragging out a weary visit at Osborne House, know that the death of her majesty is merely a question of a short time. The members of the royal family were called to a room adjoining the Queen's bedchamber no less than four times yesterday morning, and were kept in momentary expectation of being summoned to witness the end up to half-past five. Her majesty's physicians then only had a vestige of hope that they would be able to keep the Queen's feeble life in existence until the Prince of Wales arrived. To secure this result they resorted to the frequent use of brandy and champaigne. These stimulants used to an extent which only the greatest emergency justified, worked their process, and when the Prince of Wales and Emperor William entered the castle grounds at 11:30 a.m. they found the Queen a trifle better than had been The news of the death, when it occurs, is likely to be publicly announced in London before it is announced here, as, according to present arrangements, the first telegram is to be sent to the Lord Mayor of London. NO CHEERS. Never has Emperor William arrived at any place in England with so little eclat. No salutes were fired, no cheers were given. The men of the guardship Australia silently manned her sides. The crowd was equally undemonstrative; the people contenting themselves with baring their heads. It was a greeting given to the grandson of a dying woman rather than to the ruler of a great ally. A special train is held in readiness

Tuesday's Bulletin. THE END NOT IMMEDIATELY EX-PECTED.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 22.-11 a.m. -No further information regarding her majesty's condition has been obtained since the 8 o'clock bulletin was issued. It is locally reported that the family have again been summoned to the Queen's bedchamber. This report, how-

ANXIOUS FOR LATEST NEWS. London, Jan. 22 - 1:40 p.m. - The gloomy faces of the crowds incessantly approaching the bulletin boards at the Mansion House indicate how little the public hopes to receive better news of the condition of the Queen. Men of all ages and conditions, women, and even children, were content to spend a long time in awaiting their turn to come within reading distance of the board. As the throng moves slowly past the notice board, those who are unable to get there personally are sending mes-senger boys with note books and pencils to bring the text of everything posted. The grief of all is evident, and says the Queen is slowly sinking. The arrangements are already practically completed for meetings of the privy council and parliament, the statutes providing that they shall assemble immediately on the death of a sovereign. The privy councilors could gather together within a few hours. ## Sympathetic Messages.

FROM ALL QUARTERS. The dispatches received here from nearly every capital in Europe, from India, Australia, Jamaica and all the British colonies, show the press and the people to be sympathetic in their comment on the Queen's illness. The one exception seems to be Belgium. A dispatch from Pretoria says the Queen's illness has caused a profound sensation there. Special prayers were offered in all the churches of the garrison town yesterday evening. Many functions in Great Britain and on the continent have been abandoned owing to the Queen's condition. Emperor Francis Joseph has countermanded the court ball at Vienna fixed for this evening. The engagements of the cabinet ministers and other notable persons to appear at public dinners charitable fairs, or at the dedication of new public buildings, etc., etc., are being canceled, and it seems likely that all functions of this sort will be postponed throughout the United

The Czar's subjects freely admit that her Majesty has been one of the principal bulwarks of peace. The Rossia and Novosti alone touch the political chord. The Rossia says: "England's prestige is largely due to the Queen. With her will depart Britan-nia's good genius." The Novosti says: "England is discontented with None of the royal personages have situation, and the dissatisfaction gone driving or walking. in the news from Osborne. IN THE UNITED STATES. Buffalo, Jan. 22.—There is great interest in Buffalo in the condition of Queen Victoria, and news from the bedside of the stricken sovereign is eagerly sought. It has been determined that as soon as the news of the death is re-ceived, the Rev. Mr. Regester, rector of St. Paul's, will be asked to hold a memorial service. The Methodist ministers' meeting yesterday, after its regular session, held a service in behalf of the Queen. There were devotional exercises and a period of silent prayer.

At Washington the greatest interest and sympathy is manifested in official circles in the condition of the Queen. bulletin coming by cable is awaited with anxiety.

In the New York Senate last night, in the course of his opening prayer, Rev. E. Brown, of the First M. E. Church, prayed for Queen Victoria: The benevolent Queen of our sister nation, whose soul is at the brink of eter-nity," and asked consolation for her afflicted subjects in their hour of affliction. Mayor Maybury, of Detroit, in reply to a reporter, said: "I shall call an im-mediate session of the common council should her majesty's illness result fa-tally. Queen Victoria has been a most estimable and wonderful ruler. Hers has been one of the distinctly marked characters of the notable century that has just died away. The least we citizens of a friendly American city can do in event of her death is to pass some resolution expressive of our respect and sympathy."

Dr. Paul C. Curnick, of Simpson M. E. Church, Detroit, said: "Queen Victoria has reigned sixty-four years over the greatest nation of the world. During her life England has stood for righteousness, justice. civilization and humanity. She will be remembered in history as a great ruler and a good woman.

Dr. C. L. Arnold, of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, Detroit, said: "England's greatest Queen nears the end of her illustrious career. Dr. D. D. Rev. E. H. Pence, D.D., of the Fort Street Presbyterian Church, Detroit, in speaking of the personal touch that Christ has with humanity in all time, spoke of Queen Victoria as having been inspired by Christ. Toronto, Jan. 22.—In an interview last night Dr. Goldwin Smith expressed the view that the accession of the Prince of Wales would occasion no change in the policy of England, and that the two reigns would foin as gently as the centuries. Speaking of the incidents attending accession to the throne, Mr. Goldwin Smith remarked that two coronations lay with-in the compass of his memory, and a very genial smile, he speaking of the Queen's coronation, "I ren behind her carriage from Eton to Windsor." He was then a lad of 14 attending the great preparatory

NATION.

A Pain Remedy. For over fifty years this wonderful remedy as proved itself the best, safest and surest an-idote for pain in the world.

The True Relief.

For Internal and External Use.

In using medicines to stop pain we should avoid such as inflict injury on the system. Opium, Morphine, Chloroform, Ether, Cocaine and Chloral stop pain by destroying the sense of perception, the patient losing the power of feeling. This is a most destructive practice; it masks the symptoms, shuts up, and, instead of removing trouble, breaks down the stomach, liver and bowels, and, if continued for any length of time, kills the nerves and produces local or general paralysis.

There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the least danger in either infant or adult.

Will Afford Instant Ease,

For headache (whether sick or nervous), For headsche (whether sick or nervous), toothache, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and weakness in the back, spine or kidneys, pains around the liver, pleurisy, swelling of the joints and pains of all kinds, the application of Radway's Ready Relief will afford immediate relief, and its continued use for a few days effect a permanent cure.

Instantly stops the most excruciating pains, allays infiammation and cures congestion, whether of the Lungs, Stomach, Bowels or other glands or mucous membranes.

Radway's Ready Relief

MALARIA

Chills and Fever, Fever and Ague Conquered. Radway's Ready Relief

Not only cures the patient seized with this terrible foe to settlers in newly-settled districts, where the malaria or ague exists, but if the people exposed to it will every morning on getting out of bed take twenty or thirty drops of the Ready Relief in a glass of water, and drink it, and eat, say a cracker, they will escape attacks. This must be done before going out.

DISSOLUTION NOT REQUIRED

Hon. David Mills Discusses the Constitutional Question.

Precedents Established in Great Britain-The Law as It Relates to the Dominion of Canada.

The Toronto Globe publishes an interview had with Hon. David Mills, the minister of justice, in regard to the constitutional questions arising out of the critical illness and probable death of the Queen.

"Does the Queen's death dissolve the British Parliament?" Mr. Mills was "No, it does not. The act of 1867 put an end to that rule. The ancient practice of the constitution in that regard was founded upon the theory that the House of Commons was called into existence for the purpose of advising the sovereign, and was treated as personal council of the sovereign for the purposes of legislation, the fechnical theory being that all acts of parliament are the acts of the sovereign, created by and with the consent of the two houses of parliament. Seven and eight, William III., Chap. 15, enacted that the parliament should last for six months after the demise of the crown, if it were not sooner dissolved by the new sovereign, and this rule was ap-plied to the united parliament of England and Scotland, and also to Ire-land, when that country was represented in the United Kingdom. Thirty-seven, George III., Chap. 127, provided that where the demise of the sovereign took place during the period of a dissolution, the preceding parliament was to be revived for a period of six months, and the present statute, which is 30 and 31 Victoria, Chap. 102, makes the duration of parliament in-dependent of the demise of the crown.

THE DOMINION LAW. "Our law for the Dominion, which will be found in chapter 11 of the re vised statutes, provides that 'no par liament of Canada, summoned or called by her majesty, or her heirs or successors, shall determine or be dissolv ed by the demise of the crown, but such parliament shall continue, and may meet, convene and sit, proceed and act, notwithstanding such demise of the crown, in the same manner as if such demise had not happened. So that the death of her majesty would not necessarily affect the duration of parliament either in the United Kingdom or in Canada,

"Before the American revolution, in some of the colonies the impression prevailed for a time that the death of the governor would have the effect of dissolving the legislative assembly in the same way that the death of the sovereign would dissolve the House of Comme is, but the law officers of the crown pointed out that this was a wholly erroneous view, that the called together to advise the sovereign. and not the governor, upon the subject of legislation, and so the governor's demise had not the effect of dissolving the legislative assembly. The executive power of the crown extends alike to all parts of the empire, and it was the death of the sovereign, and not the sovereign's representative that terminated the existence of all bodies that advised the crown-whether in respect to legislation or administration-the theory being, as I have already stated, that these bodies were the personal councils of the existing sovereign, and the effect of dissolution being to leave the succeeding monarch equally free to constitute his own councils. "By a statute passed immediately after the death of George IV. it was expressly stated that no commission or warrant for the exercise of any office or employment, civil or military, within any of her majesty's possessions should in future, on the demise of the crown, become void until the expiration of eighteen calendar months next after such demise. And so all colonial commissions which existed at his demise were continued in force for a period of eighteen calendar months during the period of the fourth George's death, and that continued to be the law until 1867, when the representation act made the duration of parliament independent of the demise of the sovereign."

THE SUCCESSION. "In the event of the Queen dying, what would be the position of the heir apparent?"

"The Prince of Wales becomes eo instanti sovereign, no interregnum occurring between her majesty's demise and the succession of the heir appar-

but none seemed to be of any avail. I thankful now to say that Dr. Chase's

Mr. Wm. Davidson, St. Andrews, Que., states: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of tried many remedies for the past six years. Last winter when I had a se-regency during the time the Queen is prevented from exercising the func-tions of the sovereign?"

"I do not remember that any imperial statute in force at the present time makes provisions for a regency. Unless parliament provided for the appointment of a regent, difficulty might arise in case the ministers decided to perform some executive act that required the royal sanction. During the incapacity of George III. the two houses of parliament were voluntarily in session without royal authority, and were earnestly engaged in the discussion of the subject as to how parliament was to be convoked and the royal functions discharged during the illness of the sovereign. On that occasion a regency bill was enacted, and the powers of the Prince Regent defined. and a commission was sealed for the purpose of giving the royal assent to bills while the incapacity of the king continued. Sir Samuel Romilly pointed out that a power thus exercised practically rested upon the authority of the two houses alone. It was a case of necessity, and it would have been more honest for the two houses. under the circumstances, to invite the Prince Regent to perform the tions during the sovereign's illness."
"Supposing parliament has made no provision in the present case for the appointment of a regent?" In such an event parliament will either have to recognize the principle of necessity, as was done when James II. fled, or will, if necessary, have to follow the precedent established in the time of George III., and subsequently ask for a bill of indemnity to cure anything illegal or unconstitu-tional which it may have done."

HER MAJESTY'S INFLUENCE. "In the event of the Queen dying what effect, in your opinion, will her demise have upon international oper-ations? Do you think it will affect the peace of the world?"

"I think the modern relations of states is not likely to be seriously affected by a change of sovereign, al-though her majesty used her influence as a monarch largely in favor of the maintenance of peace. Her reign is the longest and most successful in the history of England. There have been only a few sovereigns in whose reign great improvements were made in the constitution of England-Edward I. and Henry II. Edward was undoubtedly a very great man, and he exercised great personal influence in bring ing about the changes that were made in the laws of England during his reign. Henry II. did a great deal to establish his supremacy-the supremacy of the law over the church. Queen Victoria has been a most industrious sovereign, considering the great questions of state which have been submitted for her sanction.

"Mr. Gladstone pointed out in his c'ebrated article to The North American Review, entitled 'Our Kin Belegislative assembly in a colony is youd the Sea,' the important and substantial power that her majesty exercised within the unquestioned limits of her constitutional authority. pointed out that a minister is pressed while in office with the questions that are immediately before him, and he has no time to minutely examine what has been done by his predecessors in respect to matters of a like character. But the sovereign during her whole life is a permanent factor in the government. She can inform her prime minister of what has been done by his predecessors in respect to matters of a like character. She can thus suggest to him the wisdom of comparing the advice which he gives with that which was at an earlier period, given by another, and so afford him the opportunity, if he is so disposed, to reconsider his own conclusion by comparing his own advice with that tendered by some of his predecessors in office. The longer an industrious and patient sovereign is in office the greater becomes her influence, resting upon experience-not by any attempt to substitute her own opinions for those of her minister, but by aiding him, by the sources of information suggested, to revise his conclusions, if he has any doubt in his own mind upon the subject.'

BRITAIN'S NEXT SOVEREIGN

Pedigree of Albert Edward of Wales. Second Child of the Queen.

No New Parliament Necessary in Case of His Accession to the Throne.

In the long and historic pedigree of the Prince of Wales it is found that he is of the 35th generation, 34th in descent from Egbert, the first king of all England, A.D., 827, and although there are 34 sovereigns among his predecessors from the time of William the Conqueror, there are only 14 in his pedigree, including William and his son Henry. But there are also two kings of Scotland, who did not sit on the English throne. In fact, for a whole century the ancestors of the prince were among the Scotch kings. Prince Albert Edward of Wales is the second child of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert. He was born in Buckingham Palace, London, on Nov. 9, 1841, and on his next birthday will be 60 years of age. He was created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester letters patent issued Dec. 8, 1841, and Earl of Dublin, Jan. 17, 1850. He is Duke of Cornwall, pursuant to the statute of Edward III, 1337, the annual revenues of the duchy being about £50,000. In conformity with an act of the Scotch Parliament in 1449, he is High Steward of Scotland, Duke of Rothsay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew and Lord of the Isles. He is a general in the army, colonel of the Tenth Hussars, captain-general and colonel of the Honorable Artillery Company, barrister of the Middle Temple, president of the Society of Arts and other so-cieties, and chancellor of the Duke of On 1860 he visited the United States and Canada, accompanied by the late Ouke of New Castle.

On March 10, 1863, he married at Windsor Castle, Alexandra, eldest daughter of Christian IX. of Denmark.

His eldest son, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence, now deceased, was born at Frogmere Lodge, Jan. 8, 1864.

London, Jan. 21.-When William IV. died it was necessary to summon new parliament on the accession of Queen Victoria, and Lord Melbourne ordered a general election. The Queen's first parliament went to Westminster with a fresh mandate from the people. A treasury official states that this is no longer a requirement, explaining the statutes, and that the opening of a new reign will not involve the necessity of a general election. This is fortunate for the Salisbury government, as it has a larger major ity in the parliament elected last auturn than it could expect from a fresh appeal to the country. Parliament stands adjourned to a definite date, and the second meeting will be virtually a continuation of the session already begun, although it will naturally be opened by a speech from the throne. The Victorian reign has been a period of unbroken constitutional practice, and all the old-time questions of royal prerogative and parliamentary privilege have been settled. A revival of the disturbing controversles of the Georgian period is impos-

Meeting

Of the City Council for 1901-Contractors Must Kep Their Agreement or Pay the Penalty of Failure—City Engineer Given Full Control of His Department—The Beet Sugar Industry Discussed.

Last night's meeting of the city council, which was attended by Mayor Rumball, Ald. Beattle, Campbell, Cooper, Cronyn, Garratt, Gerry, Greenlees, Jolly, Olmsted, Parnell, Stevely. Winnett and City Clerk Kingston, might fairly be considered the first practical meeting of the year, as far as the transaction of regular business is concerned, and it was certainly admirable for the decorum and dispatch with which the matters under consideration were dealt with. One of these afforded Ald. Parnell the opportunity to express an opinion that is held on all sides. This was during the discussion re the remission of fines imposed on a delinquent contractor, and was to the effect that the council should see to it that all contracts are strictly carried out.

In one sense the meeting was in the nature of a personal triumph for Engineer Graydon. The question arose as to whether he should again be given full power in his department, such as he had last year, and though vigorous objection was made it was de-cided that the plan had already resulted beneficially to the city, and should be continued.

The importance of encouraging the beet sugar industry was adequately explained to the aldermen, who, while acknowledging its value, were handicapped in giving initial assistance by reason of municipal lack of funds. Several noteworthy resolutions were passed before adjournment, which was made at the remarkably early hour of

Ald. Jolly moved, seconded by Ald. Garratt, that these fines be remitted. Chairman Stevely told of the circumstances under which they had been imposed, it being understood, in the first place, that they must be paid if his contract was not fulfilled pro-

With this Ald. Greenlees agreed. He had looked into the matter, and thought that weak-kneed aldermen should not come up and ask for remission.

The amendment was negatived. . The committee recommended also that an electric light be placed on Wilson avenue in West London. Ald. Parnell moved in amendment that action be deferred until the estimates are submitted. The aldermen should be careful in putting in permanent works, especially if it was desired to cut down the taxes. Mr. Parnell's amendment carried.

The communication from the city engineer re watering street railway tracks throughout the city was referred to Mr. Graydon and Chairman Stevely to conwith the street railway company and report.

NUMBER TWO COMMITTEE. No. 2 committee recommended the adoption of that portion of the mayor's inaugural address, recommending that the engineer be given complete control of his department, the same as given him by last year's council.

Ald. Cooper said he fully indorsed the mayor's and committee's sentiments in regard to the engineer having full power and control of how the work in the city should be done, but he should not have complete control of where it give him full control about spending money. He thought that the aldermen should have something to say in this.

Ald. Parnell asked if the engineer reported to the committee before taking steps in any public work. This should be done, he said. Ald. Winnett said that any alderman could recommend work to be done to the engineer. If he had not had the power given him last year, there would not have been the surplus there was. Mayor Rumball said that the plan was to give the engineer such power that he could not be pulled this way and that by any alderman, and forced to spend money foolishly.

The recommendation was adopted. On No. 2 committee's recommendation to be presented to the Ontario Legislature, requesting an amendment to the law so as to abolish actions for damages arising from persons falling owing structure of the sidewalks was not de

The council also passed the clause "That the recommendation of last year's committee, as follows, be reafned, the petitions against the posed work being reported the assessment commissionas insufficiently signed, viz.: proposed That the proposed construction of a sewer in Elizabeth street, from Lorne avenue, to Queen's avenue, and in Queen's avenue, from English street, to a point 120 feet east of Adelaide street, be advertised on the initiative under local improvement clauses of the mun-icipal act."

No. 1 committee's report of progress in most instances was adopted as read. BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Mr. H. C. Green then addressed the council at length upon the beet sugar industry. Mr. Green has made a comprehensive study of this subject, and presented the results of his research to the council in a lucid manner. He Mark the First Actual Business believed that it would be to the city's and county's good to have a beet sugar factory established here. It was his desire to get the city and county councils to encourage the growth of the beets in this county. The government had taken the subject up and proposed to bonus sugar beet factories. He urged concerted action on the part of the two councils. tion on the part of the two councils, so that they might obtain some of this government assistance.

Ald. Parnell moved, when Mr. Green had concluded, that the thanks of the council be extended to him for the in-formation he had supplied the aldermen. As the adoption of this sugges-tion meant a certain outlay of money, he moved that the question be referred to No. 1 committee

Mr. Green explained that this would do no good, as it was requisite for representatives of the council to go to the county council meeting today and impress that body with a sense of the industry's importance to Middlesex, so that results might accrue immedi-

Ald. Garratt considered that Mr. Green was entirely out of place. They were not there to grow beets. He should have gone to the Western Fair Association or the county council, who represented the farming com-munities. Besides, the aldermen had no power to spend money before the estimates were passed.

Ald. Winnett said that the matter was certainly of sufficient importance to warrant investigation. Ald. Parnell's motion was the right thing.

Ald. Parnell said that the city wanted new factories. If it was possible to get them, it was the aldermen's duty to do so. The council was under obligations to Mr. Green for giving it the information he had. The motion carried

MOTIONS. Ald. Cronyn, seconded by Ald. Beattie, moved that "it was with sincere regret that this council had learned of the death of another gentleman who formerly presided over its delibera-tions. The late Sir Frank Smith, who was a resident of this city for many years, and mayor during the year of the confederation of the North American provinces, here laid the foundations of that marked success for which his life has been distinguished as well in the realms of commerce and finance as in the halls of his country's parliament. This municipal council therefore desires hereby to place on record the expression of its great regret and sofrow at the passing from the activities of life, though full of years and crowned with honor, of our ex-mayor, Frank Smith." The motion was unanimously car ried by a standing vote. Ald. Parnell moved, seconded by Ald. Olmsted, that the treasurer be asked to supply an approximate re-turn of the financial condition of the city on Dec. 31, 1900. This, he explained, was desired because the auditor's report could not be had until April, and it was necessary to have the statement mentioned so as to dea with the estimates in an enlightened manner. Carried.

Ald. Campbell moved that the treasurer be asked to supply a statement of the expenditure and balance of the sewerage account. This information, he last year's council.

It was moved by Ald. Garratt, seconded by Ald. Jolly, that the city en-gineer be instructed to procure the estimated cost, per square yard, of macadam, tar macadam, vitrified brick and asphalt pavements, together with information regarding their wearing qualities, this to be made to ratepayers along those streets where new road work was to be done under the frontage system. This was done in all large cities, he said, and the citizens could then be tition intelligently for the pavements they desired. Carried.

Ald. Parnell moved, seconded by Ald. Winnett, that the mayor and chairmen of committees interview all boards having financial connection with the city and endeavor to secure the lowest rate that the public welfare will allow. This could best be done, he thought, by all working in harmony. Carried. The council carried also a motion made by Ald. Parnell and seconded by Ald. Cooper, asking that these boards place their estimates before the council by the time of the first meet ing in March. A bylaw, providing for money with which to meet current expenses, was given its third reading and passed. In cases of catarrh Hood's Sarsapar

Advance in Astronomy, Too.

Astronomy is an ancient science. It is truly the Celestial Empire among the sciences; some of the sciences are newborn creatures of yesterday, and some branches of astronomy are quite new, but the beginning and center of this important branch of learning is very old. Thoughtful men of an observing turn of mind have always felt a wonderful fascination in the study of the away, the advance of astronomical science has shown the influence of the heavenly bodies upon the life of earth is much more subtle and varied than was supposed. Sir Joseph Norman Lockyer, K.C.B., in beginning his review in the New York Sun, says: "In looking back over a century's work in the oldest of the sciences, one is struck not only by the enormous advance that has been made in those branches of the science dealing with the heavenly bodies which were cultivated at least 8,000 years ago by early dwellers in the Valley of the Nile, Tigris and Euphrates. but with the fact that during the century that is passing away a perfectly new science of astronomy has arisen by annexing physics and chemistry. Astronomers now study the motions of the particles of which all celestial bodies tronomy has now been established side by side with the old molar astronomy, which formerly alone occupied the thoughts of star gazers." He then begins with the work of W. Herschel in 1776, and its gift to the beginning of the nineteenth century, and from that point traces the rapid and large advance that in the movement, and like every other great line of progress, it has been the outcome of much unselfish, and we might even say heroic, effort. Much of this article, though as popular as such a contribution can be made, with the subjects, "Celestial Photography." "Catalogues of Stars," "Some Achievements of Mathematical Analyses," "Stellar Evolution," "The Connection Between Solar and Terrestrial Weather," etc., show that the nineteenth century has done much. However, we are thankful to say that there is in these spheres also something left for the twentieth century. One such point s mentioned, namely, the strange marking seen in Mars and other planets. Mr. Percival Lowell does not hesitate to proclaim himself in favor of their being due in Mars to an intelligent system of irrigation. Signor Cerruli claims that wherever seen they are mere optical defects. We may well be content to leave to a later date a general agreement on this interesting subject.

Speaking about the first quarter of the century, the writer says: "England, which was at one time the exclusive seat of the manufacture of refracting telescopes, was now completely outstripped by both Germany and France. and for this we have to thank 'the short-sighted policy of the Government, which had placed an exorbitant duty on the manufacture of flint glass." Thus we see that there was a close relation between science and political economy, and exorbitant duties were as stupid then as now. But England has learned much in the realm of economics since then. When we came to the beginning of the third quarter of the century, we are told, "The long supremacy of Germany in the matter of refractors was broken down ultimately by the famous English optician and engineer, Thos. Cook, of York. His first considerable instrument, one of seven inches aperture, was finished in 1851, and in 1865, a year before his lamented death, he completed the first of our present giant refractors, one of 25 inches aperture, for Mr. Newall, of Gateshead." Thus we see that the Englishman, though some times slow, does not easily give up the race. Another interesting point is the investigation into the causes of the Indian famines, of which have heard so much of There seems to be a connection between things so distant as famines in India, and spots on the sun, so we are not surprised at any such coincidences as the following: "Famines in India are generally years of low flood in Egypt." We hope, however, that from such investigations results will flow that may lead to preparing for the periodical emergency.

Astronomy also has its sensations. "Uranus, a planet unknown to the ancients, was discovered by its movement among the stars, by William Herschel, in 1781. It was not until 1846 that another major planet was added to the solar system, and this discovery was one of the sensations of the century."

The story of the independent discovery of Neptune by Adams and Le Ferrier, who were both driven to the conclusion that certain apparent irregularities in the motion of Uranus were due to the attraction of another body traveling on an orbit outside it, has often to carry on college work without aid of been told. The subsequent discovery of the external body not far from the However, that is not possible. The place at which their mathematical analysis had led them to believe it would be seen, will forever be regarded as a fine triumph of the human intellect.

The Senate.

If the vacancies to the Senate are from time to time properly filled; if as great care is taken with reference to the qualifications of those appointed to the Senate as is taken with reference to those appointed to the bench, then the Senate will become a body of able men to whom it will be properly esteemed a high honor to belong, and good would be sure to result to the

The House of Commons is the elective chamber, and it is today regarded as preferable to be a member of the House of Commons than of the Senate: but we believe that view of the matter could be considerably changed by making the best available appoint-

There are always a number of men in the House of Commons who, though of such a position, and many who sit only a term, and who never in reality enter into the work of legislation. The work on both sides of the house is done by a few. A man is not long a member of the house before being weighed by his fellow members and assigned his place.

At a recent banquet there was some discussion with reference to the fact that the leading lawyers today had not entered politics, and the names of Christopher Robinson, B. B. Osler and others were mentioned. The idea might be extended. The leading men in other professional callings, the leading business men, the leading bankers, the leading men in every walk of life might do much good if they entered public life. But there are many firstclass men who will never seek election to any position, and who could not be induced to enter into a political contest.

sort of check on any tendency towards undue rashness on the part of the House of Commons. It does not often originate legislation. There are in the Senate today first-class men, such as the leader, the Hon. David Mills, the Hon. R. W. Scott, Senator Gowan, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir John Carling and others, all with much experience. It cannot be denied, too, that | this early age, too, she commenced a there are some too old to be there, and as the total number to be appointed is not large, great care should be taken that those appointeed are well work of the House of Commons-men who will realize the responsibility of their task and discharge their duties at the age of 18, when she made her with fidelity.

Not to deal with London names, Mr. A. T. Wood, ex-M.P. for Hamilcancy caused by the death of Senator McInnes, and he has all the qualifications. In Toronto such names as Robert Jaffray, George Gooderham, Thomas Long, Christopher Robinson, the Hon. S. H. Blake, B. B. Osler and many others have been mentioned.

What we wish to emphasize is that the Senate may become not less important in its place than the House of Commons if every appointment to it is made with care. If the House of Commons knows its work is to be carefully scrutinized by a capable Senate it will be more careful in its work, and through the Senate the country might get the benefit of the work of some of its best men not likely to seek election to the House of Commons.

The Senate today would possibly be the better place to develop a young man, i. e., if a supporter of the views of the Government: because in the House of Commons there is very little a young man can do if a supporter of the Government and not a member of the cabinet. If he is a member of the Opposition he may, of course, slash away; the road is open to him, and in all probability he will come to the front. But there would be work for him in the Senate that would be likely to develop the statesman rather than the politician. Let none but the best appointments be made to the Senate. And let it be ascertained in advance whether one intends to regard it as obligatory to be present at the sessions, or whether he proposes to regard the Senate as merely a pleasant occasional club. Guard its seats as sacredly as a seat on the bench is now

Owing to the Queen's illness, the Guelph banquet to Mr. Guthrie, M. P., and the Brantford dinner to Premier Ross, have been respectively postponed.

PARAGRAPHS ABOUT PEOPLE.

The Mail and Empire staff in all its departments held its annual dinner on Saturday night last. Its chief incident was the presentation to Mr.W. J. Douglas, general manager of the newspaper, with a fine oil portrait of himself, as an expression of the loyalty and affection of the whole institution to its. head. An illuminated address accompanied the portrait. Mr. Douglas has been connected with his paper, boy and man, for something like a quarter of a century. His ability as a general manager goes well in double harness with his urbanity of disposition. The Advertiser wishes Mr. Douglas many additional years of increasing success.

The Coronation of the Young Princess.

Her Marriage to the Object of Hei Early Affection, Prince Albert-Her Later Responsibilities, Joys and Sorrows.

Victoria Alexandrina, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India, was born at Kensington Palace, May 24, 1819. She was the sixth sovereign of the House of Hanover, and the only child of Edward, Duke of Kent, who was the fourth son of George III. and the Princess Victoria Mary Louisa of Saxe-Coburg-Saalfield, relict of the hereditary Prince of Leiningen. Her father died in 1820. Neither George IV. nor his brothers having living legitimate issue, Victoria became heir-presumptive to the throne in 1830 on the accession of her . uncle, William IV. Her governess was Baroness Lehzin, daughter of a Hanoverian clergyman, who took general charge of Victoria's education from the age of 5 years. The lar instructor, and specialists were em ployed to teach certain branches. She drawing, and it is said that at the age of 11 years she could speak French, Italian and German, and had made a good beginning in Latin and Greek. At systematic study of the British constitution. She was also directed into an unusually thorough knowledge of general history. In the meantime, her physical training was not neglected. She had plenty of exercise and play and became an admirable horseback rider.

The young princess entered court life appearance there as heir-apparent to the throne. At this age she had attained her legal majority, and was soon to be called upon to fill the role of sove-reign of that aggregate of nations called the British Empire. THE CORONATION OF THE YOUNG

PRINCESS was probably the first great event of her life. The summons came in a dramatic manner. At half-past two o'clock on the morning of June 20, 1837, King William died. The Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Conyngham started for Kensington Palace. They arrived at early dawn, and after knocking at the gates for some time, aroused the servitor and requested to see Queen" immediately on business of

Soon after, the young Queen entered, clad in a dressing-gown and shawl, and with slippers on her feet. It is recorded that when the archbishop made the formal announcement of her accession to the throne, her first words were, "I ask your prayers on my be-

were presented to her one by one. Greville speaks of this scene as fol-

"Never was there anything like the first impression she produced, or the chorus of praise and admiration which was raised about her manner and behavior, and certainly not without justice. It was extraordinary, and something far beyond what was looked for. Her extreme youth and inexperience naturally excited intense curiosity to see how she would act on this trying occasion, and there was a considerable assemblage at the palace, notwithstanding the short notice which was

"She bowed to the lords took her seat, and then read her speech in a clear, distinct and audible voice, and without any appearance of fear or embarrassment. She was quite plain y dressed, and in mourning. After she had read her speech and taken and signed the oath for the security of the Church of Scotland, the privy councillors were sworn, the two royal dukes first by themselves; and as these two old men, her uncles, knelt before her, swearing allegience and kissing her hand, I saw her blush up to the eyes, as if she felt the contrast between their civil and natural relations, and this was the only sign of emotion which she evinced. Her manner to them was graceful and engaging. She kissed them both and rose from the chair and moved toward the Duke of Sussex, who was old and infirm. She seemed rather bewildered at the multitude of men who were sworn, and who came, one after another, to kiss her hand, but she did not speak to anybody, nor did she make the slightest difference in her manner or show any in her countenance, to any individual of any rank, station, or party.

"She went through the whole cere mony with perfect calmness and selfpossession, but at the same time with a graceful modesty and propriety particulary interesting and ingratiating." The ceremonies and splendor attending the coronation of the young Queen have seldom been approached in ern history. The dawn of June 28 found London in a fervor of anticipation. The royal procession was the cynosure of the occasion. In addition to the troops were twelve royal carriages, each with two women and two men, drawn by six horses. Then came the Queen's state coach, drawn eight cream-colored animals, flowing manes and tails, attended by a yeoman at each wheel and a foot-man at each door. The elder James Gordon Bennett, writing as an eye-witness, says of the scenes at Westminster Abbey: "But of all the sights in the Abbey the entrance of the young Queen was the most beautiful and splendid. There she was, walking up the steps leading to the royal platform, where stood the holy St. Edward's chair, the throne, etc. She looked quite short in stature, but, nevertheless, she bore herself with much dignity. On her fair brow she wore a dazzling circlet of gold

"Her crimson train, ten or twelve yards in length, was borne by eight young ladies of the highest rank. These eight train-bearers were tall and majestic, and also beautiful. Their headdresses were adorned with lofty white plumes. It was really quite interesting to see the little girl bearing herself so well. In that part of the building where I stood the ladies expressed a deep interest on her appearance. 'Poor thing, they will smother her!' 'Sweet little girl, they will kill her with grandeur!"

ceived the foreign ambassadors, who throne in 1837 the royal family had dwindled to meagre proportions. The Queen's children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren living today number 73, and she has lived to see the third generation of direct heirs to the British crown. Her majesty's four sons and five daughters are: Empress Frederick, the Prince of Wales, Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse, Duke Alfred of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Princess Christian, Princess Louise Marchioness of Lorne, Duke of Con-naught, the Duke of Albany, and Princess Henry of Battenberg.

The Queen has not escaped the human lot of sorrow. In 1862 her beloved husband died. The fine lines of the late poet laureate, concerning the death of the Prince Consort, will be recalled, now that the sands of her life have run low:

Break not, O woman's-heart, but still endure; Break not, for thou art Royal, but Remembering all the beauty of that

Which shone so close beside Thee that ye made One light together, but has past and leaves The crown a lonely splendor.

May all love, His love, unseen but felt, o'ershadow Thee, The love of all Thy sons encompass

Thee. The love of all Thy daughters cherish Thee. The love of all Thy people comfort Thee. Till God's love sets Thee at his side

She has not only felt the anguish that arises from the death of relatives and friends, but the nation's sorrows have been hers as well. Of all the years of her long reign, the time when the flower of the British army seemed to waver on the South African veldt, appeared to bring her more grief. She was a woman of broad sympathies and tender feelings, and her paramount position as

which meant little of the fulfillment of time alloted to her rule. "The Victorian era" has been accepted by all the world as a term representative of the fullness of the nineteenth century. Wars have altered the map of world, states have risen up, lived their brief lives and gone down, carrying governments and rulers with them. Through it all the British government has stood intact, except as it has deveioped into an empire upon which the sun never sets.

During her reign there have been eleven lord chancellors, five archbishops of Canterbury, and six of York; Canada has had ten governor-generals; in seventeen presidents; France has had one king, one emperor and six presioccupied by five kings, and Russia has had three emperors. During her reign also she has witnessed the statesman ship of ten prime ministers. She has probably seen a greater panorama of men and events than has any other personage.

There have been

WARS AND RUMORS OF WARS during her reign. These have been inseparable from the maintenance of the integrity of so vast an empire. While the results of these conflicts are of various degrees of importance, the Union Jack has become a terror to all wrong-doers, and a protection for all who seek justice, and are willing to extend that freedom and liberty to others which they enjoy.

The chamber, by a vote of 298 to 226, directed that the premier's speech be posted throughout

ENGLISH CHURCH DIVISIONS. London, Jan. 22.—A feature of the ceremony of St. Paul's Cathedral at the funeral of the Right Rev. Mandell Creighton, bishop of London, was the silently eloquent display of divisions in the church, which Bishop Creighton labored to heal. As the clergymen passed in procession before the altar on the way from the robing room to their allotted seats a curious diversity of demeanor was observed. A few made no sign; some bowed slightly, not more than a nod; others with deep reverence turned toward the east, and many crossed themselves. Yet all came exclusively from one diocese. JEWELS WORTH $75,000 STOLEN.

London, Jan. 22.-Mrs. Joseph Carside, who has been living at the Langham Hotel, discovered the other night that her jewel box had been rifled and valuables worth £15,000 stolen. While the circumstances of Mrs. Ivey's death point more to accident than to suicide, there are certain features of the case, which, in Coroner MacLaren's opinion, warranted an inquest. It appears that Mrs. Ivey had been suffering from grip, and was using for it a proprietary remedy, of which quinine and rum formed prinwhich quinine and rum formed principal ingredients. The combined strength of the spirits and the drug seemed to daze her, for she told her sister-in-law that the remedy made her "flighty." Yesterday her sister-inlaw went out, leaving Mrs. Ivey in hed. She was they side the sister-inbed. She was then evidently in good spirits. A few minutes later her little son also went out. On his return, he found, to his horror, that he could not make his mother speak, and he hastily summoned a neighbor. Drs. English and John D. Wilson were summoned, but on their arrival the wo-man was past human aid. By the bedside was found a bottle containing car-bolic acid, and bearing, in addition to the poison label, another giving in-structions to "take three times a day." This bottle the woman had evidently taken in mistake for her medicine bot tle, which it resembled in form. Both bottles had been stored in the same room. By the bedside was also found a cup, into which the acid had been poured by Mrs. Ivey before drinking it. It is believed that she took about a tablespoonful, half of which would have been sufficient to cause death. Her throat and tongue were frightfully burned. The acid was some that had been kept for household purposes, and was what is known as 90 per cent carbolic acid, the strongest quality of the drug in its liquid form.

The family have resided in the city for several years. Mrs. Ivey leaves her husband and a family of one daughter and two small sons.

The Queen's Veil.

"This was Louis' room," the earl said, tremulously, as his eyes wandered sorrowfully about the beautiful place, "and it is just as he left it—no one has ever disturbed anything. Most of these paintings' were done by his own hand, and all these treasures—for such they were to him—he gathered from different sources, for he dearly loved to be surrounded by beautiful things. You can come here as often as you like, dear, and examine the place at your leisure—everything is free to you, and I know it will interest you to see the work of your father's hands, and to know something of his tastes."

Tina was deeply moved; it seemed almost as if she was in the presence of the man whose blood coursed in her veins—as if his spirit pervaded the place and invested everything that surrounded her, with a peculiar charm.

She stole softly from one thing to another, her heart filled with strange emotions, her pulses beating rapidly, as here and there whe towered. "This was Louis' room," the earl said,

His eyes had followed her every movement; he had noticed her hesitation, and now came forward to her side.

"My child, do not fear to examine anything that you wish. This picture is only partially completed. It is one that Louis brought home with him when he came. The first thing he did, after entering the house and inquiring for his mother, was to bring this here and put it upon the easel, covering it with this cloth, and charging no one to touch it. It is the one I mentioned a while ago, It is the one I mentioned a while ago, and I supposed he was in a hurry to finish it for someone, and hoped to catch a it for someone, and hoped to catch a little time to work upon it while he was at home. It would have been a very beautiful piece of work if he could have lived to finish it, and he told me that the subject was suggested by a piece of statuary that he had seen somewhere.

As the earl concluded, he carefully removed the cloth from the picture, a heavy step escaping him as he did as moved the cloth from the picture, a heavy sigh escaping him as he did so.

There was a moment of silence, then a cry of mingled pain, surprise and joy rang out upon the stillness.

"My mother!" Tina exclaimed, starting eagerly forward, with clasped hands and wonder-wide eyes.

The picture represented a sleeping

The picture represented a sleeping Cupid, lying in the lap of a beautiful woman, who was gazing down upon the exquisite figure, with unutterable love exquisite figure, with unutterable love beaming in her tender eyes. With one perfect hand she was daintily holding up one of the little god's wings, while with a pair of shears she was apparently about to clip it, as if she hoped thus to keep him with her. The woman's position was full of unstudied grace, and her face was so delicately lovely, every feature was exquisitely molded, that no feature was exquisitely molded, that no one could look unmoved upon it, no artist could have painted it without loying it, while no man could have been long in the presence of such a woman without worshiping her.

The earl's face had grown suddenly white at Tina's cry.

"Your mother, child!" he said, in a hoarse, unsteady voice. "Do you remember your mother?"

"No, I do not remember her, but in the palace at Brussels, in a room where the queen used often to sit, there is a picture of her, and the face is the same as this," Tina returned, while the tears fell like Fain over her flushed cheeks.

"Now," she continued, struggling for self-control, "there can be no doubt of my parentage. And, oh! I cannot believe that he would have painted this picture, that he would have brought it all the way from Naples with him to finish it.

"Aye, if we could only prove it!" the earl echoed, with a weary sigh.

They stood there a long time, their eyes fascinated, their senses absorbed by that marvelous portrait, and Tina wondered if the little Cupid lying in her mother's lap had not been intended to represent her when she was on intant.

Something told her that it had been, and in her soul she telt that Louis Carisford never could have concentrated all that tenderness, life and beauty into that picture—that he never would have brought it into his home to finish—if he had not, in deed and in truth, been both husband and father.

Perhaps—and the thought almost made her faint—he had taken this way to break the news of his marriage to his proud family; he had hoped to win a place for his loved ones in their hearts by first showing them the likeness of this woman, who seemed almost too beautiful ever to have belonged to this earth, and the child of their mutual love.

But oh! the proof! When so much

But oh! the proof! When so much was depending on it, why could she not have it?

The earl was deeply grieved for the suffering girl, but he had no word of comfort to offer her, for he felt convinc-ed that his son had been guilty of a great wrong, and his own heart was heavy with shame and sorrow on account of it.

Yet he could not feel reconciled; for, Yet he could not feel reconciled; for, if this beautiful girl had been of good family, of noble birth, as he was forced to believe she was, there was no reason why he should not have married her if he loved her. It was a sad, harassing mystery, and it made him wretched to dwell upon it.

"Come, dear," he said, drawing Tina gently away from the picture, which seemed to hold her spell-bound; "I have something else to show you."

He led her toward a cabinet of some

He led her toward a cabinet of some dark, rich wood, exquisitely carved and ornamented. It must have been of some foreign manufacture, Tina thought, for she had never seen anything like it be-

The earl took a strange-looking key from a little drawer at one end of it, and, unlocking the wide glass doors, threw them open, revealing a choice collection of geological specimens, of precious stones, rare marbles, gems and coins. "My son collected all these, having from early boyhood displayed a peculiar fondness for such things, and he spent many a happy hour here arranging and classifying them. You can examine them at your leisure. I will leave the key in the door, and you shall come here whenever you wish. These little drawers, too," he continued, pulling out one of several, "are full of curiosities—shells from all parts of the world, foreign seeds and minerals."

Tina was much interested in the valuable collection, and thanked him warmearl took a strange-looking key

She spent half an hour longer wandering about the—to her—almost sacred place; then, after one more long, tearful look upon her mother's fair young ful look upon her mother's fair young face, she excused herself to the earl, and went away to her own room, for she was weary, almost exhausted with the excitement and emotion of the day.

London Hockey Team Has to Go to Tilbury-Answer to Stratford's Protests — Juniors Play Guelph Tonight.

WELLINGTONS TONIGHT Tonight at 8 o'clock the Weilingtons, of Guelph, will battle with the London junior team in a scheduled match of the O. H. A. championship series. The London seven has improved considerably with London seven has improved considerably with steady practice, and the game should be one of the most interesting of the season. The midgets have an excellent combination, and their attack is strong. George W. Price, of Woodstock, will be the referee. Young Bishop, whose first appearance a couple of weeks ago showed him to be a goal-keeper of great ability, will likely be between the sticks for London, while the remainder of the team will be picked from Gibbons, Labatt, Coughlin, Dowell, McMahen, McGuffin and Woolley.

HAVE TO PLAY TUBURY.

HAVE TO PLAY TILBURY. Tonight the senior hockey team will meet Tilbury in the O. H. A. series. By all ordinary rules this team should have been disqualified for defaulting their games with Stratford, but the O. H. A. authorities have compelled London to make the trip and go to the expense of playing a town which went into the series with the intention of defaulting. SEVERAL GAMES AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—Quebec was defeated by the Shamrocks on Saturday night in the hockey championship series, the score at the end of time standing 7 to a in favor of the local team.

Victoria II. defeated Montreal II. in the intermediate series on Saturday afternoon by 6 to 5.

Shamrock II. defeated Westmount in the intermediate series by 2 to 1. A DRAW.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—The hockey game here tonight between the Ottawas and Victorias, of Montreal, ended in a draw, each team having scored 2 goals. It was a scheduled game in the senior series of the amateur hockey team of Canada, and was a decidedly fast and hard struggle.

ANSWER TO THE PROTEST.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Secretary A. H. Beaton, of the O. H. A., today received notice from the Midland club that it had entered a protest against the Waubaushene club on a charge of playing men over age in the junior series. Waubaushene defeated Midland in Friday night last by 13 goals to 11. The reply of the London club to Stratford's charges was also received. Affidavits are made by Thomas Little, W. Mace, Frank Hobbs and Jack Hobbs to the effect that all their players are innocent of the charges made. They say that Ernie Lang and W. A. Herne did not violate the residence rule, nor do they receive pay for their services. They deny that any person named Frank Wynne, of Montreal, played on their team last week, when they beat Stratford 6 to 1, and moreover they have been unable to find a player by that name, although they have made diligent inquiries in Montreal and elsewhere. They state that the player in question was Campbell Lindsay, to whom the O. H. A. granted permission to play, but they make no affidavit to that effect. The O. H. A. will meet on Thursday afternoon to consider these protests.

CALEDONIA LOST. ANSWER TO THE PROTEST.

CALEDONIA LOST. Cayuga, Ont., Jan. 21.—The Cayuga nockey club beat Caledonia team here on Saturday by a score of 17 to 4. CRESCENTS VS. SHERBROOKE. Quebec, Jan. 21.—The Crescents, of Quebec, defeated Sherbrooke here tonight

BASEBALL. CITY LEAGUE PROPOSED.

CITY LEAGUE PROPOSED.

A meeting of baseball enthusiasts will be held at the Grigg House about the 30th inst. for the purpose of attempting to form a city baseball league, and it is hoped that all those interested in the formation of such a league will attend. Hamilton and Toronto are arranging such a league, and there would appear to be no reason why London should not do likewise. There are plenty of good local teams, such as Knox, St. John's, Ramblers, Rockets, Pastimes, Y. M. C. A., Aberdeens and Memorials, who have in previous seasons demonstrated their ability to play good ball. It is proposed in the event of such a league being formed to have several grounds located in different parts of the city, thus giving everyone a chance to see the games without inconvenience. It is proposed that the winners of the different cities play each other at the finish for a suitable trophy, thus adding considerably to the interest in the game.

Koch, owner of the Detroit franchise, had a conference here today with John T. Brush, chairman of the National League circuit committee. At the conclusion of the conference, President Watkins made public a statement of the declaration of principles of the new association, and the requests made of the National League, which the circuit committee of the major organization has granted, as the signatures of all the has granted, as the signatures of all the parties show. The statement in part says: "We petition the National League says: "We petition the National League and American Association of professional baseball clubs, the national board of arbitration, and the circuit committee of the National League, severally and jointly, as follows: To allow us the right to use the name of American Association. That we be given territorial rights in the cities of Milwaukee, Detroit, Louisville, Indianapolis, Boston, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. That each club in this association be allowed to reserve five players each year. That to reserve five players each year. That a committee from each organization be given one day each year for a joint dis-cussion of baseball interests. That this association be accorded a representative upon the national board of arbitration and upon the players' rule committee. This, if this declaration and petition be approved by all parties in interest, then a new agreement, in harmony therewith, shall be executed, which shall relate all

WEST CHALLENGES RYAN. New York, Jan. 21.—Tommy West, the middle-weight pugilist, issued today a challenge to Tommy Ryan to fight for the middle-weight championship at the 158-pound limit. West says he will make a side bet of any amount that Ryan will name, the fight to take place before the club offering the best inducements.

Breakfast Grumblers.

Before the advent of Malt Breakfast Food, breakfast grumblers were found in the majority of homes. These breakfast grumblers for long years had been invoking dietetical science to produce a breakfast food that would satisfy the appetite, promote digestive vigor, give nutrient and strength to the system, and furnish necessary energy to the body and brain for the work of the day. introduction of Malt Breakfast

Food to the homes of Canada has brought joy and contentment to young and old who work muscle or brain. Now that Malt Breakfast Food is so largely used, there is less grum-bling about taxed digestion, irritation of the stomach, eruptions and redness of the skin and other troubles that the ordinary oatmeal and other grain foods cause

Malt Breakfast Food is a true breakfast relish. Its composition of Malt and choicest Wheat, guarantees the greatest concentration of nutriment; it agrees with the weakest stomach; it builds health and strength, and gives to brain workers all needed en-ergy. No other food can compare with One trial makes it a home friend. Your Grocer has it.

About the Eye.

The Globe Optical Company, who have permanently located in this city, and whose place of business is at 380 Richmond street, opposite the Masonic Temple, is one of the most reputable houses of a similar description in Canada. Their business is one that, by thorough and strict attention, has increased to exceedingly large proportions. Mr. Thompson, the manager, is at present in London, and will remain the balance of the week. Being more closely connected with the optical trade than many, he can give better advice about the eye and its requirements. Every part of their business is strictly reliable, and no experiments are attempted. What the eye requires is conscientiously explained, and by these methods they have saved the eyesight of many people by scientifically adjusting spectacles. Defective eyesight should be attended to. The Globe Optical Company make all tests free, and will supply all kinds of glasses at moder-

PRESBYTERIAL COUNCIL. The Presbyterial Council met in the First Church last night. Individual communion cups formed the chief topic of discussion, the question being brought up on an interesting paper read by Mr. Thomas Alexander. Mr. Alexander advocated the use of individual cups, taking the health ground largely, and declaring that no sound reason existed against their use. spirited discussion followed, in which the majority of the members held the LONDON OLD BOYS. A meeting of the London Old Boys' Association was held in club room. Great Northern Hotel, Chicago, on Saturday evening last. The meeting combined both business and social features. It is proposed to hold a meeting of the association each month, and that every alternate meeting be "ladies' night." The expenses of the association in connection with the reunion here last year amounted to $1,-231 85, of which $877 was disbursed to the cost of the First Regiment meet these expenses have been subscribed, and all bills have been paid. Plans are already being made in Chicago for the reunion of 1901, which it is proposed to hold in this city some time in August. MANHATTAN CLUB CARNIVAL.

The Manhattan Club carnival, held at the Jubilee Rink last night, was a record-breaker in point of attendance and the number who were in costume. The rink was gaily decorated with flags, bunting and hundreds of Chinese lanterns, and music was furnished by the Seventh Band and the Italian Harpers. The Manhattans thought they had reached the limit last year, when they gave the largest carnival of the season, but this year's event easily surpassed it. The following is a list of the prize-winners: Best dressed lady and gentleman, Chris. Charlton and Maggie Pierce, as a lady and gentleman of the Elizabethan period; next best dressed lady and gentleman, H. Rhodher and E. Lillicrap, as prince and princess; best comic costume, F. Johnston, Dutchman; best lady skater, M. Jones; best dressed coon, John Johnston; best dressed boy, Lord Brierly, as a cavalier; special individual prize, Wm. Spence, as an Indian chief.

DEATH OF ALFRED WESTLAND. Alfred Westland, who died at his residence, Wyoming, Ont., was born in Toronto, Aug. 13, 1836, and came to London about two years before the Union school was built, where he attended, and received his education. After serving an apprenticeship at paper-hanging and upholstering, he spent two years in Detroit and Chicago. He came home, and next walked to Exeter, and started in business without one dollar, and succeeded. He soon had a nice house and lot, which he leased for five years, then started for California, in company with Mr. Wm. Noble, now of Aylmer. After some years in the silver mines in Nevada, he then came home in about the year 1866. He then started business in Wyoming with a general store, and was a partner with Mr. Wm. Collins, and sold out to him. About the time For-cet's bank collapsed he started a private bank, which his eldest son is now conducting. He leaves a family of conducting. He leaves a family of three daughters, his widow and five sons, who are all provided for. He was a member of the Masonic order and Ancient Order of United Workmen. His wife is a sister of ex-Ald. John Boyd. Deceased was reeve of Wyoming several extent and head arms and extent in eral years, and had some real estate in Wyoming, and in Florida United States. He had been poorly for the last year, and three months ago had a paralytic ywt the youngest of four brothers-Henry, afty cents.

DEATH OF A MIDDLESEX PION-EER.

The death occurred yesterday at Thorndale of Mr. James Scott, one of the oldest residents of Middlesex, aged 82 years. He was born at Baileboro. County Cavan, Ireland, on Jan. 15, 1819, and was educated under private tuition at Dublin. At the age of 16 he joined the Royal Irish Revenue Police, afterwards was drill sergeant to the Royal Irish Constabulary until 1838, when he took his discharge. On Oct. 18, 1838, he married Eleanor Bryan at Newtown Forbes, County Longford, Ireland. They sailed for Canada on April 16, 1840, in H. M. S. Industry, and after yesterday for Chicago. She intends a voyage of eight weeks and two days studying the styles and latest improve- landed at Quebec on July 1, 1840. Mr. landed at Quebec on July 1, 1840. Mr. Scott taught school for a few years in Nissouri and Webster's schoolhouse London township, and finally took up land in Nissouri, where he continued to reside until a short time ago. The deceased joined the Orangemen with the First Royal Regiment in 1841. Afterwards he was a charter member of Thorndale Orange Lodge, 248, and continued his membership until the time of his death, and was also a member of St. George's Episcopal Church, Thorndale, since its erection to the present time. Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, of West Nissouri, and Richard, of this city, children, survive. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2 p.m. to Brown's Hill cemetery, from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Ed. Fitzgerald.

ANXIOUS FOR AN INQUIRY.

Water Commissioners Want to Learn About Alleged Bogus Ballots.

Commissioner Jones Re-Elected Chairman - Considerable Business Transacted.

The board of water commissioners held their inaugural meeting for 1901 at the city hall yesterday. There were present Commissioners Little and Jonts, Mayor Rumball, Secretary Ellwood and Engineer Moore. Secretary Ellwood took the chair, and announced that the first business was the election of a chairman for 1901.

Mr. Jones moved that Mr. Little be chairman, but Mr. Little withdrew and nominated Mr. Jones, who was re-elected and accordingly assumed the

Just before the meeting closed Mr. Little took occasion to refer to recent statements which had been freely made as to there having been extra ballots for the election of water commissioners freely distributed in the recent municipal elections, and it had been hinted by implication that these ballots had been used to advance the interests of himself and his fellow-commissioner. He would not condescend to deny the latter part of the charge, as he did not band to this city. The funds needed to consider it necessary to do so. He wished, however, to know if the first part of the charge could not be fully investigated. The board had no power to do so, but if the mayor or council had the power he asked them to use it. He did not wish, he said, to sit on the board under the implication that unfair means had been used to place him there. He wanted the matter sifted,

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would Be the Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane; that salves, sprays, etc., being applied directly branes of the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment, but this has been proven not to be true. The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood, and catarrh is a blood disease, and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood, and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become neutral and healthy.

In this climate, thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times, but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated, and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all so inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to really cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Eucalyptol, Hydrastis, Sanguinaria and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste, and sold by drug-gists under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poison-ous mineral whatever. A leading druggist in Albany, speaking of catarrh cures, says: "I have sold various catarrh cures for years, but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and per-manent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full-sized packages for

THE NECESSITY OF A CHANGE

It is necessary for the welfare of our being in order to preserve our health, we should have an occasional change.

A change of dress is as essential as a change of climate.

Means are required to accomplish either. In the matter of dress Fit-Reform disposes of this question, as it gives to the consumer two suits at the cost of one as offered by the merchant tailor and thus answers one of nature's demands.

We invite inspection at our health resort, investigation.

Mayor Rumball was equally outspoken in his remarks. If bogus ballots had been scattered around, it was a despicable and contemptible act, and would like to see the person guilty of doing such a thing placed where he could not do so again. He had already asked City Clerk Kingston to investigate the matter, and he himself would do all in his power to get at the truth. He would be glad if any citizen whe could give information which would help in investigating the matter would come forward and so do.

With this understanding the matter was dropped. John Law, of 121 Clarence street, wrote asking that a proficient swimming instructor be appointed at the 115,984 gallons. A large number of acand if there was any law to punish the counts were passed.
