Washington, July 23.-A significant statement was made to the Associated Press by a gentleman in a position to speak with knowledge and authority as to the plans of the administration with reference to future war operations. In substance the statement was as follows: Commodore Watson, in proceeding to the Spanish peninsula as soon as the expedition is gotten under way, is not to bom ard the cities of the Spanish coast. No such idea of bombardment of the coast is entertained. While lieve that it would be dangerous and there may be other incidental purpos- criminal to run the risk of spreading es, the main mission of Watson is to the fever broadcast throughout this take care of Admiral Camara's neet. country by bringing the men back here The movement of this neet and the fears and apprehensions caused by reports concerning it are to be stopped for all time. This government has no plan to take those islands and does not want them.

MILES MOVING ALONG-Washington, July 23.-Although Gen. Miles reported that he was "moving along well" with the first detachment of the military expedition against Porto Rico, the body of his dispatch preceding this statement gave rise at first to the apprehension that, like Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Gen. Miles was treatened with a costly delay in landing his expedition on Porto Rican soil owing to the absence of lighters and tugs. It was said at the war department later on that some of these lighters were already on their way from New Orleans and New York, and that no sensible delay would arise on that score.

A Surprise: BATTLE BETWEEN CUBANS AND

SPANIARDS. New York, July 23 .- A dispatch to the Herald from Santiago via Port Antonio, Jamaica, says: Great excitement was caused in Santiago today (Thursday) by a story brought in by Cubans that 4 000 Cuban insurgents, composing Gen. Garcia's army for the eastern department of Cuba, were routed in a fierce engagement with a detachment of Spaniards bound for Santiago to sur render. In this battle, which took place at a point several miles to the north of this city, 41 Cubans were killed, the Cubans say, and many more were wounded. The Spanish loss, it is said, was much smaller. Nothing happening in this vicinity recently has taken the American officers and troops so completely by surprise as this story of a battle between the Cubans and Spaniards. The American troops had come to look upon the Cubans as eaters rather than fighters, and they scarcely believed the report that Garcia's n had lain in ambush and had open-

There were at least 5,000 Spanjards in the body, according to the report, and they drove Garcia's men until full retreat a few hours after the battle When the Cuban general withdrew his troops to the mountains, he resolved to move on to Holquin, bout 60 miles to the northwest of this city. If the Americans would not allow them to wreak vengeance upon the Spaniards in Santiago, the Cubans proposed to storm some other im-portant place and take possession of it n their own account. It was with this object in view that Gen. Garcia withdrew his troops from the Ameri-can lines and refused longer to act as an ally of Gen. Shafter. He decided to capture Holquin, if possible, and there to set up an insurgent government, making that place the Cuban headquarters for the eastern department. It is not stated how far to the northwest of Santiago Gen. Garcia's army had proceeded upon this mission when the Spanish troops were encountered. The Cubans and Spaniards met on the road between Santiago and Holquin. The Spaniards, it is said,

Uncle Sam Does Not had been gathered from the fortified towns in the vicinity, and were pro-ceeding to Santiago under the terms of surrender agreed upon by Gen. Toral. They were carrying out in good faith the agreement made with Gen. Shafter. They were not looking for a fight and were caught off their guard. Gen. Garcia, it is said, ordered his men to form, so that they would be concealed in the chapparal, hoping to annihilate the first section of the Spanish troops. His plans were promptly put into execution, but the Spaniards, quickly recovering from the demoralization caused by the opening shots, fought fiercely and Gen. Garcia's ambuscade was a failure. Although unsuccessful in his plans to trap the Spaniards, Gen. Garcia, according to the Cubans who brought the story, sent word to them that they should To this command the Spanish com mander returned an emphatic refusal. -Miles' Expedition to Porto Rico Gen. Toral, he notified Gen. Garcia, has surrendered to the American army. This battle and its disastrous results has greatly excited the Cubans. They are demanding vengeance and cannot understand why the Americans do not

ANOTHER NAVAL ENGAGEMENT. Key West, Fla., July 23 .- The United States gunboats Topeka, Annapolis, Wasp and Leyden silenced the Spanish fortifications in Nipe Bay, on the northern coast of the province of Santiago de Cuba, on Thursday, and sank the Spanish gunboat Juan Jorge, which lay in the harbor. Her crew escaped in small boats. Under a heavy fire from the Leyden, the four ships mentioned, which had entered under orders from Rear-Admiral Sampson, pounded the forts for an hour, when the Spanish flag was hauled down. The Americans did not lose a man, but the Spanish loss must have been heavy.

THE "CORRESPONDENT" DID IT. Santiago de Cuba, July 23.-It now turns out that the letter addressed by Gen. Garcia to Gen. Shafter, complaining of the treatment accorded the Cubans and advising Gen. Shafter of Gen. Garcia's resignation, was prepared by a newspaper correspondent Arms, who has been acting on the staff of Gen. Castillo. It is not clear that Gen. Garcia ever saw the letter.

AT MANILA. London, July 23.-According to a dispatch from Hong Kong, the insurgents attacked Manila, but were repulsed with a loss of 500, the Spaniards having 50 killed and wounded. TALK OF A CRISIS REVIVED. Madrid, July 23. - The directors of the leading popular newspapers waited upon Premier Sagasta yesterday afternoon, asking him to abolish the existing state of siege and censorship. London, July 23.-A special dispatch from Madrid says: The arrival of Gen. Polavieja has increased the talk of a cabinet crists. The queen regent is credited with exclaiming: "Thank ed the fight by attacking the Spanish God!" when she knew he was coming. Opinions differ as to whether a semimilitary cabinet would make for peace or for a continuance of the war, but all are agreed that it would at any rate put to an end the present inverte-

The belief is current in Madrid that the delay in Commodore Watson's starting is due to a desire to give Gen. Polavieja time to form a cabinet and Premier Sagasta and the Liberals are much annoyed because the people and the authorities of Barcelona, Saragossa and Madrid made much of Gen. Polavieja on his journey here. The supporters of the government believe the court and the military are intriguing for the forming of a coalition cabine der Polavieja. The press challenges him to "play his cards on the table. His advent to office would displeas Weyler as much as it would Ascarearago, Campos and the other marshals, but it is supposed to be a pet scheme of the queen regent, who detests uncalled at the war department yester-day regarding the alleged resignation of Gen. Garcia and his withdrawal of Gen. Garcia and his withdrawal from co-operation with Shafter. He still insisted that there was a misunderstanding at Santiago which would be cleared up as soon as it became known that the Cubans here and the Washington sufforties desired as the Washington authorities desired no friction. It was stated that there had been no withdrawal of supplies from the Cubans, and that the ships which sailed a day or two ago no doubt were unloading supplies for Gomez, which would be delivered to him under the direction of Lieut Johnston, who was in command of the troops at Gomez's

"IT IS SAID." Hong Kong, July 23.—Letters re-ceived here from Cavite, dated July 19, differ from the advices received di-rect from Manila. The former say the insurgents have been repulsed near Malite, and that they are now making less progress. There is also said to be much dissension among them, ow-ing to alleged bribery on the part of Aguinaldo, it is further said, refuses to be subordinate to the United States. He does not seem to realize his position, as evidenced by his appointment of a cabinet, his declaration of inde-pendence and the formal hoisting of

About 1,500 Americans, it also appears from the letters from Cavite, have been landed half-way between Manila and Cavite, and the United States cruiser Boston has gone to support them in case of an emergency.

The opposition, after a long and hard fought battle, have fully surrendered to the famous WILLIAMS PIANO. Its MERITS have told so forcibly that they have finally thrown down the gauntlet and admit, though unwillingly, that the WILLIAMS is the KING of pianos. Only those AGENTS having a very LIMITED knowledge of what a first-class piano should be will attempt to say anything against a WILLIAMS PIANO. Experienced agents are fully aware that the music-loving public everywhere know the WILLIAMS is the finest plane on the Continent, and know it would display ignorance on their part to say anything different, as for the past half-hundred years the WILLIAMS PIANO has been preferred where a high-grade piano was wanted. It is not necessary to mention, but we will for the benefit of the very few people who may have neglected to look into it, that the Williams Piano Company s one of the oldest and strongest financially in the world, having the largest and best equipped factory and employing only the most expert piano makers. The finest tone, best materials, best werkmanship and most modern designs in both Upright and Grand Pianos are exclusive features of the WILLIAMS PIANO. The Williams Piano Company have such an immense capital that it enables purchasers to buy High-Grade Pianos on the easiest terms and at a moderate price, without giving their note or notes. Write out your own contract and what you are willing to pay monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly, and that ends it. Giving a note or notes often gets people into a great deal of trouble if they can't meet them when due. You avoid all this by dealing with us instead of with small manufacturers and dealers. INANIMATE THINGS.

Theory That They Have an Unpleasant

Sense of Humor. We have read and talked about the total depravity of inanimate things, but the sense of humor in in imate things has not been written of as it ought to be. There can be little doubt that inanimate things, especially if they are small and elusive, possess a strong sense of humor. For instance, a man had in his desk one of those curving things with a handle in which sheets of blotting paper are held. It was convenient as long as it could be prevented from getting snowed under on his desk. One day the man missed the pad when he was writing and wanted it. He had a cleared space occupying the center of his desk, and all around this space was a litter of papers, letters and things. Naturally he supposed that the pad had got under these things. He searched among the papers, but took care not to get any of them upon the cleared space in the center. He searched over the whole lot, and it occurred to him that this was a good time to put his desk in order. He cleared up and sorted out all the things and put them in pigeonholes or within bands and made his desk spick and span, but no trace of the pad could be discov-He was discouraged, and as it was near lunchtime he locked up his desk and went out to lunch. When he came back, he opened the desk, and there, exactly in the middle of the desk, on the very spot which his paper had occupied when he was writing, was that pad, simply glaring at him. It seemed to wear an expression that was positively malicious. The man was forced to conclude that the pad had a strong sense of humor, with a tendency to practical joking, and that it had concealed itself in some corner of the desk when he was searching and while he was gone had whipped itself out into the most conspicuous spot on the desk as a way of laughing at him. Of course it wasn't possible that he could have absentmindedly dislodged it while he was looking over the papers and gone off and left it there. Lately the same man had a slender little pencil about two inches long. It was a very amiable little pencil, of pleasing manners and suave movements, and the man used to held it between his forefinger and his middle finger and direct it with his thumb while he was scrawling memoranda or doing other things which required a pencil. He kept it in a waistcoat pocket. One day the pencil turned up missing. He wanted it and wanted no other pencil. He searched all his pockets several times over and looked all over his desk and shelves and even searched the floor. No trace of it.

He sat down to write with a long, uncongenial pencil. It seemed to balk and mock him, and he said to himself, "Oh, , I wish that little pencil would appear!" And at that very moment it dropped upon his paper as if from the sky, but really from over his right ear, where it had humorously concealed itself. Though, of course, the humor came in the reappearance rather than the disappearance, articles without a grain of humor in them may conceal themselves behind one's ear, especially if the ear offers ample opportunity for such concealment, but to flip out just at the psychological moment that takes real humor.-Boston Transcript.

It is impossible except by illustration and comparison to grasp the idea of the heat of the sun. According to calculations, based upon the energy of the sun's rays on the earth, the temperature at its surface is computed as about 18,000 degrees F. No artificial temperature of this degree can be created by any known means. Efforts have been made to collect and utilize the tremendous heat power of the sun, but cloudiness, mist and darkness have prevented anything like marked success. At the Columbian exposition an apparatus was shown, consisting of a reflector and proper attachments, which utilized the heat of the sun to such an effect that a two horsepower engine was run by it. It is proposed to try experimenting with reflectors in countries where the sky is free of cloudiness and the sun shines almost uninterruptedly nearly every day in the year.—New York Ledger.

Prosecution Ready to Proceed-Points of Pare's Confession.

Napanee, Ont., July 23.-The prisoner Holden was brought in by Irspector Burke, of Boston, and High Constable Sills, of Napanee, yesterday afternoon. He was at once taker to Police Magistrate Daley's office and remanded to jail for a week. An order for bail has been granted to the lawyers of prisoners Mackie and Ponton. It is fixed at $10,000 apiece

The lawyers do not propose accepting the offer, because it is considered hardly worth the while, since the investigation may open on Tuesday.

It is stated by the police that Mrs. Saucier will not be brought from Montreal to Napanee, save as a witness. They also claim that their case is complete and that the main ine of attack to be pursued mar no drawn from Pare's confession. In brief, this con-

THE COMING CROP

Railway Companies Making Preparations to Handle Enormous Quantities.

Montreal, July 23 .- The railways are making active preparations to handle attitudes while going through the the coming wheat crop, which is expected to be enormous. To help farmer of the west to get rid of his year's output at once, the Canadian Pacific will this year allow him to load directly into grain cars, the following announcement to that effect having been posted: "Commencing with this year's crop, the Canadian sor, Kincardine, Goderich, Clinton, Sea-forth, Mitchell and London. The comprizes to be contested for, which will ed direct from wagons, provided there will be no unreasonable delay about loading the cars." The circular will be welcomed by many thousands of western farmers, who have hitherto been denied the privilege of loading direct onto cars at points where elevators exist. For weeks past the railway officials have been carefully gathering infor-mation relative to the probable grain output. For months they have been watching the crop prospects, and governing themselves accordingly. Latest reports show that this year's crop will be tremendous, and railway men accordingly are happy.

SHINGLES $1 APIECE. Galesburg, Mich., July 23 .- The old Shafter homestead on the outskirts of this town is an object of great curiosity at present, owing to its being the birthplace of the hero of Santiago. It is being demolished by souvenir seekers. A. H. Carr, the owner, has been offered $1 apiece for the shingles.

DROWNED IN A MILL POND. Port Hope, July 23.-A sad drowning accident occurred at Canton Wednesday night. The victim is Annie Gordon, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. Joseph Gordon, who resides near here. No information can be had as to how the accident occurred. The girl was seen about 7:30 in the evening, but not returning home as night came on, a search was made by anxious ones. After every probable place had been examined in vain, the pond in the rear of Kinsman's flour mill was dragged, and the body of the missing girl found about 4 o'clock Thursday morning.

> Diagrams Which Show the Principle Movements Which May Be Learned on Land and Then Practiced in Shallow Water - Expertness in Swimming Is Only Acquired by Con stant and Continuous Fractice.

The art of locomotion in water is now being taught in very many natatoriums in the cities of Canada and the United States. A Y. M. C. A. professor of swimming has evolved a method by which diligent application through five or six lessons on land has enabled the pupils to swim shortly after entering the water. Of course, expertness in swimming, as in every other acquirement, is merely a matter of practice. So to become good swimmers the injunction is, "practice," and you will surely succeed. The statement of the Y. M. C. A. natatorial expert is accompanied by illustrations showing the instructor in the different motions of swimming. He says: In order to learn swimming the learner should first practice the movements on land. The manner of swimming which is taught to most beginners is popularly known as the "breast stroke." It is divided into three motions of the arms and two motions of the legs. First the motion of the arms. Stand erect, with heels together, the toes pointed outward. Place the arms straight in front of your breast with the palms of the hands together. Now begin to count slowly: "One." With a slow movement pull the arms to a position running parallel with the shoulders. "Two." Draw the arms with palms turned down to a position about six inches below the chin. "Three." Shoot the arms straight forward and bring them back to the position held before you started to count

"One." Practice these three movements and when you feel that you have learned them begin on the leg motion. This motion is known as the "kick," by the means of which the body is propelled. The "kick" is divided into two movements. The first begins after you have made the first stroke with your arms, so that you really start on the second count. Now then, "Two." Draw the leg up on the side, so that the toe reaches your knee. When in the water this movement of course is made with both legs, keeping the heels closely together. 'Three." Spread the feet out and bring them back to their original posi tion, striking knees and heels together vigorously. Now try the arm movements in the water. You will be surprised how easily the body follows the motions and brings you forward at the completion of each stroke. Practice the kick by getting hold of some solid object. Lie in the water with your chin above the surface, hold your body easy and straighten your legs firmly behind you. This will bring your entire body close to the surface.

and leg movements together. Start with arms straight in front and legs straight to the rear. "One." Move arms to the side.

Wonderful Things From the Deep. The exploring yacht of Prince Albert I. of Monaco, the Princess Alice, made its fourth cruise of scientific research in the summer of 1897 in the waters west of Morocco, around Madeira, and the regions of the Azores and the sea off Portugal. Weirs sent down to depths of nearly sixteen thousand feet brought up animals wholly unknown. Another net kept for twenty four hundred feet, near the Azores, brought up twelve hundred animals, of which eleven hundred and ninety eight were fish. Large cetaceans were often chased by the whale boats, and in some instances unknown animals, from forty. five to sixty-six feet long, yielded remnants of food which they had swallowedfragments of gigantic devil fishes, which were carefully preserved.

Lat Native Cuban-What Kind of Fellew.

What kind of fellow is the native Cuban? This is a question which is now coming to the surface. One finds it bard to form, with much confidence, any definite opinion in regard to his character and capabilities, or, having to retain it longer than till "special correspondent" is There are, of course, two of the Cuban insurgent-the full-blooded negro and the half-breed of varying shades of color, and, probably, of character. Of the former, it may, we suppose, be pretty safely tahen for granted that he is fond of ease and self-indulgence of the sensuous, not to say sensual, kind. He seems to be, as a rule, too lazy either or to fight very strenuously, save under strong pressure, for any future good, which may require present pelf-dental. The typical half-breed is no doubt a much braver and more energetic character, by virtue of the admixture of the blood of sterner and fiercer races. He is, from the same cause, more cunning and versatile, as well as braver and more energetic, and is possessed of powers of action and endurance, which make him, temporerily and under pressure, capable of considerable courage and achievement, But it is doubtful whether even he is sufficiently developed intellectually and otherwise to be capable of sustained ban courage has never been increased by the fact that it is found to be mainly of the kind which shuns the open field, seeks the thicket for ambush, deguerilla warfare, and someis to be feared, gloats in cruelty and bloodshed. Even our admiration for the fortitude which has these native insurgents to defy for so many years the disciplined armies of Spain is somewhat reduced when Mr. McEwan, the Globe corresoondent on the ground, reminds us that in such a climate fuel can be dispensed with, the very minimum of clothing is needed, and the forests so abound in such fruits as the cocoanut, mango, and other edible fruits, that the commissariat is an affair which really requires little attention, and causes less anxiety. We chall still hope, however, to be made acquainted with some nobler, redeeming qualities of these natives, for whose deliverance from Spanish cruelty and oppression our neighbors have been pouring out blood and treasure so freely. It may be well to remember that even the Cuban's comrade for the moment of the recruited kind is not always one of the most admirable of fellows; and that there is, probably, another side to the story of the difficulty with which the latter restrains the former from a debauch of loot and riot in conquered Santilago. Yet it is to be feared that the dream of the rescued Cubans as staid. self-restrained citizens of a free self-governing republic, if and so far as it has been seriously entertained by American patriots and philanthropists Is doomed to meet, if it has not already done so, with a rude awakening.

The Material Standard.

The representative of those who de sire to have the canals open seven days in the week, is reported to have said that the clergy alone, an unproductive element, good enough in their place. are the only opponents of their scheme It is not our present purpose, as a lay journal, to deal with the error of fact In this statement, but merely to call attention to the material standard of life and work which underlies it. This gentleman does indeed allow the clergy e place. So far, so good; to that extent, they must feel extremely obliged to him. We suspect, however, from the tone of his remarks, that the place he would allow them in human life is neither large nor important. They may then congratulate themselves that they are not dependent upon his bounty.

The place of the clergyman is, however, in our view, too large a subject to be discussed in a paragraph, and we cannot even discuss at length how far he is "an unproductive element." Many, probably most of those who would devote every hour of the week to material interests, are not producers in the strictest sense, but mere manspulators of that which others produce. The producers in the narrowest sense are, as a rule, men who appreciate the or brain, for six days of the week, fee of rest and spiritual refreshment. The clergymen who do their own work most effectively, are inspirers of supersede faith, and producers of manhood. If the test of a nation is not its wheat or gold, but its men, the finer forces which quicken conscience and ennoble manhood are not "unproductive." It might even be shown that spiritual ideals react upon the lower life, and that the true "saving of the soul" is also the upbuilding of society in all its many-sided life.

As a lay journal, we protest, therefore, against such a small material standard, or any narrow, one-sided view of what are the productive elements of society. Such base standard first narrows the mind, and then enslaves the body. It would be a sad day if ever society became a soulless corporation on the basis of getting as much and giving as little as possible.

The Coming Conference.

The Dominion Government has received copies of resolutions passed by 50 chambers of commerce in the United States, advocating greater freedom of trade between the republic and Can-These resolutions have also been laid before President McKinley and Congress, and should have weight with the American delegates at the international conference

Canadians note with quiet satisfaction the change in the American attitude towards Canada, and they know the reason for it. The preferential tariff of the Laurier Government was the instrument that opened the eyes of our neighbors. Under the National Policy they had every reason to be satisfied. The late Canadian Government was good to them. It taxed their exports to Canada at an average rate of 121 per cent, while British imports paid 22 per cent. Under this lop-handled arrangement they saw Canada buying more and more from the United Our estimation of the quality of Cu-States and less from the mother country. In return the Americans bought less and less from Canada, while the mother country took our products increasingly every year. The Americans did not think it time for a change, but the people of Canada did. The Laurier Government resolved to favor those who favored Canada, and it brough down the preferential tariff. Then if was that the Statesers began to apthat they were driving away a good customer. They now want to treat us more generously, and we can afford to meet them half way.

Patriotic Anniversaries.

The month of July is highly favored in this regard. We have our Dominion Day; our neighbors have their "Glorious Fourth"; and France has but passed its "Glorious Fourteenth," when the nation was en fete, rejoicing in its republican form of government, which continues to exist, though it leads a troubled life. The republic which has existed since Sept. 4, 1871, has survived many difficulties, and seen many ministerial changes, but seems now to be loyally accepted by the large majority of the French people. It reminds one of Emerson's simile, to the effect that a monarchy is a fine vessel, which may sink and go to the bottom, but a republic is a raft, which will not sink, but causes you to have your feet always in the water. Certainly the French nation is often in troubled waters, politically speaking, and there are some who think that the raft will go to pieces one of these stormy days. If, however, the French Republic lives much longer, it may succeed in proving that one great branch of the Latin race is fit for constitutional freedom, and is not doomed to be for ever the victim of military

Prof. Mills, of the Guelph College, writes to the Mail and Empire, the parent of the paragraph, expressing his surprise at such misrepresentation. Years ago, on the complaint of market gardeners, the college was forbidden to sell berries. The extract referred to only a small fraction of the year's produce, a few berries being sold to the college officers. The Opposition is hard up for argument when it has to hunt in a berry patch for one. It is a re-

Reformation via the Novel. In these days all forms of literary effort tend to run into the form of story. Since the days when Mr. Gladstone criticised Mrs. Ward's "Robert Elsmere," as serving up theology in the form of story, that tendency has been on the increase. Science, sociology, history and theology all come to us in the form of tales. Now an important religous journal proposes to meet "the Romanising movement" in the Church of England by a "Looking Backward" story. "Protestant Thousands" have been formed, and "Protestant Eighty Clubs" are proposed. but of course the power of these will be slight compared with the story, which carries us forward into the early years of next century, and shows us what has been done, and how it was done. This is surely a story with a purpose; but our faith in this kind of fiction is not great. It may be that before it is done the "Ritualistic parsions" will be the cleverest and most attractive people in it, just as in some sceptical novels the orthodox people are the only admirable characters. But we question that where the bishops, and the State, and the "Evangelicals" fail, the short story will suc-

More British Warships.

The cable tells us the British Government intend to build four more battleships and twelve more destroy-Mr. Goschen explains that this is done along a settled principle, namely, that the British navy must always equal that of any two other powers. Sea-power has been proved to be so important that Britain cannot be blamed if she puts continued faith in the navy as her main implement of protection. But the day will come. following the Anglo-American understanding, when the nations will equalize their fighting forces on sea and land by mutual reductions, instead of concurrent additions. Speed the day!

An American Author in England Mr. Paul Leicester Ford, an American novelist, is visiting England, and has fallen a victim to the interviewer. He entertained that inquisitor pleasantly, and committed himself to many opinions about men and things in his own land. He rejoices in America as the poor man's land, and is content with "mediocrity," as long as the average amount of comfort is high. He thinks it is more correct to describe Americans as a money-spending rather than a money-loving people. While sympathizing with Dr. Parkhurst's motives he has a good word to say for Tammany, which he thinks does no more harm than the English squirearchy. The British Weekly interviewer evidently had a good time with Mr. Ford and got out of him a couple of columns of interesting copy. One of the mos amusing things that he said was: "We in America are positively glad when Congress adjourns, because then we know that until Congress resumes the future is tolerably certain. Our people do not turn to the Government for help They say. Take what money you want and leave us alone. That is why there is less socialism in America than in any other country." Explaining his own most popular work, this gentleman said that he begun it as a political essay, and it turned out to be a novel, the love story being the most interest ing part of it. This mental temperament has no doubt given the color to some of the statements which he so generously imparted to the courteous English inquirer.

Canada's friendly footing with Great Britain has undeniably helped business with the mother country. An all-round friendly understanding and settlement with our neighbors to the south would equally promote trade with the United States. Good feeling goes a long way, even in business.

British statesmen give Mr. Mulock the credit for imperial penny postage which his political opponents in this country seek to deprive him of. There is no such narrow-mindedness about Mr. Henniker Heaton, who has agitated penny postage for years, but cheerfully ascribes the victory to the Canedian Postmaster-General. Canada has made British permanent officialdom get out of more than one rut.

"Our Lady of the Sunshine" is the apt title of a charming and seasonable publication from the presses of George Morang, Toronto. The editor, Mr. Bernard McEvoy, has drawn on the best literary talent in Canada for this distinctively Canadian publication. Lady Aberdeen, "Kit," Archibald Lampman, Duncan Campbell Scott, Madge Merton, Louis Frechette, Hon, David Mills W. Bengough, Jean Blewett, Sir James Edgar, and other popular writers contribute a delightful miscellany of prose and verse. Canada is the theme of all, and is viewed in her midsummer aspect, when she is loveliest. The illustrations are beautiful. Mr. McEvoy himself writes the preface, and gracefully asserts Canada's right to the title "Our Lady of the Sunshine," as opposed to Kipling's conception. The publication should be widely circulated abroad as well as at home.

They toiled at the whip and in lifting and carrying the ammunition. The boys were as impassive as when serving dinner in Hong-Kong harbor. President Guggenheimer, of the municipal council of Greater New York, has prepared an ordinance prohibiting foul or profane language in public The president's remarks, in presenting his resolution, are well put:

"The use of profane language, whether it be on the Bowery, Fifth avenue elsewhere, has become a nuisance Go almost anywhere you may, and you will hear foul words and curses. It has come to such a pass that your wife or your daughter cannot walk the street, ride in a car, or cross a ferry whithout having her ears assailed with language which no self-respecting man ought to permit. If the ordinance to proposed by me is adopted, I hope every good citizen will esteem it his duty to insist upon the arrest o offenders. I, for one, shall do what I can personally to enforce the provisions of the act. I doubt not that, after few examples have been made, this flood of profanity in public places will be made to cease.

ABOUT BINDER TWINE. Some of the Conservative newspapers are attributing the increased price of binder twine to the removal of the duties by the Liberals. If the Liberals are to be held responsible for the increased price of binder twine should in all fairness receive credit for the splendid crop of wheat. They are just as responsible for one as for the other. The truth is that the Increase in the price of binder twine is not ow to the removal of the duty, but in spite of it. It has been brought about causes with which the tariff has no nection. It has been almost solely ought about by a combination which concerned a large portion of the raw material used in the manufacture The rise in the price is not confined to Canada, but is general coincidence that in Canada the increase in price has occurred shortly and the angle-lines which strengthen the duty been kept on it would have been easier to corner twine in Canada than it is today, when twine can be shipped to and fro between this counand the United States, without restriction. To deal with the present we must consider questions than the tariff.-Farmers

What years of age was left near the shore of the lake. Their daughter, eight to care for a baby of seven months, while the family went up on the hills. That was the last seen of the little girl and her charge until yesterday forenoon, when they were discovered in an exhausted condition by Mr. W. G. Parish. They were about five miles from where they had been left. Mr. Parish at once conveyed them to his cottage, where necessary resuscitation was given, and they were then taken by his steam yacht to their nearly distracted parents. Considering that the children had been four days and four nights without food, wandering over the wildest section of the Charleston Lake district, the preservation of their lives is wonderful. Particulars of their loss and recovery are not yet to hand.

The meeting was held in the office of Superintendent Bradfield, in the Exchange street station. Its purpose was to give to the operating officials an opportunity to consider the through train service and matters of the traffic department. The terminal facilities at Buffalo were talked over, and it was announced, semi-officially, that some freight yard improvements at Depew are being considered by the Central.

Ex-Mayor Thomas Elliott, of Brantford, representing the syndicate of Brantford, Woodstock, and Toronto capitalists who have undertaken the construction of the proposed new railway between Brantford and Woodstock, is in Toronto, conferring with the Queen City members of the syndicate regarding arrangements for an early start in building the road. D. A. Middleton, C. E., of Ottawa, has just completed a survey of the road, which traverses as fine a stretch of agricultural country as is to be found in Canada, and is particularly well adapted for railroad construction, the average per mile of cost of construction being about ten per cent less than the ordinary estimate. The new line es in length, and will afford a thickly populated part of West-ern Ontario connection with the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo and C. P. R. It is expected active operation will

Four Indians Charged With Eight Murders in Four Years.

Port Arthur, July 28 .- The four Inlians arrested here for murder are brothers, and are named Mohawk Moses, Joseph Moses, Lewis Moses and Antoine Moses. They lived in a remote spot on the Pic River, were armed to the teeth, and had terrorized all the surrounding inhabitants. They emerged from their hiding-place to receive the annual treaty allowance from the government, and were arrested after struggle by Provincial Constable Whalen and Officers Connors and

Dodds. They started their career about four years ago, when they went for a cruise up the Pic River with five C. P. R. section men, who had just received their wages, and the foreman of whom had a silver watch, which has been found upon one of the prisoners. The section men never returned from their cruise, and so indignant became the inhabitants of the district that the four Indians erected a fortification in the woods in order to defend them- 677,775, against 89,523. Total exports selves from attack, their old father bringing them food regularly, and bushels, flour included, against 5,194,communicating with them by means of flags. In this stronghold the scoundrels were visited by two cousins, who were loaded with the product of a successful hunt. These were killed in cold blood, stones, it is said, being the weapons used, and their bodies carried to the railroad track. The eighth and last murder in which

that of a fur trader, who had been buying in the vicinity of their camp. Their arrest was made amid a some what exciting scene. The three policemen were on hand when the four alleged murderers, accompanied by their aged father, stepped into the agent's office to get their money. The tables in the center of the room were covered with bills and silver, and the eyes of the natives were glued to the shekels, when Constable Whalen sprang to Mohawk's side and grabbed his wrists. In a jiffy the other two officers had each a man, and Indian Agent Hodder and his assistant, W. H. Arnold, were prompt with their revolvers. Officer Dodds stood at the door with a cocked pistol in hand, and Officer Connors had his weapon leveled, too. W. H. Arnold jumped on the table and threatened to riddle the first man that moved an inch from his position. The Indians showed some resistance at first, but were soon cowed into submission and placed on the next train.

Is Pervading the Canadian Market.

Bradstreet's and Dun & Company's Review of the Business Situation.

New York, July 23.-Bradstreet's weekly review says: Hot weather seems to have helped rather than hindered trade at Toronto, and imparted an air of activity to a market usually dull at this season. Canadian cotton and woolen mills are active. The Ontario wheat crop promises to be larger and better than last year, and that of Manitoba, though hurt by rain and hail, will equal that of 1897. Considerable is hoped for in the wool and barley trades from the coming conference between the Canadian and American commissioners. Trade in wholesale lines at Montreal is good, and the outlook for fall business generally is encouraging. Fair activity is reported at Halifax, and trade as a whole is better than last year. Though practically at a standstill now, the reports of heavy gold arrivals from the Klondike have made the outfitting trade very hopeful at Victoria. Business failures in the Dominion of Canada this week number 17, against 28 last week, 21 in this week a year ago, 31 in 1896, 25 in 1895, and 32 in 1894. Canadian bank clearings aggregate $24,551,000-11.1 per cent smaller than last week, but 5 per cent larger than in this week a year ago. R. G. Dun & Co. say: While Canadian trade is moderate and in many aspects less encouraging than was expected, it goes on fairly well. At St. John, prospects are that trade in the next six months will be better than in the first part of the year. Shipments of lumber are moving more freely, and though shore fisheries have a short catch prices abroad are rather improved. Unfavorable weather interferes with Halifax trade, and the hay crop is being damaged by rain; that farmers are likely to suffer and collections are slow. In all lines trade at Quebec is quiet, but collections are good considering are active at Montreal, and sugars are in good request, but teas are somewhat quiet, owing to high prices, and metals, oils and paints are seasonably quiet. Leather shows improvement in demand, with some large reported sales of sole to England. Cheese prices are somewhat low, and though exports are fairly large, they are behind last year's. Trade in sugar and tea is fairly active in Toronto, and leather is in moderate demand, with firm prices. Business in other lines is seasonably quiet. Many manufactures at Hamilton continue busy, and retail trade is fair, with products and fruit mode-rately abundant and prices firm. The wholesale trade at Winnipeg is fairly active, with good prospects. In general lines business at Victoria is satisfactory for the season, with some improvement in agricultural implements, owing to prospects of a good crop. ber increases, and building operations are more active than for years past.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: After week of rest has preceded the sailing of the Porto Rico force but meanwhile the president's proclamation, opening Santiago to trade on terms sin-gularly favorable to the inhabitants there, and the rush to build up business in Eastern Cuba, are occupying the thoughts of many enterprising firms. Reductions of one-half in the tax heretofore paid, with honest, instead or Spanish adminstration, brings home to Cuban residents the meaning of the change, and they also learn to use money, of which the pager dollar is as good as gold, which for them is a long step forward. In the stagnant midsummer season, with business larger than ever before, the great manufacturers nearly all share in the gain. There is an increased demand for woolen goods, although in some lines slow and disap-pointing, but the number of establishments at work increases, though the mills are not yet assured of satisfac-

OVER THE LINE.

With abatement of foreign needs and prospects of excellent crops in many foreign countries, wheat has declined during the week 3c, notwithstanding exports from Atlantic ports, amount ing to 1,937,092 bushels, against 1,516,997 last year, and from Pacific ports for three weeks have been 7,399,259 488 last year. Corn still goes abroad in astonishing quantities, all the circumstances considered, exports having been in three weeks 507,847 bushels, against 6,635,395 last year. The price has not changed, in spite of the de-crease in wheat. The closing of some New England mills has doubtless atfected the price of cotton to some extent, and yet the crop reports are sufficiently favorable to depress prices an eighth during the week without other influence. Failures for the week have een 207 in the United States, against 227 last year, and 17 in Canada against

28 last year. Bradstreet's statement: Midsummer conditions still govern most lines of trade and manufacture, but the volume of business, as indicated by bank clearances, shows little decrease, as is evidently considerably in advance of previous years at this time. A feature in trade this week is the better demand reported for wool east and west. This appearance of activity has given a decidedly more hopeful tone to this business. which, however, is not yet reflected in the manufacturing branch. Eastern wool markets are relatively the lowest in the world, and stocks held now, it is claimed, cannot be replaced at lower prices here or abroad. Dullness has been a feature of the cereal markets. Old wheat supplies are rapidly decreasing, while the new crop movement, while in excess of last year, does not reach the proportions expected. Millers complain of the scarcity of old wheat for mixing purposes, while the outlook favors world's stocks on Aug. 1, little in excess of one year ago at this time, and invisible supplies are generally thought to be heavily below those held last year. The shipping of Texas wheat to California is one effect of the shortage of supplies reported. Rather more attention is given the Klondike as a result of reported heavy arrivals of gold at Pacific coast points, and estimates of a season's output valued at $20,000,000 are current. Rather more animation is looked for in the outfitting trade as a result thereof but that advices from Alaska are not wholly favorable is proved by reports that large numbers of unsuccessful prospectors are anxious to get out of the country. Cereal exports continue of a satisfactory volume, wheat shipments for the week, flour included, aggregating 2,303,469 bushels, against 2,910,827 last week, and 1,978,828 in the corresponding week of 1897. Corn exports are pear, as their cause is removed. 50 doses for 50 cents. Sold at Strong's Pharmacy. Descriptive pamphlet free. Sponding week of 1881. Corn exports are still in excess of last week, aggregating 2,822,128 bushels, against 2,822,248 last week, 2,298,579 in this week a year ago.

BALLOONS IN WAR

A Novel Battle in Cloudland Nearly Thirty Years Ago.

The announcement that the balloon is destined to play a roll in the present war with Spain recalls the aeronautic experiments made by the French during the great war in 1870 and 1871. As early, as 1792 balloons were used for military signaling in France. But, in our times, during the siege of Paris by the German troops, frequent attempts were made Frenchmen to communicate with those inside the beleaguered city, and to dispatch men and matter from the capital by means of balloons. In Paris itself, under the direction of Postmaster Ramport, a balloon post and transport service was established for carrying persons and governmental as well as private mail matter from the besieged capital. Among the public men leaving the city in this way, M. Gambetta will ever be remembered. Homing pigeons were also sent by this route to carry news back to Paris. A total of 66 balloons, according to Tis sandier's "En Balloon Pendant le Siege the season. Shipments of fall drygoods de Paris," left the besieged city, and 168 persons, 10,194 kilograms of postal matter, including 3,000,000 letters, 363 homers, five dogs and two boxes of dynamite, were dispatched by the aerial route. Of the balloons, 52 descended in France, 5 in Belgium, 4 in Holland, 2 in Germany and 1 in Norway. Only five of them were captured the Germans, and two were never heard of, having been lost in the ocean. Of all the voyages of that time, however, none could compare for exciting and perilous incident with that of the well-known aeronaut, M. Nadar, who left Tours for Paris with important government dispatches at 6 o'clock one fine December morning. At 11 he was in view of the capital on the Seine. While floating about 3,000 meters above Fort Charenton, Nadar suddenly observed a second balloon on the horizon. Thinking it to be one leaving Paris, the French aeronaut at on Jobbing trade at Vancouver is satis- displayed tri-colors of his country, and factory, especially in hardware, and retail business is steady, with encouraging outlook. The demand for lum- approached one another, being drawn in the same direction by the same current of air. When they were separated by only a short distance several explosions were heard. The stranger had commenced to fire shots at Nadar's the surrender at Santiago, barely a balloon—the "Intrepide"—which began to descend rapidly. The French flag had by this time been replaced in the other balloon by the Prussian colors, The Parisians, who were watching the affair from the forts below, and who now realized the true character and object of the last arrival, cried out that their plucky compatriot was lost.

But they were mistaken.

Nadar had scrambled from the car up the network of his airship after the first shot from the enemy, to stop a hole made in the tissue. Presently he descended to the car as the halloon righted itself, and throwing out quantity of ballast, caused it to rise higher and higher. Then, seizing his rifle, he fired shots with rapid succession into the Prussian, which suddenly split and sunk to the earth. On reaching the ground a detachment of Uh-lans, who had been watching the combat from the plain, picked up the German aeronauts and rode off to the Prussian outposts. Nadar then alighted in safety within the girdle of the Paris forts, meeting with an enthusiastic ovation for his victory in the first balloon duel.-Baltimore Sun.

AMONG THE FLOWERS.

Go over the garden beds daily and remove all fading flowers. This is very necessary if you would keep your plants blooming. If seed is allowed to form the plant will throw all its energies into the development of it, and you will get but few flowers; but if the process of nature is interfered with by preventing the plant from forming seed, it will, as a general thing, make further efforts to perpetuate itself. In thus thwarting its efforts it can be kept flowering indefinitely. Remove all withered leaves from the lower portion of the gladiolus stalks. If they are left clinging there they soon give an untidy look to the spike. Tie the central stalk of each dahlia to a stout support, or the plant may be broken over by a sudden wind. Give morning glories stout strings to clamber over; but never attempt to train sweet peas on any support of this kind, for they will stub-bornly refuse to make use of it. They like best a support of brush, but they will do very well if trained over wire netting with a coarse mesh. The net-ting should be at least five feet wide. If the season is a dry one, water must be supplied to plants in the beds. Give it after sundown, to avoid the too rapid evaporation which takes place if the application is made while the sun can get at the soil. Apply it close about the roots of the plants, where it will do most good. Keep the soil loose and open. This prevents its crusting over so that water will run off instead of into it. It also enaloles it to act something like a sponge, and absorb what ever moisture comes in the shape of dew.

If weeds were kept down well during the early part of the season they will not need a great deal of attention now, but the gardener should make it a rule to pull up every one as soon as seen. Never allow a weed to ripen. Grass clippings from the lawn will be found very effective as mulch about dahlias and other plants requiring a constant moisture at the roots. soon as it begins to decay, dig it into the soil about the plant and let it act as a fertilizer.-Harper's Bazar.

He reviewed the original programme, which was considered sufficient when it was framed, being based upon the two-power system, that the navy of Great Britain would be equal to the combined fleets of any two powers. But, in consequence of the action of Russia on the same system, the government was compelled to supplement a supplementary programme, paralleling the Russian increase of six battleships which the Russia proposed to begin in 1898. Only two battleships were taken into account in the original British programme, and the first lord of the admiralty now asked the house to grant four more battleships. (Cheers.) The Two Missing Children at Charleston Lake Found.

Athens, Ont., July 23.—On Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. Isaac La Rose and family, who resided at the mouth of Donaldson's Bay, Charleston Lake, went picking berries down the shore of the lake. Their daughter, eight years of age was left near the shore to care for a baby of seven months. while the family went up on the hills. That was the last seen of the little girl and her charge until yesterday forenoon, when they were discovered in an exhausted condition by Mr. W.

Mr. Parish at once conveyed them to his cottage, where necessary resuscitation was given, and they were then taken by his steam yacht to their nearly distracted parents. Considering that the children had been four days and four nights without food, wandering over the wildest section of the Charleston Lake district, the preservation of their lives is wonderful. Passenger Rates To Be Restored at Once.

New Road To Be Built Between Brant ford and Woodstock.

J. E. Quick, general baggage agent for the G. T. R. system, has again been elected secretary and treasurer of the American 'Association of General Baggage Agents whose convention has just closed at Detroit.

The department of railways and can als has just completed arrangements with Mr. A. M. Pearson, of Colborne, Ont., for the use of the Cleveland cylinder, a Canadian invention, which it is claimed will develop a great speed. If entirely satisfactory the locomotives of the government system will all be fitted with the new cylinder.

Sir William Van Horne, president of the Canadian Pacific Kailroad, passed through Chicago on Friday on his way east from St. Paul, where he had been in conference with J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern road, on the transcontinental rate matter. No official statement has yet been made regarding the result of the conference. Unofficially, however, it is stated that an agreement was reached, the practical result of which will be the restoration of rates. It is stated that a meeting of the lines will be called immediately on Sir Wm. Van Horne's arrival at Montreal, for the purpose of settling the details of the restoration, which will be put into effect with the least possible delay.

cials were in Buffalo Thursday. Among them were Edward Van Etten, superintndent of the New York Central; R. H. L'riomedieu, general superintendent of the Michigan Central, and P. S. Blodgett, general superintendent of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern. These men were in conference with J. P. Bradfield, superintendent of the western division of the New York Central, and Superintendent Morford, of the Michigan Central. The meeting was held in the office of Superintendent Bradfield, in the Exchange street station. Its purpose was to give to the operating officials an opportunity to consider the through train service and matters of the traffic department. The terminal facilities at Buffalo were talked over, and it was announced, semi-officially, that some freight yard improvements at Depew are being considered by the Central

BAD BROTHERS

Four Indians Charged With Eight Murders in Four Years.

Port Arthur, July 28 .- The four Indians arrested here for murder are brothers, and are named Mohawk Moses, Joseph Moses, Lewis Moses and Antoine Moses. They lived in a remote spot on the Pic River, were armed to the teeth, and had terrorized all the surrounding inhabitants. They emerged from their hiding-place to receive the annual treaty allowance from the government, and were arrested after struggle by Provincial Constable Whalen and Officers Connors and Dodds.

They started their career about four years ago, when they went for a cruise up the Pic River with five C. P. R. section men, who had just received their wages, and the foreman of whom had a silver watch, which has been found upon one of the prisoners. The section men never returned from their cruise, and so indignant became the inhabitants of the district that the four Indians erected a fortification in the woods in order to defend themselves from attack, their old father communicating with them by means that of a fur trader, who had been buying in the vicinity of their camp. Their arrest was made amid a somewhat exciting scene. The three policemen were on hand when the four alleged murderers, accompanied by their aged father, stepped into the agent's office to get their money. The tables in the center of the room were covered with bills and silver, and the eyes of the natives were glued to the shekels when Constable Whalen sprang to Mohawk's side and grabbed his wrists. In a jiffy the other two officers had each a man, and Indian Agent Hodder and his assistant, W. H. Arnold, were prompt with their revolvers. Officer Dodds stood at the door with a cocked pistol in hand, and Officer Connors had his weapon leveled, too. W. H. Arnold jumped on the table and threatened to riddle the first man that moved an inch from his position. The Indians showed some resistance at first, but were soon cowed into submission and placed on the next train.

Is Pervading the Canadian Market.

Bradstreet's and Dun & Company's Review of the Business Situation

New York, July 23.-Bradstreet's weekly review says: Hot weather seems to have helped rather than hindered trade at Toronto, and imparted an air of activity to a market usually dull at this season. Canadian cotton and woolen mills are active. The Ontario wheat crop promises to be larger and better than last year, and that of Manitoba, though hurt by rain and hail, will equal that of 1897. Considerable is hoped for in the wool and barley trades from the coming conference between the Canadian and American commissioners. Trade in wholesale lines at Montreal is good, and the outlook for fall business generally is encouraging. Fair activity is reported at Halifax, and trade as a whole is better than last year. Though practically at a standstill now, the reports of heavy gold arrivals from the Klondike have made the outfitting trade very hopeful at Victoria. Business failures in the Dominion of Canada this week number 17, against 28 last week, 21 in this week a year ago, 31 in 1896, 25 in 1895, and 32 in 1894. Canadian bank clearings aggregate $24,551,000-11.1 per cent smaller than last week, but 5 per cent larger than in this week a year ago.

R. G. Dun & Co. say: While Canadian trade is moderate and in many aspects goes on fairly well. At St. John, prosmonths will be better than in the first part of the year. Shipments of lumber are moving more freely, and though ing damaged by rain; that farmers are likely to suffer and collections are slow. In all lines trade at Quebec is quiet, but collections are good considering the season. Shipments of fall drygoods are active at Montreal, and sugars are quiet, owing to high prices, and metals. oils and paints are seasonably quiet. Leather shows improvement in demand, with some large reported sales of sole to England. Cheese prices are somewhat low, and though exports are fairly large, they are behind last year's. Trade in sugar and tea is fairly active in Toronto, and leather is in moderate demand, with firm prices. Business in other lines is seasonably quiet. Many manufactures at Hamilton continue busy, and retail trade is fair, with products and fruit mode-rately abundant and prices firm. The wholesale trade at Winnipeg is fairly active, with good prospects. In general lines business at Victoria is satisfactory for the season, with some improvement in agricultural implements, owing to prospects of a good crop Jobbing trade at Vancouver is satisfactory, especially in hardware, and retail business is steady, with encourber increases, and building operations are more active than for years past. OVER THE LINE.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: After the surrender at Santiago, barely week of rest has preceded the sailing of the Porto Rico force, but meanwhile the president's proclamation, opening Santiago to trade on terms singularly favorable to the inhabitants there, and the rush to build up business in Eastern Cuba, are occupying the thoughts of many enterprising firms. Reductions of one-half in the tax heretofore paid, with honest, instead or Spanish adminstration, brings home to Cuban residents the meaning of the change, and they also learn to use money, of which the pager dollar is as good as gold. which for them is a long step forward. In the stagnant midsummer season, with business larger than ever before, the great manufacturers nearly all share in the gain. There is an increased demand for woolen goods, although in some lines slow and disap-pointing, but the number of establishments at work increases, though the mills are not yet assured of satisfactory prices.

With abatement of foreign needs and prospects of excellent crops in many foreign countries, wheat has declined during the week 3c, notwithstanding exports from Atlantic ports, amounting to 1,937,092 bushels, against 1,516. 997 last year, and from Pacific ports 577,775, against 89,523. Total exports for three weeks have been 7,399,259 bringing them food regularly, and bushels, flour included, against 5,194, 488 last year. Corn still goes abroad in astonishing quantities, all the circumstances considered, exports having been in three weeks 507,847 bushels, against 6,635,395 last year. The price has not changed, in spite of the decrease in wheat. The closing of some New England mills has doubtless atfected the price of cotton to some extent, and yet the crop reports are sufficiently favorable to depress prices an they are stated to be implicated is eighth during the week without other influence. Failures for the week have been 207 in the United States, against 227 last year, and 17 in Canada against Bradstreet's statement: Midsummer conditions still govern most lines of trade and manufacture, but the volume of business, as indicated by bank clearances, shows little decrease, as is evidently considerably in advance of previous years at this time. A feature in trade this week is the better demand reported for wool east and west. This appearance of activity has given a decidedly more hopeful tone to this business, which, however, is not yet reflected in the manufacturing branch. Eastern wool markets are relatively the lowest in the world, and stocks held now, it is claimed, cannot be replaced at lower prices here or abroad.

Dullness has been a feature of the cereal markets. Old wheat supplies are rapidly decreasing, while the new crop movement, while in excess of last year, does not reach the proportions expect-ed. Millers complain of the scarcity of old wheat for mixing purposes, while the outlook favors world's stocks on Aug. 1, little in excess of one year ago at this time, and invisible supplies are generally thought to be heavily below those held last year. The shipping of Texas wheat to California is one effect of the shortage of supplies reported. Rather more attention is given the Klondike as a result of reported heavy arrivals of gold at Pacific coast points, and estimates of a season's output valued at $20,000,000 are current. Rather more animation is looked for in the child with her, and wobody seems to outfitting trade as a result thereof, but that advices from Alaska are not wholly favorable is proved by reports that large numbers of unsuccessful prospectors are anxious to get out of country. Cereal exports continue of a satisfactory volume, wheat shipments for the week, flour included, aggregating 2,303,469 bushels, against 2,910,827 last week, and 1,978,828 in the corre-Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. #### BALLOONS IN WAR

A Novel Battle in Cloudland Nearly Thirty Years Ago.

The announcement that the balloon is destined to play a roll in the present war with Spain recalls the aeronautic experiments made by the French during the great war in 1870 and 1871. As early, as 1792 balloons were used for military signaling France. But, in our times, during the siege of Paris by the German troops, frequent attempts were made Frenchmen to communicate with those inside the beleaguered city, and to disless encouraging than was expected, it patch men and matter from the capital by means of balloons. Of the balloons, 52 descended in France, 5 in Belgium, 4 in Holland, 2 in Germany and 1 in Norway. Only five of them were captured by the Germans, and two were never heard of, having been lost in the ocean. Of all the voyages of that time, however, none could compare for exciting and perilous incident with that of the well-known aeronaut, M. Nadar, who left Tours for Paris with important government dispatches at 6 o'clock one fine December morning. At 11 he was in view of the capital on the Seine. While floating about 3.000 meters above Fort Charenton, Nadar suddenly observed a second balloon on the Thinking it to be one leaving izon. Presently he descended to the car as the balloon righted itself, and throwing out a quantity of ballast, caused it to rise higher and higher. Then, seizing his rifle, he fired shots with rapid succession into the Prussian, which suddenly split and sunk to the earth. On reach ing the ground a detachment of Uhlans, who had been watching the combat from the plain, picked up the German aeronauts and rode off to the Prussian outposts. Nadar then alighted in safety within the girdle of the Paris forts, meeting with an enthusiastic ovation for his victory in the first balloon duel.—Baltimore Sun.

AMONG THE FLOWERS.

Go over the garden beds daily and remove all fading flowers. This is very necessary if you would keep your plants blooming. If seed is allowed to form, the plant will throw all its energies into the development of it, and you will get but few flowers; but if the process of nature is interfered with by preventing the plant from forming seed, it will as a general thing, make further efforts to perpetuate itself. In thus thwarting its efforts it can be kept flowering indefinitely. Remove all withered leaves from the lower portion of the gladiolus stalks. If they are left clinging there they soon give an untidy look to the spike. Tie the central stalk of each dahlia to a stout support, or the plant may be broken over by a eudden wind. Give morning stout strings to clamber over; but never attempt to train sweet peas on any support of this kind, for they will stubbornly refuse to make use of it. They like best a support of brush, but they will do very well if trained over wire netting with a coarse mesh. The netting should be at least five feet wide. If the season is a dry one, water must be supplied to plants in the beds. Give it after sundown, to avoid the too ra-pid evaporation which takes place if the application is made while the sun can get at the soil. Apply it close about the roots of the plants, where it will do most good. Keep the soil loose and open. This prevents its crusting over so that water will run off instead of into it. It also enables it to act some thing like a sponge, and absorb whatever moisture comes in the shape of

The strike inaugurated in San Francisco on April 4 by the allied printing trades in an effort to secure a nine hour day has now passed into history. After a bitter struggle, in which the Typographical Union alone expended over $14,000, the men have been forced to submit to a ten-hour day. During the progress of the strike an assess ment of 15 per cent was levied upon all earnings, and by this method over $9,000 was secured; the sum of $3,000 was borrowed from the International, and a little over $1,700 was received through generous contributions from sister organizations.

CORPORATIONS VERSUS TRADE UNIONS.

[Seth Low in the August Atlantic.] But while it is evident that the corporate form of conducting business has been of wide benefit to mankind, despite the abuses that have attached to it, says Seth Low in the August Atlantie, there may not be such general admission of the truth that the trade tance. union and the labor organization have been equally beneficial. It is sometimes said that labor organizes because capital does, and that it is obliged to do so in self-defense. I am far from saying that there is no truth in this stateent, but I think that it is only a partial statement of the truth. Labor organizes, primarily, not simply to con-tend against capital and for self-defense, but it organizes for precisely the same reason that capital does; that is, for its own advantage. It organizes in response to a tendency of the times which labor can resist no more than capital. It is the recognition by labor of the vision of the poet, that the individual withers, and the world is more and more." It hay not be de-nied that organized labor has often een cruel in its attitude to laboring men who wish to work upon an indi-vidual basis; but it cannot be justly said that it is more cruel than organized capital has been in its own field. The individual competitor has been reorer has been deprived of work by the labor organization. Indeed, I think it may be roughly said that there is no fault that can be charged against or-ganized labor which may not be charged with equal truth against organized capital. The forms in which these faults exhibit themselves, from the nature of the case, are different, but in both instances the fault is the same.

Reptiles Domesticated in Brazil and Doing the Work of Cats.

[From the Cincinnati Inquirer.] They appear to be turning snakes to a good account in Brazil, for tats have become so abundant there that a domestic snake, the giboya, which has about the circumference of the arm, is sold in the marketplace in Rio Janeiro to be kept in the house as a protection against rodents. It would seem that the serpent pursues its prey more for the pleasure there is in it than a sense of hunger, since it is said it rarely eats the rats caught. Similar in its habits and attachments to the domestic cat of our northern latitudes, the giboya will, it is said, find the way back to the house of its master even if transported to a considerable dis-

DAILY SPONGE BATH

Summer Is the Best Time to Begin the Hygienic Treatment.

Although "doctors differ" many things, they all agree as to the advicability of the daily bath, and the majority say that it is best taken cold, the bather's vitality is much below the average. A cold sponge bath is an excellent tonic as well as an admirable prophylactic. The summer is the best time to ac quire the habit. Use a bath ng glove or wash-rag and soap yourself rapidly and thoroughly from head to foot. This ought not to take more than two or three minutes, for the quick rubbing is especially desirable, both as exercise and for the skin. Then wash the soap on, rubbing as hard and as fast as you can, and then dry in the same fashion with a Turkish towel, or, still better. one of crash. The bath should occupy about ten minutes and leave you with a healthy glow when it is over. There are many people whose constitutions will not endure a cold plunge bath: very few who would not reap benefit from a daily sponge with water, and vigorous rubbing with a rough towel afterwards the year round. If cold water does not leave you glowing begin with lukewarm water every day until you can dispense with it en-

This group of 500 small islands in the North Pacific Ocean, which rumor says will be seized in the name of the United States by the naval vessels accompanying the expedition to the Philippine Islands, lies north of New Guinea and east of the Philippines. They have a gross area of only about 560 square miles, and a population (chiefly Malays) of 36,000. The most important island is Yap, and the largest, and at the same time the one best known to Americans, is Ponape. Near-ly all of the islands are of coral origin, though a few are basaltic. They were discovered in 1528, and have remained n the possession of Spain. England, Germany, and other European countries have unavailingly claimed them for coaling and commercial purposes. In 1885 Germany made its last claim, and after a long inter-national quarrel the pope arbitrated in favor of Spain. The people of the United States have been interested in the islands for more than forty years, because of the labors there and on other nearby islands of American missionaries. In 1890 Spanish troops destroyed all of the American mission property; Spain refused to pay an in-demnity, and in 1895, declined to permit American missionaries to resume work there.

FINDING THE RANGE

How Big Coast Defense Guns Are Accurately Aimed.

The Many Mathematical Problems Involved and the Great Rapidity With Which They Must Be Solved in Locating the Moving Target.

A reporter for the Boston Herald gives this interesting account of a talk with one of the regular army officers at Fort Hamilton, in Boston harbor:

"In the days of the civil war ranges were so very short that the gunner had no difficulty in seeing his target and laying his gun directly upon it. Wind and speed of target cut no figure because the projectile had such a short distance to pass over that neither had enough time to act to make any appreciable difference. But now when firing at a target eight miles away all of these things make themselves felt. There is the rifling in the bore, which gives the projectile the rotation necessary to keep it from tumbling and which will in our service carry the projectile to the right. Then the direction and force of the wind, the direction and speed of target, the temperature and barometric pressure of the air, which affect the resistance of the air to passage of the projectile, the kind of powder and weight of projectile. All these things have to be taken into account, and they each vary under all sorts of conditions, so that they can only be figured out for each particular shot at the time the gun is fired.

"Most of this information must be worked out from data obtained from firing tests and must be thoroughly assimilated by the expert artillerist. Then by taking observations at the time of firing data are obtained from which results can be computed.

"The most important part of the operation is of course to locate the target. The invention which has enabled us to do this is something wholly American—a development of our regular army. This invention is the range finder. It looks a simple affair-a tall modern tower, with a substantial foundation, built on a commanding height and connected with the guns, perhaps half a mile distant, by telephone. At the top is a large telescope, adjusted on a polished steel circular table. A dial on the telescope frame is cogged with the edge of the circular table and gives at any instant the direct reading in azimuth. Another dial is so arranged that elevation or depression of the telescope gives its indicator a corresponding movement. This is like the ordinary transit fitted to read vertical angles, but in this case instead of reading angles of depression distances are indicated in yards to the point where the line of sight pierces the water. An adjustment corrects for height of tide.

"It is only necessary, then, to point our telescope at the water line of the ship and read directly azimuth and distance. These are rapidly transmitted by telephone to the guns and plotted on a piece of drawing paper. Three of these observations, 20 seconds apart, are plotted, and the gun has to be fired 80 seconds after the last observation is taken or at the end of two minutes total time. We have the location of the target at three different times. It is now necessary to compute where it will be at the end of the 80 seconds. "A vessel running 12 knots an hour will pass over 1,200 feet in one minute or 1,600 feet in 60 seconds, so that if we fired at the point where she was at the last observation we might miss her 1,600 feet or some fraction of that, depending on her direction of sailing with reference to us. If we fired point blank-i. e., aiming right at her, we would miss as much as she would pass over in the time of flight of the projectile. This for a 10,000 yard range might be 20 seconds. "We have now the position of the target at a given future instant, but it is referred to the position of the range tower. We must now correct our data to refer to the gun's position. Then we are ready to make corrections for drift due to rifling, effect of wind, condition of atmosphere and abnormal powder and projectile. The gun is laid with the resulting data by means of degrees and minutes marked on the traverse circle of the gun platform and elevation are on the side of the carriage, and we are ready to fire. It is necessary to allow time-called 'time of flight'-for the projectile to reach the target at the end of the 80 seconds, so the guns must be fired that long ahead of time. "When you consider that all of this work must be done in 80 seconds, you see that one has to count his time by fractions of seconds to work like an automaton. No longer time can be allowed for computations, etc., as uncertainties increase as about the fifth power of the time.

"The aiming of the gun is all science now and needs experts. The firing and loading are the only work which the untrained mind can find work at, and even in these things, you understand, there is need of coolness and experience, for these big fellows are delicate machines, after all, and are worked by levers, have electrical appliances and are in other ways too precious to trust to untrained hands.

This may not sound so dreadful here in the calm of a peaceful afternoon. But imagine looking up sines and cosines, plotting accurate curves from mathematical data under a hail of projectile, with shells and bombs bursting around you! Fancy placidly sighting your telescope in the range tower, which a well directed shot may cut away from beneath you, and your hand must not tremble, your mind must not be distracted!"

The civilian seemed rather impressed. He could only venture timidly that it did seem as if there were great odds against

"So there are: But they have advantages too. In the Japanese-Chinese war the Japs, being clever, got ahead of the Chinese predictions of their position by running ahead full speed and then suddenly slacking up, so that the Chinese gunners began to grasp that ruse. Then they changed their tactics and would advance slowly at first, then suddenly crowd on all steam and speed away, leaving the gunners far behind."

"Oh! Then you can get around the 'absolute scientific accuracy?' "
The artillery officer laughed. "Yes, but you must remember the Japs were dealing with the Chinese. We know how to overcome that. How? Oh, but that's telling!'

Unappreciative.

"Do you know that an ordinary plane contains about a mile of wire?" "No. I should rather believe that an ordinary piano contains about a wagon load of tinware."—Chicago News.

The pension which the government alowed him after his discharge from the army on account of his wounds was barely enough to keep him in bread. So he resolved to enlist the Victoria cross in his own service and make it help him to become a self-supporting subject.

In despair the committee left him to move upon the manager. By solid arguments, or rather inducements, they prevailed upon him to cancel Find-later's engagement, and pay him up to its full term. This arrangement was perfectly satisfactory to Findlater, especially as he was getting thoroughly sick of ovations, and they promised him a place of some sort in the service of her majesty. So Findlater has retired from the stage.

Fifty years ago the allowance of paint in the British navy was very small, and sometimes the officers had to pay large sums in order that their ships might maintain a decent appearance. One of them resorted to a humorous expedient, either to soften the heart of the navy board, or, if that proved impossible, to express his opinion. Sir John Phillimore painted one side of his old yellow frigate black and white, and used the rest of the black paint in printing on the wher side, "No more paint." If England had remained passive, or had expressed a willingness to join in this continental coalition, there is not much doubt that we should have had arrayed against us armies and navies that would have put our very existence, if we had attempted to oppose them, to a severe test. From this ordeal we have been spared, for the reason that enlightened self-interest made it apparent to our English cousins that they could not afford to stand even as shent witnesses in the downfall of one great branch of the Anglo-Saxon family. England's control of the seas made it possible for her to put a veto upon any continental scheme of though in doing this there is not much doubt that she has, to quite a degree, intensified the hostility entertained for her on the other side of the English channel.

Mr. John Gilmour Speed warns girls of a marriageable age to beware of men of exceptional talent, and if they would seek safety to choose husbands from the class of industrious mediocrity. Intelligence helps a man make a living, helps him to make himself agreeable and helps him to appreciate the importance of doing both. Girls about to marry should guard, perhaps, against choosing men who are so clever that they won't care for their wives, but they must take thought also against choosing men who are so dull that living with them will be uninteresting. It is just as bad-worse, perhaps-to marry a man who does interest you as to marry one whose thoughts you cannot share.

SPANISH NEWSPAPERS.

Spanish newspapers are queer things, even outside of their "news" about the United States, the Indians and what not, and their queerness is due as much to the public which serve as to the inconceivable ignorance or wilful dishonesty or both of the people who make them.

LOSSES IN GREAT BATTLES

The Percentages Vastly Higher Than in the Fighting at Santiago.

(New York Sun.) As compared with the loss inflicted on the United States forces by the Confederates in the great battles of the civil war the loss at Santiago is small when the fact is taken into consideration that our forces in the Cuban bat tle were assaulting a fortifled position of the enemy. Another Point of View. The following article, from the New York Vogue, presents rather a new point of view:

"A common plaint of those who remain in the toils of poverty or the equally soul and body stifling environment of "small means" is that those of their at-one-time associates who have prospered are more apt than not to neglect the acquaintances of their poverty days. Making allowance for a vast amount of snobbishness characteristic of all social circles, there is still good reasons why persons in different walks of life should drift apart. "The possession of money in these days means more than the pursuit of pleasure, especially when the children are growing and are being placed socially as they should be. Along with money comes a desire to acquire a smattering at least of the social graces that stamp the gentleman or gentlewoman, and travel and gradual assoclation with the leisure class of this and other countries begets ambition and develops a myriad of interests far removed from the world of poverty. The man or woman who has enjoyed for so short a space of time as five years in small quantities on each slice, and the advantages that money can give is practically made over and he and she has grown away from their humble original circumstances. Their thoughts, interests and ambitions have nothing in common with the thoughts and hopes of their associates of earlier days. "Intercourse with those who have time and opportunity to practice the formalitles of social life usually develops in the new rich the critical faculty, so far at least as the social code is concerned, and gaucheries of dress and conduct come to be annoying to them. It is not possible for work-a-day people, however innately refined, to keep as they need it, and possibly a can in touch with the world of wealth and fashion, and association between these tashion, and association between these tashion, and association between these tashions, and association between these tashions. two extremes cannot but be restricted is brought it should be poured into a because there are practically no interests common to both. Entertaining is reduced therefore to either an exploitation of the fine goings on of the rich hostess, in which case the visitors are thrust into the undignified position of a sort of social gallery audlence, or if the entertainer be amiable she allows herself to be bored by the recital of the happenings in the humble family, which recital is made up of a tiresome round of getting and losing jobs, finding places for the girls and boys, the hardness of times and kindred depressing topics. In either case the position of the visitor is not that of an equal. This is presupposing that the persons concerned are average people who are not interested in intellectual pursuits or in the knowledge of the schoolspersons between whom there is no community of interest in books and reading. In an out-of-the-average case where both parties were intellectual the difference in social conditions would have little or no influence on inter-

There is another aspect to this matter of the poor friends of rich people as regards society. The wife of the now millionaire may be eager to do honor to the friends of humbler days by presenting them to the social set into which she finally fights or maneuvers her way, but the other members of that set would more likely than not seriously object, if they did not flatly refuse, to meet ladies of no social position.
And they need not be prompted to this attitude by snobbishness. The more reasonable explanation is that commonplace people are uninteresting, and intercourse with them is almost invartably a bore; and as they are poor, there is no possible prospective advantage to compensate for the ordeal of going through a dinner or a reception with them. "The fact that there can be no equation between rich and poor, as society is today carried on, may as well faced first as last; and no amount of Christian charity or amiability on the part of old families or the new rich can alter what is a fixed factor in class social conditions. Eventually the world may become so thorough-going in its socialism that a rich class will cease to exist, but until that not altogether alluring social state is arrived at the present sharp social distinctions tween rich and poor are likely to be strictly maintained.'

True Happiness.

From Mrs. Ritchie's new volume of the biographical Thackeray, we quote the following letter, which Thackeray wrote in 1838 to his wife:

"Here we have been two years married and not a single unhappy day. Oh, I do bless God for all this happiness which he has given me! It is so great that I almost tremble for the future, except that I humbly hope (for what man is certain about his own weakness and wickedness?) our love is strong enough to withstand any pressure from without, as it is a gift greater than any fortune, is likewise one superior to poverty and sickness, or any other worldly evil with which Providence may visit us. Let us pray, as I trust there is no harm, that none of these may come upon us; as the est and wisest Man in the world prayed that he might not be led into I think happiness temptation. is as good as prayers, and I feel in my heart a kind of overflowing thanksgiving which is quite too great to describe in writing. A good steak does not need any pounding; the object of pounding a steak is to break its fibers. A pounded steak may appear to taste more tender to a person not knowing or never hav ing tasted a good steak, but an experienced palate cannot be deceived. A steak should never be less than three quarters of an inch in thickness, and it should always be broiled.

Don't Pound It.

2, 2, Cold Roast Beef.

To utilize cold roast beef, make it into beef olives, after the following formula: Prepare a light forcemeat with bread crumbs, suet, chopped yarsley and herbs, an egg to bind the whole, and pepper and salt; a little fine sausage is also an improvement. The roast beef is sliced very thinly, the mixture laid these are then rolled lightly, fastened with a little skewer, and dipped into to their mistresses, and curiously, egg and bread crumbs, then fried in enough, it has attracted very little athot fat for a few minutes. #### Keeping Milk.

Consumers of milk are too often indifferent to their ways of keeping milk after it reaches them. When delivered in cans, it is a common custom of many people to draw from the same will not be emptied until a fresh supglass or earthenware pitcher, and when this is emptied it should be made absolutely clean and then well aired. Those who have young children dependent upon milk food ought to receive a fresh supply both morning and night, otherwise in the warm months it is extremely liable to become unwholesome. With but few in cities is this possible, and, therefore, in summer it will be well to scald the supply when recived, to prevent it becoming sour.

Orange Marmalade.

In making orange marmalade the Scotch housekeeper consults her own uses. If they all like their marmalade decidedly bitter she puts in all the grate. If not, she keeps out a certain portion and treasures it in a spice box to flavor puddings, custards, and creams. Containing, as it does, the essential oil of the fruit, the "grate" is very valuable for such purposes. Discarded skins may be converted into candled peel to use in the making of fruit cake, currant bread and buns.

Best Fruits for Jam.

Small fruits, as currants, raspberries and blackberires are best made into jam. Somtimes a combination of currant juice. Currant jam is very nice with a little chopped orange peel in it. Black raspberries and blackberries are best by themselves. It is well in making jam to remove some of the juice while it can be taken clear from the fruit. This juice may he bottled for use as pudding sauce.

In a good many fami-black of the wood, and I jes' moved lies this position is occupied by an off with nothin' more'n a pipe and a lies this position is occupied by an unmarried sister or maiden aunt. A 'mother's help" is a recognized member of many households, and the col-umns of the local newspapers contains numerous advertisements of situations vacant or wanted. The duties of a mother's help are manifold; she assists in the household, the dairy, perhaps, the household sewing or mending, dressing the children or teaching them the rudiments of their education. Sometimes she is a sort of nursery governess with additional household duties, sometimes she acts chiefly as housekeeper, with occasional care of the children, but she is always what her name indicates, the mother's help. Her wages vary from a good round sum down to nothing, except her food and lodging.

PRIZES FOR SERVANTS

The Fund Founded by Isaac Duckett of London in 1620, It is a mistake to think that the servant question is practically new," said a man just home from London, "and nothing I saw or heard in all England interested me more than the proof that way back in the seventeenth century maidservants were, as a class, flighty and unreliable. A fund was established in 1620 to reward maldservants who had been faithful tention. Isaac Duckett founded this

Mrs. Duckett's distress was felt by Mr. Duckett, who was something of a seventeenth century reformer and philanthropist. For the benefit of posterity, when he died in 1620, he a sum of money, about £400, to be invested, and, according to his will, the income of it was to be awarded to servants who had served their mistresses faithfully. The conditions which Isaac stipulated have been observed carefully down to the present day. According to them, maidservants, to be eligible, must be not less than 25 years of age, and must have lived for seven consecutive years in the upper portion of the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn. They must also produce satisfactory testimonials as to their character as servants. Those who wish to apply for a share of this reward have only to notify the clerk of the charity and appear at the parish house of the church on the date specified by the bequest. The last award was made a month ago, and there were fifteen applicants. Each maid was neatly dressed, and each bore a written guarantee of their faithfulness from her present employer. The names of the successful ones were not made public. I suppose that this precaution was to prevent the prize winners from being tempted away from their mistresses by women who were looking for domestic jewels and were willing to pay high wages. The original £400 was invested in real estate in Dartford, Kent, and this property is now valued at £7,000. I felt, after learning of this fund, that I should have liked to have known old

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time-She Makes a Statement. TORONTO, ONT .- "I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came ever me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottle. GHICAGO, July 22.—There was a tles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsapa-Filla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. W. PARM, Degrassi Street.

profound sorrow by thousands of boys | Helen Kellar Meets and Converses With Dr. Edward Everett Hale.

From time to time articles have appeared in newspapers and magazines of the remarkable versatility of Helen Kellar, the blind mute, who is going through Harvard, Dr. Edward Ever-ett Hale, "the grand old man of Mas-sachusetts," as he is known to many, recently had an opportunity of conversing with this girl and became more than interested in her. He was visiting the pretty village of Wrent-ham, Mass., for quiet and rest and was the guest of an old friend and parish ioner. Miss Kellar and her teacher Miss Sullivan, were also stopping at this resort at the summer home of friend, and before he left Dr. Hale called on Miss Kellar. It was exceed-ing interesting to witness the meeting between her and the good doctor. They conversed for a long time, her fingers upon his lips—and her wonderful cultivation was brought out and shown by this interview. Dr. Hale repeated slowly a few lines of Greek poetry; she immediately finished the verse in a clear and distinct voice. NEWSPAPERS AND THE PUBLIC. Cleveland Plaindealer: Chicago newspaper publishers seem to be of the opinion that the recent stereotypers' strike was something of a blessing in disguise, and that a temporary inconvenience may result in permanent good. In the first place, they figured out to their own satisfaction, if not to flat of the Chicago people, that the total suspension of publication was money in their cash drawers.

The price of white paper and of most things that go to the making of a newspaper has increased of late, while the price at which the newspaper is sold remains the same. The Chicago publishers assert that under those cir-cumstances the more papers they publish the worse off they are, unless they get more advertisements and higher rates for them. When they suspended publication on account of the strike, they also suspended the posting of bulletins. That rendered unnecessary the expenditure of money for special dispatches, and another saving was effected. It would be unfair to pursue their explanations further and suggest the logical inference that it would be money in their pockets not to resume publication at

One permanent gain is the assurance that they will never again be troubled by strikes so recklessly entered upon and so unwarranted as that just defeated by their firm action.

She could not walk, nor again. was she able, through nervousness, either to ride or to enter into outdoor sports. One day she thought of the skipping-rope of her childhood, After a few weeks' practice she began to gain in health and to decrease in size. She makes a daily record of 600 skips. As she exercises several times a day, her record represents the sum total of her day's work. Her custom has been widely followed. Women accustomed to outdoor exercise and made wretched by confinement indoors or to a limited area, use the skipping rope. Practiced with prudence, no other form of exercise, it is said, is equal to it in its beneficial results, or accomplishes greater wonders in reducing flesh .- Harper's Bazar.

PROGRESS OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES. Librarian R. W. Blackwell, while attending the convention of the American Libraries Association in Chautauqua, recently, picked up ideas which may lead to some innovations at the Public Library here. The convention was a very interesting one, with 490 members present. Attention was directed chiefly to college and schood work. The practice of having special rooms for small children was strongly ecommended. There should be an attendant in charge of the room, and the books should be especially arranged for the little ones, it was said. The value of encouraging the use of libraries by students in connection with school work was also pointed out, and the sentiment in havor of having museums of art and science in connection with libraries for their educative value was strongly evidenced. The merits of traveling libraries were presented. British Columbia is the only Canadian province that has yet adopted the plan. By it any small village or community can obtain 100 standard books from the government for six months for $5, and the system is meeting with general fa-

UNDER THE WATER

An Ancient City Submerged by an Earthquake

Over 200 Years Ago -Port Royal, in the West Indies-The Ruins Still Visible.

A Kingston, Jamaica, correspondent says: Beneath the blue waters of this quain old town lies buried a city which was once the seat of wealth and profligacy and all their attendant train of palaces of licentiousness and closed above them and 3,000 luckless mortals. Today, when the waters of the bay are still and shining in the tropical sun, the sailors may lean over the sides of their skiffs, and, peering down through the azure depths, see the fishes swimming in and out of the arches of the old cathedral, the sharks moving lazily among the great palaces and the sea moss twining around the windows through which the music and song of the revelers were drifting when the fearful visitation came and wiped the city from the face of the earth. Two hundred years have passed since that June day when Port Royal disappeared into the sea. Three other cities builded upon its site have been destroyed by fire and hurricane and earthquake. The avenging power which descended upon the sticken city seemed to pursue it even after its thousands had found watery graves in the bay, which now shimmers so decided to send the balloon, which had placidly except when the fearful typhoons sweep over it and lash its wa-

It was June 7, 1692. Port Royal lay sweltering under the heat of a tropical Builded upon a tongue of summer. land extended into the ocean, it was swept by breezes which brought with them little relief from the direct rays of the sun. The harbor was filled with shipping from every port in the world, for Port Royal was a place of wealth and luxury. Great Britain's men-of-war lay in the offing with their sails furled, and their men reveled ashore in the city. Spanish buccaneers, laden to the guards with stolen wealth, silks, jewels and gold, the spoil of Mexico and Central America, swung at anchor and their dark-browed crews slept or lounged lazily about the decks while their masters joined the festivities ashore. In the houses and palaces of the city there was revelry and feasting and drinking, for the pirates of the Spanish main spent freely what they secured so easily. Gold was as common as copper is today. The toddlers in the streets, when they held out baby hands for alms to the passersby, were rewarded with a gold piece

Women attired in silks and laces which cost human blood in the making and the stealing, lounged on luxurious divans close to the open windows facts, and were it not that there is of the houses and drank deep draughts with their paramours. License ran riot. For years everyone in the place had been growing richer, and with the wealth came the desire for ease and pleasure which saps a people's plaint to its former height. strength. ure, and with the arrival of every pirate the bacchanalian revels re-doubled in license and depravity. The people lounged to church, but it was only a mockery of worship. They were drunk with their prosperity and insane with their longing for the pleasures of the table and the wine cup. On that fated day when the vengeance which overtook Sodom and Gomorrah descended upon Port Royal the revelry was at its height, when there came a sound like the great crack of doom, the earth trembled, and the half-drunken revelers rushed from the houses in dismay. The great cathedral rocked and its tower trembled a moment, and, while the people were asking one another, white-lipped and terrified, what manner of thing was happening, the earth gaped open like a mighty jaw, and closed again with thousands in its maw, catching many holding them, crushed and broken, with their helpless arms extended toward the heaven they had so long forgotten. Scarce had this occurred when, with a mighty roar, the whole city began to slide into the ocean. In vain the affrighted people began to flee to the high land beyond the city. They were caught and engulfed before they had taken a score of steps. Hundreds were overtaken by the rising flood as they sat at the tables with their wine half drunk, their food half eaten, their thought half spoken. Praying, screaming and blaspheming the power which had visited its wrath upthem, the people were hurried into the ocean in the very houses where they sat. The ships in the harbor careened and sunk one by one as the great seis-London, July 23.—Lieut. beneath the waves. Not long after this frightful disaster came another upon the city, which took the place of the one which slipped into the sea. Port Royal was rebuilded, not with its old splendor and magnificence, not with its former glory and luxuriousness, but as a seaport city, and in 1703, a few years after it had assumed the proportions of a city, it was entirely destroyed by fire. Again it was built up, but the avenging power was not yet sated, for a hurricane swept the greater portion of the town $75,000. Two fireman were seriously in- into the ocean in 1722. And once dred years later, when the city had once more risen on its old site, it was laid Jos. Orde, of Orillia township, who in ashes once more, in 1815. Repeated stabbed his stepson Lawrence with a destructions have left nothing of the city as it once was, but in 1880 a hurricane destructive to life and property swept over the city and once more partially destroyed it.

A LATER CATASTROPHE. In his "Annals of Jamaica," published in 1828, Rev. George Wilson Bridges quotes from a letter written by one of the survivors—a rector—two or three days after the disaster, which is, in part, as follows:

"After I had been at church reading, which I did every day since I was rector of this place, to keep up some show of religion, and was gone to a place 243 DUNDAS STREET hard by the church, where the merchants meet, and where the president of the council was, who came into my company and engaged me to take a glass of wormwood wine as a whet be fore dinner, he, being my very good friend. I stayed with him, upon which he lighted a pipe of tobacco, which he was pretty long in taking, and not being willing to leave him before it was out, this determined me from going to dinner to one Captain Roden's, whither I was invited, whose house, upon the In one awful moment the earth first concussion, sunk into the earth gaped, the seas opened to receive the and then into the sea with his wife and family, and some that were come to dine with him. Had I been there I had been lost. But to return to the president and his pipe of tobacco. Before that was out I found the ground rolling and moving under my feet, upon which I said unto him: 'Lord, sir. what is that?' He replied, being a very grave man: 'It is an earthquake. Be not afraid; it will soon be over.' But he disappeared and was never heard of again. Continuing, the rector wrote: "I made toward Morgan's fort, because I thought to be there securest from falling houses, but as I was going I saw the earth open and swallow up a multitude of people, and the sea mounting in upon them over the fortifications. Moreover, the large and famous burying ground was destroyed and the sea, washed away the carcases. The harbor was covered with dead bodies, floating up and down.' Kingston now stands close to where Port Royal, the old town of revelry and vice, once stood. The ships in the harbor float over the houses, which slipped into the sea, and far, far below their keels lie the imprisoned people who were swept away, with vain prayers for mercy upon their lips. The spire of the cathedral is most prominent of the ruins here in the clear water, as it had raised its taper finger towards heaven, high above the other buildings. Close to it lie the fleets of Spain and England, sunk in the fearful hurricanes which sweep these placid waters, playing about the doorways and casements of the houses and shops, where vice once held sway. No man has ever penetrated to the depths where the phantom city lies, to explore its secrets, two centuries old, and all that can be learned of the sunken town is gleaned by peering into the transparent waters on a bright day when the wind does not ruffle the surface af the harbor.

In Hawaii they have one very unique custom in regard to debt. Any stranger can get credit almost from the time he sets foot on the islands, but so long as he owes a dollar he is not permitted to leave the country. That some notable and flagrant examples of vice should have come to her knowledge could scarcely suffice. Unfortunately the number of persons of the highest respectability who had said very nearly the same thing, and were still going about the world in full enjoyment of their liberty, and clothed in their right mind, would more than fill all the lunatic asylums in the universe.

It was then found that Valeria was absolutely insane in money-spending, and that she was an opium-eater, two very useful manias. By means of the first, she could be deprived of the power to hold money; and without money she was powerless; by means of the second, her friends at a distance might be made to wish that some restraint might be put upon her till she should have been enabled to break a habit which had alread unsettled her mind and might destroy her life.

There was a little effort made to ascribe to an aberration of mind her known dislike of Miss Cromo; but it was found that people insane upon that subject were but too common, and the effort expired in a laugh. Miss Pendleton went to consult with Miss Cromo; but, as the former was "devoted to God." while the latter was supposed to be in the other camp, it was necessary to begin with a disinfecting ceremony.

Pendleton introduced the subject of religion. Miss Cromo professed herself contrite, humble, and believing. The base metal to which she had confessed to est conviction. She the clever mocker of 60, almost went on her knees to a woman fifteen or twenty years younger than herself, whose mind and profession she had ridiculed and despised. She assured Miss Pendleton that she performed her religious duties regularly, went to mass and said her prayers morning and evening; and she listened with meekness to a somewhat against backsliding. Prayers having thus been said before meat, they proceeded piously and lovingly to mangle Valeria's reputation, to plot against her freedom, per-haps against her reason and her life. They arrived at a penfect understand-precious sinners. She certainly did not dislike Valeria: on the contrary, she liked her while she was submissive; but she considered it in some sort a duty to sacrifice her in order to prevent a scandal. Having found herself strengthened by Miss Cromo, Miss Pendleton went to visit another lady. Mrs. Harwood was a person of a very different character. She was a childless widow in good circumstances, but in bad health. She was a kind friend to Vareria, who had a sincere respect and affection for her. Of an upright and honorable nature, the qualities of her heart were even exceeded by those of her head; and her intellect, if she had had the full use of it, would have been of an almost masculine character.

A peculiarity in her was the great respect which she professed and demanded for authority; and this sentiment was expressed less with a feminine reverence than with the masculine assertion of one who assumes to be authoritive in himself, and is defending the privileges of his own order. For while she denounced a popular independence of opinion and thought, was herself notably independent with those whom she acknowledged to be authorities, and very hard to silence when not convinced was wrong. Once convinced, however, she submitted nobly. She had the partial justice of a good intellect; but justice is never perfect without imagination, and she was utterly unimaginative. her interlocutor would pause in embarrassment or fear, according to his degree of familiarity with this phenomenon, she would suddenly resume the conversation where she had left it, and go on talking, without seeming to be aware that she had interrupted herself. If the person had continued talking to her, she had either no knowledge, or a very distorted idea, of what had been said.

This nervous malady had other con-sequences. One was an impatience of being kept waiting or of being contradicted, which would sometimes throw her into a sudden fury, as startling to one not accustomed to her as a sudden squall across a glassy lake. Her face would crimson with an instantaneous rush of blood, her voice would rise almost to a scream, and, though infirm, she would for the moment be endowed with the agility of youth and health. Then, as suddenly, the squall was over, and she seemed as unconscious of it as she had been of the

whether another should be put under restraint The subject pained and disturbed her; she was sorry for Valeria, and she did not feel herself well enough to take any responsibility in the affairs others, though, on hearing the stories that were brought to her, she unhesitatingly decided that Valeria ought to be sent to an asylum. Shut up within the four walls of her house, and utterly lacking in that artistic curiosity and in the lively charity which might have made her, had she possessed them, wish to know what was going on in the world, she knew nothing and cared nothing beyond her own circle, and she held her exclusion to be a virtue. Those habits of observation which make the artist and the writer, she held to be a fault in Valeria. It was not alone Miss Pendleton who talked to this lady; Miss Cromo, with whom she had no intimacy, and in whom she had no confidence, invited | Erb, M.P. her to go out to drive, and came for her in a cab that they might talk without interruption. Miss Cromo began with praises of Valeria. She was so fond of her; so sorry for her; poor Valeria had so much talent; had Mrs. Howard read Valeria had apparently been again her last story in the Sunrise Month-plated over. She was under the deep-ly? No? What a pity! She would herself lend it to her. She liked it better than anything else she had previously read of Valeria's

Miss Cromo, doing all that she could to prove that Valeria was fit only for a lunatic asylum, begged that she might not be sent to one, and Mrs. Harwood insisted that there was no other course possible. Though she knew absolutely nothing of the case except by hearsay, she considered it perfectly clear, and abundantly proved. Whether she would have considered. Whether she would have considshe persuaded herself that it was ered such witnesses sufficient if it had taking all into consideration, been a question of shutting herself up,

> The two doctors, though apparently the most important, were, in reality secondary characters in the drama. An able and honest physician would have swept this network away like a spider's web.

Good care was taken that no such person should be called. Dr. Kraus arm at or near the wrist. had been skillfully manipulated by Miss He understood that he might make friends by pronouncing against Valeria, and enemies by resisting the inkfluences brought to bear upon him. He certainly did not expect that his dictum would ever be called into ques-tion, or he would never have dared to pronounce it. He had to choose between the weak and the strong, and he did not hesitate. Still he would never of himself have ventured to eall such a physician as Dr. Lasalles in consultation. He would have preferred, maybe, to call a man of some reputation, and throw the responsibility off his own shoulders. He was not allowed to. Dr. Lacelles was a familiar visitor of Miss Cromo's, and being, according to her, a solemn ass, was admirably calculated to sign the document which should put Valeria out of the way. Dr. Lacelles was doubtless entirely honest, and certainly not malicious But he was fond of the marvelous; and he naturally liked to be of some importance in his profession. This was probably the first time in his life that he had ever been called in consultation, and it is doubtful if his professional services had been required beforein any way since his sojourn in the Holy City.

> Made Possible by the Construction or & Vehicle That Will Soon Be Running on the Streets of Toledo, Ohio -An Example for Canada.

An experiment in transportation will soen be in operation in the city of Toledo, Ohio, that will be watched with much interest by the farmers contiguous to the larger cities of Canada. Colonel Joseph C. Bonner, a prominent capitalist of that city, has just been given a franchise by the City Council for the use of car tracks throughout the city upon which he may run his patented "rail wagons" for a term of one year. Briefly The San Jose scale near Blenheim is explained at the outset, the Bonner "rail wagen" is a combination vehicle on which

It is so constructed as to be readily convertible for use upon any ordinary roadway or upon a railroad track. It can be shifted from the one to the other at will, without the necessity of reloading or rehandling the contents between points of shipment and destin-

The wagon proper is patterned after the ordinary improved road wagon, modified, of course, for the special nature of the service contemplated. The running gear and springs are of standard construction, having a carrying capacity of from three to seven tons, depending upon the class of freight to be carried.

The rail truck is not materially different from the car truck in general use an inside diameter of 8 by 8 feet, and is on electric railways, except that it is provided with special attachments for automatically gripping and supporting the wagon which comprises its load. The illustrations show clearly the detail con- small bridges are in course of construcstruction and arrangement of the truck tion. It is the intention of the company and wagon.

The promoters of the enterprise have promised the City Council of Toledo will contain sufficient water for two that convenient receiving and distributing stations will be located within the municipal boundaries. Bulk merchandise will be handled; parcel, mail and express matter also, the wagons making store-to-store collections and deliveries, accomplished by the wagons taking the rail line of travel least used for passenger traffic, and by operation at night when streets are not otherwise in service.

to the systematic energy of the thrifty market gardener, the dairyman and the fruit grower. Improved conditions will result to the truck farmer, who will no longer be obliged to spend his night in long weary drives in order to reach an early market. Instead, his day's harvest will be transported to town during the night by electric rail wagon while man and horse refresh themselves in sleep.' The manufacturers of the wagon are already negotiating to place their vehicles in several States where the country is threaded with electric railways. Few people have any knowledge of the real cost of transportation by horse and wagons or comprehend the amount of money expended needlessly every year through failure to provide proper roadways and modern tramways.

The table given herewith shows the results of actual observations on the part of mechanical engineers. The figures are the cost for moving one ton a distance one mile on level roadways, with different pavements and under average conditions: Iron rails, 1.28 cents; asphalt, 2.70 cents; stone, paving dry and in good order, 5.33 cents; stone, paving ordinary condition, 12 cents;

POWER SCHEME

for Hamilton, Ont.

The Cataract Power Company's Unique Power Distribution Plan-Will Supply It Along the 35-Mile Route From St. Catharines to and Including the Ambitious City.

One of the most interesting power distribution plants now under way is that of the Cataract Power Company, of Hamilton, which proposes to supply power at any point along a 35-mile line from St. Catharines to Hamilton. This is the first big attempt to carry into effect a long distance power supply plant in Canada.

The plan of the company is to obtain a water supply from the old Welland Canal, at All inburg, and carry it by means of an artificial channel, four and one half miles in length, to the brow of the mountain overlooking Twelve-Mile

At DeCew Falls a very large reservoir is in course of construction, and other storage reservoirs are being built between DeCew Falls and Allanburg, so as to provide an abundant supply of water. The water will be carried to the power house from the reservoir through pipes 8 feet in diameter, the fall being 275 feet. The power house has already been crected at DeCew Falls. The old and new canals come together near the village of Allanburg, and it is near the junction that the tap is made to permit of the water being utilized for the driving of the power generators at DeCew Falls. From the headgates the water is conducted through an artificial channel or canal. For a distance of two miles from the intake the canal is now practically completed. About two miles from Allanburg a large aqueduct has been erected for the purpose of carrying the water across the creek. This aqueduct is a wooden flume 600 feet in length, with supported by a steel truss. Considerable work is yet to be accomplished to carry the water from the flume to the brow of the mountain, and to do this numerous to provide three large storage reservoirs, one of which is already completed. These days' operations, and the danger from

There will also be built at the brow of the mountain a concrete wall 600 feet in length and 15 feet high. A cutting 38 feet deep and 14 feet wide was made in the rock at the top of the bank, in which the pipe line will be placed This cut, together with a view of the power house, is shown. The distance from the top of the mountain to the base of the power house is 906 feet, the vertical height being 275 feet, as already noted. This gives a head nearly double that of Niagara Falls, and a pressure of 135 pounds to the square inch.

The foundation for the pipe line made of stone, with a pier and drain every 12 feet. At the top of the line the pipe is three eights of an inch in thickness, gradually increasing to 1 inch. It is a circular steel tube, the first section being 9 feet in diameter, and then it diminishes to 8 feet 6 inches, 8 feet, and finally 7 feet 6 inches.

MILITARY EXPERTS

Those Sent to Watch the War by the Principal European Nations and the Kingdom of Japan.

Military experts from the principal European nations, and one from Japan as well, accompanied the American army of invasion to Cuba. It is the custom for other nations to send trained men to observe the conduct of wars. so that their own army may imitate the good points of the combatants and avoid repeating mistakes The men who are with General Shafter in Cuba are all men with reputations for their military knowledge. Captain A. H. Lee of the British royal artillery has been with the army for more than a month. He spent several days at Chickamauga before joining Shafter's army. Captain Lee has made many friends among the officers. He has seen service. but he modestly declined to speak of his record when asked for a brief sketch of his military career. In this respect Captain Lee is much like Captain Sir Bryan Leighton of the cavalry. Captain Leighton is a wealthy baronet who dearly loves a fight. As he could not come over here as the representative of his government, he came, on his own account, and he has been living with the Ninth cavalry as the guest of Colonel Hamilton. He invariably refuses to talk about himself, but his record is a dashing one, and he owns many articles of gold and silver which bear tell-tale inscriptions. One jeweled trinket is inscribed, "Presented by Her Majesty in recognition of his great gallantry at-"

Another reminder of his service is a canvas jacket worn next his skin, which conceals an unhealed wound, received in the African campaign. Captain Leighton has seen service in India and South Africa. He is on furlough from his regi-

In 1890 he was an attache of the German embassy at Rome, and then he was sent on a scientific expedition into central Africa. He is a graduate of the University at Kiel and has a legal diploma. He also studied at Paris and Berlin. In last February, while attached to the embassy of his government at Washington, he married Mrs. May Stanley Lay, a wealthry widow of Baltimore.

Captain A. Wester of the Swedish army is the military attache to the legation of Sweden and Norway at Washington. He will go through this war as he did through the Turke-Grecian conflict. He has served two years in the Swedish cavalry, two years in the artillery, and is just completing his second year in the infantry arm of the service. He was with Stanley in Africa, Captain Abilgaard of the Norwegian army and Surgeon-General Thurlow also are attached to General Shafter. These gentlemen from Norway and Sweden are formal and punctilious to a degree in many little matters to which our own military officers pay less attention. Their salute is not a mere wave of the hand. It is an operation in which care and plenty of time are consumed. Colonel Yernoloff, military attache to the Russian imperial embassy at Washington, is on the general staff of the Russian army. He was formerly of the horse artillery. He represented his government in the Thrko-Grecian war, and saw service in the Turko-Russian war of 1877.78. He was at the siege of Plevna. He is a graduate of the military school at St. Petersburg, and has spent seven years as an attache at the legation at London. Major G. Shibe of the Japanse legation at London is a major of artillery, and was in the field in the Chino-Japanese war, taking part in the battles of Wai-Wai and Port Arthur. He is a graduate of the military college at Tokio. Lieutenant Joseph Rodler of the Austro-Hungarian legation is a naval officer who holds a commission on the Donau. He has seen service affoat as well as in the diplomatic field, and was on a battleship when the powers blockaded the ports of Greece in 1886. He is a graduate of the Austrian naval school at

Boys Quiet Through the Sad Drowning

Accident-None of Them in the Storm.

Y. M. C. A. Camp, Kettle Point, July 22 .- The late storm here on Wednesday was very severe. The sad story of the drowning has already told by The Advertiser. When Miss Bentley lost her hold and went down, Arthur Ovens swam around the boat a couple of times, and falling to An Alteration Sale in Order-Prices see her, he struck for the shore, reaching it in safety. Percy Ovens held on to the boat till it floated to shore. Boys from the Y. M. C. A. camp went down to render what assistance they could, and patrolled the beach for 21/2 hours. The capsized boat was first found, and shortly afterwards the body. The drowning oc-curred about 1% miles from the camp. Miss Bentley's watch stopped at 11:10. The body was taken to Montreal for burial on the 2:30 train. None of our boys were out in the storm, and so we were not anxious about anyone, until word came that a wreck had occurred at the point. It was pitch dark, and all the larger boys turned out to nelp. Today (Thursday) we did little, as the drowning cast a gloom over the camp.

MORE PEG-LEGS

Hovering Near Wallaceburg. Chief Williams received word this morning that one of the tramps who had been held down east on suspicion of being the murderer of P. C. Michael Toohey, had been released from jail, as he was not the man wanted. Every hour in the day comes some sensational report about the appearance of a peg-leg. The following from Wallace-burg is the latest: A man answering the description published by Chief Constable Williams, of London, wanted for the shooting of Policeman Toohey, has been prowling around the country in the vicinity of Baby's Point, a few miles west of this place, for several days. People who have seen him believe he is the muchlooked-for tramp. He acts suspiciously, avoids company, begs food, but refuses to enter houses, although he was invited in during a rainstorm, Persons who attempt to interview him or follow him are given clearly to understand they must leave him alone. He wears a shoe on the wooden leg; pants full length. The straps holding the peg on are plainly discernible. No at-

Endured by Those Who Suffer From Sciatica-A Victim Tells How to

Probably no trouble that afflicts mankind causes more intense agony than sciatica. Frequently the victim is utterly helpless, the least movement causing the most agonizing pains. Those who are suffering from this malady the following statement from Mr. phia yesterday, after spending two John Hayes, of Hayesville, York weeks in this city.

John Hayes, of Hayesville, York county, N. B., will point the road to relief and cure. Mr. Hayes says: "For upward of twenty years I have suffered from weakness and pain in the back. Some four years ago my trouble was intensified by Sciatica settling in my right leg. What I suffered seems almost beyond description. I employed three doctors but all to no purpose; I had to give up work entirely, and almost despaired of life. This continued for two years-years filled with misery. At this time I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes both the sciatica and the weakness in the back which had troubled me so long, were gone. I was again a well man and feeling fifteen years younger than when I began the pills. Nearly two years has passed since I discontinued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in that time no symptom of the trouble has shown itself. Under God I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for me.' Mr. Hayes voluntarily testifies to the truth of the above statement before Edward Whosead, Esq., J.P., and his statements are further vouched for by Rev. J. N. Barnes, of Stanley, N. B.
