When George, who has long been a sufferer with an attempt was made to move them outside for burial they all crumbled, leaving nothing but a pile of dust and remnants of the stronger parts of their clothing. The miners were terrified, fled from the spot, and though there were valuable deposits of coal in the shaft nothing would induce the superstitious men to return to their work.

Royalty on Wheels.

LONDON, Oct. 21 .- An apparently authorized announcement this week that the Princess of Wales and her daughters have taken to riding tricycles is expected to give a tremendous boom to the manufacture of that class of machine which has been in a state of decline for several years. Polite society has always professed to regard cycling with scorn, as an essentially vulgar and plebeian form of exercise and amusement. The princess having now set the fashion, fashionable dames and their middle class imitators are bound to follow it. Much gratification is expressed that the princess did not take to the bicycle and "rational dress," the use and abuse of which have brought a good deal of undeserved ridicule upon this form of healthy recreation to the benefit solely of the artists and writers for the comic papers. It is said that the Princess of Wales commenced tricycling by the advice of ber

Lily Langtry Coming.

London, Oct. 21.-London, in addition to the Empire discussion, is threatened with an epidemic of "Patrie," Sardou's famous play, which, after having lain fallow on managerial libraries, has suddenly been brought to the front, probably owing to the fact that in spite of the Berne convention and its adoption by England, the drama has become anybody's property. London productions of "Patrie" will, it is understood, be followed by similar productions in the United States. Mrs. Langtry takes a version of the play with her to America. The piece, which deals with the Spanish occupation of Flanders, has a unique peculiarity of construction, a grand procession which takes half an hour to cross the stage, and is stopped at intervals by episodes which carry on the story. As a costume spectacle it possesses unlimited opportunities for a liberal manager. It is this feature, doubtless, which attracted London amuse-

The Social Purity Movement. LONDON, Oct. 21 .- The Social Purity League is prosecuting a vigorous campaign, and is receiving the support of various religious bodies. The Irish Party Uniting.

LONDON, Oct. 21.-The address delivered by Mr. Timothy H. Healy at Dublin last Wednesday, in the course of which he denied the stories that were being circulated to the effect that he aimed at assuming the leadership of the Irish party and asserted that he was strongly opposed to all from St. Petersburg say that the Czar's attempts to depose Justin McCarthy, has physicians have decided that his Majesty is had a tendency to bring about a general reconciliation of the various factions of the party. It was wholly against the interests of the community, said Mr. Healy, that St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—Conflicting | personal claims of misrule should be set up against the great cause of Irish home rule. Mr. Healy also said that before the holding of the next general election in the United Kingdom he would like to see a reform of the franchise provision made for the payment of members of Parliament and a general spirit of democracy infused into the Liberal administration. This latter statement has given great pleasure to the Queensbury has lodged a petition for the English Liberals as in some measures guaranteeing the support of the Irish members of the legislation for the abolition of the veto power of the House of Lords to be considered at the coming session of Parlia-

The Dying Czar,

BERLIN. Oct. 21 .- According to a dispatch from St. Petersburg published by the National Zeitung this afternoon, and according to special information from a medical authority now at Livadia, the Czar, during the last 48 hours, has been seized with a series of convulsive attacks accompanied for several hours by temporary unconsciousness. It is added that his death cannot be long delayed.

Interest in the dying Czar is enhanced by the anxiety felt respecting the possible political consequences of his death, and especially in regard to the marriage of the Czarewitch to the German princess.

The Vossische Zeitung learns that the wedding will now have to take place at the Czar's bedside, as it is impossible that he can be removed elsewhere.

According to a well-informed personage, friend of Grand Duke Peter, Princess Alix of Hesse, to whom the religious question constituted the great stumbling block to her marriage, was the first to declare that all her hesitation over the formalities of submission to the Russo-Greek Synod had been abandoned now that the father of her betrother was at death's door. It is understood that her scruples chiefly referred to saying the extra acclam nulla salus which she considered a condemnation of the religion of her native country. That the Czar cannot recover is reluctantly accepted now by everyone. The bitter conclusion reached was officially telegraphed from the Crimea Thursday when, according to a Warsaw telegram, the court official notified the authorities in St. Petersburg that his Majesty's condition was hopeless and ordered the commencement for such preparations as are inevitable upon a Czar's death. The tortured Czar has been forbidden by his doctors to leave his bed, and he can no longer seek surcease from pain in aimlessly pacing his room. Now in his hour of agony his devoted wife is no longer able to soothe miners on reopening the old shaft came on | and encourage his every moment. lung trouble, is dying, it being a question whether father or son shall be the first claimed by death. A special dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Neue Freie Presse says that the Czarina, who had watched constantly until today at her husband's bedside, has had a stroke of apoplexy. The Grand Duchess Xenia, her elder daughter, has broken down under the nervous strain and is obliged to pass most of the time in bed. BERLIN, Oct. 21 .- The first dispatch of the day concerning the Czar's condition was received here from Yalta, near Livadia, at 11 o'clock. It was substantially as follows: If the Czar's death should not be hastened by heart failure owing to recurring spasms, or by apoplexy, both inci-dental to his malady, the doctors hope to combat the uraemia for some time. Usually the final stage of Bright's disease is marked with convulsions, delirium and, at the last, prolonged coma. These symptoms have not set in.

The numerous imperial princes now at Livadia have been gathered for state as well as family reasons. They will form an interim council. The members of the council are expected to be the Czarewitch, the Grank Duke Michael, Count Pohler and Privy Councilors Solisky, Bunge and Mouravieff. The effect of the first alarming news from Livadia last week was to send Russian securities down seven points on the Berlin and Frankfort bourses. During the week the prices rose slightly, and at the close yesterday were firm. The Czar's death is not expected to cause a panic, unless French investors, who are believed, to hold no less than 300,000,000 in Russians, should take alarm and try to unload their holdings.

London, Oct. 21 .- High Mass was said in the Greek Church here today and special prayers were offered for the Czar.

A dispatch received from St. Petersburg by the Central News this evening says: 'Much excitement was caused today by widespread reports that the Czar was dead and that the news would be suppressed officially until next week to enable the Princess Alix to declare her adherence to the Greek Church and be married to the Czarewitch before the announcement. No confirmation of these reports can be obtained. The St. Petersburg journals have been ordered to expunge all bulletins as to the Czar's illness from the copies going to Livadia.

BERLIN, Oct. 21 .- The Lokalanzeiger says that if possible the marriage of the Czarewitch and Princess Alix will take place on Tuesday. The Czarina is reported to be in the same condition as after the railway accident near Borki in 1888, in which she and the Czar narrowly escaped death.

LONDON, Oct. 21.-The Russian Ambas-ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21. - Dispatches made public here at 7 o'clook this evening confidence is felt by the people in the official announcements. The meagreness of the news has left room for the eraziest rumers, which multiply on every street corner and in every cafe. It is said that the Czarewitch has renounced the succession, that the Czar is dead, and that the fact is suppressed, and that the Grand Duke George died two days ago. Official bulletins do not dispel these rumors. The last story is that the Czarina's mind has broken down under her many affictions. In the churches throughout Russia prayers have been said today for the Czar, A dispatch from Moscow says that the city is grief stricken. Nevertheless, the theaters are open. Between the acts this evening the orchestra in every theater played "God Protect the Czar." audience stood during the hymn and insisted upon several repetitions of it. ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21 .- This official statement from Livadia was given out at 8 o'clock: During the last 25 hours the Czar has had rather more sleep than on preceding day. He rose earlier today with his usual appetite, is somewhat better generally and is otherwise composed that yesterday. Otherwise his condition is unchanged.

From St. Petersburg the London News hears: "The latest advices from Livadia are that despite the fact that he is out of hed the Czar's case is hopeless. The cancer. In the last ten days he has lost 32 pounds. The excitement here and in Moscow is indescribable.

Train Held Up and Robbed on a Kansas

Parsons, Kan., Oct. 21 .- Missouri Pacific passenger train, No. 233, on the Kansas and Arkansas Valley brauch, was held up by four or five masked men at Coretta doctors have discovered that he has a siding, seven miles east of Wagoner, I. T., at 10 o'clock last night. Empty cars were placed on the track and the train struck them. The robbers commenced a terrible onslaught and four or five persons are reported shot. Little money is said to have been secured. All the cars excepting the sleeper were shot full of holes and not a whole window remains. The train struck the obstruction of cars across the track after being shunted out onto a siding, the outlaws having thrown a switch for that purpose. The money secured was from the

During the fusilade Jack McMara, advance agent of the McMara minstrel show, received a shot in the forehead. How seriously he is wounded is not known.

The robbery was the work of the Cook gang of outlaws who have recently been terrorizing citizens in the territory. For two months past all railroads passing through the territory have been heavily guarded in fear of an attack, and many shipments into the territory have been refused by the express company. Many depredations of the gang. especially within the past week or two have shown this precaution to have been timely. For days the gang has been represented as being at different points planning a robbery, and thorough preparations were made to meet the expected attack. The outlaws evidently ancipated a desperate resistance and began their work

The loss is roughly estimated at $200,000. A couple of barrels of oil exploded, increasing the danger, but fortunately the fire was limited to the buildings where it started.

Special Services at a Number-Wellington Street Anniversary-Thanks. giving at St. John's.

Next Sunday and Monday the Dundas anniversary services. Rev. J. V. Smith, a former pastor, will preach on Sunday and lecture on Monday evening. Mrs. Harrison, a well-known vocalist, will be added to the musical talent at the Monday evening gathering. Sunday was Grand Ligne day at Ade laide Street Baptist Church. Rev. Adam Burwash, of Quebec, general missionary in connection with this work, who is attending the convention at St. Thomas, assisted Pastor Mihell in the morning service. Mr. Burwash took for his theme "Open doors and conditions necessary to enter them,' giving the substance of an able paper which he proposes to read before the convention. The preacher held that the conditions necessary to enter the doors that had been opened to Protestant effort in Quebec were: Knowledge of the word of God, prayer for help and success, and obedience in response to the power of the and startling description of the situation in the field operated by Grand Ligne mission aries, and showed the obstacles to be overcome and the progress made by the denomination in sections where hitherto it has had little if any foothold. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Burwash and Rev. C. Day, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in the Sabbath school along the same lines, Mr. Day preaching in the evening to a large and deeply interested congregation.

The King Street Methodist Church anniversary has been fixed for Sunday. Nov. 11. Rev. James H. Potts, D.D., of Detroit, will preach both the sermons. On the Monday evening following he will deliver his most popular lecture, entitled "A Boy in Blue, or Experiences With Mormons and Indians on the Great Western Plains in 1865." This eminent minister of the Gospel was the fraternal delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States to the recent Methodist General Conference held in this city. The remarkable address which he delivered on that occasion proved him to be a master of impassioned and dramatic oratory. No doubt he will have a crowd to hear him.

Adelaide Street Baptist Church has inaugurated a series of cottage prayermeetings, which are held at private residences on nights other than those devoted to regular services. Rev. Mr. Cassidy, missionary to Japan, who is on furlough at present, preached in Dundas Street Center Methodist Church Sunday morning. In the course of his ser-mon, which dealt with Paul's address to the Athenians, Mr. Cassidy referred to some features of the idolatry of Japan. They have so many shrines, it seems, that they are apt to make mistakes. Mr. Cassidy's residence being built somewhat different from the usual Jap house, it was not an unusual thing to see strangers in the neighborhood bow their heads and engage in their devotions under the impression that it was the home of a god! Last week Rev. R. Aylward, M.A., was nducted as pastor of the Parkhill and Lieury Presbyterian Church by Rev. Mr. Elliott, moderator of the London Presbytery. The Gazette-Review says: "Rev. Mr. Avlward commences his labors here with the good wishes of everyone. The call was a singularly unanimous one, and we hope that the unanimity augurs well for the future relations between pastor and

The Church of St. John the Evangelist held its thanksgiving service Sunday. The church was decorated in a handsome manner with the various fruits, vegetables and grains, which were placed in an artistic manner in the chancel and on the pulpit and walls. The musical service was exceptionally good, several anthems being rendered by the choir. Rev. W. T. Hill occupied the pulpit in the morning and delivered a thanksgiving discourse on the bountiful harvest. In the evening Rev. I. Berry, of St. Paul's Cathedral, officiated. At the morning service a beautiful collection plate was presented to the church by the Chancel Chapter. Large congregations attended both services and the collections, which were very large, were devoted to the church funds. Rev. W. J. Clark, of the First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. D. Robertson. pastor of the King Street Presbyterian Church exchanged pulpits on Sunday. Bishop O'Connor of London held confirmation at Alvinston on Sunday. The Black Knight is preaching and ecturing in Western Ontario. Rev. E. B. Lanceley, London, gave an address on "The Relation of the Individual to the Organization" at the Epworth League convention at Dresden last week. The Chatham Banner says that for an hour the largest audience that has ever assembled in the church for many a day listened with intense and undivided interest to the humorous, pathetic, inspiring and eloquent address. Christ Church has been refitted with new furnaces of the most approved pattern, and other improvements are being made which will add greatly to its comfort, accommodation and appearance. Rev. W. L. Armitage began his ministry Sunday as assistant to Rev. Canon Rich.

ardson, city. The anniversary of the Wellington Street Methodist school was held on Sunday and the three services were (f a nature especially interesting to the children. Rev. John Learoyd, of Sarnia, occupied the pulpit morning and evening, and preached two ermons to the young. In the afternoon hundreds eager to gain admission were turned away. Rev. J. W. Annis, of Queen's Avenue Church, Pastor Gundy and Mr. Learoyd addressed the school. The music at each service was furnished by the children, assisted by the church choir and an orchestra under Mr. Roselle Pococke. The annual entertainment will be given to-

The annual thanksgiving service was held in St. Matthew's Church yesterday. The edifice was ornamented with evergreens and fruits of the harvest, and special music was rendered by the choir. Rev. Mr. Racey, of Belmont, preached at the morning service and Rev. Archdeacon Davis delivered the evening discourse. The services at the Talbot Street Baptist

Grant, a distinguished Winnipeg pastor, delivered an appropriate sermon, and in the evening Rev. W. B. Hinson, of Montreal, preached. Rev. J. W. given of Joel's prophecy as quoted in the second chapter of Acts. To "prophesy" means, the speaker said, to speak for God. First the Holy Spirit is poured out upon the young women, then they see visions and then tell them out for God. The first vision which they should see and "prophesy" was that of the individual life redeemed and made perfect. This vision coming down the currents of the Street Center Methodist Church holds its Old Testament found fulfillment in Jesus Christ. The vision of a holy life could only be seen by a consecrated heart under the influence of the Holy Spirit. Bellamy had a vision of a regenerate city made up of unregenerate individuals. That could never be. They must get a vision of London redeemed and then strive for that. The ruri-decanal Chapter of Huron county has passed a resolution of condolence in connection with the death of the late Crowell Willson, ex-M.P. St. James' Episcopal Church pulpit Sunday morning was occupied by Archdeacon Davis, and in the evening Rev. Mr. Racey preached.

LISTOWEL, Ont. Oct. 22.-Strife and anger followed the remains of Jessie Keith, the murdered girl, to the grave yesterday afternoon. The Keith family are Secularists, and there was a most unseemly wrangle at the cemetery as to whether any form of Christian burial service should be repeated beside the open grave. Finally, after a painful scene, Rev. Dr. Gunner, the Congregational minister of Listowel. preached a funeral sermon outside the cemetery gates. The time of the funeral was set at 2 o'clock, and long before that hour hundreds of vehicles of every description had gathered around the Keith homestead. The fields in the vicinity looked like a crowded fair ground, and on all the side lines within a mile horses were tethered. People came from places as far distant as Stratford, over 30 miles away. There were corps of bicyclists, farmers wagons and buggies and the more pretentions vehicles of the townspeople. Within the house were the immediate relatives of the victim, the father and mother, the daughter Ida Jane and the son Wm. Alexander, a boy of nine. TO PHOTOGRAPH THE EYES. The start of the cortege toward the layed while Dr. Watson performed an operation that may aid in clearing up the The finding of the valise accounts for the mystery as to the identity of the murderer. The eyes, it is believed, sometimes bear after death the impression made upon the retina by the last object seen in life. The eyes of the dead girl will be photographed in the hope that something may be discovered from an enlargement of the photo. It is believed that the girl opened her eyes last when the man bent over her in the woods in the act of cutting her throat, for there is a gash on her lip as if she had tried to bend down her head and avoid the knife blow. The development of the photo of the eyes may, if carefully made, reveal something of this. A PAINFUL SCENE. It was about 2:30 when the coffin was carried out. It bore the inscription, "Jessie months." The hearse was followed by procession was almost two miles long. Listowel a great crowd assembled, and every point of vantage was occupied. At the cemetery the throng was equally dense, and it was with difficulty that the hearse could be forced through to the open grave. The coffin was lowered, and the first spadeful of earth had been thrown on it, and Mr. Hay had again thanked the people for ham, where Detective Murray was working their sympathy, as shown by their presence, when Rev. Dr. Gunner, who stood at the foot of the grave, said: "God grant the people salvation. Mr. Hay, turning to him, said, with

"I won't," replied the venerable old man, "and you can't make me. "If you don't keep quiet," said Mr. Hay, "I will have you arrested." "I don't think you can have me arrested,"

"We will see about that," rejoined Mr. Hay, "and I don't want any more words from you.' There the altercation ended, so far as could be heard, although Dr. Gunner said afterwards in the course of his address that retorted the clergyman.

"the intidel had threatened to knock his teeth down his throat." Dr. Gunner, however, announced his intention of making an address outside the cemetery gates, and thither the crowd went. The speaker took possession of a buggy, making an extempore pulpit of it. They had seen, he said in a quivering voice, a dear girl, once a professing Christian and Reeve Kemp on the line between an attendant on services of the Methodist Maryboro and Mornington, about ten Church, first savagely murdered, and then buried like a dog. (A voice-Shame.) After denouncing the brutal crime and condoling with the parents he announced was an Irish laborer and followed public that they would call a ministers' meeting works. He was on his way to Clinton, he to consider whether they should not have a cemetery which infidels could not desecrate, and he thought if the statement was true that the protection was not sufficient. they should have a vigilance committee to protect their children. THE POST MORTEM. The post mortem examination revealed a severe bruise on the skull, sufficient to that he is in any way concerned in the have produced unconsciousness. The throat was cut from ear to ear; two of the arteries on the left side, the external artery on the right side and the wind pipe were severed. The cuts on the abdomen were the full length and the full breadth of that part of the body. All the organs, external and internal, of the pelvis were gouged out and removed and no trace of them can be found. Death was caused by loss of blood. There was not a drop of blood in the cavities of the heart. No goes to show that until the man with the blood came from the wounds in the lower part of the body, indicating that they had been inflicted after death. THE FINDING OF THE CLOTHES. It is probable that the girl's throat was cut at the first halting place in the swamp,

They were made up in a neat bundle, and all were there but the hat and the shoes and stockings, which were found yesterday in the satchel. The victim was then carried about 40 yards to the place where the body was first discovered. At this spot the murderer further mutilated the body, removing the organs as before mentioned. After covering the body with mess and leaves and concealing other evidences of his crime the inhuman monster turned north through the swamp

AFTER THE CRIMB. The first man who is believed to have seen the stranger afterwards was Mr. J. C. Kidd, who saw him a little after 2 o'clock on the east side of Ballard's pasture field. He crossed to the west side of the field and got over the fence into the racecourse. Mr. Kidd was plowing on the field just over the fence and bid good-day to the man, who replied, though not very cordially. The man then asked for a drink of water and was referred to a pump near by. After drinking, he went on to the toad and proceeded east. Mr. Kidd described him as a man of about 28 or 30 years of age, five feet nine or ten inches tall, and thought he would weigh more than 200 pounds. He was of a swarthy complexion, without moustache or whiskers, and perhaps a week's growth of beard. He wore a decent brownish suit of clothes, the coat being darker than the trousers. FOLLOWING THE CLUE. About hall an hour after this he was seen by Mr. Henry Lestie and his wife as they were driving into town. He was then about a mile east of Listowel, on the boundary between Wallace and Elma townships. Mr. Leslie says he was a stranger in the locality, was dark-complexioned, under six feet in height, and about 200 pounds in weight. The man, whom Mr. Leslie described as a greasylocking fellow, was going straight east. He wore dark checked clothes, and trousers, pretty well work, a seft black felt hat, and looked as if he had not been shaved for some days. This is about the last seen of the man of which there is any authentic record. During all this time the marderer carried a cheap black valise, which contained, as afterwards transpired, the pesticoat which was wrapped about the dead girl's neck. When he emerged from the swamp and passed Kidd and Leslie he had no valise, which was somewhat poszling to the authorities, and a vigorous and thorough search was again instituted yesterday morning, which resulted in finding the missing value by Malachi Alexander. It was concealed in R. R. Hay's field adjoincemetery near Listowel was somewhat de- ing the swamp of death, and but a short distance from where he was seen by Kidd.

discrepancy and IDENTIFIES THE MURDERER ABSOLUTELY, but who, unfortunately, is still at large. The valise, which was evidently stolen at some railway station, contained a woman's bonnet, skirt, two pairs of stockings, on one of which was a letter "N," a pair of shoes and a pair of men's overalls, on which were many bloodstains, though, strange to say, after all the butchery the owner had performed, they were only in small spots. One pair of stockings and the shoes were the missing ones removed from the feet of the murdered garl. Kidd did not notice any bloodstains on his clothing, though he passed within six feet of him. The mutilation of the body did not exhibit any degree of skill, though the Keith, died Oct. 19, aged 13 years and 10 | butcher must have had some knowledge of anatomy, as he evidently knew the position several hundred vehicles, and the funeral of the organs which were removed. DETECTIVE MURRAY NOTIFIED. Mr. Idington sent telegrams to the various railway points in the district, and also notified the Attorney-General's department. There were no Government officers in Toronto when the notification was received, but word was at once sent to Chaton an arson case, instructing him to proceed at once to the scene.

TWO ARRESTS James Fenton, a farmer, reported that he had followed the tramp up toward Drayton, some heat: "You just hold your tongue, and from that point the first haul of the drag-net was made. About 5 o'clock on Sunday T. Flath, constable at Drayton, J. M. Davidson and F. Ward drove into Listowel with a prisoner, who had been arrested just after passing through Moorefield, about sixteen miles off to the northeast. Not one, however, of the persons who had seen the suspect could identify him as the man with the valise. On his arrival here he was surrounded by a large crowd while on the way to the lock up, and the cry "Lynch him" was heard. It secured no sympathy, however, and efter the prisoner had been allowed to collect his thoughts for a time he was questioned as to his movements on Friday. He said he was sixteen miles from the scene of the crime at the time working for a farmer, but he could not say who the farmer was,

The second prisoner came in after 6 o'clock, having been captured by Deputy miles from the scene of the murder. He was an elderly little man, who called himself James Laden, said he said, from Elmira, and took lunch at a house near the Catholic Church at Mackton, thirteen miles distant, on Friday. His story is believed, and he will probably be discharged. While McKay, either from intention or stupidity, can give no satisfactory account of himself, Mr. Idington, the county crown attorney, does not think murder. He still asks the constables to bring in the man with the value, but up to the present time without result. He is, however, piling up evidence against him. The wife of Section Boss Heard, down at Briton, saw him early on Friday morning. and he had the satchel then. She, too. describes him accurately, and is in a position to do so because he got a drink there a little before 11 o'clock. He was a hardlooking character. All of this testimony valige is satisfactorily accounted for no other theory will be entertained.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS MEET. Annual Convention of the Sabbath

and Delaware. The annual meeting of the Sabbath School Association of Westminster and Delaware was held at Kilworth on Friday. Three sessions were held during the day, and the attendance was very large at each. The chair was occupied by the president, George W. Ferguson, Lambeth. An address of welcome was delivered by Rev. T. T. George, pastor of the church, and Mr. Gideon Decker, Westminster, replied. President Ferguson gave the annual address, and his remarks were very cheering and encouraging. A paper relative to Sabbath school work by Mr. Thomas Baty, Westminster, and music by the Littlewood choir, under the leadership of William Baker, completed the morning session. At the election of officers in the afternoon Mr. Adam Nichol, Westminster, was elected president, Mr. Wm. Baker, Littlewood, vice-president, and E.

A number of freight cars were being loaded with grain from the mill elevator, and Wilson was sant to watch the bin from which the cars were being loaded. In try. ing to increase the flow through the spout to the car, the man was sucked into it, and his body plugged up the spout. He was instantly buried under tons of grain and was suffocated.

After the wedding, Morey took Anna to live in a log cabin, which had been deserted by woodchoppers, in the heart of the great forest at Stoneham. The marriage is annulled by the court.

We have had a quail hunt here this week Iwo gents, one from the Free Press office and one from a gun shop somewhere in town, came down here on a hunting excursion, and our own village Nimrod, always ready for a lark, was in good trim to go with them. The "two dogs" also went, just to fish around. The trio were provided, of course, with the very best double-barreled breech-loading shooting irons, and any quantity of ammunition. For two days they traversed forest and farm; went through brush and briar, made enough noise to frighten the whole Chinese Empire, and for all that so far appears, all their game was one solitary quail, and from the profound silence as to the quantity of game put in the bags, it is surmised that the death of the poor little thing was accidental.

PROTECTING THE FISH.

A Joint American and Canadian Report -The Fish on the Great Lakes Decreasing-A Treaty

Expected. WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 .- Two years ago an agreement was reached between Canada and the United States, for the conduct of an investigation of all the fisheries in the waters between or contiguous to these two countries looking, if possible, toward the establishment of uniform methods of regulation for the proper protection of the several fisheries in these waters. The report is now completed and covers the fisheries on the great lakes', the rivers' and the oceans' borders. It is found that in Canada the regulations are more systematic as regards the chain of lakes, and they are more thoroughly carried As a result there is less illegal fishing on Canadian side and the fishermen are more under the control of the Government. Both members of this commission assert that there is no question that the principal food fishes of the lakes have decreased to a greater or less extent in nearly all regions, but just to what extent it is difficult to say until material on hand has been carefully worked up. It is hoped the conclusions of the commission will be embodied in the treaty, looking to the mutual preservation of the fish, and the regulation of fishing operations.

A Critical Outlook for Europe When the Czar Dies.

'Modernizing" the New Testament to Suit Present Conditions,

Allover Europe today the engrossing topic is the critical illness of the Russian Czar and his stricken family. Europe is begining to realize the significance of the fact that the peace keeper of the world is dying. The tendency is to make the gloomiest orecastings of the uncertainties which lie beyond the grave of the Czar. The dying man at Livadia is too vague a personality and his life is too potent an influence on contemporary history for the world to delay discussion in all bearings of the impending tragedy. The press and people of all the capitals of Europe are therefore examining the situation with the gravest concern.

Few undertake thus far to prophesy definite evils. It is generally felt that the simple uncertainty of the situation, with the prevailing feeling of apprehension, is itself calamitous. Perhaps England has but to be a well-considered and settled reason for the greatest anxiety. This policy. country has come to regard the present Czar as one of the "peace at any price" rulers. He was relied on not only to control the inevitable friction between the Russian and British possessions in the East, but also to restrain dangerous manifestations of hatred of England by the French people.

The grief which is finding universal expression in Paris is based upon very different sentiments. France is freely declaring that she is watching by the deathbed of her only friend. She is building no false hopes upon the friendship of the Czarewitch. The impression is strong in Paris and other parts of Europe that the heir to the Russian throne has friendlier sympathies with Emperor William than with the French republic. No tangible evidence in support of this assumption is offered. Indeed, absolute knowledge upon which to base an estimate of the private and political character and tastes of the young man who is soon to be Autocrat of all the Russias is extremely limited. I have talked within a day or two with two or three persons who were much in the society of the Czarewitch during his last visits to England. They discussed the young man in a remarkably candid fashion. They declared that there was strong resemblance in character and disposition, as well as in physical appearance, between him and the Duke of York. This was meant to be complimentary. To anyone of unprejudiced knowledge it is quite the contrary. The Duke of York is, in every sense of the word, a weakling, but this is not of much consequence in the heir to the British throne. It is a world-wide calamity if it is true of the man who will hold the destinies of Russia in his hand.

lasked a few searching questions and was told that the Czarewitch is pleasureloving, easily influenced, and generous to a fault. These admissions were made with the qualification, which will easily be conceded, that they are not fatal defects of character. The young man was on a holiday to England. It was a visit of pleasure, and it was added that he showed no sign of any vicious tastes in England. What impressed his companions most was his passion for mixing incognito with the common people in popular resorts of all kinds.

Personally the Czarewitch is not an impressive figure. He is tall, lanky, has a stoop, and is not firm on his feet. In fact he is inclined to be bandy-legged. His military tastes by no means resemble those of the Kaiser. He is simply an amiable, easy-going, very ordinary young man, whom vast power and responsibility may pessibly develop into a safe, strong ruler. All the public critics of Europe agree that the consequences of his succession will depend, for a long time at least, upon his environment, and therein lies the danger. It is admitted on all sides that the death of the Czar at the present moment will be a far greater calamity than if it had occurred six months ago. The conviction is becoming widespread that the crisis in the far East is sure to precipitate consequences more serious than were dreamed of at the outbreak of hostilities between China and Japan. The impression is so strong that the Chinese Empire is in danger of disintegration that the European agents of that Government are resorting to extraordinary measures to counteract it. The news agency which brings the bulk of news of the war to London received from a member of the Chinese Legation yesterday an implied threat to cut off all cablegrams unless it stopped distributing unfavorable reports of Chinese demestic affairs. This, of course, is in order to facilitate floating a Chinese loan. A Vienna banking house has finally undertaken to do this and it will be offered at various European capitals in a few days. The Rothchilds de-clined to touch it, and other London bankers are still haggling over terms. The fatal illness if not death of the Ameer of Afghanistan adds very seriously to the gravity of the situation in English estimation. English observers see much that is ominous and nothing that is encouraging at the present moment in what is usually referred to as the European situation. But when any of the gloomy croakers is asked what it is he fears he has no definite reply to make.

Moving on the Madists.

An expedition under command of Col. Colville has started for Uganda with the object of effecting a thorough occupation of the Nile provinces. This expedition will march through Unyoro and down the Nile, the garrisons at Wadelai and Lado will make a simultaneous movement, and the Italian forces will advance from Kassala to Goz Rejeb, and will form a junction with the British troops on the trading road to Khartum, while the Egyptian troops will occupy New Dongola. The double aim of the whole movement is to counteract the French advance on the Upper Nile and at the same time to cut off the Mahdists from their source of supplies. These plain indications of an active entente with Italy and the determination to continue the English people know not the judgment of the hold upon Egypt are certain to add to the hold upon Egypt are certain to add to the ill-will of France.

Struggling for Territory.

A Berlin dispatch says: The relations between Berlin and London have been disturbed slightly in the last few weeks. as well as her whole colonial policy, has never been regarded with much favor here, and since her attempt to trick France and Germany in the Anglo-Belgian agreement has been looked on with increasing distrust. It is not quite certain, however, whether the German motive is an independent desire to check England's lust of territory or the purpose of making friends with France. In the Chinese-Japanese negotiaations the Berlin foreign office has given several rebuffs to Lord Rosebery. It opposed the British claims to the Togo territory and encourages the French hopes of expansion towards the basin of the Upper Nile. It also seems determined to keep the English out of Delagoa Bay region. Its present attitude does not seem to be the result of mere temporary friction,

Dr. Goodspeed presented the report, which expressed the reprobation of the convention of the dastardly assault committed on a British subject, Rev. David Reddick, by a mob near the town of Washbrow, Harrison county, Texas; and of the conduct of the authorities in failing to bring the perpetrators of the outrage to justice. It also expressed the hope that the proper authorities of the Dominion would inquire into the case, and take such action as the ends of justice may require. The report was adopted.

Wonderful Instinct of the Birds of the Air.

Dr. Talmage on the Lessons that They Teach Hu manity.

Beautiful thoughts that Should Appeal to the Hearts of All.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 22, 1894.-Rev. Dr. Talmage, who has left India and is now on his homeward journey, selected as the subject for his sermon yesterday through the press, "October Thoughts," his text being Jeremiah viii., 7. "The stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed time; and the turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my

When God would set fast a beautiful thought, he plants it in a tree. When he would put it affoat he fashions it into a fish. When he would have it glide in the air, he moulds it into a bird. My text speaks of four birds of beautiful instinct-England's Eastern and African programme, the stork, of such strong affection that it is allowed familiarly to come, in Holland and Germany, and build its nest over the doorway; the sweet-dispositioned turtledove, mingling in color, white and black, and brown, and ashen, and chestnut; the crane, with voice like the clang of a trumpet; the swallow, swift as a dart shot out of the bow of heaven, falling, mounting, skimming, sailing-four birds started by the prophet 25 centuries ago, yet flying on through the ages, with rousing truth under glossy wing and in the clutch of stout claw. Ilsuppose it may have been this very season of the year-autumn-and the prophet outof-doors, thinking of the impenitence of the people of his day, hears a great cry

I propose so far as God may help me in this sermon carrying out the idea of the text to show that the birds of the air have more sagacity than men. And I begin by particularizing and saying that they mingle music with their work. The most serious undertaking of a bird's life is this annual fight southward. Naturalists tell us that they arrive thin and weary, and plumage ruffled, and yet they go singing all the way; the ground, the lower line of the music, the sky, the upper line of the music, themselves the notes scattered up and down between. I suppose their song gives elasticity to their wing and helps on with the journey, dwindling 1,000 miles into 400. Would God that we were as wise as they in mingling Christian song with our every-day work! I bolieve there is such a thing as taking the Saturday Was a Business Day With pitch of Christian devotion in the morning and keeping it all the day. I think we might take some of the dullest, heaviest, most disagreeable work of life and set it to the tune of "Antiech," or "Mount Pisgah."

It is a good sign when you hear a workman whistle. It is a better sign when you hear him hum a roundelay. It is still a better sign when you hear him sing the words of Isaac Watts or Charles Wesley. A violin corded and strung, if something accidentally strike it, makes music, and I suppose there is such a thing as having our hearts so attuned by divine grace, that even the rough collisions of life will make a heavenly vibration. I do not believe that the power of Christian song has yet been fully tried. I believe that if you could roll the "Old Hundred" doxology through the street it would put an end to any panic! I believe that the discords, and the sorrows, and the sine of the world are to be swept out by heaven-born hallelujahs. Some one asked Haydn, the celebrated musician, why he always composed such cheerful music. "Why," he said, I can't do otherwise. When I think of God, my soul is so full of joy that the notes leap and dance from my pen.'

Children of the heavenly King, As ye journey, sweetly sing—sing your Savior's worthy praise, Glorious in his works and ways. Ye all traveling home to God, In the way your fathers trod; They are happy now, and we Soon their happiness shall see.

The Church of God never will be a triamphant church until it becomes a singing

I go further, and remark that the birds of the air are wiser than we, in the fact that in their migration they fly very high. Would to God that we were as wise as the stork and crane in our flight heavenward. We fly so low that we are within easy range of the world, the flesh, and the devil. We are brought down by temptation that ought not to come within a mile of reaching us. On for some of the faith of George Muller, of England, and Alfred Cockman, once of the church militant, now of the church triumphant! So poor is the type of piety in the Church of God now, that men actually caricature the idea that there is any such a thing as a higher life. Moles never did believe in eagles. But, my brethren, because we have not reached these heights ourselves, shall we deride the fact that there are such heights? A man once talking to Brune!, the famous engineer, about the length of the railroad from London to Bristol, the engineer said, 'It is very great. We shall have, after a while, a steamer running from England to New York." They laughed him to seern; but we have gone so far now that we have ceased to laugh at anything as impossible for human achievement. Then, I ask, is anything impossible for the Lord? I do not believe that God exhausted all his grace in Paul, and Latimer and Edward Payson, I believe there are higher points of Christian attainment to be reached in the future ages of the Christian world. Oh for a higher flight in the Christian life, the stork and the crane in their migration teaching us the lesson !

Dear Lord, and shall we ever live, At this poor dying rate— Our love so faint, so cold to thee,

And thine to us so great? Again, I remark that the birds of the air are wiser than we, because they know when to start. If you should go out new and shout, "Stop, storks and cranes, don't be in a hurry !" they would say, "No, we cannot stop; last night we heard the roaring in the woods bidding us away, and the shrill flute of the north wind has sounded the retreat. We must go. We must go." Se they gather themselves into companies, and turning not aside for storm or mountain men to hold up passengers on the Detroit, top or shock of musketry, over land and sea straight as an arrow to the mark they go. And if you come out this morning with Reuben Reynolds, of Grand Rapids, were sack of corn and throw it in the fields and attacked by the men, as was Father try to get them to stop they are so far up O'Connor, of Grand Rapids. The crooks they would hardly see it. They are on were knocked down, and although one of their way south. You could not stop them. them attempted to shoot the drammer, Oh, that we were as wise about the best time to start for God and heaven! We say, "Wait until it is a little later in the season of mercy. Wait until some of these green leaves of hope are all dried up and have been scattered. Wait until next year." After a while we start and it is too late and we perish in the way when God's wrath is kindled but a little. You know exceptional cases where birds are started too late, and in the morning you have found them dead on the snow. there are those who have perished half way between the world and Christ. They waited until the last sickness, when the mind was gone, or they were on the express train going at 40 miles an hour, and they came to the bridge and the "draw was up" and they went down. How long to repent and pray? Two seconds! To do the work of lifetime and to prepare for the vast of sin. You feel it today. You are not happy. I look into your face, and I know you are not happy. Oh that you would go away into the warm heart of God's mercy. The southern grove, redolent with magnolia and cactus, never waited for northern flocks as God has waited for you, saying. "I have loved thee with an everlasting love. Come unto me, all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you, rest. Another frost is bidding you away-it is the frost of sorrow. Where do you live now? "Oh," you say, "I have moved." Why did you move? You say, "I don't want as large a house now as formerly. Why do you not want as large a house! You say, "My family is not so large." Where have they gone to? Eternity! Your mind goes back through that last sickness, and through the most supernatural effort to keep life, and through those prayers that seemed unavailing, and through that kiss which received no response because the lips were lifeless, and I hear the bells tolling and I hear the hearts breaking-while I speak, I hear them break. A heart! Another heart!

Alone! alone! alone! This world, which in your girlhood and boyhood was sunshine, is cold now, and oh ! weary dove, you fly around the world as though you would like to stay, when the wind and the frost and the blackening clouds would bid you away into the heart of an all-comforting God. Oh, I have noticed again and again what a botch this world makes of it when it tries to comfort a soul in trouble ! It says: "Don't cry!" How can we help crying when the heart's treasures are scattered, and father is gone, and mother is gone, and companions are gone, and the child is gone, and everything seems gone ? It is no comfort to tell a man not to cry. The world comes up and says, "Oh, it is only the body of your loved one that you have put in the ground! But there is no comfort in that. The body is precious. Shall we never put our hand in that hand again, and shall we never see that sweet face again? Away with your heartlessness, oh world! But come, Jesus! and tell us that when the tears fall they fall into God's bottle; that the dear bodies of our loved ones shall rise radiant in the resurrection; and all the breakings down here shall be liftings up there, and "they shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe all tears from their eyes."

Start for heaven and take your children with you. Come thou and all thy house into the ark. Tell your little ones that there are realms of balm and sweetness for them. all those who fly in the right direction. Swifter than eagle's stroke, put out for heaven. Like the crane or the stork, stop not night nor day until you find the right place for stopping. Seated today in Christian service, will you be seated in the same glorious service when the heavens have passed away with a great noise, and the elements have melted with fervent heat and the redeemed are gathered around the Tyler established four new records, while Porter not only made six new ones, but he lowered the class A mile record, flying start, from 1:58 1-5, made by Allen, at Springfield, Sept. 5, to 1:52 3-5. McDustee and Riverside Smith established new tandem records for the third and half. Nat Butler rode a twelfth of a mile in :9 1-5. In Harry Tyler's trial for the half-mile flystart he did the quarter in :25 2 5, third in :34 2-5, and the haf in :52 1-5, the last two being new records. On the trial for the two-thirds mile standing start his time was as follows: Quarter, :32 2-5; third, :41 1-5; half, :59. The best previous time for the half was 1 minute 2-5 second, held by Davidson. For the half mile standing start his time was: Quarter, :30 2-5; third, $39 2-5; half, :57. HAMILTON NOT IN IT. The London Rugby Football Club, besides winning from the junior Hamilton team here on Saturday sent their strong intermediate team to the Ambitious City to show the natives how they could kick the pigskin. The Londoners were met at the station, welcomed by the home team and driven to the football grounds. There they became somewhat timid. A number of sports met them and with lots of money in their hands, wanted to wager any amount at the rate of 2 to 1 on the home team. They couldn't be beaten by anything from the Forest City. The Londor club were not inclined to be reckless- , the contrary, they felt like playing football, and from the time of the kickoff went in to win. Win they did, and without any over-exertion. In the first half for the visitors Crawford and Reid each secured a touch-down, and the home team was forced to rouge twice, making a score of 10. Hamilton, on the contrary, was presented with a goose-egg, a big one, too, that was not within the hatching line. The second half for London was marked by a run of 75 yards and a touch down by Capt. Pope, while Burns, of Hamilton, succeeded in kicking the ball 70 yards, and securing four points, making the results, London, 14; Hamilton, 4. The kick by Burns was one of the longest ever made on a Canadian football field. The game was marked by many notable features-London's combination playing, its scrimmage work, the playing of the wings, half-backs, and "Bob" Lind at quarter. The London team comprised:

Back-Niven. Half-backs-Walker, Pope and Reid. Quarter-back-Lind.

Forwards-Pumphrey, Stringer, Minhinnick.

Right wings - A, and G. Sippi and Gillespie. Left wings-Evans, Crawford and Mills

The game was officered by Messrs. Lebatt (Hamilton), and Little (London), as, touch judges; Geo. Sayers (London) and McKenzie (Hamilton) as goal judges, and Casey Wood (Hamilton) as referee.

LONDON WINS THE JUNIOR GAME. Two games from Hamilton in one day is not a bad record for London football players. London went to Hamilton on Saturday and won the intermediate game, and the Hamilton junior team here and the London juniors kindly taught them the game and allowed them to carry home three whole points. The game in London was played in weather that was all that could be desired by players or onlookers. For the most part it was played in the vicinity of London's 25-yard line, and the pigskin alternated between that point and the goal line, except when three or four of Hamilton's most able-bodied players were vigorously lying on the top of it to keep it from rolling away. The game was also played under protest, Hamilton claiming that such players as Macbeth and Beltz were over the age of 20, the junior limit. While the London players did not deny the allegation they looked at the able-bodied and strong-lunged Hamiltonians, and wondered how often several of them had voted. In the first half Hamilton went in to win, and London was forced to rouge twice-two points for Hamilton, London retaliated by scoring a touch-down, which was converted into a goal by Beltz-six points for London. The second haif was a succession of wicked tackles, hot scrimmages and dribbling There was hardly a clear run of 25 yards during the whole of the half, and with the exception of a few minutes before the call of time the ball was almost wholly within London's 25 yard line. This nearness to the goal line resulted in a rouge and a try, which counted five points more for London, or eleven in all. Then the ball went dawn the field for a few moments into Hamilton's territory-a rouge resulted just as time was called.

The score: London 11, Hamilton 3. The referee was Mr. Alex. McDonald, of Petrolea, who apparently knows his business. Dr. Jento was London's goal judge, nd Oliver Stockton Hamilton's

ALIX AND DIRECTUM.

Boston, Oct. 21 .- The long-looked-for battle between Alix and Directum took place yesterday afternoon and Alix easily defeated Directum. While the race was more or less disappointing in its character in the premature withdrawal of Directum, still the result was no surprise to those who were capable of judging critically the respective work and action of the two horses. The condition of the track and weather could not have been more perfect. A bright, cloudless sky, mild weather and no wind served to bring out a crowd that numbered fully 15,000, In drawing for position Alix secured the pole, thus still further increasing her chances of winning in the minds of her admirers. It took but one good scoring to get a good send-off, Alix having her nose but slightly in the lead. To the first turn she gradually left Directum, until at offset the methods said to be employed by the quarter there was a good three lengths between them. Just after getting the word Directum offered to pace, but was quickly gotten under control, and big demonstration. It is the intention to settled down to steady work. He hold a general mass meeting at South park could not shorten the gap that Alix and form a parade and pass through the had opened up, and three lengths in the principal streets, more particularly the rear he followed her to the half mile. After streets on which the prominent mills are passing the upper turn and coming into the stretch Directum appeared to be closing up on the leader. He gained but little, however, and as they came down the stretch Alix had a lead of nearly five lengths, ished in a jog in 2:09.

Directum in the rear so far that he was never in the race during the heat. At the quarter she led the stallion by five lengths, and when the half was passed the mare was eight lengths ahead. After passing the three-quarters Alix was so far in the lead that there were some fears of a distance for Directum, but McDowell kindly pulled up, and Alix finished as she pleased with Directum six lengths behind her. Time, 2:143. It was plain to be seen that Directum was no match for the turf queen, and that something was wrong with him. After the horses had gone to the stable there were rumors that Directum hrd gone lame and sore, and that he would be withdrawn, This was soon confirmed by an announcement by the starter. The judges had a competent veterinary examine Directum, and found that he was utterly unfit to continue the race. To offset the disappointment of the crowd, Mr. Salisbury had offered to send Alix for a very fast mile. This in a measure satisfied the throng, but there was great regret that Directum was unable to finish out his day's After a little while "Hod" Nelson came out with a runner to act as pacemaker to the queen. Twice the mare came to the wire, but McDowell was not ready. The third time she was off like a bird and before she got to the quarter pole the runner was three lengths in the rear. He was never able to get any nearer. Alix trotted without a skip, making the quarter in 324, half in 1:033. three-quarters in 1:37 and the mile in 2:074. This broke the Mystic Park track record of 2:084 held by Nancy Hanks, and closed the racing for the

IN A DENSE FOG.

One of the Hudson River Floating Palaces Strikes a Rock.

Her 150 Passengers Safely Landed-

The Boat Slides Off at High Tide. NEW YORK, Oct. 21 .- Dense banks of eg which settled down over the river and harbor in the vicinity of New York this morning were directly responsible for many accidents to shipping and river craft, and one accident that came very near resulting in serious loss of life and property. The big side-wheel Hudson River steamboat Drew, of the l'eople's Line, ran ashore at Washington Point, about half mile this side of Spuyten Duyvil, this morning while on its way to this city from Albany. The Drew, carrying about 150 passengers, left Albany at 8 o'clock Saturday night. From West Point to a point off Riverdale the fog was so dense that an object could not be discerned ten feet off in any direction. The steamer anchored off Riverdale until a rift in the fog bank gave her a chance to make a little headway. In the uncertain light of the morning and through the heavy fog the captain and lookeuts mistook Washington Point for Tubby's Hook, where the water is of good depth and all unconscious of the great danger into which the steamer was running the captain rang for increased speed. The Drew had proceeded only a short distance after the giving of this order when it was discovered that she was in danger of running ashore. The engines were then immediately reversed, but it was too late, the long flat bottom of the Drew striking on the ledge of smooth rock which juts into the river at this point. She ran up on this ledge about 40 feet and then came to a dead stop.

Some of the sleeping passengers were thrown out of their berths, but there was no panic. The jar to those who were up and on deck was not severe, but some people were badly frightened. The fears of the timid ones were speedily allayed, however, when the captain explained that the vessel was not badly damaged. The crew rigged up a long gang plank and securing one end to the forward deck of the steamer, fastened the other end to the rocks on shore. Almost all the passengers went ashore by this means and proceeded to the cable road at Amsterdame avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street, where they took the cars for their destinations. The steamer stuck on the rocks until high tide at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour the steamer's engines were started up and she slid of the rocks into deep water.

The Drew has no keel, her bottom being perfectly flat. It is due to this fact that she was not damaged to any great extent.

PASSED AWAY.

Rev. J. Allister Murray, Pastor of St. Andrew's, is Dead,

After a Lingering Illness - Touching Scene in His Church-Biographical Sketch of the Deceased-A Long Service in the Ministry.

Rev. J. Allister Murray, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, died at 8:30 o'clock last evening, aged 60 years. It is now a month since he was compelled to take to the bed from which he never rose. To him, however, death comes as relief from protracted suffering. He had been a stranger to robust health during the latter part of his life. His loving congregation did everything to lighten the burdens of his important charge, which had lately been shared by an assistant. But long vacations and the loving care of relatives and friends could not overcome the constitutional ailment which afflicted him nor strengthen the frame upon which it preyed. Some weeks ago an irregular respiration of the heart set in and the physicians knew that the case was beyond human skill. The patient continued to sink and for days hovered between live and death in a state of semi-consciousness. Bulletins as to his condition were issued regularly to meet the flood of inquiries; which poured in incessantly. Yesterday afternoon his mind was clearer than usual and he bade the members of his family goodbye, knowing that his end was near. He remained conscious, though speechless, until death came. His end was apparently painless and peaceful. Around him were gathered his family, his faithful attendants, and Messrs. A. M. Gunn and John McMillan, old friends and parishioners.

The pulpit of St. Andrew's last evening was occupied by Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto. At the close of a powerful sermon he quoted the words of the hymn: "Part of the host have crossed the flood,

And part are crossing now,' which applied to the then dying divine. Just before the benediction a message announced Mr. Murray's death in the adoining manse. Dr. Milligan conveyed the information to the congregation with a few fervent and touching allusions to the deceased, which brought tears to the eyes of many and sadness to the hearts of all.

James Allister Murray was born at Big Meadows' Farm, Roger Hill, county of Picton, N. S. His father was a Scottish Highlander from Sutherlandshire, and his mother was a native of the parish of Humbie. His parents emigrated from Endinburgh to Nova Scotia early in the present century. The subject of the present sketch was the youngest of twelve children, and was born in 1834. Mr. Murray had the claims of the Christian ministry early impressed upon his mind by his parents, and his early education was directed accordingly. He studied for some three years at a grammar school in Tatamagouche under the able superintendence of the late John Currie, famous as an expert in teaching. Mr. Murray afterwards studied at the celebrated Pictou Academy, and after teaching at Salt Spring, Pictor county, for three years entered Presbyterian College at West River, Picton, where he took a full course, and after an extra course at the Free Church College, Halifax, was licensed to preach in 1857 by the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island. After laboring for a short time in the home mission field of Nova Scotia, he received, almost simultaneously, four calls to important charges, viz., Newport, Maitland, Economy and Annapolis. Having referred decision as to acceptance of call to the Preabytery of Halifax, Mr. Murray was ordained pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Annapolis Royal in 1857. This is interesting from the fact of its being the origin of the Presbyterian congregation in that beautiful old town. After three years' successful labor in his first charge, he accepted a call to the congrega-tion of St. Luke's Church, Bathurst, N. B., in connection with the Church of Scotland. He subsequently removed to Ontario and accepted a call to St. Andrew's Church, Mount Forest, from which he was called to St. Andrew's Church, Lindsay, and accepted the same. During his ministry at Lindsay the great union of all the Presbyterian bodies in the Dominion took place, and being a strong advocate of union Mr. Murray resigned his charge in order to promote the union of the local congregations. Within a short time he was called to St. Andrew's Church, Niagara Falls, St. Andrew's Hamilton, and St. Andrew's, London. This was in 1875, and Mr. Murray accepted the latter, which is one of the most eligible congregations in the Dominion. In 1861 Mr. Murray was married to Georgina, second daughter of the late William O. Smith, of St. John, N. B., who still survives him, as well as two sons-Cyril Claude and Clarence Hubert-both of whom reside at home. Dr. Wm. Murray, the eldest son, died about a year ago in the Western States, where he had just started a most promising professional career. Several children died at early ages. Mr. Murray leaves two brothers, Rev. Dr.

Island. He also leaves two sisters in the Maritime Provinces. As to the personal qualities of deceased little need be said. They were impressed upon all who came within the range of his influence. He was a man of unusual ability and strong character. His naturally vigorous mind was cultivated and graced by ripe scholarship and profound reflection, and as a pulpit orator he ranked among the highest in the denomination. The prosperity of St. Andrew's under his charge, and the devotion he inspired in his flock were testimonies to his worth and popularity as a pastor as well as preacher. By his death the congregation suffers an almost irreparable loss, the Presbytery of London is deprived of a moving spirit in counsel and action, and the church in Canada one of its brightest ornaments.

MOUNT FOREST, Oct. 21 .- An attempt was made about two miles east of here to wreck the C. P. R. passenger train due here at 9:30. A tie was thrown across the track, but no serious result occurred, except to the engine. No clue to the desperadoes. Railway Rate War.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 .- A war of passengers' commissions and possibly one of open rates also is inevitable between the western railroads and the Canadian Pacific and "Soo" lines. Nothing came of the two days' conference in New York last week between the Advisory Board of the Western Passenger Association and the representatives of the Canadian lines, and in order to prepare for developments.

An Arrest Made! -- Discovery of the Murdered Girl's Bidden Clothing and the Pcol Where the Assassin Washed His Hands.

LISTOWEL, Ont., Oct. 21 .- The excitement here over the brutal murder of Miss Jessie Keith on Friday, is intense. In spite of the fact that search parties are out in every direction no trace of the tramp who is suspected of being the perpetrator of the awful deed has been found

The jury were sworn in at the swamp. After viewing the body of the unfortunate girl and having examined some pools of blood distant from the body about five to eight rods and where the surroundings gave strong evidence of a desperate struggle. the jurymen adjourned to the residence of Mr. Keith, whither the remains were then

Evidence was then given by the section men, Mr. and Mrs. Keith, the father and mother of deceased, and others, nothing having been elicited, however, throwing any light or giving any information as to the peretrator of this most brutal crime. The Listowel hall was appointed a place to meet on Friday, Oct. 26, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of waiting developments and obtaining further information as to the perpetrator of this terrible outrage. Reports from one of the searching parties returned from the vicinity of Arthur, would seem to indicate that the guilty party had traveled in that direction. Parties are still scouring the country with the view of obtaining some more direct clue. Nothing definite is obtainable at present, except that a tramp was seen at 12 o'clock about a half a mile distant from the spot south, and again on the north at about 2 o'clock, having apparently came from the spot where the body was found

IN MEMORIAM.

A tribute to the late Rev. James Allister

Murray, for nineteen years pestor of St. Andrew's Church, London, Ont., born July &, 1834, died Oct. 21, 1894. Know ye not in Israel today, A prince and great man has pass'd away; That one who taught the Truth of God, As marble lies, or earthly clod? His subtle mind, endowed with might, With logic keen and reason bright, Link'd with his soul together soar To realms where death is known no more. His silvery tongue, like magic wand, Could hold an audience at command; Now still in death no more can preach, By eloquence of thought or speech. Yet, being dead, as Scriptures tell, He speaks most powerful and well; For never can deed, word or thought Be counted as a thing of nought. The voice that stoke in accents mild To saint or sinner, man or child, That sought to comfort those in grief, To speak a word to give relief, To cheer the serrowing and distressed. By sin or shame or want oppressed. Who went about like One of old, Urging the wanderers to the fold; His voice we may no longer hear. For mute he lies and dumb to cheer: Yet while our memory holds her sway Its tones can never pass away. A life-long servant of the Lord, A life-long student of His Word, A life long leader in His cause,

A life-long teacher of His laws. Summoned, he left his loved employ, The Master's call he heard with joy; His nobler self thus passed away Leaving its tenement of clay, But still he lives in mind and heart: Absent, we feel an inward smart, Yet bow with reverence to the rod, Knowing the absent is with God. -GEO. W. ARMSTRONG, London.

-Yesterday afternoon Mrs. W. H. Henerson was presented on behalf of the Colborne Street Church Sabbath School with a beautiful teachers' Bible and a highly complimentary address on the eve of her leaving London for Prescott. Miss Maud Rigsby read the address and Miss Knapp made the presentation. The school and church will sustain a great loss in the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson from London. and the best wishes of a host of friends follow them to their new home.

-Dr. Geo. C. Davis will be absent from his office for a couple of days. He left this ofternoon with Mr. C. Whetlauffer, a graduate of his establishment, for Buffalo, to assist in the inauguration of Mr. Whetlauffer on the staff of the Dental College in that city. On Saturday evening Dr. Davis entertained a few of the personal friends of Mr. Whetlauffer to dinner-Mr. D. Regan in the chair. A pleasant time was spent, but all regret the departure of "Connie."

-Not a few readers of the ADVERTISER will be pained to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. McKay, the young wife of Rev. Rowland R. McKay, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Ottawa, The sad event took place Saturday and was the result of a very short illness, Mrs. McKay's husband being about to start for the Baptist convention at St. Thomas when it became evident that his wife's illness was of a more serious character than at first supposed. | sion. The remains will be buried in Ottawa today.

TANGLED -

Arthur, thinking they will wait — and wait. Seeing you with that girl — the world calls her good-looking, I believe - I grew into at awful fright for your sake. It would be most disastrous for you to marry beneath your rank - a Bohun never holds up his head afterwards, if he does that; and I thought I ought to speak a word of warning to you. You must take a suitable wife when you do marry - one fitted to mate with the future Sir Arthur Bohun."

"To mate with plain Arthur Bohun. To call me the future Sir Arthur is stretching possibility very wide indeed, madam," he added, laughing.

"Not at all. You will as surely succeed Look at that as that I am telling you so. Look at that puny James Bohun! A few years at most will see the last of him."

"I hope not, for his father's sake. Any way, he may live long enough to marry and leave children behind him. Is your lecture et an end, madam?" he jestingly concluded. "If so, perhaps you may as well leave me to get my coat on, or I shall have to keep din-

"I have another word," said madam;
"your coat can wait. Miss Dallory dines here."
"Miss Dallory! I thought she was in Switzerland. Did she come over in a balloon to dine with us?" "She is staying with her brother Frank. 1 and Matilda called at Ham Court just now and brought her with us." "Did you bring him also?" "I did not see him; they said he was not in the way. But now why do I mention "As a bit of gossip for me, I suppose. It's very good of you. My coat and dinner can certainly wait." "I have brought Miss Dallory here for "I have brought miss Donn," was the rejoin-your sake, Arthur Bohun," was the rejoin-is the young lady you will do well to think of as your future wife." Madam went out of the room with much stately rustle, and swept downstairs.

Another minute, and the door opened again to admit Richard North. Captain Bohun had not progressed further in dressing, or stirred from his place, but was leaning against the window-frame, whistling softly. "Madam's in a way, is she not?" began Richard, in low tones. "My window was open, Arthur, and I was obliged to catch a word here and there. I made all kinds of noises, but you did not take the hint." "She didn't; and I would as soon you heard as not," was Captain Bohun's answer.

"You are ready, I see, Dick."

"The course of true love never did run smooth, you know," said Richard, laughing. "And never will. Whenever I read of the old patriarchal days, in which a man had only to fix on a wife and bring her home to his tent; and look on all that has to be considered in these - money, suitability of family, settlements - I wonder whether it can be the same world. Madam need not lear that I have any chance of marrying." 'Or you wouldn't long be a bachelor?"

"I don't know about that."
"You don't know! Why, you do know, and so do I. I've seen how it is for some weeks now, Arthur."

Seen what? Richard smiled,

"Seen what?"
"How it is between you and Ellon Adair." "You think you have?"
"Think! You love her do

Arthur Bohun put down the hair-brush gently, and moved to take up his coat. Dick, old fellow, whether it will come to anything between us or not, I cannot tell," he said, his voice strangely deep, his brow flushing with emotion, "but I shall never care for any one else as I care for her."

"Then secure her," answered Dick.
"I might be tempted to do it, in spite of my mother, had I the wherewithal to set up a home: but I haven't.

"You have more than double what Rane 'Rane and Bessy! But Bessy is one in a thousand. I couldn't ask a wife to come home to me on that." "Just as you think well, of course. Take care, though, you don't get her snapped up. I should fear it, if it were my case. Ellen Adair is the loveliest girl I ever saw, and I think her the sweetest. I could only look at her as we sat in Mrs. Cumberland's room this morning. Other men will be finding it out, Arthur, if they have not already done

Arthur never answered. He had gone back to his former past, and was leaning against the window-frame, looking out dreamily. "Madam objects, I presume?" "I presume she would, if I put it to her," assented Arthur, as if the proposition admitted of no dispute.

'I don't see why she should do so, or you, "I'm afraid, Dick, we Bohuns have our full share of family pride."

"But Mr. Adair is, no doubt, a gentle-"Oh yes. That is, not in trade," added Arthur, carelessly.

'Weil, a gentleman is a gentleman," said Richard. "Of course. But I take it for granted that he holds no position in the world. And we Bohuns, you know -Arthur stopped. Richard North laughed. "You Bohuns would like to mate only with position. A daughter, for example, of the Lord-Lieutenant of the county."

"Exactly," assented Arthur, echoing the laugh, but very much in earnest for all that. "Madam has been recommending Miss Dallory to my notice. "Who?" cried Richard, rather sharply.

"Miss Dallory. "You might do worse," observed Richard,

after a pause.
"No doubt of that. She is downstairs."
"Who is downstairs?"

"She. So madam has just informed me."

"There's the gong."
"And be hanged to it!" returned Arthur, getting into his coat. "I wish to goodness be far advanced in consumption. madam did not give us the trouble of putting on dinner dress every day! Neither are engertainments seemly in your house during these troubled times. What's more, I don't see how they will be paid for, if the trouble continues," can-didly spoke Richard. "Madam must be uncommonly sanguine to expect it. "Or careless," returned Arthur Behun.

"Dick, my friend, it's a bad sign when a man has no good word to give his mother." That every grain of filial affection had long gone out of his breast and been replaced by a feeling akin to shame and contempt, Arthur Behun was only too conpcious of. He strove to be dutiful; but it was at times a hard task. Living under the same roof as his mother, her sins against manners and good feeling were brought under his notice perpetually; he was more sensitively alive to them than even others and recovered from the long sickness that followed on his wound, Dallory Hall had been his ostensible home. Latterly he had made it really so; for Dallory Ham connate to really so; for ballory ham contained an attraction from which he could not tear himself. Ellen Adair had his heart's best love; and, far from her he could not wander. A pure, ardent love, honerable men but experies his honorable man, but swaying his every action with its power. Sir Nash Bohun invited him in vain. His aunt, Miss Bohun, with whom he was a great favorite, wondered why he went so rarely to see her; or, when he did go, made his visit a flying one. Arthur Bohun possessed a few hundreds a year, about four; just enough to keep him as a gentleman; and he had none of the bad habits that run away with young men's money. Miss Bohun would leave him fairly well off when she died; so he was at ease as to the future, One day, after he had been at Dallory Hall for a few months, he put a hundred-pound bank-note into Richard North's hands.

"What is this for!" questioned Richard.
Arthur told him. The embarrassments in the Hall's financial department, caused by madam, were lightly touched on; this was Arthur's contribution towards his own share of the housekeeping. In the surprise of the moment. Richard North's spirit rose, and fought against it. Arthur quietly persisted.

"As long as I pitch my tent amongst you here, I shall hand over this sum every six months. To you, Dick; there's no one else to be trusted with it. If I gave it to Bessy, she would be safe to speak about it, and it might be wiled out of her."

"I never heard such nonsense in my life," cried Richard. "You will not get me to take it. I wouldn't countenance anything of the

"Yes, you will, Dick. You wouldn't like me to take up my abode at the Dallory Arms. I declare on my honor I shall do so, if I am forced to be as a guest at the Hall." (To be Continued.)

TRUE TO EACH OTHER.

Husband and Wife Meet After Twenty Years' Separation.

Each Had Believed the Other Dead-A Glad Reunion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 .- Edward Sheffield, of Melbourne, Australia, and Ellen, his wife, of Helena, Mont., met in the law offices of Richard V. Boyd, 18 Wall street, Thursday night for the first time in twenty years. Each had believed the other dead, but each had remained faithful. The man had become bronzed, burly and bearded since his wife had seen him and she had grown plump and comely, with her 40

This romance was begun nearly a quarter of a century ago in Southampton, England. Sheffield was a bluff and honest young seaman, the capain of a ship. His home was in Dover, but his ship loaded at Southampton once, and there he met pretty Ellen Marshall. She was a bright-eyed, rosy young girl, fulled good spirits, and Sheffield loved her and told her so.

But the course of true love did not run smooth for Edward Sheffield even in his courtship days. William Porter was a young merchant of Southampton, and he, too, loved pretty Ellen Marshall. He proved a hard-fighting rival and had more to offer than did the sailor man, for his business was prosperous. But in the end the gruff sailor won the victory and the girl. Edward and Ellen were married and set up a little home, and when Edward was away on voyages his young wife waited and worried. She always feared that disaster would overtake him, and sure enough disaster did.

They had been married about two years when Edward's ship was chartered for Brazil. It was a long voyage and the wife was nearly heartbroken. But Edward was full of grit. He cheered his wife as best he could, feeling sick at heart himse f, and sailed away. But a storm struck the vessel and wrecked it, The sailors took small boats and all were lost. The captain stuck to the wreck and was saved. He clung for days to the wave-washed hulk, calling upon heaven for help, till a passing schooner hove to and took him aboard. He was landed friendless and penniless on the South American coast. He had terrible experiences of want and hunger. Meantime we must live, so he turned his hand to any sort of work he could find in the wretched South American towns where fate had cast him. He saved what he could, and after years scraped together enough to take him home, only to find that his wife had gone. Edward inquired of his oldtime rival and Porter told him maliciously that Mrs. Sheffield had gone off to America with another man. Edward could not believe it at first, but Porter brought proofs. The young man left at once for Australia. He bought a small ranch near Melbourne and took to sheep farming. Success was slow but sure. He became moderately rich. But he never married, though he heard his wife was dead. While going through his old sea chest some months ago Sheffield found memoranda concerning 500 acres of land in Montana, which he bought for a song 25 years He wrote to Clive Pritchard, a London lawyer, to look the matter up and see if the land was worth anything. Pritchard wrote to Lawyer Boyd, of this city, and he communicated with a lawyer in Helena, which was near the land in question. The reply was that a Mrs. Sheffield had shown deeds for the lands and sold most of the acres at a high price, as silver had been found in several places. Mrs. Sheffield was a widow, the Helena lawyer reported, and was living at Helena.

The rest came about quite naturally. Mrs. Sheffield was communicated with. She wrote that she had waited years at home until perfectly satisfied that her husband was dead.

News of the shipwreck had reached Southampton. Then she took the deeds for the Montana lands and came to America to see what she could sell them for. She was amazed to find herself rich. As for the story that she had run away with another man, that was a whole-cloth fabrication of Porter's. She had been faithful to her husband's memory.

Husband and wife so long parted hastened to unite their lives once more. It was decided to settle in Montana, and Sheffield sold his Australian ranch and crossed the water and Mrs. Sheffield came on east to meet him. The first interview, in Mr. Boyd's Wall street office, was a very brief one. They started west at once.

The Huntsmen's Run. The regular weekly run of the London Hunt Club was held on Saturday afternoon, but the turnout of red-coated hunters was somewhat small owing to the warm weather. The start was made at the kennels at 4 o'clock, with Mr. Adam Beck, master, in charge. The course taken was south on the Proof Line to the farm of Mr. Charles Coombs, and then west over the properties of Messrs. Styles, O'Brien, Cameron, Springetts, Fisher, Ward and Brown. "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy Saved John Weir's Life,"

May be seen in large letters on the covers of the horses that precede the handsome Royal Crown Remedy wagon at Toronto and Western Fairs. To a Globe reporter, Mr. Weir said: "This is a most marvelous cure. I became pale as a corpse; my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head; my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my limbs were completely swoolen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All M. Weir has told you is true. At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of $4 pounds; and I fully believe that if we had been one day later in getting Williams' Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to-day. So it may well be said 'Williams' Royal Crown Remedy saved John Weir's life. The best druggists keep Royal Crown Remedy, but if your druggist does not, remit direct to Isaac Williams Company. Gartsbore, George White and J. B. Kilgour, of New York, formerly of this city. Roland Reed Tonight.

Roland Reed appears at the Grand to night. The Toronto Mail of Friday last has the following criticism of "The Politician," the play to be produced: Roland Reed appeared at the Grand last night in the funniest farce he has ever presented, and the "fattiest" role he has ever assumed. He is breezy and volatile and unctuous, and there is a smack of naturalness about all the delightful things he says. Miss Isadore Rush, as the 20th century maiden, Cleopatra Sturgess, supplies the raison d'etre of the sub-title, "The Woman's Plank," She wears beautiful gowns of masculina cut, and is exquisitely mannish in all things, and the plot of the piece rests on Limber's efforts to keep the woman suffragist solid by making love to her. Notwithstanding the fact that General Limber is a crook and Cleopatra is lovely, it is a tribute to Mr. Reed's magnetism that everyone is delighted when she decides to marry him. Shots from Wolseley Barracks.

The soldiers at Wolseley Barracks have got well settled down after their long camp at Levis, and are glad of it. They have not got "that tired feeling" now, and are in trim to do anything in the line of work, except sawing wood. Another inspection by Major General Sir Ivor Herbert is expeated, and the troops will turn out today, order of Lieut. Col. Smith, showing will be made, and the battalion will no doubt again win the admiration of Pre, Harry Lane, of Woodstock, formerly

Moore is still confined in the hospital at the citadel, Quebec, and will be unable to return to London for a month. Capt. Hemming, the successor of Capt.
