Hon. C. H. LaBillois was the next speaker and said that he wish ed to be brief, to give time to Mr. Copp, who would be expounding his platform. He paid a high compliment to Mr. James Reid for his work towards Campbellton and the County. He said that in thirty years he had made mistakes, but with it all could say that he always stood on the side of progress. He refuted the charges made by the Hon. Mr. La-Billois claimed that in every department the government had been throwing away their chances of doing good, and the people of the Province now desire a change.

More than 79 of these undergraduates could remember nothing about the fall of Jericho, 37 knew nothing of Cain, 40 knew nothing of Daniel, and 65, 102, and 105 falled to answer questions about Saul, Gideon, and Timothy respective. A remarkable case of lethargy is seported from one of the towns in So Campbellton, where he has practised his profession with great success. Mr McKenzie is well versed in political affairs and as a platform speaker has few if any superiors in the province. He will prove a valuable acquisition to the legislature of New Brunswick and having the support of the young men of the county will make a good showing at the polls. It is admitted that the Hon. C. ANNUAL TRAINING

The annual training at Camp Sussex will be held starting on June 25th, and will be all in ne camp, all sections of the active militia of the province, including infantry, cavalry, artillery and other corps attending the one camp. At one time it was thought that the camp would be held in two sections, along the lines of last year's camp but as that method of training did not prove altogether successful, considerable protest was made against a repetition of two camps. There will therefore be only one camp, at which the infantry will attend for twelve days and the gavalry for 16.

FINELULY TO PAPERS.

The German Emperor and His Advisers Beginning to Trust Reporters

The social position of the foreign newspaper correspondent in Berlin is slowly improving and, while a comparatively few years ago he, as well as his native colleague, the German touranlist, was rather a social outcast, he is now received with open arms almost everywhere, though he is still far from being considered entitled to be admitted to court functions. At the same time it is the Kaiser himself, who has given the signal to relitive the newspaper correspondent of the social stigma, by treating the journalists with increasing friendliness. The fact is that the Kaiser as well as the upper classes have begun to realize the enormous power of the press for good or evil, and the result is that statesmen fird it a better plan to initiate responsible journalists into their plans, trusting them to keep secret what must be kept secret, when asked to do so, than to allow them to let their imagination run wild with nothing but unreliable rumors to work on.

Never has the change been more evident than at the recent reception of the Association of Foreign Newspaper Correspondents at the Hotel Esplanade, which was a social event of the first magnitudes. From the very day when the invitations were sent out, the social committee was besieged by prominent people clamoring for invitations, and on the day itself every high German state official from the Imperial Chancellor down, as well as practically the whole corps diplomatique, accompanied by their laddes, were present.
