'Margaret,' The GIRL ARTIST, OR, The Countess of Ferrers Court.

CHAPTER XXII. I do not think I have at any time held up Lord Blair Leyton as an example to youth, and I am less likely than ever to do so now, now that he has reached an epoch in his life when, like a vessel without a rudder, he drifts to and fro on life's troubled sea, heedless of his course, and perilously near the rocks of utter ruin and destruction. But at any rate, I can claim one quality for our hero—he was thorough.

A wilder man than Blair, before he fell in love with Margaret, it would be difficult to imagine; it would be harder to find a better one, or one with better intentions, than he was during his short married life; and, alas, no wilder and more reckless being existed than poor Blair, after Margaret's supposed death.

He was quiet enough while he was ill, for he was too weak to do anything but sit still all day and brood.

He would sit for hours staring moodily at the dim line where sea and sky meet, without uttering a word—all his thoughts fixed upon his great loss, the sweet, lovable, lovely girl whom he had called wife for a few short weeks.

He never mentioned Margaret's name, and Austin Ambrose was too wise to disobey his injunction as regards silence. He made no further inquiries, and even if he had been desirous of doing so, there was no one of whom to make inquiries, for the Days had left Appleford, and no one knew anything more of Margaret than the common record, that she had been seen on the rock, and then—not seen!

Emaciated and haggard, Lord Blair sat day after day waiting for the renewal of strength, his sole employment that bitterest of all bitter amusements—recalling the past!

Austin Ambrose was his only companion, Austin leaving him only for short intervals, which he spent in town.

Vigilant as a lynx, untiring as a sleuthhound, Austin Ambrose kept continual watch and guard. By a series of accidents, Fate had assisted his schemes, and he felt himself the winner almost already. A few turns more of the wheel, and he would have Violet Graham at his feet.

Revenge is a powerful motor, so is the love of money; but when they act together, then the man who harbors them is propelled like a steam engine—swiftly yet carefully, and, therefore, barring accidents, surely.

Gradually the long, absent strength came back to Blair. As the doctor had said, he had a wonderful constitution, and it did more for him than the great Sir Astley or the great "Sir" anybody else could have done, and at last one morning he remarked, in the curt manner which had now become habitual to him:

"I shall go up to town, Austin."

"To town?" said Austin Ambrose, raising his eyebrows. "Do you think you are fit, my dear Blair?"

"Yes," replied Blair slowly. "I am sick of sitting here day after day, and lying here night after night. I think I could"—he paused, and smothered a sigh—"sleep in London. This place is so infernally quiet—"

"Very well. Only don't run any risks," said Austin Ambrose.

Blair looked at him with a hard smile.

"If I thought I should run any risk, as you call it, I should go all the sooner. Will you wire and tell them at the Albany that I am coming?"

"I'll do better than that," said Austin Ambrose, who did not by any means desire that their whereabouts should be known. "I'll run up and see that things are straight and comfortable for you, old man."

Blair looked at him moodily.

"I don't know why you take so much trouble for me, Austin," he said. "I've no claim upon you; you are not my brother—"

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."—Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were avoided and were not performed, or if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

risks," said Austin Ambrose.

Blair looked at him with a hard smile.

"If I thought I should run any risk, as you call it, I should go all the sooner. Will you wire and tell them at the Albany that I am coming?"

"I'll do better than that," said Austin Ambrose, who did not by any means desire that their whereabouts should be known.

"I'll run up and see that things are straight and comfortable for you, old man."

Blair looked at him moodily.

"I don't know why you take so much trouble for me, Austin," he said. "I've no claim upon you; you are not my brother—"

"Wish I were, especially your elder brother!" said Austin Ambrose, smiling, "then I should have all the Leyton property, and be the Earl of Ferrers, shouldn't I? Well, I don't know quite why I fuss over you; I've done it so long that I can't get out of it, I suppose. It is wonderful, the force of bad habit. So you have made up your mind to go to London? Well, heaps of fellows will be very glad. Violet Graham amongst them."

Blair frowned.

"Why should Violet Graham be glad?" he said, coldly. "Why should anybody?"

"Oh, I don't know," Austin replied, carelessly; "but I suppose they will. You always were popular, you know, my dear fellow."

So Mr. Austin Ambrose, impelled by his extreme good nature and friendship for Lord Blair, ran up to town first and saw that the chambers were put straight, and the valet, who had been put on board wages, and kept in complete ignorance of his master's movements, warned of Lord Blair's return.

And in the evening, after he had done all this, he went to Park Lane.

Violet Graham was still in London, although like the last Rose of Summer, "all her companions" had gone. She had pressing invitations to country houses in England, Scotland and Ireland—shooting and fishing parties clamored for the presence of the popular heiress; but in vain. She declared that she hated eating luncheon in wet turnip fields, and that fishing parties were a bore, and intended remaining in London, at any rate, for he present. The truth was that she could not tear herself away while there remained a chance of Blair's return.

Austin Ambrose found her sitting before the fire in the drawing-room, crouching almost, her hands clasped in her lap, her eyes fixed on the glowing coals as if she were seeking the future in the red light; and she started up as he entered with an exclamation of surprise:

"Austin!" then she looked beyond him, as if she hoped and expected to see some one else with him, and not seeing him, her face fell.

"Well, Violet," he said, with his slow, calm smile.

"Where have you been?" she demanded, moving her hand toward a chair, "I thought you were dead."

"I am alive," he answered, "and I have been wandering up and down like the gentleman mentioned in history. You are early with your fire, aren't you? It is quite warm out."

"It is quite cold within," she replied; at least, I am cold, I always feel cold now. Well?" she added, with abrupt interrogation.

He smiled up at her.

"You want my news?" he said, shortly.

"Yes! Where is he? Where is Blair?" she demanded, and as she spoke his name a red spot burnt in either cheek, and her eyes grew hungry and impatient. "Why does he not come home or write? One would think you were both dead!"

"Blair is alive," he said, holding his hands to the fire, though he had said it was warm, and watching her with a sidelong look under the lowered lids. "He isn't dead, but he has been very nearly."

"She uttered a faint cry, and put her hand to her heart."

"I knew it!" she murmured huskily, I felt that something was wrong with him. Don't laugh at me, I meant you on fiercely, for the smile had crept into his face again. "I tell you I felt it. It was as if some one had passed over my grave. Blair nearly dead! And you never told me! What brutes men can be!" and the angry tears crowded into her eyes.

"Don't blame me," he said. "It was Blair's fault. I should have written and asked you to help me nurse him, but he wouldn't permit me to tell any one, even the earl."

"But why not?" she demanded. He shrugged his shoulders.

"As well ask the wind why it blows north instead of south, or east, or west. Blair is whimsical; besides, he hates any fuss, and—forgive me, Violet—but he may have known that you would have made a fuss."

"I would have gone to him to the other end of the world, and have given my life to save his, if you call that making a fuss!" she retorted angrily.

"Exactly," he said; "and that is just what Blair didn't want."

"Where was he, and what was it?" she asked, dashing the tears from her eyes with a gesture that was almost savage.

"He got a fever at Paris," said Mr. Austin Ambrose promptly. "It was a narrow squeak for him; but we pulled him through."

Violet Graham's face went white, and her lips shut tightly.

"We?" Then—then she was with him? She is with him now? and her hands clenched so that the nails ran into the soft, pinky palms.

"She was," he answered, gravely; "but she is not now."

"Not now!" she echoed, with a quick glance at the calm, set face. "Where is she, then? Has he sent her away? Tell me, quick!"

"He has not sent her away, but she has gone. Violet, prepare yourself for a shock. The poor girl is dead!"

She sprang to her feet, and stood staring at him for a moment, then sank into her chair, a light of relief and joy, almost demoniacal in its intensity, spreading over her face.

"Dead! Dead, Austin?" hoarsely; "you are not—not playing with me?"

"Rather too serious a subject for joking, isn't it?" he responded, coolly.

"No, I am telling you the plain truth; the girl is dead!"

"When? How?" she demanded. He was silent a second or two, then he said:

TO SAVE EYES

is the Object of This Free Prescription. Try It for Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and sometimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used a few months, do their eyes more injury than good.

Here is a simple prescription that every one should use: 5 grains Bon-Opto dissolved in 1/2 glass of water. Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Bon-Opto drops are free to all who send their name and address to the nearest optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and sometimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used a few months, do their eyes more injury than good.

It is good for the eyes and does not injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. It is good for the eyes and does not injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. It is good for the eyes and does not injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged.

at him with a glance half fearful.

"Did you—had you any hand—"

"She could not finish the sentence. He looked her full in the face, then let his eyes drop.

"Better not ask for any of the details, my dear Violet! Take the thing in its bare simplicity. If I had, as you delicately suggested, any hand in bringing about this consummation you so devoutly desired, what would you say? Are you going to overwhelm me with reproaches and cover me with remorse?"

The two spots burnt redly on her cheeks, then, as she turned and faced him, her face went very white.

"No. Do you think I have forgotten what you said? You asked me if I was prepared to separate them at any cost, and I answered 'at any cost.' I have not forgotten. I do not retract my words. I said what I meant—"

"Even if it meant—murder!" he remarked, coolly.

She shuddered, and glanced toward the door fearfully, then she met his gaze defiantly.

"Yes, even if it meant murder!" He smiled at her thoughtfully.

"You are a wonderful woman, Violet," he said, reflectively. "One would not expect to find a Lady Macbeth in a delicately made little lady like yourself! You don't look the character. But don't be uneasy; there are other ways of disposing of a person who is inconveniently in the way, than the danger and poison cup. The way is—"

"She put out her hand. 'Don't tell me.'"

He laughed sardonically.

"I told you that you would not want the details," he said, "and you are wise to let the fact suffice. Margaret Hale is dead, and Blair is free once more."

"Free!" she murmured. "Free!" and she drew a long sigh. "And where is he?"

"On his way to London," he replied. "He will be here to-morrow."

Look at a Child's Tongue When Cross, Feverish and Sick

Take no chances! Move bowels from liver and poisons at once.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what is your little one—of full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside" cleansing should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hang back with contempt any other fig syrup.

It's always more economical to measure materials in cooking than it is to guess at them.

It is the greatest economy to purchase the best spices; poor ones are usually adulterated.

DISTURBANCE IN DUBLIN. LONDON, April 25. Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary of Ireland, announced in the Commons today that a grave disturbance broke out in Dublin yesterday. He added that troops had been sent to the Irish capital, and that the situation was now well in hand. He said that twelve persons were killed before the disturbance was quelled. Birrell made this announcement in reply to a question immediately after the assembling of the Commons. He said that the Post Office had been forcibly taken possession of and telegraphic communications cut. In the course of the day, Birrell said, soldiers arrived from the Curragh, and the situation was now well in hand, although, as communication still was exceedingly difficult, he would not be able to give any further particulars, but the House he continued, might take it from him that the situation was well in hand. There had been arrests, but he could not give any names. At seven last night, Birrell said, four or five different parts of Dublin were in possession of the rebels, but he said they did not control the place.

CASEMENTS' ARREST. LONDON, April 25.

The arrest of Sir Roger Casement is dealt with by the Pall Mall Gazette in an editorial which is extremely significant at present, but which for obvious reasons, cannot be fully dealt with. Before Germany took the trouble to send arms to Ireland, says the newspaper, she must have been satisfied of the existence of agents in that country, who were prepared to receive and use them in her interest; that is to say, she must have had communication between Irish traitors and their confederates in Berlin, Germany, and other parts of Europe, and a large number of our own officers, and a landing place in that country. It becomes highly desirable that the connection, if any, between these two striking phenomena, should be more fully explained.

DUBLIN CASUALTIES. LONDON, April 25. According to an official announcement this evening, eleven persons have so far been killed and twenty injured in the Dublin disturbances. DUBLIN OFFICIAL. LONDON, April 25. An official this evening concerning the situation in Dublin, says: At noon yesterday serious disturbances broke out in Dublin. A large party of men identified with the Sinn Fein party, mostly armed, occupied Stephen's Green and took possession of the Post Office, where they cut the telegraph and telephone wires and occupied Stephen's Green, Sackville and Abbey Streets, and along the quays. In the course of the day soldiers arrived from Curragh. The situation is now well in hand. So far as is known here three military officers, four or five soldiers, two volunteers and two policemen were killed; four or five military officers, seven or eight soldiers and six volunteers are wounded. No exact information has been received of the casualties on the side of the Sinn Feiners. Reports received from Cork, Limerick and both ridings of Tipperary, show that no disturbance of any kind occurred in these localities.

SECRET SESSION. LONDON, April 25. The most crowded House since the war began was drawn into Westminster Palace today by the excitement attending the secret session, coupled with the news of various striking incidents. At the close of the session, members of Parliament received confidential information regarding the number of men who have enlisted, in accordance with the compromise reached at the Ministerial crisis over recruiting last week. That the interest was not confined to members of Parliament, was shown by the large crowd which assembled to watch the arrival of ministers and members. After Birrell had made his statement regarding the disturbances in Dublin, Mr. Asquith made a motion for the secret session which was carried. Today's session was the first secret session of Parliament during the war. In the Lords the only procedure was to give notice that no one except members would be permitted in the Chamber. The traditional custom, which followed in the Commons, which was to open as usual. Attaches, representatives of the press and spectators remained until the end of the question period. At that time Asquith observed the ancient practice of taking notice that strangers were present. The question was put that strangers must be ordered to withdraw, and nothing be published concerning the proceedings of the secret session, except what may be issued officially. This was provided for in a recent Order-in-Council. Under arrangements made at the Commons sacrificed this privilege, jealously guarded for centuries, deciding independently of the King and his Ministers, whether their proceedings should, or should not, be published. The session of the Lords, like that of the Commons, was held largely attended of any in months. Earl Curzon made his first appearance since his illness, Earl Rosebery, who has not been seen in Parliament since the commencement of the war, was in his seat. The desire of the members of the Commons to obtain seats at the earliest possible moment on account of inadequate seating facilities, was more marked today than has been the case for several sessions. The first member to arrive reached the House about 7.30 o'clock this morning. He was followed closely by a number of others.

BRITISH WARSHIPS BOMBARD ZEEBRUGGE. LONDON, April 25. The Despatch says that the following message has been received in Amsterdam from Flushing: Several British warships, accompanied by destroyers and other vessels, yesterday bombarded Zeebrugge and the German batteries off Heyst, Blankenburge and Knocke. The bombardment was one of the heaviest since the beginning of the war, and also of the longest duration. The damage done to Zeebrugge is said to have been enormous. The harbor docks were hit several times, and some ships sunk. British aircraft also threw bombs on the German batteries. In the engagement two British light cruisers and a destroyer were hit, but none were sunk. Seventy bombs were dropped during last night's Zeppelin raid. One man was injured. Four or five Zeppelins, the official press bureau says, took part in the raid. The German airships opened fire on the coast before departing. Two men, one woman and a child were killed. The material damage was small.

THREE DESTROYERS REPORTED HIT. LONDON, April 25. The Amsterdam correspondent of the Central News telegraphs that during the bombardment of Zeebrugge, three British destroyers were driven into Zeebrugge harbor, and that all of them appeared to have been hit. ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION. LONDON, April 25. The anniversary of the landing of the Australian and New Zealand army corps at Gallipoli was celebrated in London today by a parade of Australian soldiers and a memorial service at Westminster Abbey. Between 3,000 and 4,000 attended in the Abbey, where the services were conducted by the Dean of Westminster. The services at Westminster Abbey were attended by the King and Queen, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, who commanded the Australians and New Zealanders through the campaign, being described in official despatches as the soul of the Army. Official representatives of Australia and New Zealand also were in the audience, which filled the great cathedral. The parade to the Abbey gave Londoners their first opportunity since the beginning of the war to cheer troops safely returned from the front.

SALONIKA RAIDED. PARIS, April 25. A squadron of German aeroplanes has delivered another attack on the entrenched camp of the Entente Allies at Salonika, according to a despatch from Salonika, to-day. Airmen flying over the camp from all directions, dropped bombs at various points, but little damage was done. HOSTILE CAMP BOMBARDED. LONDON, April 25. Eight British aeroplanes bombarded the hostile camp at Quatia in Egypt, near the Suez Canal, is announced officially today. The camp was destroyed, and the hostile troops, the aviators reported, have apparently begun to withdraw from that district.

Running Nose Colds Cured. Sneezing Stopped Instantly. The worst of a cold is how suddenly it comes. No time to hurry to the drug store, croup develops, the lungs are affected with pneumonia or tuberculosis and it's too late. Keep Catarrhose on hand—it kills colds instantly. Something magical about the way it cures catarrh and bronchitis. Catarrhose which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c; sample size 25c.

At the House.

Tuesday, April 25, 1916. The business of the House was resumed yesterday after the Easter recess. Pledges were presented by Mr. Stone and Mr. Targett, and the Prohibition Bill was read a first time. Mr. Hallyard moved the adjournment of the House to have the Auditor General's report of the inquiry into certain irregularities in the expenditures of the Public monies at Victoria Village, Carbonear, in 1915. He read the report of the Auditor General, who stated that a grave misuse of the public monies had taken place. A number of statements made at the enquiry were read to the House as was also the evidence of Mr. Goodson and Mr. Powell. Mr. Goodson admitted in his evidence he had no legal rights to authorize the spending of road grants, but contended that he was following the custom of the country in this respect. Mr. Grimes, in supporting the motion, referred to the auditor disapproved for the law on the part of representatives, as pointed out by the Auditor General, the "watch-dog" of the people's money. He said the member for Carbonear had usurped the powers of the Department of Public Works and thought that some definite action should be taken on the part of the House. Mr. Cuff said the matter was a public one of grave importance and it should be taken on the part of the House, to take action. The report of the Auditor General had reflected on the conduct of a member of the House and it was only due to that member that he should have an opportunity of making an explanation for himself. He noticed that the evidence of the member for Carbonear stated that he knew what he had done was not legal but that he justified it by stating he was following the custom of the country. He (Mr. Cuff) had been connected with that House for 25 years and he had heard for the first time the claim that such a custom existed. He denied emphatically the existence of any such custom. There was only one course a member could take and that was to make a requisition to the Board of Works and the Minister of that department authorized by that department spent the money. There was no custom for a member to usurp the function of the Minister of Public Works. Mr. Lloyd suggested that the Leader of the House find an occasion on which to move the House into Committee of the Whole with a view to affording an opportunity to the member for Carbonear of giving an explanation. He said there was no question about the gravity of the evidence and of the finding of the Auditor General. The charge was (1) that a breach of the law was committed by a member who holds an exalted position in the House, (2) that the member went outside his duties and usurped the function of the Minister of Public Works and of a Road Board, and (3) in a most objectionable way by using an agent, who was not even a member of a Road Board, to distribute patronage largely on the truck system. He said he thought it was due the dignity of the House and the member to have such an explanation from the member concerned as he deemed fitting. The Premier agreed to Mr. Lloyd's suggestion, and asked that further discussion be adjourned till today.

St Thomas's Parishioners Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the above parishioners was held in Canon Wood Hall last night, Rev. Dr. Jones presided. Mr. F. M. Sterling, Secretary of the Select Vestry, read the minutes of the last meeting. Hon. R. Watson, People's Warden, submitted his report which showed the accounts of the Parish to be in a flourishing condition. The Church debt which amounted to $3,500 was being practically wiped out, and in addition $2,000 was spent on repairs to the Church. The total amount raised by the Parish throughout the year was $12,600. The General Church Fund was the largest in the history of the Church. The Rector then read his report on the spiritual and social work of the Parish, which showed a general increase in every branch of the Church. The Women's Association and the St. Margaret's Guild had increased in membership over 50 per cent. The Lowell Club was organized a few months ago and has upwards of 200 members enrolled. A marked increase was shown in the Sunday School work. He thanked one and all for the splendid help given him during the past year.

Mr. A. Findlater, as Parochial Representative to the Church Institute, presented his report. A large number of its members are now serving King and Country. He recommended it as a splendid place for young churchmen. Mr. E. S. Pineset, Secretary, read the report of the Cemetery Committee. Extra funds will be needed for repairs to Mortuary Chapel, etc. Reports from the Protestant Industrial Society and from St. Margaret's Guild were read by Mr. T. Hallett and the Rector, respectively. All reports were adopted unanimously.

The Hon. M. G. Winter was re-appointed Rector's Warden, and Hon. R. Watson was re-elected People's Warden. The Select Vestry was re-elected, viz.: the Rector and Wardens, officio; Messrs. J. A. Guessing Competition.

Five ($5.00) Dollars will be given to the person awarding the correct date of the month that the last steamer will arrive from the sealfishery. CONDITIONS:—When forwarding your guess to us you must enclose the outside green wrapper obtained from our office. Sevensy copies of the correct date of the month that the last steamer will arrive from the sealfishery. Mr. Lloyd suggested that the Leader of the House find an occasion on which to move the House into Committee of the Whole with a view to affording an opportunity to the member for Carbonear of giving an explanation. He said there was no question about the gravity of the evidence and of the finding of the Auditor General. The charge was (1) that a breach of the law was committed by a member who holds an exalted position in the House, (2) that the member went outside his duties and usurped the function of the Minister of Public Works and of a Road Board, and (3) in a most objectionable way by using an agent, who was not even a member of a Road Board, to distribute patronage largely on the truck system. He said he thought it was due the dignity of the House and the member to have such an explanation from the member concerned as he deemed fitting. The Premier agreed to Mr. Lloyd's suggestion, and asked that further discussion be adjourned till today.

THE SINN FEIN REVOLT IN DUBLIN.

The outbreak of a Sinn Fein revolt in Dublin shortly after the attempted landing of the rebel, Sir Roger Casement and the attempt of a German raider to land arms and ammunition in Ireland points to concerted action between Germany and the Sinn Feiners. Sir Roger Casement went to Germany soon after war broke out and has been aiding and abetting the enemy ever since. He made himself objectionable to British prisoners of Irish Nationality in the German prison camps by attempting to bribe them to betray their country and fight against their flag. His advances were rejected with scorn and he had to flee from the camp to save his life from his incensed countrymen, who mobbed him. Now, he is a prisoner in London and he will meet with his just deserts.

At the time of our writing there are few details of the outbreak in Dublin of these Sinn Fein rebels. The information afforded makes it appear that the rebellion was located to the Irish capital, and that the authorities have the situation well in hand. That is well, but the outbreak itself shows the difficulty of the task of the Irish Nationalist leaders in their campaign of enlisting men for the flag. The most bitter opponents of John Redmond, T. P. O'Connor and John Devlin have been these same Sinn Feiners. It was as well to have their open revolt as a secret conspiracy sapping all the efforts of John Redmond and his colleagues to work on constitutional lines and support the flag under which they live. With the Irish constitutionalists, Protestant and Catholic, working together the extent of the rebellion cannot be great, nor is it likely to be long lived. It is a clear opportunity for Carson and Redmond to stand shoulder to shoulder, as their followers are doing in the trenches in France, and the Sinn Feiners will meet the fate they deserve.

Carbonear's Fair War Bride.

The historic old town of Carbonear was en fête on Monday for its first military wedding, the contracting parties being Miss Agatha M. Keough and Private Wm. McHenry, of Deseronto, Canada, but recently residing at Grand Falls. The ceremony was performed at St. Patrick's Church, the nuptial knot being tied by the Very Rev. Monsignor McCarthy. The bride was beautifully attired in white silk and carried a bouquet of Lillies of the Valley and Carnations and looked charming. The bridesmaids were Misses Madge and Nan. Keough (sisters of the bride), while the groom was supported by Pte. B. Grace, both being in full dress uniform. After the ceremony a luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, at which 60 guests were present. The health of the young couple was proposed by Rev. Monsignor McCarthy, which was heartily responded to. After the repeat the wedding party boarded the train for Holyrood en route to Grand Falls, where the honeymoon will be spent, amidst cheers and good wishes. The presents were numerous and valuable, as the young couple are very popular. The Evening Telegram joins with their many friends in wishing them many years of happy and prosperous conjugal bliss.

Seaman Arrested

Following on the sensational story published by the Telegram yesterday relative to the riotous conduct of two negro seamen on board the S.S. Kasanga at sea and in which one seaman used a weapon on the other and vice versa with serious results, the police authorities investigated the matter and found the facts to be exactly as represented by us. A warrant was issued last evening for the arrest of one of the seamen, alleged to be the aggressor, and he was taken into custody by Constable Day at noon to-day on board his ship and escorted to the police station where he will remain under lock and key until to-morrow morning when he will be asked to give an explanation of his conduct before the Magistrate.

Reids' Boats.

The Glencoe left St. Jacques at 12.40 p.m. yesterday, coming east. The Home left Flat Island at 2.40 p.m. yesterday, going west. The Kyle is due at Port aux Basques this afternoon. The Sagona reached Lewisburg early this morning.

STERO IS COMING.

PROMOTIONS MADE.—At the Volunteers' Headquarters yesterday afternoon Sergt. Merrill was made Sergt. Instructor, and Instructor Hussey made Sergt. Instructor, the former being the senior.

Time-expired Reservist Joins Regiment.

A young man named Fred Reice, of Lance Cove, Bell Island, who with his three brothers were for sixteen months with the R.N.R., and who returned two weeks ago, came over to-day from the Island to offer his services to the regiment. Fred was one of 160 that comprised the crew of an auxiliary cruiser and the only Newfoundland on board. The stay-at-home life offers no glory for this plucky young tar. So prompted by the love of the fight and the duty to his King and Country, he is going to wear the khaki in place of the blue.

Burglar Sentenced.

George England, aged 16 years, who broke into a number of business houses within the past three months, and stole considerable monies and goods, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment to-day by Judge Morris. The lad operated up to the night he was captured red handed by Const. Simmonds a fortnight ago. He was charged before court with having committed 21 larcenies. He pleaded guilty to a dozen of them and was given one month for the offence.

McMurdo's Store News

WEDNESDAY, April 26, 1915. On Monday next we intend to start a new venture. Our Ice Cream and Soda Store and Parlors will open under the management of Mr. Peter G. Ryan, late of Roxbury, Mass., who brings with him all the latest wrinkles in the Ice Cream and Soda line. The store is that lately belonging to Mrs. Edward Kiely, and is situated on Rawlin's Cross immediately adjoining our Military Road Branch, from which, however, it is entirely distinct, the two buildings being quite separate. There daily and to a late hour every evening, Ice Creams and fancy drinks will be served at very moderate prices, everything being of the daintiest and everything pure, clean, and of the best quality. We respectfully ask for a share of the patronage of the public in this effort to secure them tasty refreshments at popular prices.

Amusements.

EXPLOITS OF ELAINE AT THE NICKEL.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded again yesterday and patrons were delighted with the singing of Howard C. Stanley, and the pictures. The mid-week show is a good one. It includes the continuation of "The Exploits of Elaine." It is a thrilling episode entitled "The Tollate Heart." All should be sure and see this marvellous story which is one of the most exciting ever shown here. On Friday Charlie Chaplin will be seen in his greatest comedy, it is entitled: "A Night Out," and there are two thousand feet of film. John Lane, the well known American baritone, is coming to the Nickel shortly for a few weeks.

Train Notes.

The outgoing express is due at Port aux Basques early to-morrow. The incoming express will leave Port aux Basques after arrival of the Kyle. The train from Carbonear arrived in town at 1 p.m. to-day. The train from Trepassy reached town at 1.30 p.m. to-day.

The Verdun Tactics.

(From the New York Post.)

Yesterday was seven weeks since the Brandenburgers stormed Fort Douaumont and the German press awaited the news of Namur, Antwerp, Maubeuge, and Novogeorgievsk repeated at Verdun. In the course of the two months' battle round Verdun it seemed for a time as if a new form of tactics had emerged, a battle that was neither manoeuvre nor trench work, but a sort of progressive siege, moving forward at a pace that was slow enough in itself, but impressively fast when compared with the deadlock in the trenches. If this process—someone has vividly compared it to a cancer eating into the body—continued, Verdun was lost. But as we see it now, the fighting around Verdun does not differ so radically from previous "piercing" operations. To the east of the Meuse it has been that from the beginning—a furious bombardment, a few days' rush, and stoppage. West of the Meuse conditions have been different, in the same sense that the fruits of the preliminary bombardment were not garnered in a short rush, but had to be gleaned bit by bit. That is, the French positions were not so utterly demolished as to prevent all resistance, though they were knocked around badly enough to make successful resistance impossible. But once the Germans had covered the zone of their preliminary bombardment, their progress stopped also to the west of the Meuse. That is the situation to-day.

Say "Cheero."

Is The Advice of Capt. Redmond.

"Two soldier members of the Commons, both of them home from the Flanders front, have recently addressed the House on the conduct of the war, but the two speeches have been as far as the Poles apart in tone and temper," says the London Sunday Times.

"Col. Churchill came back to launch a bitter philippic at his former colleagues, and especially at his successor at the Admiralty, Capt. William Redmond to sound a clarion note of good cheer and confidence. Col. Churchill gave his fellow-members a pretty clear hint that if they knew their business they would not let him go back; Capt. Redmond was happy to say that I am going back to the front almost immediately, and it is not likely that I shall be here again for some time."

"The one speech showed discussion and discord; the other, as a later speaker said, brought a breath of manliness from the trenches, and was for the heartening not only of the immediate audience, but of the nation at large."

"At the front, where every day and night the Angel of Death comes so close that they can hear the beating of his wings, 'the common salutation,' says Capt. Redmond, is one of cheer. "Send us out the reinforcements which are necessary," exclaimed Capt. Redmond, "and then trust the men. When victory does come you can spend the rest of your lives in discussing whether it has been won on proper lines or not. There had never been enough Germans born into this world to depress our men; they could be depressed only by controversy at home. The men under all conditions in the trenches call to one another, 'Cheero!' We ask you at home as well to say to us, 'Cheero!'"

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $281,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,500.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

the Irish Nationalists on the uprising in Ireland, as expressed by Matthew Keating, member of Parliament from South Kilkenny. Mr. Keating has been active in the Nationalists' group for six years.

The utter lack of real political significance in what has just taken place in Dublin can be understood, when I explain that these concerned would not possibly represent more than 1% of population of the country, said Mr. Keating, to illustrate, not more than 25 of this brand of cranks can be found in my constituency of a hundred thousand. Many of them originally joined the Irish Volunteer Movement when Sir Edward Carson organized Ulster.

Some time after we started Irish Volunteer movement to offset Ulster organization there arose between Irish Nationalist Volunteers, those following Redmond and those following old revolutionary movement. The latter adopted the name of Irish Volunteers and continued to talk nonsense and drill after the beginning of war.

Germany Emptied Banks to Raise Latest Loan.

London, April 17 (New York Tribune).—The Telegraph's Rome correspondent says that, according to indirect information from Berlin, Dr. Liebknecht disclosed a fact of considerable gravity during the sitting of the Reichstag on April 8, regarding the latest German loan. The president, ministers and deputies alike made the most determined efforts to prevent Dr. Liebknecht from speaking and the censorship prevented the newspapers from publishing anything about it.

Persons in Germany do not know, or know imperfectly what Dr. Liebknecht said, but great fear prevails in Germany that to cover the loan the government emptied the savings banks and kindred institutions.

The ten milliard loan is a colossal mystification and Dr. Liebknecht would seem to have disclosed that in the Reichstag in two of three sentences heard in the "summit" after the sitting it was impossible for Dr. Liebknecht to communicate with any newspaper. There was a demand for his arrest, but the government was afraid to take this step fearing the indignation of the working classes, whose savings had been commandeered.

The conclusion to be drawn from the above is that it would be impossible for Germany to float any further loans. Echoes of the scandal must have reached Austria-Hungary and will have a prejudicial effect on Austro-Hungarian borrowing.

Fish Story Kept House in a Roar.

"Canada's Fishmonger-General" and the Trained Fish "Maggie" — The Joke on Hon. Mr. Kemp.

Ottawa, April 11.—Canada's "Fishmonger-General" and his trained fish "Maggie" entertained a laughing house for five minutes at the opening of to-day's sitting of Parliament. The Fishmonger-General in Major "Hughie" Green, a wag of a Scot, who was sent over to England last January by Major-General Sam Hughes to organize the supply of a Canadian fish ration to the troops at the front. Major Green does things in a somewhat original way not usual to the red tape of military discipline or Governmental advertising.

When the House met to-day E. J. Devlin (Wright) produced a copy of The London Star of last month, containing a picture of Major "Hughie," who was labelled "Canada's Fishmonger-General," and who held in his hands a large glass vase in which a fish was swimming. Dr. Devlin, in mock seriousness, asked the Acting Minister of Militia if he had seen this advertisement, if the Government was paying for it, and if he knew anything about the trained fish called "Maggie."

Mr. Kemp said he had never heard before of a fish called "Maggie." He explained that the Militia Department had sent Major Green over to England, where fish were now high-priced to see if the Canadian troops would like to eat Canadian fish, and also if a good stroke of business might be done for Canada in introducing Canadian fish into the British market. Mr. Kemp understood that the experiment was working well.

After scrutinizing the photograph in the Star, Mr. Kemp seriously called attention to the fact that although there was a vase with a fish in it in the photograph there was nothing about "Maggie."

Mr. Devlin asked the Minister if he did not clearly see the fish in the vase. Mr. Kemp admitted that he saw the fish. "Well, the name of that fish is 'Maggie,'" declared Mr. Devlin. The House roared.

Wonderful Bilious Remedy Actually Prevents Attacks

There are two great causes of biliousness,—they are constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they not only correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well. Quite unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are effected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c. box to-day.

Oil For U-Boats.

FOUND ON FORMER GERMAN STEAMER.

St. John, N.B., April 14.—Some idea of the cunning of the German people is given by the fact that about seventy barrels of action oil and other liquid fuel for submarines hidden on board the Italian steamer Sigmaringen, now lying at West St. John loading grain, have been secreted there since the first of the war.

The Sigmaringen, at the beginning of the war, flew the German flag. She was owned by a German concern. For some months she ran the blockade and once outside traded between neutral countries. She was, however, caught off her guard and when Italy declared war on Germany the Sigmaringen was lying at Naples. She was immediately interned there.

The Italian authorities, after searching the ship and confiscating her cargo, decided that she would be of use to them and turned her over to an Italian shipping firm.

Manned by an Italian crew, she made her first trip, and a few days ago tied up at the dock at West St. John. The ship was being cleaned out to take on a cargo of grain when the discovery of the oil was made. It was found concealed in the ballast tanks.

The theory advanced by the officers is that this oil was being carried by the Sigmaringen in order to supply any German submarine in need of fuel she might come in contact with. It is now believed that this method was generally adopted by the Germans at the beginning of the war, and thus their undersea boats were supplied with fuel while on the high sea from these freighters, the locations of which were given daily to the German Admiralty by wireless.

System in Living.

RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine lives in a district where the cars on the nearest car line run about every ten minutes, but where, by walking an eighth of a mile further, one can reach a square through which two more lines pass. Now it is a much considered question in that neighbourhood whether it is worth while to walk to the square or not. The other day I heard a group discussing this point. Said one woman, "I don't think you gain anything by walking up. Seems to me I always just miss a car and have to wait for my own, after all." Said another, "Oh, I think you are apt to get one if you walk fast enough."

Said a third, "I don't know whether I gain time or not, but I always walk up, because I would rather walk than stand still!" The next thought, she knew. Said my friend: "You have just about two chances of getting a car at the square to one of having to wait for your own car. I kept count, and out of nineteen times I gained time thirteen times by walking up. I wanted to find out definitely what the chances were." Of course the other women thought such a method of going about things very amusing. "So like Gertrude!" they said. "So original!" It certainly was original, from their point of view. They would never have thought of doing anything so systematic. They would have continued indefinitely to cling to and act upon their vague opinions on the subject. She used to Be a Business Woman. It was also "like Gertrude" who, before she married, was a business woman, and who, either from that experience, or because her mind is naturally of that order, has some idea of what I call "system in living." Here, another example of system in living: A friend of mine lives near a square through which two lines of cars run, and there is also a steam railway station not far from her house. As soon as she moved into that locality she ascertained the exact time at which both trains and trolleys left and had her daughter typewrite a schedule which she keeps posted, under the kitchen clock. And last, but not least, she makes a point of having that clock absolutely right. Think how much time her household and guests save by that accurate information!

How a Systematic Man Chose His Home. A doctor was choosing a location for his home. He has to come to town every day in his machine, and so, after boiling down the possibilities to three equally desirable suburbs, he carefully tried out the roads to each in his car. He found out just how long it took him to make each trip, compared the roads as to road-bed, number of turns, car tracks and other impediments, and finally chose that locality which could be most easily reached. System in living means translating "I think" into "I know" in the business of daily life. Most of us prefer to keep on thinking. Stafford's Liniment is sold in over 500 stores. A Great V. C.

"There is one award in a recent list which crowns one of the greatest acts of self-sacrifice that any war and any nation can record," says the Manchester Guardian.

"Second Lieutenant Alfred Victor Smith, an officer in one of the Lancashire Territorial battalions, then serving in Gallipoli, was about to throw a hand grenade when it slipped from his hand back into the trench. In a moment he was in safety, shouting a warning to his comrades. "But just as swiftly he saw they could not get clear before the grenade was timed to explode, and with a wit that was as great as his valor, he flung himself upon the grenade, taking the full force of the explosion, and was instantly killed. Such a deed needs no words of prologue or epilogue. It has all the elements of a folk-tale or folk-song. "In the simplicity of its grandeur it will rank with the greatest deeds; those things which from a traveller's story become the sagas of history and are to be found in the storybooks of the people. There it will have for a companion the act of that Swiss patriot who hurled himself upon the pikes of the enemy's square, gathering his points to his breast, and so breaking a gap through which his comrades could force their way. These are the things which are indeed the redemption of war."

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISMEMBERS.

Texas.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

Texas is the William H. Taft of the commonwealths. It is the largest State in the Union and has by far the greatest waist measure. It has almost 4,000,000 citizens and yet there aren't enough of them in any one spot to make a city of 100,000 people. All the people in the world could gather in Texas and there would still be room for the gentlemanly ushers to pass between the rows selling tickets for the big concert to take place after the show.

Texas is over a thousand miles long each way, in places, and contains 150,000 square miles. Passenger trains frequently lose two days' time passing through the State and Texas die of sunstroke and freezing in the same afternoon. Ten thousand land agents have been selling farms in Texas for thirty years, and there are still places in the State one hundred miles from the nearest drug store. There are something like 13,000 miles of railroad in the State, and yet in some sections a man has to get up early and run for nearly three weeks in order to catch the train to town.

When first discovered, Texas consisted mostly of cosmic junk, including cactus, rattlesnakes, horned toads, tarantulas and four kinds of climate. Later the greaser, a species of human invented by the Spaniards, moved north in search of better society. In the past seventy years, however, great improvements have been made. The cactus, which formerly grew over the State so thickly that it was impossible for a citizen to fall off his horse without puncturing himself in 11,000 places, is now being replaced by onion beds, cattle ranches and corner lots and the horned toads and other horrors have been used to promote Prohibition campaigns with marked success.

Texas raises cotton, rice, steers and Democratic majorities in tremendous quantities. It is as natural for a Texan to be a Democrat as it is for a Japanese to be slant-eyed. Republicans are so scarce in the State that it is sometimes necessary to appoint Democratic postmasters. The State is governed by a Legislature of great firmness, and industry, whose greatest diversion is regulating corporations and railroads. It has regulated the latter so carefully that it now takes three corporation counsels to run a freight train across the State without incurring $1,000,000 in fines. The Society for the prevention of cruelty to railroad presidents is growing rapidly throughout the state.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

After I used the first two I sent for two more boxes, and I am satisfied, and also know, that Gin Pills are the best kidney remedy made. The metropolis of Texas is San Antonio, the most interesting foreign city in the United States. She Did Not Heed the Danger Signals.

BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER DIABETES.

Mrs. McDonald Might Have Saved Herself Months of Pain, Sleeplessness and Anxiety by Using Dodd's Kidney Pills Earlier. Grand Narrows, Victoria Co., N. S., April 25th. (Special.)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure kidney disease in its worst form is evidenced by the case of Mrs. Roderick McDonald, an estimable resident of this place. Mrs. McDonald suffered from diabetes for two years, and found her first relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. "I am sure I would be in my grave to-day but for Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mrs. McDonald states. "The doctor attended me for five months for diabetes, but I was worse when I stopped taking his medicine than when I started. I could not get a wink of sleep. "As soon as I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I fell in a solid sleep for one hour, and soon I got so that I could sleep fine. "Dodd's Kidney Pills have done so much for me that I feel like recommending them to everybody."

Mrs. McDonald states that her earlier symptoms were shortness of breath, dizziness, backache and a bitter taste in her mouth in the morning. All these are symptoms of kidney trouble—danger signals that no one can afford to neglect. Had she heeded them and taken Dodd's Kidney Pills she would have saved herself months of pain and anxiety.

Your Boys and Girls!

The time for weaning commonly brings peril for the infant. That this belief is universal is shown by the fact that popular lore has given to it the dignity of an immutable law of nature. In practically all cases of disaster at this period are due to an inaccurate reading of the baby's needs. Until it is well on toward its second birthday, the principal food of every child should be milk—but this milk needs reinforcement. Let one meal be of modified cow's milk alone, and the next of milk and toast, with milk next and then a bit of mashed potato and so on.

A normal baby of twelve months, weighing twenty one pounds, will need five feedings of modified cow's milk of eight ounces each and at intervals of four hours in addition to the alternate meals of toast, rice, etc. But if the child weighs only sixteen or seventeen pounds, six or seven ounces of milk will be sufficient. By the same token, if it weighs more than twenty-one pounds it may well take a bit more than eight ounces.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. On the Misuse of Money

Mr. Goodison, Function of Minister Victoria Village Road

26 February

Sir,—Agreeably with your request, fulfillment of your promise, Halcyon, M. H. A., made at last session of the Legislature should proceed to Carbonara and enquire into the following matters of public moneys, viz:—

Expenditure by Edward J. on account of Local Roads in Victoria Village and vicinity thereof. Letter of Authority dated May 28, 1914, allocating $200.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. on account of Local Roads in Victoria Village and vicinity thereof. Letter of Authority dated July 1913, allocating $114.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. on account of Main Road from Carbonara to New Perlican as per Letter of Authority dated May 28, 1914, allocating $200.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. on account of Special Works in District of Carbonara on Special, viz, for the construction of the Neck and roads in Victoria Village as per Letter of Authority dated May 12th, 1913, allocating $100.00 for this service.

I visited Carbonara in the early part of the present month and held a public inquiry. The delay in the investigation was due to the absence of Sydney, of nearly all the witnesses who did not return until late in the month of January.

In connection with the enquiry I have the honour to report the following, viz:—

There was no evidence which would tend to show that the Chairman has been guilty of appropriating to his own benefit the public moneys entrusted to him.

There was, however, sufficient evidence to show that he was to a great extent indirectly a party to a waste of money, a grave misuse of the moneys allocated for special purposes.

It is necessary that I should refer to a case in which the man, apparently, paid a labourer one day's work which he had not done. He did not perform. In the evidence Robert W. Clarke says:— "Mr. Clarke (the Chairman) 'paid me for one day's work, but I did not work for. Didn't tell 'why he paid me the extra money.' I hadn't time to work out the 'tra day's work as I was going to Sydney. I knew I was paid more money than I earned and 'made no objection.'"

This is the only case in the evidence given in which the Chairman gave an order for the payment of money for work which he had not apportioned but which he

Report of the Auditor General

On the Misuse of Public Money at Victoria Village.

Mr. Goodison, Member for Carbonar, Usurps Function of Minister of Public Works and of the Victoria Village Road Board.

26 February, 1916.

Agreeably with your request and in fulfillment of your promise to Mr. Hallyard, M. H. A., made during the last session of the Legislature that I should proceed to Carbonar and there enquire into the following expenditures of public moneys, viz.:

Expenditure by Edward J. Clarke on account of Local Roads in Victoria Village and vicinity thereof as per Letter of Authority dated July 16th, 1914, allocating $200.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. Clarke on account of Main Road from Carbonar to New Perlican as per Letter of Authority dated July 22nd, 1913, allocating $114.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. Clarke on account of Main Road from Carbonar to New Perlican as per Letter of Authority dated May 21st, 1913, allocating $200.00 for this service.

Expenditure by Edward J. Clarke on account of Special Works in the District of Carbonar on Special work, viz. for the construction of a well at the Neck and roads in Victoria Village as per Letter of Authority dated May 12th, 1913, allocating $150.00 for this service.

I visited Carbonar in the early part of the present month and held the enquiry. The delay in holding the investigation was due to the absence of Sydney, of nearly all the witnesses, who did not return until late in December or in January.

In connection with the enquiry I have the honour to report as follows, viz.:

There was no evidence adduced which would tend to show that the Carbonar has been guilty of appropriating to its own benefit any of the public moneys entrusted to him.

There was, however, sufficient evidence to show that he was to some extent indirectly a party to what is, in my opinion, a grave misuse of public moneys allocated for special purposes.

It is necessary that I should call attention to a case in which the Chairman, apparently, paid a labourer for one day's work which he, the labourer, says he did not perform. In his evidence Robert W. Clarke says:—

"Mr. Clarke (the Chairman) paid me for one day's work. I didn't tell me why he paid me the extra money. I hadn't time to work out the extra day's work as I was going to Sydney. I knew I was taking more money than I earned but I made no objection. In his evidence this is the only case in the evidence given in which the Chairman gave an order for the payment of money for work which he had apparently apportioned but which had not been done. As the Chairman (who was present during the whole examination) raised no objections to this statement, I am of opinion that he believed the witness had worked two days. The irregular method, if method it can be called, employed in accounting for the work, the absence of regular Inspector's payrolls, the intermittent inspection and the absence of the Chairman, all render the making of a mistake such as this possible and even probable. So far as the evidence shows, he did not contribute directly in giving out the work, payment for which entailed the misuse of public funds. He was, however, a party to this irregularity inasmuch as he paid these men (in some instances, directly; in others, by orders on Mr. Nicholas Powell, who had made advances in goods to the men), he entered the men's names on the Public Works return sheet and he signed the certificates required by these returns although he did not set the men to work and, apparently, did not know, in many instances, if they had done the work for which he was paying. He does not appear to have fully realized the responsibility attached to his position.

A consideration of the evidence given, in connection with the enquiry, established clearly the following, viz.:

The Chairman and Members of the Road Board have clearly failed to appreciate, in its fullest extent, the duty which they, holding a public trust, owe to the public. The Chairman paid over public moneys without personally acquainting himself as to whether the work for which payment was made, was performed. He paid for work which he did not authorize. He certified returns for work done of which he knew nothing. This was due to some extent to much of the work having been authorized and performed during his absence. But he could have informed himself by applying to the men who had worked and, in any case, his inspectors could have given him some information. These latter appear to have performed their duties in a very perfunctory manner.

2. Public moneys were misused. Allocations were made for a definite purpose, i.e., repair of main line and local roads and the construction of a well. To apply these moneys to the purpose of repairing and repairing and construction of roads partly, if not entirely, on private property, is clearly irregular. Evidence to the contrary notwithstanding, there exists in my mind no doubt that much work was done for private benefit.

3. The undue interference by unauthorized individuals in the expenditure of public moneys.

No person other than the Chairman of the Road Board had any authority to send any one to work, to advance money on account of such work, or to direct the payment thereof, whether completed or not. The plea that the Chairman was absent and that the difficulty of obtaining a competent person to accept that position was insuperable, deserves some consideration.

It seems to me, however, that failing the Chairman, some other Member of the Board, or the Board acting in Commission, should have undertaken the work.

4. The construction of the well ("at the Neck") was ordered by the member for the District, and the liability for payment therefor was incurred both before the Public Works Department had authorized the work and had made allocation for the service. The intervention of the Member for the District in the matter was distinctly irregular. He could recommend the Public Works Department to authorize the construction of this well, but his recommendation should not have post-dated the completion of the work which he, personally, had authorized. His action is a clear breach of Rule 10 of the Orders-in-Council made under the provisions of the Audit Act. This rule, which has all the force of law, reads as follows:—

"Expenditures Under Legislative votes may be authorized by the head of a Department on account of appropriations managed by his Department, so soon as he has been notified by the Treasury Board as to the votes assigned to his Department, but he shall not operate in any way on such appropriations until such notification has been transmitted to him, and a letter of credit has been issued in his favour. Nor shall he expend, during the first six months of any year, a sum greater than two-thirds of the appropriation under open vote."

Provided further that no person or persons other than the Governor-in-Council or the head of a Department (so far as the votes managed by his Department are concerned), shall have the power to authorize the undertaking of any work or the incurring of an expenditure upon any appropriation account. Votes which are by statute placed under the control of the Governor-in-Council shall not be operated upon until specifically allocated by Order-in-Council and placed by such order under the management of a Departmental head."

With regard to this rule I have to say that no plea of expediency (as to assuming the direction of road matters in the absence of a Chairman) or of the impoverished condition of the public moneys entrusted to their care by act of that body.

These then are the principal points brought out by the enquiry. There are others of minor importance which a desire to be as brief and concise as possible has led me to pass by. Those given are, however, sufficient to show (if my conclusions are correct) that the allocations which are the subject of this enquiry have not been managed with that strict regard to the requirements of the Public Service and of the Audit Acts which should govern the action of the persons responsible for their management.

In conclusion I desire to draw attention to the evidence and affidavit of the witness George Peckham. In his affidavit (T.P.L.) he says he did not perform any work on a well or any road on the Neck for the $10 he is alleged to have received as per return sheet dated May 12th, 1913, for an allocation of $150. That he was not asked by any person to do any work whatsoever for the said sum. In his evidence he also says he did not work for the $10 and admits he signed a receipt for this money. The receipt (T.P.L.) is as follows:—

Received from Nicholas Powell the sum of Ten Dollars, Special Roads, to repair road near my house, Sgt. George Peckham, Victoria Village, April 21st, 1913."

It is quite clear that this man and others of the witnesses obtained money on the promise to do certain work which they did not do. They certainly should be made work out the value of the advances given them.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
Sgt. F. C. BERTEAU,
Comptroller and Auditor General.
The Right Honourable
The Prime Minister.

SOME OF THE EVIDENCE.

Robert Cole (Sworn)—Cannot read or write. I worked on Victoria Village roads somewhere about May, 1914. Worked one day and was paid for that the next day. The quarter for Mr. Clarke. I think I was paid in cash. This is all the road work I did in 1914. (See Statement "A") In addition to that I was paid for digging a ditch the sum of five dollars. I dug this ditch for my own advantage and for the benefit of the road, but I did not without any authority, and then I went to Mr. Powell and asked him if I could be paid for it. He paid me. I know Mr. Ash, the Inspector; told him afterwards that the work was satisfactory. I received payment in goods. Mr. Clarke did not pay me. Mr. Clarke was Chairman of the Road Board at that time. People were in the habit of going to Mr. Goodison, so I went to Mr. Goodison, but I wouldn't go, so I went to Mr. Powell and asked him if I couldn't get paid for it and he told me "yes" and "no". This is all the work I did on roads.

Moses Yates (Sworn)—Cannot read or write. I remember working on a well at the Neck in the spring of 1913. I worked four days and earned five dollars, which was paid me by Nicholas Powell in goods. Some goods and perhaps some in cash. I worked two days on the roads under Mr. Clarke, in his evidence, personally paid me in cash. This payment had nothing to do with a note for $2 on Mr. Nicholas Powell drawn by Mr. Goodison in favor of my work. My wife told me it was to get something for her Xmas. I never did a stroke of work to pay for that and I wasn't asked to do so.

Robert Cole (Sworn)—Cannot read or write. Remember working on the Carbonar to New Perlican Road in the spring of 1914. Don't remember how many days I worked. Mr. Clarke paid me for the work I did on the old Mr. Marsh. Don't know how much, but think it was about four dollars and one-half. I also worked the same year on the local roads in Victoria Village. I swear I only worked one day. I was paid one dollar and a quarter for that by Mr. Clarke. I also received a note for $10 from Mr. Powell from Mr. Goodison by telephone. I asked Mr. Goodison for help as I was in need of food, a drop of molasses and the like that Mr. Powell paid me in molasses and cash, and I used the cash in buying oil and other things for the house, in different places.

John M. White (Sworn)—I remember working one day on Peck's Brook fixing the bridge in 1913. Was paid one dollar and a quarter by Mr. Powell. I don't think I could have worked in 1914 on the roads, because I had my legs broken in the fall of 1913 at Sydney. I don't remember getting any money from Mr. Clarke in 1914. Just as I could walk after my accident, I got some help from Mr. Goodison, the member. He gave me a note to Mr. Powell for four dollars. He also gave my wife a note for six dollars. My wife and I took it up in cabbages. I did not work then nor since for that ten dollars. I could not speak for my wife I did not know what it was given me for. When I went to Mr. Goodison I asked him to help me as I wanted some relief. I did not know where the money came from and I have not been asked to do any work for it.

George E. White (Sworn)—I worked on Carbonar, New Perlican road two days in the spring of 1914. Was paid for same in goods by Mr. Ed. Clarke. To the best of my knowledge I did not do any work of any sort for the Government in 1914 except the above. I was told by Mr. Powell to go to work but, not being able to go, James Cole took my place. Mr. Clarke gave me a note in 1914 to go to Mr. Powell. First of all I took a note from Mr. Powell to Mr. Clarke and it was then Mr. Clarke gave me a note to Mr. Powell for two dollars which I took up in goods. I went to Mr. Powell and asked him to let me have a gallon of molasses and a pound of tea and he asked me if I had tried to get some work from Mr. Clarke on the roads. I said "no" and he (Mr. Powell) gave me the note to Mr. Clarke above mentioned. I never worked out that two dollars, nor was never sent to. I looked upon the money as relief. Mr. Clarke did not tell me that I would have to work out that two dollars when he gave me that note to Mr. Powell. I cleaned out what they call the Double Brook the previous winter. Then I went to Mr. Powell and asked him if I could get paid for it, and he gave me a note to Mr. Powell, who paid me at that time either one dollar fifty or two dollars. This is not the same as the note Mr. Clarke gave me to Mr. Powell for which I did no work.

George Peckham (Sworn)—On May 16, 1914, I worked one day on Carbonar to New Perlican road. My signature is on return sheet for $125. In May, 1913, I did not work at the construction of a well at Victoria Village. If my name appears on the return sheet marked "A" as having worked on the construction of a well at the Neck it is not correct. I received ten dollars which appears on said return sheet, but did not work. The ten dollars was not promised me for any thing particular, but I went and got it from Nicholas Powell. Mr. Goodison promised he would do something for me and it was on this promise I went to Mr. Goodison, who telephoned Powell to know if there was any money on hand. Mr. Goodison then told me to

Tea, Coffee and Children

It would be difficult for any parent in the Dominion to find a physician of modern education who would contend that tea and coffee are not harmful, especially to growing children.

The fact remains, however, that many parents give these beverages to their little folks and allow their use in older children at a time when physical and mental development is the most rapid.

The drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee retards growth and interferes with school progress. Disturbances of eyesight, headaches, nervousness, irritability, indigestion and other ills appear in many, seemingly without cause, and the damage often occurs at the most impressionable period of life.

No parent should permit the use of tea and coffee in the growing young; for the men and women of tomorrow will be what the parent of today makes the children by wise upbringing.

Children as well as adults need an invigorating, warm drink, and in a growing number of Canadian homes it has been found that the most wholesome table beverage is

THE PRIME MINISTER'S ILLNESS.

It is possible to speak with authority about the health of the Prime Minister. Nothing serious is the matter. But it is significant of the strain imposed by the war that the present instance and the one last November are the only two cases in which he has been laid up in the last twenty-one years. His physical health is really abnormal, and is in startling contrast to that of his fellow-barrister, Sir Edward Carson, who is only slowly becoming convalescent, and yet more so that of Mr. Balfour, who suffers so much from colds that he is now, I hear, trying a new system of inoculation. One of Mr. Balfour's greatest friends is that apostle of inoculation, Sir Almoth Wright, who now has a military laboratory at Boulogne, and it is due to his faith in this treatment that the First Lord is now testing it.

FOREIGN SECRETARY RUMOURS.

It is widely rumoured in diplomatic quarters, not only here but on the Continent, that Lord Hardinge, on his return from India will become Foreign Secretary, and that Sir Edward Grey will retire. Nothing looks more improbable than this late, but it is accepted in such prominent quarters that I think it merits publicity. Lord Hardinge, of course had a distinguished diplomatic career before he went to India. Until now it was generally understood that Lord Hardinge was to succeed Lord Bertie in Paris.

PORTUGUESE ARMY UNDER BRITISH TRAINING.

No amount of the military association of Britain and Portugal should ignore the remarkable reorganization of the Portuguese army during the Peninsular War, and the part that army played in checking the attempted advance of Soult on Lisbon. That wild Irishman William Carr Beresford, who undertook the reorganization, found that the Portuguese were almost useless when first opposed to Soult. He accordingly set down to teach them better ways. He decided on having a small and efficient army instead of a big and inferior one. He picked out the best men and officers, and turned the rest into a militia. The small and select army was treated, after Beresford's manner, to Draconian punishments for their failings and to lyrical praise for successes in the field. The method paid, and Beresford transformed the small army into really excellent light infantry.

AN ALLIED CONFERENCE IN ROME

There is to be a conference of the Allies in Rome within the next week or two. It will be political rather than military in character, and, as the Prime Minister cannot leave London, the Minister of Munitions, Lloyd George, will probably represent this country.

ARCHITECTS AND AIRCRAFT.

Some architects here already are embodying in their designs for new constructions various devices suggested by the conditions introduced by aircraft development. Recent experience shows it to be very tedious and expensive to insert blinds (or other shades to prevent internal lightning showing outside) in stone and concrete buildings, such as churches, public halls, and the like, many makeshifts are being adopted in the present emergency which detract materially from the appearance and integrity of walls, skylights, and the like. Apart from this it is realized that, during the prolonged period of peace which it is hoped will be the sequel of the war, the navigation of the air will make a definite entry into the normal life of mankind, and this will bring in its train the ever-present risk of injury from collision, or the accidental fall of heavy substances.

ENTERPRISE AT LLOYD'S.

One of the most remarkable commercial revolutions produced by the war is the new method of signing policies by women in connection with Lloyd's, Britain's greatest centre of marine and odd kinds of insurance. There is now a big staff of girls working in the policy department at 19, Great Winchester Street, by a new arrangement organized by syndicates of the underwriters, with the intention of releasing men for the army. Lloyd's is far from conservative, and has taken the lead in many recent developments of insurance. When the Zepelin raids started in earnest some groups of underwriters began to deal in war risk policies while the ordinary insurance companies hesitated, and a considerable amount of general business has come into the room through this lead. Much of the energy of Lloyd's is due to two men. One is Cuthbert Eden Heath. He is the younger son of the late Admiral Sir Leopold Heath, and he could not enter the navy himself owing to deafness. His only son is now serving in Egypt. The secretary of Lloyd's is Admiral Edward Ingfield, formerly a distinguished member of the Admiralty staff, who succeeded that witty and popular figure Captain Hosler. His appointment closely cemented the union between the Admiralty and Lloyd's. Admiral Ingfield works at Lloyd's as though he were on his ship. He is the willing assistant of every new development.

THE LONDON FAIR.

Differing from the recent British Industries Fair promoted by the Board of Trade, inasmuch as it includes examples of the trades and industries of a number of other countries, the London Fair and Market, which opened in the Agricultural Hall on March 14th, is an equally serious attempt to imitate the Leipzig model and bring together the manufacturer and buyer, the wholesaler and retailer, in new British enterprise. As the British manufacturer has been decimated by his lethargy, it is only fair to note that the present exhibition, comprehensive though it is, would have been a much bigger scheme had the Government not requisitioned Olympia, and in their quest for skilled workers prohibited the exhibition of jewellery, gold, and silver ware, and kindred articles. The Fair has made a promising beginning, with between 300 and 400 manufacturers showing. A high order of craftsmanship is revealed. In conversation with some of the exhibitors I learned that in many directions enemy trade is being surely captured. Some of those who had the courage to launch out a year ago are getting a lucrative return to-day. I heard of one man, a civil engineer a year ago, who found his normal occupation gone, and who now employs 120 hands in the toy-making trade. All sorts of people and institutions are making toys of the more substantial order. One of the most notable exhibits in this class is that of the Lord Roberts Memorial workshops, where 200 disabled soldiers are turning out vanloads of toys, noteworthy for freshness of idea and good workmanship, and which appear to find a ready sale. Some of the men were disabled at Mons and among them is Sergeant Richard, V.C., the hero of a notable incident in the Gallipoli trenches.

THE PARLIAMENTARY RIFLE RANGE.

The two Houses of Parliament have been furnished by voluntary subscription with a miniature rifle range and for a little while, at all events—while the novelty of the thing lasts—the new means of "instruction and reaction" will be to many members a welcome change from chess which is practically the only amusement that the Houses know. Billiards, bowls, and skittles have been from time to time suggested as desirable additions to the amenities of the Palace of Westminster to refresh faded legislators in the intervals of high debate, but hitherto members have shown a wholesome respect for possible popular comment upon diversions of this sort. A rifle range of a serious and dignified kind—without the heads of the Kaiser and the Crown Prince and the beard of Tiritiz and the back of Hindenburg—is clearly free from any possible objection and may even assist elderly members of invincible youth to fit themselves to take part at need in the fighting line. There are, of course, many excellent shots in both Houses who will be glad of the opportunity to keep their hands in, and one may expect a succession of interesting inter-Parliamentary competitions. The new range of twenty-five yards runs under the Royal Gallery, a part of the Palace which is practically only used on the occasion of state openings.

LONDON AFTER BERLIN.

The first few days spent in England by the Englishwomen who have been living in Germany during the war months, and absorbing German views of England's position, are days of enlightenment. One woman, prepared to find London sunk in gloom, tells me that her first few hours in London were among the happiest she has lived. The people looked so care-free and the soldiers looked so happy and walked so confidently, instead of looking as the German soldier now does. It delighted her to walk past the butchers' shops, looking at such meat as she had not seen for nearly two years. It was a year, she said, since she had seen any fat, and if she asked her Berlin butcher to supply just a little fat with her mutton chops, she used to be told that "the animals hadn't got any." It shocked her to see that in her Bloomsbury hotel more bread was cut than the visitors were likely to require. She preferred the rigid care exercised in Berlin about every crumb, though it was very awkward sometimes, as when, for instance, a lady visited to have a few friends to tea could only get a supply of bread and butter by ringing up her convenient friends and begging for any bread they could spare from their individual bread tickets. The number of taxicabs and motor-cars was another surprise, since Berlin, with its rubber famine, is now very short of cars.

TO-MORROW'S TANGLE.

"To-morrow's tangle to the winds resign," old Omar said, and thus in one brief line, set forth more wisdom than most poets spring in all the years through which they live and sing. With present griefs man fearlessly combats; he pulls their ears and kicks them in the slats; and, like a knight in armor gone afield, he quite enjoys the tilting that they yield. But, having whipped the dragons of to-day, with manner bold and debonaire and gay, he feels the ardor in his breast expire; "To-morrow's dragons and chimeras die," he mutters low, "will seize me by the throat, remove my scalp and bear away my goat." To-morrow's dragons may be one inch tall; to-morrow's troubles may not come at all. If you to-day have fought a goodly fight, forget your fears, and sleep in peace to-night, and when you wake the good old sun will shine; to-morrow's tangle to the winds resign.

THE USE OF PERFUMES
The use of well chosen perfume is not only a sign of refinement but also of your daintiness and beauty. It happens to go into the air of the summer when roses are in bloom there is no excuse for wearing a plain beauty culture. Perfume is early rising to pick roses, the fume of the exquisite perfume is most powerful when they are dew.

Make up a rose jar and the whole season plenty of the perfume at small cost. Choose the best foundation and let the best foundation rest in a jar of dried petals in alternating days. Let the rose leaves dry. When the last leaf is dry let the mass stand for a day daily stirring.

At the end of this perfume rose leaves out and mix an ounce of cloves and ground coarsely and a quantity of shredded stick cinnamon them back in the jar and let them set away in a jar.

"GOOD CLOTHES."

We all like to wear what we call "Good Clothes." Now good clothes are costly—not dear—but they become dear if they have to be discarded—practically unworn. The French Dry Cleaning Process meets the difficulty. We can afford to buy the best and most beautiful fabrics without being extravagant, because of their quality we can rely on being able to have them restored by this process to their original beauty quite often enough to enable them to be eventually discarded without a lament.
