THE MOTHERLAND

Late Mails from ENGLAND IRELAND and SCOTLAND

CLARE.

A very grave report is received concerning the supply of potatoes in all the Western districts of Clare.

DUBLIN.

At a large and representative meeting, presided over by the Most Rev. Dr. O'Donnell, at Letterkenney, the Lordship addressed the audience in Gaelic at some length, the address being in Gaelic, the audience in English.

DUBLIN.

A movement has been admirably inaugurated at the Royal Academy of Music for a memorial to the late Mr. Joseph Robinson.

A most solemn and imposing ceremonial, says the Freeman's Journal, was the opening of the beautiful new Church of the great College of All Hallows.

Catholic Ireland, then, is the primary factor in the evangelisation of the English-speaking world, and All Hallows College has been certainly the primary agent in the work accomplished by Catholic Ireland for the propagation of the Gospel.

Speaking at a meeting of the friends of the Sacred Heart Home, Drumcondra, on October 30th, the Archbishop of Dublin referred to proselytism, which in the true sense of the word, he said, is a thing by no means essentially wrong or discreditable.

It might be said that in some strange results I have heard it said, for instance, that in some edition of the famous Dictionary a Jesuit is defined as a clergyman (loud laughter).

At a large and enthusiastic meeting was held in Castlereagh on November 1. In support of the United Irish League, the Government appeared to have recognized the folly and futility of the measures taken in Ballinrobe and Letterkenney.

Amongst those on the platform were Messrs. W. O'Brien, W. H. K. Redmond, M.P., P. J. Hayden, M.P.; P. M. Mahony, ex-M.P.; John Fitzgibbon, M.P.; and others.

Mr. Father Joyce, P.P., speaking as chairman of a United Irish League meeting held at Loughs, said their meetings were peaceable and lawful.

Well, there is such a thing as giving a dog a good name, and so starting him on a career of happy profligacy.

At a meeting at which I was present he spoke of it as a demoralising system. I went further, and spoke of it as a system tending not only to the demoralization in this life of the unhappy parents who are seduced by the gifts which it has to offer, tending not only to their demoralization in this life, but to their everlasting ruin in the life to come.

LIMERICK. Dr. O'Dwyer, Rector, who drove his mobilola through Punch's window in London, intends it is said, to bring an action against the Mayor of Limerick in consequence of the telegram he sent to the Lord Mayor of London.

On November 1st, a great demonstration, the occasion being the laying of a foundation stone for a monument to be erected in honour of the priests and people who fell in the rebellion of 1798, was held in Wexford.

According to the Rome correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle, the Pope will shortly issue an encyclical on Anarchism, which, he says, he will denounce as a Christian consequence of the rejection of Christian principles in social organization.

clerk, he adds, to be on their guard against the infiltration of secret and subversive societies. The Pope, by his encyclical, wishes to show that he may not participate in the forthcoming anti-Anarchist conference.

According to the Dover correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, Major-General Sir W. J. Butler, K.C.B., who for some time has been in command of the South-eastern District in England, has been appointed to the command of the British troops in South Africa.

MASSE OF THE HOLY GHOST. The Catholic Judges and members of the London Bar, as usual at the opening of Term, attended on October 24th the Mass of the Holy Ghost, or First Mass, at the Church of St. Andrew and Cecilia, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

That precocious boy again. A tiny youngster was poking over his father's shoulder, clear past the picture, and presently they came upon a picture of a donkey and a fool.

"Now, which would you rather be, Tommy?" laughingly enquired the father. "A donkey or a fool?"

"Your guest didn't stay long." No. She begged me to treat her as one of the family, and when I did she got mad and left.

Montreal's Irish Farewell.

Notable Addresses Presented to Lord and Lady Aberdeen.

Montreal, Nov. 10.—The Irish demonstration in Windsor Hall last evening in honour of Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Aberdeen was a notable one.

A large number of children from St. Patrick's Orphanage, very prettily dressed were seated upon the stage. The white dresses and garlands of flowers of these little ones, together with the smart uniforms of the Cadets, made a very striking stage picture.

When the party had become seated, Dr. Kennedy, president of St. Patrick's National Society, presented His Excellency with the following address: To His Excellency the Right Honourable Sir John Campbell Gordon, Earl of Aberdeen, P.C., LL.D., Governor-General of Canada.

When Lord Aberdeen, in reply, spoke at considerable length. She referred to the audience present as her Irish friends. The link that bound them together was a strong one.

LADY ABERDEEN'S REPLY. Lady Aberdeen, in reply, spoke at considerable length. She referred to the audience present as her Irish friends. The link that bound them together was a strong one.

Now that you are about to leave our shores, accompanied by the distinguished Lady, who has so nobly aided you in every work of philanthropy, benevolence and charity, we tender you our sincere regret on the occasion of your departure.

His Excellency's remarks were greeted with tremendous applause. The audience rose and sang "God Save the Queen," as Lord Aberdeen left the hall to keep another engagement.

THE ADDRESS TO LADY ABERDEEN. The Reverend Father Quinlan, pastor of St. Patrick's, then read the following address to Her Excellency.

THE INVITED GUESTS. Amongst those who occupied the seats reserved for the special guests were: Hon. Mr. Justice Curran, Hon. Mr. Justice Doherty, Hon. Mr. Justice Purcell, Hon. Dr. Guerin, Dr. Kennedy, president St. Patrick's Society; John Walsh, president St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. J. H. Ferns, president Irish Protestant Society; Mr. M. G. H. O'Connell, president St. Ann's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. J. J. O'Connell, president St. Gabriel's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. R. Burke, president Young Ireland; Mr. J. J. O'Connell, president St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. J. J. O'Connell, president St. Gabriel's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. R. Burke, president Young Ireland; Mr. J. J. O'Connell, president St. Patrick's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. J. J. O'Connell, president St. Gabriel's T. A. and B. Society; Mr. R. Burke, president Young Ireland.

St. Columban at Bobbio.

Writing from Florence on October 21st, the Roman correspondent of the Dublin Freeman says:—

In the old days of travel in Italy—say sixty years ago—the route-book of the post was known as a "road-book," and the route was reckoned by "pasta." Instead of, as now, by rail way stations. Special advice was given in the road-book to those who purpose travelling by diligence...

The Church of San Columban is the spot to which our turn in the early morning. I always wondered why the Irish saint sought a place so inaccessible in which to build his monastery. When from the balcony of the bishop's residence, I looked down on the river Trebbia, enclosed in a valley with majestic and severe mountains towering on either side...

The Globe, on Saturday, made the following complimentary reference to Mr. Walter J. Boland, the new President of the Young Liberals Club...

According to the newspaper reports of the meeting of the Catholic Truth Society, held in London, on Nov. 3, the leading spirits in that active English organization are awake to the possibilities of the hour.

The Earl of Minto, the new Governor-General of Canada had an unusual experience upon landing at Quebec on Saturday last.

agreement with Mr. Seath in saying that efficiency and economy are thus interwoven with, and that the bold pupils are themselves striven in the process of translation.

A Catholic Club

We publish elsewhere a kindly and practical letter, pleading in behalf of a noble idea. Not a new idea by any means in this city of Toronto is the organization of a Catholic club for the benefit of our young men.

The work would have the hearty goodwill and assistance of our clergy there is not the least room to doubt. It was only this week that one of the city priests, in the course of a conversation with the editor of THE REGISTER, offered $500 towards the formation of a Catholic club for young men.

That we all realize the facts is abundantly certain; the practical question is how are we to approach the duty and responsibility with which these facts bring us face to face?

England and the United States.

Lord Salisbury made a speech at the annual Guild Hall banquet, on the 9th, which contained a somewhat mysterious allusion to the United States.

which may not conduce to the interests of peace, though I think in any event it is likely to conduce to the interests of Great Britain.

Unless Lord Salisbury was unfortunate in his choice of words, the foregoing declaration was capable of but one construction. If the expansive policy of the United States is an "unhappy omen," it may not "conduce to the interests of peace," and still in any event is "likely to conduce to the interests of Great Britain."

There are two ways in which the United States could become involved in a European war, either alone or as an ally of England.

The American people could desire no more candid counsel than the British Premier gives them as to the outlook for their expansion policy.

Of Every Faith Defender.

The Kaiser appears to have undertaken the role of defender of all the faiths. He has a scheme on hand for uniting the many sects into which his Protestant subjects are divided, constituting himself their spiritual lord.

The Discussion of "Christian Science."

The verdict of an English Coroner's jury and the indictment of two female "Christian Scientists" on the charge of manslaughter, in connection with the death of the well-known journalist Harold Frederic, may possibly cause some of the friends who are making a livelihood out of this particular phase of modern superstition.

Here in Toronto half a dozen prominent men, including we believe one distinguished figure in our universities, have in recent years had their departure from this life superinduced by the same "Christian Science." There are plenty of their sort left here and elsewhere, whilst the increasing activity of the "Christian Science" sect shows that the extent of the superstition is fully recognized by those who are ready to take advantage of it.

The Anglican War.

In the present strife between Ritualists and Anti-Ritualists in the Anglican Church Catholics have no direct concern. But they are almost every day called upon to defend their own, the ancient faith, against the excited claims and counter claims of these contending parties.

The American Elections

The next American elections state and congressional were not particularly distinguished by the result of the war. The political result was similarly devoid of significance touching the problem of the hour in the United States, national expansion.

The Killing of Juan Aparicio.

In the Canadian papers are seen at intervals brief descriptions of revolutions in the Central and South American Republics, but the information contained in these descriptions is always so meagre that we cannot well understand the merits of the questions over which these bloody civil wars are fought.

The next entertainments will be an afternoon tea given by the committee on Wednesday afternoon, November 23rd when the Assembly Rooms will present a brilliant and attractive appearance.

Rev. Dr. Treacy, of St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, lectured at Barro on Sunday evening under the auspices of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

His subject was "The Catacombs of Rome." The large congregation contained many of the leading Protestants of the town.

Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough, passed through the city on Tuesday on his way home from Niagara Falls, where he met his cousin, Most Rev. Dr. Moore, Bishop of Ballarat, Australia, who is visiting America on his way from the old country.

There will be Musical Vespers and a lecture by Very Rev. Dr. Harris, Dean of St. Catharines, in St. Michael's Cathedral, on Sunday next, the 20th.

The proceeds will be given to the society of St. Vincent de Paul, in aid of the poor under the care of the confederates of Our Lady. Tickets are 50c. The worthy object and the oratorical and theological fames of the distinguished lecturer will no doubt crowd the Cathedral.

What then is the truth about Ireland? You, Mr. Editor, are of opinion that, whatever it is, it is no concern of ours here...

I have not spoken on this question as strongly as some of England's most illustrious and loyal subjects have spoken. I could quote on the Head of the Duke of Wellington...

Why should loyal British subjects object to the truth? The best, and in fact the only way to defend the course you have taken, is to take exception to my statements...

Mr. Editor says my remarks were unsavory. I decidedly object to that word. For my reason, see the mean of the word. Worcester's dictionary (unabridged)...

HON. EWD. BLAKE IN WALES.

The leading papers of Wales, the Western Mail and the South Wales Daily News, contain long reports of a debate delivered at Cardiff on November 2 by Hon. Edward Blake...

The Hon. Edward Blake, ex Premier of Canada, is a Protestant Home Ruler. While at Cardiff he is the guest of Mr. James Clerk, and in the evening attended a meeting of Irishmen last night...

The Daily News thus reports the public meeting. The Hon. Edward Blake, ex Premier of Canada, and ex Minister of Finance for Longford, addressed a crowded meeting of his fellow-countrymen at the Philharmonic Hall, Cardiff, on Wednesday evening...

The Rev. Father Hayde, who presided, said he had agreed to occupy that position because the meeting was a patriotic one, such as every loyal Irishman who loved his country ought to attend...

Mr. Blake, who received a warm welcome, prefaced his address by contesting the absolute and relative position of Ireland to-day with that in 1798, and said that from possessing one-third of the population of the British Empire...

Chats with the Children

How precious the thought that to me, a poor mortal, The King of all Kings hath appointed a guide...

Dear Prince, more than friend, to my interests devoted, Forgive me my insults, my graceless neglect...

After Life's clouded paths, may thine eyes' holy splendor Enlighten Death's gloom with its comforting ray!

Once upon a time there was a very ugly woman who was a witch She wanted every one to be as wicked as herself...

"What should I do?" says she. "Well," says owl, "you had better do all you can to make the king like you and hate her."

"I didn't," said Violet, "and I do not believe anyone did." "Ah, didn't they?" said the queen...

"Will you give me something to eat?" said the old man. "Yes," replied the princess. So they sat down and ate...

"I am the father of the Fairy King, and am travelling in disguise to find a maiden to be the Fairy Queen. You are the first I've met who has been kind enough to give me food, so if you'll come I'll take you to Fairyland."

2. On entering the class-room incline your head and say "Good morning," to the teacher. If there is not some little service you can do for her—cleaning the blackboard, bringing fresh water for flowers, dusting her desk, etc.

3. When a clergyman, teacher, or any visitor enters the room, rise, stand on both feet, and let the arms fall naturally at the side. Remain standing until you have permission to be seated.

2. If you see sent on a message to another room, knock, and, when you have entered, bow to the teacher, and remain quietly standing until she is ready to attend you. Do you crowd as simply as possible, not staring about the room but intent on the duty.

Compelled by Female Weakness to Give up School. THE SHEEP TO THE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS—Now She is Healthy and Strong—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure Women's Ills.

St. CUNEO'S, P.Q., Nov. 14.—The case of Mrs. Ellen Dowson, of Gerard St., Toronto, has a parallel in this place. Dodd's Kidney Pills have brought happiness into a stricken home, by restoring a beloved daughter to health and strength.

By a friend's advice, I bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills for her, and was delighted to see that she began to get better almost immediately after beginning to use them.

THE DOMAIN OF WOMAN

Here is a wall from a fair correspondent. DEAR THESSA.—Why is it that a girl's brothers never show any inclination to take her out? I have two, but if ever I want an escort anywhere it is worse than useless for me to depend on either of them.

Now that is a nice task to set me, isn't it? However, I'll do the best I can to answer the questions propounded. Firstly, I believe it is not that our brothers do not care to take us out, so much as that they prefer to take out the sister of some other fellow.

Besides how many girls think it worth while to make themselves charming and agreeable to their brothers? So, do, I know, but there are many more who do not.

As regards our services to our brethren I really think they are offset by our wholesale appropriation of their belongings. We steal their ties, their handkerchiefs, their collars, ornamental buttons, studs, nosegays, envelopes and other things, but we are not so scrupulous with a rickler, a disregard of moun and tann that ought to make us blush—and no wonder!

I have even heard of a venturesome damsel who was going on a cycling excursion some one hundred miles, and who carried her brother's Norfolk jacket and front, his cap and several other unconsidered trifles, including half his nasal repair outfit, her own kit being, as usual, nearly empty.

Which was certainly very shocking, but then—how would have liked it yourself? He said afterwards that he could forgive her taking the jacket, (they were nearly of a size, by the way) and the other things, but that his own cap was the last straw—and no wonder!

Long skirts are nice concomitants of long and slender legs, but the early part of the latter, it is to be hoped that Dame Fashion will come to her senses and relegate the recently resuscitated street sweepers to oblivion.

There is nothing more wretched in the whole annals of feminine experience than a tramp through the streets ankle deep in dark brown slush, with the wind blowing violently from all quarters of the compass at once, lifting "on hat's" and "on hair's" and "on nose's" and "on ears'."

There is the time when the feminine host longs for a breeze, a slight breeze, and other appurtenances of rational dress. I don't say that I am an advocate of either, but I certainly do think we ought to try and adjust our costume to our necessities and environments.

A skirt two inches short is most appropriate for a wet and windy day and perhaps that in the reason of the popularity of the bicycle skirt, which is worn by many women who do not ride, because it is so convenient in dirty weather.

The recent remarks that have been made in THE REGISTER regarding the necessity for stricter moral training in the schools have given rise in my mind to the question whether, after all, parents are in a great measure responsible for the misconduct of their offspring. It is all very well to lay the blame upon the school, but, after all, a comparatively small portion of a boy's time is spent at school, the rest of it being given to the home, and such companions as he may select, and, too often, to the street, where he is allowed to wander indiscriminately.

The discipline of school in such cases keeps even the most unruly boys in some kind of subjection, but the same cannot be said of the discipline of the home. Very often the instructor has no control whatever over her children, especially over her sons, who are allowed to answer her in the most impudent and disrespectful terms, such as they would not dare to use towards the teacher at school.

Mothers should always remember that willfulness and disobedience may be rooted out of the mind of their children long before the time comes for them to pass under the influence of the school.

If a boy once gets into the habit of obeying his parents, if it is firmly impressed upon his mind that his mother is law and not to be departed from, the direction of his later life will inevitably tend towards a recognition of the duties of law and order upon his moral being.

Parents must co-operate with the school in the training of their children to become good men and women and honest citizens, and their co-operation should commence with the opening faculties of the child which require training and direction as much as the shoots of the young vine require support if they are to develop as sturdy as nature has intended.

The formation of a boy's club is certainly a great desideratum, but it is desirable improvement in the prospects of our coming generations of young Catholics cannot be brought about until some energetic takes the lead and organizes some kind of committee. One man is not enough, one man of energy, who is not to be daunted by difficulties. Meetings, etc., are all very well, but unless someone can be found to place himself at the head of the movement, they will only result in the most unprofitable anything.

It is no use to look over to the clergy, they have quite enough to do as it is; if they come forward and give encouragement that should be enough. This work wants an energetic man to appear, he will be sure to meet with success. I don't apologize for treating of this subject as it is of interest to all women who have sons for whose welfare they are praying.

The Way War Begins. Tommy was reading the war news. When he finished he ran to his mother and said: "Mamma, how do wars begin?" "Well, suppose the English hauled down the American flag, and that the American—"

"My dear," he said, the English would not—"Mother—"Excuse me, but they would—"Now, dear, who ever heard of such a thing?" "Yes, do you interrupt?" "But you are giving Tommy a wrong idea."

"I am not, sir." "But you are, madam—" "Don't call me madam—" "I'll call you anything I see fit—" "I'm sorry that I ever saw you; you are so—" Tommy, going on—"Oh, I guess I know how wars begin."

Div' on No. 1, Ladies Auxiliary of the A. O. H. held their regular meeting on Thursday evening Oct. 27th, in their hall on Temperance street. The popular president, Mrs. W. Richardson, occupied the chair. On the platform were Brothers J. Marsburn and J. Clarke and Miss K. O'Brien, the County President. Three candidates were initiated and four applicants were received.

They NEVER FAIL.—Mr. S. M. Boughner, Langton, writes: "For about two years I was troubled with inward piles, but by using Paroleo's Pills was completely cured, and although four years have elapsed since then they have not returned." Paroleo's Pills are antibilious and a specific for the cure of Liver and Kidney Complaints, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Constipation, Piles, etc., and will regulate the secretions and remove all bilious matter.

THE SOGGARTH AROON

Am I the slave, they say, Soggarth Aroon? Since you did sing the way, Soggarth Aroon...

Bellini's Model.

Painter had a letter time in the early sixteenth century at Venice than in the late nineteenth in London.

There was a wretched sickly child of five upon the steps of St. Mark's Lion, who waited feebly and persistently, and whose unweary eyes told of brain trouble.

The Madonna in glory, two saints on either side, angels playing below. Bellini was saying as they paced the pathway.

But they could not praise the same way, mio caro, when the Lord was humiliated as when he was exalted, nor when Madonna heard that the sword should pierce her heart as when she was glorified, as in his picture.

They came up to the little girl, and spoke roughly to her, evidently looking in great contempt at the boy who sat in the bowl.

There was a chaos of sounds around them—street cries from the piazza, singing faintly heard from within St. Mark's, the chatter of the gondoliers.

Zanze received her orders, and laid herself out to obey them. First of all, she very tenderly laid the child along the step by her side, then she sat down and took up the guitar.

Friend John, in the fourth part of my picture, feeling for the note on her guitar to tune her music to the sorrow of earth.

Carpaccio painted away at his Presentation, and little Zanze sat at his model, holding her guitar upon her crossed knee.

But at last her sittings with Carpaccio were finished, and John Bellini engaged her for his angel.

Mr. Robert Montague, of Dunville, Oct., writes:—I was troubled with a bad cold for two years and was so badly afflicted that I could not sleep.

He wanted her little face to be wafted in boats, an ecstasy of gratitude, and nothing would make her long anything but happy and smiling.

One day Carpaccio came into his friend's studio and found Bellini less serious than usual.

When she arrived in the afternoon, to her surprise Zino was not forthcoming.

It was rather more than a fortnight before Bellini wanted her again, and then, when she came in as usual, she beheld Master Carpaccio in the room also.

Zanze came obediently and stood by his side.

What wouldst thou do to the most holy Madonna if she were to send back thy Zino to thee well and bright, able to laugh and to speak like other children of his age?

At that moment Madonna Rosalia, who had been waiting outside, came in, and in her hand she held the little boy by the hand—a child who looked frail and delicate still, but could walk and talk and smile again.

Friend John, in the fourth part of my picture, feeling for the note on her guitar to tune her music to the sorrow of earth.

Even so, Giovannino, the blessed angels themselves must needs have suffered in sympathy with the sorrow and hunger which have led to express the rapture of Heaven!

Life Insurance Agent—What did your father and mother die of?

Life Insurance Agent—What did your father and mother die of? Uncle Humster—I don't rightly know.

Little Ethel—Why is it women is always complainin' about servants? Little Dot—Oh, that's just so folks will know they can afford to keep them.

Mr. Street—Oh, I only went into town on a shopping tour. Mr. Street—Did you? Tell me all about it.

An Irishman was charged with drunkenness, and sentenced to seven days' imprisonment.

On the first evening he was heard tapping at the cell door, and when the warden asked (at the cell door): "What's up?" prisoner said, "Let me out!"

"Why, man," said the warden, "you are sentenced to seven days." "Yes, I," said the Irishman, "but the judge said nothing about the nights."

Daughter—Mamma, the chimney sweep on the roof has just kissed his hand to me.

One dollar, please," said the clairvoyant. "Not much," he said: "I'll not pay you a cent."

A ROUGH RIDER'S EARLY ORATORY.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was not always the fluent orator and ready extemporaneous speaker that he is to-day.

At midnight, in his guarded tent, When Greece, her knee in suppliance bent, Should tremble at his power!

Then his memory failed him, and he repeated:—"Greece, her knee!"

Once more he shouted desperately:—"The old professor looked over his spectacles, and encouragingly remarked, 'Grease her knees once more, Theodore, perhaps she'll go on then.'"

SO DIFFERENT, YOU KNOW.

Pieric acid in a state of explosion has long been known as the most terrible of all destroyers.

Always on hand—Mr. Thomas H. Porter, Lower Island, P. Q., writes: "My son, 18 months old, had a cough so bad that nothing gave him relief until a neighbor brought some of Dr. Thomas's Eucrasio Ointment."

Daughter—Mamma, the chimney sweep on the roof has just kissed his hand to me. Mother—How shocking! Run at once into the back-room and wash your face—"Dr. Schalk."

"I don't care anything about that. You told me I was to marry three times, and I don't propose to put a premium on bad news."

With the first of the year...

I will venture a few thoughts and suggestions on one of the great questions which will never be exhausted and one which will exist in the real and ideal until the end of time—that of Christian homes.

What happiness is there then in the home where God is recognized as the Founder, the Stop-Stone and the great link of the happy fraternal chain; this is the reality of the Catholic home and the ideal of all others.

It is the real Presence of our Divine Saviour and the spirit of God in the home, the "altar and the fire," that binds us to our Creator; without God there would be no home, and without the home what would become of the state and society in general.

To tell me, why does the poor and humble workman strive and struggle for months and years if there were nothing more in life than his paltry goods and pleasures? Why does the mother offer her whole life as a living sacrifice for her children's sake?

Latest Phrase of the Spanish Trouble.

According to the cable despatches of Tuesday the lot of Spain is most unhappy. There was no joint session of the Peace Commission in Paris the day before, Spanish Commissioners finding it impossible to get their memoranda ready.

The following letter appears in the Irish World:

My DEAR MR. FORB—On returning from Mayo the other day I found your letter of the 7th inst., with a draft of £500 enclosed, which was made payable to Mr. O'Brien and myself.

Irritated at England. St. Petersburg, Nov. 7.—The St. Petersburg newspapers show great irritation at England over the settlement of the Fashoda affair, and agree in the declaration that her conduct will arouse the powers assembled in the Suez Canal to open discussion of the best means of preventing the final establishment of England in Egypt.

William O'Brien and myself have taken note of your instructions with reference to possible cases of suffering among those of our people who have had experience of the distress in the Spring and Summer of the year.

That those of the Irish World readers who came to the help of the victims of law-made distress so promptly and generously at your call will inspire your equally prompt and patriotic action, in devoting the balance of the Famine Fund to the fight we are making against the evils which have beset the poverty of those western regions, goes without saying.

You may, therefore, rely upon it that the money which has been devoted to the work of the United Irish League will be expended in the best possible labor of relief, in trying to obtain a permanent remedy for the evil which makes periodic appeals for succor against famine a humiliation.

You will have read all about the recent meeting in Mayo and of the action of Dublin Castle long before this letter reaches New York. There is no necessity, therefore, of going into particulars of these matters. The futile attempt to enforce coercion has had an epidemic effect upon the country.

Better than this however, is the blessing of the union which the movement of the League is exercising upon the Nationalist mind of the country. The cry for union is ringing throughout Ireland, and it only requires a little more of England's recognition of the fact that it is not a matter of the kind we most need, with the result that the Queen's proclamations of meetings are worth the work of a dozen League organizers.
