Little Things.
A goodby kiss is a little thing.
With your hand on the door you go,
But it takes the venom out of the sting
Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling
That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare
After the fall of day.
And it smoothes the furrow out of the care
And fills on the forehead you once called fair
In the years that have flown away.

'Tis a little thing to say, 'You are kind.'
'I love you, my dear,' each night.
But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find,
For love is tender, so long to be kind,
As we climb life's rugged height.

We strive each other for love's cause
'We take, but we do not give.'
It seems so easy to give and receive,
But we do not love ourselves, and we
Will not love ourselves, and we

Life Savers of the Goodwin Sands.
Just off Dean, a town on the Kentish coast of England, lie the Goodwin Sands—treacherous and far-reaching shoals, which have proved the grave yard of many a noble vessel. Writing in Harper's Magazine, Walter Wood tells the story of a number of these wrecks and the gallant rescues that have been accomplished. He says:

'Life-savers of the sands were zealously at work long before the modern life-boat was invented. In the blackness of a winter's night in 1626 the 'Morning Star', from the Canaries, stood her way. She 'haled far eastward and fell upon the middle part of the Goodwin Sands.' On the following morning she was suddenly swallowed up, but before she sank, a Deal boat saved five of the men, and the rest, seven or eight, were rescued by a Ramsgate boat. Scarcely had the 'Morning Star' been rescued by the hungry sands before another ship from the Canaries grounded on the Goodwin in the middle of a black February night. Again the boatmen saved the crew before the vessel sank.

A FLEET GOES ABOARD.
'There have been memorable disasters in recent years, even at sea, steam became almost universal for marine propulsion; but the most noted calamities relate to the days of sail. Of all that have been on record none is more terrible than that of the annihilation of an entire fleet of warships in the storm which devastated England in 1793. Thirteen warships, anchored in the Downs, were swept from their moorings. Some were driven ashore, five, including four of the line, were hurled toward the Goodwin and dashed to pieces. Nearly 1,000 officers and men perished; yet 400 were saved and brought to shore by men of Deal and Ramsgate and the little havens of the coast.

LIGHTSHIPS AND LIFEBOATS.
'Until 1795 there was no lightship on or near the Goodwin; but one of these noble beacons was placed on the North Sand. The famous Gull Lightship was put in position in 1809, followed, but not till 1833, by the South Sand Lightship. Forty-two years passed before, in 1874, the last Goodwin Lightship was placed on her station, and completed the quartet which guard the sailor from the sands. It was not until 1865 that a lifeboat was stationed at Deal, so that, until quite recent times, the Old World boater, the hardy adventurer who feared no foe in shape of ship or man, did this dangerous work in the celebrated luggers.

AN ANTIQUARIAN LIFE SAVER.
'Let the alarm be given that a vessel is in distress or fellow-creatures are in danger, and nothing will keep the Deal boatmen back, if it is humanly possible to get afloat. More than 100 years ago, a Deal lugger was about 40 feet long, with a beam of a dozen feet or more, giving them astonishing stability, and a forecastle, while the smaller luggers, known as 'cats', are fitted with moveable cabin amidships. A fully equipped lugger will cost twenty-five hundred dollars, the expense of maintenance and repair being correspondingly heavy.

Spring Impurities in the Blood.
A TONIC MEDICINE IS NECESSARY AT THIS SEASON.
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all the year round tonic, blood purifier and nerve restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring, when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indolence of the winter months. There is no other season when one feels so weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cleanse the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. The strength it is in the blood.

SEAS, AND THE LIFEBOAT WAS REPEATEDLY deluged with salt spray that froze as it flew over the crouching crew. Twice the gallant craft was swamped, twice she righted herself, and wallowed in the wake of the fighting steambot. The men were lashed to their seats, or they would have been torn away by the rush of waves. It was black darkness when the wreck was reached, and it was impossible to get near her.

A PITIFUL SIGHT.
'Throughout that bitter night the Bradford and the tug stood by; when grey morning broke, the 'Indian Chief' was seen—or rather, what the sands had left of her. The ship had been buried and hammered for twenty-four hours, and only a mast rose upward to the wild sky to show her presence. That melancholy relic was three miles away, and the lifeboat, having slipped her tow rope, surged down to the Long Sand under her storm forestal, anchored to windward of the tragic relic of the 'Indian Chief.' Then, and not till then, the pilot of the wreck was known, for on the mast, which was the mizzen, it dinked men were lashed together—all who were left out of a crew of twenty nine. One by one they dropped into the lee rigging, whence they were taken into the lifeboat. The captain was frozen dead, and the mate, who had lost his reason, died as the lifeboat, glassed with ice, was pulled back to Ramsgate Harbor by the tug. For twenty-six hours the lifeboat had remained at sea in the bitterest weather on record.

HUMBLE HEROES.
'Hard things have been said about the life-savers of the Goodwins; but no one who has dwelt by the sea and known first-hand the lives of fishermen and hovelers will fail to temper justice with mercy in dealing with their ways.

'I remember talking with a lifeboatman who had just returned from a wrecked steamer. I saw the rescue from the shore on which the little ship had rounded. The sea was sweeping over her, and astern, at the wheel, the master, frozen dead, was covered with an icy shroud. The survivors were brought ashore through a fierce rain of tide and wind.

him, and he left his bride and joined the crew. Through the dangerous heavy seas the lugger fought her way to the wreck, which was already going to pieces. The crew was huddled in the main rigging. It was tough and so with death. There was no chance of anchoring the 'Mariner,' and all that could be done was to about to the men to cast themselves into the swirling waters. They obeyed the stern command, and one by one they were pitched into the churning sea. The 'Mariner' was hauled up the rough shingle of the beach by hundreds of enthusiastic people, and the bridegroom, hurrying off to the church, took his sweetheart as his wife. They lived to celebrate their golden wedding.

A Fireman's Peril.
HOW ZAM-BUK DELIVERED HIM.
At 215 Fraser Ave., Edmonton, Alta., lives W. P. Mahy, a former member of the local fire brigade, who has wonderful cause to be thankful for the curative powers of Zam-Buk. He says: 'A serious skin disease broke out on my face, and spread until I was in a terrible state. The spots and little ulcers were frightfully irritating, and yet when scratched, shaving caused me agony, and sometimes I would have to go two weeks without a shave. I tried home-made remedies, but the sores got no better. When Zam-Buk was mentioned I had little faith that it would be able to do me any good. My case seemed such an obstinate one. I gave it a fair trial, however, and the first box made such a wonderful change for the better that it gave me encouragement to continue. I did so, and to cut a long story short, Zam-Buk, in the end, quite cured me. My face is now clear of all the traces of the terrible disease, which troubled me for so long.
Thousands of sufferers from eczema, sore throat, ulcers, chronic sores, piles, ringworm, cold sores, cuts, burns and skin injuries, have been relieved and cured, as was Mr. Mahy, by Zam-Buk. As a balm for all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal. All druggists and stores at your box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

The American Situation.
The United States is going headlong into something. The political, economic and social conditions are unprecedented. The discouraging thing is that most of the people think that a certain type of president (and such has his type) will cure the present ills. They are working or are being called to work in the direction. The drums are about to be thumped for the once-in-four-year rally as they were never thumped before. The cure is evident in the noise of the drums.

Oh, you people, now long suffering from this much overworked concussion of taut parchment! Noise will not save you. Nor will the wind of pellucid air sweep. One thing that may save you is a parliament with plenary power to deal with your problems—unlimited by the constitution, by court judgments, or the deliverances of men now dead (20 years) whose waste of energy over discussing state and federal powers. Make yourself into a nation with one parliament, on English lines, and delegate power to local legislatures to handle local questions. Then let your national assembly make one law on each big question for the people. Get back to a free, unlimited parliament like they have in England. You make the mistake of your life, as a people, when you forget that your political instincts were infaceably English!—H.

Economy in Meat.
The cook who broils the tough end of a porterhouse steak, roasts the ribs in a roast, throws away the bones and juices left on the platter by the carver and discards as unfit for use the meat from which the soup stock is made is guilty of a wicked waste.

The end of a porterhouse steak is unfit to serve when boiled. It should be cut off. This, together with the bone and juices left on the platter, a bay leaf, three or four cloves, an onion

King Cole Tea
More zest in your tea-cup!
More smack in its delicious enjoyment!
At last expensive study of flavor-blending has perfected a fullness, a richness, a smoothness of flavor that was once thought impossible.

Why it was thought impossible one sip of a cup of King Cole Tea will tell you. It is so much nicer, so far more satisfying in the grateful fullness of its flavor than any tea you ever tasted.

King Cole Tea is flavor-fuiter.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAR. 29, 1912.

The fact that the campaign recently carried on in this county in the interests of the finances of the Kings County Temperance Alliance proved to be such an unqualified success in that the people generally are in favor of a better condition of affairs. The heat of the county evidently beats true to the ideals advocated by the Alliance, and our people are anxious to have a hand in the good work being done. In the raising of the thirteen hundred and fifty odd dollars more than two hundred and sixty persons had a hand and a number of them manifested their intention of making yearly gifts toward the carrying on of the work. This is very encouraging to the Alliance members and will be an incentive in the continuance of the fight for the triumph of temperance and morality. All honor to the people of King's county.

What About the New Abolition?

A bill is being prepared by Mr. W. E. Koskie, if not already sent to the local Legislature, to enable the dyke owners west of Port Williams to build an aboiteau across the Cornwallis river. Wolfville and Starr's Point have been interested in the project to build an aboiteau across the river from this town to Town Plot. This structure would protect a great many acres of land, and save much loss from cutting away of marsh by the tides, shorten distances between important towns and communities, and be of very general benefit to a great many people. If the people want it why is not the matter being urged more strongly, and greater effort made to get the aboiteau at Town Plot? The chief objection seems to be that certain interests will be affected. This being the case it becomes a question of damages and this objection can surely be met. The greatest good to the greatest number and the incalculable benefits and advantages of the Town Plot aboiteau over the Port Williams one should appeal to the powers that be. Now is the time to settle the matter. It will be built, we assume, as the tide must be stopped somewhere on the river. Why not at Wolfville? The Port Williams bill if passed by the House will of course kill all chance of getting the aboiteau at Town Plot. It has been shown that the benefit arising from the Town Plot aboiteau will pay for the cost of the structure, if not built here the loss of land will go on indefinitely. The other advantages will not be received and the general losses and disadvantages will have to be suffered, unless, a strong effort is now made. We hope the loss of the aboiteau here will not be through lack of effort, or be due to indifference on the part of the people who should be moving in the matter.

Miss Marian Stewart has returned from Moose Jaw, Sask., where she has been spending the winter, and will resume her class in music after April 1st.

Fathers of Confederation.

The death of Senator Archibald MacDonald, of Prince Edward Island, last week, removes the last but one of those who took a personal part in the Confederation of Canada. The only living link between the present and the historic gatherings out of which came the Dominion of Canada is Sir Charles Tupper. With the death of Andrew MacDonald there is left on Canadian soil not one of the fathers of Confederation.

Senator MacDonald used to relate interesting recollections of the conditions in the Maritime Provinces leading up to Confederation. He was, perhaps, the youngest member of the Charlottetown conference called for the consideration of the project of Maritime union, and to which were added delegates from the Canadas. He took notes of the conference and these notes he used to say were the only ones taken at the time. He kept them in his possession. After the Charlottetown conference he attended the Quebec conference and was with the party of nation builders who afterwards visited Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto with Sir John Macdonald.

Poor Handwriting.

The Gloucester, Mass., Times says:—If there is anything desirable in a young person finishing school and entering business, it is the ability to write a clear and legible hand. In after years, perhaps, much work and constant hurry may spoil a man's penmanship. But at least, he should start right. That is not just so now. And when reconstruction is made, we are told, "Well, what can you expect when two or three systems are taught in so many years." And with all the experimentation there has not much progress been made from the style with which people started. There is much sympathy in every city with the efforts of the Lowell Sun.—The handwriting in the schools to-day is really deplorable. It is neither vertical nor slanted, but a sort of wavy line, or rather a sprawling hand that is illegible and not the kind that can be written at a high rate of speed. To improve the handwriting in the schools is one of the things now engaging the attention of the school board. Poor handwriting is a handicap to be carried through life.

But in improving it do not introduce a new system. Always employ the same hand as you were taught.

Politics?

The Liberals are always poor losers. If, in order to get a crack at the Borden Government, they injure the country, why it don't matter. It is the old story from 1884 to 1896. They preached blue ruin, they even had a "blue ruin knight." They preached that the country was going to the dogs. They proclaimed division and separation. They preached Commercial Union, Annexation, Unrestricted Reciprocity—is fact, anything to injure a Conservative Administration. To-day they seek to turn West against East, race against race. The Liberal organs, which were shouting patriots from 1896 to 1911, are at it again and are crying blue ruin. Their patriotism wears had in opposition. They are poor losers.

The most violent Liberals who are in touch with affairs at Ottawa are gradually giving up hope of a return to power for many years. Mr. Borden, the Premier, has steadily gained in prestige during the session. It is recognized that all hope, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier can ever again be Prime Minister has vanished. Rigid partisanship is steadily abating in Canada. Independent voters are joining in numbers, the party lash is less feared, and if the Borden Government is sensitive to active public opinion, and go forward fearlessly as they have done so far, paying no attention to the unfriendly newspapers and self-seekers among their own adherents, we see no reason why righteous public sentiment would not go with them.

The Morning Chronicle, in its characteristic tirade against Manitoba, has caused the Borden Government to settle Manitoba's boundary crisis, without at the same time being voted out of power by the Liberals and Nationalists who sought to saddle upon them separate schools in that part added by the boundary bill, has this to say:—

"Whence does Manitoba derive its income? It has no system of direct taxation. It has no minerals. It has no Public Lands yielding any considerable income. There is but one source from which its resources can be derived, and that is the Federal treasury, by one means or another."

The financial position which Manitoba occupies, and of which the organ at Halifax seems to be an admirer, has been won, not with assistance of federal favor, but in spite of the discrimination of the Laurier Government. While Nova Scotia has been enjoying handsome federal subsidies, revenues derived from its minerals, its lands, its timber and other natural resources, Manitoba has been struggling without her natural resources, an inadequate subsidy in compensation for keeping from her the natural resources within her natural boundaries. Manitoba has been, from no fault of her own, the Cinderella of Confederation.

Manitoba has in the Roblin Government and in spite of the baneful intentions and cowardly treatment she has received at the hands of a federal government, she has prospered.

Nova Scotia, on the other hand, has had the Murray Government, the pet child of Laurier and Fielding. As a result she has gone back, not ahead. She is saddled with over $12,000,000 of public debt, the interest on which consumes annually half a million dollars, that should be available for her public roads, educational and agricultural needs. When Nova Scotia's precious Liberal Government came into power the Province hadn't a dollar of public debt, while to-day she is virtually swamped with $179,000 of a deficit, and the most piteous, impotent government ever known of upon the earth, seeking for sunshine, light, and praying they can't find it. Poor Murray and Daniels should take a trip to Manitoba and study economics under that sturdy, able leader of Manitoba, Hon. R. P. Roblin, the Conservative Premier. No wonder the organ is puzzled, when it undertakes to compare the two provincial governments, and looks around for a reason, other than face value.

Baby Thin—Had No Appetite.

Mrs. Ulric St. Georges, St. Mathias, Que., writes: "I am writing to say I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. My baby was ill and I tried several remedies, but the result was discouraging. He became very thin, had no appetite, hardly slept at all and was extremely weak. I got Dr. Williams' Own Tablets and they soon set him right again, till at the age of eleven months he was able to walk and was a strong healthy child. I do not think there is anything to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dr. Gordon Bill

Has been promoted to an assistant professorship in Purdue University, La Fayette, Indiana, where he has been since his return from Germany in the fall of 1911. Dr. Bill is quite two years younger than any of the young men we know of who have attained a similar honor at any of the big universities in the United States. Purdue is one of the largest, wealthiest and most prominent universities in America. It is a great center for scientific education, having some 2000 students in engineering alone. Our young men have the greatest opportunity to be trained through Purdue's scientific courses.

MISS B. K. SAXTON

Nova Scotia's Finances.

Nova Scotia, as well as New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, has a deficit on the year's operations. Prince Edward Island was behind simply because it had not money enough to meet requirements. New Brunswick had a deficit because of large expenditures on public works—absolutely needed works the government declares. Nova Scotia's deficit reached the large sum of $179,010.00. Premier Murray said, to the fact that the expenditures were growing and that there was no corresponding increase in the revenue."

WASTED TIME AND MONEY

BEFORE THEY FOUND GIN PILLS

"My husband used Gin Pills for Backache and Kidney Disease. The pain in his back was dreadful and the kidneys failed to do their work properly. As he became worse, we found it necessary to begin treatment and unfortunately wasted time and money on remedies that were little or no good. After taking one dose of GIN PILLS, he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS, was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS, at every opportunity to our friends and relatives." Mrs. JAMES B. MILFORD.

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality. And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions. The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves. Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be. And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake?—your reward for using PURITY flour. When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results. Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference. Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list.

The New Town Building.

The new fire station is now about completed, and through the courtesy of Councillor Hales a representative of THE ACADIAN was shown through it one day this week. The property on which the building has been erected is at the corner of Front street and Central avenue and the location is a most convenient one. This property was purchased last autumn at a very reasonable figure. The dwelling which was on the property has been thoroughly renovated and fitted up as a double tenement. Mr. Aubrey Dakin, the town teamster, occupies the west side and the east side is rented and will be occupied as soon as the finishing touches have been completed.

The new building fronts on Central avenue and is 23,900 feet in size. It has been arranged to accommodate all the various needs of the town. A large room, 23,355 feet in size is fitted up for the use of the firemen and apparatus. This room is provided with two sets of double doors opening on Central avenue. These doors are fitted with convenient appliances so as to open readily and between them is a case in which the bell-rope from the tower above is reached. Hose trucks, ladder wagon and all the needed appliances are placed here ready for instant use.

At the rear of this room is the horse stable, conveniently fitted up, with a passage opening into the fire room through which the horse passes when needed. Next to this will be two cells for the lock up which are yet uncompleted but which will be made strong and sanitary. Further in the rear is a large room for the accommodation of the rolling-stock of the town, including the watering-car, tar-wagon, &c. as well as provision for storing the steam-roller and engine.

Over the firemen's room is a large room which will be used as a work shop. Here are stored all the tools and supplies belonging to the different departments, and provision is made for the doing of the various kinds of work required. In the rear of this is the store-room for hay and grain with convenient arrangement for feeding, &c. The building is also fitted with a bell-tower and a tower for drying hose.

The whole arrangement is most complete and the building is a credit to the town, and to the business ability of those who conceived and carried out the arrangements which made the scheme a success. Councillor Hales informed THE ACADIAN that the whole cost of the property would not exceed $2500. Mr. Ernest Eagles has had charge of the work and has done a most satisfactory job.

Don't Be Bald.

NEARLY ANY ONE MAY SECURE A SPLENDID GROWTH OF HAIR.

We have a remedy that has aided in growing hair and preventing baldness in 93 out of 100 cases where used, according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain R. Hall '93' Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our guarantee to refund every penny paid us if it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

R. Hall '93' Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c. and 1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, A. V. Rand.

Tidal Power.

A weeks ago it was widely noted in the papers that a great invention had been worked out to develop power from the head or water created by the rise and fall of the tides. The chief idea was, however, to have a small auxiliary reservoir to serve during the time when the falling or rising tide is without power. This would occur four times in about twenty-four hours, or during two tides.

This idea has been patented, but is not a new idea to people of this locality. It has always been argued that the building of an abutment across the Cobequid river at the Town Plot site would make possible the development of great power at the river. Moreover, it has been shown that by using a long creek at that point an auxiliary reservoir would be at once available to make the tidal power there generate continuous. In this way Cobequid river may be considered a reservoir of unlimited capacity on one side of the dam. On the other side the river channel as a reservoir would be at least two miles long and about four hundred feet wide, mean width.

The possibilities of such a structure in the use of tidal water to develop power, are there dormant, needing but enterprise and capital to make actualities.

If you have trouble in getting rid of your cold you may know that you are not treating it properly. There is no reason why a cold should hang on for weeks and it will not if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

Canada's Indian Population The belief that the Indian population is dying out in this country seems to be discredited by figures recently published by the Department of Indian Affairs. The Indian population of Canada is estimated to be 103,000, while the Eskimos number 4,500. The Six Nation Indians alone have increased 37 per cent. during the last thirty years.

When We Teach the Child.

What do we do when we teach the child?
We put a thought that is sweet and mild
Into a mind that is waiting for seed,
Into a heart that has never felt greed.
The man with such thoughts is never beguiled,
For we teach the man when we teach the child.

What do we do when we teach the child?
We take the treasures which may be piled
In lesson or poem, or Nature's store,
And transform them into golden ore.
Of character, which cannot be reviled,
The strong man comes from the well-taught child.

What do we do when we teach the child?
We take the nature, untamed and wild,
And mould it into a life serene.
With heart and will and judgment clear,
We make the man who is undefiled
When we teach, as we ought, the little child.

What do we do when we teach the child?
We plant the truth, where The Unde-
filed,
Our Lord and Master, said freedom comes and takes
Its place and dominates passion wild;
We have saved the man, when we've saved the child.

From the Temperance Educational Quarterly.

Every Time You Don't.

(By Graham Hood, in the Globe and Commercial Advertiser.)

Nothing in this world is so necessary to our welfare as an acquaintance with the laws of self-control. To make a success in any undertaking, we must be able to control ourselves—we must be able to direct all our forces toward the goal to which we have aspired—and the only way in which this power can be obtained is through the mastery of self. Before we can control our destiny—even to the small degree in which most of us ever succeed in controlling it—we must first be able to control ourselves—the thoughts, the words, the deeds that help to make up the daily experience of life.

When we remember that we are creatures of habit, and that every thing we do is largely a matter of habit, we can begin to see the importance of being able to exert a reasonable control over our emotions. We are never nobler than our ideals. Even though we may not grow to day's ideals, the broadening of the viewpoint that this necessitates, smooths the way so logically for the newer and higher ideals that we are always just about as far behind our best aspirations. Then, too, as our ideals are inevitably shaped and colored by our present day experiences, there should be little difficulty in understanding why the ability to direct our lives along the best possible lines should be so valuable an asset to any of us.

In plain, matter-of-fact language, a habit is a regularly fixed habit that is easily changed, but, as each repetition adds to its strength, it does not take very long to give this habit firm

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not go on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any form of female complaint to try it. Mrs. G. W. Bock, R. R. No. 6, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag out until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

The late Cardinal Vaughan: "The houses of the liquor trade are as many vipers that suck the life-blood out of the bodies of the poor. While we strenuously defend the sacred rights of private property how can we defend the property that depends for its value upon the physical and religious ruin of a countless number of human bodies and souls?"

A Word of Gratitude.
"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from indigestion, pain, and loss of Dr. Chase's Tablets the best I have ever used. I feel like a new man."—Mrs. Fred H. Brod, Wagon, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

The German Kaiser has let it be known that it is his personal wish that the troops attending the manoeuvres this year shall make as little use as possible of alcoholic drinks. For the Kaiser himself only non-alcoholic beverages are taken. His usual drink will be mineral waters.

Nothing Like It For Colds.
Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. S. writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Marshmallows and Turpentine has cured my child and myself of severe colds. We were never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take. My children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

Girls who would be lucky in love must first create a sweet disposition. Love pursues the girl with a smile but is frightened away by the girl that frowns. Love is the natural sequence of life. When they possess the attribute of winning favor they can assure themselves that they will be lucky in love.

A Pleasant Physic.
When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. In their action they always produce a pleasant and cathartic effect. Call at all dealers or from samples.

Washington brewers have limited their workmen to two glasses of beer a day, and yet they declare that prohibition does not prohibit.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S 25c. CATARRH POWDER

Invalid Husband—Did you say I was to take all that medicine?
Wife—Yes, dear.
Invalid Husband—Why, there's enough to kill a donkey!
Wife (anxiously)—Then you'd better not take all of it, John.

Cure For Insomnia.
A friend who had learned that sometimes I suffered from insomnia, told me of a sure cure. "Get a quart of prunes and drink two or three glasses of milk before going to bed," said he, "and I'll warrant you'll be asleep within half an hour."

I did as he suggested and my friend was right. I did go to sleep very soon after retiring. Then a friend with his head under his arm, came along and asked me if I wanted to buy his best. I was negotiating with him, when the dragon on whom I was riding slipped out of his skin and left me floating in mid-air.

While I was considering how to get down, a bull with two heads peered over the edge of the wall, and said he would lend me up if I would first climb up and rig a windlass for him. As I was sliding down the mountain side, the brakeman came in, and I asked him when the train would reach my station.

"We passed your station miles back," he said, calmly folding up the train and putting it in his seat pocket.

At this juncture, the clown poked into the ring and pulled the water pole out of the arena, lifting up the tent and all the people in it, while I stood on the earth looking watching myself go out of sight among the white above.

"Then I woke and found I had been asleep almost ten minutes."—Mrs. Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

CHAPTER XII
An Entry by the Front door. Instead of through the side window. The servants in the Dumont household had become timorous—the sensation of the night before had made them so.

The creaking of a stair or the whistling of the wind sent them into temporary spasms. They walked about the house in the broad daylight each one casting apprehensive glances over his shoulder, fearing that something might spring out of the dark corners to pounce upon and seize them.

"This day was interrupted as night came on. They went to the front door in answer to rings at the bell in solid threes—none would go alone, and none would stay behind.

Mrs. Dumont kept to her room. "She's the only one that ain't afraid," they said down below, "and yet they say she saw the man, too. What do you think of that?"

"She's faintly pretty, but, though all in some," suggested the cook. "Who would," interrupted the housemaid, "to lose all them jewels would myself."

"Lord save us!" ejaculated the cook. "Stay on us, where that?"

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure. "Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headaches," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont. "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck and did so much good that she wished me to try it."

"I did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicine and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience."
The cure effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, $5 for $2.00; at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

that though the man outside was invisible to them they were distinctly visible to him.
He smiled with amusement and pressed the bell again. The maid jumped, an shrieked and finally opened the door.
"The man stepped in, and Miss Dumont's own maid stepped forward.
"Oh," she exclaimed, "it is you, Mr. Storme. Come in. We weren't sure. We've been so much afraid since the burglar broke in last night."
Storme had been about to hang up his coat, but at the girl's last words he stopped and looked her in the face.
"The burglar?" he exclaimed, "Did he get in? Last night?"
"The girl nodded.
"He got in," she said, "and he got all Miss Dumont's jewels, too, worse luck."
"Miss Dumont!" exclaimed Storme. "Is she—that is, was anybody hurt?"
"Nobody here, sir," returned the girl, "but they do say the man himself—whenever he might be—got shot. I hope he did, for he deserves it."
Storme, to cut short a conversation which threatened to be long and tiresome—inquired if Miss Dumont were in.

"She was, and the maid said she would announce his presence. She went upstairs to do it."
Storme sauntered into the little room just off the hall, where the fireplace was. He waited as he always waited, with his eyes fixed on the door.
"Miss Dumont says," announced the maid, "that she is not well tonight. She prefers not to come down stairs."
Storme looked intently at the girl. "Has—has Miss Dumont retired?" came down just for a moment or two, he asked, in a strained voice.
"Would you mind asking her to?" The maid said so, she had not.
"I—I particularly want to see her! Will you tell her that?"
The girl assented, and left the room. Storme waited once more.
Finally she came. Storme hardly knew her, she seemed so pale and ill. She halted on the very threshold and looked at him. Storme had started forward once again, but he checked himself.
"Helen," he said hoarsely, "Helen, what's the matter—for Heaven's sake, tell me what's the matter?"
He had never seen such an expression upon her face before. What could it mean?
"Helen," he repeated gently, and with a note of pleading in his tone, "tell me what's the matter?"
She put her hand up to the throat. "Do you—do you ask me?" she queried, "After last night?"
"Last night!" exclaimed Storme uncertainly. "Last night?"
He noted for all the world like a man who had forgotten about last night.
"What happened—last night?" he queried. "What was it? Oh yes, I was called away. I had to go. I went somewhat too abruptly. I remember now."

As he spoke he looked straight at her. The light flared up and illuminated his face. And when the girl saw the expression there she sprang forward and buried her face upon his arm.
"Stanleigh," she cried wildly, "then you are safe—safe. You are not hurt? (They told me you were shot, that—) She broke into a storm of tumultuous sobbing.
"You're safe! Safe!" she kept exclaiming.
Storme waited until she had calmed down.
"I beg your pardon, Helen," he began; "I had forgotten about the burglar. It is just that and the truth of thought through which I carried me about which I had dared to speak. It is that which has distressed you. Poor little girl! I would that I had been here to protect you."
The girl raised her head and looked at him with wide open eyes. The light shone in her eyes. "Stanleigh! No—don't look at me while I talk. I can't stand it. Look at the fire! Look anywhere but at me!"
He obeyed her. She went on, quietly enough now but with a strange intensity in her voice.
"Stanleigh, tell me why I that you have been doing these things? Why do you count these things?"
"Do these things?" exclaimed Storme. "What things—what things? What do you mean, Helen?"
Miss Dumont did not answer.
"Where were you?" she asked in measured tones. "I had paid two bad nights—the morning after?"
Storme looked at her in surprise. "Why?" he returned, "at the time, I was there until three."
"One night," she said.
"I know that," she returned, "I know that you were supposed to be there, but where were you really? Do you know?"
Storme looked at her in a puzzled way.
"It was of the club—that's all," she answered.
She continued looking at him, and then uttered a little cry which sounded like a sob. "What was that?" she asked.

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure. "Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headaches," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont. "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck and did so much good that she wished me to try it."

"I did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicine and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience."
The cure effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, $5 for $2.00; at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

that though the man outside was invisible to them they were distinctly visible to him.
He smiled with amusement and pressed the bell again. The maid jumped, an shrieked and finally opened the door.
"The man stepped in, and Miss Dumont's own maid stepped forward.
"Oh," she exclaimed, "it is you, Mr. Storme. Come in. We weren't sure. We've been so much afraid since the burglar broke in last night."
Storme had been about to hang up his coat, but at the girl's last words he stopped and looked her in the face.
"The burglar?" he exclaimed, "Did he get in? Last night?"
"The girl nodded.
"He got in," she said, "and he got all Miss Dumont's jewels, too, worse luck."
"Miss Dumont!" exclaimed Storme. "Is she—that is, was anybody hurt?"
"Nobody here, sir," returned the girl, "but they do say the man himself—whenever he might be—got shot. I hope he did, for he deserves it."
Storme, to cut short a conversation which threatened to be long and tiresome—inquired if Miss Dumont were in.

"She was, and the maid said she would announce his presence. She went upstairs to do it."
Storme sauntered into the little room just off the hall, where the fireplace was. He waited as he always waited, with his eyes fixed on the door.
"Miss Dumont says," announced the maid, "that she is not well tonight. She prefers not to come down stairs."
Storme looked intently at the girl. "Has—has Miss Dumont retired?" came down just for a moment or two, he asked, in a strained voice.
"Would you mind asking her to?" The maid said so, she had not.
"I—I particularly want to see her! Will you tell her that?"
The girl assented, and left the room. Storme waited once more.
Finally she came. Storme hardly knew her, she seemed so pale and ill. She halted on the very threshold and looked at him. Storme had started forward once again, but he checked himself.
"Helen," he said hoarsely, "Helen, what's the matter—for Heaven's sake, tell me what's the matter?"
He had never seen such an expression upon her face before. What could it mean?
"Helen," he repeated gently, and with a note of pleading in his tone, "tell me what's the matter?"
She put her hand up to the throat. "Do you—do you ask me?" she queried, "After last night?"
"Last night!" exclaimed Storme uncertainly. "Last night?"
He noted for all the world like a man who had forgotten about last night.
"What happened—last night?" he queried. "What was it? Oh yes, I was called away. I had to go. I went somewhat too abruptly. I remember now."

As he spoke he looked straight at her. The light flared up and illuminated his face. And when the girl saw the expression there she sprang forward and buried her face upon his arm.
"Stanleigh," she cried wildly, "then you are safe—safe. You are not hurt? (They told me you were shot, that—) She broke into a storm of tumultuous sobbing.
"You're safe! Safe!" she kept exclaiming.
Storme waited until she had calmed down.
"I beg your pardon, Helen," he began; "I had forgotten about the burglar. It is just that and the truth of thought through which I carried me about which I had dared to speak. It is that which has distressed you. Poor little girl! I would that I had been here to protect you."
The girl raised her head and looked at him with wide open eyes. The light shone in her eyes. "Stanleigh! No—don't look at me while I talk. I can't stand it. Look at the fire! Look anywhere but at me!"
He obeyed her. She went on, quietly enough now but with a strange intensity in her voice.
"Stanleigh, tell me why I that you have been doing these things? Why do you count these things?"
"Do these things?" exclaimed Storme. "What things—what things? What do you mean, Helen?"
Miss Dumont did not answer.
"Where were you?" she asked in measured tones. "I had paid two bad nights—the morning after?"
Storme looked at her in surprise. "Why?" he returned, "at the time, I was there until three."
"One night," she said.
"I know that," she returned, "I know that you were supposed to be there, but where were you really? Do you know?"
Storme looked at her in a puzzled way.
"It was of the club—that's all," she answered.
She continued looking at him, and then uttered a little cry which sounded like a sob. "What was that?" she asked.

CHAPTER XII
An Entry by the Front door. Instead of through the side window. The servants in the Dumont household had become timorous—the sensation of the night before had made them so.

The creaking of a stair or the whistling of the wind sent them into temporary spasms. They walked about the house in the broad daylight each one casting apprehensive glances over his shoulder, fearing that something might spring out of the dark corners to pounce upon and seize them.

"This day was interrupted as night came on. They went to the front door in answer to rings at the bell in solid threes—none would go alone, and none would stay behind.

Mrs. Dumont kept to her room. "She's the only one that ain't afraid," they said down below, "and yet they say she saw the man, too. What do you think of that?"

"She's faintly pretty, but, though all in some," suggested the cook. "Who would," interrupted the housemaid, "to lose all them jewels would myself."

"Lord save us!" ejaculated the cook. "Stay on us, where that?"

It was nothing but the ringing of the front door bell.
The phrase—"I regular information this time"—started for the floor. The servants pressed through the glass door, chambers of the fact.
