- 15 Myers Gibson.
- 16 Eri Nelly.

All the Councillors then sworn into office by the Clerk.

The Council then proceeded to the election of a Warden, whereupon Willard G. Clarke was unanimously elected Warden for the next ensuing three years and being duly sworn into office by the Clerk, took the chair and with a few appropriate remarks called the Council to order.

Minutes of Semi-Annual Session, 1913, were then read and approved. Ordered that Councillor W. A. Marshall be Deputy Warden for the ensuing three years.

Ordered that the Warden proceed to appoint a Committee to nominate standing committees. He appointed D. M. Outhit, A. D. Thomas and F. R. Elliott, as said Committee.

Ordered that the report of the Superintendent of the Annapolis County Hospital as read be received and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) Ordered that the report of the Health Officer as read be received and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) The report of the Committee appointed to appoint standing committees was then read and on motion was received and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) Ordered that the report of the Auditors as read be laid on the table for further consideration.

(Report to be published later.) Ordered that the report of the Attending Physicians of the County Institutions as read be received and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) A communication from A. H. McKay, Superintendent of Education in reference to grants to School Taxation was then read and on motion laid on the table for further consideration.

The petition of O. P. Goucher and upwards of twenty others, freeholders of the County of Annapolis, asking for a grant of two hundred dollars per year for the establishment and upkeep of a local hospital, said grant to be made conditionally, on the Town of Middleton, granting $100.00 towards the establishment and upkeep of said Institution was then read.

Ordered that the petition as read by the Clerk be laid on the table for further consideration.

Ordered that a delegation due here from Middleton tomorrow morning from the Middleton Board of Trade be, on arrival, heard.

The petition of Charles Haynes and upwards of twenty others freeholders in the County of Annapolis was then read, praying that a strip of road in District No. 3, Ward No. 7, which is a menace to traffic as it is steep, dangerous and hard to keep up and crooked, be fixed by having the same straightened, was then read and on motion referred to a committee, consisting of Charles Haynes, John H. Rigg and Spencer Merry, who were to draw into the necessity for the straightening of said road and report at the Semi-Annual Session.

The petition of James Alley and upwards of twenty others, freeholders of the County of Annapolis was then read, praying that Road Section No. 10 be divided into two Sections, each four miles in length, the division to be made at the Railroad Crossing near the Mill Brook, the southern divide to be known as Road District No. 25 in Ward 13. On motion the prayer of said petition was granted.

On motion the Council adjourned until two o'clock p.m.

Tuesday Afternoon, 2 o'clock.

All Councillors present. Minutes of preceding session read and approved. The report of the Scott Act Inspector, Mr. John Hall, was then, by request, read by W. G. Parsons, and on motion the report as read was laid on the table.

The report of the Committee on Tenders and Public Property was then read and on motion was received and laid on the table for further consideration.

Upon reading the petition of George C. Hutchinson and upwards of twenty others, freeholders of the County of Annapolis, asking that a Committee be appointed to mark out and set off a road running from the Wade Road to the Young Mountain Road under the North Mountain, in this Municipality, Ward 6, as requisite for the properties over which said road crosses.

On motion the prayer of said petition was granted and Stephen Wade, Reed Willett and William Woodward were appointed a Committee to consider the necessity for said road and report.

Ordered that Road District No. 11, Polling District No. 25, be divided into two districts, the new district to begin at the Eleven Mile Brook and go to the McBride Meadow Brook at Lake Munro, and be known as Road District No. 20 in said Polling District.

On motion the further report on road leading from the Liverpool Road to Lake Torment, called for by the Semi-Annual Session, 1913, was on motion, read, received and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) On motion the report of L. W. Elliott, Secretary of the Annapolis County Fruit Growers' Association, was then read by the Warden and adopted.

(Report to be published later.) Ordered that W. E. Porter be heard. He addressed the Council claiming that the grant from the Nova Scotia Government to the Horticultural Exhibition of Hants, Kings and Annapolis Counties be given towards an exhibition in Kentville, to be held in the autumn of this present year.

Resolved that the Municipality of Annapolis County, co-operate with the Municipalities of Kings and Hants Counties in the matter of the Horticultural Exhibition to be held during 1914 at Kentville. Moved by Councillor Piggott, seconded by Councillor Elliott.

Ordered that hereafter C. H. R. Crocker do his Statute Labor in Road Section No. 4, Ward 16.

Ordered that John Hall, our veteran Scott Act Inspector, be again appointed Scott Act Inspector for the present ensuing year.

A communication was read from John Irvin, Esquire, K. C., in behalf of the Historical Society of this Province, with which Mr. Irvin is intimately connected, requesting that a number of historical landmarks which exist in this County, be preserved as in some way designated.

On motion the communication of Mr. Irvin was laid on the table for further consideration.

(To be published later.) Ordered that the Warden appoint a Committee to look into the matter of some necessary amendments to Municipal legislation. The Warden appointed as said Committee, Joseph I. Foster, Freeman Fitch, Joseph Withers and Elias Rawding.

On motion Council adjourned to meet again on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock

(Wednesday Morning, 10 o'clock) All Councillors present. Warden in the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

Dr. Sponagle, one of the Committee appointed by the Middleton Board of Trade to interview this Council in re the exemption in the Road Act of parties over sixty years of age from road tax, being called upon, addressed the Council at considerable length, advocating that this exemption be at once removed.

Mr. F. A. Brown, another member of the game Committee, then addressed the Council at some length on the same subject. He was followed by Mr. Frank Whitman, who advocated not only the exemption, but also that the road work should be commenced early in the season and all speakers agreed that a more careful supervision of the roads during the whole season was necessary. Mr. Whitman was followed by Mr. Geo. E. Corbett along the same lines.

A petition was then presented by the Grand Jurors of this County on recommendation from Judge Ritchie, praying that some suitable employment be provided for prisoners confined in the common goal sentenced to hard labor. Ordered that the matter be referred to the Committee on Tenders and Public Property.

Ordered that Dr. Sponagle be allowed to address the Council on the question of the establishment of an hospital in some part of this Municipality in accordance with a previous resolution of this Council. Dr. Sponagle then addressed the Council at considerable length on this subject.

Ordered that the Report of the Auditors as read be received and adopted.

Ordered that the Treasurer's Report as read be received and adopted.

Ordered that the Scott Act Inspector's Report as read, be received and adopted.

Ordered that the Report of the Committee on Tenders and Public Property as read be received and adopted.

Ordered that Rupert Parker be Revisor for Revision Section No. 3 of this Municipality in place of A. Owen Price, resigned.

A communication was then read from Arthur Roberts, Secretary of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities.

(To be published later.) Ordered that the Warden name delegates to the meeting of the Union of the Nova Scotia Municipalities, at Amherst, in August. The Warden named as delegates, Councillors Elliott, Foster and Outhit.

The Report of the Board of Revision was then read and approved.

(Report published later.) Ordered that the meeting of the Board of Revision be suspended for the year 1914.

Ordered that J. A. Rice, F. M. Chipman and F. H. Willett be the Board of Revision and Appeal for the Municipality for this term.

Ordered that George Allen be the keeper of Victoria Bridge for the ensuing year.

Ordered that Councillors Nelly, Rawding and the Clerk be a Committee to revise the Jury Lists.

Ordered that Dr. M. R. Armstrong be the Medical Officer for this Municipality for the ensuing year.

Ordered that the road leading east from Port Lorne and along the shore be added to Road District No. 19 as far as Edna Marshall's Cottage.

Ordered that the Arbitration Committee of this Municipality be named by the Warden.

A report of the Committee of Arbitration appointed to appraise damages on the proposed new road from Malvega Square to the Kings County line across lands of Mr. Charles Jacques was then read and on motion adopted.

(Report to be published later.) Ordered that James Martin, Avery Patterson and J. Aber Phinney continue to be the arbitrators to settle the damages on said road, if their services be necessary.

On motion the Council adjourned until two o'clock, p.m.

The Nova Scotia Temperance Act Versus the Scott Act

Some Reasons Why the Scott Act Should be Repealed.

(Furnished by N. S. Alliance.)

The Nova Scotia Temperance Act placed upon the Statute by the Government of Nova Scotia in 1910 and amended in 1911, 1912 and 1913, can be used with better effect than the Scott Act in the suppression of the liquor traffic in the province. It is superior in many respects.

Some of the outstanding advantages of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act are:

ALL ALCOHOLIC DRINKS PROHIBITED.

1. The prohibition of the sale or keeping for sale of all drinkable liquids containing alcohol.

Various kinds of beer with a light percentage of alcohol, very injurious to the system, are being legally sold in Scott Act Counties—Nova Scotia Temperance Act prohibits the sale of such drinks.

JAIL PENALTY AFTER FIRST OFFENCE.

2. The jail penalty must be imposed after one first offence. The Inspector is liable to a penalty of $20 if he does not regularly proceed from first to second or subsequent offence. This provision does away with the system in many municipalities of enforcing law to obtain revenue rather than to suppress the traffic.

NO PERSONAL USE PROVISION.

3. Under the amended Scott Act liquor can be legally shipped by Halifax dealers for personal use into the provincial bar-rooms for Scott Act Counties.

But liquor cannot be legally shipped by Halifax dealers into Nova Scotia Temperance Counties. The penalty is $50 for first offence, $100 for second, and $200 for third and each subsequent offence.

SAFE-GUARDING OF COURT RECORDS.

4. Stipendiary Magistrate must send to the County Prothonotary a certificate of each conviction and such certificate in all proceedings upon an information where a previous conviction is charged, is sufficient evidence of such previous conviction.

This provision in the Nova Scotia Temperance Act means the safe-guarding of papers absolutely necessary for efficient enforcement.

LESS DIFFICULTY IN MAKING SEIZURES OF LIQUOR.

5. Any inspector or police officer may at any time without warrant enter and search premises where he believes liquors are kept for sale or disposal contrary to the provisions of the Act, and seize any liquors unlawfully kept.

Under the Scott-Act the officer required a search warrant and it can be executed only between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m.

DISPOSAL OF FRAUDULENT SHIPMENTS.

6. Any inspector or constable may without warrant seize and remove liquor he finds in transit in any vehicle or at any wharf, warehouse or other place. The Scott Act is ineffective where liquor is in actual transportation in a truck or wagon within a municipality, and in all seizures the Scott Act officer must have a warrant.

If it appears to the magistrate that such liquor was consigned to some person in a fictitious name, or was shipped as other goods, or was covered or concealed in such a manner as would probably render discovery more difficult it is prima facie evidence of violation.

LIQUOR PEDDLERS MAY BE SEARCHED.

7. Any person who may be suspected of selling liquor from or keeping for illegal sale in his pockets or from or in any vehicle, may himself, and his vehicle, be searched, and if any liquor be found he may be arrested.

CLUBS CAN BE SUPPRESSED.

8. Under the amended Scott Act clubs are common. The Nova Scotia Temperance Act prohibits such places, the keeping or having in any house or building or in any room or place occupied or controlled by any incorporated or unincorporated society, association or club or any member or members thereof or by any person of any liquor, is a violation of the Act. PRESCRIPTIONS BY PHYSICIANS

9. Under the Scott Act a physician who prescribes liquor for other than medical purposes is liable to a fine of $20 for first offence and $40 for subsequent offences.

Under the new Act prescriptions can only be given to persons whom the doctor has visited professionally within three days and the penalty for violation of this provision is $50 for first offence and $100 or two months' imprisonment for second.

ENFORCEMENT.

10. It is made the express duty of the Council, police and temperance committee and every officer and inspector to enforce this Act and take necessary proceedings to punish offenders.

TO OBTAIN REPEAL.

To obtain the repeal of the Scott Act in any county petitions must be signed by one-fourth of the electors, and forwarded to Ottawa. A date is then fixed for election. If a majority vote for repeal, the Nova Scotia Temperance Act will automatically come into force in the county.

Last Thursday Bridgetown's Ninetieth Anniversary

(From "This Day in Canadian History," in Morning Chronicle.)

In the year 1825, a bridge was built across the Annapolis River, in Nova Scotia, fifteen miles above the town of Annapolis. The stream was navigable for sloops up to this point and in 1822 over sixty vessels came up to the bridge to receive their cargoes.

In the following year the number of vessels (which were of from thirty to one hundred tons burden) had climbed to one hundred; and a village had begun to spring up—no less than eight dwelling houses being erected in about two years. The progress of the place was due principally to the enterprise of a native of Norwich, in England—Mr. Crosskill by name. He had been employed by the British Government during the Revolutionary War in bringing Hessian troops to America, and later, after living for a time in Halifax, had obtained a grant of land in the beautiful district on the Annapolis River. Up to the close of 1823 the busy little hamlet was still nameless, but it was realized that the thriving infant was deserving of more respectful treatment, so, on this date, January 15th, 1824, a public dinner was held in the village, and the name of Bridgetown bestowed upon it, with all due form, ceremony and rejoicing.

The Late James Auld

A few weeks ago there appeared an item in the "Forty Years Ago" happenings referring to the death of Mr. James Auld of Dalhousie West, which occurred on Nov. 23rd, 1873, in his 92nd year. He was born in a town in the north of Ireland and was married March 2nd, 1811, to Miss Martha Millen, whose death took place 1881, at the age of thirty-seven years. Their family consisted of nine children. His eldest child was born in the north of Ireland and was the mother of our esteemed and genial friend, Capt. J. J. Buckler, of Dalhousie West, at whose home the deceased resided during a number of years prior to his death.

Mrs. A. Cleaves of Mochele is his eldest granddaughter. Mrs. Olive Delancey of North Williamstown, who is also a granddaughter, has in her possession several letters written by the deceased, one which was posted in Halifax in 1848. Mr. Auld at one time held a position in the Commissioner's Department in Halifax and also taught school for a number of years. He was the oldest Freemason in the County, probably in the Province, and was greatly esteemed by all who knew him.

The Henry Sigel Company of Boston, has been declared "hopelessly insolvent" by Attorney Grisbury in the United States district court. The big stores in that city, New York and Chicago are now in the hands of receivers and big discount sales are on.

St. James' Parish Annual Meeting

The Church Wardens' Report Very Encouraging

The annual meeting held in the schoolroom on Monday night will go down to history as one of the best in the record of the parish. After the Financial Statement by the Treasurer the Church-Wardens presented the following report:

To the Rector and Parishioners of the Parish of St. James, Bridgetown, Your Wardens beg leave to submit the following report:

We have assembled this evening for this our annual meeting, under most gratifying conditions, and with reasons for thankfulness to Almighty God for His many blessings; but whilst we are thankful for that which has been accomplished, let us not forget the demands of the present, and future, not to be content with the things done, but ever strive to improve as opportunity presents itself, and as we are conscious of the need of things material, and strive accordingly, so let it be in our spiritual lives.

RE FINANCIAL STATEMENT

As will be seen by the Treasurer's Report, the financial condition of the Parish is very gratifying. With the united effort and hearty co-operation of the parishioners, we have been able to meet our obligations when due, and have a balance on the right side. It will be remembered that previous to the inception of the envelope system some three years ago, we were unable, or did not meet our obligations, which resulted in our having an increased deficit each year. This condition of affairs was doubtless due to lack of system in our contributions, for without system failure inevitably follows.

Conditions will, we think, warrant us in saying that the present method of contributing our share toward the maintenance of the church is a good one, and we will continue to follow it as far as possible.

IMPROVEMENTS AND REPAIRS

During the last few years, various improvements and repairs have been completed, but perhaps none so important as that of the cellar last year. The work of excavating, laying cement floor, re-setting furnace, changing position of entrance to cellar, and laying wall was done by contract, and at a very moderate cost. We are pleased to report that the work has been satisfactorily done, and according to contract. For payment of this we are indebted to the ladies of the church, and to Mr. Eason for his very generous contribution.

The church is at present in a good state of repair, and we hope will continue so for some time. The question of more room for storing wood has been solved in the excavation of cellar, but the need for a larger school room is becoming more acute, and will doubtless need attention in the very near future.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We desire to acknowledge with thanks the courteous and considerate manner in which we have been received by you in connection with all things pertaining to the welfare of the Church, and also to thank all who in any way contributed toward the various departments in the church's work. We are also indebted to the most efficient and painstaking treasurer, Mr. Ruggles, for his long and faithful service as such, and might truly say we do not know how we could do without him.

ST. MARY'S, BELLEISLE. The annual meeting of the congregation attending St. Mary's, like the parish meeting, was highly satisfactory. The financial statement showed all obligations met and a balance on hand. All the officers were re-elected, viz:

Church-Wardens—W. E. Bent and A. Gesmer.
Recording Secretary—A. J. Bustin.
Auditors—J. B. Gesmer and A. J. Bustin.

It was decided to hold the annual congregational "At Home" on the evening of Monday, Feb. 2nd. Miss Agnes Gesmer and Mr. Eri Wade were appointed Entertainment Committee, and the Chapel-Wardens with Mrs. H. Young and Miss S. Gesmer a general committee.

Phillip Ferrill, a fireman, was killed and seventy-five families were turned into the street in a temperature of some degrees below zero by a fire which destroyed the department store of W. & W. A. Bacon, a four-story building on Washington and Ruggles streets, Boston, last Wednesday morning. Sparks set fire to the roofs of a score of Harrison avenue and other nearby streets.

Reign of Terror Now in Regina

Threat Made to Burn the City by Men Out of Work.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 9.—Late last night it was announced, that in view of the acute labor situation and threats of violence emanating from the leader of the unemployed gang, Regina will probably be under martial law Friday night. Supt. McGibbon, of the R. N. W. M. Police has offered to send a detachment to patrol the city. The city is thoroughly alarmed and a movement is on foot, to call a mass meeting to discuss the situation. Threatening the city of Regina with fire and violence within four days, if work is not immediately found for the unemployed gang a letter signed by Jerry Miner, the alleged leader of the gang, was read aloud in the police office and every man on the force has been supplied with a description of Miner with instructions to place him under arrest on sight. Though the local police scout the idea that the city is in actual danger, the letter has created the wildest excitement. The Mayor has issued a statement calling upon the unemployed in the city to meet him at a conference with a view to forming some plan to relieve the labor situation.

Miner, after acknowledging having written the letter, has disappeared, and all efforts to locate him have been fruitless. In his letter he has warned all women and children to keep off the streets Friday night, the time he mentions the gang will wreak its vengeance on the city. He claims that the "gang" is armed, and failing to get work within a stated time, he will turn them loose to plague at will. This is the second letter written by Miner within a week and though people were skeptical when the first appeared in a local paper, it is now acknowledged there is a well organized gang of men in the city rendered desperate by scarcity of work.

PROBING PEAT RESOURCES.

The Dominion Government has, through the medium of the Department of Mines, just undertaken a very extensive and exhaustive investigation into the merits of peat as fuel, the commercial feasibility of its manufacture at a reasonable marketable price and the available supply in Canada.

The Government is experiencing considerable difficulty with get-rich-quick men, who, posing as promoters of peat enterprises, induced investors to place considerable money in ventures that are not based upon intelligent information in regard to the possibilities of the industry.

There is considerable capital invested in Canada, however, in legitimate peat enterprises, and these are to be given every encouragement by the government, with the end in view of doing everything that is possible to fight against a fuel famine in the future.

TRAGEDY OF A HOMESTEADER.

Crushed and broken-hearted, George King, a young Englishman, led his three motherless children to the train that left for Halifax last night Jan. 4th, just before it steamed out of Windsor Station. A month ago life was bright and promising, for him, and his little family. He left on his long trip to the sea coast, and then across the ocean with his three babies for the oldest, a winsome little girl was only six years of age. In a little cemetery in Saskatchewan, a cold little country graveyard, he left the body of the mother.

Three years ago Mr. King came to Canada from the British Isles to make a home for himself in the great Western prairies. He "homesteaded," and built a little shack on his land and toiled hard to break his wild land. By dint of hard work he managed to make enough to keep the wolf from the door while he was waiting his time to secure the deed to his quarter section. Next spring it would have been his; his wife and he used to dream fondly of that day when they would possess, free of debt, their farm and stock.

A month ago the great black cloud came. The mother sickened, the illness was not a serious one, but in a few days she was gone. She was buried in the little Saskatchewan cemetery. Then the sorrow-stricken husband sold his team and the few things that he possessed and bought tickets to go back to England, where his three motherless children would be taken care of by the mother of his dead wife. Last night he left the Windsor station with his weary little family.

His troubles did not end when he had secured his tickets. While waiting in the station here yesterday for his train he lost his transportation, both steamship and railway. Search was made for them everywhere around the room, but the papers were not found. He secured duplicates of his steamship tickets, but was unable to obtain new railway ones before the time of departure, so he was compelled to purchase tickets to Halifax. It took almost the last cent that the man had. Two minutes after the train steamed out of the station his tickets were found. A wire was sent off after the heart-sick traveller, telling him that his money would be refunded him at the port.

"That poor man, with his motherless babies, was one of the most pathetic sights I have seen around the station for weeks," said one attendant, when talking of the case.—Montreal Daily Telegraph.

The Flaming Wilderness of Australia's Deadly Dry Belt

There are parts of Australia, which the white man traverses at his peril—the dry land where the bodies of those who perish from the intolerable thirst are found stark naked, their hands bloody with digging for water, their eyes wide open and white, their tongues swollen. No rivers water this desolate tract. There are no oases at which the traveller who has wandered from the way may drink and live. Convicts who escaped in olden days, prospectors of later times—all have left their trail in bleached bones in this arid wilderness as a warning to those who would venture far into its deadly embrace. In Harper's Magazine there is a most graphic description of this dry region by Norman Duncan.

It is in the gold-fields country of Western Australia, and the first glimpse of the waterless tracts of sand and spinnifex is obtained from a rocky elevation at the edge of the habitable land. Here is seen the very worst of the Australian wilderness—a red prospect, splashed with the green of hardy scrub; its remoter parts, where a sullen wind lazily stirs, lies in a haze of heat and crimson dust. The lean trees—the quick and the dead—run diminishing to the north like a deathless army, and there vanish, discouraged by the awful prospect beyond where the dry lands, glowing red-hot, form an effectual barrier to the march of vegetation.

An expedition of proportions, outfitted with experienced precaution—a seasoned leader with his camels and bushmen and black fellows—could not advance through the centre from Kalgoorlie and come safely to the nearest settlements of Sydney side except by grace of those fortuitous chances which men in the extremity of distress call the goodness of Providence.

Such is Australia's No Man's Land on which the Asiatic has cast covetous eyes. A dislodged pebble, a broken twig, or the stub of a burnt match gives the experienced bushman a ready clue to the trail in these regions, and his sharp, sure sight in picking up the right track is astonishing.

In a baffled attempt to reach the centre of the continent, one of the first explorers, being forced long ago to summer in this selfsame latitude—much as an Arctic explorer winters on his ground—found far to the east a shade temperature of 132 degrees, which rose in the sun to 157 degrees. The mean temperature for January, in that situation and exceptional season, was 104 degrees in the shade. "The ground was thoroughly heated to a depth of three or four feet," he records; "and the tremendous heat had parched all vegetation. Under its effects every screw in our boxes had been drawn. Horn handles and combs were split into fine laminae. The lead dropped out of our pencils. Our hair as well as the sheep's wool, ceased to grow, and our nails became brittle as glass. The flour lost more than eight per cent of its original weight. We were obliged to bury our wax candles. We found it difficult to write or draw, so rapidly did the fluid dry in our pens and brushes. Truly a shrivelled and terrible world to journey through.

SEVERE COLD ON LUNGS AND CHEST QUICKLY RELIEVED

by Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne
Mr. J. Seward, Bromptonville, Que., writes:
"Two weeks ago I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and my chest was very sore, breathing tight and severe hacking cough. I was feeling miserable. I bought a bottle of Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne and after a few doses I felt great relief and I went into a sound sleep, a thing I was not able to do for some nights. Next day I was able to be around again, and before completing the bottle, felt as well as ever. It is a fine cough and cold cure."
Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne relieves the irritation and "stuffed-up" feeling in the air passages, soothes the tickling which makes you cough, loosens the phlegm and drives out the cold before it gets troublesome.
In 25c and 50c bottles, at your Druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited.

Bands of native women are sometimes encountered, with a minimum of dress, dirty and dishevelled.

Not infrequently the traveller is accosted by one of these in good English, and in one case the giggling "gin" (black woman) archly informed her astonished questioner that were he to address her in French she would have no difficulty in comprehending him. It turned out that this aboriginal maiden had, according to her story, been reared from childhood by a lady of Adelaide; that she had reverted to the bush and was then with her tribe. Whether for good and all she did not know; she might return to the lady some day to play the piano. And she giggled like a school-girl, chaffed, and giggled, and chattered in the most flirtatious manner of the settlements, not in the least perturbed, moreover, being now in the bush, by the shocking fact that she was in the garb of the bush. It seems that aboriginals of both sexes, employed in the towns—the employment of aboriginal women is rigorously restricted by the Government—periodically return to the bush. They remain content for a time, sufficient servants, in some cases, if lazy. And then the inevitable interval; of they scamper, without warning, and they strip themselves of the last clogging connection with civilization, and cache their garments against the time of return, and run wild to their satisfaction, returning by-and-by as if they had not been absent at all. Everywhere on the edge of the wild lands tales are told of these aboriginal maids who have been to Adelaide and returned for a breathing spell to the bush.

TRADITIONS OF OLD LAND

The Australians still live astonishingly close to the caste traditions of Home-England. This is noticeable in the most out-of-way lanes, where the rippling canal landlady divides the par from the parlor. The latter is the resort of unquestioned gentility, and is set apart by a curtain and double price for liquor sold from the same barrel supplied at the bar.

A BROKEN MINING TOWN.

A graphic description of a broken mining town is given by Mr. Duncan. In its brief day of promise it had made a great noise in the Western Australian world. They had planned it large, with quick, leaping enthusiasm, in the Western Australian way; and though it was here set back into the desert, they would surely have made it large, with Australian vigor and determination, to thrive big and powerful, had the earth yielded a good measure of its first encouragement. Its one street, up the broiling deserted vista of which the bitter red dust was blowing, was wide enough for the traffic of any metropolis, and the disintegrating skeleton of a magnificent boulevard, conceived with high courage in these dry lands, implied a splendid vision of that lovely maturity to which the town had never attained. The town had lived fast and failed. It was now as pitiable as the wreck of any aspirant—as any young promise which has broken in the test and at last got past the time when faith can endure to contemplate it. The people had vanished, taking the habitations with them, in the gold fields manner, to low fields of promise. They had not left much to mar the site of their brave ambition. A hot, listless group of corrugated-iron dwellings remained—a public house, too, and a spick-and-span station and a sad little graveyard.

HOW THE NATIVES QUENCH THEIR THIRST.

In the deserts to the northeast mid continent when the sun and dry wind suck the moisture from deep in the ground and all the world runs dry—the socks and gnamma-holes and most secret crevices of the trees and rocks—the aborigines draw water from these roots by cutting them into short lengths and letting them drain drop by drop, into a wooden bowl. But the worst may come to the worst—there may be no "water trees," or the roots may shrivel and dry up.

"What then?"

"Ah, well," said the bushman, "they do with what they have."

"What have they?"

"Ah, well, they lick the dew from the leaves and grass."

Failing the rains, failing the socks and gnamma-holes, failing roots and the morning's dew, the aborigines of the central dry-lands has a last occasional source of supply. A keen nose of the ground-faintest indications of life, apparently, like obscure fossil traces—and, having hacked into the clay to a depth of a foot, unearthed "a spherical little chamber, about three inches in diameter in which lay a tiny yellow frog." It was a water holding frog; and it was distinguished with its supply—a store sufficient, perhaps, to enable it to survive a drought of a year and a half. The water was quite pure and fresh. If they are soured, these frogs may yield a saving draught to lost and perishing travellers.

Fifty Below Zero

(By William Rittenhouse.)

Up in northwestern Canada the thermometer may drop as low as fifty below zero, and yet a woodcutter, when hard at work, will be likely to take his coat off because the exercise makes him too warm. This is what the air is so dry, and there is no wind. But let the wind begin to blow and fifty below zero becomes so cold, so piercing that no amount of clothing can keep a man warm. If the wind increases to a blizzard, bringing snow with it, neither man nor beast can live without taking to shelter. The frozen particles of snow with sharp edges, drive like shot out of a gun and will cut a man's cheeks to ribbons if he faces the storm.

Out on the Canadian prairie, one winter day, the sky looked as if a blizzard was coming, and the farmers set to work to prepare for it. Those who were wise put a large supply of hay and fodder down before their horses and cows in the barns—enough for two or three days, for a blizzard often lasts that long—and made every thing weatherproof and tight. They carried enough firewood into the houses to last for days, and fastened up the houses, too, to keep out the storm. Then, when the wind began to blow, everything was safe, and they did not have to stir outdoors.

The blizzard came. It raged for two days and two nights. It never abated its fury for an instant. The screaming, roaring hurricane blew the ground clear; only drifting up the snow here and there. But there was enough snow to fill the air and blind the eyes, so that even from the houses the barns could not be seen.

One farmer, so the story runs, was anxious about his cattle. He had put two days' feed down for them, but he feared they might need more. Suddenly the blizzard slackened; the air cleared; and the barn—only thirty feet away—could be plainly seen. It is the way of a blizzard to blow itself out in this way, and the farmer felt that he could now attend to his stock. He put on his boots, coat and cap, and went to the kitchen door. His little girl stretched out her arms to him and cried:

"Father, me go. Me want to go, father. Take Lucy."

The farmer hesitated. But it was only ten yards to the stable, and the air would do the child good, after being shut in the house for two days. His wife brought a shawl and wrapped the child in it, so she could not possibly catch cold, and the farmer took her in his arms and started out. The blizzard was slackening every minute. He easily crossed to the barn, set Lucy down in safety and unwrapped her from the shawl. She went about with him while he fed the horses and cows, and some time went by in this fashion. When the farmer had satisfied himself that everything was safe and comfortable, he wrapped Lucy up again and opened the door to go back to the house.

But he opened it to find no house—nothing but the blizzard again. It was raging more fiercely than ever. The house had disappeared from view. Nothing could be seen but a whirling wall of white snow, driven onward by the raging wind. Still the house was only thirty feet away, and he knew the direction exactly. If he did not run across his wife would soon become alarmed. She might think that he and Lucy were lost in the storm, and would probably come out herself in search of them. If she ventured out, he might not get to the barn, for nothing is easier than to lose one's way during such a storm.

Gathering the shawl closer about Lucy, the farmer took his direction, bent his head down and plunged forward toward the house. The driving hurricane fairly took away his breath. He ran a dozen steps and judged he must be close to the kitchen door. He stretched his arm before him, still holding his head down, and swept his hand all about to reach the door. But there was no door anywhere. Then he knew that he had missed his direction, and gone one side of the house, instead of striking it anywhere.

Which way was he to turn toward it? He had no possible way of knowing. He could not tell on which side of the house he had gone, therefore, by turning the wrong way he would strike out into the open prairie. Yet he dared not stand still, or he and the child would freeze where they stood. Crouching in a half run, he struck out again—not very far—in the direction in which he hoped the house stood. He was wrong; there was nothing there.

He turned, and tried to get back. He found nothing in front of his groping hand. A third time—a fourth—he changed his direction. It was barely five minutes since he had left the barn so he could not be far away from either barn or house. Yet he might have been miles out on the prairie as far as danger was concerned. The cold was intense, piercing to the very marrow of his bones. He began to give up all hopes of ever reaching his door. Out in the storm, with a stone's throw of his warm, safe home, he and little Lucy must perish. Then, suddenly, a faint sound caught his ear. It sounded like—yes, it was—the barking of his dog—his own house dog inside the house. Had the dog sense enough to know that his master was in danger? It sounded a long way off, but in that howling gale, it might be near, after all. He turned toward the sound and ran as hard as his half-be-numbed limbs would let him. Again the sound came—again it was nearer—there was hope of reaching it. To his unspeakable joy, the dog continued to bark, and before a minute passed, his feet struck a hard object lying on the ground. It was a post—he felt it and recognized it as one that had fallen down close by the corner of the house. One more heroic, staggering effort against the icy blast, and he fell against his own door, exhausted, powerless—but saved.—The Comrade.

HONOR FOR MONTREAL LADY.

King George Confers Order of Lady of Grace on Mrs. W. F. Miller.

His Majesty King George has conferred on Mrs. W. F. Miller of Montreal, the Star of a Lady of Grace of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

Mrs. Miller has taken an active interest in several of the philanthropic organizations of Montreal. She was first director of the Maternity Hospital for thirteen years, and her devotion and untiring zeal, coupled with executive ability, did a great deal in promoting the growth and efficiency of the hospital. It was while Mrs. Miller was at the head of the committee that the change was made to the present greatly enlarged and improved quarters.

The Order of St. John of Jerusalem had its origin in the ancient order established in Jerusalem for the relief of Crusaders. The British order was re-constituted by Royal charter in 1888 by Queen Victoria. It is connected with hospital work, notably the control of St. John's Ambulance Association and Brigade, and of the British Ophthalmic Hospital at Jerusalem. King George V. is sovereign head and patron of the order, and H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught is its Grand Prior. The order is conferred on ladies, as Ladies of Grace and Ladies of Justice.

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPPEPTIC

Now Finds it a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. If it doesn't help you, you get your money back. See a box at your druggist's. Compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 141

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1914

In their efforts to find a cure for cancer, some of the doctors have been making use of radium. This remarkable substance is a comparatively new discovery, and its discoverer was a French lady. It is constantly sending forth rays in abundance, like little sparks, and connected with these is a gas which seems to have the same virtue as the radium itself. The strange thing is that these emanations though incessant do not appear to diminish by any appreciable amount, the quantity of the substance itself. The gas can be gathered and confined in tubes, and applied to the cancers. Some of the doctors claim that they have cured cancers by this means, yet, they are very cautious and admit it that a cure has been effected only in early stages of the disease. One distinguished doctor expresses his opinion by saying that the use of radium "is attended by a brighter, truer, and more confident hope than ever attended any remedy, except an operation, up to the present time."

One great hindrance to the general use of this remedy is its price. A Senator of the United States had an application of it recently to a cancer on his shoulder in four small tubes, the value of which was thirteen thousand dollars. The whole product at present available amounts according to the Review of Reviews, to only about thirty-nine grams, valued at from two to three millions of dollars.

In a room in one of our Provincial Universities we saw on the shelves numbers of clay vessels of various shapes and sizes, some of them as old or older than the pyramids, and tanning saw the Professor exhibiting a tiny piece of radium which looked to us like a little powder squib on fire and emitting sparks in abundance.

The papers have given very complete accounts of the loss of the Cobequid, and the remarkable rescue from death of every person on board. A friend has mentioned to us the following incident: He was upon the wharf at Yarmouth observing the unfortunate and dilapidated, but evidently happy people as they came on shore from the rescue steamer, when one of the number, a little boy, came to him and pointing to a sailor, said: "Do you see that big fellow over there? He waded through water above his waist this morning to try to get us a cup of coffee. He tried to make a fire in a big pot to heat the water, but couldn't do it."

How much we owe to our sailors! What big hearted, brotherly men many of them are?

Bulletin No. 268, issued by the Inland Revenue Department deals with Headache Powders, and speaks quite plainly about them. Headache is not a disease, and consequently no cure is needed. Headache is merely a warning of something being wrong, and a cure for that fundamental something is what is needed. The drugs used are not a cure for indigestion or fatigue or whatever that something may be; and it is utterly false to describe headache powders as a cure. The drugs to which the efficiency of most of these headache powders is due, are powerful heart depressants, and are capable under certain conditions of producing fatal results, while under most conditions they must do harm.

The fifteen days campaign undertaken in New York for the purpose of raising four millions of dollars to extend the work in that city of the Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A. Associations, was successful beyond expectation. Fifty thousand dollars more than the sum mentioned were subscribed. This great sum was subscribed by seventeen thousand persons in amounts varying from five hundred thousand dollars to a few cents. Three-fourths of the money will go to the Women's Association, to erect buildings, boarding homes, clubs for nurses and branches for colored women. The donors evidently appreciate the work done by these Associations, and have confidence in their management.

County Temperance Convention A special convention of the Annapolis County Temperance Alliance will be held in Warren's Hall, Bridgetown, Monday, Jan. 26th, 1914, at 2.30 o'clock. The particular matter for discussion will be the repeal of the Scott Act in favor of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act. On the first page of this issue some reasons for the repeal of the Scott Act is given. Rev. H. R. Grant, Provincial Secretary of the Temperance Alliance, is now in the County holding meetings. Tonight (Wednesday) Mr. Grant will speak at Granville Ferry, Thursday night at Clementsport and Friday night at Annapolis Royal. Sunday next Mr. Grant will speak at Upper Granville Methodist church at 11 a.m. and in Bridgetown Presbyterian church at 7 p.m. Following the evening services in the Bridgetown churches, Mr. Grant will address a mass meeting in the Methodist church and it is urged that the people give this meeting their hearty support. As stated above a special convention of the Temperance Alliance and friends interested all over Annapolis County, will be held in Bridgetown the next day, Monday, 30th inst.

Appreciative Letters Many are the very appreciative comments the Monitor is continually receiving from its subscribers. We herewith give extracts from two received last week: "We are in receipt of your notification that our subscription to the Monitor expired on the 1st inst. and we enclose herewith the necessary $1.00 for renewal. The Monitor is certainly a bright and interesting home paper, and we would not like to be without it."

"I herewith enclose a post office order for two years' subscription to the Monitor-Sentinel. We could not do without the Monitor, as through it we get all the news from the home land."

Congressman James M. Curley of Roxbury was elected Mayor of Boston last week for four years, by a majority of 5720 votes over Thomas J. Kenny. With the defeat of Kenny the control of the Democratic machine in Boston passed from Mayor Fitzgerald to Curley.

The apple shipments from the Annapolis Valley for the last four months of 1913 were 105,532 barrels less than the corresponding four months of the previous year, which were also about forty per cent less than for the four corresponding months of 1911.

Yarmouth Times:—It was rather an impressive incident at the D.A.R. station on Wednesday morning when the crew of the Copequid, before entering for Halifax, got into a group and sang in a very feeling manner, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow."

An unusual and rather curious situation occurred last week at the proceedings of the Municipal Council in the counties of Lunenburg and Cape Breton. In each county the Council is equally divided politically. Upon a vote being taken for Warden a tie occurred in both cases. A second vote gave the same result. Both cases were referred to the Governor-in-Council.

At the last regular meeting of the Annapolis Royal Board of Trade the following officers were elected:—F. O. Whitman, President; Geo. B. Corbett, Vice-President; Claude C. King, Secy. Treas. Auditors: F. W. Harris, A. E. Atlee. Council: H. A. West, L. E. Shaw, H. R. McKay, F. W. Pickels, A. B. McDaniel, L. DeV. Chipman, A. M. King and A. E. Atlee.

A Stanley Fisher, stipendiary magistrate of Berwick, died on Tuesday morning, Jan. 13, aged seventy years. A quarter of a century ago he was a prominent figure in Kings County. He removed to Massachusetts and as a promoter developed several mining and oil properties in the west. After brilliant successes he met with reverses, and returned to Berwick to spend his declining years.

The death of Robert Sinclair occurred very suddenly at Wolfville on Monday evening. The deceased was a brother of the late William Sinclair, formerly of this town. The remains will be brought to Bridgetown today, accompanied by a sister of the deceased, Mrs. Andrew of Pictou, and funeral service will be held at St. James church this afternoon, and interment will take place at the Riverside cemetery.

The annual meeting of the Annapolis County Liberal Association was held in Warren's Hall on Monday afternoon. There was an unusually large attendance of delegates from all over the County. Capt. J. W. Balzer was re-elected president; F. R. Elliott, Vice-president; H. B. Hicks, Secretary. Speeches were made by the Hon. Atty-General Daniels, Hon. S. W. W. Pickup, John Ervin, Esq., K. C., and others.

The Bridgetown B. A. A. C. hockey team went to Digby last Friday and played the Digby boys that evening, the Digby team winning with a score of 6-1. The Bridgetown team returned to Annapolis on Saturday and that evening played the Annapolis team, our boys receiving a severe defeat, score 14-0. Bridgetown doubtless has the material for a good fast hockey team, but what they need is good hard practice.

The Children's Carnival held at the B. A. A. C. rink last Friday evening was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by the little folks. Emeline Dickie won the girl's prize for the most original costume, and Hattie Anderson won the prize for the prettiest girl's costume, while Waldon Rice and Jack Weare carried off the boys' prizes. A half-mile race between Kenneth Dickie and Frank Durling was of considerable interest and was won by Durling.

A party of about thirty young people from Middleton made up a sleighing party to Bridgetown on Monday evening. A supper was served for them at the St. James Hotel, after which dancing was indulged in.

The Bachelor Maids Club of Bridgetown assembled last evening for their third annual turkey supper. Mrs. B. E. Chute got up "the spread" for the club which was voted by the young ladies to be "splendid." We are not in a position to give a full account of the evening's proceedings, as the Monitor reporter in common with all members of the male sex was severely excluded. Perhaps some of the members had fears that should a newspaper man be present their secrets (?) might appear in print.

Methodist Church Circuit Notes

BRIDGETOWN.
Evangelistic services begun last Wednesday are being conducted this week, Monday and Tuesday evenings. Dr. Hearts conducted the services. Large and interested congregations have assembled night after night. The spirit of earnest consecration has been manifested in Christ's followers, and numbers have been led into decision for and acceptance of the christian life. The preaching and appeals of Dr. Hearts most beautifully blended with strong and convincing presentations of the old Gospel plan of salvation. Following up this good work so splendidly begun by Dr. Hearts services will be held each evening this week. The pastor will be assisted this (Wednesday) evening by Rev. F. J. Armitage of Lawrencetown.

AN UNUSUAL FISHING SIGHT OFF HARBOR.

(North Sydney Herald)

To stand on the bluffs of Cranberry at Sydney Mines, or at Low Point, and witness a trawler hauling in trawl of cod and other fish, might not be such an uncommon one if it happened any other time than in the dying days of 1913. But such a sight was witnessed last week by wondering people who viewed the unusual occurrence from the Cranberry and Low Point shores. The steamer was the Scotch trawler Colonia, one of the Grimsby fleet operating in connection with the Canso concern, and the last to leave here this season. She took bunkers at the Scotia pier, and sailed for England-Friday evening.

Such enormous quantities of fish were never before known to swarm in the waters at the entrance of the harbor as did last week, and even schools of luscious cod ventured up the harbor front where they were quickly taken by anxious local fishermen, who watched their course inwards.

Several of the boats of the local fleet made phenomenal hauls, and so quickly did the news spread among the citizens, or at least among those who enjoy a day's fishing, that for a time the harbor was fairly dotted with small craft, whose occupants had no difficulty in filling their boats in a comparatively short time.

In one of the boats were Messrs. Angus Young, Capt. J. McKenzie and Mr. Joseph McPherson, three ardent fishermen. Capt. McKenzie brought with him his fowling piece, and being an expert shot, brought down several birds. Shortly after he was in the act of throwing his line when he was attracted by the struggles of Mr. Young, who evidently hooked a monster fish. Had not assistance come, it was either a case of letting go the line or Mr. Young being pulled into the water, so violent were the efforts of the struggling denizen of the deep. Even the combined efforts of the three men were unavailing in their fish, for suddenly the line parted and all was over.

NORTH SYDNEY POST OFFICE BURGLARIZED.

North Sydney, Jan. 12.—The post-office at North Sydney was burglarized on Saturday night. The thief, according to the theory of the police, had evidently allowed himself to be coked in when the office closed for the night as marks were discovered on top of a porch in the lobby, where some person had concealed himself. Entrance was gained to the main office by removing the glass from one of the smaller windows. As far as can be learned at present he got away with sixty dollars in silver coin from the cash drawer, other money and valuables being placed in the safe. The police are working on the case.

Mr. John Littlewood and Loren Ring are engaged in lobster fishing here.

Service in the Anglican church, Sunday evening by the Rev. C. W. Neish, rector.

The "Helping Hand" met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Farnsworth on Friday evening.

Mr. James Kelly went away again on Saturday in quest of cattle, he having already bought and sold twelve yoke of working cattle.

Mrs. Lucille Armstrong and little daughter, who have been spending the last few months with friends in Boston and other cities in Massachusetts, has returned home.

MORGANVILLE

January 17.

We are snow-bound at last. Mr. William Smith sold his oxen to Mr. Ruggles of Deep Brook.

Praying service in the Morganville church the third Sunday of each month at 3 P. M.

Mr. Jesse Porter received a slight injury from a fall, but was able to return to the woods again.

CLEMENTSPORT

January 17.

Rev. H. Carter of River Herbert, spent a few days at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roy Merritt, recently.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Millet, previously reported very ill, still continues in a very critical condition.

Capt. Rawding has been attending Council for a few days, which recently met in the old historic town of Annapolis Royal.

Capt. L. Rawding is spending a few weeks with his family here. He is employed as master of a vessel belonging to a Boston firm.

Mrs. Hunter, who spent a week or so recently at the home of her parents, New Glasgow, has returned to her present home at Mrs. A. D. Rood's.

Mrs. Laidley Shaw has returned from attending the funeral of her father at Round Hill, the Hon. Geo. Whitman, which took place quite recently.

Mr. Herbert Vroom, one of the proprietors of our meat market, is spending a few weeks in the domain of Uncle Sam. Mrs. Vroom preceded him there some time since.

Mr. Louis Palmer of Melvern Square, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stronach. Mr. Palmer was recently returned from the great West, where he has been living for the last fourteen years.

Mr. Reginald Lockhart of the Bank of Montreal, is at present spending a short time at his home here on account of not enjoying the best of health. He expects to return soon to his business.

Several commercial men have visited our village of late for the purposes of soliciting orders for the various firm which they represent, and we presume did fairly well along this line.

Our teachers, Miss Mary Potter of Clementsport, and Miss May Hall of Bridgetown, are again found in their respective departments since the Christmas vacation, teaching the young "ideas how to shoot."

The children belonging to the Baptist Sunday School were given a treat by their teachers and parents at the Baptist Hall a short time since. We learn a very enjoyable evening was spent in entertainment combined with a substantial treat, and all present went home happy.

Some fourteen of the male residents here met at the home of Mr. Forbes Tupper, proprietor of the Tupper House, on Thursday night of the 15th inst, and organized a male club known as the "Clementsport Literary and Recreation Club," consisting of a board of managers of eleven, with a president, vice-president, and Secretary-Treasurer, and are ex-officio members of said board. This Club is to be held in the room above the new post office and will meet for the first time in said room on Monday evening of the second day of February next, at half-past seven o'clock. Male persons eligible for membership must be eighteen years old and upwards.

CLEMENTSVALE

January 19.

Messrs. Russell and Smith of Digby, spent Sunday among friends here.

Miss Ada Davis of Bear River, was a recent guest of her friend, Miss Ramsay.

Miss Gladys Eaton of Granville Centre, spent the week end with her sister, Miss Vera Eaton, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Chute.

Quite a chapter of driving accidents happened to our citizens last week. One of our popular young ladies while taking a sleigh drive was suddenly surprised to find herself sitting on the side of the road with the other occupants of the sleigh looking back at her wondering why she preferred sitting there to driving. A young man started on a sleigh ride and opened his eyes to find himself and young lady landed in some mysterious way on the side of the road. A few minutes later the horse was caught in Bear River,—minus a sleigh.

PORT WADE

January 19.

Mr. Thomas Wood of Annapolis Royal, spent the week end with relatives here.

Mr. Walter Ryder of Malden, Mass., is home for a short visit and attended his mother's funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Adelbert Ryder occurred on Sunday afternoon, 18th, Rev. Mr. Davis officiating. The deceased was an aged and respected citizen, and endured a long and painful illness with christian spirit. She will be much missed in the home, where she has been for more than fifty years a kind and devoted wife and mother.

"MY ONLY MEDICINE"

Says Mrs. Corbett, Ara "Fruit-a-tives" "They Keep Me In Perfect Health"

Mrs. ANNIE A. CORBETT

AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913. "I have used 'Fruit-a-tives' for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I am highly pleased with 'Fruit-a-tives' and am not ashamed to have the facts published to the world. When I first started, about six years ago, to use them, I took four for a dose, but I cured myself of the above troubles and gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking 'Fruit-a-tives' I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the disease as from these treatments. Finally, I saw 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised with a letter in which someone recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory and I have no hesitation in recommending them to any other person. They have done me a world of good. I get satisfaction from them, and that is quite a lot." ANNIE A. CORBETT. 60c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE BABY.

(By John Kendrick Bangs)

He has his father's Roman nose; He has his mother's wondrous eyes; His hair—he'll get some, I suppose— Suggests his granddaddy's pate so wise; He has no teeth, but on the whole, There's lots of room to put them in; His mother's mother pays him toll By giving him her chin. The dimple on his little cheek— O what a joyous thing it is! 'Tis ever playing hide-and-seek, And shows what wealth of smiles is his. This dimple is his mother's—sure! A perfect little fount of fun. 'Twas that, I think, was first to lure Us twain from two to one. But whence hath come this fund of noise That he doth make by night and day? 'Tis louder than a troop of boys Let loose at recess time to play. It has a wild electric roar Mixed with a sort of churning chug; I fear me some old ancestor Was captain of a tug. 'Isn't it queer the 'movies' never show us any of these Central American revolutions?' 'Not a bit. As a matter of truth, they haven't perfected a film machine yet that can revolve as fast as the revolutions.'

AT THE NEW YEAR

What should we all do without the calendar, when we want to put off a disagreeable duty? The admirable arrangements of the solar system, by which our time is measured, always supply us with a term before which it is hardly worth while to sit about anything we are disinclined to do, says George Eliot at the end of one of the chapters of "Daniel Deronda." If we have been putting off something until the New Year, our term of procrastination is about at an end. The importance attached to the beginning of things at a certain auspicious date is not altogether the lingering remains of superstition. There is a stimulus in having a definite starting point that is not without its psychological effect. And of all the starting points, for those measurements that mark the progress of our inner lives, what time so auspicious as the New Year? As Charles Lamb says in one of his "Ella" papers, "No one ever regarded the first of January with indifference. It is that from which all date their time, and count upon what is left. Of all sound of all bells, most solemn and touching is the peal which rings out the old year. I never hear it without a gathering up of my mind to a concentration of all the images that have been diffused over the past twelve months; all I have done or suffered, performed or neglected, in that regretted time. I begin to know its worth as when a person dies. It takes a personal color; nor was it a poetical flight in a contemporary when he exclaimed, 'I saw the skirts of the departing year.'"

We are not so much given to introspection now as were the people of Charles Lamb's time. And as we grow older, we outgrow our youthful fervor for making resolutions on New Year's Day, when we copied them painstakingly on the first page of new diaries, for the guidance of our conduct through the remaining three hundred and sixty-four days. Perhaps it is because we have found out so often that it takes more than the inscribing of resolutions on a clean, fresh page to enable us to live up to them, that we sometimes forget to make the resolutions at all. Some oldtime diaries show that introspection was frequently carried to a painful degree, and that there was much futile crying over spilled milk. The present generation goes rather to the opposite extreme. We might well spend a little more time in self-examination—and at the close of the year is a convenient season—to see how far we have come during the period now closing, and how our spiritual standard measures with what it was a year ago. Self-knowledge is not to be acquired in a day, nor is self-control to be gained by the mere making of resolutions. But the deliberate, carefully planned turning over of a new leaf is not a valueless proceeding, for all that. The mental and spiritual act of making a resolution to overcome some tendency, to get rid of some prejudice, to attain to something of which one has hitherto fallen short, is at least an inspiration. If we follow the philosopher's advice to "hitch our waggon to a star," we shall at least get on to a higher plane than if we were content to tie up at a hitching post.

We speak of youth as the time of the formation of character, and so it is. But it is only the foundation that is laid in youth; the building of character, the structure itself, goes on from the beginning of life until three score years and ten. If the woman of thirty looks back, she can see that in many ways she is a different person from the girl of twenty who bore the same name; at forty she will be a different woman from what she is at thirty. While from the education she had received, her antecedents, and her home training it might have been foretold in a general way how she would develop in the next ten or twenty years, what she actually becomes depends on how she builds up character from day to day with the materials which experience, self-knowledge, opportunity, and contact with others put into her hands. In a common-place book occurs this paragraph, in regard to the building of the edifice of character from year to year: "Improvements and repairs, strengthening weak places, exchanging faulty material for something better—all this must be carried out in the effort to reach a fine ideal of character. To go on building, always aiming to improve, to strengthen, and to beautify should surely be the task of true manhood and womanhood of all ages. To be satisfied with what we have accomplished or with what we are the sign of a character that is on the point of deterioration. When we cease to grow, to push forward, we are in danger of slipping backward."

So, at whatever age, let us not consider the self-examination and its resulting resolutions at New Year an out-worn custom. And if some of them prove but frail, and be soon broken, well, it is better to have resolved and failed than never to have resolved at all. Better still, it is, to mend the broken resolution at once, and many times if need be, without reference to the calendar. And if you cannot think of any resolution to make, you can take to heart that little year-end sermon of Robert Louis Stevenson's, which bears repeating at least once a year, for man or woman: "To be honest, to be kind; to earn a little and spend a little less; to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitalization—above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself." Here is a task for all that one has of fortitude and delicacy.—Mary Malvern.

HOLE IN BOTTOM OF SEA.

A hole nearly a mile deep was formed in the bottom of the sea off the coast of Panama by the recent Central American earthquakes, according to apparently authentic reports. As a result of these earthquakes a sub-marine cable was broken, and a cable ship was sent out to make repairs. The ends of the cable were found to be buried under enormous masses of material, and where the government charts, published in 1904 showed a depth of 1,000 feet, soundings made from the cable ship made a depth of 5,000 feet. This remarkable depression is located off Los Santos Province, about fifteen miles from the mainland, and is about half a mile wide.—Popular Mechanics.

HINTS FOR THE WINDOW GARDEN

(By Katherine Leslie.)

Of all plants available for the window garden there are two that are decidedly the best, says a lover of the window garden. One of these is the ubiquitous geranium. This will probably grow for more kinds of people and in more kinds of places than any other plant on earth. But that is not to say that geraniums rightly selected and tended are not quite different plants from the scraggly things usually seen. Indeed, they possess a dazzling beauty altogether unsuspected by the average person who has never seen a really fine plant. Select a fine variety, either pink, scarlet, or deep red, in the first place. Use only this or this and some equally good white flowering form; give the plants a soil that is heavy rather than light—less sand mixed with it than ordinary potting soil requires, or even some heavy loam and low manure added, to insure density. Always keep them rather dry than wet and in a sunny place. The other plant of this twin is the heliotrope. Modern horticulture has developed not only several shades of purple, but only several plant, but a white form as well, and flowers in tassels six inches across. Heliotropes do not transplant well, however, so it is better to raise the plants from seed in the box, or in pots where they can grow permanently, or to transplant only by reporting from small pots to larger. Be very sure that the plants never get very dry at the roots, and never undertake to grow them when the night temperature will be below fifty-five degrees. The common amaranth which florists use is a charming window vine, and it has fragrant white blossoms in winter too, which may do well. A plant or two of this at either end of any sort of mass of plants is delightful, or one may have a whole window, if you like. It will easily do this for its average growth is ten feet. One of its great advantages is that it will grow in the shade where few things can be induced to grow within doors. Enrich the soil for it by adding a little more than the double handful of bone meal to a pailful. For semi-shady windows choose fuchsias, begonias or primroses. And for an altogether shady window limit the choice to English ivy, myrtle, cordana or aspidistra, or such ferns as do not require the hot-house atmosphere or moisture.

SPARRERIBS OF PORK.

"I have an appallingly small amount of house money left to do for the rest of the week," cried Mrs. Housewife-New over the telephone. "I've been indulging in expensive cuts," said Mrs. Housewife-Lee. "Christmas 'Thank-you's' I did not seem to have time to think about fussing up cheaper cuts and here I am almost bankrupt. Do tell me something new and cheap." "Well, there are spareribs of fresh pork," said Mrs. Housewife-Lee. "How would they do?" "Beautifully, I'm sure, if you recommend them," was the reply. "How much do they cost?" "Twelve and a half cents a pound. I bought three pounds but the other day wiped them with a damp cloth and put into a double pan with no additional fat, because they have plenty of their own. I cooked them for half an hour on one side and then added salt and pepper. Many people like a little sage and summer savory, too. I don't. At the end of another half-hour they were done. I basted them frequently." "Do you have gravy with them?" "No, I don't, but if you want it pour off the superfluous fat, add a tablespoonful of flour and whisk carefully until it is brown. Then pour in a cup of water and cook for two or three minutes. It is nice, too, to peel your potatoes and bake them in the pan with the meat." "Is that all?" the young housewife asked. "Yes, that is all, and very simple, isn't it? But there is another way advocated by the Boston Cooking School and, if you have your notebook there, I'll tell it to you at the same time." "Of course I have my notebook," Mrs. Housewife-New declared, and Mrs. Housewife-Lee continued: "Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, rub over with salt and flour, and set to cook in a moderate oven. Let cook about twenty minutes to the pound; baste often with the dripping, and dredge with flour after each basting. Serve with onions, boiled until beginning to be tender, then set around the pork in the pan to finish cooking. Baste the onions when the meat is basted. There, I smell something burning in my own kitchen. I must run. Good-bye, my dear, and good luck with your spareribs."—Polly Peale.

"Well, Pat, my lad," said the kindly doctor, "you must drink this stuff. I'm afraid it's a case of kill or cure with you now, my lad." "Well, I don't care if it kills me so long as it cures me in the end," said Pat. "Gimme the bottle."

An individual of somewhat doubtful appearance was applying for a situation as a van driver. On being asked for references, he mentioned one of the dealer's old hands, who was called in and questioned as to the applicant's honesty. The referee rubbed his chin meditatively for a moment and said, "Honest? Well, guv'nor, his honesty has been proved again and again. Faith, he's bizz tried sivin toimes for stealing, and eschaped ivery toime." The applicant was not chagrined.

Mrs. Gordon had recently moved into the neighborhood.

"I thought I would come and tell you that your James has been fighting with my Edward," said one of the neighbors one morning as she called at Mrs. Gordon's door, "and settle the matter if I could."

"Well, for my part," responded Mrs. Gordon, haughtily, "I have no time to enter into any discussion about the children's quarrels. I consider myself above such trifling things."

"I'm delighted to hear it," was the reply. "I'll send James over on a stretcher in an hour or two."

The lanky country youth entered the crossroads general store to order some groceries. He was fourteen years old and was passing through that stage of adolescence during which a boy seems all hands and feet, and his vocal organs rapidly developing, are wont to cause his voice to undergo sudden and involuntary changes from high treble to low bass.

In an authoritative, rumbling bass voice he demanded of the busy clerk: "Give me a can of corn," (then his voice suddenly changing to a shrill falsetto) "and a sack of flour."

"Well, don't be in a hurry. I can't wait on both of you at once," snapped the clerk.

"Now, sir, attend to me!" said a cross-examining counsel, who was just losing his temper, to a stolid farmer. "Is this your handwriting?" "No, it isn't," replied the farmer. "Remember, you are on oath, sir! Do you swear it is not your handwriting?" "Yes," "Does it at all resemble your handwriting?" "No, I can't say that it do." "Now, sir, no preparation! I won't be trifled with! Does this resemble your handwriting?" "I can't say." "But you must say, sir. Will you take your solemn oath that this writing does not resemble yours?" "I know it don't." "Oh, you know, do you? Well, just tell the jury how you know!" "Cos I can't write!"

There is a public library in Baltimore that has a regulation by which any member wasting a particular book which is not "in" can, by paying a small sum, secure the next turn and, upon the book's coming in, the library send him a notification.

In this connection an attaché of the library tells of an amusing incident. A member desired a copy of a novel entitled "The Girl He Left Behind Him." The book lot being in, he made the customary deposit, and in due course received a notification. This the member's wife received to her alarm at first, for it read as follows: "Mr. Blank is informed that "The Girl He Left Behind" is now in the library and will be kept for him until Friday morning next."

"Hello, Turnips," said an arrogant young man to a farmer driving along a country road: "give a fellow a lift to Newton!" Without waiting for a reply he jumped into the cart. "I might as well ride with you as walk." After two or three miles had been covered, the young man paused for a moment in his chatter and remarked: "It's farther to Newton than I supposed."

"It is a good distance," answered the farmer. Another twenty minutes passed and then the young man inquired: "About how far is it to Newton?" "Well," replied the farmer, "keepin' straight on the way we're going now I should say 'twould be a matter of twenty-five thousand miles or so; but if you was favourable 't getting out of my cart, and walkin' it back, it isn't very much above eight miles."

DELAY

There's a naughty little spirit that comes from "No Good Town," And visits every neighborhood. I know, It never finds a welcome, no matter when it comes, And every one is glad to have it go. It visits little children (and some grown up folks as well) And always brings them trouble, grief and pain. It never makes a single friend in any place it goes, And no one ever bids it come again.

I'm telling you the habits of this spirit that I know (And every single word I say is true). So you will also know it, and drive it right away. If it should ever come to visit you, Don't allow it to deceive you by seeming easy ways, And never for a moment let it stay. It's a wicked little spirit that never helped a soul, And its name—you must have guessed it—is Delay.

A little boy, seeing a gentleman in the street, placed himself in a convenient place to speak with him. When the gentleman came up the boy pulled off his hat, held it out to the gentleman and begged for a few cents. "MONEY!" said the gentleman, "you had better ask for manners than money." "I asked," said the boy, "for what I thought you had the most of."

PREMIER WHITNEY NOT SO WELL

Advised by Physicians to Retire from Active Political Life.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Jan. 12.—Sir James Whitney had a poor night, and his condition this morning was less favorable. This was the text of a bulletin issued at 11.30 a.m. by Dr. Fyne.

If Sir James takes the advice of many of his friends, among them members of the medical profession, he will decide not to enter politics again when he recovers from his present prostration, and his party here are hopeful that he will.

This advice was communicated to Sir James who has so far made no promises.

The task of intimating to the premier that as one of his medical friends put it, "it was inadvisable that he should go back into politics upon recovering," has been a very delicate one, but it appears to have been handled most deftly.

His attendants were afraid that any suggestion of this nature would at once arouse him to a fury that would be highly dangerous, but at the same time it was felt that he should be discouraged from contemplating a return to his work.

Steamer Cobquid Foundered on Trinity Ledge Rock but all Hands Saved

The steamer Cobquid from Bermuda for St. John founded on Trinity Ledge in the Bay of Fundy, early Tuesday morning. She immediately sent a wireless message for help, but after that message was sent her wireless apparatus failed and no word as to the location of the steamer was given.

Searches by various steamers were made along the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia coast and even on the Maine coast, but no tidings were given until Wednesday evening, when she was discovered on Trinity Ledge near Briar Island, as the first wireless reported. There were 102 souls on board and all were taken off safely but the Captain and a few men who remained on the ship.

The long wait for the rescue ships was a most trying one. The passengers and crew who came ashore showed signs of the terrible experience. There were thirty colored people from a warmer climate and they felt the cold most intensely.

When the wireless men found that the aerial had parted they made frantic efforts to repair it at the risk of their lives, but at last they were forced to give up.

The seas were breaking over the ship and few, after it was found impossible to launch the boats and it became known that the wireless was down, ever expected that rescue would come. All had nearly abandoned hope but no eye became wearied in trying to penetrate the darkness to make out the lights of a coming steamer, and every ear and strain to hear the sound of a friendly steam whistle.

The Cobquid is a vessel of 4738 gross tonnage; equipped with twin screws and is capable of steaming 15 knots. She was the first boat in the new West India service and was formerly the Goth in the African service.

Fred William Bishop, farmer, and Abner Mercereau McNinch, clerk, both of Paradise, in the said Province of Nova Scotia and Vernon Benjamin Leonard, of Central Annapolis, in the Province of Nova Scotia, for the following purposes, viz.—(a) To own, rear, grow, sell and deal in karakules and domestic sheep and lambs or other fur bearing animals; to collect, operate and manage farms and to manufacture furs; (b) To carry on any other business, whether manufacturing or otherwise, capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable to the company a property or rights; (c) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possessors of property suitable for the purposes of the company; (d) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, licenses, copyrights and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights or information so acquired; (e) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to lead money, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same; (f) Subject to section 32, to take, or otherwise acquire and hold, shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company; (g) To enter into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to lead money, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same; (h) To promote, establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and endowments calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company, or its predecessors in business, or the dependents or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to grant payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects, or for any exhibition or for any public, general or useful object; (i) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring or taking over all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company; (j) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange or otherwise acquire, any personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business, and in particular any machinery, plant and stock in trade; (k) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, water courses, wharves, manufacturing, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other work of a kind convenient, which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof; (l) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons; (m) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants, and other negotiable or transferable instruments; (n) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company, if authorized so to do by the vote of a majority in number of the shareholders present or represented by proxy at a general meeting duly called for considering the matter and holding not less than two thirds of the issued capital stock of the company; (o) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company, as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest by publication of books and periodicals, and by granting prizes, rewards and donations; (p) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company; (q) To do all or any of the above things, and all things authorized by the letters patent or supplementary letters patent as principals, agents, contractors, trustees or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others; (r) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects and of the objects set out in the letters patent, and any letters patent, agents, contractors, trustees or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "The Dominion Karakule-Arabi Sheep and Fur Company, Limited," with a capital stock of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars divided into 1,500 shares of one hundred dollars each; and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the Town of Lunenburg, in the Province of Nova Scotia.

Dated at the office of the Secretary of State of Canada, this 31st day of December, 1913.

THOMAS MULVEY,
Under-Secretary of State.

Build a Better Silo and Save Money

BUILD the kind that will keep your ensilage always at its best. Build the kind of silo that does not have to be repaired or painted every other year. Your dairy herd will show its appreciation in the additional quantity of milk it gives. The best silo, by keeping ensilage perfect, increases output and soon pays for itself.

A Concrete Silo is the dairyman's surest dividend payer. It keeps ensilage in just the right condition and does not permit it to dry out or get mouldy. A concrete silo cannot leak, rot, rust or dry out. It has no hoops to replace. Requires no paint and needs no repairs during an ordinary lifetime.

Send today for this free book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It tells how to build a concrete silo and many other things on the farm that will save you many dollars.
