PATTI'S POPULARITY.

London, July 7.-Madame Patti's last appearance at the Covent Garden Theater created a furore. Among those attending were the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Greece, and the Crown Princess of Denmark. They heartily applauded the singer. The diva will reappear in 1896.

SARA'S NEW DEPARTURE.

London, July 7.-Under the management of Henry Abbey, Sara Bernhardt has made a new departure in touring the British provinces. Since the close of her London engagement she has been doing the outside towns in a special car train of the Midland Railway. Her season ends tonight at Manchester. The innovation in the way of traveling by special train has excited much comment in the British press.

> SOME OF THE QUEEN'S TREASURES.

London, July 7 .- Specially favored visitors were recently allowed to penetrate the Queen's boudior at Windsor Castle. Its state has remained unaltered since her Majesty's wid On the door is inscribed: "Every article in this rown my deeply kamented husband selected for me in the 24th year of my reign.

The Queen's bridal wreath, with the first bouquet Prince Albert sent to her lies withered within a glass case, and on every side are evidences of the thoughtful devotion of the Prince Consort to her Majesty.

PRETTY PRESENTS. London, July 7.- The casket that the Shazada Nazrulla Knan presented to the Queen from the Ameer of Afghanistan is a marvel of art. It is eighteen inches long by fifteen inches high. It is cut from a block of lapis lazuli, and is crusted with large diamonds, rubies and emeralds. From the four top corners spring stars containing 612 brilliants. The value of the whole is f17 00. The Queen, in return, sent plate service and other presents of equal value.

"RELIGIOUS" RUMPUS.

London, July 7.—An official telegram received here from Bombay says that owing to the clashing of a Hindoo marriage procession with some natives taking part in a Mohammedan fete, Porbander, on the Kittywar peninsula, the former attacked the Mohammedans and drove them from their The troops eventually repressed the rioting after several hours of serious disturbances. Three the rioters were killed, and 184, chiefly Mohammedans, were wounded.

ROYALTY SLUMMING.

London, July 7. - The Duchess of Teck, mother of the Duchess of York. has been slumming in the Whitechapel district. She joined in the prayers offered at the meetings of poor women and girls, and also joined in singing hymns. She has distributed among the deserving poor clothing and woolens, knitted by herself and the Duchess of York. A novelty in religious missions in the East End is free smoking services. The invitations to these services run: "If you want a free smoke come on Sunday to Christ's Church." A free cup of tea and tobacco are given gratis, and as a general thing the recipients of the invitations accept

MIMIC WARFARE. Berlin, July 7.—The programme of the big army maneuvers beginning Sept. 1, has now been decided upon. They will take place in the valley if the Oder. The south army will be composed of the guards and the third army corps. It will have the task of forcing the passage of the River Randow. This is only practicable, owing to the swamps, between Locknitz and Penkum The north army, consisting of two army corps, will oppose the passage of the river. The first day will witness a repulse of the enemy, who on the next day repulse their opponents. On the third, armies will fight a battle near Neuenkischen. During the whole time the troops are encamped in the open this summer, long distance and reconnoitering rides will be undertaken by the officers of the army by special order of the Emperor, who has offered a number of silver tankards as prizes. The rides will be governed by war condi-tions. The big veterans' jubilee festi-val takes place Aug. 4 on the Templehof field. All the veterans of the war, even the nurses and ladies of the Red Cross Society, will take part in the

PADEREWSKI ON THE WANE. London, July 7 .- Paderewski's only concert here this season was given last week, and while St. James' Hall was full, there was a good deal of paper flying about, and his star seems somewhat on the wane. Rosenthal, who is also here, seems to have eclipsed him. It is reported that is a result of several conferences, Paderewski and Sauer have signed an offensive and defensive alliance in connection with future

American tours, and have parceled out the country. Sauer was under contract to go to America this year, but it is now stated that he will not go, so as not to interfere with Paderewski. The latter, in his turn, is reported to have agreed not to visit America the following year. In connection with Paderewski it is stated by one who knows him intimately, that the length of hair is always graduated according to the countries he visits. In sober, classical Germany his hair is quite short; England is treated to a still further dis-play, while in America the longest period is reached. It is certainly a fact that his hair in England is much shorter than it has ever appeared in Ameri-

A SURPRISING CHANGE. The New York Herald's London cable says: The last two weeks have seen a decided change come over the prospects of the Conservatives, and it is clearly evident, more by good luck than by good guidance, that the Radicals have played better cards than had been expected since the tellers read the fateful figures on that Friday evening when Mr. Campbell-Bannerman's salary was cut down $500. There is no doubt that if Lord Rosebery, Instead of resigning, had followed his own judgment and appealed at once to the country, his opponents would have come into office with a majority large enough to keep them there for the next six, if not twelve, years. That they are now looking forward to a preponderance of not more than 50 or 60 votes is due to what has come about between now and then. It is a well-known fact that hitherto the strength of the Conservative party as a party has chiefly lain in the fact that though they may have grumbled they have never revolted. It must be remembered, however, that hitherto their leaders have always been Conservatives, and whether the same rule will apply when there is a Liberal-Unionist as well as a Conservative hand on the helm, affords room for serious doubt. I learn that it was definitely, if not tacitly, arranged more than three months ago that when in the fullness of time the Queen should send for Lord Salisbury that statesman should advise her to ing to a breach of confidence.

entrust the formation of a Cabinet, not to himself; but to his nephew. That he has not done so is accounted for by his followers as something approach-

Prove Unsatisfactory Even to Many Conservatives.

London, July 7.-The composition of the Salisbury Government discontents many Conservatives, and the mass of the non-partisan public, whose votes may turn the scale in numerous constituencies. Fifteen persons hold offices in the new Government. Nine the other six have important places cutside the Ministry. No Administration is known to have been built on such considerations of family inter-

Lord Rosebery compelled the members of his Cabinet to resign their business connections. It is rumored that Lord Salisbury will follow a similar course, but public resignation is known not to imply a resignation of private relations.

Lord Salisbury's eldest son and heir, Viscount Cranborne, has not yet been named for any position. He is a crackbrained noodle who it would be difficult to fit in. He is considered as likely, however, to get something.

The spectacle of Lord Salisbury's initial blunders has raised hopes among the Liberals that their immediate influence will probably cause a loss of a number of seats to the Unionists. The most hopeful Unionist prediction now gives a thin Parliamentary majority of 40.

Mr. Childers, whose accurate estimate in the last general election earned for him the reputation of a prophet, says that there will be a tie in the next House, or else such a limited Unionist majority that the Government will be left hopeless. A feature of the campaign is the host of women canvassers. They are largely Primrose dames. Most of them are working for love, while others are campaigning for money.

Miss Balfour, sister of Mr. A. J. Balfeur, will stump East London with Lady Cecil, daughter of Lord Salisbury and the Dowager Lady Westbury. They are most effective canvassers.

SANGUINE LIBERALS,

Believe They Will Have a Good Majority -Salisbury's Blunders Helping Them

Ballard Smith cables from London to the New York World: It is well within bounds to say that the profound lack of faith in their chances at the general election which within my knowledge was felt by most of the Liberal leaders at the time of their defeat in Parliament-and, indeed, for months before-has given place today to a really confident belief that they will return with a majority, and perhaps a considerable one.

Lord Salisbury never was a tactful politician, but he has crowded so many political blunders into these ten days that an unprejudiced outside observer can only recall one chapter in history to equal them-the famous course of Louis XVI. before the revolution. He has already committed the Conservative party to a most reactionary pol-While angering his stiff-necked Tory supporters by an undue surrender to Mr. Chamberlain's demands for place, he has antagonized the English love for fair play by a wholly gratuitous insult to Mr. Campbell-Ban-nerman, and disgusted the English regard for truthfulness by a very equivocal excuse for the ungentlemanly act. With brutal frankness, he practically has declared himself against an effort to reform the present liquor license laws, against which the whole moral force of the nation is aroused, and together with other hardly less crucial and cynical avowals of disregard for obvious popular sentiment he has finnally made his House of Lords throw out a bill passed in the Commons, the entire justice of which cannot possibly be denied. He has thus consolidated Irish sentiment and the English sentiment, which favors justice to Ireland. and has given an object lesson than which nothing could be stronger to Liberal crusade against the Lords Lord Rosebery, Sir William Harcourt and John Morley within these last 48 hours have preached boldly and exultantly the extremist Radical programme for the abolition of the veto power of the House of Lords, for local veto of the liquor traffic, and for home rule for Ireland. The Liberal leaders have again the courage of their convictions.

which has been rather doubted since Mr. Gladstone's withdrawal, and the party seems once again united and enthusiastic.

The defeat of the Irish Municipal Franchise Bill by the Lords by the solid vote of the Tory majority seems really the act of madmen. The bill passed the House of Commons this session by 62 majority, when the Government's common type of the seems of the ernment's party majority was below ten. It gave to the Irish municipali-ties exactly what the British municipalities have had for 60 years. The only possible, although outrageous, ex-cuse for its defeat is that in Ulster the existing restricted franchise enables the Orangemen to keep absolute control of the corporations and of all the municipal offices in Belfast, Londonderry and several other smaller towns while in the other three provinces it gives the Orangemen representation in the municipal bodies entirely disproportionate to their number. In the towns where the Orangemen are para-mount no Catholic is ever employed by the corporation in any but laboring work. In Londonderry, where there are 18,000 Catholics, as against 14,000 Protestants, the only municipal capacity in which Catholics are employed is as Lord Cadogan, the new Vicercy for Ireland, led the attack upon the bill, and thus gave Ireland notice of what to expect from Lord Salisbury's rule. Meanwhile Mr. Chamberlain, in the House of Commons has already begun his fight with Mr. Balfour for the leadership by intervening in every question that has arisen, in conspicuous disregard of custom, which leaves to the leader of the House the sole right of defining the Government's policy. The Unionist coalition thus already shows signs of speedy disintegration

At the Liberal headquarters the officials say tonight that they are amazed at the triumphant tone of the reports they are now receiving from the country party managers.

REMEDIAL LEGISLATION.

French Conservatives Want a Bill Passed This Session.

They Regard the Talk of Another Ses sion as "Too Thin."

(Specially telegraphed by our own re presentative.)

Ottawa, July 7. - Dupont, Belley, Frechette and other French Tories assert that they will insist on a remedial bill this session, and that question is not yet settled. Another French member, but not from Quebec, declares that the Cabinet will at once decide to introduce a remedial law.

"TOO THIN."

The French Conservatives say that the story of another session is too thin, and will not be accepted. It is said that Costigan is willing to join forces with the Quebec Conservatives and organize the Irish Cath es.

OPPONENTS OF THE REMEDIAL

There are two prominent Irish Catholies, however, opposed to a remedial bill-Sir Frank Smith and Mr. Kenny, STARTLING STORY. A story started yesterday morning thatere was a plan to retire Bowell and induce Sir Charles Tupper, the High Commissioner, to come over and take command. Need of a strong hand was never greater, and discontent and disaffection are rampant in the ranks of Government supporters. UNCERTAINTY.

There is nothing new in the situation tonight. A great deal of uncertainty still exists as to what conditions are to be attached to the decision not to introduce a reriedial law. There was a short Cabinet Council Yesterday, and the Quebec Ministers had a private meeting today. They tell their supporters that there is nothing finally agreed upon. It is known, of course, that no bill is to be introduced, and Friday will probably see Parliament prorogued. Le Canada, Mr. Ouimet's organ here, says he was misunderstood when reported to favor secular schools with a religious proviso. It adds that he insists on Catholic separate schools.

GREAT WORK FINISHED.

Five Thousand Acres of Marsh Land at Pelee Point Reclaimed

Windsor, July 7 .- The work of reclaiming the Pelee Point marsh land, about 5,000 acres, has been completed. The scheme was first started two years ago, but it met with strenuous opposition from the gun club which had the marsh, and knew that the draining would kill the sport. At last an agreement was entered into with the gun club by the purchase of their property, and Allister McKay, of Chatham, was given the contract at $16,000.

The canals are 33 feet wide, 8 1-2 miles long, and have a depth of from 6 to 8 feet. The ditch is built on three sides of the marsh, and the pumping is done with two machines with a capacity of 32,000 gallons a minute. The discharge is lifted ten feet and through a flume is carried to the lake. The land is considered to have no superior, and an effort will be made to get the Government to have 4,000 acres to the south reclaimed by the same process.

SALVATION ARMY TROUBLES.

Brigadier De Barret Takes Action Against Commandant Booth.

Toronto, July, 6.—"A dispatch" written by Commandant Booth, of the Salvation Army, and sent to England, is likely to be the cause of another lively fight between the commandant and Brigadier De Barrett, late of the Army. The dispatch contains statements regarding the character of the statements regarding the character of the brigadier, which he considers damaging to his future prospects and he has, through his solicitors, demanded a full and complete retraction of the statements, failing, which he will sue for damages.

Terrific and Fatal Hurricane at Baxter, Kansas.

Many Houses Blown Down and Several People Killed

Dicker, head injured; A. G. Hanback, head injured; three members of A. Sharpe's family, badly injured; Mrs. Thomas Shield's, living nine miles south, fatally injured.

The storm struck the city at 6 o'clock accompanied by a violent rainstorm, which was as quick and destructive as a waterspout. When it abated and the work of rescue began a dozen home less families were found in the streets or in the ruins of their homes. Miss Webster and her mother and daughter were found in their wrecked house. Hibbs was killed in his house. Cooper and Hodgkirk's brick store building, the best structure in town, was demolished, one wall and rear end having been blown in, destroying the stock of drygoods. Twenty-seven box cars were blown from the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis track. The freight and passenger depots were almost demolished, and much damage to freight resulted. Several fine residences and many small houses and outbuildings were blown away. In shaft 49 of the Kansas and Texas Coal Company, at Weir City, where many miners were engaged, the water rushed in with such rapidity that the miners barely ecaped with their lives. Every mule in the shaft was drowned The creeks were swollen beyond their banks within a few hours, and fuller reports from the country round about cannot but bring news of damage to life and property from the combined forces of wind and water.

Memphis railroad's wrecking train and bridge crews were called from this city this morning to repair its depots and small washouts, which will ot interfere with traffic. DEATH-DEALING WATERSPOUT Springfield, O., July 7.—A special from Winona says: Winona was totally wiped out by a cloudburst or a torrent similar in devastation between 10:30 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Twelve persons were drowned, and the financial loss will reach at least $60,-

The dead are: Rev. G. W. Duncan, Mrs. G. Duncan, Miss Mattie Duncan, daughter of G. W. Duncan; Miss Crawford, Mrs. George Mevins, Norman Evans, daughter, and T. M. Lloyd Wright; Maggie Cannon, John Norris

few hours. Highland, Ill. July 7.—A cloudburst struck this place on Friday night, do-ing great damage. In many fields the water was deep enough to swim a horse. Hundreds of shocks of wheat were destroyed, miles of fencing washed away, and much live stock drowned. Oshkosh, Wis., July 7.-The most severe storm in years occurred this afternoon, doing much damage to crops In ten minutes the temperature dropped from 90 to 65 degrees Chicago, Ill., July 7 .- A special from Delaven, Wis., says the storm this afternoon was terrific. Roofs were blown from houses, trees were felled and windows broken, and the crops bodly damaged. El Reno, U. T., July 7 .- A terrific storm struck this city this afternoon at 5 o'clock. More than 100 buildings in all were overturned or wrecked. Chicago, July 7.—A wind and rain storm such as Chicago has not seen for years broke upon the city about 5:50 o'clock this afternoon. It is known for a certainty tonight that four lives were lost on Lake Michigan by the capsizing of boats.

El Reno, O. T., J*uly 7.—For three days past the heat has been awful. The thermometer has not been below 98 at mignight, and has reached as high HORRIBLE FATE OF A CHILD. Fatelly Mangled by a Drove of Voracieus Hogs.

Owosso, Mich., July 7.-An Associated Press correspondent says that news has just been received from Venice township that the 2-year-old son of Edward Frost was eaten up by hogs yesterday. Frost was at work on his farm and his wife busy about the house. The child wandered out in the yard at After some time the mother called for the child. Hearing no response she went in search, and found he had been atacked by hogs, which had knocked him down and eaten the two lower limbs and one arm.

The boy was still alive when found, but died soon after. His parents are inconsolable. Frost lives in one of the most isolated and remote portions of the country and but thinly populated.

BURNED TO DEATH. Chicago, July 7 .- Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gunwalk, of South Chicago, were burned to death this morning. Mrs. Gunwalk was getting ready to cook breakfast when the gasoline stove exploded and set fire to her dress. Her husband, attempting to save her, had his cloth-ing ignited. The building caught and burned to the ground. The mother of Mrs. Gunwalk was rescued from the flames, but is prostrated by the shock and will probably die.

To be sure, in case your circulation is poor and your strength decidedly below par, a tussle with the waves will leave you cold and feeble, and it will be better for you to have your sea water carried to your room and bathe in it there. Centennial Church.

and Rev. A. L. Russell Make

Good Impressions

The Manitoba school question was discussed at some length in the Centennial Methodist Church yesterday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. A. G. Harris. The audience was composed largely of Orangemen, True Blues and members of the Ladies' Loyal Orange Lodge. The occasion was the annual divine service of King William's followers in this city, and about 300 were in line. The Edge Block, corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, was the point of assembly, and after the arrival of the Ahoghill brethren from Adelaide street north, the procession formed, and by way of Dundas street proceeded to the church in this order:
Ahoghill Fife and Drum Band.

At the church about 50 members of the ladies' lodge were in waiting, and preceded the procession into the edifice. Every seat was taken, and many persons were unable to gain admit-Rev. A. G. Harris, during the reading of the lesson, created much interest by announcing that he was going to speak on the burning question of the hour, which he had been urgently requested to do by many. He took for his text St. Matthew, xvi., 3: "Can ye not dis-cern the signs of the times?" the words of Christ to the Pharisees and Saducees when tempted by them to show them a sign from heaven. The preacher stated that people were living in a very peculiar age, such as no human being had ever lived in perore. It seemed as though he was living in the last few years of the most brilliant century the world had ever seen. Mighty re-velations, upheavals and changes could be expected before the century passed away. Men were coming to-gether more closely than they ever did before. What did the large number of organizations in the city mean? They meant that men were panding together for sympathy, strength and help as never in the past. Churches which once fought were beginning to look upon each other as brothers. The great question of the hour was "Who shall undertake the education of the country?" "Unhesitatingly," replied Mr. Harris, "I state without any fear that the State should undertake the education of the boys and girls of our country. Here I am asked a question which deserves consideration: 'Do I believe that the education should be See our Challie Patterns, fine prints, entirely secular?' Friends, is our State be so. Do you? I believe the Bible lies under the foundation of our State. I understand that God is recognized by the State, and that our country is Christian. Again, I believe that the State should undertake the education of the children of the land. They are interested in every child, and have the authority to tax the people for the education of the young. But I say that the State and I say that the State is Christian -should make our schools Christian, and not secular. On this point I believe all Protestants stand today—that our schools should teach Christianity, and not secu. rism. The Roman Catholic Church is a very great one, be-lieving that the State should provide the money and they will do the educating. Here, again, we take issue with them. And so they ciamor for their separate schools, but I cherish the hope that the time will come when there will not be a separate school in the land, and that some way may be found out of our present difficulties. I say that you and I never stood in a more important moment in the history of our country. I say it deliberately, tremblingly. The Manitoba school question!

Mr. Harris gave an historical sketch of the Province from the inception of 1870, and also an account of the school question from 1890. Should the Dominion Government force Manitoba to act in the matter of remedial legislation? Mr. Harris said that was the point. He took the ground that separate schools should never be forced on Man-itoba for many reasons. She does not want them, as was shown in her Legislature by an overwhelming majority. The population of the Province was very scattered, and where some of the schools now averaged about a dozen pupils, with a division of these the cost of education would vastly increase. Again, if the Catholics got separate schools, the Mennonites and Icelanders would want separate schools for their children, in which they could be taught particular forms of worship. Mr Harris' final reason was that in separate schools a good education was not

REV. GEORGE DANIELS. The Queen's Avenue Methodist congregation naturally turned out in unusually large numbers to welcome their new pastor, Rev. George Daniels, at the Opera House Sunday. In the morning Rev. Dr. Sanderson conducted the devotional excreises, the musical portion of which was rendered by the full orchestra and choir under Mr. Fetherston, In introducing Mr. Daniels Dr. Sanderson referred gratefully to the services of those who had ministered to them during the four months in which they had had no pastor. He said the flock rejoiced that they had once more a shepherd, and he predicted a happy and prosperous year, with God's blessing, for preacher and people.

Mr. Daniels then preached his first sermon from II. Peter, i., 8. He enunciated the eight qualities here spoken of as necessary to a Christian—faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, pa-tience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity—and declared that while faith was the basal element, it required the seven others named to round out the Christian character. Religion without faith was blind; with only faith it was morbid fanaticism. Faith was the keynote in the divine chorus. Religion was the commandments of God set to music—his laws reduced to melody. Mr. Daniels has a resonant and flexible voice, which he uses with good effect. He gesticulates freely, walks the platform white speaking, and displays an activity that seems to indicate an energetic temperament. Miss L. Hartson and Miss Maud Fowler sang solos very sweetly in the morning and evening respectively. REV. MR. CUNNINGHAM. the new pastor of Hamilton Road rigs. 'Phone, 423.

Methodist Church, also delivered introductory sermons. His morning discourse was founded on Hebrews, iv., 14. At the close, he expressed his belief that the relations between the congregation and himself during the conference work would be emigable. conference year would be amicable. He would do his best, and it would devolve on the congregation, by their example, to help to build up the congregation in numbers and in influence. Mr. Cunningham is a fluent and earnest speaker, and his sermons abound Local Orangemen Parade to the with illustrations from everyday life that render them easily understood and convincing. At the close of each service both the pastor and his wife, who were great favorites in their old home in St. Marys, were warmly welcomed by many members of the church.

The new master of the Wellington Rev. G. Daniels. Rev. A. Cunningham

The new pastor of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, Rev. T. L. Russell, chairman of the London district, occupied his pulpit at both services yesterday. In the morning he took as the theme of his discourse the love of God in giving his Son as a saviour of the world. Mr. Russell has a very pleasant delivery, proved himself a scholarly preacher, and made a very favorable impression. He made a special plea to the members to at-tend the week-night services. The congregations both morning and evening were large, and at the close the new pastor was accorded many a hearty welcome by the members of his flock. On Sunday next Mr. Russell will deliver his introductory sermons.

A Shocking Fata ity Near Brantford-A Girl Building a Fire Used Coal Oil.

Brantford, June 6.—Last night the 6 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curry of con. 10, Burford, commenced to build a fire in the stove. The child used a can of coal oil with which to set it going. Some live coals in the stove caught the oil. The latter exploded and saturated the poor child. With dreadful screams of anguir the little one rushed ontside and the breeze fanned the flames until the girl was envel-

The parents rushed to assist the girl and threw her down among some grass which also caught fire. The flames spread to the house and only the most heroic efforts prevented its being consumed.

In the agony and excitement of the moment the almost demented father put the child under the pump to extinguish the flames. Every stitch of clothing was burned and the poor little thing's body was burned almost to a cinder. Dr. Harbottle was called in and had the sufferer bathed in oil, and did everything possible to save her life. but all in vain. After suffering the most excruciating agony for a few hours the girl died. The matter has been reported to the authorities and it is likely an inquiry will be

CIVIC PROBLEMS BEING SOLVED. London's cheap rates for street railway riding are good enough for the company as well as for the citizens. In the May Arena Prof. Parsons shows from facts collected from a number of typical cities that a 2-cent fare will amply repay the amount invested in a street railway line. The 5-cent fare, he contends, is largely due to the inflated condition of the stock of the companies, which in many cases represents an amount far in excess of the actual value of the road. It is said that in Toronto, in spite of provisions made to guard against it, the stock has already been extensively watered; and this is what might have been expected where a 5-cent fare is allowed under the contract. In London there will not be the same temptation to water the stock, thanks to the foresight of Mayor Little. There will be no temptation towards extravagance on the part of the company, and the people will have the benefit of a good and cheap service.

A TRAMP TEST.

Massachusetts is endeavoring to solve the tramp problem in a practical way. The intention is to establish a farm of 2,000 acres, to which all "knights of the road" shall be sent. When at the farm they will be required to take a compulsory course in agriculture for one or two years. After they have been graduated places will be secured for them on farms, and so long as they behave themselves and remain industrious they will be free from arrest, but as soon as they become insubordinate they will be arrested and imprisoned. The venture will have one good effect. Massachusetts will be avoided by the worthless fellow who tramps not cause he cannot get work, but because he has no desire for employment, whereas the deserving man-and many deserving fellows, unfortunately, have to tramp-will welcome the opportunity to obtain something to do.

THE MILLIONAIRE.

Who is this hard-working man? This s the millionaire, the man who wanted to be rich, and has got rich, and is getting richer every day. Is he the happier for it? Happy? Bless your soul he is more miserable, fuller of cares and anxieties and harder work than ever. He is the veriest slave of them all. He pushed with business, and business is pushing him. He has so many irons n the fire that some of them are burning his fingers while others are getting cold. His present life is a rush from the meeting of this board to that board and hence to some other board. He is irector of this company, and trustee in that, and silent partner in another, world without end, and more coming. le hasn't time to eat, and hardly to sleep, and when he does lay his poor pess plans and schemes, hopes and from whirling and whirring through it. He can't take a day to spend in quiet out of town, and if he ould he would take all of his business with him into the woods. He is a slave and a victim. His millions in bank on't bring him so much enjoyment as es a new 10-cent piece given to a boy 10 years old. He is infected with the mania for getting, and the more he gets the more he wants. If you could see him just as he is, and when he is inevitably coming, and how he is going there, you would pity him. He is one of the coming victims of damentia parlytica, the prevailing ailment among many Wall street men.-Texas Sift-

POINTS.

In the Humber Valley, near Toronto, a great dam is being built, which will create an artificial lake over six miles in extent, and which will develop upwards of 10,000 electrical horse-power. Query: Is there no valley near London with high banks, in which the same thing could be done, with the view of transmitting electrical power to Lon-

Penetanguishene town has this year set out 1,000 maple trees. The municipality which adorns its thoroughfares with shade trees never regrets it. London set early about it, and the beauty of our streets is commented on by every visitor. Shade trees improve and enhance the value of every lot. When planted, however, shade trees must have reasonable care. The small boy, the careless horseman, the borer, are their worst enemies.

Heroism is not an unknown quality yet. Ella Johnson, a nurse-girl, lost her life at Newton, Conn., while trying to rescue from drowning the child of her employer.

Too many people forget that the space of a newspaper is its stock-intrade. When a man requests a free advertisement he asks for a present of that which costs the newspaper proprietor money to provide. Yet men who would never think of asking a merchant to give them clothing or food for nothing, frequently ask a newspaper to do something exactly akin

Joseph P. Skelly, the song writer, made much money easily by his pen. He has just died, penniless and a wreck, in New York city. He could not stand prosperity and whisky.

Though each is paid $8,000 a year for their work, the Ministers at Ottawa, it turns out, had the wreath they sent to put on Sir John Thompson's coffin charged to the taxpayers. Like the men in power, the wreath came high. The charge was $1,900!

In Leeds, England, the street railways are under municipal control, and for the fiscal year ending March 25 the report shows a gross profit of $35,000. In Glasgow, where municipal management was assumed on July 1 last year, the balance sheet of the first ten months shows a profit of nearly $70,000, in spite of the competition of omnibus lines.

The new company which commands street railway service in Detroit is required to construct about 40 miles of new tracks, and the limit of the franchise is fixed at 30 years. The fares are not to exceed 5 cents, and tickets are to be sold at eight for 25 cents, to be used between 5:40 a. m. and 8 p. m., and six for 25 cents, to be used between 8 p. m. and 5:45 a. m., with transfer privileges extending throughout the city. At the expiration of the franchise the city will have the option of purchasing the entire property at a price to be determined by arbitration.

Omaha, in Nebraska, has an extravagant regime, and in spite of promises of retrenchment the expenditure keeps on at the old pace. This year the tax levy is 44 mills on the dollar; but this is not so great as might be supposed, for although the State laws require assessors to list all taxable property at its market value, the custom prevails of cutting it down to from one-sixth to one-twelfth of its value. The total tax valuation is, therefore, less than $20,000,000, whereas if it was made on the basis which the law requires it would be in the neighborhood of $200,-000,000. Many hardships and abuses result from this practice, the chief of which are tax shirking, inequality of taxation and license to enlarge the borrowing power of the corporation, whose debt is limited to a fixed percentage of Sir Henry Irving does not take the proposal that he should enter Parliament seriously. No doubt, as he argues, it would be inconvenient to cut short an act in order that he might rush to the House to give his vote; and it would be equally hard on the actor to be summoned by the "pit," between acts, to submit to a "heckling" on questions of the day. The new knight is at least clear of vision.

For those farmers who have suffered so much from the potato bug, there is welcome news from Japan. Prof. Koebele, of the California Horticultural Commission, who recently discovered the Australian ladybird, which is fast clearing California orchards of scale pests, sends it. He says he has discovered a beetle which feeds on the larvae of the potato bug, and he says he believes the beetle will exterminate the pest. If it does this without bringing agriculturists new danger, it will prove a boon. The potato bug has cost the farmers of this continent many expenditure for war down to about $1,000,-

In 1893-94 it spent for war purposes $1,-419,000, its active militia consisting of 35,960 officers and men. In addition to these it has a reserve militia, embracing practically its full manhood strength, which it will retain unimpaired by the reduction of expense. This must always be its chief defense, and as long as this is kept available by sound and honest government it will not need to expend large sums for war purposes merely to gratify the ambition of English imperialists for military display.

If Canada were ever to be attacked at all t would be from this side of the line, and in case of such an attack the difference between 30,000 men and 100,000, between $1,000,000 and $10,000,000 as an annual expense for war purposes, would not be appre

Everybody knows, however, that there is not the least danger of such an attack on Canada. The two countries could live together in safety and comfort if neither of them had a single army corps. Decency and neighborliness are a better defense than Krupp guns. Canada has no more reason to arm against the United States than against England .- [New York World.

THE BICYCLE FACE. Alleged Strange Results From Anxious

Wheeling. The "bicycle face," lately commented upon by the Sun, that unhappy expression of care-wear or physical and mental distress so often seen on the faces of wheelmen, is visible also in England. A physician, writing in the St. James Budget, sees it and explains it thus:

"They frequently wear an anxious look and an unwholesome pallor, which are so characteristic that one may almost speak of the 'bicycle face.' Watch them descend at an inn; a good many exhibit anything but the exhibaration of healthy exercise. Some are more than pale; their faces have the peculiar gray hue which betokens nervous exhaustion. And they complain of headache a singular complaint for young men engaged in an athletic pastime. This is true if so many as to be quite noticeable, and to make people ask why bicyclists always 'look so seedy.'

"The fact that the ill effects associated with the two-wheeled machine are not experienced with the tricycle, although the latter entails far more exertion, gives a clue to what I believe to be the explanation. The distinguishing feature of the bicycle, and especially of the safety, is the difficulty of maintaining the equilibrium. 'Learning' to ride means mastering the art of keeping the machine upright. It has a tendency to fall to one side or the other all the time, which has to be counteracted by a special effort. The learner knows it very well to his cost, but once having learned he forgets about it and does his balancing more or less automatically. Nevertheless the effort is still there and puts a constant though unconscious effort upon the brain and nervous system. The reason why the bicycle has to e 'learned' at all is that the center of equilibrium in the brain requires to be taught the business of doing its duty under novel circumstances. The falling bicycle is maintained upright by a constant series of small muscular movements, which unconsciously adjust the weight in the proper position, and are themselves controlled by a special brain center situated at the back of the head. The strain upon this center is incess ant, though unmarked, and some people cannot stand it for more than a short time. This it is that causes the headache and the nervous exhaustion.

We hesitate to dispute the conclusions of science, but before accepting the English theory we should like to see the unnatural stimulus for long-distance riding, such as "century runs," go out of fashion. For a wheelman to set out to accomplish a century run, just from the ambition of covering distance, is like a little girl exhausting herself to make a record of a hundred jumps with her skipping rope. This injurious nonsense, and all kindred habits arising from it, must be stopped before we can arrive at a satisfactory opinion on the origin of the phenomenon under consideration. Then, again, the standard bicycle must be built with handles set so high that the rider will sit straight, and not be bent forward with his spine curved like a bow and his head forced into the pose of a sneak. A hang-dog face, a look of distress, sits naturally on the countenance of any man who habitually rides a scorcher wheel .- [New

A STRANGE CASE.

Mr. H. McCarron, of Detroit, Completely Cured of Blood Poisoning.

Detroit, Mich., July I.-A very curious incident has occurred here, and one which will be of continental interest. Mr. Hugh McCarron, a well-known notary public, has been a sufferer for many years from a peculiar form of poisoning inducing the most frightful pains in the breast and back. The best doctors were consulted without being able to give any relief, and Mr. McCarron decided that his case was hopeless. He was finally recommended to make a trial of Dodd's Kid-ney Pills, and did so with the faint hope that they might have some effect in his case, the peculiar nature of which did not lead him to associate it with kidney complaint. To his surprise, the effects of the remedy were noticeable from the very first, and he is now thoroughly restored to health by this

THE TORONTOS AT ROCHESTER Rochester, N. Y., July 7.—The Rochesters put up a ragged fielding game yesterday, and were discounted in this particular by the Toronto team. The Canucks were unable to hit at critical points, and were twice retired with the bases full. In the fourth and fifth innings the locals slugged themselves out of the woods at Gray's expense, and obtained a lead that outlasted the game. Harper was easy, but his nerve saved the day for Rochester in the ninth inning, when with one run needed to tie and one man out he coaxed Shinnick and Freeman into knocking up a foul fly and a pop, both of which were caught, sending the side down. DISADVANTAGES OF THE WHEEL.

The report that the bicycle is to be used largely in military operations is seen again in connection with Gen. Miles' coming promotion to the command of the army. If the military cam paigns are to be conducted entirely along smooth, hard reads, no doubt the bicycle will be an immense aid for messengers. But the bad habit soldiers have of going to fighting on hillsides, behind log embankments, in plowed fields and across stony ravines, is likely to detract from the military utility of the bicycle. That vehicle is a great institution, but it is not intended to climb precipices, run through meadows or jump over fences and brush heaps .-Pittsburg Dispatch.

POISONED AT COMBER.

Sad Death of a Child Who Drank Sulphuric Acid.

Comber, Ont., July 8. - A sad case of poisoning occurred here Saturday night. The two-year old son of Mr. John Campbell swallowed the contents of a bottle containing sulphuric acid. The bottle was left on the table by Mrs. Campbell, who had been using it, and while she had her back turned the child took the bottle and swallowed the contents. Dr. Abbott was summoned and did all possible to relieve him. The child died at three o'clock this morning.

A CURIOUS SUIT

In Waterloo County-Matrimony On a Cash Basis.

Berlin, Ont., July 7 .- At the Division Court held by his Honor Judge Chisholm the other day, a somewhat un-usual case was tried. It was an action brought by a man named Nowack, living in the western limits of the town, against a man named Hintz, of Levington. The case arose in this way: Hintz became a widower some time ago, and very soon sighed for someone to take the place of the first Mrs. Hintz. Nowack had a widowed sister in Germany, and suggested to Hintz that she would exactly fill the aching vold. It was agreed that she should be sent for, and on her becoming Mrs. Hintz No. 2, the expense, some $60, of bringing her over the briny deep, would be met by him. The money was borrowed for the occasion and sent in good faith, but before the old country widow could be got here the broken-hearted widower heard of another woman willing to become No. 2, and in short order called in a preaher to make them one. Now Nowack is out his $60 and has the widow on his hands, wants to be recouped, and hence the suit at court. The unfortunate Noack, however, failed in convincing the judge that he legally entitled to recover, though the general sympathy of the public seems to be with him. The case was dismissed.

Queen Victoria Signs the Writ of Dissolution.

General Elections Will Take Place in the Next Two Weeks.

Curious Custom That Keeps the Two Leaders "Mum."

The Dresses Worn at Recent Royal Festivities.

CURIOUS CAMPAIGN CUSTOM. London, July 8 .- It is a curious and interesting fact that from the moment Parliament dissolves today and the general election technically begins, the leaders of the two parties, Lord Rosebery and Lord Salisbury, will be absolutely debarred from taking any part in the contest, either by speech, writing or work. They suffer this disqualification in common with all peers under a standing order passed many years ago by the House of Commons, declaring it to be unconstitutional and a breach of the privileges of the House of Commons for any peer to participate in the work of a general election. At the time this resolution was adopted the interference of peers, in their landlord capacity with the Parliamentary elections had reached a scandalous pitch, and the conduct of some of them had become so indefensible that the House of Lords was compelled by the force of public opinion to accept the decree of the Commons, though it really has no force in law. DISGRUNTLED POLITICIANS.

Lord Salisbury's Administration is now complete, and the Tories will be able to realize the full cost of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's co-operation in forming it. The figures are positively appalling to those affected by them, that is to say, to all the so-called governing families in England who, with their own people in power, find themselves with younger sons unprovided, for while common Radicals with only a veneer of Toryism are reveling in fat things. No wonder that, according to some of the newspapers, Lord Salisbury wrote letters of apology stained tears to several noble friends whom cruel fate had compellel him to overlook. He evidently loathes himself for his subservience to the Liberal-Unionist parvenu, but what was he to do? He could not dispense with Mr. Chamberlain's assistance, and he had no option but to pay for it. Sir John Gorst, the trusted friend of the late Lord Randolph Churchill, was to have been left out altogether, but he pluckily refused to be ignored, and threatened, not obscurely, to form a group of overlooked place-hunters. So an Under Secretary-ship was tardily given to him.

Sir Ellis Ashmead Bartlett got up memorials to the Premier, then tried threats, and finally weakened, and gets nothing. Sir George Baden Powell, who has dabbled in the sea fishery negotiations, and has visited Washington and other semi-civilized parts of the world, utilized the influence of all friends and himself and worked with great vigor with the object of getting the Secretaryship of the Colonies, which he and his family sidered should naturally fall to his share. When the Secretaryship was given to Mr. Chamberlain there was much indignation in the Powell family, but patriotism conquered selfishness, and Lord Salisbury was given to understand that Sir George, in the interests of his party and country, would consent to cramp his great intellect within the narrow limits of the Under Secretaryship of the Colonies; but, alas! he has got nothing.

Mr. Forward, who was regarded as heaven-sent naval administrator, claimed promotion, and has not got even his former minor post. Sir Albert Rollit, a shining light in the Primrose League, claimed to represent the commercial classes, and thought he ought to be in the Cabinet, or at least Postmaster-General, but he has been left out in the cold, and declares his intention to follow an independent course in the new Parliament. TIRED OF DIVISION. Mr. Thomas Sexton, member of the House of Commons for North Kerry, persists in his determination to retire from Parliament. He says it is untrue that he has got an appointment in the Irish Bank. He means to go to the English bar. An anti-Parnellite member said to him: "You do not intend to leave us?"

Mr. Sexton replied; "Do you think I am going to remain in a party that is always squabbling? It is hell."

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY. Adrian Diaconu, of Hungary, claims to have made a remarkable discovery. According to a telegram from Vienna, he has found in the remains of the old Roman camp of Bersovia at Bogesau, near Temesvar, what he and certain learned men of Bucharest regard as irrefutable evidence that the Centurions of the Fourth Legion, who were stationed there at some time during the second century, were acquainted with the use of movable types. Such a discovery, if verified, will throw back the origin of the art of printing nearly thirteen centuries. It is already known that the Romans used stamps with which to impress upon bricks such inscriptions as "Leg. Vic. Six," but there had been no trace of the use of movable

THE QUEEN PHOTOGRAPHED. Mr. Downey, the royal photographer, when asked how Queen Victoria sat for her latest photograph, replied: "Like other folks. When I had settled her I said, 'Would your Majesty put on a more favorable countenance?" She said 'Certainly,' and put it on."

HARTE'S HILARITY.

Bret Harte created much amusement at the reception by displaying great anxiety that the English butler should announce his name correctly. The butler announced "Bretharte," whereupon the novelist called out "Bret Harte" at the top of his voice, three times, and set everybody laughing

Palace on Friday night was the most gorgeous affair, in point of the display of dress and jewels, that has been seen during this of any other season. No less than 1,500 persons attended. The blaze of diamonds and other precious stones was something beyond description. White satin was the favorite material, and very much gray and mauve were worn. A certain beautiful countess had the seams of her gown held down with diamond buttons, and a handsome marchioness had a sash fastened with a magnificent diamond sun. A foreign lady were enaulettes of diamonds and emeralds upon diaphanous pink sleeves of pale green satin and a gown which was powdered with rose petals, and on every leaf glimmered a diamond dewdrop. A German baroness had a gown of pale mauve satin, the bodice of which had a deep frill falling from the shoulders and beaded with diamonds, a necklace or two of stones being utilized in this way. The splendid sapphires worn by one lady were as much admired as the fine rubies, now the costliest of jewels, which flashed on the shoulders and in the hair of another.

THE ELECTIONS ON. London, July 8 .- The Marquis of Salisbury, Baron Halsbury, the Lord High Chancellor, and the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Secretary of State for War, attended the meeting of the Privy Council held at Windsor Castle at 2 c'clock this afternoon, at which the Queen signed the proclamation dissolving Parliament and the order to issue writs for the General Elections.

DISASTROUS STORMS.

Floods and Winds Do Much Damage in the Western States.

Lives Lost and Property Destroyed in Many 1 laces.

Chicago, July 8.—Dispatches from many points in the central and northern portions of Illinois and Southern Wisconsin tell of furious storms. At Savannah, Ill., the storm almost reached the proportions of a cyclone. At Peoria several buildings were unroofed, one three-story frame block was completely destroyed, and much damage done to trees, awnings and windows. Delavan, Wis., July 8.-The most destructive rain and wind storm that ever visited this locality came last night. The wind blew down houses and barns, uprooted trees, and blew up corn fields. On the south shore of Delavan Lake the devastation was great. The wind was accompanied by a deluge of rain and great hailstones, that broke windows and leveled fields of grain. The roads and fields are strewn with the debris of trees, fences and buildings. Washburn, Wis., July 8.-The heavy rains of the last two days have caused great damage in this section. Oshkosh, Wis., July 8.-The severest hail storm in years occurred last evening. Much damage must have been done to crops, The thermometer dropped 25 degrees in ten minutes.

Eldorado Springs, Mo., July 8 .- A havy rain, amounting to a gloud burst. fell here last night, and nearly all the streams in this part of the country are out of their banks. The wheat and oats, which were resnocked after the wind and hail storm of last week are now thought to be soaked clean through, and unless a few dry, warm days come soon they will mold and spoil. Clear Creek, three miles west of town, almost reached the high water mark, and was full of floating fences and small bridges. Rain is still falling, and with no prospect of cessa-

At Willard's Station, on the Middle Georgia and Atlantic Railway, every house was torn to pieces. Henry Adams (white) and Bob Hardy (colored) were killed outright. Over in Morgan county Andrew Perry's farm buildings and house were blown down. Perry and his family were buried in the falling timbers. Peris injured internally and will probably die. His wife is in a critical condition. The house of James Collier was demolished, and two of his children were injured by the wreck. Robertson's plantation was swept clear of everything. The Robertson family fled to the cellar and escaped without serious injuries. Twenty persons are known to have been badly injured, and the list of fatalities will hardly be less than ten.

Men Out.

Speculation and Worry and Neglect of Home Life Ruinous.

An Antidote for Them All Stated by Dr. Talmage.

New York, July 7.-In his sermon for today Dr. Talmage, who is still ab-sent on his western lecturing tour, chose a subject of universal interest, viz., "Business Troubles," the text selected being Ezekiel, xxvii., 24: "These were the merchants in all sorts of

We are at the door of returning national prosperity. The coming crops, the re-establishment of public confidence, and, above all, the blessing of God, will turn in upon all sections of America the widest, greatest prosperity this country has ever seen. But that door of successes is not yet fully open, and thousands of business men are yet suffering from the distressing times through which we have been passing.

Some of the best men in the land have faltered, men whose hearts are enlisted in every good work, and whose hands have blessed every great charity. The Church of God can afford to extend to them her sympathies, and plead before heaven with all-availing prayer. The schools such men have established, the churches they have tuilt, the asylums and beneficent institutions they have fostered, will be their eulogy long after their banking institutions are forgotten. Such men can never fail. They have their treasures in banks that never break, and will be millionaires forever. But I thought it would be appropriate today, and useful, for me to talk about the trials and temptations of our business men, and try to offer some curative prescriptions. In the first place I have to remark that a great many of our business men feel ruinous trials and temptations coming to them from small and limited capital in business. This temptation has ruined men in two ways. Sometimes they have shrunk down under the temptation. They have yielded the battle before the first shot was fired. They blanched at the financial peril. They did not understand that there is such a thing as heroism in merchandise, and that there are Waterloos of the counter, and that a man can fight no braver battle with a sword than he can with the yard-stick. Others have felt it in a different way. They have said: "Here I have been trudging along. I have been trying to be honest all these years. I find it is of no use. Now it is break or make." The small craft that could have stood stream is put out beyond the lighthouse on a sea of great speculation. The man goes on, stopping at no fraud or outrage. In his splendid equipage he dashes past, while the honest laborer looks up, and wipes the sweat from his brow, and says: "I wonder where that man got all his money." After a while the bubble bursts. Creditors rush

The law clutches, but finds nothing in its grasp. I would not want to chain honest enterprise. I would not want to block up any of the avenues for honest accumulation that open before young men. On the contrary, I would like to cheer them on, and rejoice when they reach the goal; but when there are such multitudes of men going to ruin for this life and for the life that is to come through wrong notions of what are lawful spheres of enterprise, it is the duty of the Church of God, and the ministers of religion, and the friends of all young men, to utter a plain, emphatic, unmistakable protest. These are the influences that drown men in destruction and perdition.

Again: A great many of our business men are tempted to over-anxiety and care. You know that nearly all commercial businesses are overdone in this day. Smitten with the love of quick gain, our cities are crowded with men resolved to be rich at all hazards. They do not care how money comes, if it only comes. Our best merchants are thrown into competition with men of more means and less conscience, and if an opportunity of accumulation be neglected one hour, someone else picks it up. From January to December the strug-gle goes on. Night gives no quiet to limbs tossing in restlessness, nor to a brain that will not stop thinking. The dreams are harrowed by imaginary less and flushed by imaginary gains. Even the Sabbath cannot dam back the tide of anxiety; for this wave of worldliness dashes clear over the churches, and leaves its foam on Bibles and prayer books. This excitement of the brain, this corroding of the heart, this strain of effort that exhausts the spirit, sends a great many of our best men, in middle-life, into the grave. Their life dashed out against money safes. They go with their stores on their backs. They trucge like camels, sweating, from Aleppo to Damascus. They make their lives a crucifixion. Standing behind desks and counters, banished from the fresh air, weighed down by carking cares, they are so many suicides. Oh, I wish I could today rub out some of these lines of care; that I could lift some of the burdens from the heart; that I could give relaxation to some of these worn muscles. It is time for you to begin to take it a little easier. Do your best, and then trust God for the rest. Do not fret. God manages all the affairs of your life, and he manages them for the best. Consider the lilies-they always have robes. Behold the fowls the air-they always have nests. Take a long breath. Bethink, betimes, that God did not make you for a packhorse. Dig yourselves out from among the hogsheads, and the shelves, and in the light of the hely Sabbath day resolve that you will give to the winds your fears, and your fretfulness, and your distresses. You brought nothing into the world, and it is very certain you can carry nothing out. food and raiment, be therewith con tent. The merchant came home from the store. There has been a great disaster there. He opened the front door and said, in the midst of his family "I am ruined!" His wife said "I am left"; and the little child threw up its hands and said, "Papa, I am here." The aged granmother, seated in the room, said: "Then you have all the promises of God beside, John."

And he burst into tears and said: "God, forgive me, that I have been so ungrateful. I find I have a great many things left. God, forgive me." Again I remark, that many of our business men are tempted to neglect their home duties. It is often the case Business Troubles That Wear that the father is the mere treasurer of the family, a sort of agent to see that they have drygoods and groceries. The work of family government he does not touch. Once of twice in a year he calls the children up on a Sabbath afternoon, when he has a half hour which he does not know exactly what to do with, and in that half hour he disciplines the children, and chides them and corrects their faults, and gives them a great deal of good advice, and then wonders all the rest of the year that his children do not do better, when they have the wonderful advantage of that semi-annual castigation. The family table, which ought to be the place for pleasant discussion and cheerfulness, often becomes the place of perilous expedition. If there be any blessing asked at all, it is cut off at both ends, and with the hand on the carving knife. He counts on his fingers, making estimates in the interstices of the repast. The work done, the hat goes to the head, and he starts down the street and before the family has arisen from the table, he has bound up another bundle of goods, and says to a customer: "Anything more I can do for you today, sir?" The phys!cal culture of the child will not be attended to unless the father looks to it. He must sometimes lose his dignity. He must unlimber his joints. He must sometimes lead them out to their sports and games. The parent who cannot forget the severe duties of life some times, to fly the kite, and trundle the hoop, and chase the ball, and jump the rope with his children, ought never to have been tempted out of a crusty and unredeemable solitariness. If you want to keep your children away from places of sin, you can only do it by making your home attractive. You may preach sermons, and advocate reforms, and denounce wickedness, and yet your children will be captivated by the glittering saloon of sin, unless you can make your home a brighter place than any other place on earth to them. Oh! gather all charms into your house. If you can afford it, bring books, and pictures, and cheerful entertainments to the household. But, above all, teach day after day; and every day teach those children, not by half an hour twice a year on the Sabbath day, but day after day; and every day teach them that religion is a great gladness, that it throws chains of gold about the sparkle from the eye, no ring from the foot, no blitheness from the heart, no laughter but that "her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are

Again I remark, that a great many of our business men are tempted to put the attainment of money above the value of the soul. There are men in all occupations who seem to act as though they thought that a pack of bonds and mortgages could be traded off for a title to heaven, as though gold would be lawful tender in that place where it is so common that they make avements out of it. Salvation by Christ is the only salvation. Treasures in heaven are the only incorruptible trea-me of you remember the shipwreck of the Central America. That noble steamer had, I think, about 500 passengers aboard. Suddenly the storm came. and the surges trampled the decks and swung into the hatches, and there went up a hundred-veiced death shriek. The steamer went not down without a struggle. So there are some men who sail on prosperously in life. All's well all's welll. But at last some financial disaster comes: a euroclydon. Dowr they go; the bottom of the commercia sea is strewn with shattered hulks. Oh!

my dear hearers, whatever you lose, though your houses go, though your lands go, though all your earthly poessions perish, may God Almighty, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, save all your souls.

A Resident of St. John, N. B., Makes a Successful Trial of nodd's Ridney Pills.

St. John, N. B., July 8.-Mr. Robert Moore, residing in Indiantown, a suburb of this city, has recently made what allowed by all who are acquainted with the facts to be a most remarkal. recovery. He has been a sufferer from a serious complaint of the kidneys for over seven years, and during that time has suffered excruciatingly. has also suffered considerably in pocket, having paid large sums for medical advice. Quite recently he happened to read of the many cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and with commendable promptitude made a trial of them, with the result that after taking three boxes of the remedy he was entirely restored to health.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rijnhart Arrive There -A Long Journey Through China.

It will be good news to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rijnhart (formerly Miss (Dr.) Carson, of London and Strathroy) to know that they have arrived safely at Kumbum, in Tibet, to engage is the missionary work which Mr. Rijnhart bravely inaugurated. there. They were accompanied by Mr. Ferguson.
Mrs. Rijnhart writes entertainingly to the Tibetan, the organ of the Mission Union, from Lang Cheo, near Northeastern Tibet. Among other things she says:

"We have had a good journey. Praise His dear name! The weather and poor form. He was very wild. He was roads, as far as China' roads can be replaced by Sheere in the sixth. The called good, have been all that we could possibly wish. The days have been bright and sunny. We enjoyed walking part of the way each day (instead of riding) until my Chinese boots had made me footsore, and I was forced to remain in the cart. I never considered the carts at home any too comfortable in which to ride upon our rough roads, but Chinese carts are not to be com-pared with them; for, although the Chinese carts are larger, they are very clumsy, and have no springs.

"We have all been fairly well. Of course the inns were fearfully cold, there being no fires, and we each in turn had a cold. Unfortunately I still have the cough I had when I landed in Shanghai. I had almost recovered, but had to sleep on an over-heated k'ang or mud-brick bed, with fire under it. then arose to resume the journey in the cold morning air two or three hours before day-break; in this way my cold

"Tell Mr. C- how thankful we are for that rifle he gave Mr. Rijnhart, as during the Chinese New Year time it procured for us the only meat we had to eat. You know the shops are closed from the 1st to the 15th of the first month. Mr. Rijnhart shot us ducks and pigeons just sufficient for our food, not any too much. How thankful we were!" Mrs. Rijnhart's letters are in the form of a diary detailing each day's experiences while crossing China to Tibet. which she had not entered when she wrote. They had many curious experiences but were not molested.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

-The officers in the court house will close at 1 o'clock every afternoon during July and Angust. —Of the 4,000 printed copies of the assessment roll placed in the city clerk's office for distribution only 1,500 have been taken away. -No contagious disease placards have been put up for months by the health inspector—a most unusual thing. London is a healthful city.

-Chief of Police Skirving, of Ingersoll, is in search of a sleepy-looking bay pacer, sixteen hands high, which was stolen from Ingersoll on June 30. Local police are also on the scent.

-The new grand stand for Tecumseh Park in London West is well under way. It is situated on the west side of the grounds, and is to have accommodation for several thousand people. The bicycle track is about com-

-Canon Richardson and other Christian Endeavorers will leave for the Boston Convention tomorrow. It opens on Wednesday. Accommodation for 65,-000 has been provided for. Two large tents, 284 by 180 feet, with a seating capacity of 8,000 each, have been pitched on Boston Common. The lunch hall

-The street railway company has been served with a notice that unless they connect the city and London West line a writ will be applied for to compel them to do so. Mr. Wm. Fulton, a resident of London township, just west of the village, is taking the steps. He got on the trolley car in London West recently and had to walk over the Kensington bridge to reach the city line. He claims that his fare entitled him to a continuous trip. It is understood that the village council has a finger in the pie. - At the Police Court this morning, George Harding, charged with being drunk and disorderly on July 1, was dismissed. "John Finnegan, drunk," was engrossed on the blotter once more. John was in on he promised to sign the pledge. Five dollars or twenty days. Joseph Gleeson, Sidney Rogers and Wm. Selkirk, charged with bathing in the river, were allowed to go. Thomas Fox, of East London, subscribed $1 to the city funds for allowing his horse to run at large. The non-payment of wages case of Catharine Walker against Wm. Bernard was withdrawn. THE STEAM ROLLER HERE.

The expected steam roller has arrived in the city. As soon as possible it was unloaded for immediate work. It weighs 121-2 tons on the cars and 14 tons when loaded for business. The cost of it was about $3,-000. It is a huge affair and it is thought will effect great and much needed improv. ments in city thoroughfares. An expert the guests of Wm. Regan, Bothwell. machinist accompanied it from Harrisburg, Pa., and will superintend its first work tomorrow on York street west.

WESTERNERS PASSING THROUGH. Special trains containing delegates from the Western States, to the great C. E. Convention in Boston, passed through the city to day. The majority of the young people dined at the G. T. R. station. Before their trains departed they sang Endeavor songs lustily on the platform.

EVERYTHING FULL. The reservoir at Springbank is full, the ponds are full, and the springs are apparently full, too, for they have been yielding a good supply lately. Through recent steps taken by the water commissioners over half a million gallons extra have daily been going into the reservoir. The lower Colville springs are contributing 32,000 gallons; a small spring a short distance below is worth 80,000 gallons, while over 100,000 gallons are being received from a ditch north of the conduit pipe. This latter spring, however, is allowed to enter the city pipe during the night only, as the duties of workmen would be interfered with during the day. The present condition of the supply has caused the commissioners some satisfaction, and lawn sprinkling will be allowed from 6 to 8. morning and evening. The old steam and hydraulic machinery is doing most of the pumping.

THE ALERTS' THRASHING.

The Full Score of the Game at Galt-Bad Fielding.

The Alert baseball club received the worst thrashing it has had in a long time at Galt on Saturday. The fielding on both sides was wretched, but the errors of the Alerts were far more critical, three bad throws by Hiscott letting in no less than eight runs. Ball was away off and dropped four flys. Tierney and Wood played splendidly, as the score shows, Wood making a home run. The support would have discouraged any pitcher, and Carney, who also thought the umpire was giving him the worst of it, showed up in

The Secret Out.

Some of his answers merit recording. To the question as to when and where he became engaged to Miss Farley, he replied with great dignity but with no apparent reserve:

'Miss Farley never said she would marry me till the morning of the day she died. Then I received a letter from her saying that she would marry me that day at the C- Hotel. I had received manifestations of affection from her before, but never any promise." 'You had professed attachment for her, then, some time previous to this "I first offered myself to her beside her mother's death-bed."

There was feeling in his voice, and there was reserve, and the result upon the minds of those present was something like awe. No one blamed the ceroner for the respect with which he next inquired whether the letter received from Miss Farley was still in

"It is not," was the reply. "I invariably destroyed every line I received from her. It is a custom of mine to preserve no letters." This struck the mass unfavorably. It seemed both unnatural and uncalledfor. But he was in no wise affected by the changed looks about him. There were enough old and discreet wiseacres present to nod approval to a caution they perhaps wished they had themselves maintained during their long

"Then you were but following out your usual habit when you burned the note which Miss Farley left behind her at the hotel?"

"If I may say so, yes." "You have then no objection to telling us what the note contained.' 'None whatever, if I could. But it was a string of unmeaning phrases, of which only one sentence was clear."

"And that was?" "I want no friends about me; it isn't respectable.' Yet she was the one who proposed the marriage," volunteered the doctor, "and at the interview we held in the afternoon no demur was made by her, either as regarded the wedding itself or the manner in which

I proposed to have it conducted." Will you give us the details of that "As nearly as I can, sir. It was such a one as you would expect from a delicate-minded woman who had taken a very important step and was not quite sure how it would be received by her lover. At first she seemed only anxious to learn how I felt about the matter, and when I could not truthfully say she had chosen a very auspicious time for our nuptials, she burst into tears and then became so feverish and incoherent I saw she was not well, and at once began to comfort her. She thereupon grew calmer and listened with attention while I told her of the arrangements which had suggested themselves to me, not making, as I have said, any objection to them either then or at any time before I left." "And what was the manner of your

"It was affectionate on my part, but I am free to say there was some con-straint on hers. With all my efforts to the contrary I had wounded her susceptibilities, sharpened as they were by incipient illness, and she was too much of a woman not to show it. But never expected more than a little unpleasantness, and was as much shocked as anybody when I returned and found her gone. "One more question in this connection, Dr. Molesworth. The clerk testifies that the hour you set for your wedding was nine, yet you came back with the clergyman as early as a quarter after eight. How was that?"

"I was anxious, sir. The more I thought of it the more I was convinced that Miss Farley was on the point of a serious illness. I went early on her account. This was all very satisfactory, too satisfactory for Mr. Gryce. Telegraphing by a gesture to the coroner that he had a suggestion to make, he sent him a line or two written on the back of one of the reporter's notebooks, which upon reading, the coroner remarked to the witness:

"You were alone with Miss Farley room 153 of the C— Hotel when this interview occurred of which you speak?""
"Most certainly, sir."

"A room containing an alcove shut off by curtains?" "I believe there were curtains there, 15% I did not look to see what they shut "How, then, do you know that you two were alone?" It was but a lightning's flash, that look of irrepressible shock and dismay which crossed Dr. Molesworth's face at this intimation. But the coroner saw it as Mr. Gryce had seen it on a former important occasion, and he felt as the detective had felt then, that it outweighed all the witness' words and his most plausible explanations.

"I took it for granted we were," he was saying the next moment in his most even tones. "If you have a witness to the contrary, let her be produced. She may assist me in remembering just what did pass between Miss Farley and myself."

It was a bold stroke, and it succeeded. They had no witness and he soon saw it, and the color which had slightly left his lips came back and his bearing became almost disdainful.

The coroner, who was still following Mr. Gryce's suggestions, regarded him with unabated respect. "You say 'her,"

he smiled. "Why not him?" "Because no man would stoop to listen." The women in the crowd, and there were many, burst forth at this into anything but an inaudible murmur. But the coroner, with a smile and sally, averted the coming storm, and the examination continued. But not in the same line, for the coroner, who was now not only convinced that he had a man of undoubted trustworthiness before him, but also of no common intelligence and skill, foresaw that the interests of justice would be better advanced by a seeming acceptance of the witness' explanations and a consequent lulling of any fears he might entertain. He, therefore, while pursuing his inquiries closely and to the point, took care to do so in a way that left the doctor all his self-respect, a course which evidently met with Mr. Gryce's approval, for he introduced no more suggestions, but confined himself en-tirely to giving confidences to and receiving them from the spectacle-case he held tightly clenched in his hand. It is, therefore, to be supposed that he saw nothing worthy his attention in the doctor's answers in regard to his pursuit of the flying bride; nor could there have been any new fact elicited in regard to his final discovery of the same. Therefore, as Mr. Gryce was a man upon whose judgment in such matters we can rely, we will pass over this portion of the examination and come at once to the questions with which it closed. They were delicate in their nature, and were put with as much consideration as possible. "Dr. Molesworth, during your acguaintance with Miss Farley, have you ever had reason to suppose she was receiving addresses from any other gentleman than yourself?"

It was an unexpected attack, and the doctor paused a moment before replying. Then he answered distinctly:

"Excuse my persistency, but the mystery of Miss Farley's action in this whole matter has not been made clear, even with the explanations you have given us. I must, therefore, ask if you know of any other man in whom Miss Farley might have been interested?" There was no hesitation this time.

"Miss Farley had given her heart to me. I never had reason to doubt it or her up to the moment I found she had fled from me."

"Were you in the habit of meeting her out of the house where you both "No, sir. The one interview we had at the hotel is the only one which ever took place between us outside of Mrs. Olney's house." "Yet your meetings there were infrequent and according to all accounts in the presence of other persons." "Miss Farley was a pure and unprotected girl, sir. She knew my sentiments, and I waited for her response in perfect confidence. I should have blamed myself if I had attracted notice to our position by any undue display of my regard." "Then you cannot tell us what kept Miss Farley out oftentimes till 12 o'clock at night?"

"No: but I can suggest that it was her business of dressmaking. She had more than one patron living far up "So you know the names of her patrons? "I do not." "None of them?"

The doctor's brows came together. "One question more. Can you tell us where Miss Farley spent the last few days of her life?" "I cannot; she did not tell me." "Did you know she was going away on a visit?" "Yes, but I knew no more. I did not ask her any particulars about the matter, and she volunteered none."

"You can at least tell us from what place the letter was post-marked which you received the morning of her death."

MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

The following address by the members of the Methodist Church, Birr, was presented to Mrs. (Rev.) Redmond in the evening previous to leaving for their new home at Dorchester Station:

"Dear Sister,-This occasion deeply impresses us with the fleetness of time. It is now three years since you and our beloved pastor came to us. At that time you were utter strangers to us, but the kind and Christian spirit which you manifested toward us have won our admiration and affections. As a laborer in church and Sunday school work, we always found you ready to do the noble part. In your home we never can forget your hospitality and warm-heartedness, and when you came to our homes you always brought cheerfulness and sunshine with you. And now we regret that it has pleased the stationing committee to remove you from us to another field of labor. But we would assure you that our parting with you gives us great sorrow, and we shall ever look back to those three years of unbroken harmony and peace and sweet reflections. And, before bidding you adieu, we cordially reque you, on behalf of the members of Birr congregation, to accept this address and purse as a slight token of our love and respect for you. And you may bear in mind that our united prayers go up to the great throne on high that richest blessings may rest upon you, your dear boy and loving husband. Signed in behalf of the congregation, R. H. Morgan, R. White, J. C. P. Hughes.

An electrograph, for marking linen indelibly, was shown to the Royal Society lately. The fabric is damped and a current passed for two second's from a silver die, carrying silver into the fabric wherever it touches; the current is then reversed for three seconds reducing the metal; the result is that metallic silver is deposited on the tis-

A well known Austrian engineer, M. Pfister, says the Railway Review, is stated to have discovered a remarkable property of the trunks of trees, namely, that of retaining the salt of sea-water that has filtered throught the trunk in the direction of the fibers. He has consequently constructed an apparatus designed to utilize this property in obtaining portable water for the use of ships' crews. This apparatus consists of a pump, which sucks up the sea-water into a reservoir and then forces it into the filter formed by the tree trunk. As soon as the pressure reaches 1.5 to 2.5 atmospheres the water is seen—at the end of from one to three minutes, according to the kind of wood used-to make its exit from the other extremity of the trunk, at first in drops and then in fine streams, the water thus filtered being potable, freed, in fact, from every particle of the usual saline taste which is such a drawback to water obtained in the ordinary way.

The electric candle, according to the Scientific American, is in great request in England for the lighting and decoration of dining and other tables. An ingenious device for lighting the candle is provided by placing small pads under the table cloth, and taking the current from them by means of two pin points in the base of the candlestick. The candles are, of course, extinguished on being taken from the table, and are relighted when they are replaced in the proper posi-tion. They are so arranged that the bulb and the glass imitation of a wax candle can be removed, when the candlestick can be used for an ordinary candle. When used with shades of colored silk, the electric candle makes one of the prettiest additions to a din-ner table that it is possible to imagine.

What is described as a most novel device for keeping boilers clean, says Industries and Iron, is an electric water purifier, manufactured in Cleveland, U.S.A. It consists of an electric battery, the feed water passing through, connecting the positive and negative plates, thus depriving the carbonates of their solvent. It is stated to be in successful operation on several sta-tionary plants.

It is stated that Dr. Bertillon, inventor of the famous Parislan method of identifying criminals by exact measurement, has discovered a new method for identifying handwriting by enlarging the letters by photography and measuring the alterations due to beating of the pulse.

The price of platinum has increased five times during the past year and the metal will soon be more expensive than gold. This is due to the increased demand for electrical purposes.

THE DOCTOR ROARED.

Dr. McTavish, of Edinburgh, was something of a ventriloquist, and it befell that he wanted a boy to assist in the surgery, who must necessarily be of strong nerves. He received several applications, and when telling a lad what the duties were, in order to test his nerves, he would say, while pointing to a grinning skeleton standing upright in a corner: "Part of your work will be to feed the skeleton there, and, while you are here, you might as well have a try to

A few lads would consent to a trial, and receive a basin of hot gruel and a spoon. While they were pouring the hot mass into the skull the doctor would make his voice appear to proceed from the jaws of the bony customer, and gurgle out: "Br-r-r-gr-h-uh, This was too much, and, without exception, the lads dropped the basin and bolted. The doctor began to despair of ever getting a suitable helpmate, until a small boy came and was given the gruel and spoon. After the first spoonful the skeleton appeared to say "Gr-r-u-h-r-hr; that's Shoveling in the scalding gruel as fast as ever, the lad rapped the skull, and impatiently retorted: "Weel, jist blaw on't, ye auld bony.' The doctor sat down and fairly roared, but he engaged him on the spot.

It was during one of these severe attacks. It was very natural that under such circumstances numerous friends would recommend as many different "cure alls." She tried Cherry Pectoral, Tar, Linseed and other preparations, but was growing generally worse when a friend who had been benefited by Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam advised her to try that, and in a few days she was out of bed, and the best feature is that she is now entirely freed from all simptoms of the Bronchitis, of which she never hoped to be cured. No Corresponding Increase of Revenue. Ottawa, July 7 .- The financial statement for the month of June brings the Dominion accounting down to the end of the fiscal year. It shows the net debt on that date to have been $246,-820,873—an apparent increase of $6,000, 600 in the year. The consolidated fund account gives the revenue for June as $2.612.645, an increase of $195,000 over the June revenue last year. In the fiscal year ended June 30 the revenue was $33,119,485, or two and a quarter millions less than 1894. The expenditure, as far as known, was $31,228,872, as compared with $30,755,359 the previous year. But millions of expenditure have yet to be charged. For the fiscal year the capital expenditure was $3,613,313, for the preceding years $4,738,156. The apparent deficit is over $3,000,000, but this will be increased largely when the total
