Fisher's Carriage Works

The subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of this county that he has on hand and is constantly manufacturing a line of Carriages that surpasses in style and finish any that he has before offered to the public. Be sure to give me a call before buying. I use in all carriages a new and valuable improvement in the top line that no other builder in this county can offer without infringing on the patent.

Repairing in all the branches of Carriage Work

Having purchased an axle cutter to shorten axle arms where they have too much play, I am prepared to make a specialty of that in my repairing department.

Washington, July 19 .- The Porto Rican apture that island. General Miles, lead ng the Porto Rican expedition, left Sib oney, Cuba, yesterday on the Yale, with four batteries of artillery and a few sea-soned troops. Two brigades now at Char-leston are embarking on transports to take them to Porto Rico. All the force at take them to Porto Rico. All the force at Tampa, 13,000 strong, embracing artillery, will be put aboard ship as rapidly as transports can be gotten there and sent to reinforce our other troops. General Brooke will take the first and second divisions of his corps from Chickamauga to Porto Rico. General Brooke lett here yesterday afternoon for Chickamauga to get his troops started. It is expected that the whole expedition will be under way within the next four days. It has been decided to retain General Shafter's brigade at Santiago for an indefinite period. Not a Naval Convey.

Not a Naval Convey.

There are some notable differences in the plans for this expedition and the stately naval pageant that sailed away from Tampa under General Shafter's command to attack Santiago.

First, there will be practically no naval convoys; the Navy Department has declared that they are unnecessary; that there is not a Spanish warship in the West Indies that dare thrust its bow out of port.

In the second place, the expedition does not start from one point, but will be divided among several, thus preventing the tremendous congestion that was encountered at Tampa in the effort to start the big fleet the big fleet.
Lastly, there will be no effort made to get the ships away together, but the transports will be allowed to find their own way to their destination without concerted movements.

General Miles leads the way. He had been promised by the President that he should go to Porto Rioo and the promiss was redeemed yesterday, when the Yale headed from Siboney for Porto Rico, 800 miles distant.

General Brooke will be the senior officer in Miles' command, and upon him will fall the responsibility for the execution of the details of his superior's plans. tion of the details of his superior's plans.

Will Hoist "Old Glery" at Once.

It is estimated that General Miles should arrive by Wednesday night at the point selected for the landing, and will hoist the American flag at once over Porto-Rican soil. The point chosen for his landing is kept secret, as the General will land before the full body of the expedition is at hand, and it is consequently not desirable that the enemy should be able to assemble a superior force to meet him. The distance from Charleston, where the first body of troops for Miles' meet him. The distance from Charleston, where the first body of troops for Miles' expedition was to start yesterday, is more than double the distance from Santiago to Porto Rico, so that the transports which sail from the former city will scarcely reach General Miles before the early part of next week. These Charleston troops are the first brigade of the first division of the first army corps, and are commanded by Brigadier-General George H. Krnst. The brigade comprises the Second Wisconsin, Third Wisconsin and 16th Pennsylvania regiments.

16th Pennsylvania regiments.
The purpose of Secretary Alger is to make the Porto Rican campaign a short make the Porto Kican campaign a short one. An overwhelming force will be thrown upon the island, and it is possi-ble that a bloodless victory will be achieved, when the Spanish become con-vinced that they have no reasonable change to resist successfully.

Starts With 30,000 Men The expedition is to comprise 30,000 men at the start, and it will be soon swelled to 40,000 men, and, if necessary, swelled to 40,000 men, and, if necessary, to 70,000 men, the equipment of the volunteer forces having now progressed so well as to warrant the statement that that number of men can be ready for service in Porto Rico within a very short time. The entire body of troops at Tampa will be taken, numbering about 13,000 men, and including a lot of heavy and light artillery under command of General Rogers. The expedition will be particularly strong with artillery, as some of that at Santiago, commanded by General Randolph, is to be drawn upon. The Tampa troops are known as the fourth corps, under Major-General Coppinger, comprising the second division under Brigadier-General Snyder, and made up of the first brigade, Brigadier-General Schwan, 11th and 19th U. S. Infantry; second brigade, Brigadier-General Carpenter. 2nd New York and 5th Maryland; third brigade, Brigadier-General Hale, 8rd Pennslyvania, 15th Indiana and 1st Ohio; third division, Brigadier-General Kine commanding: first brigade, Col. TO BE MORE ARRESTS Lake Shipbuilders Will Ask the

British Government for Certain

Favors Estopped by Treasty.

Detroit, July 19.—The movement for the abrogation of the Rush-Bagot treaty between the United States and Great Britain, whereby each nation binds itself to maintain on the lakes only four gunboats of 100 tons, and armed with one 18-pounder to each boat, has again been revived, and Don M. Dickinson of this city has forwarded a brief to Washington on the subject.

The lake shipbuilders are looking forward to a season of depression that may last three years, and at the same time it is likely that the shipbuilders on both coasts will be rushed with orders for the building of the new. navy, which it is hoped will be second only to that of Great Britain. The idea seems to be that the navy will be increased to 30 battle-ships and 20 armored cruisers, besides smaller craft. The lake builders think that the shipbuilding yards on the coast will not be able to do more than look after the larger vessels, and they see no reason why they should not bag the torpedo bats and destroyers, and even the smaller gunboats and cruisers. The lake shipbuilders are also convinced that the revenue cutter and lighthouse service fleet needs to be largely strengthened. The enlargement of the Canadian canal locks to 225 feet long, 45 feet wide and 14 feet deep, would enable them to build craft of a very respectable size. If the British Government would consent to these war vessels being built on the lakes and trans oorbed to the sea by way of the Canadian canals it would be a big thing for lake shipbuilders. The treaty could be abrogated by giving six months notice, but the consent of the British Government would estill be necessary before a fleet built on the lakes could be sent down the St. Lawrence to the sea.

"Hon. Attorney-General, Toronto:

"Am retained to defend Ponton, charged with robbing Dominion Bank, and now in jail here. Jailer refuses to admit counsel to oursel.

"E. Gus Porter."

After waiting three hours Mr. Porter formally demanded of the sheriff and jailer admission to the jail to interview his client, and was again refused, being told that they were acting under instructions of W. S. Herrington, County Crewn Attorney, who was out of town, and whe during his absence had handed over the conduct of the proceedings to Mesers. Robert Mackie is weakening fast, and a confession may be expected at any time from him. It has leaked out that about 50 unsigned Dominion Bank bills were found at his house in Belleville.

This was last night corroborated by the local bolice. Mackie feels his position keenly, and presents a striking contrast to the placid demeanor of Ponton.

The prisoners in the jall at present are W. H. Ponton, Ed. Pare and Robert Mackie. None of them wear prison garb, and all have their food sent in to them. All have money, and especially Pare, who has a large amount in the keeping of the jailer. At 7 a.m. the cells are opened, and the prisoners let out. The day hours are spent in reading and walking up and down the corridors, though ne communication among them is allowed.

Pare's Confession.

Pare's Confession Pare's confession, made at Manchester, N.H., is in the hands of Police Magis-trate Daley, who refuses to make it pubhave rich material in his hands. In this confession, it is claimed—thus coinciding with the detectives' theory—that Ponton gave out the combination of the safe, helped to count the swag in his room, and got his share, amounting to $3,000. Prisoner Ponton is kept supplied with money and an arrest is expected to be made in Belleville that will show where the subject of the number safe than the safe of the number safe. alleged share of the plunder ced. The town is thoroughly agitated over what the majority of the citizens regard as unfair treatment of prisoner Ponton. At 7.30 yesterday morning Mr. E. Gus Porter of Belleville, Ponton's counsel, who had arrived in town to consult with Versailles, July 19.—The second trial of M. Emile Zola and M. M. Labori raised several objections to the trial proceedings, which the court overruled. The public prosecutor charged M. Zola with shunning the trial, to which his counsel replied: "We will not shun the trial if we are allowed to bring our proofs." "his statement led to a great uproar in the court and cries of "Down with Zola!" "Down with the Jews!" "Out of France with them!" After the court had refused to suspend the trial while the defendants appealed against the overruing. M. Labori announced that he would allow judgment by default, and he and the defendants left the court. The trial then proceeded. ment he had received as "unfair, lasking in fairness, unprecedented," and used other expressions equally emphatic.

Mr. Porter applied to the sheriff and jailer to be allowed to see the prisener for the purpose of consultation at the prisener's request, but was denied that privilege, a right, he says, which hitherte has always been accorded to prisoners.

Amsterdam, July, 1898.—It is surely woman's era whon three queens rule as many nations of Europe. This will be the case when the next great event of the year will have passed into history by the installation as Queen of the Netherlands of Wilhelmina, daughter of the late King William III. and his second wife. Prinam III. and his second wife, Prin take place in the New Church, Amsterdam, on Sept. 6.

To grow up with the eyes of a nation watching for the girl to develop and rejoicing as she changes from a pretty child into an unusually attractive woman is a lot that anyone might envy. Her budding beauty has been raved over and written about as few other young women's looks have been; her mental qualities have been praised in the way to turn the head of a less vain young person, and, in a word, she has been the idol of the nation and the pride of every Dutch-

when she is to leave childhood behind and become the woman and the queen the picture she presents is one that the nation respects as well as loves, for Wilhelmina is a dignified miss, who knows how to deport herself when the

The programme is already arranged.
The Queen and the Queen Regent are to Arriving at the Weesperpoot station at Amsterdam they will be met by the leading citizens and representatives of the Government, and accompanied by a scort of hussars will be driven to the palace by a route sufficient ly circuitous to enable a vast concourse of spectators to witness the procession. In every street to be traversed the decora-tions, will be of the most ornate descrip-tion, and loyal greetings will meet Her Majesty's eye at every turn, while a por-tion of the route, it is expected, will be lined by representatives of "labor corpora-tions" carrying their respective banners. Between the hours of 7 and 8 on the fellowing morning (Sept. 6) curious music will fall upon the ears of citizens, for from the steeples of the different churches trumpeters are to play excerpts from sacred works—surely a novel depar-sure in reveilles.

At 11 o'clock on the same day, according to present arrangements, the coronation service will take place in the Nieuwe Kerk, but the details of the ceremonial have yet to be discussed and brought to completion. In the afternoon the Queen will again drive through the town, and will visit, among other districts, the Jordan, this being the Jewish quarter. With the fall of night the city is to be illuminated, a brilliant display being anticipated, while it is also expected that the Queen herself will be driven through the streets, in orger that she may see the bright and radiant devices prepared in her honor.

The following morning, like the day previous, will be ushered in with similar musical strains, while at 1 a.m. Queen Wilbelmin is to be screnaded by the Netherlands Choral Society. The afternoon will witness the great popular festival, near that wondrous museum which contains Rembrandis's masterpiece. From the square the Queen, accompanied by

After this interesting pageant has passed before the eyes of the people, the men, women and children of Amsterdam are promised an opportunity of making merry over a "water carnival," in connection with which the craft in the harber and cannls will be gayly and taste

This powerful force is put in action at night or at any time when the enemy's ships alone are expected to be in the harbor. On all other occasions the current is maintained at a very low ebb, when a pressure on the buoy would not fire the mine, but would merely telegraph a signal to the shore station, indicating to the observer there which particular buoy had been struck. The change from signal current to firing current may be made in an instant, so that in the event of a harbor engagement between friendly and hostile fleets a home vessel may be allowed to pass unscathed over the mine, while the enemy's ship, touching the buoy immediately afterward, will be wrecked on the enemy's ship, touching the buoy immediately afterward, will be wrecked on the spot. The ground mine is not, however, dependent for its explosive power on the collision of a ship with the buoy. The shore operator may explode it at volition whenever, in his opinion, occasion arises, but it is always difficult to tell exactly what point on the range line a crossing vessel occupies, and for that reason the mines are laid in groups of three, all three to be fired simultaneously in case of "judgment action."

HIS BOAT FOR A LIFE.

An Instance of Real Renevolence by a A very ourlous and beautiful letter was once written to President Lincoln that would certainly have given him peculiar pleasure if he had read it, but he never did. This is how it was: In 1863 some pirates from Peru captured and carried off some natives from the Marquesas islands in the south seas. One of them was a son of a powerful chief, and the father made a vow that he would, for revenge, eat the first white man who fell into his hands.

A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the

A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the cannibal chief, but all the people he ruled ever were not cannibals. Among them was a native missionary from Hawaii named Kakela. Kakela had just received a present of a boat from religious people in Boston, a valuable six cared boat that he needed much in-his missionary work. He set about trying to save Mr. Whalan's life, but the chief would give him up only on one condition—that he should have the new boat in exchange for the captive. Kakela bought him at that price and helped him to leave the islands.

The story came to President Lincoln's knowledge, and he characteristically found time to send a message and a present to the poor south sea missionary. Kakela wrote a letter of thanks in return, which closed with these sentences: "As to this friendly deed of mine, its seed was brought from your great land by certain of your countrymen who had received the love of God. It was planted in Hawali, and I brought it here that these dark regions might receive the root of all that is good and true, which is love. How shall I repay your great kindness to me? Thus David asked of Jonathan and thus I ask of you, the president of the United States. This is my only payment, that which I received from the Lord—love.' May the love of Jesus Christ abound toward you till the end of this terrible war in your land."

Great Events From Little Causes.
While staying at the court of Frederick II of Prussia Voltaire presented Mme. de Pompadour's compliments to the king, who scornfully replied, "Je ne la connais pas." Out of vengeance for so much insuit, as she deemed it, madame induced the weakminded Louis XV to convert his country's long standing hostility against Austria into friendship. A Franco-Austrian army then took the field against Prussia, and as it was an easy matter for madame to enlist the practical sympathy of Elizabeth of Russia, who had been the subject of Frederick's indiscrect remarks also, half a million lives were lost.—Notes

His first thought was that he could rush on regardless of them, probably will not almage to his train; but the sight of the innocent family cowering in the storm touched him, and as they padd no heed to his warning whistle he pulled the airbrake and sent his fireman ahead.

In a few minutes the fireman came back with a terrified face. There had been a landsilde, and just beyond the cut the track was covered with rocks. It seemed certain that if the train had gone on at full speed in the blinding snow it would have been impossible to stop in time to escape disaster.

In the absolute sense the incident was providential—as everything is—but circumstantially the passengers on that railway train owed their safety, if not their lives, to an engineer who was too tender hearted to kill a sheep and her lambs.

Dutch Rule In Java.

The natives of Java resemble very much in character the natives of the Philippines. It is therefore interesting to know how the Dutch have succeeded so well in governing them. A Dutch official thus explains the method:
"We pay the native priests, we support a large native police force, and we rule by the hands and mouths of the natives; but all the time we have our own people on guard, and no important move is made without our consent. Thus the people and their chiefs are contented and happy, and we keep them so by maintaining a condition more faverable than they could hope to maintain themselves."

"Doesn't it strike you as peculiar," said the cheerful idiot, who knows everything, "that in the designation of the 19 companies composing a regiment the letter 'J' should be omitted. The companies are lettered through' M' in each regiment, but nowhere can Company J be found."

"It does seem strange," replied the boarding house philosopher. "How do you account for it?"

A CLEVER EQUITY JUDGE.

But as a Jury He Proved a Monumental Failure.

Ex-Judge Dillon delights in telling anecdotes of the days when he was on the United States circuit bench and held court in Kansas. He lately told the story to some New York friends of a jury in his court at Leavenworth which tried a Brown county woman who was charged with selling whisky without a government Heones. It was shown by the testimony that the woman was in the habit of concecting a medicine from whisky and herbs, which she sold to neighboring farmers. This was the jury's verdict: "We do hereby find the defendant not guilty, but wo warn her that if she does not cease the practice she is likely to go to jail."

Once upon a time there was a happening in Judge Dillon's court at Leavenworth which so far he has never embodied in any of his anecdotes. A man had been indicted for stealing government mules from Fort Hays. Judge Horton was then United States district attorney, and Tom Fenion, the well known Leavenworth lawyer, appeared for the defense. It happened when the case was reached on the docket that two juries were already out, and Judge Dillon remarked that the case would have to be postponed until one of them came in. Mr. Fenion stated that the defendant was ready to go to trial before the court without a jury, and with this walver the case went to trial. The government officers testified to the prisoner's guilt in a manner that appeared to be conclusive, but in rebuttal the prisoner produced a great gang of pals who clearly proved an alibit. When Judge Dillon came to deliver his verdict, he said, "While the preponderance of testimony appears to be greatly in favor of the accused, I am nevertheless convinced of his guilt, and will so decide."

Tom Fenion was divided between astonishment and anger. He said nothing, however, until he met the judge at the dinner table that day in the Planters' hotel, when he walked up to the table where his honows:

Judge Dillon, I regard you as the best cuity indee in the tunited States, but as

MILITARY MATTERS.

Editor Reporter:

Draw Sta, —I see by the perusal of your columns that the formation of a military company in your midst has been suggested by some of the good citizens of Athens. Being in sympathy with the movement, I have hearded the following observations which I hope may not bore your readers.

In this practical age, when the martial spirit which once animated our forefathers is burning low or qui e extinguished, we always look for some substantial advantage before launching out into an enterprise of this kind.

As one of your correspondents has suggested, the drill is healthful and invigorating and has proved a boon to those who have not had the advantage of a physical training, from a purely physiological standpoint. Military men and the whole we have not had the advantage and the suggest to the rich physiological standpoint. Military men and the sudvantage which I am sure many of the work who was not physiological standpoint. Military men and the work with a suggest to the surface of the kind.

Such a man by the use of the brush and water may be presentable and dignified in his appearance, although but poorly clad, while often fine clothing renders the sloven ridiculous.

Again, a soldier is taught to be precise in all his movements. If he is an instructor he must give his instruction correct to the letter no improvisation is allowable. This part of the training correct to the letter no improvisation is sillowable. This part of the training will render him unconsciously correct in other things; so it is reasonable to assume that the military business man will become a better business man and the drilled tradesman a better tradesman.

The soldier is taught to be polite The soldier is taught to be polite and respectful to his superiors, and thus becomes a better member of society. But, one says, "anybody can be polite without training," so he can, after a form, but not with the grace and ease of the average member of Her Majesty's loyal defenders.

Many of the recruits enlist for the sake of the color and music there is in it, lose interest, and then drop out; however, if he does drop out after he has learned the drill, it does not matter much—the recruit is so much ahead and others mountainer, who was the witz and wag or the neighborhood, and who also occupied the unenvisible position of skeptide in thas orthodox community.

Tr. Staybolt Considers Man as Built Upon Mr. Staybolt Considers Man as Ballt Upon a Compartment Plan.

"Man is, as one might say," said Mr. Staybolt, "built in series of compartments, though he may not know this fact at the outset, and he may indeed go through life and die without knowing it, taking with him unused stocks of ability and strength that he had never known he possessed, simply because they were never brought into play. As to what will bring their qualties into play men differ. There are some few men who command themselves, and some who open at a touch, and then there are many who respond and then there are many who respond only to the most urgent call. But there are few men who cannot in some are few men who cannot his solve who he moved to action.

"This brings me, for illustration, to a brief consideration of the personal quality commonly denominated as sand, of which, I imagine, most of us possess far more than we suspect, for there are few men who finally run away—mighty few who will not stand up and fight few who will not stant up and again when they feel that they are really called upon. But our sand is in compartments, and most of us, I fancy, open only one and make that last through life, and we die without knowing how brave we are unless some great occasion, independent of ourselves, opens another compartment and shows us what we really have in reserve. I might add that there are few if any revelations that come to us in life that give "The moral of all this is that in our good qualities we should trust ourselves without hesitation.
