LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

GLADSTONE celebrated the 50th anniversary of his birthday on Sunday last.

The artillery service of the Dominion will hereafter be known as the Canadian artillery.

The Christmas number of the Kentucky Stock Farm has a most artistic cover printed in colored ink.

MCCON DESTINATION is reported from different points along the coast of Newfoundland, and this is being made upon the government for relief.

The holiday number of the Chicago Breeder's Gazette is splendid. The illustrations are of the highest order of merit and reflect artistic skill of the first order.

A LAD named Uquhart, of Bellisle Bay, King's Co., N. B., while attempting to skate across the bay, at that place, on Christmas day, broke through the ice and was drowned.

PREMIER Sir Mackenzie Bowell received many letters and telegrams of congratulation on Friday last on his 72nd birthday. The Privy Council staff presented him with a magnificent bouquet.

A WINTER dispatch of the 27th says: The reply of the Manitoba Government to the remissal of the Dominion Government was given out here yesterday. Mr. Greenway refuses point blank to restore separate schools.

THROUGH inadvertency, we mentioned a few weeks ago, that Mr. Daniel Simons had been appointed Fishery Warden for a portion of Morell River. We should have said that it was Mr. Peter D. Simons who had received the appointment.

The annual report of the Ottawa Catholic Truth Society, for 1895, to which we referred a short time ago, has been published in a neat pamphlet of about twenty pages. The printing was done by Batterton Bros., and is very creditable.

The Toronto Mail and Empire of Saturday the 21st, contained sixteen pages, besides an eight page supplement as a Christmas extra. The supplement was splendidly printed in colored ink, and profusely illustrated. It was a most elaborate and most artistic design.

The Catholic Register of Toronto issued a very handsome Christmas number, the cover printed in red ink. It contained much original, appropriate and interesting Christmas reading. The Catholic Review of New York, also issued an excellent Christmas number, with colored cover.

DURING the performance by a Jewish dramatic company in Front Street Theatre in Baltimore, on Friday night last, some one in the audience cried "Fire." In an instant the scene was one of frightful confusion. Three dead bodies and twenty persons, some of whom are thought to be fatally injured, were taken out of the building.

A WINTER dispatch of the 26th says: The Conservatives are expected to make a strong fight against Premier Greenway at the elections on January 15. They do not expect to defeat him on his school policy, but are making an attack on his general administrative work, alleging that all the registration lists have been studied. Candidates were nominated on both sides by conventions held in several parts of the province on Saturday.

JOHN ORRIS, of Tiverton, N. S., was drowned at that place, while sailing some boats in an office, on Friday last. A squall struck the boat in which he and Fred Buggie were sailing, while it was attached to another boat, causing it to capsize when Orris immediately sank. Buggie was rescued in an exhausted state, after having made a gallant though fruitless attempt to rescue his companion. The body has since been recovered.

The London Daily News, of the 27th inst., publishes a despatch from Vienna stating that Lord Salisbury is negotiating with France and Holland with a view to adopting common action against the policy of President Cleveland. Spies, the despatch adds, has already assured Great Britain of her agreement with the latter on the question. It is believed that Great Britain, France, Holland and Spain will form a quadruple alliance to protect their American possessions against the United States.

Rev. E. V. P. O'NEILL, R. P. of St. Bridget's church, Lot 11, was called upon a few evenings ago, by a committee on behalf of the Lot 11 parishioners and presented with a beautiful set of sleigh robes, hats, and driving mitts. Father O'Neill has been stationed at Lot 11 only four months, but during that short time he has won the goodwill, esteem and love of his flock by his unceasing labors for their spiritual welfare and by his kindly and genial disposition. As time rolls on, may the love, honor, peace and good cheer increase and consequently give vent to his feelings, by actions like the above.—Cont.

There is considerable excitement here and in Summerside regarding the Charles E. Lafargue, which left here early in December for Sydney, also which time nothing has been heard from her. It is feared that she may not have reached the terrible gulf which followed her departure from the Straits. There is a possibility, however, that being unable to reach Sydney, she may have gone to the West Indies, and will come up all right yet. Those on board the Charles E. Lafargue from Summerside are Capt. Joseph Read, Mrs. Read, John Read, their son, who was second mate, and Basil Kelly, son of Mrs. (Judge) Kelly.—E.

The Governor-General and Lady Aberdeen have presented a cope to St. Mary's Cathedral, Halifax. The vestment is richly and exquisitely worked and embroidered with the inscription: "Presented to St. Mary's Cathedral, Halifax, by the Governor-General of Canada and the Countess of Aberdeen in remembrance of the solemn services held there on the occasion of the funeral of the Right Honourable Sir John Thompson, premier of Canada, January 3rd, 1895." It has been worked under the supervision of Father Flaherty, of University College, Dublin, by the girls in the workroom at Dalnauy, under the direction of the sisters. All the material used is of the highest quality, the cope is of gold thread, with the exception of the gold thread.—E.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

A despatch of the 26th, from Algiers to Paris, says: The small French steamer Esprit Heloise has been run down and sunk by the British steamer Bellerophon and thirty passengers drowned; twenty-five of the thirty drowned were natives.

As the water recedes in the submerged districts in the vicinity of S. d'Alba Mo., the extent of the damage is becoming known. The villages of the Orage Basconade rivers suffered most. It is not an exaggeration to place the loss at $5,000,000. Famine is threatened in some localities.

Dr. Maronick, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, claims to have discovered a serum combating erysipelas, purpura fever and all affections caused by streptococcus microbe. He claims to have found it a sufficient supplement to Ross's diphtheria serum, the combined treatment saving patients whom Prof. Ross's treatment alone would not have saved.

Advice received at the department of trade and commerce, Ottawa, by last Australian mail, indicates the possible demand for Canadian wheat in Australia. Drought has prevailed to considerable extent in New South Wales and Victoria, and to lesser extent in South Australia, the consequence being prospective shortage in the wheat harvest. The anticipated fall off has led to a considerable increase in the price of wheat and flour, a two point pound selling for two cents.

St. John's, Nfld., advices of the 26th say: The schooner, St. Vincent, which left here fifteen days ago bound for Odein, Placentia Bay, was posted as lost today. Much destitution is reported from different parts of the coast, and calls are being made upon the government for relief. The newspapers devote considerable attention to the question of confederation, which Premier Whiteley is now in Canada arranging for. The government organ believes that the question will shortly be opened at the instance of the dominion cabinet.

The Dominion government has received the final reply of Manitoba on the school question. The information handed from Winnipeg says the text of the reply is: "The province is not there." On the premier being asked if he would furnish a copy of the reply for the press he replied: "A document has been received from the attorney general of Manitoba in reply to the order in council of 27th July last. It is not our habit or practice to give publicity to documents of this kind until they have been considered by the government in council, or laid before parliament."

The new tariff bill for increasing the revenue of the U. S. is now prepared, and will come up before Congress immediately after the holidays. It is understood Canadian products of all kinds are to be heavily taxed, more especially fish. The bill provides for a duty on canned lobsters of 25 cents per dozen cans. This cannot fall so seriously affect the lobster catching industry. A duty of 25 cents a dozen or $1.00 per case will have the effect of throwing a large quantity of canned lobsters on the English and European markets which would otherwise be consumed in the United States, and a decline in price will be the necessary consequence.

Among Secretary Olney's callers at Washington on the 26th, was Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, accompanied by Mr. Sanderson, the British consul general at New York, a brother of Sir P. H. Sanderson. It is stated officially that the call was of a social nature, but frequently important business is transacted on diplomatic reception days. Outside of the Venezuelan there are a number of minor subjects which engage attention of the state department and the British authorities. A strong impression prevails, as a result of the visit, that Secretary Olney has officially notified the British ambassador of the enactment of a law for the creation of the boundary line commission. This case is such a matter of public notoriety that the ambassador has cognizance of the facts, but an official notification of the action of this country would bring out the attitude of Great Britain toward the commission.

The fishing schooner Quickstep, from George's Bank, arrived at Beauséjour on Thursday last and reports December 20, lat. 41° 41' N, long. 66° 39' W, sighted a wreck bottom up. It was found on investigation to be the British brigantine Buda, of St. John's, N. B., the water being clear enough to allow the name to be read. The Buda, Capt. Orbin, sailed from St. John's, Dec. 12, for Buenos Ayres with a crew of 17 men. It is supposed a vessel capsized in the recent northeasterly hurricane and probably the entire crew were drowned. The vessel's bowprit was broken off and one anchor was hanging over the bow. The masts were apparently broken off and the rigging was trailing under the bow. The crew probably consisted of seven men. The derelict is a dangerous obstruction to navigation, as it is floating so low in the water that it is impossible to discern it at night. The Buda's boatswain was William Butler, an Islander.

The schooner J. H. Carter, owned by Foster & Oakes, of Gloucester Mass., which sailed August 26th on a cod-fishing trip to Grand Bank, has not been heard of for a long time. It is thought she was lost in the heavy storms that prevailed in the early fall. The rest of the crew was Joseph McVay of Nova Scotia. They are all single, with one exception. He leaves a widow in Gloucester. The schooner was a fine vessel, built in 1883, and measured 92.25 tons. Insured by $4,463, with insurance on outfit. It is thought she had more men on board shipped in the provinces. Their names are not known so far.

In the station for the House of Commons, in Quebec, on Monday last, a Chinaman, Liberal, was returned by about 200 majority.

THE MIDNIGHT MASS.

REINHOLD RICHARD WITTE. Of the cathedral church San Carlos, built by Columbus's Boy, there never was a finer ruled rule than that which is being observed here.

On the eve of Carlos' day, And they tell when, aged and feeble, Footing that his end was nigh, To the Mission of San Carlos, Pedro Serra came to die.

And he lay upon a litter, And he bade them rest a moment At the stroller's open door.

Then he passed to the landscape That in beauty lay unrolled, And he blessed the land on France, Blessed John's home of old.

And he spoke: "A hundred names I will list, if all life's given, That the blessing I have given On the land may every rest."

For a mass was celebrated, Good Junipero had died, And they laid him in the chancel, On the altar's gospel side.

But each year the Padre rises From his grave the mass to say, In the midnight, mid the ruins, On the eve of Carlos' day.

Then the sad notes, long years buried, From their lovely graves arise, And, as if down the trump had sounded, Each summer his mortal guise.

And they come from San Juan's Mission, From the Franciscan by the bay, From the Mission San Diego, And the Mission San Juan.

With their garb of painted banners, And their flambeaux burning bright, In a long procession come they, Through the darkness and the night.

Slung hymns and swinging crosses, Dead folks ghostly, they onward pass To the cry-cried rules, To be present at the mass.

And the grandeur, and the grandeur, And their children march along, And they know not one another In that weird, unearthly throng.

And the youth and gentle maiden, They who loved in days of yore, Walk together as in strangers, For the dead love never more.

In the church now all are gathered, And not long have they to wait; From his grave the Padre rises, Midnight mass to celebrate.

First he blesses all assembled, Soldiers, Indians, acolytes; Then he bows before the altar, And begins the mystic rite.

When the Padre sings the oration, And the Host is raised on high, Then the bells ring in the belfry, Strung by spirits, make reply.

And the drums roll, and the soldiers In the air a volley fire, While the suburban rick Graciously from the phantom choir.

"In, silent, in" is spoken At the dawning of the day, And the pages strangely page, From rules new and gray.

And Junipero, resume his sleep, And the two-rook, rank and solemn, O'er his grave luminous creep.

And the lights upon the altar, And the torches cease to burn, And the ghostly congregation Creeps thenceforth, not one by one, Hides the air softly vanish, And the midnight mass is done.

"Who Liberator of the American Catholic Episcopal Society of Philadelphia, founded at the following brief account of his sacred ministry: Padre Junipero Serra was a Franciscan Priest of Italian birth, and the founder of many of the sacred Indian Missions in California. He was with expedition of Father 1776. He founded the Mission of San Diego, San Antonio, San Carlos, San Juan, San Gabriel, Santa Clara, and San Francisco, in which city he died in 1784. He was buried in the Mission of San Francisco, and his remains were re-interred in the Mission of San Francisco, in 1847. He died in August, 1784, aged 71 years.

A GREAT MEDICINE. God-liver Oil is useful beyond any praise it has ever won, and yet few are willing or can take it in the natural state. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil is not offensive; it is almost palatable. Children like it. It is Cod-liver Oil made more palatable by combining it with the Hypophosphites.

Stones of Interest From Europe

Paris Correspondent. The church of Advent has in its charger of forenoon of the sweetest feast in the Christian year. Preparation I. This is the work which engages everyone in Paris, each after his own manner, for the Christmas festivities. The Church takes the lion's share, for she is satisfied with nothing less than the souls of men. On Sundays and on certain weekdays special Advent preachers, more or less belonging to the religious orders, fill the principal pulpits of the city, and so far I observe that the attendance of the people has been very large. The feast of the Immaculate Conception, too, holds an additional activity and animation. The French are wonderfully devoted to the Immaculate Mother of God. Nor is this surprising when one thinks of the enormous privilege conferred on their country by the apparitions of Lourdes. The definition of Mary's stainlessness by Pius IX in the Vatican Basilica was confirmed in a heavenly manner by Mary herself in the memorable words she addressed to Bernadette: "Je suis l'Immaculée Conception." The shrine of Our Lady of Victories, in the busiest parts of Paris, has been literally besieged this week by thousands of pilgrims, visitors making their novenas in preparation for Our Blessed Lady's feast to-morrow. This devotion, so far from interrupting the train of thought suggested by Advent, is marvellously in harmony with it, for the considerations of the purity and sinlessness of the Mother enhances the estimate of the Child's dignity. "Behold a Virgin shall conceive," said the inspired prophet, but only because the fruit of her conception was to be "Emmanuel," or "God with us." Gay as one is accustomed to regard the French metropolis, I venture to say more prayers have ascended to heaven from it this week than probably from any other city in the world.

The non-religious side of Advent is domestic rather than worldly. The gorgeous shops with their brilliant displays supply the means for the many little social amenities in connection with happy Christmas. There is ever such a place as Paris for do-it, to go to the Rue de la Paix, or to the Printemps, or to the Louvre, or to any of the great stores in the city and tell me if you ever saw such a bewildering variety of toys for the children. Human ingenuity, it seems to me, can go no further. Here they are in richest profusion—elegant, mainly, choice and costly. It is a fairy sight; but prettier still it is to see the children's delight. You have to struggle through a dense crowd and your ears are distressed by the din of voices, true; but it is good to hear never-theless. It is part of the Christmas tradition. I must not omit to mention the displays in the fashionable streets of the city. The Christmas gift epidemic has evidently broken out. In the aristocratic Rue de la Paix, the home of the Parisian jeweler, the numerous diamond establishments have their shop fronts literally ablaze with precious stones, ornaments, and other costly articles for American millionaires, but not for ordinary, everyday people. In the Avenue de l'Opera, too, you will find the choicest of wares of every description, the latest books, the latest trifles for ladies' boudoirs or for gentlemen's bureaux, stuffs from the East, oddities from China, Japan and India, figures in ivory, costly articles of furniture of the Louis XIV, Louis XV, and Empire periods. The avenue terminates at one end with the Rue de Rivoli, the favorite promenade of the American and British tourists, and at the other end with the Place de l'Opera and the great boulevards, along which are the international series of popular restaurants, theatres, concert halls, newspaper kiosks and flower shops. The stream of people is unceasing. In the day it is busiest only in the evening. It is a busy, busy, busy scene, and it is a pleasure to see the approach of the holiday season accentuate this Paris life, culminating on New Year's Day, the Jour de l'An, the day which takes the rank in the calendar of every Frenchman.

The present radical administration which could not live a day if it depended on its own strength, in prolonging its existence by a policy which abounds in cleverness. In order to retain office Ministers have hit upon the plan (1) of leaving all debatable matter, and (2) of adopting the program of their predecessors in office. Their attempt in the beginning to run alone very nearly led to disaster, so the word has gone forth to Progressives of every section to cease for the moment pushing facts and theories, so as to give the Government a free hand. Hence the other evening we had the amusing spectacle of Radical and Socialist Deputies allowing the budget of public worship to pass without protest or protest. For years past, the Minister has always been a trial to the Minister in charge of it. Not an item was allowed to escape controversy, reproach and obstruction. It was the happy hunting ground of the free-thinker and the atheist. Every unjust and injustice that could be leveled at the Church was used, and fortunate indeed was the Minister who, after a long and bitter debate, secured with an unimpaired budget. The Radical is never tired of inveighing against opportunity, but surely no opportunity equalled in cynicism the calm and easy way the Radical M. Combes was allowed by the anti-clericals to secure his votes three days ago. But your readers may wonder what object the Bourgeois Cabinet have in view in adopting the policy of swallowing their own principles. The answer is short and simple. Radicals know perfectly well their own weakness and the absolute necessity of keeping on good terms with their political adversaries. Hence a moderate program. But there is one "pick-up" in the game. It can be turned in a thousand ways with a Radical Ministry. The House de Dieu, that heretic of sanctity which was suppressed by M. Charles Dupuy in 1876 is to be re-opened. Radical and socialist gatherings can be held all over the country, at which the substance will be a new paper called the "Liberation" edited by the Bourgeois Ministry. There has not been here the same kind of religious revival as in the present administration.
