Nickle Powerless To Make Sturgeon Falls Enforce O.T.A.

PROVINCIAL MEN MUST UPHOLD ACT

Attorney-General Admits Sturgeon Falls Action Leaves Department Helpless.

RESULT AWAITED

Town Chief States He Must Do as Superiors in the Council Dictate.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—The attorney-general's department is powerless to take any action in respect to the resolution passed by the Sturgeon Falls council.

"What can I do?" questioned Mr. Nickle when asked what action he proposed to take. "They have refused to enforce the act. We can't make them. The only course left open to us is to station our own officers permanently in the town."

CHIEF STANDS PAT.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Sturgeon Falls, Nov. 21.—Secession rumors have smoldered throughout the north for months, if not years past, but it has remained for this little lumbering town to fan them into open flame.

Sturgeon Falls has seceded, if not from Ontario, at least from the Ontario temperance act. On Oct. 23 last, Sturgeon Falls recorded a vote of 1,040 for government control, and of 109 for the O. T. A.

Now with a superb gesture of renunciation and with a shrug of its shoulders, the cold shoulder, Sturgeon Falls has pronounced the O. T. A. taboo. It will have no more to do with the enforcement of that statute, and the town council so stood this week and instructed the police force to take no further hand in the enforcement of the act.

Sturgeon Falls is no hotbed of rum, romanism and rebellion, even though it is predominantly French-Canadian and has read itself out of the O. T. A. enforcement column, and its manoeuvre is more of a boycott than an armed uprising, as it does not propose to prohibit prohibition, merely to ignore it, intends to test its own will power to see whether it can take the O. T. A. or leave it alone.

Not Expelling Statue.

It is not expelling the offending statute, it is merely taking a leaf from the English public schools and sending it to Coventry. Other Ontario cities and statesmen have inveigled against the O. T. A., but it has remained for Sturgeon Falls to take the initiative in direct action.

Zotique Mageau, M.P.P., has stolen the thunder of Jim McCausland, M.P.P., what the constituences of McCausland and Wiechel and Wilson have merely peeped at; Mageau's home town has put it into actual practice. The pioneering spirit of the north has scored, once more, over the sophistication and the sophistry of the south.

Sturgeon Falls proposed to constitute itself the Gandhi of Ontario and inaugurate a policy of non-co-operation, it has washed its hands in the government control basin of responsibility for dry law enforcement, it has dropped the reins of the water wagon and served notice on Queen's park to hire another coachman pronto.

Municipally, Sturgeon Falls will henceforth be blind to blind pigs, no longer will it leg after bootleggers, the word "dry" will have no place in its bright municipal lexicon and the symbols "O. T. A." will no longer be admissible in its municipal cross-word puzzle. It has expunged the camel from its municipal escutcheon

ANDERSON FOR MAYOR

Why The Advertiser is supporting John Anderson—leadership and harmony in the city council are the starting point of good government—two years of quarrelling.

In nine more days the voters of London must choose between John Anderson and George A. Wenige as mayor for 1925.

The Advertiser advises its readers to vote for John Anderson.

The Advertiser chooses Anderson because it is convinced that THE BUSINESS OF THE CITY WILL BE BETTER CONDUCTED WITH ANDERSON LEADING THE ALDERMEN THAN WITH WENIGE FIGHTING THEM.

Leadership and harmony of the city council are the starting point of good government. Without leadership and without harmony there is no possibility of the city's affairs being properly managed.

A QUARRELING COUNCIL CAN NOT WORK.

A city council divided by quarrels and personalities, a city clerk, a city treasurer, a city engineer, other officials suspicious of plots against their office and under constant threat of interference in their duties, can not hope and can not be expected to give their best. Too much of their time and energy are required for defending themselves from attack and for preparing counter-attack.

The truth of that conclusion is so obvious that it requires no argument. And unfortunately it is equally true as a description of present conditions in the city.

WENIGE CAN NOT LEAD THE COUNCIL.

Quite apart from consideration of Mr. Wenige's attitude on public questions, and quite apart also from the details of his performance during the last two years, both of which may later be discussed, The Advertiser believes that Mr. Wenige is not the man for mayor of London because he can not or will not lead the city council.

HE HAS HAD EVERY CHANCE.

Mr. Wenige has had every chance to prove himself a leader during the last two years. When he took office in December, 1922, he had a sympathetic attitude from the two London newspapers, an overwhelming majority, and a city council impressed by these circumstances. He has had no opposition as mayor for two years and he has had two city councils to experiment with. And he has had an undeniable personal popularity due to his characteristics of energy and alertness.

EVERYTHING HAS BEEN IN MR. WENIGE'S FAVOR AND HE HAS NOT MADE GOOD.

He has turned both his city councils against him until there is not an alderman in any of the four wards today who can work with him or who wants him as mayor.

He has quarreled and interfered with the city's permanent officials until there is not a single official who is able to work under him.

He makes no bones about it. He can not help quarreling, because he likes it; it is his nature. He publicly declares that he wants "a fighting council."

NOT GOOD BUSINESS FOR LONDON.

All that sounds very vigorous and energetic, but it is not good business for London.

The city council is the city's board of directors. They are a team playing the game for London.

No board of directors in any business, no team in any game, can accomplish anything unless they are united in opinion and united in effort.

No—in spite of the ability and the good qualities which Mr. Wenige undoubtedly possesses, he will not do as mayor and it is time that he was out.

THE COUNCIL NEEDS A LEADER.

The city council needs a leader to give it unity. The sort of man they need has offered himself in John Anderson, and the present aldermen are openly saying so.

TWO YEARS ARE ENOUGH FOR WENIGE; THE VOTERS SHOULD ELECT JOHN ANDERSON.

"Sea-divided Irishmen are mourning Ireland's greatest cardinal," read a cable from Archbishop Mannix of Melbourne, Australia, while the archbishop of Ottawa, expressed deep condolence on the part of Canadian Catholics.

MRS. FLORENCE K. HARDING,

widow of President Warren G. Harding, died at Marion, Ohio, today after an illness of some weeks. Mrs. Harding had seldom appeared in public since the death of her husband two years ago.

STEADY BUSINESS GROWTH IS SEEN

London Brokers Attribute the Stock Market Jumps to Recent Elections.

A general feeling of security on the part of investors generated by the recent presidential election in the United States, and by the return of Baldwin in England is given by local stockbrokers as the reason for the record high levels of many stocks on the New York exchange.

J. W. P. Jones of Jones, Easton, McCallum, stockbrokers, said this morning.

"Now that the Republican party in the United States has been returned to power by such a large majority and now that the Conservatives in England are in the saddle again there is a general feeling that no legislation adverse to capital will be introduced in either country for some time. This is all the more the case in the States where La Follette was backed by the American federation of labor and in spite of that fact so badly beaten.

Railroads Jump.

"This shows that there is not the least danger of legislation which would be adverse to capital being brought in for some time. Railroad stocks, especially, have been lower than they should have been owing to this fact of adverse legislation. The way in which they have jumped in the last few days shows the reaction on the part of the public. Now that a stable government known to be favorable to capital is in power on both sides of the Atlantic, I think we may safely look for a steady high level in railroad stocks for some time now, unless something unforeseen should turn up, which is not now apparent."

Several business men and brokers in the city took the same point of view. As evidence the effect which has been produced on the New York exchange, sales yesterday totalled 594,300 shares, the heaviest day's trading since Dec. 21, 1916, when the frenzied trading which followed the "leak" of President Wilson's peace note sent sales above the 3,000,000-share mark.

Avalanche of Buying.

The avalanche of buying orders for the speculative rail issues which poured into the stock market was instrumental in carrying the general price average to a record high for all time. Sixty-three individual high records were established during the day's trading, in which 550 issues were dealt in, as compared with yesterday's high of 574.

A series of optimistic predictions by railroad executives, regarding 1924 earnings, reports of progress in several pending mergers, and of the successful conclusion of refunding plans by some of the roads, contributed to the extraordinary demand for the carrier shares.

Thirty-two rail issues eclipsed their previous 1924 peak prices, with New Haven and Kansas City Southern leading the advance on gains of 2⅜ and 4¾ points. Now New Haven sold at 32, the highest price in two years, in response to reports that the company had arranged successfully for the refunding of a $23,000,000 bond issue. Other rail stocks which scaled new peaks for the year included Missouri Pacific, "Katy," Norfolk & Southern, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Wheeling & Lake Erie pfd.

FOUR HURT WHEN CAR TURNS OVER

Machine Plunges Into Ditch on Lambeth Highway Today.

NO LONDONERS

Victims Are Rushed to Victoria Hospital for Treatment—All Will Live.

Four persons weer brought to Victoria hospital this afternoon suffering from injuries received in a motor accident on the Lambeth highway when their car plunged into the ditch.

Mr. Bailey was proceeding along the highway towards London when his car became ditched and turned over. No definite account of the accident has been received, although it is said another car cutting in front of the Bailey motor caused the latter machine to turn off into the ditch.

Mr. Bailey had been visiting at Iona Station and was returning from that village when the accident happened.

A passing motorist took the four injured persons to Victoria hospital, where they were attended by members of the interne staff.

This afternoon it was reported by hospital authorities that none of the injured were in danger and would recover.

Rev. J. MacKay Denies Charge

London Pastor States He Was Misquoted.

Rev. James MacKay, pastor of New St. James' Presbyterian church, states that he was misquoted in the report appearing in the Ottawa Citizen of an address made by him in that city last Monday evening on the question of church union.

Mr. MacKay's statement of what he said is as follows:

"Referring to the Methodist church, I have always regarded it and still do as an honored branch of the church of Christ, possessing many capable ministers and splendid men and women in her membership. Nevertheless, although my own church may be more strict and more severe in her life and teaching, she suits me better; she suits my temperament better, I feel that in her I can serve my Lord better.

"As to organic church union, it has never appealed to me as to some. It would seem as to some it were a regular idol. I never bowed the knee to the Baal of organic union and never intend to."

SHIPWRECKED PARTY SAVED AFTER MANY HOURS ADRIFT

Stirring Tale of Exposure at Sea in Open Boat Is Related.

SKIPPER RESCUED

Seaman Plunges Into Water and Saves Drowning Captain.

Associated Press Despatch.

Boston, Nov. 21.—A stirring story of shipwreck, long exposure in an open boat, hunger and thirst and the distress that sometimes comes to women and men who go down to the sea in ships was told today by Mrs. L. B. Bishop, of Malden, seagoing wife of the skipper of the schooner Susan B. With Miss Katherine Woodworth of Rockport, her 18-year-old niece, Captain Bishop, John Bishop, their son, who was the schooner's mate, and three members of the crew, the 60-year-old woman, who has been to sea 27 years, was landed here after her first shipwreck by the steamer City of Atlanta, which had picked up the party from a yawl 150 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The little group of seven, huddled in the open boat for 53 hours, with food rendered uneatable by salt water saturation, attracted the attention of their rescuers by waving blankets. Previously three vessels had passed them, their lookouts failing to see skirts and petticoats waved by the women.

Forced to Abandon Ship.

"We could not have stood it much longer," Mrs. Bishop said. Stories that Miss Woodworth had kept the spirits of the shipwrecked ones alive by singing songs had preceded her ashore, but this she disclaimed.

"How could one sing under such circumstances? But we did try to be brave," was her remark.

The Susan B.'s crew almost lost their skipper as they set out from her side. The schooner, owned in Providence, R.I., and laden with coal from Norfolk for St. Stephen, N.B., had been wrecked Sunday night by a northwest gale and heavy seas, and with cabin flooded and seams opened, had to be abandoned Monday morning. It was off Winter Quarter lightship that Captain Bishop gave the word to abandon ship.

Saves Captain's Life.

The women first, then the crew, and last the skipper went overside. Captain Bishop missed his footing as he let himself down from the pitching deck and fell into the water. The tossing seas engulfed him as he went down. Then Wilbur S. Jerrod, of Vineyard Haven, a seaman, plunged overboard from the yawl, stroked his way to the drowning captain, and as he rose took him in tow. They were helped aboard.

The heavy seas shipped by the yawl spoiled food and flares, and as they drifted Monday and Tuesday through succeeding day and night the Susan B.'s people became exhausted as they waved blankets and dresses in futile attempts to attract attention. They had drifted 80 miles when the City of Atlanta picked them up on her way from Savannah. Hot broths, food and medical attention had restored them when they arrived today.

POLITICS NOW FEARED IN WEST WHEAT POOL

Directorate Ban on Agrarian Officials Is Called Unsound Principle.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 21.—The question of whether or not the Saskatchewan wheat pool is in politics was raised in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday during the debate on the speech from the throne, by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of highways.

A new principle had been introduced into the political life of the province, continued Mr. Gardiner, by the wheat pool organizations' decision that no member of the directorate should serve as an official of any farmers' organization, or of the legislature.

That section was based on advice given by Aaron Sapiro, said Mr. Gardiner, but he was not satisfied personally that the principle was a sound one.

LEAVE GIVEN FOR APPEAL FROM FINE

Action Against $600,000 Penalty Will Be Fought in Supreme Court.

REASONS CITED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Appeal against the imposition by Chief Justice Meredith of a fine of $600,000 jointly on Peter Smith and Aemilius Jarvis, Sen., will be made in the Ontario courts. Leave to appeal was granted by Mr. Justice Middleton this morning. Both Jarvis and Smith are serving prison terms, the former of six months and the latter of three years.

The two were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the province of Ontario in connection with the sale of a bond issue, marketed by the Jarvis firm. Smith was then provincial treasurer.

Mr. Justice Meredith decided that the commissions taken by Jarvis were excessive, and after sentencing the two to prison, he imposed a further fine of $600,000, representing the amount he considered should be returned to the province out of the Jarvis profits on the bond sale.

Counsel for Jarvis based their application for appeal on the grounds that the sentence was harsh and oppressive, that it was bad law to impose a fine jointly on two people and to specify in the judgment that either or both must remain in jail until the fine is paid, and also that Jarvis was entitled to the proportion of profit his firm received because their administration admittedly had netted the province about $2,000,000, because the bonds were placed in the best market.

TWO ALLEGED SLAYERS FAIL TO EVADE TRIAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Nov. 21.—The motion of J. J. Creelman, K.C., defending Charles and Francis Aikin of Whitehall, N. Y., who are charged with the murder of George Benton, farmer, at Roxham, Que., on May 7, asking for suspension of the hearing on the grounds that the court had no jurisdiction, was dismissed by Magistrate Lemay of Sherbrooke, sitting in St. Johns, Que., where the trial is being conducted, and the case was ordered to proceed.

Sheriff S. Day of Plattsburg, who arrested the Aikin brothers in a garage at Plattsburg on the morning following the shooting, produced a shotgun which he had found in an automobile truck, alleged to have been driven by the two accused while it was in the garage. Witness also produced a roll of bills which he said he found on the two prisoners.

ANDERSON ROUNDLY CHEERED AT CIVIC ELECTION MEETING

Candidate For Mayor Gets Splendid Reception in Ward 2.

SILENCES HECKLERS

John Anderson, candidate for mayor, was cheered to the echo by a capacity audience at last night's election meeting in Talbot street school. Many citizens stood in the halls and at the back of the auditorium and gave the municipal candidates an attentive hearing., injecting plenty of interest with their frequent queries shot at the candidates. Opponents of Mr. Anderson were persistent hecklers, but the popular alderman was quick to "nail the lie" whenever it was uttered. He was able to give assurance of his stand on a number of things when hecklers came out with veiled suggestions.

The candidates generally were given an attentive hearing. Mayor Wenige, opposing Ald. Anderson, went over much the same ground that he had covered at the Riverview school meeting the previous night. He refused to answer several questions asked by the audience, asserting that they were not in order.

Wenige Dislikes Harmony.

Mr. Wenige averred that he had used all alike, whether they had worn top hats or overalls, whether they had been black or white. He did not want a harmonious council He wanted fight and criticism. If 13 men agreed on all questions the city would still be a town of log huts and the people would still be driving ox-carts.

He read from his instructions to city hall officials, and declared that the department heads had to be courteous or he would dismiss them.

"Do you think courtesy should be observed at all times?" he was asked "Yes."

"Then why don't you observe it in your business as mayor?"

Wenige refused to discuss courtesy further.

"Tell us something more about the street railway," one of the audience called. The mayor had nothing more to say on that point.

The mayor declared that most of the things outlined in his definite platform of two years ago had been carried out. He excused the non-reduction of assessment with the statement that the new system had not been put into effect until this year, and that many new houses had been built this year.

Anderson Cheered.

Cheers greeted Ald. Anderson as he made his way to the platform to set before the electors his aims as a mayoralty candidate.

"Is there any one in the audience whose taxes are lower this year?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. Mine are 25 cents lower," briskly answered one man.

"You couldn't see the reduction in mine with a microscope," answered another.

Mr. Anderson refused to draw the city treasurer into any controversy on the tax question. The treasurer was as efficient an official as in any city in the country and his ability had saved the city thousands of dollars. "If he'd had co-operation from the mayor's chair he should have, then he would have given you much better service," declared Mr. Anderson amid applause.

"The mayor turned a complete somersault on the street railway question," criticized Mr. Anderson at the mayor's glib dismissal of the street railway problem with a few words. The street railway ballot tendered at the council has been tendered at the company's price and not the citizen's, and Mr. Anderson had helped to vote it down for that reason.

Takes Mayor To Task.

Mr Anderson read from the report of an unemployment meeting, to which he was invited, but was unable to attend because of other council business. The mayor had attacked his aldermen and told the workmen that the councillors "hadn't enough guts to get out and support the matter." It was fine language to use and expect co-operation. An interruption by Mr. Wenige was turned aside by Ald. Anderson with a remark that "I didn't interrupt you, your worship."

Ald. Anderson told an inquirer that he was in favor of temperance amongst city hall employees, and would always support suspension of employees if evidence was sufficient to justify it.

One of Mr. Anderson's employees, claiming service of 16 years, declared that the popular alderman had always treated his men fairly and honestly. This came when a returned man in the audience intimated that Mr. Anderson had, through the Salvation Army, practically turned him down in a request for work a few years ago, offering 50c a day for a job.

"That's a lie," declared John Anderson. "If you'll come with me tomorrow to the place where you heard it, I'll see that the statement is corrected."

Other Candidates.

Four aldermanic candidates for election in ward two, and three candidates for election on the board of education spoke. Ald. Harry Bottrill, Ald. L. H. Douglass, J. M. Donahue and C. M. Linnell urged support in the aldermanic elections, while Mrs. Edith Tutt, Trustee S. F. Lawrason and W. G. Murray were the board of education prospects. T. W. McFarland, public utilities commissioner, acted as chairman.

An advocate of the elimination of the level crossing on Richmond street at the C. P. R. tracks, J. M. Donahue, a new man in civic politics, solicited support. He admitted that he had no cut-and-dried policy towards the big issues that were bound to come up during the next year, but would serve to the best of his ability.

"They talk about needing co-operation," stated C. M. Linnell, another aldermanic candidate. "The co-operation in the city council the last few years has been terrible. If anybody else had it in their business they'd be in the poorhouse."

"It is right for them to come out and blab like a bunch of school kids that they're going to do this and that, and then when they get in say, 'Oh, we're jolly good fellows!'"

Opposes Expenditures.

No new major expenditures for collegiate institutes would be sanctioned by him as an alderman next year, Ald. Harry Bottrill told the crowd. He was of the opinion that the schools were filled nearly to capacity now, and that there was no need "to build palaces and have frills." He wanted to keep down the tax rate and promised to do all he could in that direction.

Ald. L. H. Douglass asked for serious consideration by the ratepayers of the bylaw proposals. Personally he was going to vote against any change in the form of civic government, but had already given his support to the $55,000 yearly grant to the University of Western Ontario. He recounted his actions on many questions which had come up in the council. Referring to the estimates he emphasized the fact that it was illegal for the council to spend money on major items, after they had been struck out of the estimates.

Mrs. Edith Tutt was given an enthusiastic ovation when she spoke as a board of education candidate. She declared that economy was often dangerous in educational matters, as the children were deserving of the best equipment and training possible.

Defends Playgrounds.

A member of the audience wanted expenditure on playgrounds eliminated, erroneously stating that this was part of the school budget. He said that his boy had been seriously hurt because of his attendance at one of the playgrounds. Mrs. Tutt's ready answer was that her own boy had been badly injured by a motor truck on the streets. If he had been on the playgrounds such a mishap wouldn't have occurred.

Trustee S. F. Lawrason attacked the criticism which had been laid at the school board for expenditure on "fads and frills." There was no such thing in school expenditure. Much good work was being done for backward and subnormal pupils, as well as for children with defective eyesight. The cadets were proving a good means of instilling discipline into the boys who did not get as much as they needed in their home life.

An inventory of school equipment and the providing of plans of each of the schools had been a recent work of the schools department, and it came in for the approval of Mr. Lawrason. He criticized Ald. Bottrill for voting against the movement for high schools and at the same time voting to approve the new Empress avenue school expenditure in West London.

W. G. Murray, another candidate, spoke briefly. He said that the board had never had an architect included on its personnel, and believed that many questions could be better dealt with provided the advice of an architect-member were available. In this way expenditure on buildings would not be so open to criticism.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N.E., Portage la Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action; internally medicated vapors are inhaled, while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.—Advt.

NAVARRO STARS IN "THE RED LILY"

Life in Parisian Underworld Depicted in Picture at Capitol Theatre.

"The Red Lily," a Metro-Goldwyn picture, showing at the Capitol theatre for the rest of this week, with Ramon Navarro and Enid Bennett, is sure to please all those who love their movies arranged on the approved melodrama plan. While it is quite frankly melodramatic in the style of the older moving pictures, it has the benefit of a good cast. Together with the stars are Wallace Beery and Mitchell Lewis. Beery is always good. As a man of the Paris underworld he succeeds in never overdoing the part, something the majority of movie actors and actresses have yet to learn.

The story is that of Jean Leonee, the son of the maire of a small Brittany village, and Marise, the daughter of the village cobbler, and of their adventures in search of happiness. The maire is the stubborn and short-sighted heavy father. He opposes the love of his boy for the girl and adds to his paternal severity by thinking the boy a thief as well, having found the safe broken open.

Jean goes off to Paris with Marise, where he loses her, and where not finding her he disappears into the vortex of the demi-mode. He becomes in reality a thief, a victim of police methods in all big cities, is shot and wounded and again imprisoned.

Eventually after escapes which involve swimming down a large city sewer, and after his imprisonment is over he meets the girl of his younger dreams, is married and presumably lives happily ever after.

Ramon Navarro and Enid Bennett play very well, and the picture is well supplied with shudders.

A Pathe picture, a good comedy, "Hot Shoes"; number seven of "Fight to Win" series featuring Jack Dempsey, and two girls and a man who sing some of the old songs of our grandfather's time, conclude the program for the week.

DEAN FOX ELECTED TO HEAD AUTHORS

Western Ontario Branch of Canadian Association Choses Officers.

Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, dean of the college of arts, University of Western Ontario, was made president of the Western Ontario branch of the Canadian authors' association at a reorganization meeting held at the university yesterday afternoon. Mrs. D. C. MacGregor (Marion Keith) was elected first vice-president, and Dr. J. H. Coyne, St. Thomas, second vice-president. Miss J. Fidler will be secretary for the coming year.

L. Burpee, secretary of the joint international commission at Ottawa, was the speaker. He took up the matter of reorganization of the league, and spoke of the objects of the association. One of the aims will be to raise the standard of literary work in Canada and maintain its position.

The present copyright laws came up for discussion. It was shown the need for modifications to protect Canadian authors.

It was decided to hold meetings at different points in Western Ontario from time to time, especially where there were writers and others interested in the association. The headquarters will remain in London.

Twenty members were present. Representatives came from St. Thomas, Windsor, Strathroy and other points. The executive will meet at an early date to make arrangements to celebrate Canadian authors' week, which will be held early in December.

Following the meeting the members had tea in the university cafeteria.

PREPARATIONS ARE MADE FOR ESCAPE FROM JAIL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Whitby, Ont., Nov. 20.—Preparations for what may have been a wholesale jail break from the county jail have been discovered. In a small window in the corridor one bar has been sawn through and another partly sawn. In making the discovery jailers could find no trace of the instrument used. There are a number of prisoners in the jail, most of them serving sentences of from three to six months.

Police Aids Fear O.T.A. Breakers

Canadian Press Despatch.

Oshawa, Nov. 20.—Recent murders in Hamilton, said to be chargeable to the vengeance of bootleggers, have caused some uneasiness amongst men who have been assisting police here to detect breakers of the liquor law. Two men last night in a local cafe telephoned for police protection and were conducted home under police guard. Nine men who recently were arrested for breaches of the Ontario temperance act had entered the cafe together.

GLORIA SWANSON APPEARS AT LOEW'S

Gloria Swanson in her latest picture, "Wages of Virtue," drew a large crowd at Loew's laast night. It was a good picture and the audience enjoyed it. The three vaudeville acts were all peppy and so was the Christie comedy, "Court Plaster."

There are a lot of Gloria Swanson fans in London, and they should not fail to see Gloria in a colorful love story with the famous French foreign legion as a background of romance. It is undoubtedly one of Miss Swanson's best screen roles.

Hers is the role of a young Neapolitan girl of the slums who becomes the pride of the Foreign Legion, a little mother to "men without a country." Ben Lyon is a recruit in the Legion, a young American with whom Carmelita falls in love.

Mildred Rogers and Jack Dorking are both dancers of ability, Miss Rogers being especially good.

Jack Ryan and Bee O'Neil put on a song and dance act that made a big hit.

The Clayton and Drew players in a Shakespearian travesty of Romeo and Juliet entitled, "When Caesar Marks Antony," gave the actors a chance to use a lot of local names and places, which tickled the fancies of the audience. They made such a hit with one of the supers that he almost had to be carried from the stage. The vaudeville acts certainly pleased.

GERALD GRIFFIN IN IRISH COMEDY

Well-Known Singer Delights Grand Audience — "The Rose of Killarney" Pleases.

Gerald Griffin, with his irresistible Irish humor and his musical Irish voice, won a large number of friends when he presented his romantic little comedy, "The Rose of Killarney," at the Grand theatre last night.

Mr. Griffin has an attractive personality. This, with his clear and silvery voice, makes him peculiarly suited to the part of "Larry O'Sullivan," which he plays. There is pathos as well as rollicking humor in "The Rose of Killarney," which is a delightful illustration of the old saying "There's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream."

The play has a delightful habit of jumping from Ireland to New York and back again to Ireland. But the songs which Mr. Griffin sings are all Irish songs, and songs which have a way of reaching the heart.

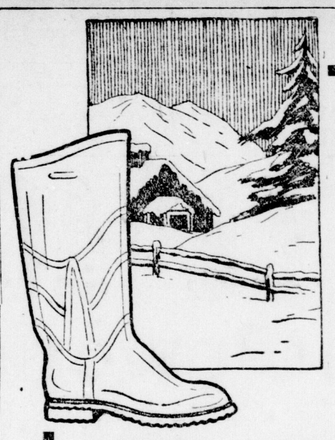

"My Sweet Killarney Rose" is the song hit of the play, sung by Larry O'Sullivan to pretty Rose Donovan. It is capable of melting the coldest heart. "The Welcome on the Mat" is another favorite. Then there is "Ireland Is Heaven To Me," an outpouring of patriotic love for his homeland by the alien in New York. "Shamrock Leaves" and "Just Day Dreams."

Mr. Griffin is supported by a capable cast. Kathleen Griffin, as the Rose of Killarney, is a clever little actress, while J. S. Murray, as Timothy Donovan, and Hattie Foley, as Widow O'Sullivan, are as fine a pair of comedians as one would want to see.

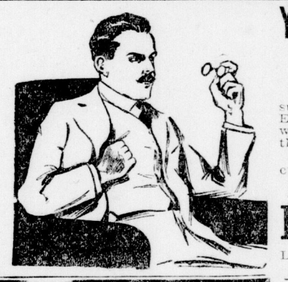

Mr. Griffin has brought his play the whole world around, beginning in San Francisco in July of 1920, on from there to Honolulu, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, England and Ireland, and back to America.

He is now preparing a second play, "Mollie Machree," written for him by Cecil B. DeMille.

"The Rose of Killarney" will be played at the Grand theatre for the rest of the week.

"CANADA FIRST" URGED BY KELLY

VITAL POINTS

Russell Kelly, president of a Hamilton advertising agency, speaking to the London Kiwanis club today in the Tecumseh house, urged on the members the claims of Canada as a prosperous country and of the benefits which would ensue in the dominion from determined co-operative effort.

He gave certain things as being vital in the regeneration of business in Canada. They were the inculcation in the children of the history of the dominion, the explanation to young men that there were many Canadians who had stayed at home and succeeded, and that there was no real advantage in crossing the international line to seek and attain business success. That Canadian coal should be used more than it is by Canadians, and that Nova Scotia coal in particular should be shipped into Quebec and Ontario. That a tax should be placed on all pulpwood exported from the country. That there should be a "Buy in Canada" drive put into actual practice, and that further and more friendly co-operation between the farmer and the city man would be beneficial to the country at large.

Pulpwood Embargo.

On the question of a pulpwood embargo, one of the most important questions the country is now facing, he said, Mr. Kelly quoted a man from Northern Ontario who had been in the business of lumber for 25 years as follows:

"What the country needs is not an embargo on pulpwood but a tax on all pulpwood exported. The embargo would prevent many small farmers in the pulpwood country from getting their farms cleared and a profit from the wood. If there were a tax of $5 on pulpwood from all government lands and a tax of $1 on all wood from private lands, and this was put aside in a fund to conserve our national lumber interests and resources, it would be the best move ever undertaken, from a Canadian standpoint."

Use Nova Scotia Coal.

He was plain-spoken as to the situation in Nova Scotia, and as to the need of using the maritime coal in this province if the harmony of the country was to be preserved.

"Down there," he said, "there is too often a feeling that Canada ends at Montreal or Quebec. If we could take their coal and use others to supplant the fuel which we get each year from the states and for which we pay every twelve months $100,000,000, it would go a long way to alleviating the unrest and very unpleasant feeling which today exists in the maritime provinces of the Dominion."

Mr. Kelly said that in Hamilton the Kiwanis club was arranging to send speakers to the various schools to explain the history and natural resource strength of the Dominion to the school children.

It was also a Thespian day at the club. Gerald Griffin, who is singing at the grand opera house for the rest of the week, was a guest of the club and sang several of his favorites as well as amusing the members with a few of his inimitable stories gathered from all quarters of the globe in the course of his travels.

Frank Routledge of the Toronto Kiwanis, who has just returned from a business visit to the states, told the club that everywhere since the presidential election there was a prevailing feeling of commercial optimism and prophesied freely that this would cross the line before spring, and have a similar beneficial effect in the Dominion.

PROVINCIAL OFFICERS WILL ENFORCE O.T.A.

and may substitute the ostrich therefor.

The weather was as damp as Sturgeon Falls' sympathies, and as sullen as the town's attitude towards the powers that be at Queen's park, when an Advertiser reporter stepped off the train here today and sought out Chief of Police Cusson. Sturgeon Falls police station is a narrow frame building, but not so narrow as the Charybdan strain into which Chief Cusson has been steered by the action of the town council.

Resolution Surprises Chief.

"It was a surprise to me, this resolution of the council," he confided between philosophic puffs at his briar. "I received a copy of it, of course. I heard nothing further about it before or after."

As to his course of action, he said, "The council are my superior officers. It is not for me to criticize my superiors, but to ignore the law. I have my duties to perform," the chief declared. "If, for instance, there should be an open violation of the temperance act I would have to act upon that."

"Were there such violations in Sturgeon Falls?"

"There is bootlegging, of course, everywhere there is, here I think, not so much as in Toronto or Windsor, even in proportion to the size of the town, not so much. I think as two, three or four years ago; but the people are not in sympathy with the act. Before now my job has been threatened because I enforced it."

FARMERS FEAR BIG HILL WILL BOTHER HORSES

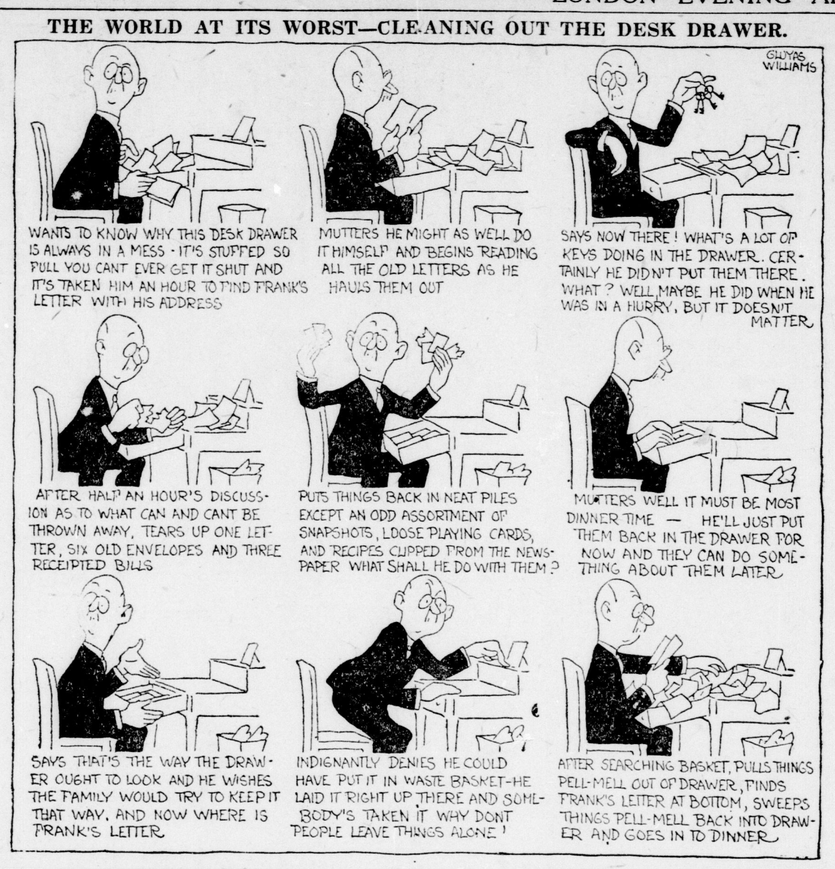

Now that the strip of pavement from Lambeth to Delaware, on the Longwoods road, has been practically completed farmers of the district are wondering how their faithful horses are going to climb the steep hill east of Delaware, when the pavement is slippery.

There is no gravel center, such as exists on the Pine Line road and the Hyde Park highway, and the farmers are none too sure that they approve of the manner in which the road has been built.

There is a road one block south, and parallel to the hill, but it is not in the best of repair, and the grade is considerably steeper, farmers state.

There is a movement on foot, however, asking that a dirt road be built to one side of the pavement, which could be used when the road was slippery.

WORK AMONG YOUNG PEOPLE PROGRESSES

Executive of League Holds an Enjoyable Banquet Last Night.

The object of the executive committee of the young people's leagues of the London district of the Methodist church, which met last night in the Wellington street Methodist church last night, is to solve the various problems which come up in connection with the work of the league. It is also felt that as the result of this meeting even more effective league work will be done in the district.

The event took the form of a banquet, and the ladies of the church provided a splendid dinner to the guests. It was a "get together" evening, and after the dinner short addresses on the different departments were given, a discussion taking place after each address. The speakers included Miss Helen Hardy, first vice-president; Miss Gladys Smith, second vice-president; M. Kinsman, third vice-president; Dr. LeRoy Hiles, fourth vice-president, and Mrs. A. J. McLean, fifth vice-president.

Mr. Hammond favored the company with a solo. A lively sing-song, led by Rev. George W. Dewey, helped to make the evening more enjoyable.

RIVERVIEW HEIGHTS MUST PAY FOR WATER

P. U. C. Lays Larger Pipe for Fire Protection—Cost to Ratepayers Cut.

The public utilities commission has decided that residents of Riverview Heights district will be charged for water service on the basis of $1.50 per foot frontage.

Since the commission laid a six-inch pipe in place of the regular four-inch pipe in order to make provision for fire protection and future extensions in the district, it was considered only fair that the consumers be charged on the basis of the cost of the smaller pipe.

It was the suggestion of City Engineer W. P. Near to the commission that the charge be reduced from the actual cost of the installation, $1.88 per foot, to $1.50 per foot, and that the difference be taken care of by the commission and charged to capital expenditure.

Such a method of dealing with the difference of 38 cents per foot was made possible due to the fact that the commission is paid by the city council for providing adequate fire protection.

It is pointed out by officials of the commission that the plan of charging for new water services on the frontage basis is the only fair scheme. By this method the consumers benefiting from the installation pay the whole cost of that installation, in addition to paying the regular water rate. The system works out fairly to all parties concerned, since the old system and equipment has been and is being paid for by the older consumers.

INQUEST INTO BOY'S DEATH WILL BE HELD TONIGHT

An inquest into the death of Jacob Green, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Green, who was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a truck owned by the Maple Leaf Milling Company on Tuesday, will be held tonight at the police station.

WESLEY BAZAAR ATTRACTS MANY

Ladies of First Methodist Church Conduct Interesting Shoppers' Fair.

Wesley Hall was the mecca for many visitors yesterday, when people came from all over the city to the bazaar arranged by the ladies of the First Methodist church.

Every booth displayed an abundance of articles. At the country store, gay with flags, everything from candy to groceries for sale, and the handkerchief booth placed near it had an added touch of color from the many rainbow-hued squares of linen, with daintily embroidered corners. There was an apron booth where the housewife was pleased with the neat-looking "cover-alls," and the dolls, too, were pretty in their lovely frocks.

At the fancy-work stall more exquisite articles were to be found, while the pillowcases and towels, in a booth by themselves, were beautifully worked. The lingerie and novelties, also helped the shopper to select Christmas gifts, while the home-cooking booth was tempting to the lady who spent the afternoon at the bazaar and failed to have a dessert ready for supper.

In the tearoom, Mrs. J. W. Little, Mrs. W. M. Spencer, Mrs. J. Barnard and Mrs. George Murray presided over the tea cups during the afternoon. Mrs. Bruce Hunter was in charge of the tea room, and was assisted by Mrs. B. C. Higgins, Mrs. Arthur Little, Mrs. B. H. Clement, Mrs. H. Screaton, Miss Florence Greene, Mrs. H. Laurie and Mrs. W. F. D. Jarvis.

There was also a table covered with quilts, and of the nine, there was but one left at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This was in charge of Mrs. Bristol.

Mrs. William Boyd was in charge of the dining-room, very attractively decorated with flags, and cedar, where hot chicken supper was served. The tables, with their white clothes, were decorated with strips of red and blue crepe paper, candles and fruit.

Mrs. T. McFarland and Mrs. J. Brown were joint general conveners for the event, and the following conveners assisted them: Home cooking, Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. (Dr.) Meek; towels and pillowslips, Mrs. J. B. Wright and Mrs. Fred Smith; lingerie, Mrs. G. Harris and Mrs. Croden; aprons and housedresses, Mrs. Ead and Mrs. Harkness; Auld Lang Syne table, Mrs. Lowrey; fancy work, Mrs. Chester Stevens and Mrs. H. E. Boomer; country store, Mrs. Cottle, and dolls and handkerchiefs, Mrs. Darragh.

RIVER ROAD PAVING COMING---SOME TIME

Sarnia Gravel Needs Attention First, Engineer Talbot Declares.

"The river road from London to Springbank will not be paved next year," declared Charles Talbot, suburban area engineer, when asked today regarding rumors to the effect that theriver road would be paved from London to Byron sanatorium.

"We expect that this road will be paved some day," continued Mr. Talbot, "but before the work is started, paving operations on the Sania gravel road must be completed.

"Next year it is proposed to continue paving the Hyde park highway as far as Hyde park, a distance of three miles. Two miles of pavement were laid this summer on that road."

FEW WOMEN ATTEND CAMPAIGN MEETINGS

Lack of Interest Commented Upon—Candidates Invade West, East Tonight.

Mayoralty, aldermanic and board of education candidates will carry the municipal election campaign into London West and London East tonight, when two ward meetings will be held. At Aberdeen school ward three aldermen and other candidates will speak at a meeting commencing at 7:30 o'clock. At Empress avenue school an interesting meeting is promised, with London West issues coming up.

Campaign speakers are urging that more women attend the ward meeting. So far there have been few women in the ward meetings, outside of candidates' wives. Board of education candidates, particularly Mrs. Edith Tutt and S. F. Lawrason, are urging the presence of women at the meetings in order to secure first hand information from the candidates.

"WE ADVANCE" SLOGAN CONTINUES TO MOVE

In olden days when London East was a distinct community and not part and parcel of the Forest City, the motto of the town was "We Advance," and their coat of arms consisted of an engraving of an old wood-burning locomotive. The locomotive has become a part of the heterogeneous coat of arms of the city of London and the motto of London East has not been lost sight of.

The time-honored portable vault in which the precious documents of the old London East town hall were stored has been doing some advancing itself. First it was moved to the tax collector's office and now it is on its way to the city audit office. It still bears the coat of arms of London East and the motto "We Advance."

GERTRUDE LOUISA ELGIE.

Gertrude Louisa Elgie, 11-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Elgie, 75 Wellington street, died this morning following an illness of diphtheria. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. Canon Gunne of Christ church, officiating. Interment is to be made in Kintore cemetery.

LABOR APPEALS FOR ELECTION

Mayor Also Addresses Gathering of Men at C. N. R. Carshops.

Five candidates for municipal office addressed a brief but well attended meeting of carshops employees at the C.N.R. dining hall at noon today. Four of the candidates were the indorsed Labor representatives, while George Wenige, candidate for mayor, was the fifth.

Labor candidates asked for indorsation of the entire Labor slate, both aldermanic and board of education candidates. They declared that it stood for economy and administration that would benefit the working man, as well as the capitalist.

Arthur Evans and David Mills spoke briefly in advocating support for the board of education candidature. Mr. Mills advocates a school for subnormal children and supported the move to abolish cadet uniforms. Mr. Evans offered efforts for economy, with efficiency.

Support Labor.

Lawrence P. Menzies, of the railwaymen's union, spoke as a candidate for alderman in Ward 3. He is a new man, but impressed his hearers with his frank discussion of the issues of the day in the short time he was given. He advocated support for the entire labor slate.

Tom Clift, railway clerk, and the sole accredited labor representative in Ward 4, was given a good hearing. He, too is a newcomer in municipal politics, but said that he would give his best service if elected.

George Wenige, mayoralty candidate, declared he was going to fight clean, even "though my apponents have already started to blaspheme me."

Admits Stand.

Mr. Wenige attacked John Anderson as the enemy of the unemployed. He said that Mr. Anderson had been too busy to attend a labor meeting on unemployment, and that he didn't even want to appoint a committee to look into the relief question. He admitted that Ald. Anderson had voted against expenditures on civic work, which he had been struck out of the estimates, but the mayor tried to make capital of Ald. Anderson's consistent stand.

John Anderson was attacked because he was a big businessman and paid the usual rental to the city for his market stall.

CHARGE TO BE MADE FOR HOCKEY RINKS

Expense of Maintaining Outdoor Sheets Cause of Fee System.

The playgrounds commission has decided that this year a charge will be made for the use of the hockey cushions.

As pointed out to the commission by Manager E. V. Buchanan, the rinks has to be kept entirely for the use of a comparatively small number of players. A parallel is drawn between the use of the tennis courts by the few during the summer for which privilege permits are issued at a cost of ten and twenty cents apiece.

It costs practically $50 per week to maintain a hockey cushion, and therefore, since the cushions are used only from 4 to 10 p.m. daily, the probable charge to be made will be $2 per hour. This charge would, of course, be divided up amongst the fourteen players.

No change is contemplated by the commission in connection with the skating rinks, since such a large number of people can participate in the sport at the same time.

The question of what charge is to be made for the hockey cushions, as well as the arrangement for the preparation of the skating rinks and cushions, was referred to Commissioner Philip Pocock and Manager Buchanan.

CIRCULARS DESCRIBING STOLEN GOODS SENT OUT

Circulars containing a description of the goods stolen from the store of W. C. Barons, Belmont, between 2 and 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, have been broadcasted by High Constable Wharton, who is working on the case.

The high constable reported that he had nothing for publication regarding the theft of the $800 worth of goods stolen from the store by the gang of thieves, who arrived and departed in two motor cars. Entrance was gained through a cellar window, the plunder being carrie dout through a side door.

UTILITIES COMMISSION HAS ABANDONED PLAN

The public utilities commission has abandoned the plan of placing an underground transformer vault at the corner of Clarence and Dundas streets.

The plan had to be abandoned because of the shallow depth of the sewer on Clarence street.

Not to be outdone in its efforts to get the transformers off the steets, however, the commission secured property off the street behind the Savoy hotel, on which to erect poles and platforms for the transformers.

While the property in question has not been purchased outright, the commission has secured a long term lease on the use of the land.

The commission is at present engaged in laying the necessary conduit on Clarence street south to Dundas.

When the rearrangement of the transformers is completed, there will be six or eight fewer transformers on the streets in the vicinity affected than formerly.

ROAD DIVERSION WORK WILL START IN SPRING

Work on the road diversion on Mount Pleasant cemetery hill will not be started till next spring, Engineer Charles Talbot of the suburban area commission stated this morning.

Seven acres south of the present road passing the cemetery has been purchased by the cemetery board, and the new road will be diverted south at the brow of the hill. This will eliminate two dangerous curves on the River road, Mr. Talbot states as well as giving motorists a splendid view over the valley of the Thames.

He also opened the new $35,000 Queen street bridge.

Following the opening of the highway Hon. Mr. Henry was tendered a complimentary banquet by the Mount Forest council and board of trade at which Mayor Allen presided.

CANADIAN TRADE GOES UPWARD

Hon. Thomas A. Low Submits Encouraging Report on Business Conditions.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—"An examination of the trade returns for the last twelve months reveals a very hopeful situation," reports Hon. Thomas A. Low, minister of trade and commerce, in a statement issued today.

"Canadian trade figures showed on Sept. 30, at the conclusion of the first six months of the year, a much more bouyant tendency than was the case a month earlier. The sharp decline that was the cause of much comment when the August figures were made public has given place to a substantial improvement in the total value of goods entering and leaving the dominion.

In export trade, September last was the best month the dominion has had in four years; and shipments of Canadian products to other countries during this period exceeded the shipments during September of last year by nearly $13,000,000. This is a hopeful indication as September is nearly always a low month in the export trade and commonly shows a decline from August, but this year it showed an increase over August of $7,000,000. This showing was partly due to the effort made to get shipping channels cleared of old grain and the success achieved in this respect presages an easy flow for the crop and export products this year.

WESTERN CANADA BOYS PAY VISIT TO LONDON

Arrive With General Superintendent Fish of Canadian National Railways.

Accompanied by a party of six boys from Western Canada who have won championships in three provinces for hog raising, General Superintendent R. H. Fish of the Canadian National Railways arrived in the city this afternoon.

The party came by special car which was cut off the train at East London at 2:08 p.m. The boys were then shown through the shops and roundhouses. The visit is a part of the plan of the Canadian National Railways to give the young men an opportunity of seeing some of the inner workings of the Canadian National service.

Following a trip to the Stratford shops the boys will return to Toronto where they will attend the winter fair.

WORK ON CATHEDRAL DELAYED UNTIL EASTER

Heating Plant Will Start $100,000 Project, Fr. Stanley States.

Decoration and alterations in St. Peter's cathedral will commence immediately afte rEaster, Father Stanley, rector of the cathedral, announced today. This is necessitated by the fact that the first work to be taken in hand is the installation of the new heating system and that obviously cannot be touched until the cold weather is over.

There is some interior mural decoration to be done and a few changes made in the chancel and in the sanctuary which has never been finished.

Oak screens and canopies will be erected, and the cathedral decorated and beautified in many ways which will add to its completeness. The project will cost $100,000.

At the present time similar changes though on a proportionately smaller scale, are being undertaken in the Windsor parish church.

CLEVER DISPLAYS ABOUND AT FAIR

TUT'S TOMB SEEN

"A Good Time for All" must have been the slogan of the Askin street variety fair last night, which was held in the basement of the church, for the best and jolliest of times were had by members of the church from the oldest to the youngest. The ladies' aid proved its originality in idea, when they presented such a variety of entertainment.

A cafeteria supper opened the event, after which the affair was in full swing. There was a fishpond, at which Mrs. G. A. Young and Miss J. Campbell presided, and next to it was the hall of fame, in which were pictures dating back to the 90's. As in every such hall, there is a statue, and this was cleverly represented by S. Smith. W. Courtis and Mrs. Herbert Childs were in charge of the hall of fame, the latter quaintly garbed as a lady of many years ago.

"The Hugger" for Women Only.

"The Hugger" for women only, and "Lady Nick" for men only, were most amusing and surprising. There was an art studio in charge of B. Chapman, where Jack Chapman drew shadow pictures, and next to it was the "Wet and Dry" booth, where Ernie Moore and A. R. Farr sold their wares. In the dog show, the best ever, was a hot dog.

King Tut's tomb was the spookiest of places, for in its darkness spirits moaned, and the mummy, Lincoln Orchard, was a gruesome spectacle. Fred Johnston and William Rowe were in charge here, and the guides were Tom Geary and Bill Scott. An elephant, Frank Smith and Stirling Young, wound its trunk about the daring who entered, and the Egyptian guards were Billy Geary and Maurice Scott.

An orchestra was in attendance, and a court occasionally took action, with the following officers: Clerk, J. Jack; judge, Dr. S. P. Reynolds; chief of police, Jim Rowntree; assistant policeman, Dr. Roy Hiles, and lawyer, Archie McCulloch.

Victrola and Monkey.

Mrs. Keeler, as a gypsy, wended her way among the guests with her monkey (Frank Howson) and her victrola for music, and Mrs. Ed. Parnell made a charming lady of many pockets.

The candy booth was in charge of Mrs. E. Geary, and in the cafeteria Mrs. Ormston Deacon was assisted by Mrs. J. Facey, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. B. Rowe, Mrs. D. Belt, Mrs. Cartier, Mrs. J. Ballantyne, Mrs. F. Dicks, Mrs. A. R. Farr, Mrs. D. McCamus, Mrs. C. M. Thompson, Mrs. C. Upper, Mrs. H. Dulmage and Mrs. F. Newhouse, while the tearoom was in charge of Mrs. H. Lister, Mrs. W. D. Wortman, Mrs. W. Bradley, Mrs. M. M. Maxwell, Mrs. D. Brittain and Mrs. Roy Hiles.

Mrs. W. Westcott, Mrs. R. Barton and Mrs. T. Copp were in charge of the fancy work booth, and in the gym games of boxball were enjoyed.

HOME BREW "PERMITS" CONFUSING TO MANY

No License Is Required When Fluid Is For Family Use, Department Advises.

Following complaints protesting against the alleged issuance of permits for the manufacture of "home brew," which have been received at the offices of the department of customs and excise, it has been stated by the federal officials that no licenses or permits are required by existing legislation.

The inland revenue act states that the person who is making home brew for the sole use of himself and family and not for sale is exempt from the provisions of the act, but he must notify the nearest collector of customs of his intention to brew for private consumption. He must also provide the department with a list of the utensils he will use in the brewing.

What has possibly been confused with a permit is the collector's acknowledgment of the home brewer's intention which is really his own protection. It reads as follows:

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge your notice of intention to brew beer for your own and family use, but not for sale, as given by you in the notice book, Customs and Excise Long Room, London, under entry No. ..... using the following utensils—.

"If you have at any time been charged or convicted with an infraction of the inland revenue act or the provincial temperance act, the privilege of brewing is hereby refused. The use of any distilling apparatus is illegal. Your obedient servant, Collector of Customs and Excise."

UNSTAMPED AMERICAN "FAGS" BRING $50 FINE

James Marcqus Pleads Guilty to Charge in Court Today.

For having a quantity of American cigarettes in his possession not stamped, as required by the inland revenue act, James Marcqus, proprietor of Mack's lunch counter on Richmond street, paid a fine of $50 and costs in police court this morning.

Marcqus was arrested yesterday by Inland Revenue Officer Cecil Webbe. Two hundred cigarettes in a room above his establishment were found.

Through his counsel, A. R. Douglass, Marcqus pleaded guilty to the charge.

J. G. Gillanders, who appeared for the crown, pointed out to Magistrate Graydon that a large quantity of cigarettes are alleged to have been sold by Marcqus illegally.

MOTORIST IS FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

James Caravella paid $10 and costs in police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving. Police Constable Thompson sttaed that Caravella had cut in front of a street car on Dundas street, between Clarence and Wellington street, on Monday and drove his car on the wrong side of the road in order to pass another auto.

"This thing occurs time and again," Magistrate Graydon said, "and it must be stopped."

Caravella declared that he was not aware of cutting in front of a street car and that he had only passed another motor car in the usual manner.

WARNER DECIDES TO CONTINUE WORK

NAMES CONDITIONS

Rev. G. Quintin Warner, rector of Cronyn Memorial Anglican church, and at present judge of the London and Middlesex county juvenile court, will continue in that capacity for the present at least.

He has informed Attorney-General W. F. Nickle that he will continue to act until he finds it "an utter impossibility to continue."

If and when he finds it impossible to continue, Judge Warner has intimated to Mr. Nickle that he reserves the right to resign immediately, or if desired, he would continue for a further period of three months to permit of a careful selection being made of his successor.

In consenting to continue as judge of the juvenile court, Mr. Warner told the Advertiser this morning that he is acceding to the request of Attorney-General Nickle to do so "because of the unanimous expression of support on the part of the public bodies in London that have considered the matter."

"No man can lightly disregard such expressions of confidence," said Judge Warner, "and I wish to express my deep appreciation of all that has been said through resolutions to the attorney-general with respect to myself.

Names Conditions.

"I am putting my own work first and agreeing to go on as judge of the juvenile court," continued the judge, "for as long as it is possible to do so without serious interference with my own work. The moment it becomes impossible for me to do both things I am at liberty to withdraw, that is to say, I am taking the same position with regard to my work, which I took in my statement to the city council last August.

"I believe that the effectiveness of the juvenile court depends upon an adequate staff for probational and secretarial work, with direct association with the court, and under the supervision of the judge, as is intended by the statutes. I would not attempt to conduct such work without such a staff, as I am fortunate in having at the present moment.

"I trust that from now on this institution may appear to have more evidence of permanency in the community," concluded Judge Warner, "and that we may be able to go on in our quiet way to do some further constructive work in the redirecting of some of the lives which come under our influence."

On Nov. 12, following interviews with Mr. Nickle, and with the representatives of the city council, Ald. J. A. Greer and Ald. L. H. Douglass, who conferred on the subject with the attorney-general, Judge Warner addressed the following letter to Mr. Nickle, consenting to continue as judge:

Letter to Nickle.

"Last Wednesday afternoon, the 5th inst., I had an interview with Dr Douglass and Mr. Greer who, you will remember, interviewed you on behalf of the city council on Oct. 24, re juvenile court. In my letter to you, written just before this interview, I stated that I expected to be in a better position after this conference to give a definite answer as to my possible future connection with the court.

"We had what was to my mind a very satisfactory conference and it was made quite clear that, just as you had said, the chief difficulty is that of expense. I pointed out, as clearly as I could, that placing upon the children's aid society the providing of sufficient staff to take care of the probation department and secretarial work of the juvenile court would not result in any material economic saving. As a member of the board of management of the children's aid society, I know that not only are the agents of that society overwhelmed with work now but that the society could make good use of additional help without touching the work we are doing in this court. It is evident to my mind, and I stated this to the aldermen, that a change involving the throwing of the juvenile court work upon the children's aid society is bound to result in the children's aid society having to request, practically, the same amount of money from the council as is being administered now by the juvenile court. I cannot see how we can get away from that situation and I am perfectly convinced that the preferable basis upon which to operate the court and to spend the money that is now, and in my opinion will have to be spent, is the present independent basis. The work of the children's aid society, which they are doing with such enthusiasm now, is bound to suffer if it is not made clear that their agents are more than fully occupied at the present time.

Is Loath to Retire.

"As regards myself, in view of the fact that support of my continuance in office is so unanimous and because I am keen to hold together the organization I have built up, which is doing a very wonderful work here, I am very loath to retire from the work, even though I may be causing the corporation supplying my salary some sacrifice. My feeling in regard to voluntary service is exactly what it has always been and with which, you have made it clear, you agree. The time may come when the whole difficulty will be solved. In the meantime, I beg to submit this suggestion, that I carry on in accordance with your request and that, if I feel it to be an utter impossibility to continue, that I give you at least three months warning to be taken advantage of or not as you may see fit, that is to say, if I am obliged to tell you that I can't possibly go on you may replace me immediately, or I shall still carry on three months longer to give every opportunity of making a careful selection of a successor."

Attorney-General Nickle's reply, dated Nov. 18, is as follows:

"It was with satisfaction that I learned from yours of Nov. 12 that you were prepared, in view of all that has happened, to continue for a time at least and give further assistance as juvenile judge at the city of London.

"I am very pleased to know this for the reason that all speak highly of the thoroughness of your work and emphasize that the contemplated change was brought into prominence only because you did not feel you could longer continue without remuneration. I trust your congregation will approve of what you are now doing.

"Some little time ago I explained to two of London's aldermen, who did me the courtesy of calling upon me in reference to the situation, that I would not view sympathetically transferring juvenile court work to the police magistrate. We should avoid making the youthful offender feel that his slip necessarily places him within the criminal class. Emphasize that he must discipline himself to respect the law, but avoid, if possible, making him believe that the first false step taken makes rehabilitation impossible. Advice and encouragement will probably bring him farther back than placing him in any position in which he feels self respect is gone."

EAST HIGH TO GIVE CONCERT TONIGHT

Entertainment Tops Drive To Cancel Debt on Rugby Uniforms.

London East collegiate, which created such a sensation last year with the first junior school parliament in Ontario, is now ready to follow up this precedent for performance by a concert and dramatic entertainment, which will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Central collegiate.

This concert, which has been arranged and carried out in the rehearsal work by the clergy of every member of the school and more particularly by that of A. E. O'Neill and Mrs. O'Neill, Miss Ida Minhinnick, R. J. Blake and Isadore Goldstick, has the object of paying for the school rugby outfits. The tickets have been sold at ten cents, and already, with $90 in the treasurer's hands, the payment is possible. Campbell Edwards, one of the most enthusiastic boosters of all things schoastic in the East collegiate, will act as chairman of the evening.

INVITE LONDON COMMAND.

The local command of the Great War Veterans' association has been invited to attend a meeting of the Toronto command in the near future. In a letter received by President Harry Wray this morning, the Toronto secretary, on behalf of the Queen City organization, thanked the London veterans for the part they played in the recent poppy day campaign.

MEDICAL WORK IN SCHOOL TALKED

City and Provincial Authorities Confer on Municipal Problem.

PLANS ARE GIVEN

Considerable light was thrown upon the question of medical supervision throughout the school of the city at last night's round table conference between provincial and local medical authorities and members of the board of education.

The opinion was expressed and generally accepted that London is not large enough to support a full-time medical man at a salary of from $5,000 to $6,000 per annum. It was also tacitly agreed that a part-time medical man would not work out satisfactorily or secure the results desired.

The suggestion which apparently appeared most feasible to the committee was brought forward by the delegates of the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine, which suggestion, by the way, was the same as proposed by the academy at the time the question was discussed three years ago.

That suggestion was to have the family physician make a thorough individual examination of each child upon entering school, recording the results of the examination upon an authorized form. The form, or certificate of health, would be placed in the hands of the school nurses' department for future reference. The examination would be made by the physicians at the expense of the board.

The committee of the board will continue to function by way of securing further information upon the subject, and will prepare a report in which some definite recommendations will be made to the board.

Those present at the conference last night were: Dr. John T. Phair, medical officer of the provincial department of education, Toronto; Dr. H. W. Hill, director of the London institute of public health; Dr. W. Downham, London medical health officer; Dr. F. J. H. Campbell and Dr. George A. Ramsay, representing the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine; Mrs. W. A. Tanner, president of the union mothers' clubs; Senior Inspector V. K. Greer, E. A. Miller, principal of the collegiate institute, and members of the committee of the board of education, Rev. R. D. Mess (chairman), B. N. Campbell, Dr. Alfred J. Grant, George F. Copeland, Mrs. John Rose.

Those who had been invited to the conference, but who were unavoidably absent, were Dr. John W. S. McCullough, provincial medical health officer, Toronto; Dr. T. J. MILLER IS SATISFIED WITH NIGHT CLASSES fees made by the board of education the attendance at the night matriculation classes at the Central collegiate institute is almost as good as last year.

There are 100 students participating in the work of the night classes, as compared with 117 at the peak last year, and, of course, the peak is never reached until after the Christmas vacation.

Of the 100 students enrolled in the various classes the average attendance during the past month was 97, or a percentage of 86.3.

Principal E. A. Miller is enthusiastic as to the calibre of those availing themselves of the courses offered. He says that the calibre is quite the best yet.

The particularly high calibre is accounted for by Principal Miller on the ground that today more students are continuing in the collegiate for a longer period; the fact that increased stress is being placed on the value of education as a result of the war, and also the fact that it is considerably more difficult to secure positions today, and that those who secure the positions must be well qualified to hold them.

PREPARING ROOM.

In addition to the present "dugout" of the Great War Veterans' association, London veterans will shortly have another recreation room in their present quarters.

The new room is now in the course of construction. G. W. V. A. officials are planning for a real initiation when the rooms are first opened, at which the mayor and members of the city council are expected to attend.

BILLIARD MATCH.

Members of the G. W. V. A. billiard team are playing at the Westminster hospital tonight in a series of matches btween the military organizations of the city. A match will be played at Byron sanatorium tomorrow evening.

Gossip Around The City Hall

Freshly-painted woodwork and new wall paper will present a bright, clean atmosphere in the council chamber when the new council and 1925 mayor sit for the first time next year. Workmen are busy on the committee rooms and council chamber now and it is expected the job will be complete in a few days' time. The tax office has been completely renovated.

From the building inspector's office 74 permits have been issued this month, with a total value of $76,045. Several small permits were authorized today.

Notice of advance polls for the municipal elections was posted at the city hall today. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, commercial travellers and railway men cast their ballots at the city hall.

Equipment has been removed from the completed Florence street sewer and ground is being broken on the new Riverview Heights sewer system. The Riverview Heights system will cost about $30,000 and is a local improvement job.

Army training has proven useful to some of the assessment department employees in providing artistic shelves for their own use in business at the city hall. Equipped only with broken glass and a rip saw, the assessors have fashioned some interesting looking shelving.

David Mills, candidate for the board of education, has had a rather colorful career. He has served with the British and Canadian armies, was an instructor in France, and also in the Imperial college at Tokio, Japan. However, he is peace advocate, and will urge that uniformed cadets not be permitted in the public schools.

W. M. Veitch, assistant city engineer, has invented a new type of concrete manhole, to displace the type now in use. The type proposed is one of concrete blocks, which are quickly and economically laid and are said to serve efficiently. Plans will be shown to the aldermen at the next meeting of No. 2 committee.

Electric heaters, taken from the old registry office, have been sent to the London East hall. They will be used there for part-time duty to keep pipes from freezing.

BIG WATER SAVING MADE BY METERS

P. U. C. Report Shows Consumption Has Been Cut 1,250,000 Gallons.

The installation of water meters in the homes of private consumers by the public utilities commission is resulting in a saving of more than 1,250,000 gallons daily.

This fact is made apparent in the financial statement of the operation of the waterworks department for the first ten months of the year, as tabled by Manager E. V. Buchanan at yesterday's meeting of the commission.

This saving is considerably in excess of estimates previously made by Mr. Buchanan, and consequently is gratifying to the commission.

The statement indicates that commercial houses are using approximately 250,000 gallons more daily than was the case last year. Hence to effect the present daily saving over all of 1,000,000 gallons, the saving being made in the homes of the private consumers runs up to 1,250,000 gallons.

In addition Mr. Buchanan points out that the worst consumers, in so far as the homes are concerned, have not as yet meters installed. The commission has to install about 2,000 meters for consumers who have only an outside tap and no inside service. Formerly these meters were installed in frost-proof meter boxes at an additional cost of $12 cash to the consumer. Just lately the commission made it possible for this charge to be paid on the installment plan of $1, with each water bill every two months. Since consumers of this particular type have now two years in which to pay for the meter box and its installation, it will naturally be possible to install such meters at a more rapid rate than formerly.

Comparative figures for metered and unmetered commercial and residential rates, as appearing in the statement, are as follows:

	1923	1924
Metered Residential rates	$55,005.07	$90,314.13
Unmetered Residential rates	47,964.95	23,723.01
Metered Com. rates	54,105.04	62,162.42
Unmetered Com. rates	2,630.70	2,117.51
	$159,705.76	$178,317.07

"QUARRELSOME" ELK COMING TO CITY ZOO

Wainwright National Park Will Send Pair of Canadian Species.

The parks commission is in receipt of a letter from A. G. Smith, superintendent of the Wainwright National park, stating that the pair of Canadian elk consigned to Springbank park zoo, will be forwarded to London within the next ten days.

The commission has been advised that it will not be possible to place the elk in either the buffalo or deer corrals, since the elk are of too quarrelsome a nature and would "start something."

It has been practically decided, therefore, that the elk will be placed in a corral of their own.

While the commission is securing the elk for the zoo from the department of the interior, free of charge, largely through the efforts of Commissioner T. W. McFarland and Frank White, M.P., it will cost approximately $300 express to transfer them from Wainwright park to the zoo here. Whether or not they will be sent in a box car or crated, remains a question. If they arrive in a box car it is the intention of the commission to run the car down to the zoo, via the street car track, making use of the railroad switch at Beaconsfield avenue to do so. If they are shipped in crates they will be trucked out to the zoo.

Canadian elk (cervus Canadensis), are native of North America, and are the largest of the deer family, with the exception of the moose. They are closely related to the red deer of Europe, and very similar to a species found in the Altai mountains of Central Asia.

ETIMAR CLUB TO ENTER BASKETBALL CONTESTS

Dave Finlayson was elected to the office of vice-president, which has been vacant. About fifteen members were present.

It is expected that the basketball team will be made up of George Gillespie, Terry Bayly, Russell Ardiel, Ted Hart, Jack Hambly, Peter Simpson and others.

CLUB NEWS

GOLDEN LINK CLUB.

The Golden Link Club met at the home of Mrs. E. Shildrick, Adelaide street, yesterday. The afternoon was spent in cards, Mrs. J. Steel carrying off first honors and Mrs. L. Kindree second. Following the games, the hostess entertained the members at high tea. Next Thursday the members will gather at the home of Mrs. J. Steel, 202 Gray street.

CITIZENSHIP COMMITTEE MEETS.

Mrs. John Rose, president of the local council of women, has called a meeting of the citizenship committee at the Smallman & Ingram tea room for this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Among other important matters coming up for discussion will be coming civic elections.

LOBO W. I.

About fifty women met at the home of Mrs. Alf. Sinker this week, it being the occasion of the November meeting of the Lobo W. I. The meeting opened with the singing of the "Maple Leaf" led by Mrs. McIvor. A profitable afternoon was spent. Christmas gift suggestions were offered as answers to the roll call.

The business part of the program consisted mostly of planning for a literary and musical contest to be held in Melrose hall on the evening of Dec. 12.

A program of unusual merit followed. Mrs. N. A. Campbell gave an address on Canada, telling of its resources, its people and how the women of the institute could help to mold the character of its inhabitants. Mrs. Campbell spoke of how at the time of Confederation the name Dominion had been given to Canada because the people had gained dominion from sea to sea.

A splendid report of the western convention was given by Mrs. Hodgson.

The members very much appreciated the several piano selections given by Miss Catherine Sells, London, during the afternoon.

ORPHAH CHAPTER, O. E. S.

Mrs. D. Thomas, Beaconsfield avenue, lent her home for a talent tea in aid of the funds of the Orphah Chapter, O. E. S., the function proving most successful. Over one hundred attended, and a large sum of money was thus raised.

Tea was poured from an attractive table by Mrs. A. Bradshaw, Mrs. A. Boug and Miss B. Sanders. Centering the table were the colors of the order and a silver basket of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The table cover was an autograph cloth, on which the Prince of Wales, Lloyd George, and five hundred other distinguished persons had inscribed their names. Assisting in the tea room were the worthy matron, Mrs. Matthew Horner, Mrs. W. Bailey, Mrs. T. Partridge and Mrs. House. In the evening the men were entertained by the worthy patron, Major Bradshaw and Mr. Thomas.

COUNTY COUNCIL ASKED TO SUPPORT GRANTS

Welland Communication To Be Considered at December Session.

Middlesex county council will not be overworked with business at the last session of the year which opens at the county buildings os Dec. 8.

As a rule, there is a long list of communications to consider, but up until the present time, there are but two communications to be brought before the council by County Clerk John Stuart.

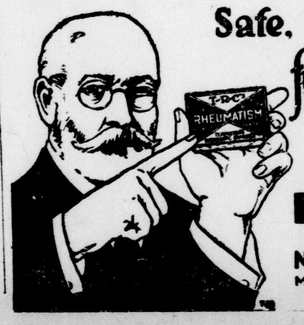

A letter has been received from the county council of Welland, asking the support of Middlesex in the matter of teachers' salaries. The letter points out that supplementary grants on teachers' salaries are to be withdrawn from urban schools in towns and villages with populations of 2,000 and under. Welland strongly recommends that these grants be continued as it enables school boards to obtain the services of teachers of high standing and experience.

The county of Elgin requests the co-operation of Middlesex in the request to the department of highways to approve road number 39 as a provincial county highway. The road runs from Aylmer to Port Bruce and connects with Middlesex between lots 12 and 13 in the township of North Dorchester.

TUSCAN "AT HOME" IS MERRY EVENT

Over Two Hundred Dance the Night Away at Masonic Temple.

Gold was the prevailing color note of the great Tuscan lodge "at home" held last night in the Masonic temple. Lights shaded in gold cast their becoming glow over the dancers as they passed back and forth to the strains of attractive music furnished by the Pudney orchestra. Foliage of golden shade, burnished oak leaves and great baskets of golden chrysanthemums banked the stage, while the balcony rail was twined with green smilax and pretty branches of colored foliage.

Tall palms and many ferns were used on the stage when shaded floor lamps had been placed. Attractive rendezvous for the dancers had been arranged at each corner of the hall. In the entrance tall myrtle trees, leading to the supper room downstairs. Here at midnight the guests partook of refreshments from tables centered with flowers in crystal vases.

M. SIMMS ADDRESSES SIMCOE MOTHERS' CLUB

Explains Meaning of Vocational Guidance Before Large Meeting.

M. M. Sims, chief school attendance officer, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Simcoe school mothers' club, his talk being on vocational guidance.

There were three stages in this type of educational work, he said. The first came just before the boy left public school. This was the time when he began to show a bent for some line of life work and he should be carefully guided by his teacher. His energies should be directed along this line when he left public school by two years following at Technical high school. These years at the Technical high school formed the second stage in vocational guidance.

The third stage came just as the boy was leaving the Technical high school for his life job. There was now a vocational bureau in London, which was trying to see that the boy was properly placed after leaving school. This was being tried out and was working very satisfactorily.

The business of the meeting dealt chiefly with the school bazaar, which will be held on Nov. 28. Mrs. Joseph Bailey was appointed program convener for the year. Very fine vocal solos were given by Mrs. Jackson, Miss Clegg and Master Jimmy Lee were heard in delightful violin solos, Miss Edith Calsrey acting as accompanist.

WOMEN and THE HOME

THE SEA HAWK

By RAFAEL SABATINI

"We have heard enough, sir," Lord Henry interrupted.

"Have you so, by ——!" he roared, stung suddenly to anger. "You shall hear yet a little more. The truth will prevail, you have said yourself; and prevail the truth shall since this sweet lady so desires it."

He was flushed, and his light eyes played over them like points of steel, and, like points of steel, they carried a certain measure of compulsion. He had stood before them half mocking and indifferent, resigned to hang and desiring the thing might be over and ended as speedily as possible. But all that was before he suspected that life could still have anything to offer him, whilst he conceived that Rosamund was definitely lost to him.

True he had the memory of a certain tenderness she had shown him yesternight aboard the galleys, but he had deemed that tenderness to be no more than such as the situation itself begot. Almost he had deemed the same to be here the case until he had witnessed her fierceness and despair in fighting for his life, until he had heard and gauged the sincerity of her avowal that she loved him and desired to make some amends to him for all that he had suffered in the past. That had spurred him, and had a further spur been needed, it was afforded him when they branded her words with falsehood; mocked her to her face with what they supposed to be her lies. Anger had taken him at that to stiffen his resolve to make a stand against them and use the one weapon that remained him: that a merciful chance, a just God, had placed within his power almost despite himself.

"I little know, sirs," he said, "that Sir John was guided by the hand of destiny itself when, last night, in violation of the terms of my surrender, he took a prisoner from my galeasse. That man is, as I have said, a sometime English seaman, named Jasper Leigh. He fell into my hands some months ago, and took the same road to escape from thraldom that I took myself under the like circumstances. I was merciful in that I permitted him to do so, for he is the very skipper who was suborned by Lionel to kidnap me and carry me into Barbary. With me he fell into the hands of the Spaniards. Have him brought hither and question him."

In silence they all looked at him, but on more than one face he saw the reflection of amazement at his impudence, as they conceived it.

It was Lord Henry who spoke at last:

"Surely, sir, this is most oddly, most suspiciously apt," he said, and there could be no doubt that he was faintly sneering. "The very man to be here aboard, and taken prisoner thus, almost by chance—"

"Not quite by chance, though very nearly. He conceives that he has a grudge against Lionel, for it was through Lionel that misfortune overtook him. Last night, when Lionel so rashly leapt aboard the galley, Jasper Leigh saw his opportunity to settle an old score and took it. It was as a consequence of that that he was arrested."

"Even so, the chance is still miraculous."

"Miracles, my lord, must happen sometimes if the truth is to prevail," Sir Oliver replied with a tinge of his earlier mockery. "Fetch him hither, and question him. He knows naught of what has passed here. It were a madness to suppose him primed for a situation which none could have foreseen. Fetch him hither, then."

Steps sounded outside, but went unheeded at the moment.

"Surely," said Sir John, "we have been trifled with by liars long enough!"

The door was flung open, and the lean black figure of the surgeon made its appearance.

"Sir John!" he called urgently, breaking without ceremony into the proceedings, and never heeding Lord Henry's scowl. "Master Tressillian has recovered consciousness. He is asking for you and for his brother. Quick, sirs! He is sinking fast."

CHAPTER XXXIV.
The Judgment.

To that cabin below the whole company repaired in all speed in the surgeon's wake. Sir Oliver coming last between his guards. They assembled about the couch where Lionel lay, leaden-hued of face, his breathing labored, his eyes dull and glazing.

Sir John ran to him, went down upon one knee to put loving arms about that chilling clay, and very gently raised him in them, and held him so, resting against his breast.

"Lionel!" he cried in stricken accents.

And then, as if thoughts of vengeance were to soothe and comfort his sinking friend's last moments, he added:

"We have the villain fast."

Very slowly, and with obvious effort, Lionel turned his head to the right, and his dull eyes went beyond Sir John and made quest in the ranks of those that stood about him.

"Oliver?" he said in a hoarse whisper. "Where is Oliver?"

"There is not the need to distress you—" Sir John was beginning, when Lionel interrupted him.

"Wait!" he commanded in a louder tone. "Is Oliver safe?"

"I am here," said Sir Oliver's deep voice, and those who stood between him and his brother drew aside that they might cease from screening him.

Lionel looked at him for a long moment in silence, sitting up a little. Then he sank back again slowly against Sir John's breast.

"God has been merciful to me a sinner," he said, "since He accords me the means to make amends, tardily though it be."

Then he struggled up again, and held out his arms to Sir Oliver, and his voice came in a great pleading cry:

"Noll! My brother! Forgive!"

Oliver advanced, none hindering until, with his hands still pinioned behind him, he stood towering there above his brother, so tall that his turban brushed the low ceiling of the cabin. His countenance was stern and grim.

"What is it that you ask me to forgive?" he asked.

Lionel struggled to answer, and sank back again into Sir John's arms, fighting for breath; there was a trace of blood-stained foam about his lips.

"Speak! Oh, speak, in God's name!" Rosamund exhorted him from the other side, and her voice was wrung with agony.

He looked at her, and smiled faintly.

"Never fear," he whispered. "I shall speak. God has spared me to that end. Take your arms from me, Killigrew. I am the—the vilest of men. It—it was I who killed Peter Godolphin."

"My God!" groaned Sir John, whilst Lord Henry drew a sharp breath of dismay and realization.

"Ah, but that is not my sin," Lionel continued. "There was no sin in that. We fought, and in self-defence I slew him—fighting fair. My sin came afterwards. When suspicion fell on Oliver, I nourished it—Oliver knew that the deed was mine, and kept silent that he might screen me. I feared the truth might become known for all that—and—and I was jealous of him, and—and I had him kidnapped to be sold—"

His fading voice trailed away into silence. A cough shook him, and the faint crimson foam on his lips was increased. But he rallied again, and lay there panting, his fingers plucking at the coverlet.

"Tell them," said Rosamund, who in her desperate fight for Sir Oliver's life kept her mind cool and steady and directed towards essentials, "tell them the name of the man you hired to kidnap him."

"Jasper Leigh, the skipper of the Swallow," he answered, whereupon she flashed upon Lord Henry a look that contained a gleam of triumph for all that her face was ashen and her lips trembled.

Then she turned again to the dying man, relentlessly almost in her determination to extract all vital truth from him ere he fell silent.

"Tell him," she bade him, "under what circumstances Sir Oliver sent you last night to the Silver Heron."

"Nay, there is no need to harass him," Lord Henry interposed. "He has said enough already. May God forgive us our blindness, Killigrew!"

Sir John bowed his head in silence over Lionel.

"Is it you, Sir John?" whispered the dying man. "What? Still there? Ha!" he seemed to laugh faintly, then checked. "I am going—" he muttered, and again his voice grew stronger, obeying the last flicker of his shrinking will.

"Noll! I am dying! I—I have made reparation—all that I could. Give me—give me thy hand!"

Gropingly he put forth his right.

"I should have given it you ere this, but that my wrists are bound," cried Oliver in a sudden frenzy.

And then exerting that colossal strength of his he suddenly snapped the cords that pinioned him as if they had been thread. He caught his brother's extended hand, and dropped upon his knees beside him.

"Lionel, boy!" he cried.

It was as if all that had befallen in the last five years had been wiped out of existence. His fierce, relentless hatred of his half-brother, his burning sense of wrong, his parching thirst of vengeance, became on the instant all dead, buried and forgotten. More, it was as if they had never been. Lionel in that moment was again the weak, comely, beloved brother whom he had cherished and screened and guarded, and for whom when the hour arrived he had sacrificed his good name, and the woman he loved, and placed his life itself in jeopardy.

"Lionel, boy!" was all that for a moment he could say.

Then:

"Poor lad! Poor lad!" he added. "Temptation was too strong for thee."

And reaching forth, he took the other white hand that lay beyond the couch, and so held both tight-clasped within his own.

From one of the ports a ray of sunshine was creeping upwards towards the dying man's face. But the radiance that now overspread it was from an inward source. Feebly he returned the clasp of his brother's hands.

"Oliver, Oliver!" he whispered. "There is none like thee! I ever knew thee as noble as I was base. Have I said enough to make you safe? Say that he will be safe now," he appealed to the others, "that no—"

"He will be safe," said Lord Henry stoutly. "My word on't."

"It is well. The past is past. The future is in your hands, Oliver. God's blessing on't."

He seemed to collapse, to rally yet again. He smiled pensively, his mind already wandering.

"That was a long swim last night—the longest I ever swam. From Penarrow to Trefusis—a fine long swim. But you were with me, Noll. Had my strength given out—I could have depended on you. I am still chill from it, for it was cold—cold—ugh!"

He shuddered, and lay still.

Gently, Sir John lowered him to his couch. Beyond it Rosamund fell upon her knees and covered her face, whilst by Sir John's side Oliver continued to kneel, clasping in his own his brother's chilling hands.

There ensued a long spell of silence. Then with a heavy sigh Sir Oliver folded Lionel's hands across his breast, and slowly, heavily rose to his feet.

The others seemed to take this for a signal. It was as if they had but waited mute and still out of deference to Oliver. Lord Henry moved softly round to Rosamund and touched her lightly upon the shoulder. She rose and went out in the wake of the others, Lord Henry following her, and none remaining but the surgeon.

Outside in the sunshine they checked. Sir John stood with bent head and hunched shoulders, his eyes upon the white deck. Timidly almost—a thing never seen before in this bold man—he looked at Sir Oliver.

"He was my friend," he said sorrowfully, and as if to excuse and explain himself, "and—and I was misled through love of him."

"He was my brother," replied Sir Oliver solemnly. "God rest him!"

Sir John, resolved, drew himself up into an attitude preparatory to receiving with dignity a rebuff should it be administered him.

"Can you find it in your generosity, sir to forgive me?" he asked, and his air was almost one of challenge.

Silently Sir Oliver held out his hand. Sir John fell upon it almost in eagerness.

"We are like to be neighbors again," he said, "and I give you my word I shall strive to be a more neighborly one than in the past."

"Then, sirs," said Sir Oliver, looking from Sir John to Lord Henry, "I am to understand that I am no longer a prisoner."

"You need not hesitate to return with us to England, Sir Oliver," replied his lordship. "The queen shall hear your story, and we have Jasper Leigh to confirm it if need be, and I will go warranty for your complete reinstatement. Count me your friend, Sir Oliver, I beg."

And he, too, held out his hand. Then turning to the others—

"Come, sirs, he said, "we have duties elsewhere, I think."

They tramped away, leaving Oliver and Rosamund alone. The twain looked long each at the other. There was so much to say, so much to ask, so much to explain, that neither knew with what words to begin. Then Rosamund suddenly came up to him holding out her hands.

"Oh, my dear!" she said, and that, after all, summed up a deal.

One or two over-inquisitive seamen, lounging on the forecastle and peeping through the shrouds, were disgusted to see the lady of Godolphin Court in the arms of a beturbaned, bare-legged follower of Mohammed.

Which Is the Matrimonial Goat? | Says Women Sacrifice Most in Marriage

Husbands Who Believe Their Lot To Be the Harder Should Consider the Other End of Marriage—Women Sacrifice Not Only Independence and Liberty, But Also Identities.

Which makes the greater sacrifice in marriage, the man or the woman? A bored and weary husband who has been writing in one of the magazines on that topic asserts that men are the sacrificial goats in matrimony. He says that men give up far more than women do when they get married, because a man offers up his personal liberty and his money on the matrimonial altar.

He deposes that, before a man is married, he can stay out as late at night as he pleases; that he can do as he likes; that he can spend his income upon himself, and that he can flit about from flower to flower in the rosebud garden of girls, but that after marriage—to use the classic phrase of the day—there's nothing doing in any of these lines for poor Mr. Benedict.

It is natural for all of us to think that our lot is the hardest in the world and our sufferings the greatest ever borne. So it is but human for a man to believe that he sacrifices a great deal more than a woman does in marriage. But that is because no man has ever been a woman or a wife, and therefore he has no perception of what a woman gives up when she gets married.

For a woman sacrifices all that a man does, and then some. She gives up her personal liberty, her financial independence, her right to amuse herself with gay flirtations with the opposite sex. And she also gives up her name, her very identity, and often her home and country. For after marriage a woman is known merely as an appendage of her husband, and the courts have decided that the man shall be the sole judge of residence of a married couple.

Let no one underestimate the value of these latter two sacrifices. It is not without a pang that a woman who bears an old and distinguished name, a name which proclaims her aristocratic descent to all who hear it, exchanges it for some common and plebeian moniker. Nor is it without many a bitter name of regret that the Claire Montmorencies and the Gwendolyn Cecils merge themselves into plain Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Jonas Huggins.

As for a girl doing the Ruth stunt, and saying to her husband "where thou goest I will go, and thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God," why, the tears that homesick little brides have shed in strange cities would make a waterspout if they were all gathered together.

It is true that when a man marries he gives up his freedom, but he never becomes quite the domestic slave that a woman does. Always the man can slip his fetters for part of the twenty-four hours. Always he has avenues of escape that are not open to the woman.

Every day the man leaves his home and goes to his business, where he is thrown in constant contact with different men and women, where he sees new faces and hears new things. And if he wants to get away from wife for a few weeks he has a perfectly good alibi ready to his hand in a business trip.

But marriage brings a woman a life sentence of hard labor in her home. Her work is the most monotonous in the world and she has no escape from it. She does not even have the holidays that her husband has, because Sundays and holidays for the balance of the family always mean double work for the wife and mother.

It may be galling to the married man to realize that he dares not remain downtown and have dinner with a friend, or stay out until 12 o'clock at night, or come home a little uplifted and hilarious, for fear of what his wife will say to him. But a married woman doesn't even dream of taking such liberties because she would be talked about if she stayed out even one night, and well she knows that there would be no forgiving husband to put ice cloths on her head if she got drunk. He would hale her into the divorce courts.

Undoubtedly, every man not a millionaire, is a financial sacrifice to his family. The money that a man would enjoy spending on travel, on fishing and hunting trips, on his own personal hobbies and tastes, has to go to the butcher, and grocer, and milliner, and dressmaker; for music lessons for Mamie and operations on Bobby's adenoids.

But even so, no man is such a sacrifice to his family that his wife is. If they are poor, she also has to do without the things she would like to have, and, in addition, she gives the supreme sacrifice of her body to her children. She goes through agony to bear them and she gives to them years and years of absolute self-abnegation. Nights that are broken walking the colic, covering restless little sleepers, getting water for thirsty little lips, watching over sick beds. Days that are full of unremitting toil, cooking, washing, mending, answering endless questions, always with the cry "M-o-o-ther!" echoing in her ears.

Men tell their wives that they ought to be thankful that they don't have to go out into the world, and that they have nothing to do but stay home and take care of the children, but one Sunday afternoon alone with his offspring will reduce any able-bodied man to the verge of nervous prostration.

Men say that they give up their financial independence when they marry, but at least they have the handling of their money. They bestow it on their wives and children. They do not have to beg anybody for every penny they get. They have their independence left.

It is the woman who has been a wage-earner before marriage, who has had her own pocketbook, who tastes the gall of the cup of financial dependence in matrimony.

Wherefore, I say that when men complain of what they sacrifice in matrimony, they don't know what they are talking about. They ought to try the woman's end of it for a while.

CLOCKED CHIFFON HOSE.

New York, Nov. 21.—Exclusive shops are having a run on clocked chiffon hose, and the clocks are narrow open work effects, which closely resemble a run in the stocking itself on superficial examination. Some of the popular colors are fawn, apricot, peach, mesa, cinnamon and log cabin.

FOR BREAKFAST IN BED.

New York, Nov. 21.—Breakfast in bed sounds enticing, but it is no more enticing than the Shetland wool breakfast jackets now worn for such occasions. These are of knitted Scotch wool in bright shades, with wide elbow sleeves and fastened at the front with a cord and tassel.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL.

Little Girls' Ensemble Costumes Meet With Approval.

"Up to 1780," write Fischel and von Boehm, "children had been dressed like grown-up people; the boys curled and powdered like the father, the girls tight-laced like the mother, and their clothes were made of the same stuff and cut in the same way as those of their elders." All this changed, we learn, at about the time of the French revolution, but it was not in France, but in England, that the reform in children's dress was inaugurated.

Oddly enough, at the present time little girls dress more like their mothers than they have at any time since this reform was first accomplished. But this is certainly due to no sort of reaction, or retrogression. Simply, it is because women's fashions have become more and more like those of children. Once, a "little girl" became a "young lady" when her hair was allowed to grow long and was "done up" in grown-up fashion and when she was allowed to wear long skirts, possibly a train. Also she was inaugurated into the complicated practice of wearing corsets. Now she has no such lessons to learn. Not because children's clothes have changed, but because women's have.

The situation now is that very nearly all of the fashions inaugurated for women are possible of adaptation to the requirements of little girls with only slight modification.

This season there was the ensemble suit—which some commentators spoke of as quite the most important style development of the season. And the designers of children's clothes at once saw in it the prototype of something eminently wearable for little girls.

The very smallness of the little girl's garments makes it decidedly desirable that uniformity should prevail, and that one color and one fabric should be used in the various garments and accessories. For this reason the ensemble most suitable to the little girl includes not only frock and coat, but hat and leggings as well. The sketch shows one of the "plaid and plain" ensembles. Solid green cloth is used for the hat, leggings, coat and hem and collar of the frock, while the plaid is used for the main part of the frock and for the lining of the coat. Brown astrachan forms the cuffs and collar of the coat.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A BEAUTY SCHEDULE.

Ever hear of a beauty schedule? Ever have one?

It's like this: Monday—Special attention to hair, washing once every two weeks. Tuesday—Special attention to hands, manicure, bleaching, etc. Wednesday—Special face treatment, steaming, mudpack, massage, etc. Thursday—Shoulders and neck, bleaching, cold creaming, etc. Friday—Feet, Saturday—Arms. Sunday—special tonic and beautifying bath."

The idea is that no one can do all the little things connected with maintaining youth and beauty every day—so the only way to make sure of doing them regularly and not to neglect any one thing or overdo some other thing is to have a schedule. Let us say that aside from the ordinary daily bath and dressing you have an hour or an hour and a half to spend on yourself. Monday you should spend this on your hair, Tuesday on everything about the hands, Wednesday on the face, etc. It may be that you never have an hour or an hour and a half to spend just on your body. It may be that you have to scheme to get that much extra time once a week. But then the beauty schedule is for the woman who makes something of a hobby of this matter of beautifying herself.

Personally I have oftener read directions for such a schedule than I have met anyone who actually kept to it. So much depends on circumstances. It may be damp and rainy today, not the best day for a shampoo, yet it is "every other Monday," and so you must have your shampoo.

You are going to an important party tonight—you'd rather like to have a face treatment so that you can appear at your best—but it's Tuesday and your face isn't booked for treatment until Wednesday, so you must wait. Still you may find it helpful, and if you haven't a great deal to do you will doubtless find that the following of this sort of beauty schedule is highly diverting.

London, Nov. 19.—The vogue for fur has extended to boudoir slippers which are made in multi colored brocades with a medium low heel and with a "collar" of fur bordering the top.

Declares He Intends To Play Cricket as He Enters Penitentiary.

WILL KEEP SILENT

Special to The Advertiser.

Kingston, Nov. 20. — Charles A. Matthews, Jr., convicted former deputy provincial treasurer, was rushed in an open car from Kingston Junction to the penitentiary, and without an instant's pause the car was rushed through the gates, and then they banged in the face of the pressmen.

Inside Matthews was not long in losing his name and taking on number K.836, just five greater than Peter Smith's.

Matthews was accompanied to Kingston by his father.

When questioned about his case while seated in the train which brought him to this city, Matthews said:

"I am no squealer, and I will not talk about the affair. I enter Kingston penitentiary with a smile, and I will leave it with a smile. There is no inside story regarding the bond deals which I am going to divulge. I intend to play cricket."

He was quite mum about the bond sales of the province and the famous "toll gate" and all the aspects of the case that sends him to the penitentiary for two years. When a suggestion was made that he might soon have more distinguished company at Portsmouth, Charlie remarked with a broad grin, "Maybe we will be able to hold a directors' meeting."

He resumed his journey on the St. Omer Canal, going down through the department of Pas de Calais to Paris, then via Dijon, Lyons and Marseilles to Monte Carlo. After a short stay at the famous gaming resort he will paddle down the Tiber on the last stage of his trip which took him from Nova Scotia.

CHAMBERLAIN TO HEAD BRITISH DELEGATION

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 20.—Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain announced at the foreign office this morning that he would attend the League of Nations' council meeting at Rome, December 8, as the head of the British delegation.

This announcement is taken as an indication that the Conservative government's policy will be one of closest co-operation and support for the league. It contradicts the idea that the recent British request for the postponement of the armament protocol discussion at Rome was in any way connected with the possibility of non-support on the part of Great Britain for the protocol.

Domestic Heroines in Our Homes

Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around women continue to work. Necessity to keep on their feet all day when over-tired, or sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings on ailments from which women suffer tortures. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been strengthening women and overcoming such ailments. Sickness and pain vanish under its influence and thousands of women have been benefitted by it.—Advt.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20. — That many young couples making out marriage licenses render themselves liable to prosecution for perjury, was stated by crown counsel this morning at the hearing of a charge against Dorothy Fenn in police court.

The girl pleaded guilty to having described herself as a widow when she actually had no proof of the death of her husband, who left her five years ago. She was taking out a license to marry again.

Little inaccuracies of that kind, said crown counsel, caused the registrars a lot of trouble. The prisoner elected summary trial on November 27, and was released on her own recognizance.

ST. MARYS MEN UNHURT WHEN TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Marys, Nov. 20.—Two men, Thomas Near and W. Bodefield, were severely bruised and shaken up, and had a miraculous escape from death this afternoon, when a truck in which the former was driving was struck by the westbound passenger train for London at 1:25.

The accident occurred at the crossing on the south side of the freight sheds, at which point the view was obscured by a number of freight cars, and the driver of the truck did not hear or see the approaching train until the front wheels of the truck were on the track. He immediately put on speed in an effort to clear the track. The train struck the rear end of the truck, smashing the wheels.

LONDON PIANO FIRM BUYS WOODSTOCK CO.

Sherlock-Manning Purchases Karn Business, Pioneers in Canada.

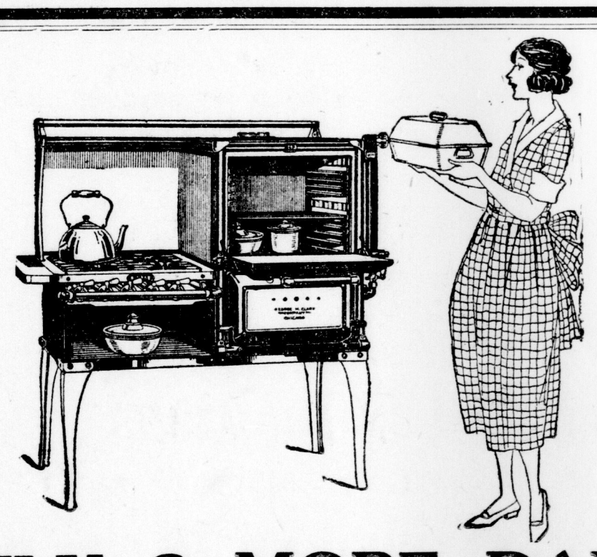

Sherlock-Manning Piano Company of London announce that they have taken over the stock, chattels and goodwill of the Karn Piano and Organ Company of Woodstock, the transfer to be made immediately, and with the expectation that the production of the Karn line, which will still retain its identity in name, will be under way at the London plant by the end of the present year.

The Karn Company is one of the oldest firms in the business in Canada, and were in possession of a very valuable connection in several markets, both at home and abroad.

W. N. Manning states that he expects the acquisition of the Karn business will mean a 50 per cent increase in the output of the factory here. Within recent months the Sherlock-Manning Company have taken over the Doherty Pianos, Limited, of Clinton, the Foster-Armstrong Piano Company of Kitchener, the Gourlay Piano Company of Toronto, and now the Karn Piano and Organ Company of Woodstock.

Asked if the manufacture of organs as well as pianos would be included in the future here, Mr. Manning said it was a matter that was being considered now. "There can be no doubt that in some export markets there is a growing demand for the reed organ. When was abroad recently I was surprised to find such to be the case, and it may be we shall find this business important enough to receive considerable attention in future."

The combining of these four companies into the Sherlock-Manning business in London has had the effect of putting the company in a foremost position in the trade. It will mean more work and more employment at the London factory.

SEVERAL ARRESTS

Associated Press Despatch.

Cairo, Nov. 20.—Major-General Sir Lee Oliver Stack, governor-general of Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army since 1919, has succumbed to the bullets of assassins. He died late tonight in a Cairo hospital.

The Sirdar was attacked yesterday by a group of men who, failing to achieve their purpose with a bomb, opened fire on him with revolvers. General Stack was wounded in the abdomen, the hand and the foot, one of the bullets passing below the lung. After an operation, performed yesterday, he passed a fairly good night, but the loss of blood was so great that two transfusions were necessary.

He remained conscious until the afternoon, then a change for the worse occurred, and he gradually slipped away, dying about midnight.

The whole country is profoundly shocked at the outrage, and the gravity of the situation is everywhere realized. The press denounces the crime in the strongest terms. The Zaglouist papers unanimously declare that Egypt's honor demands the discovery of the culprits and their exemplary punishment. Nothing, they assert, will be neglected "to wash away the bloody stain on the country's honor."

Thus far the assassins have not been traced, although several arrests have been made on suspicion.

MURDOCK MAKES OPEN CHALLENGE

Declares He Will Resign Seat If Rumor Can Be Supported.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Belleville, Nov. 20.—Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor in the King administration, today offered to retire from public life if a statement which, it has been alleged, has been made in the interest of the opposition candidate in the present by-election, can be supported by one tittle of evidence over the signature of an accredited official of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Meeting a large number of railroad men at the Canadian National terminal here today, in the interests of Mr. Hanna, the Liberal candidate in the West Hastings by-election, Mr. Murdock was told that a statement had been circulated by Mr. Porter, the Conservative canddiate, or some of his friends, that there had been something wrong in Mr. Murdock's relation to the railway strike of 1910 or in his connection with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Hon. Mr. Murdock said: "My challenge is that if Mr. Porter can produce one tittle of evidence over the signature of any responsible officer of the organization concerned to such a statement, if made, I will retire from public life."

NAME OF POTENTATE IS PROFOUND SECRET

Judges Refuses To Allow Name To Be Mentioned in Alienation Suit.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 19.—Trial of the suit of C. E. Robinson, a former bookmaker, to recover £125,000, which he alleges a London bank owes him on account of a settlement with a mysterious Eastern potentate who became over-friendly with his wife, developed a new thrill today when Justice Darling, presiding, declined to permit the name of the wealthy potentate to be brought out in court, and held that he should be known only as "Mr. A."

Justice Darling said that ordinarily he would not consent to the concealment of "Mr. A.'s name, but in this case "for reasons of state not connected with rank," and in order that no scandal should be caused at the potentate's home, he was allowing the name to be omitted.

Meanwhile, it was reported by well-informed sources that the unnamed "Mr. A." is one of the wealthiest young native princes of India.

The decision of the judges was greeted with applause from the spectators. The same horse will now be shown in the champion Percheron class next Monday.

Princeton Bress, another representative of the E. P. ranch, was not shown. She is suffering from slight injuries sustained the day befor she entrained for Toronto.

Judging of Percherons and dairy cattle occupied the whole morning.

After Easy Money.

The appearance of a former West Lorne man in Hamilton as an organizer for the Ku Klux Klan may mean much or little. The only charge that can be preferred against the alleged organizer is that of carrying a loaded revolver, for as the law stands at present there is nothing to stop him from organizing a klan in Hamilton if he finds enough easy marks to go in.

The most likely explanation is that he concluded that there was some money to be made out of the klan business, and that he might as well take it as to wait for some other schemer. Hamilton, like any other locality, has its share of people who are always ready to join a new society. The prospect of having a hood and white robe and moving mysteriously about on some vacant lot on the outskirts has an appeal that becomes forceful to those who are ready to part with their money for a cheap thrill.

The good sense of the Canadian people is the only barrier that has kept the klan out of this country, and after all that is the strongest barrier than can be erected.

A Stronger Power Than Law.

Three years ago Clyde Finan was an accomplice in the murder of a neighbor, robbery being the motive, although Finan was never questioned of suspected.

Today Finan is in state prison in Omaha, starting to serve a 15-year sentence for murder. He came to the authorities himself, made the confession, after having written a score of letters trying to get the police to investigate the case again.

But it was not the police who brought Finan to justice. He said that each night as soon as he turned out the light the murdered man came and sat on the edge of the bed: he never said anything, but just sat there. Since he made his confession and went to jail Finan states the murdered man has departed.

Perhaps it is an odd way for the man to state the case; make allowance for all the flights of fancy that might have had some bearing on the case, yet the fact remains that there was a power greater than law that placed its hand on Finan. He knew the police were not after him; he knew he was perfectly safe from arrest; no one had ever accused him of murder, yet he was not a free man.

He has a freedom in jail today that he never had outside of it, and it is all because he has squared himself with his conscience. Men may imagine at times that the days of an active and accusing conscience are past, or that it existed only in a book of fairy tales. Ask Clyde Finan—he will tell you it was strong enough to send him happily to jail for fifteen years.

U.S. Methods Not Wanted Here.

London voters should make short shift of the move to have a semi-elected police commission. They will have a ballot placed in their hands when they vote on December 1, and it will ask if they are in favor of increasing the police commission to five members, two of them to be elected by the people.

The argument has already been heard that electing a police commission is simply putting into effect the idea of allowing the people to run their own business.

That is exactly what is said of the American system of municipal government, where a straight political vote each year elects a city treasurer, clerk, chief of police, etc., and it is a system so inferior to British practice that we want none of it in this country.

If there were abuses under the present system there might be some cause for the vote being polled and the point carried. It is one of Mayor Wenige's ballots, and he has advanced no reason why there should be a change. He tried in the first place to bring pressure to bear on the provincial government, but he failed to impress that body through the joint action of a few municipalities.

His present move to elect two members and add them to the three already composing the commission cannot be justified on the evidence he has produced, or on the evidence he can produce.

The move to introduce American methods of civic government into London's municipal affairs should be turned down flat on December 1.

Leave the Doctors Alone.

Once more the old question has come to the surface of standard fees in the medical profession. It would be just as possible to standardize the amount of ham and eggs that could be devoured by a hungry tramp and a man who sat cooped up in an office all day.

Two performers can play exactly the same piece of music on a violin. One would do well to escape before the first cabbage was thrown; the other can dictate his own terms at the box office and the people gladly pay his price.

Same thing with doctors, whether they are general practitioners or specializing surgeons. The skilled man knows his business. May be that he has had to acquire his knowledge by experimenting on many a trusting pain-wracked individual, but he knows now what to do. If he calls for salts and a mustard plaster chances are that will do the trick; if he decides that a little carving of the framework is necessary he goes about it and the patient has a good chance of being put together properly and walking off under his own power in a reasonable length of time.

The result is that the real men get the trade. They can name their own figures, but few of them are unreasonable, and most of them are desperately poor collectors. For that reason those who seek to take a saw and hammer and erect some sort of a uniform toll gate through which aching and limping humanity shall pass to get a carefully measured share of treatment had better put their tools away in the drawer of the kitchen table. We are getting along fairly well with the doctors as things stand at present.

The Way It Grows.

A man who demonstrates his ability to do one thing well gets more calls than he can attend to. General Charles Dawes was chairman of the international committee that worked out a plan for the rebuilding of Germany. It became known as the Dawes report and popular fancy pins on General Charles Dawes the authorship of the report.

That report was a big piece of work, big enough to make Dawes Republican candidate for vice-president. Without that report behind him he would have been an unknown quantity.

But people have the idea now that Vice-President Elect Dawes can deal in millions and not get dizzy. So his own town, Chicago, has asked him to finance a new school building program amounting to $170,000,000, believing he can get value for the money spent.

Trouble with many of us is that we wonder why none of the big things come our way, when the truth is that we have not yet demonstrated that we have mastered any one thing.

Note and Comment.

The chap who gets home whole is the hunter who has had a real good time of it.

The price of votes in London this year all depends on whether you want a turkey or a bicycle.

London had a Mayor Anderson in 1855. That's 70 years ago, so it's time to have another of the same name.

Edison says four hours sleep is enough for any man, and a great quantity of our young people think it's a little too much.

Overseas dominions favor opening Wembley next year. Seeing that they do not put up for the 1924 deficit, it looks like a good suggestion on their part.

Car with California license just passed through town, going north. It's chances of getting stuck in a snowbank before reaching home are very fair.

Robbers got $30,000 from a bank in Farmington, Mich., while a girl clerk kicked $100,000 out of the robbers' sight. On that account the bank is still on a safe footing.

There is a familiarity in some election contests quite foreign to the impressive air worn around Ottawa. Right now in West Hastings E. G. Porter is being referred to as "Gussy."

A Chatham woman has demonstrated that it is possible to grow coffee there. If her experiments pave the way to the establishment of that industry, the door will have been opened to a crop with a world market.

Deputy Chiesa and Signor Tamborini of Rome fought a duel with swords yesterday morning. At the end of fourteen rounds no one had been wounded. Fourteen rounds in this country would at least show two teeth knocked out and a black eye.

All the politicians on both sides, great and near great, are crowding into West Hastings for the fight which ends on the 25th. Hon. James Murdock is the center of the firing for having drawn $4,000 out of the Home Bank two days before it smashed. It would be interesting to know how many of the patriotic tub-thumpers who are demanding Murdock's scalp for this would not have done the same thing.

Joe's Got a Job

Joe Cowhide he lives down the street, he hasn't had no work this fall, in fact it seems as such things go, Joe hasn't had no luck at all. Joe's got a wife, a thrifty soul, he's got three youngsters there to keep, I wouldn't wonder now and then he finds the skiddin' pretty steep.

Now I can't see where Joe's to blame, some folks they always talk that way, as how the people ought to save and plan against a rainy day.

That rule's all right when she will work, to park the coin down dime on dime, but round Joe's hut it seems to me it's rainy days most all the time.

Joe got one job away last spring, a-workin' in a shop I know, it seemed as though he'd struck it right and things looked rather bright for Joe, for all he wanted was a chance to earn his rent and buy his meat, and have enough to clothe the kids and keep them lookin' sweet and neat.

But orders wasn't comin' in, and after Joe worked there a spell, the boss he come around one day and says that things was none too well, and so he had to lay men off and cut expenses to the core, and Joe got word he didn't need to come a-workin' there no more.

He hated to go home that night when things had seemed to come his way, and tell his wife as how the firm it had more men than it could pay.

Since then he's looked all over town, just pickin' odd jobs here and there—he wants to work but yet he can't—the thing don't seem to be quite fair.

Well Joe's wife she keeps peggin' on, a-makin' over this and that, I know sometimes the kids don't eat enough to feed a family cat; and sometimes, too, Joe's wife she laughs, a-chokin' back a comin' sob, Joe's credit ain't no good at all since he ain't got a steady job.

And Joe's wife sees the rich go by, a-ridin' in five thousand hacks, and wearin' silk and satin clothes and costly furs stuck on their backs, and I don't wonder but she thinks that things ain't handed out quite fair, when she and Joe and all the kids has hardly got enough to wear.

But I met Joe last night at six, he hustled home across the sod, his feet they hardly hit the turf, for Joe had found another job. I'd like to see Joe get along, he ain't the kind to whine or shirk, for he's the gayest chap in town for now he's got a chance to work.—ARK.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

I.

The city cuts me like a knife;
I crave for tranquil country life
Where radio and static strife
Are quite unknown.
I'm off to Farmer Jones, where fuss
And fret and fume won't worry us,
Where one can't hear a motor bus
Or saxophone.

II.

And so to Farmer Jones I fled;
"Things sure have changed 'round here," he said,
"I drive a motor car instead
Of my old mare.
You'll have to hear my daughter blow
Her saxophone—and now we'll go
And listen to the radio——"
I left him there!

Editorial Opinion

AN EDITORIAL FOR THE COW.
(From the New York Outlook)

Secretary Hoover paid the cow this tribute when he addressed the world's dairy congress in session in Washington:

"The feeding of these masses of undernourished children demonstrated from the outset that there was no substitute for milk and that, while a wide range of alternatives existed among other foodstuffs, this commodity was essential for their restoration to health and strength. It could well be said that the saving of these millions of children was accomplished only by virtue of the strength of the dairy industry."

That ought to settle the age-old argument as to which of the domestic animals is man's best servant. Much poetry, eulogy, and fine sentiment have been written around the horse and the dog. The cow has been comparatively little on the printed page and hardly at all in the history of wars. Hers is not the heroic role of the soldier's mount, of the police dog among the tangled wires, not even of the braying mule in a pack-train moving through the mud. She is one of those who, when fifes scream and battle-flags fly, stay behind and do a homely duty. Yet without her the world were lost.

BETTER TIMES FOR CANADA.
(From the Boston Post)

Our northern neighbor has not only recovered from the war depression but is enjoying more of a boom than any other nation on the globe. The trend of all business in Canada is upward. There has been already noted a trade increase of $250,000,000 and the end is not yet by any means. The Canadian dollar is as good as any other dollar. Fewer men unemployed there. The textile industry has been improving ever since July 1. There are 10,000 more men now employed in Ontario manufacturing establishments than in August. The dominion is not buying so much as it did from either the United States or Great Britain, while her exports to both are monthly increasing.

Canada has demonstrated that the way to prosper is to say little but saw wood—in other words, work hard, spend moderately and build up favorable trade balances.

NEW MAITLAND ST. PASTOR COMES

Baptist Congregation Welcomes Rev. W. M. MacDonald, of Owen Sound.

A REAL SCOT

Rev. W. M. Macdonald, formerly of Owen Sound and now pastor of Maitland street Baptist church here, was officially welcomed to his new charge last night. The new pastor is a Scot and he was welcomed to his new church in right royal style to the skirl of the bagpipes.

After several introductory speeches, in which most of the neighboring ministers and pastors took part, a banquet was served in the basement of the church. At this point the new minister established himself in the hearts of his people by playing a few airs and sprigs himself on the pipes which he borrowed from Sergeant MacDonald.

Rev. A. T. Fowler, D.D., of Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, N.Y., a visitor in the city, was the speaker of the evening. Describing the Christian ministry in the present age as threefold, prophetic, pastoral and interpretative, Dr. Fowler said:

Position Better Today.

"The minister of today should realize that he has an even greater possibility of impressing the gospel of Jesus Christ on the people than his predecessors. Achievement as it is rapidly being carried on in all classes of work enables him in the preparation of his sermon to use it to impress his thoughts and still to give the people the modern religion they are asking for. He is not breaking away from the old standards, but is sticking by them and using other ideas to broaden the view of his hearers."

Rev. Mr. Fowler is a Londoner by birth. About 37 years ago he was licensed by Adelaide street Baptist church here and attended Woodstock college, as it was then known, and the University of Chicago. At present Dr. Fowler is occupying one of the principal churches in Brooklyn.

During the course of the evening solos were given by Miss Gertrude Morgan and T. H. Yull. The church male quartet also gave one number.

Rev. James MacKay of New St. James' Presbyterian church was the first speaker. He congratulated the church on their choice and likewise the minister on his choice, pointing out that each would benefit in the different ways. "You are a Highlander, born in the Highlands of Scotland. I, too, am a Highlander and born in the same part of the country, and never yet has a Highlander backed down from a conviction that he knew to be right. Mr. Macdonald, I know that should you be up against it any time you will never back down, because you are a Scotchman."

Rev. H. J. Uren, president of the London conference, extended the welcome of his church and the London conference on the whole. He declared that every member of his church was ready to work with him (Rev. Macdonald) at every time when the good of Christianity was at stake, and furthermore the conference was equally as ready.

Unity Must Exist.

Rev. R. J. Murphy of Wortley road Baptist church expressed the same ideas as the others and stated that unity must exist between all denominations before the true kingdom of God would come. "Too many people have the wrong conception of the ministry," he said. "They think that it is an easy task to serve the people in that capacity, but a man who will be a successful servant of God must put every ounce of his energy into the task."

Greetings were received from Hill street Baptist church. Dr. Wood, of the congregation, extended the hand of fellowship to the new pastor of Maitland street Baptist church. On behalf of his congregation, Egerton street Baptist church, Rev. A. A. Burgess assured Mr. Macdonald that his people were behind him in every move that would be for the betterment of the church. Mr. Holman and Mr. Munro acted as ambassadors from Talbot street Baptist church, Mr. Baldwin from Adelaide street Baptist church, and T. H. Yull on behalf of Rev. M. Charlesworth, of the city.

London Family Homeless As Fire Claims Belongings

When the home of George Swanson, Winnipeg street, Argyle park, was completely destroyed by flames yesterday afternoon, all the belongings of the family were prey to the flames; the only articles saved being a sewing machine and a kitchen cabinet.

The fire started when a coal oil stove in the kitchen exploded. The structure, a four-room frame dwelling, was quickly enveloped in flames. The fire apparatus from Rectory street was despatched to the fire, but when they arrived the house had been burned to the ground.

Mr. Swanson's father, who lived with his son at the address, was badly cut on the wrist fighting the blaze.

Mr. Swanson was at work at the time, the people in the house when the fire broke out being his wife and two babies, 2 months and 18 months old.

Residents of the section have donated a large amount of clothing to the unfortunate family, which is living at the home of Mrs. Swanson's father in Argyle park.

The loss was partly covered by insurance.

ONTARIO TO PAY BOUNTY ON IRON ORE PRODUCED

Premier Ferguson Announces Move To Aid Production in North.

TRADE BOARDS MEET

Ontario Association Calls For Licensing of All Car Drivers.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—It is the intention of the Ontario government to make Toronto "the gateway of the north," and to pay the extra half cent per unit for the development of iron ore in the northland which the dominion government would not agree to pay, making one cent per unit to be paid by the provincial government. These assurances were given to the delegates to the eleventh annual meeting here of the associated boards of trades and chambers of commerce by Premier Howard Ferguson at their luncheon this afternoon.

"Within two years," he said, "we propose that you will be able to leave Toronto by motor and go all the way by road to the mining camps of Timmins and Cochrane. We propose to construct a road between North Bay and Cobalt soon—I might say immediately—so that traffic shall be brought this way."

In its efforts to open up the north, the government, he said, intended to be liberal but not lavish.

Attract British Capital.

Hon. Chas. McCrea, Ontario minister of mines, who also spoke, was optimistic with regard to the attraction of British capital for the development of Ontario's mineral resources, and stated that when he was in England speaking to the president of a big mining corporation, the latter said to him that of 23 countries where operations were in progress Ontario headed the list for stability and fairness in its laws.

Licensing of automobile drivers in the interest of public safety was approved today when a resolution calling for such action was adopted without opposition.

Another resolution with the object of securing legislation compelling drivers to halt their cars within 50 feet of all level crossings was referred to the executive with an expression in its favor.

Oppose Embargo.

Keen controversy raged around a resolution from the Guelph chamber of commerce calling for an embargo on pulpwood. Lieutenant-Colonel W. Simpson, who sponsored the motion, presented a strong case. J. A. Young, of North Bay, strongy opposed it and claimed injustice would be done to farmers who depended on the sale of their wood for a "grubstake."

The resolution was still under consideration when the meeting adjourned for the evening.

Greet Quebec.

Ontario's enthusiasm for the bonne entente was voiced in the introductory speeches with which the chairman, R. A. Stapells, president of the Toronto board of trade and the presidents of the three main groups which make up the organization now in convention here, prefaced the speech of the evening.

Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario spoke briefly in eulogy of Col Cockshutt, who had given, he said so much of serious and energetic devotion to his duties as lieutenant-governor that it could be said Ontario had never had a better. He hoped that Ottawa would see fit to extent Col. Cockshutt's administration another term.

Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown of London, Ont., extended to the lieutenant-governor the felicitations of the Western Ontario boards of trade, of which he is president. Ontario recognized the great qualities of Col. Cockshutt as governor, soldier and commercial executive. Col. Brown outlined the achievements of Western Ontario and its significance in the national life.

George C. Coppley of Hamilton, past president of the associated boards of trade, seconded the toast to Col. Cockshutt, sketching the history of the Cockshutt family and its relation to the national life of Canada in the past century.

Helps the North.

R. A. McInnis of Iroquois Falls, seconded on behalf of the northern Ontario boards of trade. It was due, he said, to the efforts of Col. Cockshutt that during the past few years so much had been done to wipe out the old feeling of discontent and dissatisfaction which existed only a few years ago in northern Ontario with the attitude of old Ontario to the problems of new Ontario. The present lieutenant-governor had travelled the north in pullman, in freight train, in canoe, in aeroplane and afoot, and had brought back to government house a knowledge of the problems of the north which no other executive had possessed.

In thanking the gathering for the honors of the evening Col. Cockshutt said he desired to speak on the natural resources of the province of Ontario. While Ontario was but one of the nine Canadian provinces, it was really a vast domain in itself—practically self-contained, and was the home of one-third of the population of Canada. Much of its population was centered in that small portion known as Southern Ontario, less than one-eighth of the whole area of the province.

Calls to Patriotism.

"The remaining seven-eighths of our area," said the lieutenant-governor, referring to the problems of New Ontario, "lies at the threshold of our development and makes a call on our patriotism and manhood to which we cannot turn a deaf ear."

Discussing the "three basic industries" of Ontario, Col. Cockshutt named agriculture as first in extent and importance. The history of agriculture in the province had been one of steady development, although its beginnings were necessarily small. "The store, the factory and the farm are complementary, the one to the other. Their interests are permanently interlocked, and this relationship lies at the root of our social life and system of government," said his honor.

Dealing with the industrial outlook of the province, Col. Cockshutt said: "More than a quarter or a million people are employed in the factories of the province. Allowing, on the average, three dependents to each employee, we find that one million people, or one-third of the whole, are supported by the salaries and wages paid by the manufacturers of Ontario. For this purpose more than $300,000,000 were distributed annually."

Standards Too High.

A standard of living exists in Canada today which is too high to be maintained, M. P. Byrnes of Collingwood told delegates to the Ontario associated boards of trade and chambers of commerce convention here today. Mr. Byrnes, who was delivering his address as retiring president, dealt with the problems facing Canadian industry today. Adjustments would have to be made in economic conditions, Unless Canada could keep pace with the wage standard of the United States we should lose population, but it must be admitted that the United States is "quite some time ahead of us in economics."

For these reasons every encouragement must be given to Canadian manufacturers. Citizens must buy goods manufactured at home in preference to any other goods. To compete with other countries Canada must manufacture in bigger quantities. Lower cost of production could only be achieved by means of a bigger turnover. All citizens must work for wider markets and increased production of farm products. All timber and pulpwood from Canadian forests should be manufactured at home. Assistance should be given to Canadian fisheries. Canadian coal should be ensured such freight rates that Nova Scotia and Alberta could compete with the United States. Co-operation of all citizens must be secured to work out the problems of industry.

Excess Weight Scrubbed Away

Associated Press Despatch.

Vienna, Nov. 21.—The scrub-brush has been introduced in Vienna in a new role—that of flesh reducer. The idea was brought here by a South American doctor and has made a considerable rub in overweight circles.

After the rubbing with a soft scrub-brush, a cold or tepid shower or plunge should be taken. If these directions are carried out, the enthusiasts say, a pound or so of "excess" disappears like magic every week.

LIONS CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON X-RAY

Dr. H. S. Wismer Gives Illustrated Talk at Dinner Last Night.

Dr. H. S. Wismer as speaker of the evening at last night's dinner of the London Lions' club, gave a most interesting illustrated lecture on the X-rays. He used a number of films as exhibits to prove the usefulness in diagnosis, of one of the latest aids to medicine, and outlined briefly the discovery and later development of the ray.

R. Fawcett as chairman of the membership committee, announced that his committee would undertake a membership campaign in the near future. He hoped that there would be fifty cubs present at the weekly dinner in a few weeks' time.

The Lions' club dance held recently in the winter gardens will net the club in the neighborhood of $500, according to the report of the dance committee read last night. This was considered to be an exceedingly fine result, and the members felt accordingly proud of their achievement.

The club decided to attend the Orient club's minstrel show at the Grand opera house on Nov. 27, as a body. A stag party for this show was at first suggested, but other counsels finally prevailed, and the members will take their good ladies with them.

The prizes presented at the Lions' dances were given by the Thomas Furniture company, John Nash, A. Dambra and Frank L. Barrett, it was announced. These donors received the hearty thanks of the club last night for their support of the club's terpsichorean efforts.

Dr. Wismer succeeded in making a subject difficult of clear understanding to the layman, interesting. He told the story of the discovery of the X-ray by the German Renken, and of the unexpected photo of the key which he had inadvertently laid in a book as a book mark. He had been using a Crook's tube, the forerunner of the X-ray at the time, and found the picture of the key later when developing a plate which had been lying on the table under the book.

NOT FIREBUG.

High Constable Wharton, who visited the scene of yesterday morning's fire at the farm of Frank Ryckman, Delaware township, in response to acll from Mr. Ryckman, is of the opinion that the blaze was caused through spontaneous combustion. The high constable takes no stock in the thory that a firebug was responsible for the conflagration.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Pains or Bladder Is Irritated.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advt.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE LOSES VOICE WHILE ON CAMPAIGN

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—With one of the candidates reduced to speaking in a hoarse whisper the by-election campaign in West Hastings goes on apace. Charles Hanna, the Liberal candidate, has completely lost his voice. E. Guss Porter, the Conservatiev candidate, is less affected by the demands of electioneering. Both candidates are addressing as many as six meetings a day.

Each candidate is supported by about a dozen speakers, some of them members of parliament and including a number of women. Bigger crowds than ever attended political meetings before in this riding are attending the meetings.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen has been in the riding two days and addressed several meetings. Premier W. L. Mackenzie King will make his first appearance here on Friday when he will speak in a local theatre. A reception will be tendered the prime minister on his arrival, and he has promised to address later a "father-and-son" banquet in the Y. M. C. A.

ENGLISH BANKERS GIVE LOAN TO REDS

Bank of England Advances Soviet Credit of $88,000,000, Declares Krassin.

Associated Press Despatch.

Moscow, Nov. 20.—Leonid Krassin, who will leave next week for his new post as soviet ambassador to France, today told employees of the commissariat of foreign trade that, despite the refusal of the British government to grant Russia a loan, the Bank of England has allowed the soviet government credits amounting to $88,000,000.

Ambassador Krassin also said that the government was carrying on extensive financial operations with other British banks. He predicted that next year's foreign trade would be approximately 1,000,000,000 gold rubles, even allowing for the non-export of grain. The soviet government, he said, would never yield in its policy of retaining a monopoly of foreign trade, no matter how many attempts were made abroad to obtain this control.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Holding that Dr. John A. At the trial medical testimony showed that the girl was free of any such disease.

DETROIT FIRM SELLS THREE BIG STEAMERS

High Seamen's Wages Responsible For Suspension of Operations.

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, Nov. 20.—Stockholders of the White Star Line at a special meeting today approved a course of action proposed by the directors which means the virtual liquidation of the second largest vessel line operating out of Detroit. Next season the company will operate one vessel only, the Tashmoo, which will make a daily trip to Tashmoo Park and Port Huron.

Enforcement of the seamen's act and competition from motor bus and motor truck lines has so increased operating costs as to make this move necessary, according to C. F. Bielman, Jun., general manager of the company. The company was organized in 1894.

The company will place on sale the steamers Greyhound, City of Toledo, Owana and Wauketa. It will also offer for sale Sugar Island in the lower Detroit river and Star Island in Lake St. Clair. The company's docks, embracing 100 feet on each side of Griswold street and extending from Atwater street to the harbor line, will also be sold.

Service will be discontinued between Detroit, Sugar Island and Toledo. There will be no afternoon boat to Tashmoo and Port Huron. Freight service will be discontinued entirely. The Tashmoo will make a morning trip to Tashmoo Park and Port Huron and will carry moonlight parties.

It is estimated that the reproduction value of the vessels to be sold is $2,000,000.

Big Battle Tonight Opens Hockey Season In London

Should Prove Good Indication of Strength of Two Sextets.

PILOTS CONFIDENT

Interest which has attracted large crowds of railbirds to every practice since London's first senior team started drills almost three weeks back will probably express itself in a packed house at the arena tonight when the local crew makes its debut before the home customers against the Stratford Indians.

In taking on the Indians the locals tackle just the sort of opposition that will give themselves and the home talent a real line on the team's chances in the Big Five this season. The Stratford experts figure they have a stronger team than that which won the group title last year, and handed Hamilton a real fright in the play-off series. Local fans don't care a hoot about that except to hope if London wins that it's so.

Despite the fact that it's billed as an exhibition tilt it must be taken that the managers of both teams are mighty confident in their outfits or they wouldn't chance a game this early, or they want to find out a lot all in one evening. A lot of people are going to find out a lot of things. Both managers are going to discover some weaknesses.

Find Out Condition.

Players are going to find out their condition and just how fast the going promises to be in this ground, and the fans are going to get a chance to form opinions that in the aggregate come pretty near to hitting the mark. In fact it looks as if it were going to be an attractive evening's bill from every angle.

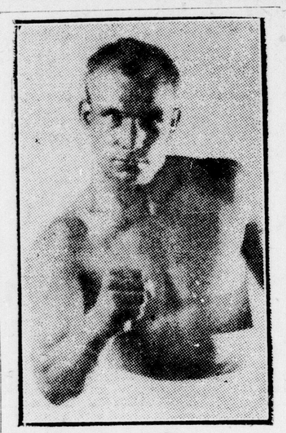

The fans are sweet on the London forward line in any combination. Bellefeuille and Neville will both start, and either Leamy or Lowrey will fill in the front line trio. It gets a real testing out tonight against the front end of the Indians.

With Dr. Bill Carson at center the Indians are sure they are a greater scoring machine than they were last year. If Neville can keep the Stratford dentist from yanking a few goals out of tonight's melee, he'll have cut his center ice teeth as far as London fandom is concerned. Either Leamy or Lowrey has a nice evening's assignment at left wing watching brother Frank, but it looks as if Nifty Griffin has drawn the real job of the evening when he undertakes to look after Bellefeuille.

Both Defence Pairs Good.

Leaving mid-ice there is little to go on. Both defence pairs have shown nicely in workouts where it is more difficult to display a great deal. It's been claimed that neither Fourlner nor Starkings has extended himself out full yet. That's probably true of Gross and Burke, the Dutch-Irish duo that will look after the Indian first line defence. Dolson has also been seen under fairly hot fire, and they know what to expect, but Renaud will be an object of some curiosity to the Londoners. In workouts goalies get less chance than anybody else on the team to show their real wares. Renaud handles himself—and everything that comes his way—well. Every move shows poise and confidence, and one thing is certain, and that is that the Londoners won't catch any contagious nervousness from the direction of the nets.

With tonight's game over a good deal of wild-eyed speculation will be ready for the discard. It will lead the way to where the footing is a little more firm.

CRITICS DECLARE RIOUX HAD HARD LUCK IN BOUT

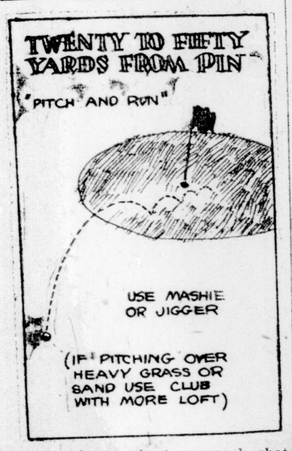

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 20.—Fight critics are unanimous in this morning's papers in crediting Elzear Rioux, Canadian lumberjack, with hard luck in his heavyweight debut at Madison Square Garden last night.

Rioux had much the better of his opponent in the heavyweight tournament until the fourth round of their six-round bout, when Gordon Munce, former amateur champion, opened a cut over the Canadian's eye. Rioux was willing to continue at the fifth-round bell, although his eye was badly swollen, but Referee Lou Magnolia refused to allow him to continue.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT.

In making a short approach shot do you try to pitch or roll it up to the pin?

Answered by
former national woman's champion and present Canadian woman's champion.

The pitch and run is the best shot from about twenty to fifty yards from the pin. This shot is equally as important as the putt to any golfer and should be played with a great deal of care. A mashie or jigger is the best club to use, unless pitching over heavy grass or sand, in which case one with more loft is better. In taking the club back the wrist should be kept stiff, although the grip need not be too firm, and the club should be in line with the left arm. On swinging through the wrist will relax, the clubhead following the ball, and the ball will have tremendous roll. In gauging the distance, the ball should be made to land half way to the hole—it will run the rest of the way.

Kearns Refuses $475,000 Offer

White Plains, N. Y., Seeks Dempsey-Wills Go.

Associated Press Despatch.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 20.—An offer of a purse of $475,000 for a heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills in Westchester county on July 2, 1925, was telegraphed today to Jack Kearns, the title-holder's manager, by George E. Degan, White Plains real estate operator, who announced he was working for a syndicate of White Plains businessmen.

NOT INTERESTED.

Associated Press Despatch.

Boston, Nov. 20.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, now presenting daily boxing exhibitions at a Boston Theatre, said today he was not interested in an offer of a $475,000 purse for a bout between the champion and Harry Wills at White Plains, N. Y., July 2.

"I get plenty of these offers," Kearns said.

Maranville Held After Accident

Child Seriously Injured When Hit by Car.

Associated Press Despatch.

Pittsburg, Nov. 20.—Walter J. ("Rabbit") Maranville, former Pittsburg Pirate, who was recently traded to the Chicago Cubs, was the driver of an automobile which struck and seriously injured Frank Smozda, aged five, last night. The boy's skull was fractured.

Maranville surrendered at the district police station, where a charge of reckless driving was entered against him. He was released under $1,000 bail, pending the outcome of the boy's injuries.

Thistle Juniors Good Record

Scored 52 Goals Against Opponents' 19 This Year.

The junior soccer season just closed although not as successful as last season, has been a good year. The Thistles F. C., which had a wonderful season, owes much of this success to the untiring efforts of the manager, Jim Henderson, and the co-operation of the members throughout the season. They have won the league championship, and by doing so are holders of the Brisco cup, having scored 38 goals in the twelve league games played and only giving away 11 goals. They won 10 games, lost 1 and tied 1. They also played in 7 cup tie games, losing only one to the W. O. R.'s and scoring 14 goals with 8 against them, making a total of 52 goals for and 19 against.

They were also winners of the John Nash injured players' cup. As there was no competition for the Gurd challenge cup, they still retain possession of that trophy, having won it last season.

The chief goal scorers were Beasley with 17, which included two hat tricks; McInley scored 10, getting the hat trick once, while other players to get three goals in a game were Dunbas and "Tiny" Young.

STRATFORD CURLING CLUB PRESIDENT IS RETURNED

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, Nov. 20.—Ernest Clark was last night re-elected president of the Stratford curling club for the 1924-25 season at the annual meeting of the organization. The treasurer's report for the past year showed a small balance on hand, indicative of the splendid year enjoyed by the Stratford curlers last winter. The membership of the club at the present time is about 125, but the incoming executive is going to endeavor to raise that number somewhat during the next few weeks.

The 1924 officers are: President, E. Clark (re-elected); vice-president, Dr. J. A. Beatty; secretary, John W. Lloyd; treasurer, G. L. McHattie (re-elected), executive committee, above officers and V. G. Snell (re-elected), A. G. Garner (re-elected), W. M. Binkley, G. A. McFadgen and W. M. Rosamond.

VICS ARE TOUTED AS STRONG OUTFIT

C. R. U. President Says Team Better Than Eskimos or Regina.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Secretary Hewitson of the Canadian rugby union today received a letter from President Eddie Chown of Winnipeg, and, as a result, tentative arrangements are already being made for the trip to the east of the Western Canadian senior champions, the Victorias of Winnipeg. President Chown stated that at the time of writing the Victorias had not definitely decided to make the trip, but that he had been informed by the president of the club that the club was anxious to try conclusions with the eastern champions, and that the players were very eager to make the trip.

The C. R. U. chief executive stated that he had watched the Victorias in every game they had played, and, in his opinion, they are a stronger aggregation than either the Edmonton Eskimos or the Regina team, which have been defeated on their eastern excursions.

If they decide to come east, the game will be played on Dec. 6 against either Queens, Tigers or Balmy Beach. The Victorias will probably leave Winnipeg on Tuesday, Dec. 2, arriving in Toronto on Thursday, which will give them two days' rest and practice before the game.

City Church Loop Is Reorganized

Rev. W. Jewett Re-elected as League President.

From present indications the church hockey league will carry on again this winter, with First Methodist, Cronyn Memorial, Church of the Epiphany, Empress avenue, Ridout street, St. Marys, Latter Day Saints and King street already entered, with the possibility of one or two more clubs coming in before the season gets under way.

The above teams were represented at the organization meeting in First Methodist church last night. Rev. W. Jewett was re-elected president of the loop, and Earl McKellar was returned to the post of secretary-treasurer.

It is the intention to play games either Tuesday or Thursday nights at the Westminster rink. As yet the owner of this rink has not decided definitely to again provide accommodation for hockey teams, but it is altogether likely that, with the formation of a bankers' league and the junior city loop along with the church circuit, the Westminster surface will again be available this winter.

The church league promises to be faster than ever this year, not alone from the advent of new clubs, but also, owing to the fact that in this circuit several players, who might remain idle because of the absence of an intermediate O. H. A. team in the city, will be given ample scope to express themselves in a hockey way.

ORIENTS TO WORK OUT AT Y. M. C. A. SATURDAY

The Orient basketball work-out scheduled for tonight at the Victoria school gym has been called off, and will be staged from 5 to 6 at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday.

The Orient squad held a good workout last night, and lined up for a practice game towards the close. Condition is beginning to show, and when the season opens there will be no fault to find on this count.

Next week it is hoped to secure a little more consistency, both as regards to nights and the location for workouts.

LISTOWEL INTENDS PLAYING INTERMEDIATE

Special to The Advertiser.

Listowel, Nov. 28.—Prospects for interesting hockey are good for the coming season here. All of last year's players except one are available. It is known that there are among the juniors several players of good calibre. As the annual meeting of the L. A. A. is not for a couple of weeks, the hockey situation has not yet shown much interest. However, Listowel will enter the O. H. A. intermediate and the senior Northern league series.

LONDON HOCKEY PLAYERS

WATFORD HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS LAMBETH 22-19

Losers' Combination Work Better Than That of Victors.

Special to The Advertiser.

Watford, Nov. 20. — The basketball team of the Lambeth continuation school visited this village yesterday to try conclusions with the Watford high school team, and were beaten, 22—19, in a fast, clean game. The Lambeth boys came with a clean sheet of victories for the season, being champions of the four schools in their district, but the clean sheet was somewhat spoiled when they left Watford. The visitors although beaten, were by no means disgraced, as they put up a clean, hard-fought game, and their combination play was far superior to that of the local boys, whose passing was somewhat erratic.

The lineups:

Watford—O. Shugg and J. Wright, forwards; A. Hodgins, centre; A. Heaton and I. Parker, defence; D. Prentiss and R. Cooke, subs.

Lambeth—Jones and Fox, forwards; Shipley, centre; Kemp and Griffith, defence; Lang and Hamlyn, subs.

Referee—Ford Steadman, Lambeth.

NURMI AND RITOLA TO APPEAR IN CANADA

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 20.—It was learned here today that tentative arrangements have been made for Willie Ritola and Paavo Nurmi, the two Finnish running stars, who captured the honors at the Olympic games, to appear in Canada as part of their winter program on this side of the Atlantic. Ritola is already in the United States, and Nurmi is expected to arrive shortly.

CALGARY HOCKEY TEAM LEAVES FOR TOUR OF EAST

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—The Calgary team of the Western Canada hockey league left here at noon today for the east, where it will play several exhibition matches, the first against the Toronto St. Patricks Saturday.

The team consists of Winkler, goal; Gardiner, Dutton and Benson, defence; Oliver, Oatman, Morrison, Wilson, Crawford, Mackie, Sparrow and Anderson, forwards.

COMPETITION KEEN IN PALMERSTON LOOP

Businessmen's Team Wins From Farmers by Score of 16-4.

Special to The Advertiser.

Palmerston, Nov. 20. — In the local softball league today the businessmen took a 16—4 fall out of the farmers. Barton's Transportation B. team failed to appear to meet the town team, and as this game was one for which dates had been changed, the softball committee of the P. A. A. A. will now have to decide whether this was a default or a misunderstanding of dates as the two teams are at present tied in the league and have equal chances of winning their group. In fact any of the first five teams of Group A. can tie the leaders while it is equally possible for any one of the first four teams to win the group section, and thus qualify for the finals. In Group B. the M.P. offices have not lost a game and look like the winners, but have three games to play, and the way the teams are lined up in the standing a three-corner tie is possible. In the ladies' section Ivy G. I. T. have cinched the group with one game yet to play. If the executive committee rules in favor of Barton's team, the game with the town team will be played Friday night.

The official standing of the league today is:

CECIL HART ANNOUNCES SIGNING CHARLIE DINSMORE

OUR BOARDING HOUSE. BY AHERN.

EXPECT COMEBACK BY HUDDERSFIELD

Match With Notts County Will Be Feature of Saturday Soccer.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 20.—The feature contest of league football on Saturday has its venue at Huddersfield, when the contest will be staged between Notts County, leaders of the first division, and Huddersfield Town. The County retained its place in the league a week ago by drawing with Aston Villa, its immediate rivals, Birmingham being also compelled to divide the points with Sheffield United. Only three points in the aggregate separate the Town from the County, and since Huddersfield has played rather shakily since it was dethroned from the leadership, and has caused its admirers considerable misgivings, it is expected that on the home grounds Saturday the players will stage one of their old-time battles.

Sunderland, who clambered into second place this afternoon by virtue of their victory over Preston North End, will not find things coming so easily to them the day after tomorrow, when they travel to Highbury. The Arsenal have displayed definite signs of recuperation recently. Birmingham travels to the Tyneside and engage Newcastle United.

The cup-holders stand eighth in the league, and have been shot up and down the table in most mercurial fashion. What the matter may be with the Northumbrians is hard to say, but they have frankly disappointed their followers, who had a right to expect a better record than only four victories out of sixteen games.

West Bromwich maw not be seriously threatened on Saturday, and it is not impossible that they may advance another notch. But Sheffield United, whom they are scheduled to meet, have a curious way of upsetting the order of things. The position of Preston North End, who meet Bury, is almost hopeless. They have accepted their twelfth defeat out of fifteen games.

The fixtures of the Scottish league are entirely without any feature contests.

Ty Cobb: Remaker of Baseball

Features

An Original Idea—Why Ty Was Fast—Lazy Ball Players.

CHAPTER XX.

Several new features were introduced into baseball by Ty Cobb. One of them helped his batting, and this has been copied by nearly every player. Another helped his baserunning, but as far as is known, no other man ever employed the same means to increase his speed.

In the early spring Cobb had a shoemaker fix weights in the soles of his shoes. Both shoes were equally well leaded. Cobb ran with the added weight on the bottom of his feet. This put him under a handicap, but it developed his leg muscles, made them fit, and the running developed wind and stamina.

When Cobb got ready to launch his campaign the weights were removed and he felt as if he were running on air. It helped his speed. The training with weights was difficult, but when actual play started his work was much lighter.

For Same Purpose.

The other stunt that Cobb worked was for the same purpose, making lighter the burden imposed. This was his mentioned habit of carrying three bats out of the dugout and swinging the three until the pitcher was ready to deliver the ball. Tossing two away, the one he held felt as light as a lead pencil. Nearly all players carry three bats to the plate now, but probably no other player ever wore lead in his shoes during spring training.

The plan of using the lead was original with Cobb. We do not believe that he got the idea from anyone else, but he was not the only one who used it. Alfred Shrubb, England's famous distance runner, who at one time held every record from one to ten miles, used the same system. Shrubb also wore leaded shoes while in training and credited much of his success to this system.

Other successful champions have done similar things to carry them to the heights. Their rule, like Cobb's, was thorough preparation.

Jack Dempsey had a weak left hand. He did all his punching with the right at the time he started his climb to a championship goal. When Dempsey became champion it was noticed that his left hand was as good as the right and probably better. Most of his success in the ring had been due to the powerful left. He developed the left by tying his right hand to his side and punching the bag for hours, or boxing, using only the left. He did this until the left was as useful as the right.

What Travis Did.

Walter J. Travis is one of the best golfers this or any other country has produced. Travis' strongest point is his putting. And yet, Travis used to be a weak putter. The size of the normal golf cup is 4¼ inches. Travis got some cups made that were about one-half that size, or just a bit larger than a golf ball. He practiced putting forr hours, trying to roll the ball into these half-size cups. After practicing with the smaller cups over long stretches, Travis returned to putting greens that had the normal size cups and these looked about a foot in diameter to him then.

Paavo Nurmi, sensation of the 1924 Olympic games at Paris and regarded as the greatest distance runner of all time, did not do his training by running the exact distance he was to run in the Olympic events; he would run two, three, four and five times that far. Some days he ran from 20 to 30 miles and at times he ran as far as 40 miles. He was developing muscular power and lung power. After running these long stretches daily it was little more than a jog covering the distance he was asked to run in the Olympic games. That is why he ran so easily and that is why he finished so fresh when other runners dropped exhausted. The other runners had trained for the exact distance and no further.

Just As Others Did.

These instances are cited here to show that Cobb, while a super ball player, gained his eminence by working in the same way that other leaders in sport worked. He was an exception among ball players, but it was not a natural gift. Cobb attained results by long and hard effort and by using his brains.

He was asked one time why there were not more good ball players and why he stood out so far over the field. His reply:

"The trouble with nearly all ball players is that they try to cover their faults instead of correcting them. There is hardly a ball player who doesn't know his weaknesses. But there hardly ever is a ball player who tries to correct them. Nearly all try to gloss over them; to hide them; they think they are fooling people, but the only person that is fooled is the pall player himself.

"It isn't fun to go out and practice for hours and for days trying to overcome some weakness. There is no joy in concentrating on one thing. That is monotonous and most men don't care for that kind of monotony. Hiding the fault is so much easier, and that is what they try to do. But they don't. And that's the reason you don't see more good ball players. There are too many lazy ball players."

Waiver Rule May Stir Up Argument Over Johnson

Action of Veteran Washington Hurler Creates Unusual Situation.

CONSENT NEEDED

By JOHN B. FOSTER.
(Copyright, 1924.)

New York, Nov. 20.—In transferring his allegiance from the Washington club to Oakland, Cal., Walter Johnson has created an unusual situation in baseball. He has the right, of course, to withdraw from Washington, and Washington has the right to give him his unconditional release. But other clubs of both majors must give their consent, tacit at least, before Johnson can be dropped from the big show outright.

The rule in organized baseball says that if a club gives notice to its league president of intention to release a player unconditionally, any other club in the same league shall have the right to the assignment of the player's contract, such right to be exercised within ten days. If at the end of that time no club has put in a claim for the player's services, the other major league is free to contract with him.

As Johnson is a veteran player, having served more than ten years in the majors, the Washington club must tender an assignment of his contract to other clubs through the regular waiver channels. Should any club refuse to waive its claim to Johnson, Washington could withdraw its waiver. If it failed to withdraw its waiver, however, the club that claimed him would be forced to accept him as a regular player.

Gibson Refused.

Some years ago it happened that the Pittsburg club wished to give Gibson, its crack catcher, his unconditional release under the veteran clause. New York, not knowing Gibson had been promised his freedom, claimed him, as the Giants were badly in need of a catcher. Gibson went up in the air, accused Dreyfuss of double-crossing him, and refused to report to New York. He stayed out all season, going to the Giants the next year as catcher.

If there is some club that wishes to claim the services of Johnson, there is no way Washington con prevent it. But any major club that claimed him would hear a roar of disapproval from the public, and in all probability the claiming club would not get him anyhow, as Washington very likely would withdraw its waiver.

Could Refuse.

If Johnson's departure were hampered in any such way, he still could refuse to play ball for Washington or any other club that claimed him, and could go on out west and run his ball club there. He could not, however, pitch for Oakland, as he has been planning to do on a few special occasions. Neither could he participate as active manager on the field, for Washington would have to list him as ineligible, and ineligibles cannot serve in any playing capacity in organized baseball.

This would be a sad blow to the Johnson-Weiss plans, for one of the things the new owners are counting on is an era of big receipts all around the circuit on the first appearance Johnson makes in each city of the league. It's a blow, however, that public sentiment is pretty likely to prevent any major league baseball magnate from inflicting.

Exhibition Tilt Won by Thistles

Take First Game of Season From Westervelt Five.

Thistles in their first game of the season, which took the form of an exhibition fray with the Westervelt quintet at the Y. M. C. A. court last night, played mid-winter basketball, showing the result of consistent drilling on the part of Coach Goodman for the past two weeks, and left the floor with an 11 to 7 victory tucked under their belts. It was by no means an easy win, for the Westervelt five is a tricky team, and put up a brand of basketball that kept the winners on the go throughout.

Westervelts — Forwards, Fairless, Bowey; center, Walker; guards, Hardy, Moir; subs, Judd, Aitken, Whittle, Stanley.

Thistles—Forwards, Curnie, B. Graves; center, Hazelgrove; guards, Talbot, Bessie Graves; sub., Thorne.

NEW HIGHS MADE BY RAIL STOCKS

Heavy Volume of Buying in Rock Island and Several Southwestern Issues Recorded.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 21.—Speculative interest on Wall street this morning centered largely in the railroad shares, more than a score of which broke through their previous year's highs. Persistent profit-taking in the industrial group brought about recessions of 1 to 2½ points in a number of popular issues, including American Can, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Mack Truck, General Asphalt, Davison Chemical and American Woolen.

Buying of the low priced rails reached gigantic proportions, particularly in the Rock Island, St. Paul, New Haven and several of the southwestern issues. High grade rails were not neglected, however, Atchison and Union Pacific being bid up to new 1924 maximum figures. Heavy selling of Missouri Pacific common just before noon resulted in a drop of three points in that stock, the rest of the rail list yielding in sympathy.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent.

Sales in the first two hours totalled 846,000 shares.

TRADING IS SUSPENDED WHILE REPORT RECEIVED

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 21.—Suspension of trading in the New York cotton exchange for twenty minutes today, while the government's report on the cotton report was being received, successfully averted the confusion in trading which heretofore has followed publication of these estimates.

A moderate and orderly advance of 9 to 20 points in prices, which took place after trading was resumed at 11:15 o'clock, contrasted with the erratic fluctuations which previously has followed the government's crop forecast throughout the summer.

EXPECT MORE PAVING ON LONGWOODS ROAD

If "coming events cast their shadows before," as is popularly supposed, then the Longwoods road from Delaware to Melbourne will be paved in the not too distance future.

Although nothing of an official nature has been given out in the matter, it would not surprise farmers in the district if a start was made in 1925. They point out that the road between these two villages has been well drained this year, the first step in paving operations. It is nine miles from Delaware to Melbourne.

Six miles of pavement from Lambeth to Delaware is practically completed, and a further stretch of concrete to Melbourne is the next logical step. Delaware residents declare.

FACULTIES OF WESTERN TO ENTER VAUDEVILLE

Rehearsals for a vaudeville production, which will be presented by the members of the faculties of the university of Western Ontario in convocation hall Dec. 12 are being carried out.

The program has not yet been made public, but, judging by the past performance of histronic talent seen in university circles, the event should provide a merry evening for those who attend.

Back of the fun is the serious side. The funds raised by the production will go to meet the expense of furnishing the faculty rooms at the new Western.

Among those who will take part in the production are Dr. K. P. R. Neville, Professor Fred Landon, Capt. Brodski, Miss Jean Walker, Clifford Martin, Dr. R. C. Dearle, Mrs. Edmond Meras, Miss Gertrude Rowntree, R. A. Allen, Miss Marjorie Ross, Miss Edith Wynne-Price.

CAR SMASH VICTIM IMPROVES SLOWLY

Ethel Brown Received Serious Injuries in Crash Wednesday Night.

Ethal Brown is resting more comfortably in St. Joseph's hospital today, although suffering considerable pain from serious injuries and cuts in his head and ear in a motor car accident near the turn in the Lambeth highway, Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and two children were on their way to Lambeth about 8 o'clock in the evening, where Mr. Brown was going to see about the sale of a car. When they started past the turn where the gasoline station is situated, his wife called his attention to the fact that a car coming from the opposite direction was travelling on the wrong side of the road and headed straight for them.

"I slowed down and pulled over to the right until the front wheels were off the pavement. The other car suddenly swerved off to our left, so much so that I remarked: 'He has gone into the ditch.' Just at that moment the driver pulled up his car suddenly from that direction, and in an effort to bring it onto the road headed straight for us. I knew for sure that we were going to be hit, and put on the gas as fast as I could in an effort to get the crash on the back of the car, hoping in this way to be thrown around instead of struck square and turned over. The few feet that we made in that instant is what saved us, I guess," remarked Mr. Brown.

"The other car struck us on the rear wheel, threw us sideways, so that we were facing the road with our rear wheels in the ditch. My head was thrown against the glass in the car and that is where I got my injuries. Fortunately another car, belonging to Mr. Kearns of London, came along and he gave me assistance and helped pull the top of the other car up so that the driver could get out. His car was in the ditch, but the driver was able to walk."

Mr. Brown will be confined to his bed for some days, his doctor's orders being that he must not be disturbed until the wounds have healed.

MIKE, SADDENED BUT WISER, RESUMES WORK AS WAITER

Mike Nidenoff commenced life over again on Monday. It took him years to build up a little fortune of $800, but this is now gone, as are two of his own countrymen, who, by promises of making him proprietor of a restaurant, swindled him of his life's savings.

Mike is back at his old work as a waiter, vut his determination to have some day a restaurant all his own remains with him.

Every copper Mike possessed was taken from him. He was left stranded with no money to buy food or pay for lodging. But his fellow waiters in the city came to his aid, and partly reimbursed him for his great loss. In one restaurant alone $20 was collected.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—Lower Liverpool cables and a poor export demand imparted further weakness to the wheat market this morning. Price changes were held within narrow ranges, following the lower opening. The close was 3⅛c for November and 2¼c down for the December and May deliveries. July wheat was quoted for the first time today, opening at $1.60½ and closing with a net gain of ⅛c. Throughout the entire session the market was of a choppy nature and purely professional, with the volume of trade comparatively light, being largely local. On any price recessions a fair buying demand became evident, more particularly in the May future, which was relatively stronger than the nearby months. Local traders were spreading between the various months.

The future coarse grains were all easier, following the trend of wheat, oats losing about ¾c, barley 1c to 2⅜c and rye 1c to 1¾c. A fair export trade was reported in oats, particularly the two seed grains. The flax market weakened about 2½c on a light trade.

Very little interest was shown in cash wheat, and the spreads on No. 1 northern declined 1c, while the other grades were also heavy. Exporters and millers reported little demand. Outside of a moderate demand for the lower grades, there was nothing in the cash coarse grains, with the top grades going through the clearing-house.

Cash prices:

Old Man Coyote Is Happy, Expecting To Have a Beaver Dinner Soon

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

To cut up a tree into logs and to take those logs away to a storehouse takes time. It was two or three days after the last tree close to the water of Paddy the Beaver's pond had been cut before Paddy and Mrs. Paddy got the last of it out to their food pile near their house in the water. Meanwhile Old Man Coyote had been keeping close watch. Two or three times a day he came around to spy on them. He was watching when Paddy and Mrs. Paddy swam out to their food pile with the last of the logs.

This was Old Man Coyote's chance. Swiftly he ran over to a clump of yellow, withered ferns not far from a certain aspen tree. He crept into this clump and lay flat down. He was well hidden. At the same time he could see all that went on. Presently Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy came swimming back. Together they left the water, and after looking and listening and testing the wind with their noses they moved toward the nearest growing aspen trees. They were going to pick out the next tree to cut. To Old Man Coyote's great disappointment they didn't come over to the tree nearest his hiding place. Instead they started work on a tree some distance away. When it was half cut they stopped work and went back to the pond and swam out to their house.

Old Man Coyote rose to his feet, stretched and yawned. Then, the picture of disappointment, he trotted away. "Patience," said he to himself. "patience. When they get that tree cut and carried away perhaps they will come to that tree near my hiding place. There is no use hanging around here any more tonight."

It was late in the afternoon of the next day that Old Man Coyote returned to spy on the Beavers. They were nowhere in sight. It was clear that they had not yet begun their evening work. Old Man Coyote stole down to his hiding place in the clump of ferns. Imagine his surprise and delight when he discovered that for some reason or other Paddy and Mrs. Paddy had stopped work on the tree he had seen them cutting the day before, and during his absence had been at work on the tree nearest his hiding place. Already it was cut almost through.

Old Man Coyote's eyes shone with eagerness, and down inside he chuckled. He felt sure that Paddy and Mrs. Paddy would return that night to finish cutting down that tree. His plan was working out just as he had hoped it would. So as he lay there hidden in that clump of ferns he was very happy. The thought of the feast he was sure he was going to have made him happy.

He didn't have to wait long. He heard a splash. Looking out toward the pond he saw the brown heads of Paddy and Mrs. Paddy as they swam toward the shore. A few minutes later they came out of the water, and after looking, listening and smelling started straight toward that tree.

"I'll wait until they are at work," thought Old Man Coyote. "It will be easier to surprise them when they are so busy that they forget to keep watch. I certainly am going to have that Beaver dinner tonight, sir; I certainly am going to have that Beaver dinner tonight." His mouth watered as he said this.

TAGLIATELLE

Boil half a pound of tagliatelle (flat Italian paste) in boiling, slightly salted water until tender; drain well and keep hot. Place in a frying-pan one cupful of chopped raw ham, half a cupful of chopped celery, and four tablespoonfuls of butter; stir over the fire until they start to brown, then add one cupful of broth or water and one cupful of cooked and mashed tomatoes; bring to a boil and simmer fifteen minutes. Place the paste on a hot platter, pour over the sauce and mix lightly, and sprinkle over all grated Parmesan cheese.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD

Rub into three-quarters of a cup of sifted flour one cup of creamery butter, add half a cupful of sugar and knead well, until well blended. Roll out in rounds one inch thick the size of a dessert plate, pinching the edges and pricking the center with a fork. Place on a baking-pan, allowing room to spread and bake in a moderate oven.

ROAST PORK

The cuts of pork that are used for roasting are the loin, leg and the boned shoulder. The skin should be removed but if left on it should be cut in small squares. If too fat remove all superfluous fat and rub the entire surface with a crushed clove of garlic and salt and pepper mixed. Place on a rack in a baking pan, skin or fat side down, and set in a moderate hot oven for thirty minutes, reduce heat to a moderate oven and finish baking. At the start baste every ten minutes, after that every twenty-five minutes. Allow twenty-five minutes to the pound.

CHEESE DRESSING.

Rub the yolks and whites of two hard-boiled eggs through a sieve into a bowl that has been rubbed with a clove of crushed garlic; add two tablespoonfuls of grated Canadian cheese, and rub to a smooth paste with half a cupful of olive oil; add two drops of tobasco sauce and three tablespoonfuls of mild vinegar and stir until smooth.

LEMON CREAM PIE.

Place in the top of a double-boiler one cupful of sugar, sifted with three level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and four level tablespoonfuls of flour; mix well, and while stirring add one and one-quarter cupfuls of boiling water very slowly. Cook and stir constantly with a wooden spoon until it boils; place the pan over the hot water bath and beat into the mixture the slightly-beaten yolks of three eggs and beat until the eggs are set; do not boil. Remove from the fire, stir in the grated rind and strained juice of two lemons and one tablespoonful of melted butter; cool slightly; pour into a baked pie shell, cover with a meringue made of three egg whites and two-thirds of a cup of sugar; sprinkle with sugar lightly and brown in a slow oven.

MRS. RALPH SMITH, M.P.P.
of Vancouver, who has introduced a bill into the legislature which will prevent the employment of Orientals and white girls in the same homes.

SEPARATE ORIENTAL AND WHITE SERVANTS

Mrs. Ralph Smith, Liberal, Introduces Bill to This Effect in British Columbia.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 20.—Employment of Orientals and white girls together in homes in British Columbia will not be allowed if a bill introduced in the legislature by Mrs. Ralph Smith (Liberal), Vancouver, passes. Mrs. Smith's move follows a vigorous agitation by the Vancouver Scottish societies as a sequel to the Janet Smith murder case. The new bill is an amendment to her "women's and girls' protection act," which passed last year and which prevents employment of white women and Orientals together in restaurants.

CLUB NEWS

SALEM W. I.

The Salem women's institute held the November meeting at the home of Mrs. Chas. Jackson recently. Twenty-six members and friends were on hand to take part in the community hall discussion. Since not enough funds were on hand for a building, the suggestion was made that the schoolroom be used temporarily. A committee was appointed to find out if this could be done and the seats made movable to give room for chairs or a cleared space. The committee will report at the next meeting. Interesting reports were heard from the delegates to the London convention, and the humorous stories told in answer to the roll call caused much laughter. Community singing and the social half-hour over the teacups completed a pleasant afternoon. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lew Carrothers.

KINTORE W. I.

The November meeting of the ladies' aid and W. M. S. of the Presbyterian church, Kintore, was held at the home of Mrs. C. J. Howes recently with about 60 ladies present, the president, Mrs. F. R. Thornton, presiding for the ladies' aid. Miss May Tye and Miss Lenora Armstrong were given permission to purchase one dozen chairs for the primary class. Women of the congregation are invited to attend a special meeting to be held at the home of Miss Belle McKenzie on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 22. A committee was appointed to look after the program. The W. M. S. meeting took place immediately after the ladies' aid. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Walter Oliver, Mrs. I. H. McDonald presided. The topic for the month was taken from the new study book, "The Black-Hearted Barbarian," by Mrs. Walter Ross. Mrs. I. H. McDonald finished her report of the Provincial W. M. S. held recently.

Mrs. McDonald reported that the church's missionary, Miss Lenora Armstrong, would leave the first of the year for Korea. Mrs. Alex. McDonald reported on visits to the sick and shutins. Mrs. J. C. Henderson and Mrs. D. R. Calder volunteered to do the visiting this month.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting, and a pleasant social period enjoyed.

EALING MOTHERS' CLUB.

Mrs. W. Hill, Hume street, was the hostess of a miscellaneous shower held at her home this week in aid of the Ealing Mothers' club bazaar, which will be held in the school on Dec. 2. During the tea hour the hostess was assisted by Mrs. W. Johnston and Mrs. M. Ayres. Mrs. G. Sturman will entertain at a shower at her home on Becher avenue next Tuesday.

MASONVILLE COMMUNITY CLUB.

The Masonville community club will begin its work for the season tomorrow night when the opening meeting will be held. A very fine program is promised, including lantern views on horticulture as well as many views. At the close of the meeting refreshments will be served and a social hour spent.

BARN AND CROPS LOST IN BLAZE IN CARADOC

Special to The Advertiser.

Strathroy, Nov. 20.—Fire late this evening completely destroyed a large bank barn, together with the season's crops, on the farm of Peter MacDougall, lot 12, concession 6, Caradoc township.

The flames were first noticed coming out around the peak of the barn by Mr. Whiting, whose farm is about half a mile distant. He immediately notified Mr. MacDougall, who was at the supper table. A large number of neighbors soon gathered, but could do nothing other than prevent the flames from getting at a smaller barn and a shed nearby.

No livestock was in the building at the time of the fire, which is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. The loss is estimated at $5,000, and is partly covered by insurance.

HOLD EUCHRE PARTY.

Forest, Nov. 20.—The Catholic women's league held a social evening and euchre party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philipp Leonard. The prizes were won by William Malley, Joseph O'Donnell, Mrs. M. J. Roche and Mrs. Clarke Ross. A fine quilt was drawn for and won by Mrs. Peter Hubbard.

WALLACEBURG C. W. L.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 20.—The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic women's league was held in the parish hall on Tuesday evening. The chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. Charles Sauvey. Following the regular business, Miss Beatrice Boulton gave a most interesting report of the proceedings of the recent Stratford convention.

Miss Waterstreet, who is in town in the interests of the Dominion Chautauqua, gave several numbers in reading, which were heartily applauded.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up. Is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig street west, Montreal is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Advt. v

To-day I saw

Dear Aunt Jane:

I'm just back from "declaring" a box for Aunts Fannie and Prue. It's all up now to Santa Claus and His Majesty's Mail.

Your brown eyes, I know, are just popping with curiosity to know what I bought.

Well—this year, I acted on a brand-new idea. You know how terribly keen both of them are on fancywork. That in mind, I made the whole family contribute in the way of those clever little Bucilla packages—a little afternoon apron each, an odd-shaped cushion, a laundry bag, with a gay lady pinning out her weekly wash, and finally for their adored "Tea-Time," a little cloth which is to boast an appliqued teapot.

Then I tucked in enough silks and things to finish them off, and there they were! Presents enough to keep them thinking happily of us all from New Year's until next Christmas.

Oh, yes! A little holder called "Hot Pot, I Fear You Not"—and a pair of lacquered bud vases which I made my exclusive present. They just tucked in nicely along the sides, and left room at either end for a salad fork and spoon, which I found in the basement, and which are guaranteed to teach our English aunts a Canadian passion.

How do you think they will like it all, Aunt Jane? Tomorrow I'll tell you what I bought for Cousin Sue.

As ever, your

Judith

Fur coat. Afternoon dress of soft satin or bengaline. And Satin Hat.

These three form fashion's 'entente cordiale' for Christmas occasions.

Satin Hats are smartest when they are stitched in gold or silver. Appliqued in silver, with a hint of subdued tapestry-like colors. Or vaunting a dashing spray of burnt goose from the steeply turned-up brim.

AFTERNOON FROCKS
Ready For a Festive Season

New frocks are typical of the season's colorful fashions. And they are prepared to look their nicest under the spotlight of Christmas gaieties.

These announce their fashion-rightness first of all by their fabrics—velvets, cut velvet, georgette and canton.

Crystal beads glow limpidly from a frock of black canton. And the lines are simple and straight. Elbow sleeves and round neck, at $40.00

Rust is a smart shade for this frock of georgette—with a slight fullness at the hip line, and beaded designs as ornament, at $35.00

For formal afternoon occasions—a dress of flame georgette, with short sleeves and round neck; beaded in crystal $45.00

Nigger brown and blue shades form a fashion-pact for a dress of cut velvet. Drapes of georgette smarten the skirt, and there are cleverly placed fur bandings at $39.00
