$400,000 WORTH SEIZED LIQUOR

Cargo Said to Have Come from Gaspe Seized in St. Lawrence

Montreal, Nov. 25.—The captain of the large "A. Tremblay," which is said to have carried over $400,000 worth of liquor aboard in under arrest.

The local customs officials confirmed the report of the seizure this afternoon.

The cargo put into Victoria Basin here at noon.

Quebec, Nov. 25.—Liquor Commission inspectors, Lafont, Ouellet and Mouton, raided a large and sealed liquor warehouse at over $400,000 at St. Sulpice, L'Assomption county today.

This is the most important seizure ever made by Provincial or Federal revenue men. There was no resistance by the parties in charge of the stock.

The point from which the large cargo was sent, which is said to be known by the commission, was the point of destination would be divulged at the commission's office this morning.

Officers who performed the seizure state that there were 20,000 gallons of alcohol and 2,700 cases of Scotch on the barge.

Last year there has been great activity reported on the border in this province in the counties of Temiscouing and Montmagny. The liquor is said to be passing into the border from these two counties of the province was traced as coming from St. Pierre, Quebec, the French Republic.

To Canada. From that point, where liquor is being taken from the other side the liquor was placed on barges and landed at smaller ports in the lower St. Lawrence.

Last year a warrant was received by the Quebec Liquor Commission that a mysterious barge had left the coast of Gaspe and there was reason to believe that in addition to an alleged cargo of fish she carried a precious cargo of liquor.

Barges were watched as they passed this port and finally yesterday one answered in description. However, before the officers could get to her the barge had left for the river. Early this morning she was traced to St. Sulpice on the north shore about 20 miles from Montreal.

An officer was put in charge and the barge "A. Tremblay," owned by the A. Tremblay, Navigation Company, was proceeded to Montreal with the liquor which will be placed in the commission warehouses.

RELIC OF LAST BATTLE FOUND

Canon Ball Supposed to Have Been Fired in River Battle Unearthed

Recently Mr. G.E. Asker who resides at the foot of Water Street found a relic of the battle of 1837.

It is supposed this was fired during the battle between the French and British which was fought in the basin off Athol House, and Mission Point and lower down river. It will be remembered that a number of French vessels took refuge here after the fall of Quebec, but were captured or destroyed by an English fleet.

This old relic of destruction was found buried beneath a large log which, until within late years, has also been buried, but which was brought to light by the constant washing of the tide against the bank.

In Riverside Park, which almost adjoins Mr. Asker's property are now placed two of the old cannon, which were used in that battle, and were recaptured some years ago from the wreck of one of the vessels.

It is also in this park that the Dominion Government will erect a monument to mark the location of the last battle.

WINDSOR AFTER THE BIG FIRE

New Buildings Are Going Up, Others Will Start as Soon as Possible

Windsor, Nov. 25.—The business men here were amazed out in the fire on Sunday morning Nov. 9, are taking courage and beginning to build up their offices and warehouses.

The Hantz Wholesale Store, which was one of the largest stores in the city, has been razed to the ground.

The building was a large warehouse in the rear of the brick building and has been given a contract to Mr. Balson, of Victoria, who expects to have the building ready for storage in 10 days.

The structure will be 85 by 20 feet, of wood frame with metal covering and as fireproof as possible.

The big brick warehouse was one of the best of its kind in the city and its loss is a great blow to the business community.

The front wall of pressed brick will be used but the sides will be removed and a new and more fire-proof building with modern equipment will, when finished, be an ornament to the town.

This structure will be 50 by 40 feet. It will be a store of tools and equipment for the building.

HYDRO PROMISED IN TWO WEEKS

Lower St. Lawrence Power Company Have Big Crews at Work

The Lower St. Lawrence Power Co. have been the cause of delay in providing hydro for Campbellton, but they are now hustling the work and it is expected that necessary equipment along the line will be coupled up and power supplied in about two weeks time.

Large crews of men are working upon the line above Matapedia, and as the weather has been favorable, good progress is being made.

While the Lower St. Lawrence Power Co. has been delayed, our own electric light department has been held up by lack of equipment from Westinghouse Co., but the switchboard is here now and only a few small parts are required to complete the whole job. If these arrive we will be ready for current within a week.

In the meantime the town is in semi-darkness especially on Saturday evenings, when the load is heaviest and it is hoped that the plant will be able to "carry on" until current is delivered.

WINDING UP ONE OF FRASER COMPANIES

Liquidators Appointed for Subsidiary Which Held Nova Scotia Lands

Fredericton, Nov. 24, Harry G. Hobbs, of Fredericton and William Matheson, of Edmundston, were appointed as permanent liquidators of the Fraser Pulp & Lumber Company this morning as the result of an application made before Chief Justice Barry in chambers for the winding-up of the company. The liquidators are required to enter into bonds for $20,000.

The Fraser Pulp and Lumber Company was organized some years ago when the Fraser bought Nova Scotia holdings which were recently sold to Hollingsworth and Whittey of Boston, Mass., for over two million dollars.

Following the disposal of these holdings it was desired to surrender the charter of the company and in order to do so winding-up proceedings were instituted.

The winding-up of this company does not affect the Fraser Companies, Limited.

A Brief Account of our Pleasant Experiences with The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Party on our Trip abroad
By H. E. ANSLOW

We arrived in London on a beautiful summer evening and during our entire stay the weather was exceptionally fine, but cool. When it was time to leave London, on Wednesday, July 9th, the flood gates were opened and London wept. Wept just as thoroughly as any country can, and the rain was real wet, but we in our closed motor busses minded it not at all.

Fortunately it cleared up before noon, and our tour through the Shropshire country was made more enjoyable by the rain which freshened up things, and made the landscape very 8:45—Depart from Exeter.

5:35—Arrive at Bath.

It will be seen by this program that our party had four busy days, but ones long to be remembered.

At Torquay, which is a beach resort city that can hardly sink, like some of the south coast of England, into the sea, we again saw the Atlantic.

The fleet arrived in the harbor Friday morning and as it sailed in in two lines it certainly made an impressive spectacle. There were eighty-six capital ships in the line, with about a hundred other steamers, including submarines, hospital and supply ships, drifters and tenders. To man this armada the various docks were lively all afternoon and evening as men were coming and going all the time. The little city of Torquay was certainly a jolly place that Friday evening, and our party enjoyed every minute of it.

Our trip to Dartmouth and thence up the river Dart was a very picturesque one. In char-a-bancs we motored to Dartmouth by way of the beautiful hills of Devonshire, and up the river by steamer, taking our char-a-bancs at Totnes, and thence back to Torquay, where we had lunch with the Mayor and Corporation.

During lunch a telegram was read from the Admiral of the Fleet inviting us on board the flagship "The Revenge" at four o'clock. Tenders were at the dock and took our party out, where we were shown the mysterious of a first class warship, from the oil fed fires under the boilers, to the control towers.

Saturday morning we again motored, this time to Exeter. On our drive we passed a part of the Dartmoor, and saw our first heather. At Exeter we were entertained at lunch. In addressing us Sir James Owen, J.P. said,

"We newspaper men of the South-West of England," he proceeded, "are particularly glad to have you with us, not only because we felt that you are of the same breed and blood as ourselves, but because we, as journalists, realizing the important part which journalists in Canada, as elsewhere play in the development of policies, wish to ensure that you should take away from Devonshire and that of England a proper appreciation of this old country. It is so easy to get wrong ideas. You may fancy that certain policies which are undertaken, certain lines are followed in government are the result either of stupidity or of prejudice, or of selfishness. Well, we are hoping that as you come in contact with us in the West and away in Wales, and in the Midlands, and in the North, and in Scotland, you will realize that the people you come in contact with are merely samples of the British people—that we are ordinary people, with the ordinary errors, but we hope with the ordinary instincts and the ordinary gentleness of the British race."

He then said, "That we are British men, you will realize."

The Empire—we hope that when endeavoring to mould the policy of the communities in which you live, you will bear in mind the friendships you have made here, and the people you have met here, and will always put into any situation which may arise."

In reply to the toast and to crown our visit with further interest the Lord Mayor's welcome to our party was acknowledged in-fellowship terms by Mr. R. M. Green of the Exeter Advocate, and Mr. J. M. Southcott of Exeter Times.

Exeter prides itself on always being

BRIDGES CARRIED AWAY IN QUEBEC

People in Bale St. Paul District Reported to Be Fleeing in Canoes To-Day.

Quebec Nov. 24.—With four bridges carried away by floods, a large area of land inundated and people fleeing in canoes in the Bale St. Paul district the flood situation there according to advices received here is "bad."

One of the bridges carried away is at Bale St. Paul which suffered so extensively during the course of the floods last month while the other bridges swept away were at St. Urbain a nearby parish. The four of them were temporary constructions, erected to replace those carried away last month.

The torrential rains of the last two days have caused the river to rise several feet and a large piece of land situated in the rear of the residence occupied by Mr. Bolly, merchant, of Bale St. Paul, has been carried away by the waters, which are threatening to undermine several other buildings.

People are making their escape in canoes, staid on horseback and in any other manner that they possibly can. Men, women and children could be seen late last night picking their way by lantern light to safety, and fear is entertained that serious property damage will be done before the river recedes to its normal bounds, while it is even possible that there may be loss of life. A further rise in the already swollen waters of the Riviere Du Gouffre is expected.

The rain has fallen unceasingly for many hours. No reports have been received of any damage elsewhere, although the rains have been general throughout the province.

faithful to the Crown. It also boasts with equal pride that it has been duly recognized by the Kings and Queens of England, twenty of them having visited there during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, on the occasion of her visit gave the proud device "semper fidelis," "ever faithful" which is today borne by our home militia, the Simcoe Foresters. But we cannot go on through the history possessed by "this city which has set on the hill as a dwelling place for men, with an unbroken life of more than sixteen hundred years—the city by the side of which most of the capitals are relics of yesterday's time, that can hardly sink, like some of the common market towns." We must go on and as said await a return visit.

We now go to the kind friends who had done so much to make our visit so enjoyable and informing.

We now go to Bath, a historic city of two hours on a fast train, one of the many that gives service in this populous section of England brings us into Bath.

HON. Wm. CURRIE ISSUES CHALLENGE

Opposition Candidates Are Called For Utterances in Westmorland By Election

In the Westmorland by-election the opposition candidates in desperation to find material for addresses have been using material which again and again has been proven to be false. They have been rehearsing, in a way to suit their purposes, the Friel report or the Currie Stampage charges, and Hon. Wm. Currie has issued a challenge which they will hardly rush to take up.

The following letter appeared in Saturday's Moncton Transcript:—The Editor of The Transcript:—Sir:—In an issue of the Moncton Times, dated Nov. 7, I read a report of a meeting held in your city in the interest of Mr. Friel, the candidates for the opposition, in which my name was quite frequently mentioned by Dr. O. B. Price, who I believe, was a member of the Legislature during the Conservative regime when there was such a carnival of graft that had it not been for the timely intervention of the Hon. J. A. Dugal, they would have looted the province, body and bones. This is the man who is now worrying about "Crown Land scandals" of the past.

To quote the words used by Mr. Price, referring to Commissioner Friel, "who was not hild bound, and who found against Mr. Currie of Restigouche, who was charged with deception over Crown Land monies." Mr. Price is either ignorant of the facts or else he is knowingly and willingly making a false statement to injure his fellow-man. If Mr. Price will take the trouble to look at the Friel report, page 19, the last paragraph on the page, he will see the findings of Mr. Friel. I will quote the exact words: "It is not so that Mr. Currie caused stampage to be paid by the said Continental Lumber Company upon the said reduced amount well knowing that it was not the full and proper amount of stampage thereby defrauded the province of a portion of its revenue." Also the last line of the first paragraph on page 20: "Mr. Currie was not responsible for any reduction."

Then referring to Mr. Baxter on page 20 last part of the third paragraph, he says: "I may be the only one who allowed his personal antipathy to Mr. Currie, especially as Speaker, shade his good judgment," and says, "I would have liked to see him throw Murchie and his affidavit overboard before we got to the end of the enquiry."

Then again, the last paragraph on page 20: "I find therefore that the charges were unfounded, and that they are absolutely disproved, and that Honourable Mr. Currie is innocent of the findings that Murchie swore against him."

In the same meeting, A. J. Doucett from Kent County, is evidently trying to redeem the opposition, party, and to be the "Moose" that will lead them into the promised land. He takes up the refrain, and says: "The Province did lose on stampage, and one of the Liberal members, Mr. Currie, of Campbellton, had not repaid the pro-HON. WM. CURRIE NO 2 vince." This he challenged the Premier to controvert. As I do not care to impose myself upon the public, or attract public notice through the medium of the press, still there are times when a man must come out of his shell, and protect his good name for the sake of those who come after, and for that reason I am going to issue a challenge to Mr. Price and Mr. Doucett.

Owing to the fact that our lumber drives have been either partially or wholly hung each year for the last six years, we have never been able to get a proper measurement of our logs until this year. When we completed our total cut cleaned up all the tributaries of our river we now know just why merchants and lumber we have cut during those six years since the winter of 1916-1917, and if Mr. Price and Mr. Doucett will get their candidate, who is a lawyer, to start investigation, (the Government has an account of all the monies. The Continental Lumber Co., Ltd., paid for stampage since 1917, and it is quite easy to trace up all the lumber that went through our mill), if they can find that there is one foot of merchantable lumber that went through our mill that we did not pay the Government for in full, we will pay one thousand dollars toward Mr. Reilly's campaign expenses. And further if they appoint such a committee of investigation, we will appoint a first class man to go with them, and give them every assistance, and all the information possible, and if they don't find that we have paid the New Brunswick Government since and including the years 1916-1917, from two to five thousand dollars more for stampage than we cut in merchantable lumber from the Crown Lands, then we will also pay one thousand dollars towards Mr. Reilly's campaign expenses.

It is your move, or forever hold your peace.

Yours Truly,
WM. CURRIE.

Campbellton, Nov. 10, 1924.

Mr. Reillyman, I am sorry to hear of your Thanksgiving with his parents.

CANADIAN PRESS

At Moncton on Monday Sir Henry Thornton in his address had the following to say about Canadian newspapers:

"I should like to take advantage of this opportunity," said Sir Henry, "to say something I have wanted to say for a long time, and that is to offer my most heartfelt thanks to the press of Canada for the kindly way they have received me personally and officially. At the same time I want to thank them for their splendid, honest and unprejudiced support and, from time to time, their valuable constructive criticism."

"What I have seen of the newspapers of Canada that they caused me to become convinced that they represent a higher standard of patriotism, public service and honesty than exists in any country I have been in. There is no paper in the whole of the Dominion of Canada whose editorial columns can be subsidized. If our press is honest and strict and expresses their opinions freely. We have gone a very long way in awakening a National consciousness and in solving many of our National problems."

LOS' IN WOODS

A young lady of town and a visiting gentleman motored to Dalhousie Junction on Saturday and then entered the woods to look for deer. The day was dark and foggy so they soon became lost. At dark they built a fire and spent a miserable night in the rain. At daylight they managed to find a road and a house about six miles from where they entered the woods. Search parties were out early and the couple brought back to town.

WHITE SWANS VISIT SANCTUARY

Flock of Two Hundred Spend Week End at Jack Miners Home.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 24—Jack Miner's bird sanctuary at Kingsville was the calling place during the week-end of a flock of about 200 wild native white swans, on their way south for the winter. The manoeuvres of these birds on Lake Erie, near the Miner farm, were witnessed by many interested bird lovers. White swans, which in their wild state, were almost extinct in Canada a few years ago, regularly make the sanctuary a port of call on their way north in the spring, but seldom stop on their way down. It is thought that the unusually mild weather, combined with the well-known "table board" at Miner's place, induced this detachment to stop for a day or two on an autumnal surprise visit.

Five Defended Cases Are Now Expected to Be Taken Up Next Week.

Fredericton, Nov. 26—Acting on instructions received from Mr. Justice Crockett who is at present engaged at the St. John Circuit Court, H. G. Fenety, Registrar of the Divorce Court, further adjourned the November session until December 2nd.

Matapedia

Our correspondent must have resigned for according to careful observation, I find that he is off duty since quite awhile and during this time readers of the Graphic who are interested in Matapedia are apt to conclude that it has been wiped off the map.

With a fall of snow of about five inches and bright prospects for another we will soon have ideal roads for "Sleigh riding in the Moonlight." The many friends of Mrs. James Farrell are pleased to hear that she is speedily recovering. We are sorry to note that Mrs. J. Pineault of this place is now a patient at Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Many other cases of illness prevail in Matapedia, just at present several are suffering from severe colds.

The bride becomingly attired in a travelling suit of Navy Blue Poiret Twill, with brown fox neckpiece, and black picture hat, carried an arm bouquet of pink and white carnations and maiden hair fern.

On Saturday last a sumptuous supper was served at the home of Mrs. J. Doiron, in honor of Mr. Alex Dupuis, Inspector of Roads who left the same night for Quebec.

Mr. O. Irving and F. McDonald paid a flying trip to Matapedia Monday night.

Miss Molly Murray, of town was the guest of Miss Opal Irving recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Danis Cyr are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a bouncing baby boy.

Mrs. Alex Nellis of Maria is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alex Gallant.

NEW ORGANIZATION

On Thursday afternoon last a meeting of those interested was held at the home of Mrs. W.R. Millican for the purpose of organizing an Alumni in connection with the Soldiers Memorial Hospital. The matter was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided that such an organization be formed. The following were then elected: Hon. President Mrs. W.R. Millican, 1st. Vice Pres. Mrs. Jack Barberie, 2nd Vice Pres. Mrs. J.O.B. Stevens, Sec.-Treas. Mrs. J.T. Reid. It was decided that the business meeting would be held in the classroom of the S.M.H. on the 3rd Friday of every month. The matter of bye-laws was left over for consideration at the January meeting.

Convent Pupils Have Successful Day On Saturday Last

The good sisters of the Sacred Heart Convent of Dalhousie, having expressed the desire to purchase a new altar, to correspond with the rest of the convent chapel, it was decided to hold a little bazaar on one Saturday afternoon and in the evening have a little concert. Last Saturday, Nov. 22nd, was therefore a Red Letter day for the pupils of the convent, and their parents and friends in the afternoon, the pupils and former pupils, and many of the town ladies patronized the bazaar. The large convent hall was nicely decorated for the occasion, and about one hundred dollars was taken in by the busy committee in charge.

In the evening, at 7:30 o'clock sharp, when the curfew rose, every seat in the spacious hall was occupied. The male pupils were seated in the gallery. The stage prettily

Mr. and Mrs. Poly Nadeau, of Nipigon, Ontario, are in town, the guests of Mr. Nadeau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Nadeau, of the Bay View House. Mrs. Nadeau, who was born in the West, is delighted with Dalhousie, and it is probable that the newly married couple will locate in New Brunswick.

LOCAL NEWS

MAY MAKE CHANGE

A letter dated Nov. 17th, and addressed to Hon. Charles Macell, M. P. at Ottawa, from Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, states that he has given instructions to the Engineering Branch of his Department, to look into the matter of the proposed dip at the Miguash West Wharf, to facilitate the automobile traffic, between Dalhousie and Gaspe, as recently reported by Mr. LaBilloy, acting as the Vice-President of the New Brunswick Tourist & Resources Association, for the Co. of Restigouche.

SUCCESSFUL SUPPER

The supper that was given on Thursday evening in the Rink at Dalhousie, under the auspices of the members of the C. W. M. U. the object being to aid the poor of the shire, during the coming winter, was a grand success. The amount realized was near $125. The ladies in charge appreciate the good will and generosity of those who encouraged the affair. The Rink is certainly an ideal spot for such affairs, and Mr. Trudelle's courtesy is much appreciated.

SEVERE GALE
SWEEPS DALHOUSIE

Trees and Signs Blown Down—Citizens Have a Close Call

The easterly gale of Sunday night was very severe in Dalhousie. In addition to heavy sign boards that were blown off some of our large stores, large trees that were planted over a half century ago could not stand the force of the gale Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose LeBlanc, who were returning home from a neighbour's house a little after 9 o'clock in the evening, when a narrow escape from injury, when a monster tree fell near them, as they were arriving home. Your correspondent, who was asked to view the situation, detected a further danger if other trees were not cut down. Two large trees, and old at that, are leaning over a small house, in which several people live. The inmates are living in dread, especially when strong wind prevails. Why should the owners of town lots, on which trees were planted many many years ago, and which show rot at the bottom, allow them to be a menace to quiet families of the place? The two or three large trees that have fallen during recent months, are a warning to the public, and steps should be taken to prevent accidents and possibly death.

There was a fire alarm early on Monday morning. The call came from the combined house and store of Mrs. L. P. LaVoie, on Howard St. Mayor Montgomery, Mr. Gallop and others were soon on the spot, and discovered that the place was full of smoke. It was impossible to locate any fire. No danger done.

CONTRACT LET

The contract for the renovating of the shiretown Public Building, the Post Office & Custom House, which also contains the residence of the caretaker, was completed on Saturday, by the firm of J. & D. LABILLOIS TO HOLD MEETINGS

Will Address Gatherings at Balmoral, Colborne and Durham Shortly.

In view of the interest that is being taken in political circles since the recent Convention, the newspaper having created a false impression as to motives of the shiretown aspirant, to be a candidate in the coming general provincial election in New Brunswick, Mr. LaBilloy was interviewed by your correspondent, and said that it was his intention in the near future, to fully explain his position at public meetings in the county. The first meeting would be held in the centre of Restigouche, as it was from the people of Balmoral, Colborne and Dalhousie that he had received the first call by a largely signed petition of electors, to be a candidate at the general provincial election in New Brunswick, which took place during the month of June 1922. This first step had resulted in his having had thirty years of a happy public life. In the evening of his life it would be a great pleasure for him, to again meet his old friends of many battles, and the descendants of the men, who had contributed unselfishly towards his successful public career.

ONTARIO MUST HOLD THE LINE
By Blanche Read Johnston, Hon. Sec.
World's W. C. T. U.

One might quote reasons sufficient to occupy columns in the public press as to why the Ontario Temperance Act should be maintained upon our Provincial Statute books until it is possible to enact a federal measure that will give Canada nation-wide Prohibition laws. Only two or three reasons are here briefly outlined.

National Responsibility
Our politicians are ever on the alert to guard against any possibility of Canada falling to receive the recognition of nationhood status. Canada must ever be considered and treated in diplomatic circles as "A nation in the commonwealth of nations," as our Prince of Wales so cleverly expressed it.

While it is, of course, quite legitimate to show all honor to one's own country, it may be overlooked that there is one characteristic that sheds the truest glory upon any country. It is, "Righteousness exalteth a nation." Eulogisms have been poured out in unstinted measure to this Dominion for the gallant sacrifice of her sons in the Great War. There is a national responsibility that is linked very closely with a nation's greatness. It has peculiar application in this crisis hour of Ontario's history. The Temperance people, who are seeking the highest interests internationally, have focused attention upon our land. Many leaders from other countries write one, "We are watching with intense interest and anxiety Canada's attitude towards Prohibition. We are looking to Canada for leadership." "A new land, without the handicap of traditions and customs such as hinder forward movements in older lands."

While travelling in England and Scotland some time ago, the writer often heard the inquiry, "Tell us about Canada. We are interested in Canada's decision about the drink trade. Of course, the United States is quite all right, you know, but you, Canada are over it, and we are looking to you for leadership. If you tolerate Prohibition, we shall consider its adoption. You have tremendous influence with us." Now, Ontario's decision in the October campaign is one that will greatly influence other parts of the world who are bravely struggling through the problems and usage of the ages to free themselves from the thralldom of this curse. The reason for striving to accomplish this in other lands are just as those actuating the leadership of this fair land. Of course, it is utter nonsense to try to minimize the quality of that leadership by stigmatising it as fanatical, extremist and narrow-minded. Every citizen of honest purpose is aware that one has only to consider the motives of the advocates of a freer and more general traffic in strong drink to recognize the fact that the great majority are absolutely controlled by love of gain, greed, and by selfishness at all unbending appetite is selfish, caring not for the liberty of others.

Individual Responsibility.
It is the proud boast of education and culture that Canada is a children's earthly paradise. Probably no other country offers greater facilities for the health, happiness and development of childhood and youth than this land of wonderful spaces and golden open-doors. There are doubtless many contributing reasons, but one great factor in developing this condition has been the comparative freedom from drinking habits in recent years, owing to the measure of restriction the prevailing laws have made possible. A Christian leader said: "The tear of a little child is a blood spot upon the earth." The plea which I beg to urge with all the vehemence of a knowledge of the bitter suffering of childhood, through this 'hydra-headed' monster, as witnessed in one's work in the homes of the people, prison cells, police courts, and among the victims of inebriety is: Oh, may we keep a white, clean path in this splendid Ontario for the feet of the little ones who are following in the future days. For the sake of beautiful childhood and sturdy boyhood, let us wake up to the realization of what the consequences of the free traffic in this evil would be. The depths of anguish it has caused have never been sounded; the hearts it has broken have never been counted; the homes it has wrecked have never been numbered; the lives it has blighted are beyond computation. It has poisoned the sacred springs of the home life. Strong drink has driven from families the color from the lips, the strength from the parent's arm; the love from his breast; it has brutalized the baby's tender form; smothered the hopes of its tiny feet. Strong drink has filled the prisons, asylums, the poor-houses and hospitals with its victims.

Strong drink! There is no crime of which it has not been guilty; no cruelty of which it has been the cause; no wickedness which it has not practised; no dishonor of which it is not capable; no wreck and ruin to which it has not led.

Ontario must hold the line for her own sake and the world's. "God give us men! A time like this demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and courage."

One might write of economic consequences, of the ruin wrought by the liquor traffic, of the loss of the savings bank, of the loss of the savings bank, of the loss of the savings bank.

Make The Dean Family Serve You

Beans are always staple whether green, canned or dried, and they lend themselves to many excellent dishes concocted in homey fashion. The seasonings are regulated usually with regard to family taste and preference.

DRIED BEAN SOUP
Take one cupful of small navy beans and soak them over night. In the morning put them on to boil in three pints of water, add a sliced onion, a few stalks of celery cut fine, a few sprays of parsley, a half-pint of garlic, a half teaspoonful of curry powder, and a minced pepper. Boil gently until the beans are soft, then add a teaspoonful of salt, a half-teaspoonful of pepper, a half-teaspoonful of sugar and a half-teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. Strain through a pure sieve, return to the fire and reheat. Have ready a cupful of hot cream, thicken the soup with white roux, stirring until smooth, then add the hot cream and serve. Toasted croutons are nice with the soup.

BAKED DRIED LIMA BEANS
Soak a pint of dried lima beans over night and in the morning cover them with fresh water and boil until tender. Butter a deep pudding dish well, drain the beans and put a layer in the bottom of the dish, dust with salt and pepper and dot with little lumps of butter, sprinkle with a tablespoonful each of dry crumbs and chopped pine nuts. Continue until all the beans are used making the last layer of seasoning and crumbs, dot with butter, and a half-cupful of clove and all the same of cream, dust with little grated cheese and bake in a slow oven about one hour, taking care not to let them get too dry.

DRIED LIME BEAN SALAD

This is a favorite Syrian salad. Soak the beans, three quarters of a pint of them, over night, and in the morning boil them until very tender, then drain. Mash the beans through a fine sieve and add to the pulp a large lump of butter, pepper, salt, juice of an onion, a tablespoonful of sugar, and a quarter cupful of heavy cream. Put into individual moulds and set to cool. Unmould on lettuce leaves and garnish with good heavy French dressing or Russian dressing.

SWEET PICKLED STRING BEANS

This is a pickle for immediate use. Wash and string four quarts of string beans put them in half, then boil until tender and drain thoroughly. Put a quart of vinegar into the preserve kettle with a pound of brown sugar, a thinly sliced lemon, with pipe removed two good sized pieces of green ginger root washed and thinly sliced, a level tablespoonful of whole cloves and a tablespoonful of broken cinnamon sticks, a little piece of mace and a tablespoonful of allspice. Boil gently, skin, and in seven minutes from the time it starts boiling add the beans. Cook gently until the syrup thickens to the right consistency, then turn into a crock to cool. Let stand two or three days for the seasoning to take effect, then the pickle is ready for use.

WAX BEAN FRITTERS

Wash, string and break into small pieces a pint of wax beans. Put the beans on to boil and when tender drain and chop them fine. Make a fritter batter of a level cupful of flour two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking sugar, a beaten egg, a quarter cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of melted butter and a saltspoonful of salt. Beat well and if it seems too thick after adding the chopped beans, add a very little more milk or cream. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry delicate brown. Serve the fritters in a napkin with hot melted butter, to which a few green french onions may be added. Half the quantity of sugar may be used if the family is not fond of sweet things.

MOTOR VEHICLE

REVENUE LARGER
The motor vehicle fees for the Province of New Brunswick collected in 1923 up to October 31st, were $374,228.85, of which $46,196.77 was for the patrol fund. This year, up to the same date, the collections amounted to $452,489.32, or nearly sixty thousand more than the estimate. The new license plates, which will be necessary after December 31, of this year, are on hand at the provincial capital and will be black embossed letters on a green background. The plates of next year will have a dash in them, probably separating the thousands and the hundreds.

the termination of the war a great awakening of religion must come to this country and the world. There are certain inflexible immutable laws governing the operation of the Holy Spirit upon human lives. One of these is the necessity for the eliminating of sin: "When ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you, yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear; your hands are full of blood. Wash you make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil."

Who to him that buildeth a town with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity? Woe unto him that saith: "I am righteous, I have not sinned." He shall be like the chaff which the wind scattereth, like the smoke which the wind driveth away, like the chaff which the wind scattereth, like the smoke which the wind driveth away.

The Great Impersonation

A stirring story of love and adventure.
By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM
One of the famous author's best.
Published by arrangement with The British & Colonial Press Limited.

"You felt instinctively were different, but there are many men of our race who are willing enough to sacrifice a woman without the slightest scruple, either for their passions or their policy. I find Lady Dominey charming."
"She will never lack a protector in me," Dominey declared.
There were more farewells and, soon after, the little procession of cars drove off. Rosamund herself was on the terrace, bidding all her guests farewell. She clung to Dominey's arm when at last they turned back into the empty hall.
"What dear people they were Everard!" she exclaimed. "I only wish that I had more of them. The Duchess was perfectly charming to me, and I never knew any one with such delightful manners as Prince Terloff. Are you going to miss them very much, dear?"
"Not a bit," he answered. "I think I shall take a gun now and stroll down the meadows and across the rough ground. Will you come with me, or will you put on one of your pretty gowns and entertain me downstairs at luncheon? It is a very long time since we had a meal alone together."

She shook her head a little sadly. "We never have had," she answered. "You know that, Everard, and alas! I know it. But we are going on pretending, aren't we?"
He raised her fingers to his lips and kissed them.
"You shall pretend all that you like, dear Rosamund," he promised, "and I will be the shadow of your desires. No!—No tears!" he added quickly, as he turned away. "Remember there is nothing but happiness for you now. Whoever I am or am not, that is my one aim in life."
She clutched at his hand passionately, and suddenly, as though finding it insufficient, twined her arms around his neck and kissed him.
"Let me come with you," she begged. "I can't bear to let you go. I'll be very quiet. Will you wait for me?"
"Of course," he answered.

He stroled down towards the gun room, stood by the fire for a moment, and then wandered out into the courtyard, where Middleton and a couple of butlers were waiting for him with the dogs. He had scarcely taken a step towards them, however, when he stopped short. To his amazement Seaman was there, standing a little on one side, with his eyes fixed upon the windows of the servants' quarters.

"Hullo, my friend!" he exclaimed. "Why, I thought you went by early train from Thursford Station?"
"Missed it by two minutes," Seaman admitted.

"Well, then, cheer up," Dominey enjoined. "Take a little walk with us, and we will see whether Parkins cannot find us a bottle of that old Burgundy for lunch. How does that sound, eh?"
"If you will excuse me from taking the walk," Seaman begged "I would like to remain here until your return."

"You are more likely to do harm," Dominey reminded him, "and set the servants talking, if you show too much interest in this man's disappearance."

"I shall be careful," Seaman promised, "but there are certain things which I cannot help. I work always from instinct, and my instinct is never wrong. I will ask no more questions of your servants, but I know that there is something mysterious about the sudden departure of Johann Wolff."
Dominey and Rosamund returned about one o'clock to find only a note from Seaman, which the former tore open as his companion stood warning her to be in front of the fire. There were only a few lines:
"I am following an idea. It takes me to London. Let us meet there within a few days."
"Has he really gone?" Rosamund asked.

"Back to London." "Then we shall lunch a day after," Dominey rejoined. "I have my wish!"
There was a sudden glow in Dominey's face, a glow which was instantly suppressed.

"Shall I ever have mine?" he asked with a queer little break in his voice. Terloff and Dominey, one morning about six months later, lounged underneath a great content. "What I have, having led drinks after a round of golf. Several millions of perspiring Englishmen were at the same moment studying with dazed wonder the headlines in the midday papers."

"I suppose," the Ambassador remarked, as he leaned back in his chair with an air of flaxy content, "that I am being accused of fiddling while Rome burns."

"Every one has certainly not your opinion," Dominey rejoined calmly.

"There is no one else who knows quite so much," Terloff rejoined.

Dominey sipped his drink for a moment or two in silence.

"Have you the latest news of the Russian mobilisation?" he asked.

"They had some startling figures in the city this morning."

The Prince waved his hand.

"My faith is not founded on these extraneous incidents," he replied. "If Russia mobilises, it is for defence. No nation in the world would dream of attacking Germany, nor has Germany the slightest intention of imperilling her rooming supremacy amongst the nations by such crude methods as military enterprise. Service must be furnished, naturally but to that, in principle, every nation in Europe is agreed. We shall not permit Austria to overstep the mark."

"You are at least consistent, Prince Dominey remarked."

"That is because I have been taken behind the scenes," he said. "I have been shown, as is the privilege of ambassadors, the mind of our rulers. You, my friend," he went on, "spend your youth amongst the military faction. You think that you are the most important people in Germany. Well, you are not. The Kaiser has willed it otherwise. By-the-by, I had yesterday a most extraordinary cable from Stephanie."

Dominey ceased swinging his putter carefully over the head of a daisy and turned his head to listen. "Is she on the way home?"

"She is due in Southampton at any moment now," he wanted to know where she can see me immediately upon her arrival, as she has information of the utmost importance to give me."

"Did she ever tell you the reason for her journey to Africa?"

"She was most mysterious about it. If such an idea had any logical outcome, I should have surmised that matter of fact," he went on, "my life would be the strictest investigation."

"The whole affair is singularly foolish," the Prince declared. "Still, I am not sure that you have been altogether wise. Even accepting your position, I see no reason why you should not have obeyed the Kaiser's behest. My experience of your Society here is that love affairs between men and women moving in the same circles are not uncommon."

"That," Dominey urged, "is when they are all tarred with the same brush. My behavior towards Lady Dominey has been culpable enough as it is. To have placed her in the position of neglected wife would have been indefensible. Further, it might have affected the position which it is in the interests of my work that I should maintain here."

"An old subject," the Ambassador sighed, "best not rediscussed. Behold our womenkind!"

Rosamund and the Princess had issued from the house, and the two men hastened to meet them. The latter looked charming, exquisitely groomed, and stately in appearance. By her side Rosamund, dressed with the same success but in younger fashion, seemed almost like a child.

They passed into the luncheon room, crowded with many little parties of distinguished and interesting people, waiters, the profusion of flowers—all brilliant with the red livery of the that nameless elegance which had made the place Society's most popular rendezvous. The women, as they settled into their places, asked a question which was on the lips of a great many English people that day.

"Is there any news?"

"In a sense that is true," Seaman admitted.

"Well, then, cheer up," Dominey enjoined. "Take a little walk with us, and we will see whether Parkins cannot find us a bottle of that old Burgundy for lunch. How does that sound, eh?"

"If you will excuse me from taking the walk," Seaman begged "I would like to remain here until your return."

"You are more likely to do harm," Dominey reminded him, "and set the servants talking, if you show too much interest in this man's disappearance."

"I shall be careful," Seaman promised, "but there are certain things which I cannot help. I work always from instinct, and my instinct is never wrong. I will ask no more questions of your servants, but I know that there is something mysterious about the sudden departure of Johann Wolff."

Dominey and Rosamund returned about one o'clock to find only a note from Seaman, which the former tore open as his companion stood warning her to be in front of the fire. There were only a few lines:

"An old subject," the Ambassador sighed, "best not rediscussed. Behold our womenkind!"

Terloff perhaps felt that he was the cynosure of many eager and anxious eyes. He smiled lightly, heartily as he answered:

"None. If there were, I am convinced that it would be good. I have been allowed to play out my thianic struggle Sir Everard without interruption."

"I suppose the next important question to whether it is to be peace or war is, how did you play?" the Princess asked.

"I surpassed myself," her husband replied, "but of course no ordinary human golfer is of any account against Dominey. He plays far too well for any self-respecting German."

The Ambassador broke off and paused while he helped himself to mayonnaise.

"For any self-respecting German to play against," he concluded.

Luncheon was a very pleasant meal, and a good many people noticed the vivacity of the beautiful Lady Dominey whose picture was beginning to appear in the illustrated papers. Afterwards they drank coffee and sipped liqueurs under a great elm tree on the lawn, listening to the music and congratulating themselves upon having made their escape from London. In the ever-shifting panorama of gaily-dressed women and flannel-clad men, the monotony of which was varied here and there by the passing of a diplomatist or a Frenchman, scrupulously attired in morning clothes, were many familiar faces. Caroline and a little group of friends waved to them from the terrace. Eddy Pelam, in immaculate white, and a long tennis coat with dark blue edgings, paused to speak to them on his way to the courts.

"How is the motor business, Eddy?" Dominey asked, with a twinkle in his eyes.

"So, so! I'm not quite so keen as I was. To tell you the truth," the young man confessed, glancing around and lowering his voice so that no one should share the momentous information, "I was lucky enough to pick up a small share in Jere Moore's racing stable at Newmarket, the other day. I fancy I know a little more about grey-gees than I do about the inside of motors, what?"

"I should think very possibly that you are right," Dominey assented, as the young man passed on with a farewell salute.

Terloff looked after him curiously.

"It is the type of a young man, that," he declared, "which we cannot understand. What would happen to him, in the event of a war?"

In the event of his being called upon, either to fight or do some work of national importance for his country?"

"I expect he would do it," Dominey replied. "He would do it pluckily, wholeheartedly and badly. He is a type of the upper-class young Englishman, over-gauche and entirely undisciplined. They expect, and their country expects for them, that in the case of emergency pluck would take the place of training."

Campbellton's Prosperity

Campbellton can be prosperous only when folks in this community have set their hearts in that direction and have contributed the energy necessary to bring that condition about.

Campbellton will be prosperous in reality when every citizen has assumed his or her share of civic responsibility.

Community progress means good government, clean minds, the spirit of service, alleviation of poverty, absence of unemployment, increase of co-operation and avoidance of waste.

And this progress will not come from any single effort. Every one of us in Campbellton must constantly strive for the betterment of the community in every way possible.

Let us have the courage, energy, enterprise and patriotic service to make Campbellton an example and inspiration to other communities.

Let us make our town more than a mere plot of ground on which we live. Let us work toward what Campbellton should be. Then, with all working together, "the ideal community" will inevitably be the comment wherever the name of our town is mentioned.

The following Campbellton firms and individuals heartily subscribe to the above appeal to civic patriotism.
