LAST WEEK'S SUB TOLL HEAVIEST IN MANY WEEKS

HEAVIEST TOLL BY SUBMARINES SINCE THE "BLACK WEEK"

Last Week's British Ship Losses By U-Boats Greatest Since Worst Period of February.

London, June 20.—The weekly list of British losses in torpedoed ships, which will be issued today, will show the highest total of many weeks, the number of ships sunk being comparable to the worst week since the ruthless U-boat campaign began. The returns week by week show that the U-boat activities run in waves, and it is assumed that this week is the crest of a period of super-activity noticed the previous week.

Many Are Escaping.

The last week includes one day which is regarded as a record for the number of vessels lost. The situation, however, is not regarded over-pessimistically by naval men, who insist that the Admiralty methods of fighting the submarines are constantly growing in efficiency. In support of this they point to the constantly increasing number of boats which escape the submarines. The Germans are resorting to every possible method of circumventing the patrols, and the submarines frequently change the scene of their operations.

WARREN LINER SUNK BY GERMAN U-BOAT

Boston, June 20.—The Warren liner Bay State, from Boston May 21 for Liverpool, has been sunk by a German submarine. Advices to the company today gave nothing regarding the fate of the crew.

GRAIN SHIP SUNK.

Boston, June 20.—The Dutch steamer Eemdijk, which left Boston May 13 for Rotterdam with grain for the Holland Government, has been sunk, according to advices received by agents here today. First reports gave no details as to the safety of the crew.

LEYLAND LINER GONE.

Boston, June 20.—The sinking of the British steamer Elele, presumably by a German submarine, was reported in a cable message received today by the Leyland Line from Capt. Pierce, her commander. The vessel left Boston on June 3 for Manchester, England, with a general cargo. The message made no reference to the crew.

MEXICO LIKELY TO BE NEXT TO JOIN ENTENTE

Leading Citizens Favor Severance of Relations With Germany.

Mexico City, June 20.—El Universal, which is probably the most prominent newspaper in Mexico, prints today statements from twenty-three prominent citizens of Mexico advocating severance by Mexico of relations with Germany, and asserting that Mexico's place in the war is on the side of the Entente Allies.

The headlines of the article in which the statements are incorporated say it is to the interest of Mexico to sever relations with Germany and that the Latin-American ideals of Mexico must incline her to the side of the Allies rather than toward ideals of pan-Germanism, absorption and militarism as expressed by Germany.

The article says that the opinions printed are those of some men who think in Mexico and for Mexico, and that it is the conceneus of opinion of these men that Mexico cannot maintain neutrality, but must sever relations with Germany in order to remain true to the ideals for which the country has struggled during the last six years. The statements in general show close unanimity of opinion. Some of them go so far as to say that in order to uphold the ideals of justice which actuate Mexico, the country should immediately declare war on Germany. Others assert that German intrigues in Mexico offer ample reasons for severing diplomatic relations, adding that Germany is endeavoring to provoke trouble between Mexico and the United States.

TOTAL HUN RESERVE PLACED AT 575,000; 2 MONTHS' LOSSES ARE 600 THOUSAND

German Forces Are Greatly Depleted by Drives of the Allies.

Paris, June 20.—Gen. de la Croix publishes in the Temps the results of his study, supposedly from authoritative sources, of the present number of German reserves. He estimates that the grand total of German troops of all kinds and classes up to June 1 reached 13,130,000, and that this total was depleted by losses of 3,630,000; 2,200,000 rendered unfit through wounds, and 1,130,000 resident in foreign countries. Gen. de la Croix estimates that of the balance nearly 5,500,$$$ are employed as first line, rear line and interior troops, leaving a movable balance of reserves of about 755,000, of which 220,000 are attached to front depots, 355,000 in interior depots, and 180,000 in process of formation. This number will be increased in November by 450,000 of the class of 1919. These troops will not, however, be available before that for any service, any more than those in formation.

Germany's Reserves.

On this basis Gen. de la Croix figures that Germany has 575,000 reserves with which to cover her losses until November, or 115,000 a month, plus 85,000 monthly of those who recover from their wounds, a grand total of 200,000 a month. The general points out that German losses in April and May have been at least 300,000 monthly, making a debit balance which he says has been met by a shortening of the German front and fewer attacks. The absence of reserves has caused, he claims, a shift from the old tactics of the German general staff.

SUBMARINE DEPT. FOR THE FRENCH MARINE

Paris, June 20.—A special submarine department was created at the ministry of marine by a decree signed by President Poincare last night. Rear-Admiral M. B. G. J. Merveilleux du Vignaux has been placed at its head.

BRITISH COMMONS STRONGLY SUPPORTS WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Principle Is Accepted by An Overwhelming Majority.

LORD CECIL FAVORS IT

Declares It Will Tend To Promote Contentment In the United Kingdom.

London, June 20.—The principle of woman suffrage was adopted in the House of Commons last night by the overwhelming majority of 330 votes. Sir Frederick Banbury's amendment against the proposal was rejected by 383 to 56.

The entire evening was occupied in debating the Banbury amendment, which called for the omitting of the sections of the bill giving suffrage to women. The debate, while showing the existence of a still considerable opposition to the reform, revealed no new argument.

Fear Women Members.

Many speakers supported the amendment on the ground that the present parliament is too stale to possess an authentic mandate to deal with such an important question. Others appeared to fear that granting a vote to women would lead eventually to women being elected to sit in parliament. The argument that a large body of women was indifferent to the cause was employed by several members, who advocated a female plebiscite.

Ramsay MacDonald, the Socialist representative, strongly supported giving women the vote, as did Lord Hugh Cecil. Sir Joseph Compton-Rickett, president of the National Council of Evangelical Churches, said that giving women the vote meant their entrance into parliament, the government and diplomatic service, but he urged the House to grant the concession ungrudgingly to the women who had bravely helped the nation in a time of difficulty.

Cecil's Views.

Lord Robert Cecil said that one of the main reasons he supported woman suffrage was that it made for contentment with the Government and created the sense that the people were governing themselves. For that reason it was indefensible to perpetrate a system under which half the population was not represented in parliament. He said that it would be criminal to disregard the voice of women in post war problems, and he expressed the hope that the House would reject the amendment with no uncertain voice.

ADVERTISER CONTEST ALREADY ATTRACTING WIDESPREAD INTEREST

Not Too Late to Enter—List of Candidates Will Soon Be Published.

Never before has a newspaper campaign attracted such widespread interest as the present liberal enterprise of The Advertiser.

Candidates who have entered this contest did so because they knew they could depend upon The Advertiser; they know this paper will not break faith with them. The prizes, beautiful and costly as they are, do not represent something unattainable. Every prize is big enough to be worth the effort. Consistency is evident throughout.

It is not too late to enter this campaign and win an automobile, handsome piano, beautiful walnut bedroom suite or costly cabinet of silver. Late starters often prove the best workers; THE KNOW THEY MUST HUSTLE AND THEY DO IT.

Look for the nomination blank. It is a small thing to look for, and a big thing to find. Fill in your own name or the name of a friend, for opportunity is offering you the chance of a lifetime. Show your ability by taking now the step that will win in the end. It is not too late to enter. List of candidates will be published this week.

CHIEF DECLARES IT IS A FIRETRAP

Condemns Asylum Building as an Unsafe Place For Patients.

MANY FIRES BREAK OUT

Antiquated Structure Should Be Torn Down or Made Fireproof.

The fire at the asylum this morning is the latest of a series of big fires at that institution during the past eight or ten years.

There was one fire in the main building and the amusement hall was also burned up. The loss on buildings alone has reached a considerable sum. No lives have been lost in any of the conflagrations, but the situation on two occasions might have been serious, had not the staff shown remarkable ability in handling the patients.

The present structure is 47 years old. It is antiquated, and as such is far from being of modern construction, as the safety of 700 patients would demand. Nor could it be made fireproof. One big fire would surely call the attention of officials to the necessity of making alterations such as would make the place much safer than at present.

Schools Made Fireproof.

In the schools of London every precaution has been taken to make them fireproof, so far as possible. Concrete stairways and other methods of construction have been employed to make the schools safe.

The building inspector and building bylaws prevails in other parts of the city, but the building inspector has no authority over the asylum buildings.

Had such authority been vested in the building inspector it is quite probable that improvements would have been made when the previous fire occured. Better construction would have resulted, or at least the responsibility for present conditions would have been brought home to the Government.

A Veritable Fire Trap.

"The place is a veritable fire trap," said a man in close touch with the institution to The Advertiser. "It is a wonder that more accidents have not occurred in recent years. It is time that something was done to improve it."

Fire Chief Aitken is outspoken in condemnation of the building, and stated emphatically that there should be something done to protect the people in the buildings.

"There should be first of all fire doors and fire walls," he declared. "The long corridors give the fire a clean sweep through the whole place. It is impossible almost to stop it once it has got started, and there is constant danger of loss of life. The doors would be of great assistance in confining the fire to certain limited areas. Certain walls should be erected throughout the building from bottom to top, to prevent a spread of the flames.

Make Building Fireproof.

"There are several exits, but there should be more fire escapes, and bigger escapes. Those at present in use are not adequate. The building is a fire trap, and I want to tell you that we have been very lucky that the fires have not been much worse. The boys certainly did fine work this morning, and had we not been so successful, conditions would have been much worse. The Government has a chance now to improve matters, and if the wise course is followed, the asylum will be made fireproof."

The fire created much interest throughout the city, and the frequent occurrence of conflagrations there is getting on the nerves of the citizens.

ITALIANS AGAIN STRIKING AUSTRIANS ON TRENTINO LINE

Rome, June 20.—Via London. — The Italians resumed the offensive yesterday. The war office announces the capture of Austrian positions on Monte Ortegara and 936 prisoners.

The Italian attack of yesterday is a resumption of the fighting begun on June 11 on the Trentino front, southeast of the city of Trent, the capture of which is one of the chief Italian objectives. In the first attack the Italians took positions on Monte Ortegara and carried Agnello Pass.

MRS. PANKHURST TO URGE RUSSIANS TO KEEP UP THE FIGHT

Petrograd, June 20.—Via London.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the British suffragist leader, made an unexpected arrival in Petrograd yesterday. She appeared in the best of health, and at once called upon the Root Commission and discussed at length what might be done to assist Russia in directing all the forces of the new democracy toward the struggle with the common foe.

In a conversation with newspaper correspondents Mrs. Pankhurst said that she had come to Russia to explain to the men and women of the new republic the attitude of the British democracy toward the war. She added that it was too early to announce exactly how she aimed to accomplish this, but she planned to appeal directly to the people and would probably address street audiences.

ANTI-COMPULSIONIST FATALLY INJURED IN TUSSLE WITH POLICE

Montreal, June 20.—Armand Hebert, 22, Nicolet street, is in Notre Dame Hospital, and is believed by the doctors there to be in a dying condition as a result of an encounter with the police brought about by his anti-conscription sentiments. Hebert made himself a source of annoyance to his neighbors by his attitude and remarks on compulsion, and they complained to the police. Two plainclothes men were sent to Hebert's house last night to investigate. They warned Hebert that he must stop causing trouble, and a heated argument ensued. This was followed by a tussle, in which Hebert somehow got a fractured skull.

NATIONALISTS WILL CONTEST BOTH BILL AND AMENDMENT IN OPPOSING CONSCRIPTION

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 20.—Speakers in the resumed debate on the conscription bill today include Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor; Ernest Lapointe of Kamourska, J. A. Barette of Berthier, and probably Fred Pardee, chief Liberal whip.

Fred Pardee will oppose the referendum proposed by his leader, and Ernest Lapointe will support it. Mr. Crothers will oppose the referendum, but stands by the bill. Mr. Barette will oppose both the referendum and the bill. It will be "go-as-you-please" afternoon and evening.

The Nationalists' Stand.

Mr. Barette's stand will be taken by all the Conservative Nationalist members. They oppose both the referendum amendment of the Liberal leader and the bill of the Conservative prime minister. In this way they will obviate the matter of the Government being beaten by the carrying of the amendment, and will also strengthen their own position in Quebec by "Going Laurier one better," in their opposition to compulsion.

At least a dozen Liberal members will vote against the Laurier amendment and for the bill. Several others will vote for the amendment, but will stand by the bill if the amendment is defeated. Under the circumstances the military service act of 1917 is practically sure of carrying. Anti-conscriptionists in the Senate are also lining up for the fight. It is expected Senator Choquette will likely introduce a resolution for a referendum.

EXPRESS CAR SAFE ROBBED OF $30,000; OFFICIALS ARE HELD

Chicago, June 20.—Official announcement that gold and silver coin stolen from an express car safe here last night amounted to nearly $30,000 was made today by G. M. Curtis, general manager of the western department of the Adams Express Company.

J. R. Andrews of Burlington, Ia., messenger in charge of the car, which was attached to a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train, and Ward R. Smiley of Monmouth, Ill., messenger on another car, who was with Andrews at the time two masked men bound them and robbed the safe, were in custody today. Both had been questioned at length by the police and by express company officials. They seemed uncertain, the police said, as to whether the robbers entered the end door of the car or whether they appeared suddenly from behind a pile of boxes. Both declared that after they were bound, one of the robbers fitted a duplicate knob into the safe dial and opened the strong box without apparent difficulty. It is customary for express agents to remove the knob of safes as a precaution against robbery after valuables have been counted and locked inside.

No trace of the robbers has yet been found. After the robbery they dropped off the train in the yards and disappeared.

BOY DROWNS WHILE GOING TO RESCUE OF HIS STRUGGLING CHUMS

Montreal, June 20.—George Wiggins, aged 13, was drowned this morning while going to the assistance of two of his chums who had got into difficulties while swimming in the Lachine Canal. Wiggins was taken with cramps. His two chums were saved.

SENATOR MACKAY LEFT ESTATE OF 8 MILLIONS

Montreal, June 20.—The will of the late Senator Robert MacKay, who died January 18, 1917, has been filed for probate. The estate is valued at $8,000,000, and will, for the greater part, be divided between the senator's two sons, Angus and Hugh. Provision was made for an annuity for the senator's wife, but she predeceased him.

The General Hospital, the Notre Dame Hospital, the Western Hospital, St. Andrew's Society, St. George's Society and the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society and other charitable and benevolent societies were remembered by the financier.

72 FROM NEW YORK.

Toronto, June 19.—Toronto mobilization centre depot, at the armories, today welcomed the biggest party of recruits that has arrived from the British mission, New York City, the contingent being 72 strong.

ANARCHISTS SEIZE HATED NEWSPAPER

Declare for Siege, But Are Quickly Brought To Time by Troops.

Petrograd, June 19—Via London, June 20.—The building of the newspaper Russkia Volia, Petrograd's richest and most largely circulated newspaper, was seized this afternoon by a corps of armed anarchists, who expelled the staff, destroyed all the copies of the paper and the books, and declared that they would stand siege.

The Russkia Volia is particularly hated by the anarchists, because it strongly supported the Provisional Government and attacked Bolsheviki and other extremists. When the Government learned of this action by the anarchists it ordered stringent measures. Gen. Polovtzoff, commander of the Petrograd troops, sent a large force of Cossacks, infantry and machine guns and surrounded the building. Meantime the Congress of the Councils of the Deputies passed a resolution condemning the anarchists. The commander of the troops sent a message demanding their surrender. The anarchists entered into negotiations with the commander, and later, under threat of military action, the anarchists realizinig that their position was hopeless, surrendered. Seventy of them were marched to jail.

INFANTRY ATTACK BY GERMANS DISPERSED

Paris, June 20.—Heavy artillery fighting is in progress on the Aisne and Champagne fronts, says today's official statement. Early this morning the Germans carried on a severe bombardment of French positions near Lauffaux Mill and in the region of Mont Carnillet. A German infantry attack was dispersed.

KING FERDINAND EXPECTS GREECE TO JOIN ENTENTE, WILL ASK KAISER TO FURNISH HIM MORE TROOPS

Geneva, Via Paris, June 20.—The semi-official Balkan News Agency says that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been impressed deeply by the abdication of King Constantine, and considers it certain Former Premier Venizelos will take office at the head of the Government, and that Greece will enter the war against Bulgaria. King Ferdinand, therefore, intends to go shortly to German great headquarters to demand assistance. Consternation has been caused in Sofia by Constantine's abdication.

WHILE ROOF OF ASYLUM BURNS 700 PATIENTS LEAVE IN ORDER; CITY FIREMEN SAVE STRUCTURE

Efficient Work of Chief Aitken's Men Alone Responsible For Saving Building—Perfect Discipline Maintained as the Inmates Leave Building in Early Morning—Roof Is Practically Destroyed, and Attic Is Damaged.

The lives of fifty female patients at the London Hospital for Insane were endangered and damage in the neighborhood of $10,000 was done by fire which broke out in the attic of the administrative or main building about 3:30 this morning.

Because of the quick work of the attendants and conduct of the 700 patients in the institution not a life was lost nor anyone injured. Although only fifty patients were in the dormitory nearest the flames all those in the other buildings turned out into the big recreation grounds carrying out perfectly the fire drill, which is practiced every month. The buildings were cleared of patients within ten minutes, and those in the blazing portion of the institution had reached safety before attendants from other parts of the grounds had arrived at the scene.

Not a Trace of Panic.

The fire was discovered by two of the women, who immediately ran to the floor below and awakened the acting chief nurse, Miss A. M. Sabiston. Sacrificing all her personal effects and a large sum of money which she kept in the room, Miss Sabiston immediately proceeded to awaken the other patients Only in this was difficulty experienced, but once they had been aroused and were alive to the danger they obeyed orders implicitly. There was no panic whatever.

The screaming fire whistle awakened others in all portions of the grounds, but nowhere was fear or disorder visible.

Patients Help With Work.

"I doubt if you could get 700 so-called sane people to act as well and as cool," said R. D. Heighway, chief attendant. "It was wonderful. I was awakened by the fire whistle, and although it took me five minutes to get dressed and to reach the building the men were all up and most of them were dressed. They carried out the fire drill perfectly, and we had them out in the big recreation grounds in no time. As soon as I was sure that everyone was safe I took as many attendants as could be spared as well as some of the best patients, and went back to the wings, which the fire had not then reached. We moved all the bed clothing and mattresses out on the balcony, but this work, too, the patients showed wonderful cooiness."

Quick Run by Firemen.

The alarm telephoned in by Dr. Robinson at 3:40, had the city fire fighters, in charge of Fire Chief Aitken on the scene in ten minutes. They did some fire fighting which attendants at the asylum describe as the most efficient they ever witnessed. Although the blaze was six stories from the ground several streams of hose were playing on it immediately. The flames were stopped short at a plaster wall. Had they passed this the whole main building would have been destroyed, in the opinion of the asylum authorities The fact that little was kept in this portion made the fire danger the greater. The timber, 47 years old, was as dry as tinder, and but for the efficient work of the firemen would have been the means of igniting the remainder of the buildings.

No Wind and Good Pressure.

Everything was in the favor of the fighters. There was little wind and the water pressure was at its maximum with both steam and electric pumps working. Streams were thrown almost across the building.

The greatest amount of damage was done to the attic, but little equipment was lost. Only one of the attendants slept in the attic rooms, and she was on duty at the time the blaze was discovered. Fire penetrated to the floor below, but the remainder of the damage was done by the water which soaked through all the floors to the basement, and running through a tunnel there proved too much for the drains, and threatened at one time to extinguish the boiler fires.

Cupola Is Destroyed.

The huge cupola on the roof was completely destroyed, but the main water tank of the building remained in position.

Only a few years ago this would have presented a serious danger, as it was then supported only by wooden girders, which have since been replaced by steel and brick.

Dr. Robinson regards it as little short of miraculous that the flames were confined to the main portion of the building, and did not spread to the wings.

Fire Walls Required.

"I have been agitating for some time to have fire walls placed at both wings from the cellar to the attic, and we recently got an appropriation for that purpose, and were to commence work soon," he said. "This will prove the need of it. The attic in which the flames started, was bad enough, but had they spread to the other parts there would have been little hope."

He was greatly pleased with the conduct of the patients. Those who were not actively engaged in fighting the flames remained quiet, and no extra assistance was required to look after them.

Inside Hose Ineffective.

An attempt was at first made to fight the conflagration from within the building, as there are several lines of hose installed there. These were all below the floor on which the fire broke out, and it was found impossible to get the water playing effectively. The pressure was at first kept up by the steam pump of the plant, but as the enormous drain on the supply began to pull this down, the electric auxiliary

HAIG THANKS CAN. RAILWAYS

London, June 20.—In his report of the six months' campaign on the western front, Gen. Haig says: "I also wish to place on record the fact that the successful solution of this problem would have been impossible but for the patriotism of the railway companies at home and in Canada, who did not hesitate to give up the locomotives and rolling stock required, and even to tear up their tracks to provide us with the necessary rails."

HAIG TELLS OF 6 MONTHS' WAR ON WEST FRONT

Steady, Systematic Progress Since Launching of Drive in December.

ALL TROOPS ARE PRAISED

Great Difficulties Splendidly Overcome—Sees Open Fighting Ahead.

London, June 20—Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig has forwarded to the war office a dispatch covering operations from the 18th of December to the present offensive. It affords a connected story and a valuable historical record, elucidating much that has hitherto been obscure and revealing the strategic plans behind the apparently isolated attacks and raids which continued throughout the winter, and showing all as fitting into a comprehensive and systematic scheme in order to prepare a favorable situation for the spring advance. The report says:

"Owing to the Somme battle the enemy in the region of the Ancre valley had been forced into a pronounced salient between the Ancre and Scarpe valleys, therefore a further short advance would give us command of the Beaumont-Hamel spur. Accordingly an attack was delivered against the defences overlooking the villages of Pys and Grandcourt on the 18th of November.

"The object was to advance within assaulting distance of Le Transloy-Loupart line. Five thousand yards of valuable positions were acquired. The weather then held up operations until January, when the whole spur was captured, and we advanced a thousand yards up the Beaucourt valley with exceedingly light casualties owing to skilful co-operation between the infantry and artillery and fine aircraft work. Possession of the high ground opened up an extensive artillery field, and further successes on the 3rd and 4th of February gave us an important section of the German second line north of the Ancre, making the evacuation of Grandcourt inevitable. The next task was to drive the enemy from Beaucourt valley, which was begun on the 10th of February.

To Capture Ridge.

"The capture of 1,500 yards of trenches lying at the southern foot of Serre Hill made the village of Serre a

FOUR FIELD CANNON TAKEN BY BRITISH ALONG ARRAS FRONT

Further Gains Made to the East of Messines.

London, June 19.—British forces have made some gains on the Arras front, according to the official statement issued tonight. Four German field guns were taken east of Messines in the advance last Thursday.

The text of the statement follows:

"On the Arras battlefront our troops gained ground slightly during the day south of the Cojeul River and also north of the Souchez River, where we captured 35 prisoners. In addition to the captures already reported four German field guns were taken by us east of Messines in the course of our recent advance in this area on Thursday night.

"Valuable work was performed by our airplanes yesterday in spite of unsettled weather. Bombs dropped on an enemy dump caused an explosion. Six German machines were brought down in air fighting and three of our machines failed to return."

TOWN ABLAZE BY EXPLOSION OF OIL CARS

Indianapolis, June 20.—That the town of Kirkpatrick, Indiana, was burning, following the explosion of a car of oil, was the report received here by a telephone company. Communication with Kirkpatrick was cut off.

KING CONSTANTINE ARRIVES AT LUGANO, HEADED FOR BERLIN

AND "WIRE" FROM KAISER

Not Permitted by Italy To Land at Brindisi or Taranto.

Lugano, Switzerland, Via Paris, June 20.—Former King Constantine of Greece arrived here today. Officers and delegates of the Swiss Government met him at the frontier and welcomed him in the name of Switzerland.

A large number of German personages waited for the king at the depot, including Prince and Princess von Buelow and Dr. von Muerlberg, German minister to the Vatican. The Greek minister to Berne was also present. Constantine and his suite drove directly to the hotel, where rooms had been reserved for them.

A number of German diplomats arrived here in anticipation of the coming of the former king, who was delayed by the illness of his wife. A long telegram from the German emperor was handed to Constantine as soon as he left the train.

The immediate future movements of the former monarch are unknown, but it is believed it is probable that they will shortly go to Germany to visit the emperor.

SOME GERMANS WITH HIM.

Messina, Via Paris, June 02.—Former King Constantine of Greece asked permission of the Italian Government to land at either Brindisi or Taranto, but the request was refused, because both these ports are military and naval bases, and it seemns that some German officers are included in Constantine's suite.

Constantine finally landed at Villa San Giovanni, a village facing Messina on the continent, and starting point of the railway going to Naples. The former monarch expressed the desire to rest for a few days at Naples before continuing his journey to Switzerland.

ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO WRECK EXPRESS AT BELLEVILLE, ONT.

Lock Broken Off Switch and Switch Set For Curved Siding.

Belleville, June 20.—A deliberate attempt to wreck a train was made last night in this city on the line of the C. P. R. A switch lock was forcibly broken from off a switch and the switch set for a siding. Had an eastbound express train run upon the sharply-curved siding it would have been derailed. The lamp at the switch was broken off and thrown into a ditch at the side of the track. The attempt was discovered at an early hour this morning.

PEOPLE OF LONDON DEEPLY INTERESTED IN THE GREAT WAR

Big Audience at Patricia To See Fall of Bapaume.

SEE THE TANKS IN ACTION

Germans Driven Out of Their Carefully Prepared Positions Quickly.

Steadily increasing attendances are marking the exhibitions of the "Fall of Bapaume," official British pictures of that world-famous event showing at the Patricia Theatre all this week. In spite of the fact that the pictures are shown five times each day there is a good attendance at each performance. Tuesday was no exception, and demonstrates that in spite of reports to the contrary the people of Canada are still deeply interested in the war. Each scene depicting Canadian troops drew forth rounds of applause. Other troops of the Empire received their fair share.

That the scenes are not wearying repetitions of those depicted in "The Battle of the Somme" and other official films is strikingly demonstrated by the first reels which are devoted to the first motion pictures of the British navy that have been permitted since the early days of the war. Taken immediately after the Battle of Jutland they depict Admiral Beatty's fleet in fighting formation and cast a new light on methods of modern sea warfare. Even Kipling's gripping accounts of the North Sea fleet fail to bring home the work of the sailors in the manner which the pictures do.

Phases of land warfare which were noticeably absent from previous pictures are those carried out by the cavalry and motor machine gun batteries.

Shows Full Detail.

The picture shows the full detail of the preparations and the continuous struggle which brought the Germans out of their set positions and fortified trenches, after nearly three years of occupation. It begins with the preparation of the British, made on an unprecedented scale, and shows the arrival in France of fresh troops from England, and gives a good suggestion of thousands of men who were sent to the front at the beginning of the offensive.

Realism of War.

This picture shows some of the realism of warfare and some of the glory of it, too. It is the most comprehensive attempt to cover the whole western front, the activities behind the lines, the bombardments and aerial flights and the actual infantry fighting, with its inevitable toll of dead and wounded, that the British Government has yet presented, for it shows particularly every famous regiment in the British army at work in the field, as well as troops from the various dominions, including the famous Lancers from India.

See the Tanks.

The authorities have softened the more dreadful parts of the picture, and much of the gruesomeness of the battlefield has been carefully omitted, except in such cases as could not be avoided without spoiling the realism of the picture.

The tanks are shown in far more thrilling situations than the first picture of them, taken when they were introduced into warfare for the first time.

EXPLAINS WORKING OF COLD STORAGE TO MOTHERS' CLUB

"The Relation of Cold Storage to Food Products" was the subject of an address by A. E. Silverwood before the Tecumseh Avenue Mothers' Club Tuesday night, in which Mr. Silverwood described the growth of the cold storage as taking the place of the old-fashioned cellar and the pickle vat.

Referring to the local situation he stated that in this country there was a short period of production, during which there was an abundance of food, followed by a long period of scarcity. This period, during which there was no production, was tided over by cold storage. With regard to the effect of the cold storage buying on the local market, he declared that the prices were not set by the demand here, but by conditions in the whole province, and that his firm bought very little on the local market, but bought over a very large area and therefore had little effect on local prices. His firm was always prepared to abide by the bylaw which prohibits the wholesaler or retail dealer from buying until the consumer has had a chance to buy on the market, if the bylaw were enforced.

Questions were requested from the audience, and among others asked was: "Could anybody put their stuff in cold storage?" The speaker replied that anybody could place produce there in as large or as small quantities as desired, and that many families were now ordering their supply of foodstuffs and placing it in cold storage while the prices were favorable.

Asked whether the plan in use of going out into the country and buying up large quantities of foodstuffs did not raise the price, he replied that somebody would certainly buy the produce, and if so it was to the advantage of the citizens of London to have it stored here rather than in some other place, as it could then be sold from 1 to 5 per cent cheaper here.

If it were not for the good opportunities offered to farmers by the local market to bring their produce here, they would take it somewhere else, and thus make produce scarcer and higher in price here.

Couldn't Keep Back Tears

When the Nervous System Broke Down—Queer Feelings in Back of Head Caused Much Alarm.

Midland, Ont., April 23.—Collapse or breakdown of the nervous system leaves one in a most pitiable condition. Strong, healthy-looking women, and men, too, will weep from helplessness and despair.

The case reported here was a most severe one, as is indicated by the hysterical condition, the pains in the back of the head and the futility of the many treatments used.

This is further evidence that the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a reasonable length of time will positively restore the most exhausted nervous system.

Mrs. S. Sharp, Midland, Ont., writes: "About eleven years ago I had a serious nervous breakdown, and was so bad at times that I could not keep back the tears. I also had a queer feeling in the back of my head. Sometimes I seemed to be going backwards. I could not do any sewing, and finally could do no work at all. I tried other remedies and doctors' medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. Last Fall I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had not taken very many until I found I was getting better. I kept on taking them, and am at present greatly improved. I am now able to do my work, and they have strengthened me splendidly. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

GREAT WORK FOR CHILDREN AND SOLDIERS

Advertiser Illustrations

There are two classes of patients at the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium whose cases make, if anything, perhaps a little keener appeal than all others. These are the children and the returned soldiers, and the fact that the sanatorium is proving effectual in bringing back rosy cheeks and strong bodies to sickly children, and restoring to health and usefulness the men who went under with tuberculosis while overseas, is the basis of the appeal that is being made to London citizens this week in the "Big Heart Campaign." The gift of London that is being made this week will enable men who have gone under with disease to have a chance for their lives, it will restore to the country men who will be needed in the days to come. Above all it will help to meet our responsibility for those men afflicted with tuberculosis who are still in England, and who cannot come to Canada until there is provision made for them in the sanatoria already established. The cause, therefore, that is before London this week is one truly patriotic, and will mean the saving for the Dominion of scores of useful lives. It is worth a sacrifice to have a part in a work as noble as this.

WOUNDED IN WAR HOSPITAL WARMLY PRAISE LONDON LADY

Mrs. (Major) McLean Supplies Good Things To Eat, and Keeps Home Town Papers for Canadians Convalescing.

A letter which carried a note of sincere thanks to Mrs. McLean, wife of Major McLean, formerly second in command of the 142nd Battalion, from wounded men at Bevan Military Hospital, Sandgate, Kent, England, had three trips across the ocean before reaching The Advertiser yesterday.

The letter was addressed to the editor of the London Times or News, London, Ontario. The postoffice authorities here returned it with the comment "Not known here." It remained for the London Times, London, Eng., to set the letter aright, for when it reached that office it was opened and re-addressed to The Advertiser.

Work Greatly Appreciated.

The message bears grateful testimony to the kindness and untiring activities of Mrs. McLean, and this is not the first time such letters have reached the city. It is as follows:

The Editor,—Allow me a small space in your valued paper so that I may convey to the people of London an idea of the great and excellent work that is being carried on by Mrs. McLean, a former Londoner, who came over to England to assist in the work of the Canadian Red Cross.

I have been in the above hospital for some considerable time, and am in a position to give you a true and correct outline of her work.

She is a daily visitor, and how glad we all are to see her smiling countenance, and she never comes but what she brings something good to eat, not forgetting, of course, cigarettes.

A Good Angel of the Hospital.

All wounded and sick men from France are lucky if Mrs. McLean gets to know them; they are sure to be supplied with any necessary hospital kit they require, including razors, tooth brushes, sweater coats, shirts, socks, etc.

We are also furnished with Canadian papers and magazines. Mrs. McLean keeps a sort of a ledger with all our names in it, and the town or district we come from, and contrives to get our own town paper for us, which helps greatly to pass the time.

Last, but by any means not least, Mrs. McLean takes a party of soldiers to a real picture show, and after that provides us with a nice tea, and mind you, this all comes out of her own pocket.

The "Tommies" are all very grateful to Mrs. McLean for her efforts to make us happy, and that she does with a great degree of success.

Londoners will no doubt be pleased to hear that she is doing good work, and isn't it just that good work should be recognized? Yours truly,

"A PATIENT."

CITY ENGINEER SAYS CONCRETE PERFECT, DESPITE CRITICISM

Mr. Brazier Gave No Orders To Change Mixing.

NOW AWAITS REPORT

City Engineer Brazier has sent some samples of the concrete on Richmond street to the School of Practical Science at Toronto for pressure test. He will also send some of the samples laid since the complaints of Sir Adam Beck, in order to get a comparison. The reports should be returned in a week or ten days. Mr. Brazier is not at all worried about the outcome.

"The concrete laid on Richmond street is perfect concrete, in my judgment," said Mr. Brazier. "Any person who has examined it is of the same opinion. I am referring to the concrete laid before the complaints were made. It is ideal, in my judgment. The matter is simple enough to prove. If the concrete will stand the pressure it is good concrete. If it does not, it is bad, no matter how well it is mixed. I did not make any change in the way of mixing it. The board of control gave the orders, as in my judgment the concrete was well and properly mixed before. However, the tests will show the results later."

PTE. ELMER O. JAMES IS NOW OFFICIALLY DECLARED KILLED

Pte. Elmer Osler James, who was wounded and reported missing on October 1 or 2, 1916, has been officially declared dead, according to information which has recently reached this city. Pte. James is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew James, 369 Simcoe street, and was a pupil of the Simcoe Street School.

He went overseas with the Canadian Mounted Rifles in 1915, and was 21 years of age at the time of his death. He was an active member of the Talbot Street Baptist Church.

DOGS AND HORSES OF CITY STILL THIRSTY, FOUNTAINS ARE DRY

With June more than half gone, the fountains about the city for horses and dogs have not been turned on by the utilities commission, with the result that there is much complaining by teamsters and drivers of livery rigs.

There have been some warm days of late, and the horses have suffered considerably from the lack of water.

Several teamsters today complained to The Advertiser, as they did some weeks ago.

Nothing was done. It is regarded as about time the waterworks department looked into this important matter.

8 CASES OF MEASLES REPORTED FOR WEEK

Scarlet fever, which showed signs of losing its grip on the children of the city during the past few weeks, broke out during the week ending June 16, eight cases being recorded by Dr. H. W. Hill, medical officer of health.

This is more than 25 per cent of the number of cases of infectious diseases during the week, 26 being registered. Of these 6 were measles, 4 chickenpox, 3 mumps, 3 tuberculosis, 1 of diphtheria and one of whooping cough, the other eight cases being scarlet fever, as mentioned above.

There were 60 cases all told of infectious diseases—25 of scarlet fever, 9 of chickenpox, 9 of measles, 9 of mumps, 5 of whooping cough and one each of diphtheria and smallpox. Thirteen cases are isolated at the hospital, 11 being scarlet fever, and one each of diphtheria and smallpox.

There are 37 houses under quarantine.

LOOKS LIKE A GOOD WEEK FOR RECRUITING

Whether it is due to the warmer weather or to the probability of the conscription measure becoming law, recruiting is continuing at a good rate this week, and beside the 29 men who offered themselves on Monday, 12 presented themselves yesterday for examination at the Armories.

Nine of the 12 were able to pass the medical examination, of whom nearly all were Canadians, two natives of England and one of Scotland being included in the list.

The men who came before the board, with their place of enlistment, and the unit to which they went, are: W. G. Freel, B. F. Walker, skilled railway employees; A. H. McKenzie, Canadian Engineers; G. A. Weatherall, 7th Overseas Company; W. H. Shaw and R. A. Rutherford, Canadian Engineers; A. C. Kitchener, 7th Overseas Company; A. Greenslade, Army Medical Corps; all enlisted at London. G. J. Latham, 25th Overseas Company, St. Thomas; J. R. Griffith, Railway Construction Company, Chatham.

ENDS DISPUTE BY LEAVING BRIGADE

Lieut. Putherbough Will Go Into Contracting Business.

Lieut. J. L. Putherbough of the Central fire station, has tendered his resignation and has quit the force.

This action was not unexpected, as he has been the stormy petrel of the department for some time. When the union was formed, there were accusations against him, the men alleging that he was active against the organization. He denied this. Later he was charged by the trades and labor council with receiving money from the city when he was on leave and drawing salary from the C. S. Hyman Company. The council recommended that he be reduced the amount of pay received, about $25. He put in a bill for medical attendance, but the council refused to pay this on Monday night. It is believed Mr. Putherbough handed in his uniform. He expected that he would either be allowed the pay or his doctor's bill.

No appointment has been made as yet. Lieut. Putherbough has been a member of the department eight years. Four years ago he was promoted to be lieutenant by Fire Chief Aitken. He has been regarded as one of the most efficient men on the brigade. He was injured at the C. N. W. Shoe Company's fire in October, 1914. It was owing to these injuries that he secured leave to enter Hyman's tannery, where he could do light work.

"DO TAKE CARE OF BEES," WRITES ANXIOUS MOTHER

Neighbor's Honey-Getters Cause Request for Protection.

Wandering bees were the cause of a discussion at the board of works last evening, and the council will be asked to pass a bylaw preventing the meanderings of those interesting, but rather testy, insects.

A woman in the city wrote to the board saying that a neighbor started out last year with one swarm of bees, and this year he had four. The "birds" had a habit of swarming in her yard, and she feared for the safety of her child. The council will be asked to pass a bylaw prohibiting the keeping of bees within the city boundary lines.

T. H. Janes and others asked that the walk on High street be changed. City Engineer Brazier and Controller Moore will visit the location and make the necessary changes.

Controller Moore will interview City Solicitor Meredith, to see whether or not the council has power to erect a breakwater on Rideout street as a local improvement. The street is in a bad way from the encroachment of the river.

The board of health asked that the incinerator cremate dead dogs, the board agreeing to pay the expense. This was accepted.

It was decided to open Langley street and the necessary bylaw will be prepared at once.

The board of health complained about the dumping of garbage in dumps and the practice will be stopped.

There were complaints about the flooding of Eleanor street, and City Engineer Brazier will investigate.

Some minor questions were also disposed of.

ENGLISH CHILDREN PLACE FLOWERS ON CANADIAN GRAVES

To Make Relatives Feel That Dear Ones Not Forgotten.

PTE. GRAY AMONG THEM

Uncle of Late Ronald Gray Is Among Hundred in Shorncliffe Cemetery.

Mrs. Annie Gray, 353 Oxford street, widow of Pte. David Gray, who died of wounds last November after serving for many months in the front line, has just received a letter from Pte. James W. Dawson of this city, who left with No. 10 Stationary Hospital, in which the latter incloses a clipping from the London Express telling of the cemetery in which Pte. Gray was buried. Pte. Gray was a brother of James Gray, and an uncle of the late Lieut. Ronald Gray.

Place Flowers on Graves.

"Hundreds of school children of Folkestone, Hythe and Sandgate will assemble at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 13, at the military burial ground at Shorncliffe Camp, and will place flowers on the graves of about one hundred Canadian soldiers. Many public bodies are sending wreaths, besides private individuals.

"The thoughts that are uppermost in the minds of the promoters are that the relatives of those who are buried far away from home shall feel that their sons are not forgotten, and that although they themselves cannot perform this act of devotion, others are doing it in their name.

Each Grave Is Marked.

"Each of these graves has a white wooden cross, on which the name, rank and unit of the soldier are inscribed."

Mrs. Gray greatly appreciated the kindness of the English people in showing this mark of regard and sympathy for the relatives of soldiers who gave their lives in the great war.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

IRELAND AND QUEBEC.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I cannot understand how any unprejudiced person can blame Sir Wilfrid Laurier for his decision re conscription and coalition. He did not pronounce himself as opposed to conscription, but only that it should not be adopted without an appeal to the country. How in the name of common sense does Sir R. L. Borden imagine conscription is going to be enforced in Quebec without at least a lot of educational propaganda? The British Government did not enforce conscription in Ireland. That being the case, why should we expect the Quebec people to submit without a referendum? As the whole British Government is afraid of Ireland and the effect of conscription there, why should we be surprised if Laurier or any sensible person is afraid of what might happen in Quebec? The case of Quebec and Ireland are unique in the war record of the Empire. The question naturally occurs to one, "What point have these two countries in common which produces such similar results?" In both countries we get a great deal of apathy, not to say disloyalty, towards the Empire. Is this result due to the machination of any particular religion or institution? If so, is it not well for us to be on our guard against such sinister interference in the affairs of the Empire, not only in times of war, but also in times of peace? I don't profess to know what the cause is which produces these results in Ireland and Quebec; but I do say there must not only be a cause of such singular apathy, but it must also be the result of some most powerful and intelligent directing force which is to be feared as much as the Germans. I do not think that such results are due to mere race antipathy between French and English, or Irish and English. Here we have the Scotch and the Welsh, yes, and even the Boers, living in the closest friendship with England and ready and willing to give their best life blood in her cause (which is the cause of liberty). On the other hand, we have the extraordinary phenomenon of a French-speaking and French-descended nation who, when France lies bleeding and calling for help, say "This is not our war, we don't want to enlist," and, like the Pharisee, pass by on the other side. The question naturally occurs to any intelligent observer, if the institutions which the French-Canadian revere the most (whatever those institutions may be), had appealed to them to support the Empire in this war, would they (the French-Canadians) not have done so? As the reverse of this is the case, it may be worth while for us to investigate and to discover what institutions and societies the French-Canadians are most influenced by, and, as far as possible guard against the influence of such institutions in other parts of the Empire.

The British Empire, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself describes as "the most just, the most beneficent, the world has ever seen," is waging this war. Beside her, Italy, France, Russia and America are proud to fight; only the French-Canadians and many Irishmen stand aside, disgruntled. Behold! An enemy hath done this thing, whose autocratic rule is the more to be feared because we did not suspect his presence.

CHARLES LUSH, London.

CONSCRIPTION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

It is to be regretted that the Labor party should take sides with Quebec against conscription. As one who labors I fail to understand what ground the Labor party has to stand on in the almost unbelievable (I had assumed by some demi-gods of that party. War is the natural state of life, and democracy must be prepared to fight as willingly and as efficiently as any autocracy that ever existed. War is the outstanding feature of all life. Competition in trade, the anxiety to excel, to beat our neighbor out of doors," "to go one better," is war—the natural conditions of life. "Why kick against the pricks?" Labor's duty, according to standard today, is clear. If an injustice has been done—to Belgium, for instance—a treaty made in good faith and torn up as of no more value than a scrap of paper, it means war; and if international law has been violated, and there has been "hitting below the belt" since war started, is it labor's part to stand idly by and quibble over trifles? Labor's duty is clear—to "fight with all its might for what is right." If such is not the case, let us get back to the good old feudal days of five hundred years ago. A gentleman then—autocrat if you like—was at least honorable, brave and courageous enough to fight for all that was honorable and just. Shall Labor do less today?

RONALD R. A. EMERY.

A QUESTION FOR SIR ADAM BECK.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

We observed with considerable interest the attributed gift of Sir Adam and Lady Beck to the campaign for a hospital for tubercular soldiers.

We cannot quite understand how a campaign for one particular objective receives a "magnificent gift" when the gift is applied to an entirely different cause, worthy as that may be.

Is Sir Adam merely trying to erect a monument for himself? Would the honor be less if the contribution were applied to the purpose of the campaign and shared by other London citizens?

CHANCE TO LEARN ABOUT PESTS.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

During my temporary absence your paper containing the report of the crop protection leaflet came to hand. I wish to take this opportunity of thanking you for giving publicity to the same. I know of no better medium of disseminating information than the press, and I thank you most heartily for your cooperation. Should you know of anyone requesting advice or assistance on any insect pest, I shall be glad to render any assistance I possibly can. Very truly yours,

A Blouse and a Skirt---At Least

And likewise, the most, for never have such combinations been so desirable from a fashionable viewpoint, which seldom considers utility. Quite the perfect unity exists today.

The separate skirt is the most popular member of the summer receiving time, and so, of course, the blouse must follow. One may select her skirt from various striped or figured materials in silk or cottons; jersey finds favor, and the pique, white wash gabardines and linens will soon be abloom.

So when one selects a blouse, to choose for simplicity is to choose wisely—tucks are tiny, pleats are generally edged with little tucks, collars are severely plain or decorated with narrow tucks, etc.

Georgette is a favored material with crepe de chine, handkerchief silks and voile following.

pronounced enemy salient, and further progress in the Ancre valley would make it untenable. Therefore a larger operation was begun with the view of acquiring the northern extremity of the Morval-Thiepval ridge, which commanded the southern approaches to Sars and Muramont and the observation of the upper Ancre valley. Simultaneously a smaller attack was designed to capture Miraumont.

"During the night of the 17th of February the assaults were delivered. Despite the heavy ground, a thick mist and an alert enemy, who barraged, the troops assaulted with great gallantry."

Systematic Advances.

"Continuous and systematic advances drove the enemy out from successive positions until the 2nd of March, when we reached Le Transloy-Loupart line, except at Irles, which formed a salient. Seven days were then devoted to improving communications and bringing up guns, and on the 10th of March Irles was captured. Our casualties were less than the number of prisoners taken, who numbered 939. The way was thus opened for attacking Le Transloy-Loupart line, which was shelled so effectively on the 11th and 12th of March that the enemy fell back to parallel lines, whereupon Grevillers and Loupart Wood were occupied, and methodical operations begun for attacking the next line.

Signs of Withdrawal.

"Prior to this there were indications that the German withdrawal would be further extended. It had been ascertained that he had been preparing a new defensive system, known as the Hindenburg line, running from Arras, northeastward to Queant, thence west of Cambrai towards St. Quentin. Various switches, branching off from this line were also being constructed. The enemy's immediate concern appeared to be to escape from the salient between Arras and Le Transloy, which became increasingly difficult to hold. It was also evident, however, that the enemy contemplated eventually the evacuation of the greater salient between Arras and the Aisne Valley."

Taking of Bapaume.

The dispatch then deals in detail with the operations between the 14th and 19th of April, in which the Allies took possession of Chaulnes, Bapaume, Peronne, and numerous villages, from which the enemy retired.

"On the 19th of April the advance reached the stage at which the increasing difficulty of maintaining communications compelled slackening the pace of the pursuit. South of Peronne the lack of bridges, which the enemy had destroyed, presented a formidable obstacle, while north of Peronne the wide belt of devastated ground over which the Somme battle had been fought, offered even greater difficulties to the passage of guns and transports.

"We were advancing, therefore," continued the dispatch, "over a country over which all means of communication had been destroyed, and against an enemy whose army was still intact and capable of launching a vigorous offensive should a favorable opportunity offer. Strong detachments of his infantry and cavalry occupied points of vantage along the line of our advance, keeping the enemy informed of our progress and screening his own movements. His guns had already been withdrawn to previously-prepared positions, available at any moment to cover and support counter-strokes, while the conditions of the country across which we were moving made the progress of our artillery slow. But the enemy's forces were known to be holding a formidable defensive system, upon which he could fall back should his counter-stroke miss its aim. On the other hand, as our troops moved forward, they left all prepared defences farther behind. In such circumstances the necessity for caution was obvious.

Repairing the Damage.

"Meanwhile, despite the enormous difficulties which the condition of the ground and the ingenuity of the enemy placed in our way, the work of repairing and constructing bridges, roads and railways was carried on with the most commendable rapidity."

The dispatch proceeds to describe how the enemy's resistance increased as we neared the Hindenburg line, emphasizing the great costliness of his many counter-attacks, particularly in attempts to recover Beaumetz-les-Cambrai.

Speaking of the outstanding features of the five months' fighting, from the 18th of November, Field Marshal Haig says: "Despite the unusual severity of the weather, the winter campaign was conducted to a successful issue, under the most trying and arduous conditions. The activity of our battle front was maintained without a break from the conclusion of last year's offensive to the commencement of the present operations. The successful accomplishment of this part of our general plan had enabled us to realize no inconsiderable instalment of the fruits of the Somme battle and has gone far to open the road to their full achievement.

Courage and Endurance.

The courage and endurance of our troops have carried them triumphantly through periods of particularly trying fighting, in which they were subjected to the maximum of personal hardship and physical strain. I cannot speak too highly of the qualities of all ranks. The ability with which the troops in the Ancre were handled by Gen. Gough and farther south by Gen. Rawlinson, was in all respects admirable. The retreat to which the enemy was driven by our continued success reintroduced conditions approximating open fighting, in which cavalry was given an opportunity to perform its special duties. Although deliberate, the enemy's withdrawal enabled him to choose new ground for resistance and to employ every device to inflict losses. Our casualties, which were exceedingly moderate throughout the operations in the Ancre, became exceptionally light during the period of retreat.

Open Fighting Ahead.

"The prospect of a more general resumption of open fighting can be regarded with great confidence. The systematic destruction of roads, bridges and railways made unprecedented demands on the Royal Engineers, who were already heavily burdened by the work entailed in the preparations for the spring offensive. Our steady progress in the face of great difficulties is the best testimony to the energy and thoroughness with which those demands were met. The bridging of the Somme at Brie is an example of the nature of the obstacles which we encountered, and the rapidity of their removal. In this instance six gaps had to be bridged across the river, where it is of considerable width and where the current flows swiftly. The work was commenced on the morning of the 18th of March. By 10 o'clock the same night the infantry bridges were completed. By 5 o'clock on the morning of the 20th a medium-type bridge for horse transport and cavalry was completed, and by 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 28th heavy bridges, capable of taking all forms of traffic had replaced the lighter type.

Transport Problems.

"Throughout the winter the transport problems were most serious, both in the battle area and behind the lines, and on the rapid solution of these successes or failure necessarily largely depended. At the close of last year's campaign the steady growth of our armies and the rapid expansion of our material resources had already taxed the roads and railways to the utmost. The existing road and narrow gauge railways were insufficient to deal with the increasing traffic, an undue proportion of which was thrown upon the roads. With winter conditions deteriorating them the difficulty of maintaining them became almost overwhelming. An increase of railway facilities of every type and on a large scale, therefore, became imperatively and urgently necessary. Great quantities of material and rolling stock were required immediately, while subsequently our wants in that regard were considerably augmented by a large program of new construction in the area of the enemy's withdrawal.

"The task of obtaining the amount of railway material required and the carrying out of the work of construction at the rate which our plans rendered necessary, besides providing labor and material for the repair of roads, was one of the very greatest difficulty. Its successful accomplishment reflects the highest credit on the transportation service, of whose efficiency and energy I cannot speak too highly.

Tribute to Geddes.

"I desire to acknowledge in the fullest manner the debt which the country owes to all who assisted in meeting this most difficult situation, especially to Sir Eric Geddes, director-general of transportation, to whose great ability, organizing power and energy the results achieved are primarily due. I am also glad to acknowledge the valuable assistance of the Chemin de Fer Muners."

The dispatch concludes: "The loyal co-operation and complete mutual understanding between our allies and ourselves throughout the Somme battle has been continued and strengthened by the events of the winter, and particularly by the circumstances attending the enemy's withdrawal. During the latter part of the period under review a very considerable tract of country has been won back to France by the combined effort of the Allied troops. This result is regarded with lively satisfaction by all ranks of the British army in France. At the same time I wish to express the feelings of deep sympathy and profound regret provoked among us by the sight of the destruction that war has wrought in a once fair and prosperous country."

SEVEN CHECKS FOR $1,000 SET PACE IN BIG HEART APPEAL

Large Subscriptions Coming for Byron Sanatorium.

CAUSE GRIPS THE CITY

Donations Exceed Expectations in Many Instances—$53,700 the Objective.

Two more splendid contributions of $1,000 each were announced this morning in the "Big Heart" campaign on behalf of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium. The Empire Brass Company and the London Rolling Mills have each sent their check for this sum, which, together with those announced last night, makes seven subscriptions of $1,000 each so far received. A dozen or more gifts of $500 and a very large number of more than $100, were reported at the meeting of the central committee last night.

The subscriptions of $1,000 so far announced are as follows:

Robinson, Little & Co.	$1,000
Hon. C. S. Hyman	1,000
Empire Brass Company	1,000
London Rolling Mills	1,000
Col. T. S. Hobbs	1,000
Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation	1,000
D. H. Howden & Co.	1,000

Among the subscriptions of $500 or over which have been received are the following:

Watt & Blackwell	$500
C. R. Somerville	500
A. M. Smith & Co.	500
The Spramotor Company	500
Mrs. A. MacGarvey	600
London Manufacturing and Machine Company	500
London Shoe Company	500
McMahen, Granger & Co.	500

All the teams are right on the job today. Some of those who had put in a good deal of time on Monday and Tuesday took some additional names at the meeting last night and will continue their work. The unanimous report of those who are on the teams is that the people of London are anxious to have a part in the work of giving back good health and strength to the soldiers who have lost their health on active service and realize that they can do it in no better way than by extending the work of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium.

One of the features of the campaign that is particularly gratifying is that the subscriptions which are being received are, in the majority of cases, even better than the collectors anticipated. They perhaps did not count fully on the way in which the necessity of the work had gripped the city since the situation with regard to the sick men held in England was set forth. Judging by the way in which the campaign has so far progressed, the goal of $57,300 will not only be reached, but surpassed.

64TH BATTERY WILL MOVE TO PETAWAWA

Instructions were received at militia headquarters this morning that the 64th Battery, under Major Walker at Guelph, should move to Petawawa as soon as possible. The members of the Battery are receiving their examination before the medical board today, and when this is completed they will move to the artillery camp at Petawawa. The 64th has a strength of about 100 men of all ranks, and it is understood that there is a possibility that sufficient men to bring it up to full battery strength of 134 men may be transferred from the 63rd Battery here to Guelph before it leaves.

RIDING CROP FOR CYCLISTS' COMMANDER

As a means of showing in a slight manner the appreciation in which their commanding officer, Lieut. Kreitzer, is held by them, the members of the 1st Cyclist Platoon, who are to leave the city today, presented him with a riding crop and a set of gold badges this morning at Carling Heights camp.

The presentation was made on behalf of the platoon by Pte. F. S. Crowhurst, who in a neat impromptu speech told Lieut. Kreitzer that the men of the platoon wished to present him with a small gift to show that they appreciated his work with them, and that they hoped that he would remember, not so much the gift, as the thought that went with it.

Lieut. Kreitzer, though greatly surprised, replied suitably, thanking the men for their thoughtfulness regarding him, and their kindness in remembering him at this time.

Lieut. Kreitzer will accompany the men, and remain in charge of them at an eastern training point.

OPTIONS ON LANDS TO SECURE A HOSPITAL

Controller John M. Moore has taken options on certain farmlands back of the asylum for military hospitals purposes.

The asylum authorities need more farmland. The hospitals commission wants more ground for a site for a hospital. The Government, it is stated here, will exchange the 15 acres lying north of Dundas street, west of the bursar's residence, for farmlands, in order that the hospital may be erected there.

The matter was broached to Controller John M. Moore and Controller E. S. Little and they at once secured prices.

These lands will be offered to the Provincial Government in exchange for the 15 acres mentioned. If the deal is approved of, the hospitals commission will erect hospitals for returned soldiers.

An interview will be arranged in a short time to complete the deal. According to reports, the Dominion Government will pay $300,000 for buildings.

FORMER LONDONER IS LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Peter Mackenzie, son of the late Peter Mackenzie of this city, is the Liberal candidate at Saskatoon in the provincial elections to be held July 26. He was crown attorney of the western city, but resigned to enter the political field. His opponent is Donald McLean, and a strenuous fight is anticipated.

CITY BREVITIES

ONE JUVENILE CASE.—One juvenile case was the best that London sleuths had to bring before Magistrate Graydon this morning at the police court.

BUYS BUSINESS BLOCK.—The large wholesale block at the G. T. R. and Richmond street was sold yesterday by Joseph Brown, auctioneer, to Philip Pocock, for $65,000.

ATTENDING FUNERAL.—Dr. Peter MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald of this city, went to Wingham yesterday to attend the funeral of the late Richard Clegg.

WEDDED 50 YEARS.—Rev. L. W. and Mrs. Wickett of King street will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Friday, June 22. A reception will be held at their home in the afternoon.

TO AID SOLDIERS.—A vocal recital by pupils of J. Parnell Morris will be given Thursday in Dundas Centre schoolroom, under the auspices of the Campbell Becher Chapter, I. O. D. E., in aid of the soldiers' comfort fund.

THE RETURNED MEN'S SHARE.—The Returned Soldiers' Association has received a check for $209, its share of the proceeds of the carnival recently held in Queen's Park. Half this amount will go to the Returned Soldiers' Chapter, Daughters of the Empire.

AN ENGINE BREAKDOWN.—Train No. 115, over the Grand Trunk for Detroit, was stalled just west of the Wharncliffe bridge this afternoon for an hour, owing to a breakdown in the engine. The damage was repaired and the train pulled out shortly after 2 o'clock.

MOTHERS AT SPRINGBANK.—Members of the St. George's Mothers' Club enjoyed a delightful outing on Tuesday afternoon, their annual picnic at Springbank. The tempting supper on this occasion assumed the dignity of a banquet, when it was followed by a toast list, Mrs. W. A. Tanner, honorary president, gracefull performing the duties of toast mistress. The impromptu speeches of those asked to respond to toasts surprised by their cleverness and humor, each one taking part revealing unusual ability to think on her feet. The following was the toast list: The King, Mrs. Coles; Church Union, Mrs. Fletcher; Gardening, Mrs. Bluett; Our School, Mrs. Benson; Women in Politics, Mrs. Rose; "Our Street Car Service," Mrs. Arthur Chapman.

WOMAN USES HATPIN ON LICENSE SPOTTER IN HAMILTON COURT

Hamilton, June 20.—Kate Jurick, a foreign woman, created a scene in police court today when, after being fined $500 for a breach of the Ontario temperance act, she jabbed Sam Criess, a Belgian, employed as a whiskey spotter, in the back with a hatpin. Vice-President Dingman of the central license board, had the woman, who threatened to tear the spotter's eyes out, hauled before the magistrate again. Criess, however, refused to prosecute.

COUNTY WILL KEEP CATTLE OFF ROAD

The county council closed its June session at the County Buildings last night, when an adjourned meeting was held.

A bylaw was passed to restrain cattle from wandering at large on county roads, while Councillors D. A. Graham and William Robinson were appointed publicity agents of the county, to act with District Representative Roscoe Finn, B.S.A.

Warden A. J. Blaikie, J. Morgan and Auditor A. P. McDougall were appointed to meet the London City Council and make an agreement as to what amount the county should pay for the upkeep of the court house and jail.

Councillors J. Currie, J. A. McIntyre, Auditor C. W. Hawkshaw and J. W. Laidlaw, the county's representative on the hospital trust, will go into the matter of the amount to be paid for county patients in Victoria Hospital.

J. J. Poure, David Smith and County Clerk Stewart were appointed as delegates to the Ontario Municipal Association meeting in Toronto this September.

MAJOR BALFOUR IN CHARGE AT WINDSOR

The recruiting depot at Amherstburg has been closed, and Major Balfour, who was in charge of it, has been appointed to take charge of the mobilization centre at Windsor, according to an announcement in today's camp orders.

Recruiting for all units, including the 21st Regiment Overseas Company, is to be carried on under his direction, and all men obtained in the county of Essex are to be taken there for medical board.

Sergt. B. E. Abbott, 1st Hussars, has been struck off strength, and Sergt. G. F. Saddington has been taken on the strength of the Windsor mobilization centre recruiting staff, effective June 5.

RETURNED MEN MAY BE BORDER OFFICERS

Returned soldiers are to be employed as assistants to the immigration officers in their work along the border between this country and the United States, according to information received on reliable authority today.

It is understood that there is a shortage in the ranks of the immigration officials, and that returned soldiers are to be given an opportunity to secure positions in the service and to assist in watching the border traffic.

Considerable assistance has been given already by the military authorities in providing men to assist the immigration officials, and an official of the immigration department states competent returned men are now needed for the work.

JUNE WEDDINGS

LOUGHEED—STEELE.

A wedding of interest to Londoners occurred at noon today at Erin, when Sam Lougheed of the W. A. Jenkins Company, this city, was united in marriage to Miss Nora Steele of Erin. The groom was attended by Arthur Lougheed, while Miss M. Steele assisted the bride. The couple, after a honeymoon trip, will reside in London.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Lougheed and several Londoners went down for the event.

VAN DUSEN—BLACKBURN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the 14th Avenue Methodist Church, Detroit, when J. E. Van Dusen was united in marriage to Minnie Estella Blackburn. The bride was becomingly gowned in white broadcloth and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mr. and Mrs. Van Dusen left for a trip up the Great Lakes, and will be at home to their friends on August 1 at 351 Magnolia avenue, Detroit, Mich.

RUMOR SAYS MINERS WILL FLOOD MINES

Calgary, Alta., June 20.—Rumors to the effect that the mines of district No. 18 will be flooded by the pumpmen unless the proposals submitted by R. F. Green, M. P., are accepted by the operators by Sunday are current. The men demand the acceptance of the proposal, but the operators decline to omit the penalty clauses.

Secretary Carter of the miners' union said he had heard nothing of the matter.

WANT BALTIC PROVINCES.

Copenhagen, via London, June 20.—It transpires that Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg was officially represented at the meeting last week in Berlin of the German Baltic Society, at which Duke Johann Albrecht of Meiklenberg voiced demands that the Baltic provinces and Lithuania must be severed from Russia and colonized by Germany. Count von Pourtales, former ambassador to Petrograd, and now head of the department of Russian affairs in the foreign office, was the chancellor's representative.

BLOOD OF HUN VICTIMS FLOWS IN THE GUTTERS

Lieut. Clyde Kennedy Describes Murderous Raid On English Coast Town.

WORK OF BABY-KILLERS

Thirty Women and Children Slain When Stores Are Blown In.

Lieut. Clyde Kennedy, a member of The Advertiser editorial staff, who went overseas with the 91st (Elgin) Battalion as signalling officer, was "among those present" in one of the recent air raids over the southeast coast of England. In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kennedy of 160 Tecumseh avenue, under the date of May 27, he describes his experiences during the aerial engagement as follows:

"May 27, 1917.

"No doubt you have read about the great air raid on the southeast coast on Friday, May 25. I had often wished to see an air raid, and now that I have had my curiosity satisfied, I am not so keen on seeing another, at any rate not so close to the place in which I may happen to be.

"About 6:15 o'clock Friday evening, Capt. Hopkins, Lieut. Payne and myself happened to be in Folkstone taking dinner. We heard a noise like the report of guns several times, but paid little attention to it. Then the booms became louder and louder and we concluded that an action of some sort was taking place at sea.

12,000 Feet in Air.

"By this time the whistle of shells could be heard, and Payne noticed from the window that people were gazing skyward. I then became curious, and went out on the balcony and looked up also. Capt. Hopkins and Payne followed, and there, directly above us, were two silvery-looking planes which we knew to be German. They were a great distance up, about twelve thousand feet or more.

"We stood there. Some sort of fascination seemed to hold us for the moment. The bombs were falling then, and I began to think that if the Huns had dropped one when they were nearing the building in which I was it would be just about time for the crash to come. Then whiz (a terribly shrill whistle) and crash! bang! (a deafening report) was heard. We all felt the rush of air, the concussion which followed. It was then that I thought the safest place was in the cellar.

Women With "Chicks."

"We went downstairs (there was nothing we could do any other place) only to find that there was no cellar. At the foot of the stairs a number of waitresses and a woman with three children were huddled together. All except the mother of the children were crying and shrieking at every report. The mother had gathered the children in her arms and was bending over them as a hen gathers her chicks under her wing when a hawk or any other danger threatens. We did our best to quiet the women, and succeeded to some extent.

"Across the street we noticed people hurrying into the shop of a wine merchant, evidently to take cover in the wine cellar.

"At this point the machines had passed from directly overhead and we went out into the street to watch them. It was a beautiful sight, this squadron of silvery sea planes flying at so high an altitude and reflecting the rays of the evening sun.

Three of Them Caught.

"We could now see that our anti-aircraft guns were trying to fetch the Huns down. The black and white puffs of smoke given off by the bursting shells were quite discernible from where we stood. Everyone about hoped to see a machine fall, but unfortunately for us the baby-killers got away. Our planes were now in pursuit, but the Germans were so high up and had such a start that it was impossible for our fellows to do anything. However you will see in the papers that a squadron of British planes met the Huns near France and three of the "iron-crossed" machines are reported to have been brought down.

"After finishing our dinner, we went out to have a look around the town. Considerable damage had been done, but we really expected to find the town in worse condition than it was, judging from the number of bombs that were dropped.

"A house, only 125 yards from where we had been standing was almost completely demolished. The shell that struck this house buried itself in the cellar. Three persons were killed here. Fifty or 75 yards from this point a hotel was struck and badly damaged.

Some Killed in Road.

"Two or three blocks further on two bombs lit in the road, killing several, while another found its mark in the rear of an unoccupied house. This last bomb made a hole fifteen feet in diameter and about eight feet deep.

"A store in one of the cheaper business streets was completely demolished and the fronts of stores across the road were blown in. Some thirty people, mostly women and children, were killed here, also three horses. In this street blood was running in the gutter. I saw four bodies removed from this section; two were little boys about 12 or 13, one a young lady, and the other an old lady. Other bombs were dropped, including some that fell into the sea, but the ones I have mentioned did the most damage.

"It was quite an experience, and I shall never forget it. I thought that one bomb was going to drop on the spot where we stood, and I thought it wise to make use of the little cover available."

COMMANDER OF CANADIANS

MAJOR-GEN. SIR ARTHUR CURRIE

ALWAYS MERRY AND BRIGHT FRED YOUNG WRITES ABOUT CHARMS OF OLD ENGLAND

Pte. Fred Young, the 18th Battalion man, whose letters to The Advertiser have shown marked talent for observation, patriotism and literary style, and who was badly wounded about a year ago, has sent another budget, retailing conditions in the old land. No wonder he declines to write more frequently when England, in her spring best, is calling him. But he leaves off his nature study long enough to write as follows:

St. Leonards-on-Sea,
Sussex, England,
May 30, 1917.

Dear Friend,—How are things looking in the old home town these days? It was only natural that on May the 24th, when the British Empire was recognizing Empire Day, that our thoughts should "take a trip on memory's ship" across the rolling deep, until in imagination we again stood beneath the maple trees' shade and heard the Canadian children singing "Those dear rights we still maintain."

Although Empire Day is not looked upon as a real holiday by the British Isles, there were exercises amongst the school children and the generous display of flags and bunting along the sea front, caused our hearts to rejoice in the fact we are British born. And we felt a tinge of pride as we noted that a big Canadian flag occupied the post of honor on that day, on the shore end of the pier at Hastings. "Old Glory" was a close second, surrounded by the Union Jacks and Allied flags.

A Place of Charm.

In our letter disclosing conditions here at Easter, we had to admit the vagaries of the weatherman, but during the Whitsunday holiday, old Sol took full charge of affairs and did his best to make everybody happy. The arrival of the good old summertime has made this vicinity second to none in the charm of its environments. One would have to hit a long and dusty trail before hitting another spot where seaside and country are so gloriously intermingled, and we have spent several moments recently thanking the lucky star that directed our steps here.

At one time we were destined for the town that suffered from the raid last week, but as per usual, "Fools for luck."

Some English Prices.

Prices of necessities are still soaring. Potatoes are being offered from 12 to 36 cents a pound. Whit-Monday was declared a half-holiday by the military authorities of this area, and we had the pleasure of witnessing a baseball game played on the cricket grounds here, but the rules of baseball here are a sealed book to the folks of this vicinity, and many amusing incidents occurred. One lady after seeing a few hot ones put over the plate by the pitcher and caught by the man in the mask, openly expressed her disgust with a game of "Aunt Sally," where they used human beings for Aunt Sally, and when one of the boys who had fanned laid down his bat and walked away, the dear old soul asked if the refusal to allow the pitcher to throw the ball at him any longer had put an end to the game. But the climax was reached when a bent old gentleman inquired of our irresponsible pal, why the boys were using such uncomplimentary remarks to the pitcher, and received the answer that the striped suit he was wearing denoted that he was an escaped convict, and the boys didn't like him. The old chap received the information with astonishment, so did we, but we knew it was no use arguing the point in a crowd when military police were within hailing distance.

Delay in News From Home.

For the past two weeks there has been a delay in the arrival of the Canadian mail, and we have been shut off from news of the home town temporarily. It is gratifying to know that the submarine menace is being overcome, and that shipping losses have been more than cut in half. The Russian situation is decidedly more hopeful, and the practical assistance from the United States is having good effect in the Allies' favor.

The food controller is threatening drastic measures on unpatriotic profiteers, but as threats alone never hung very high, what is the use of threats?

At a restaurant where we usually spend our Government limit of 30 cents, the proprietor dolefully informed us that her efforts to meet aeroplane prices with a submarine income were as useless as taking a sieve to a regatta. We sympathized with her by remarking that a 30-cent meal didn't exercise any abnormal pressure on our waist belt.

We will admit that we have not written very regularly lately, but with woods full of primroses and bluebells, and meadows carpeted with buttercups and daisies, and the song of the lark, thrush and cuckoo calling us to stretch in off-duty hours along the mossy banks where the modest violet fills the evening air with fragrance, while the moan of the ever-restless sea strikes the ear like a lullaby, we find it extremely difficult to resist the call of the wild, and listen to the demand of the outgoing mail.

Yours as ever. FRED YOUNG.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

DEATH OF J. J. HARKNESS.

Joseph John Harkness, traveling salesman for the Sherwin-Williams Paint Company for fifteen years, died here on Tuesday. He was 43 years old, and had been ill for nearly four years. He had resided in the city for fifteen years. His mother, two brothers and two sisters survive him, as well as his wife, Mrs. Annie Harkness, and two daughters, Erna and Beth.

The funeral will be held from his late residence, 125 Albert street, on Thursday to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Flanders.

FUNERAL OF GUY T. GREENE.

Guy T. Greene, one of the most popular of local G. T. R. employees, who died in Harper Hospital, Detroit, on Sunday, was buried on Tuesday at Woodland Cemetery. The services at his late residence, 369 Hamilton road, were conducted by Rev. W. R. McIntosh. Those at the grave were conducted by Brother Kelly of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, No. 240. About sixty members of the organization walked to the cemetery to attend the services. The pallbearers were six of their members: A. McCallum, A. Wheable, T. Hall, W. Blaney, W. Ogilvie, F. Hatherly.

Those who came from outside places to attend the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Greene, St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. C. Greene, Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. H. G. McHarg, Toronto; Mr. C. W. McHarg, Hamilton; Mrs. J. Robertson, Hamilton; Mr. George Dolby, Guelph; Mr. and Mrs. Boylan, Sarnia.

The floral contributions were numerous and included: Pillow from brothers and sisters; broken wheel, Brotherhood Railroad Trainmen; wreath, Ladies' Auxiliary of B. of R. T., No. 120; star and crescent, office staff and foremen G. T. R. carshops; wreath, coach and freight shops, G. T. R. carshops; wheel, office staff and yardmen, G. T. R.; spray, Cullen family, Detroit; spray, N. Y. C. Railway Boys, Toledo, Ohio; spray, Blue Bird and Edith Cavell Classes, King Street; spray, Presbyterian Church; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Cripps; spray, Mr. and Mrs. H. McKinley; spray, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Peckham, Detroit; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. D. O'Connel; spray, Advertiser Bindery Department; spray, Mrs. and Lulu Stein; spray, London Printing and Lithograph Company; spray, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Robertson, Hamilton; wreath, Connel family; spray, Mrs. Caldbeck and Miss Harvey, Toronto.

PERSONAL MENTION

Toronto News: Mrs. R. M. Graham of London, who attended the National Council meetings in Winnipeg, is in town for a few days, the guest of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Graham, on her way home.

HIT A STREET CAR.

Toronto, June 20.—Ernest Jeffrey and Jocelyn Lalor, two dairy employees, riding to work on one motorcycle early this morning, collided with a street car. Jeffrey's skull was fractured and Lalor received serious cuts. The two were carried for nearly 50 feet on the fender of the car. Jeffrey is still alive.

KINGSTONIAN FLOATED.

Boston, June 20.—Word reached the Leyland Line by cable today that the steamer Kingstonian, recently beached at a point in the Mediterranean, after being seriously damaged by a German submarine or a mine, had been floated and towed to a British port. Previous advices did not state how the vessel was damaged, but officers of the Leyland Line said she probably hit a mine.

WIDE POWERS GIVEN CONTROLLER OF FOOD

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 20.—The order-in-council defining the duties and powers of the Canadian Food Controller Hon. W. J. Hanna, provides that the food controller shall make necessary investigations into the quantities, location, ownership, sources of supply, and prices of any article of food in Canada; that he shall ascertain domestic requirements and facilitate the export of the surplus to Great Britain and her allies.

Subject to the approval of the governor-in-council, the food controller may make regulations governing the prices of any food and the storage, distribution, sale and delivery thereof, providing for its conservation and governing consumption in hotels, restaurants, cafes, private houses, clubs, etc.

It is further provided that, subject to the same approval of the cabinet, the food controller may requisition, store, sell and deliver food, and may appoint a necessary staff to carry on the work.

Provision is made for co-operative action with any department of the Canadian Government or of the governments of Great Britain and the Allied countries.

CORN FLAKES CASE INDICATES THERE IS MUCH IN A NAME

Use of "Kellogg's" On Advertising a Point in Dispute.

MANAGER ON THE STAND

Says More Flakes Sold in Canada Than All Other Brands.

The $100,000 suit for damages, plus an injunction, asked by the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flakes Company of this city, to restrain the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flakes Company of Michigan from operating in Canada, is proceeding slowly at the courthouse before Mr. Justice Middleton.

R. H. McIntosh, manager of the local company, was cross-examined by I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., counsel for the defence, for almost three hours yesterday afternoon and this morning.

Mr. McIntosh stated that the corn flakes manufactured in London were known all over the country as Kellogg's, and that checks had been received by the London company from the Battle Creek concern that had been sent to them there. In answer to Mr. Hellmuth, the manager stated that he did not know that eleven carloads of private brand corn flakes had been brought into Canada and sold last week.

"Seconds" for Hospitals.

Mr. McIntosh also explained that what was known as "seconds" were sold to the hospitals at reduced rates. The flakes were of No. 1 quality, but the cartons were damaged. He did not know how his salesmen answered grocers who asked for Kellogg's Krumbles and Toasted Wheat Flakes. He had never issued any instructions to them on the subject.

Examined by Sir George Gibbons, witness declared that in his opinion there were more toasted corn flakes sold in Canada than all other cereals put together, and that Kellogg was the distinguishing name by which the London product went, so much so that the public thought that the local concern manufactured Kellogg's Krumbles.

Called Them Kellogg's.

Wm. H. Kenney, wholesale grocer of Sarnia, the next witness, said that his travelers designated the corn flakes as Kellogg's. He invoiced goods out as Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

Tuesday afternoon Sir George Gibbons finished putting in the somewhat voluminous correspondence between the Canadian and American firms, showing that all negotiations re the Canadian Company had been carried on with W. H. Kellogg.

Objection Made.

Mr. Hellmuth, cross-examining Dr. Wm. Roome, introduced correspondence to show that strenuous objection was made to the London company calling themselves the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Company. The Canadian company still remains the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Company, Limited.

A great deal of time was taken up with the advertising done by the Canadian company, and the advantage they would obtain from the American company's advertising. The witness, however, believed that little would be obtained from the American company's advertising, as the Canadian company's headquarters were not mentioned in it.

Mr. Hellmuth asked Dr. Roome if he now wished the American company to advertise their company with theirs in magazines and papers which circulate in Canada. This question was, however, ruled out by Mr. Justice Middleton.

Used U. S. Corn Flakes.

Dr. Roome admitted that at one time in 1910, on account of a breakdown in machinery, some carloads of corn flakes were obtained from the American company.

After Dr. Roome had retired, Sir George Gibbons introduced more correspondence.

Mr. Zufelt, a merchant of Belleville, followed Dr. Roome, and testified that he had understood all the cereal foods presented to him, such as Kellogg's toasted wheat flakes, Kellogg's toasted wheat biscuit, Kellogg's toasted corn flakes, Kellogg's bran, etc., were all made by the one company.

Reginald K. McIntosh, the manager of the London company, was called, and testified that he was seldom recognized as representing the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Company, but was always known when he was spoken of as Kellogg's toasted corn flake representative.

Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

BELGIUM REFUSES TO PAY WAR CONTRIBUTION DEMANDED BY GERMANS

Copenhagen, via London, June 20.—A German industrial bureau has been established in Brussels for the purpose of recruiting Belgian labor for German war industries and Belgian women for farmwork. The official announcement mentions the "voluntary" nature of the recruiting, but does not specify the conditions. The details are only available on application to a local trade bureau, and laborers can only return to Belgium with the permission of the military authorities.

The Belgian provinces have refused to meet the increased war contribution of 60,000,000 marks monthly which the Germans have now imposed upon them. In the same fashion as formerly the Germans have forced contributions from the banks. The banks are given the security of two-year bonds for which the provinces are responsible, the amount covering six months' contributions.

WHILE ROOF BURNS

was brought into action, bringing the pressure up to normal again.

In little over an hour the fire was under control. It was extinguished in about an hour and a half after the arrival of the firemen.

Dr. Robinson would not venture an estimate of the damage. No insurance is carried.

Fire Trap With Attics.

The new roof he thinks may be built of cheaper material than the slate one which was destroyed, but it is likely that it will be replaced in such a way as to eliminate the attics. The more modern buildings are flat-roofed and covered with gravel. "With the attics the place is a veritable fire trap," said Dr. Robinson, when discussing the probable plans for rebuilding.

Those patients who were quartered in the destroyed building will now be placed in the newly-erected amusement hall. This is a spacious, modern building with high ceilings, and although primarily designed as a concert hall contains every facility for temporary living quarters. Large rooms in the basement can be used as dining rooms and smaller ones with gas installed, can be used as kitchens, although the greater part of the food preparation will still be carried on in the main kitchen.

Affairs are almost in their normal state again, and routine is proceeding in the same way as usual.

Corridors Cleared.

The work of clearing up began almost as soon as the firemen had departed, and the majority of the corridors and dormitories have been cleared of the water and cinders. Plaster, fallen from the ceilings, is providing plenty of work for the attendants and patients. Fires have been lighted in those rooms which contain fireplaces, and the drying out process has commenced. The greater part of the work on the lower floors will be completed today, leaving only the top floor and the attic to be cleared of debris.

The cause of the fire is unknown. It is not thought to be due to defective wiring, as no evidences of this have been discovered so far. Most of the wiring is encased in conduit.

"Is the Ashplant Store Shoeing All the Women in Town?"

Asked a lady the other day as she noted the throngs of animated women buying here.

And, madam, do you realize WHY we are so busy these beautiful spring days?

It is because we are showing ALL the prevailing novelties at below prevailing prices—a FACT which you can prove for yourself by comparisons.

SYNOD IS OCCUPIED WITH DETAILS OF RULES AND CANONS

"Organic Trouble" Clause Brings a Laugh or Two.

ARCHDEACON FELICITATED

Complimented On Fifty Years' Service in Church of England.

A notice of motion of the Bishop of Huron in regard to the verbal amendment of constitutions, rules and canons occupied the attention of the synod in session in Cronyn Hall practically the whole of this forenoon.

Bishop Williams explained that the suggested changes were for the purpose of putting the constitution, rules and canons into better and more direct English and to get rid of superfluous phraseology in the majority of cases. In others, the object was to make long-established custom and the workable plan of the synod a definite part of the constitution.

One or two amusing incidents that had resulted from the reading as it stands of the canons were related by way of illustration of the necessity for change. For example, owing to the reading of the canon "in London" concerning the meeting of the executive committee after the close of synod, the year the synod met in Stratford, the executive could not be legally held there and a meeting was necessary of a part of the executive in the station in London in order to fulfil requirements.

Inadequate for Both Sexes.

With regard to a suggested addition to the form of certificate, "and that Mr. or Messrs. —— was (or were) duly elected as substitute in the order named," the question was raised concerning the inadequacy of this should it be decided to extend the franchise to women so far as vestries are concerned.

The good intentions of the delegate were over-ruled by the apparent sentiment on the part of a number that this was a case of "borrowing trouble."

Rev. Dr. Sage took exception to a suggested amendment concerning representation in synod to read, "when the quorum shall consist of seventy-five of each order of the clergy and laity, respectively, including the chairman." His objection was that in event at a future time of the diocese being divided there might not possibly be 75 clergymen. Like the suggestion concerning the representation of women, this was pointed out to be a clear case of crossing bridges before coming to them.

With regard to the receiving of candidates into the ministry, the added clause "and free from organic troubles" was suggested.

The "Organic Trouble" Clause.

Bishop Williams stated that this had been suggested by the synod physician owing to the fact that the phraseology of the canon as it stands is not sufficient safeguard for the synod.

"A man suffering from organic trouble would not be admitted into an insurance company," said Bishop Williams in explanation, adding, "and the benefits of the synod are very much the same. Receiving a man into the synod means that he is brought to all the synod funds."

A laugh was raised by the query of Principal Waller, "My lord, would a wooden leg be considered organic trouble? Would a man be refused on that ground?"

The principal of Huron College hastened to explain that he did not mean to be ridiculous, he simply wanted to know if a missing thumb or finger would incapacitate a man from entering the ministry in the diocese."

Doctor Gives Light.

Dr. Moorhouse stated that by organic was meant trouble with heart, lungs, kidneys or some other organ, which, though not apparent at the time, might at any time manifest itself, incapacitating the man from service and throwing him on the funds of the diocese at an early age.

Venerable Archdeacon Young, as convener of the committee on canons, etc., presented the report.

On motion of John Ransford of Clinton, seconded by Charles Jenkins of Petrolea, the hearty congratulations of the synod were extended to Venerable Archdeacon Richardson on achieving his fiftieth year in the ministry, and coupled with these the assurance of the synod of deep appreciation of services rendered to the diocese, and good wishes for the future.

Mr. Ransford stated that Archdeacon Richardson was successively B. A., M. A. and D. C. L. of Queens College, Nova Scotia. He was ordained in 1868, and in 1877 was appointed rector of the Cronyn Memorial Church, London. He resigned in 1899 to take charge of St. John's Church, London township. He was made archdeacon in 1903. From 1879 to 1903 he held with distinction the position of honorary clerical secretary of the synod. "For four years," said Mr. Ransford, "in the capacity of lay secretary, I sat at the feet of Gamaliel, otherwise Archdeacon Richardson."

A suitable reply was made by the archdeacon, who expressed his heartfelt thanks for the kindness shown to him at all times by the bishop and his fellow-clergy, and the lay members of the synod.

SYNOD PERSONALITIES.

Paul Shimmon, personal representative of Mar Shimun, patriarch of the Assyrian church on the distress in Assyria and Armenia, is a striking figure in the synod, where he follows closely and with apparent keen interest and appreciation, all business proceedings and discussions. A Persian, Mr. Shimmon might pass for a Canadian were it not for the swarthiness which is deeper even than the coat of tan of a number of the clerical delegates from rural districts, where long drives are in order.

Receiving his college education in the United States, Paul Shimmon returned to his native country to engage in missionary work. Until a year and a half ago, he and his family were in the midst of the horrors of massacres and deportations which have taken place in Asia Minor since the outbreak of war. His wife and child suffered from typhus brought in by the Turkish troops, and twelve patients were nursed in his home.

"I sometimes do not see how my immediate family got away alive," he stated today to The Advertiser. "We owe our lives, I am confident, to the fact that were were protected by the American flag, and more than this, to the grace of God. My mission there was in connection with the American church."

Tonight, Mr. Shimmon is telling some of the experiences of himself and family at the public meeting of synod, a conference on missions to be held at 8 o'clock in Cronyn Hall.

Venerable Archdeacon Young, who has attended every meeting of the synod of the Diocese of Huron since 1865, today presented the report on amendment of the constitution, rules and canons. Probably no man present has a better grasp of affairs or is quicker to see a new angle of a question, notwithstanding his long years of service.

Archdeacon Young was ordained in 1868, and has spent the whole 49 years of his ministry in the Diocese of Huron.

A meeting of the synod of the Diocese of Huron would scarcely be recognized, so far as lay delegates are concerned, without the presence of Charles Jenkins of Petrolea, an able speaker, and possessed of a wide knowledge not only of church affairs within the diocese but throughout the Dominion. He is frequently on his feet, making, seconding, or speaking to motions, and his remarks at all times reveal a thorough insight into any subject under discussion.

DR. HOFFMAN RESIGNS FROM SWISS COUNCIL OVER PEACE PROPOSAL

Berne, June 19—Via Paris, June 20.—The letter of resignation sent to the Swiss Federal Council by Dr. Arthur Hoffmann, chief of the political department of the council, follows:

"Publication of the cipher letter which I sent to Robert Grimm at Petrograd, through the Swiss legation, and wherein I expressed my conception of the peace conditions of the central powers as they concerned Russia and the other Entente states, has created a situation which might become fatal for the internal and foreign policies of our country. I should not be able to endure the thought that at this period of extreme tension and great political agitation my action independent of the federal council might become the source of mistrust, disunion and dissensions, and might harm my beloved country. I therefore ask you to accept my resignation as a member of the federal council."

The letter to Grimm, a Swiss Socialist, concerned proposals for a separate peace between Germany and Russia. The proposals reached the Russian Provisional Government, which ordered the expulsion of Grimm from the country.

INFORMATION, RULES AND CONDITIONS OF THE ADVERTISER'S BIG PRIZE CONTEST.

Everyone over the age of 16, who is of good character, whether married or unmarried, old or young, is eligible to compete in this Prize Contest. This means men, women and children over 16 are acceptable as candidates.

Candidates may nominate themselves. Nominations must be accompanied by the proper address of candidates.

No employee of The Advertiser or members of an employee's family can enter or compete for any of the prizes.

The Advertiser reserves the right to reject any nominations.

Nominations may be made at any time during the Contest.

Vote coupons good for 100 votes will be published in The Advertiser, which, when neatly cut out, name filled in, and brought or mailed to the Contest Department of The Advertiser, will count for the amount thereon.

Votes cannot be purchased. They must be secured by clipping them from The Advertiser or by securing subscriptions.

All remittances must be accompanied by subscriber's name and address.

All votes issued on subscriptions are good until the end of the Contest, and will be polled at the discretion of the candidate or subscriber.

Candidates who seek to lessen competition by discouraging other competitors, or whose friends endeavor to lessen competition by the same means, will be disqualified and dropped from the Contest.

Votes are not transferable, except under the following circumstances: If a candidate wishes to withdraw from the contest he or she may change the votes to a suitable substitute, but said substitute must be a new candidate, who has not been before accepted in the contest.

A committee of well-known businessmen will be selected by The Advertiser to count the votes and decide upon the prize-winners.

The Judges' Final Count of votes will be made in public, and all candidates and their friends may witness it.

All Contest records will be open to the inspection of the candidates the day following the Judges' Final Count of votes.

Cash must accompany all subscriptions where votes are to be issued.

The list of candidates and the number of votes polled will be published periodically during the Contest.

Active voting begins June 15, but candidates may start subscription-getting at once.

In case of a tie the prize will be equally divided among those polling a tie vote.

The Advertiser reserves the right to alter the rules and regulations or any of the offers, except a reduction in the prize list, for the protection and the best interests of the candidates and this newspaper.

The Advertiser guarantees fair treatment to all contestants, and should any question arise a decision of the management will be considered final and absolute.

No statement or promise made by any solicitor or agent varying from the rules or statements published in The Advertiser will be recognized in the contest.

Candidates influencing or attempting to influence any of the judges shall forfeit all rights to a prize.

A candidate is not required to be a previous subscriber to The Advertiser, to enter the competition.

Persons who enter and take part in this Prize Contest bind themselves to abide by the foregoing rules.

SIR WILFRID'S STAND.

THE ADVERTISER does not believe Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked for a referendum on conscription because he wished to please the people of Quebec or because of any opposition on his part to conscription. He has proven his loyalty in the past to the Empire, to his native country, Canada, and to the principles which make for the enlightenment and freedom of the world. He has lifted his vigorous voice on occasions during the present war in an appeal to his fellow-countrymen to rally around the standard that is battling against Prussian militarism. He is not playing politics, because the demand of the country from almost every quarter is for conscription, and the demand has been made in no uncertain tone.

In the past Sir Wilfrid has expressed his convictions in plain language and has been willing to abide by the decision of the voters. In his speech in the House of Commons on Monday, he said: "Let the people speak, give us their interpretation, express their will and I am quite satisfied. I ask no more." "If I rise today," he said, "to oppose this bill, it is rather a sadness to me than otherwise, for my views have not changed upon the objects to be attained in this war. My heart is where it ever has been from the day that war broke out. I have not changed at all, and if any there be who think I am not consistent in taking the position I now take, all I have to say is, hear me, hear me for my cause."

It required more than passiveness to take the position Sir Wilfrid assumed. Only a strong man could have done it. An unqualified approval of the bill would have won the plaudits of the country; opposition of any kind was certain to bring bitter criticism. No one knew this better than the veteran leader. Liberal papers throughout the country, as well as those of Conservative opinion, are almost unanimous in favor of immediate compulsory service. Opposition alone comes from Quebec, where it is not confined to any party, and where the vote at the last election was almost equally divided. On the face of it, Sir Wilfrid, as a party leader, had everything to gain by supporting the measure and everything to lose by opposing it.

His opposition, however, was deliberate. He based it on the ground that the Government had no legal right to ask Parliament to pass such a radical measure without the consent of the people. Technically, it may be assumed, the Government ceased to represent the people when its term of office expired less than a year ago. With the consent of the Liberals the term was extended for one year. That period is about to expire. The legality of adopting such a measure at this time may be rightly questioned. If the act is legal, what may not another government do under similar conditions?

The present case, however, is extraordinary. There is urgent necessity for more men for the front, and public sentiment, so far as expressed, appears overwhelmingly in favor of taking a chance on precedent for the sake of the Empire and the men now holding the trenches. Knowing this, Sir Wilfrid must have other reasons for the momentous step which he took. Perhaps the trouble lies in the province which he represents, and whereof he can speak with knowledge, and perhaps it is of a much more ominous character than the rest of the country knows. Sedition has been allowed to run rampant there for more than two years. Bourassa and Lavergne, unleashed, have been permitted to sow seeds of disloyalty. In other parts of the country much less evidence of disloyalty has been punished with imprisonment. Is it possible that the Nationalist leaders have the whip hand of the otherwise uninformed habitants? It is not improbable. If the passing of conscription without a referendum would bring a revolution of French-Canadians, if there is even a sign of such trouble, Sir Wilfrid's demand that the voice of the people be heard is an indication that he is looking only to the well-being of his country. It is difficult to believe that his action is due to a desire merely to be technically right.

INSANE SINN FEINERS.

NOT CONTENT to take quietly the unconditional pardon granted their friends, who have been in jail for some months, Dublin Sinn Feiners must go to such lengths in their demonstrations that two others of them have to be arrested and placed in the cells, charged with breaking in the postoffice and incendiarism.

This is most discouraging to the British authorities, who have acted leniently towards those convicted of serious crimes, in hopes that this would tend to create a better feeling and make the coming Irish conference the success it ought to be. Instead of meeting the outstretched hand cordially, the Sinn Feiners have answered it with a blow, by tearing down recruiting posters and otherwise violating the laws of the land, without the shadow of an excuse.

The turning loose of the imprisoned Sinn Feiners was a statesmanlike deed, performed on behalf of Ireland. No doubt the Government realized it was running a risk in that the act might be taken as a sign of weakness by those whom it sought to pacify. It was willing to risk being misunderstood by the irreconcilables, if it could bring together the greater parties. Perhaps it will succeed; perhaps the insane actions of the Sinn Feiners will help, and will disgust some of their own party. Only the future can show.

THE GREEK SITUATION.

IT WAS HOPED THAT, with the abdication of Constantine and his removal from Greece along with the queen, all the Allies' troubles in that quarter would be at an end and the constant danger which threatened Gen. Sarrail's army would be eliminated, but the new king's proclamation is by no means reassuring.

It comes as a shock to read that this boy king, Alexander, who was supposed to be free from German influence and sympathies, refers to his father's policy as "brilliant" and pledges himself to continue it. If he keeps this promise his reign is likely to be short and not too sweet.

What was Constantine's policy? First and foremost, to help his brother-in-law, Kaiser Wilhelm, in every possible way without openly antagonizing the Entente Allies; secondly, to break faith with Serbia, relying on a technicality to excuse himself; thirdly, to announce himself a martyr and appeal to other neutrals to gaze upon him as an example of wronged innocence.

The results of this policy have been the occupation of part of Greece by Bulgarians, a semi-starvation of the people, and the incurring of the contempt and distrust of all nations except those allied with the Germans.

This is the line which Alexander is understood to indorse, but there is a possibility that his meaning has been misinterpreted and that he does not intend his words to apply to his foreign policy, but only to certain internal plans. It is to be hoped there has been a mistake; otherwise Alexander will surely follow his father abroad. Too much time has been wasted over the Grecian situation. The Allies are determined to have it settled at once.

GERMANS IN AMERICA.

ATTENTION is drawn by a New York man to the fact that Germans, who had to leave England, are to be found acting as superintendent and assistant at one of the most exclusive country clubs of New York state, and he wonders why this is tolerated and what information these men are able to collect which would be valuable to Germany.

Similar questions have worried many Canadians in the last two years. Germans and Austrians are employed by the Government in various capacities, have positions in munition works and conduct restaurants in the cities. Some of these are naturalized and some are not, but in either case there is grave doubt as to the wisdom of allowing them the degree of freedom and opportunity for doing harm which they now enjoy.

Any information in Canada which would be welcomed at Berlin, is likely to reach the enemy capital; that may be taken as proved since every effort of the United States authorities to keep secret the sailings of ships, even the warship squadron, has failed. There still exist secret means of communication with Germany, and these "underground" routes are known to the spies.

The importance of preventing German-tainted news from leaving the Dominion is as great now as at any time. Misrepresentation of the conscription discussions and the attitude of a portion of the populace might be used to delude the German nation into believing that a strong anti-war sentiment existed, thus encouraging it to keep up the struggle.

There is no desire in this free land to be harsh with the German-born within its borders, but common caution would say that they should be kept out of temptation as far as possible. For those who are trusted as loyal, there are plenty of ways of making a living in businesses which have no direct connection with the war and in which they would be unlikely to learn secrets of importance. For the others, there are internments camps.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

German aviators have given up flying alone. Misery certainly does love company.

Robert Grimm, Swiss Socialist and German agent in Russia, resembles the writer of fairy tales in more than name.

Sir Sam Hughes arises in the House to prevent the name of Gen. Lessard becoming too popular. Quite like old times.

The United States now expects its record crop this year. Soon Canada's prognosticators will become more optimistic.

Another six hundred wounded and invalided soldiers are nearing Quebec. Is there an equal number of able-bodied men leaving for Europe?

Toronto bakers find it possible to reduce the price of bread when the Jewish women go on strike. Did the strike reduce the cost of flour or the cost of labor?

The Government of India restrains Mrs. Annie Besant and her associates from public speaking or writing, but Lavergne, Bourassa and company are exempt here.

Mr. Sevigny is rather unfairly discriminating. He would put disloyal Marcil in jail, but disloyal Renault he would quiet with an office. The ways of such greatness as Sevigny's are past finding out. He is as mysterious as Rogers.

Some day one of the patients cured at Byron will meet a man who refused to contribute to the efficiency of the Sanatorium. He will be able to say: "I put my life in pawn for thee, fighting day and night in wet trenches with the thermometer between 30 and 40; what hast thou given for me?"

MAKING TIME FLY

By Jane Osborn.

Jill had just finished washing dishes and setting things to rights in the kitchen, and the living room when the clock struck 11.

"Eleven o'clock already!" she exclaimed, looking reproachfully from her work in the kitchen toward the offending timepiece.

"Only eleven o'clock," sighed Jack, who was arranging fishing tackle on the kitchen table. "Goodness! It does seem as if meal times never came here. I think it's in the air—the air and your good cooking."

Jill placed two water-soaked, small hands squarely in the pockets of her bungalow apron.

"Jack Nast, I'm just ashamed of you. Why, you had enough pancakes and sausages for breakfast to feed a large family. Home you wouldn't think of eating anything but eggs and toast. And that chocolate cake I made yesterday is all gone, and the bread and pies I baked the first day we came are gone and I thought they would last the week. I'll have to bake again this afternoon. I can't now—it's time to get luncheon."

Jack looked self-reproach and guilt. "I'm sorry, honey, but I'm as hungry as a bear. This mountain air is immense. Maybe in a day or so I won't eat so much."

"I'm glad you like my first cooking," sighed Jill with a weary smile, as she hurried to the cupboards for flour and sugar for the muffins for luncheon. "But if I catch you eating any more cakes and pies between meals," she called back to him, "I'm going on a strike. That chocolate cake I made yesterday——"

"Ought to have made it twice as big," commented Jack, and then there was silence save for the regular sound of the cake spoon wielded against the sides of the mixing bowl.

Jack and Jill Nast were on their first vacation together—that is, excepting the wedding trip of a week or so a few months before, when there had been no thought of anything so rustic as a trip to Jack's little cabin in the mountains, or anything so mundane as the cultivation of a large appetite.

"Let's have a real honeymoon this time," Jill had begged. "Don't let's have anyone there but ourselves. I can do the little cooking needed. You know I studied domestic science in college. And we can spend all our time outdoors under the trees and the sky. We can have provisions sent up from the city——"

"Oh, bother the cooking," agreed Jack, whose appetite had not yet been whetted by the mountain air and the outdoor exercise and mental relaxation. "One cooked meal a day will be enough. A few crackers and milk will be all I want for the other two. With that mountain air we don't need a lot of cooked dishes."

"How wonderful!" sighed Jill, and so the plans were made that left out of consideration the services of a cook.

But Jack's gustatorial apperceptions had undergone a complete change since that conversation. By the second day in the cabin the most important consideration of his waking hours seemed to be the contemplation and consumption of Jill's good cooking. And he eyed his watch with more eagerness than he did his line when he sat fishing in the trout brook behind the cabin.

Jill made another chocolate cake on the afternoon of the third day and Jack saw it. After that they planned a short walk through the woods. While Jill was changing her bungalow working frock for a short khaki costume Jack carried out the plan that had been brewing in his mind since daybreak.

The clock pointed to five minutes of 3. It was the tall, loud-ticking, old-fashioned clock that stood in the living room—the only clock in the cabin. Jack reached up, opened the glass face, and carefully listening for Jill's approach, turned the hands ahead to five minutes of 4.

Then they started out. Jack in especially good mood because of the prospect of having supper an hour earlier than he really deserved it. Jill shared his good spirits.

It was not hard to get the conversation around to the subject of watches. "Of course there are no tramps or burglars around the shack, but I was thinking that you ought not to leave that watch of yours around," commented Jack. "Suppose I take it and put it in a safe place for you."

Jill looked up with a little surprise, and then: "I was thinking exactly the same thing myself—about your watch. You left it in the bedroom the other day when you went fishing. And, anyway, now that we are away from civilization, why should we keep track of time?"

"Yes, why should we?" echoed Jack, delighted that Jill had fallen in so readily with his scheme. "Let's both put our watches away."

"I'll take them both right now," suggested Jill easily. "I can roll them up in cotton and put them under that trap in the kitchen cupboard. We can get all the ideas we want about meal times from the clock."

Jack handed his watch to his wife, though he reddened a little at the reference she made to the living room clock.

"Promise, if you take my watch, that you won't look at them any more, dearie," he conditioned. "We'll just forget about time, won't we, honey?" And Jill smiled her perfect accord.

So at the outset of the ramble the watches were rolled into Jill's handkerchief and slipped into the cartridge pocket on her khaki suit. And Jack's thoughts rambled back to the faithful, loud-ticking clock in the living room that would bring dinner an hour ahead of time.

"Funny how time flies in the woods," he remarked by 5. "I can tell by the shadows that it is about 6—almost time for dinner."

"Oh, you silly man," squealed Jill. "I'm sure we haven't been gone an hour. I'm sure I can't tell anything from the shadows, and I don't believe you can, either. You're just trying to bluff the new wife and make her think you are a regular Indian."

They both smiled, and with one accord started to retrace their steps toward the cabin. Jack stopped to gather some wild strawberries at Jill's request. He was quite sure that Jill would keep her promise not to look at the watches, so he did not hesitate to permit her to return alone. He wondered whether she would be surprised when she saw the clock pointing an hour nearer supper time than she supposed.

Of course there was this difficulty that had occurred to Jack when he first formulated his scheme for making time fly. By leaving the clock an hour faster it would mean an hour earlier rising time, and in order to hasten meals any more the next day there would have to be another abridgement of the time, which would, of course, be rather difficult in the long run. That was why he made an excuse about going to see the possum traps that night after dinner. The lights were out in the cabin, and Jill, tired by her much cooking and the walk in the woods, was peacefully tucked into bed.

It would be an easy matter, he thought, to turn the hands back an hour and thus bring the rising time around to normal again. To be sure, it would make an hour more between dinner and breakfast than usual, but the sound sleep that had come with the mountain air and the good appetite would render him dead to the ravages of hunger through the night.

So Jack, without the slightest intention of setting possum traps, for there were no possums and no traps to be had, walked around the cabin three times in the starlight and then noiselessly went toward the living room with designs on the clock. But as he was about to turn the knob he saw through the window a figure in white—Jill, to be sure. She heard him and stopped and then lighted a candle on the table.

"Hello, you un?" he asked, casting a guilty look toward the clock. Jill also looked at the clock. He had noticed it when he went out. It said 9 o'clock then, and now it said 10.

He started in alarm. Then he heard Jill's nervous laugh. He looked at her and to his surprise she laughed again nervously and whispered, "I'm sorry, Jack. I'll have to confess. I thought it would take longer for you to fix those traps. That's why you caught me. You see—you see, I got so tired of cooking, so I—I set the clock an hour back when you were gathering berries, so I'd have more time to get supper. It didn't really seem to help at all, though. I had to hurry just as fast. Any way, I had to set it forward again so we could get up at the right time in the morning. You thought it was only 9, but it is really 10." Then there was another nervous little laugh. "Can you forgive me?"

Jack was puzzling. "No, it isn't 10, it's 11—that is, I thought it was. But—but, why, by George, it is really 10, just as the clock said it was. You see—well, you see, I set the clock forward this afternoon. So we had supper at the regular time, after all. It did seem as if I was just as hungry as ever before it was ready."

They stood and looked at each other in the candlelight. "I'll tell you what we'll do," said Jack. "We'll cook the meals together—like good campmates. Then, you'll have time enough in the woods and you'll have less cooking to do. And we won't fib to each other any more, will we?"

And, of course, Jill promises no most emphatically.

TWO NOMINATIONS FOR SECRETARY OF RETURNED SOLDIERS

At a special meeting of the local Returned Soldiers' Association held in the clubrooms, Richmond street, last night, nominations were received for the position of secretary, made vacant by the recent resignation of Sergt. J. Struad, who had acted in that capacity. Pte. E. Bellanger, 18th Battalion, and Pte. Concliffe, 33rd Battalion, were nominated, and a vote will be taken at a general meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. A report on the Great War Veterans' Convention held recently in Ottawa was read, and local delegates will explain the work accomplished there at the next meeting. The name of the local association will most likely be changed to that of the Great War Veterans' Association in the near future, in order to conform with other associations throughout the Dominion. Lieut.-Col. W. G. Coles occupied the chair, and a good attendance was recorded. The full return of the proceeds of the returned soldiers' carnival held in Queen's Park last week was not available, but Sergt. J. Rawlings, acting secretary, is busy on a full statement, which will be published in the near future.

CYCLISTS PLATOON LEAVES THIS AFTERNOON

A platoon of cyclists, with Lieut. W. H. J. Kreitzer in command, will leave for an eastern training point this afternoon via the G. T. R. This platoon can be classed as an international platoon, containing as it does men of good standing from Canada, United States, England, Ireland and Scotland. Probably no finer class of cyclists have left this district for the western front, and, though the time for training here has been short, the smart appearance of the men denotes quality. The following are the names of all ranks leaving on this draft: Lieut. Kreitzer, Sergt. William Elliott, Corp. Charles French, Corp. R. H. Stanley, Ptes. Bingloe, Crowhurst, Darling, Date, Johnston, Lawson, Lewis, Lorraine, Lavine, McRae, Miller, A. C. Miller, George, Molloy, Murray, Newton, O'Leary, Packingham, Perry, Raymer, Ridge, Ross, Shields, Stork, Thomas, Whiteside, Wilkinson and Wright.

Recruiting for a further draft is going on nicely, and every effort will be put forth to make the next platoon a smart unit, with congenial men of clean habits. No finer uniform is worn than that of the cyclists. A quick trip overseas is assured. A good, helpful training is given, and there is room for a number of young men of this city and district in this popular unit.

Headquarters is Carling Heights camp, or apply at any recruiting depot.

WEDDING BELLS

JUDD—McNABB.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINNIPEG, June 19.—Palms, sword ferns and lilies formed an effective setting for the wedding of Dora Maud, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McNabb, to Frank H. Judd, eldest son of Justice and Mrs. Judd of London, solemnized this afternoon in St. Matthew's Church, Rev. R. B. McElheran, rector, officiating. The bridal march from Lohengrin was played by the organist as the bridal party entered. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of ivory satin en train, bodice finished in georgette crepe and seed pearls and caught in front by an ornament of pearls. Her veil of tulle was fastened in a Juliet cap, wreathed in orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley, and wore the gift of the groom, a double-drop diamond and platinum pendant. Miss Myrtle McCracken attended the bride. Her gift from the groom was cameo earrings. Miss Pearlie Hay was flower girl; a gold bracelet was her gift. Victor Judd, brother of the groom, was best man. Gifts were also made to the ushers, choir singers and groomsman. A reception followed at the home of the bride, on Ethelbert street. The drawing-room was decorated with carnations and lilies. The bridal cake was surrounded by lilies and tulle. Mr. and Mrs. Judd left on an extended honeymoon east, via the Great Lakes to London, and will return to Winnipeg to reside.

IRISH MISSION HEADED FOR UNITED STATES?

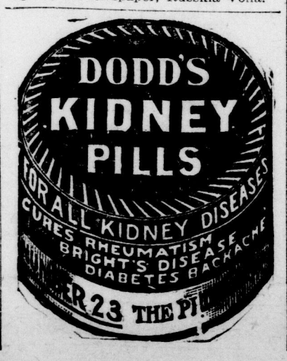

Sinn Feiners Propose Sending Counter-Delegation.

DUBLIN, June 19.—The provisional executive of the Sinn Fein has decided to demand passports for three of its members to proceed to United States for the purpose of opposing the objects of the Irish mission there.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Referring to the above dispatch, it is noted that no previous word has been received that an Irish mission was to come to the United States.

ANARCHISTS SEIZE NEWSPAPER.

LONDON, June 19.—A dispatch to Reuter's, Limited, from Petrograd says the anarchists have seized the editorial rooms and printing offices of the Republican newspaper, Russkia Volia.

METHODIST TRAINING OF MINISTERS TO BE SUBJECT OF INQUIRY

Something Wrong if Necessary to Import Preachers.

MEMORIAL IS PASSED

Toronto Body Sends Resolution to General Body Urging Probe.

Toronto, June 19.—The general conference of the Canadian Methodist Church will be memorialized by the Toronto Conference to conduct an inquiry into the training of Methodist ministers in Canada. Such a resolution was adopted by the Toronto Conference in session in Carlton Street Church today. It was brought in as the result of the ministerial section voting to admit Rev. Trevor Davies, an English clergyman, as pastor of Metropolitan Church. Rev. W. E. Wilson of King Street East Church, pointed out in the resolution that inadequate training methods are apparently in force, when it is necessary to bring in outside preachers. If such is true, the defects should be remedied.

The debate was the warmest of the whole conference. The closure, as enforced in the ministerial section, was attacked, and on the other hand any effort to make the Canadian ministry a close corporation was condemned, as Methodism is worldwide, it was declared.

The conference devoted its closing hours tonight to a patriotic service to pay tribute to the memories of the Methodist young men who have been killed in action, and to show its appreciation of the bravery of the young men who are still fighting in France and Belgium. Sir William Hearst and N. W. Rowell, K.C., M. P. P., both Methodists, and leaders of the people of the province, delivered forceful and inspiring addresses, urging greater service on the part of all for the carrying on the war to a successful conclusion. Mr. Rowell took the opportunity also of again declaring himself in favor of the conscripting of man power and wealth.

SIMS IN CONTROL OF IRISH WATERS FORCE A POLITICAL STROKE

Washington, June 19. — A brief message from London today brought the navy department its first news of the appointment of Vice-Admiral Sims to command the Allied naval forces in Irish waters during the absence of the commander of that district. The department had no other information as to the new responsibilities placed upon the American officer.

The Washington Government has given Admiral Sims wide powers to enable him to meet any situation that may arise.

The admiral has full authority to act on his own initiative in disposing of the forces at his command so as to secure the greatest co-operation with the French and British navies and also the maximum efficiency in the battle against German submarines.

In some quarters, it was pointed out that the announcement that the American officer had been placed, even temporarily in command of the British forces greatly superior to those under the American flag in those waters might have a political effect in Ireland, where the situation is turbulent with the approach of the Irish convention period. It might tend to show beyond question, it was suggested, that the British and American governments were in perfect accord.

U. S. OPENS ARMS TO RUSSIAN MISSION

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Washington opened its arms to the Russian diplomatic mission, headed by Ambassador Boris Bakhmetieff, today, with warmth and enthusiasm.

Greeted by Secretary of State Lansing and other officials, and escorted through streets lined with cheering people and honking automobiles, the mission was given a welcome expressive of this country's response to the mighty democratic upheaval in Russia.

Having rested during the afternoon from their five weeks' trip, the visitors dined quietly tonight at the home placed at their disposal. Tomorrow they will pay their respects to Secretary Lansing and go with him to the White House, to be received by President Wilson and to present a message from the new Russian Government.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT AID BANKRUPT RAILWAYS

TORONTO, June 19.—Strong opinions favoring the nationalization of Canada's railways were expressed at a joint meeting of the executive of the Hydro-Electric Railway Association and the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, held in private at the city hall this afternoon.

Members strongly criticised the subsidies to the private railways from the Government. Sir Adam Beck presented a strong case for the discontinuance of Government aid to bankrupt railways. A general meeting of the association will be called at an early date to further discuss the matter and decide as to the form of resolution that will be presented to the congregation.

CAPT. MACDONALD REPORTED WOUNDED

TORONTO, June 19.—Capt. Keith MacDonald of the Royal Flying Corps, who enlisted at London, Ont., with the 14th Howitzer Brigade as paymaster, has been wounded, according to a cable received by his wife, Mrs. Keith MacDonald, who is staying at 67 Lee avenue, Kew Beach, Toronto.

Capt. MacDonald is a well-known London boy, his uncle, Mr. John MacPherson, his mother, and brothers, Adrian and Ian, being residents of Bridport street, this city.

BIG IMPROVEMENT.

HYDE PARK, June 19.—Crop conditions in London Township are assuming more favorable prospects. At one time the farmers almost despaired of having scarcely any crop. The harvest on the whole will be later than usual, but that is to be expected. Corn and potatoes are still being planted. Potatoes planted on low, heavy land had to be replanted. The light but frequent showers which have fallen lately have caused a remarkable growth in the earlier crops.

Present indications point to a splendid yield of small fruits, such as the strawberry, currants and raspberry, also a fair crop of the different varieties of cherries.

PREACHES IN OLD CHURCH.

HYDE PARK, June 19.—Rev. Albert Elson of Chinku, West China, who has been home for a year's furlough, preached in the Hyde Park Methodist Church Sunday afternoon to a large congregation, in which were many familiar faces, who anxiously awaited the appearance of the one-time Hyde Park schoolboy, now missionary in China, in the pulpit.

Those of his old friends as well as others who listened were greatly impressed by the excellent sermon from their old friend and companion.

TOOK CARMEL SERVICES.

HENSALL, June 19.—The Rev. Mr. Burgess, B.A., of Chatham, conducted services in Carmel Presbyterian Church on Sunday, delivering good discourses both morning and evening.

On Sunday last, when getting ready for church, Mrs. James Bell, Sr., of this village, suffered a somewhat slight stroke.

George Hobkirk of the township of Hibbert has rented his fine farm to Donald Brintnell for a term of years.

CURRIE ASSUMES CHARGE OF BYNG'S CANADIAN TROOPS

First Canadian Officer To Command Division.

MEN GREATLY PLEASED

Sir Arthur Has a Part in All Major Engagements of the Corps.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, June 19.—(By Stewart Lyon, special correspondent, Canadian Press.)—Sir Arthur Currie, who has been acting commander of the Canadian corps since Sir Julian Byng left, returned to headquarters this morning, having been authorized to take over the command.

Sir Arthur came to France with the original Canadian overseas contingent as a brigadier, and has had a part in all the major engagements of the corps. His appointment greatly pleases the men in the trenches.

He is the first Canadian to command the corps. His predecessors, Gens. Alderson and Byng, were both imperial officers of long service and distinction.

A SON OF MIDDLESEX.

Major-Gen. Arthur William Currie was made knight commander of St. Michael and St. George on the King's birthday this month. Major-Gen. Currie is a son of the late W. G. and Mrs. Jane Currie of Strathroy, and was born in the county 40 years ago. He went west a number of years ago, and went to the front as commander of the 1st Canadian Division, distinguishing himself in many engagements, and being appointed as brigade commander. Gen. Currie comes of a staunch Reform family, and is a fine type physically and mentally. He stands 6 feet 4 inches. Since war began he has received the French Legion of Honor and been made a Commander of the Bath.

BRITAIN DEPENDS ON THIS CONTINENT FOR FOOD SUPPLIES

Lord Rhondda Gives First Interview as Controller.

CONFIDENCE IN HOOVER

Urges That U. S. Congress Hurry With Food Administration.

LONDON, June 19.—"In this war," and especially at this stage, food power is co-equal with man power," said Lord Rhondda, the new food controller in an interview with the Associated Press today. "The problem of Great Britain's food primarily depends upon the supply, and in the main the solution of the problem of supply lies in America. I am sure they will not 'let us down.'"

Lord Rhondda took over the duties of food controller today, and this was his first interview with members of the American press.

"The whole problem of the nation's food primarily depends upon the supply," he continued, "and unless we can be assured of food sufficient to enable this and the other Allied countries of Europe to carry on the war to a successful conclusion, it would be almost superfluous to appoint a food controller. The most perfect system of distribution and the most equitable regulation of prices would result in waste of time and effort unless every measure is taken to keep up the Allied food supply.

Depend on U. S. and Canada.

"For this we depend to a vital degree upon the United States and Canada. No one recognizes that more fully than I do. Before Mr. Hoover left for America I had an opportunity of discussing with him the lessons he had drawn from his wonderful work in Belgium and his plans as to the Allied food supply.

"In accepting this office, one of its few attractions—perhaps its only attraction—was the knowledge that President Wilson had asked a man of Mr. Hoover's calibre, experience and understanding of the Allies to tackle in America those problems which have an intimate bearing day by day on the food situation in this country. I have perfect confidence that the American Congress and the American people will respond to the calls now being made to them.

Advises Hurry in Congress.

"I hope I shall not be misconstrued or thought impatient if I say that the sooner your food administration measures are enacted the sooner we shall breathe more easily. At present our policy and the practical details of our buying are rendered more difficult, more complex, by the uncertainty regarding the future.

"My experiences in America before and since the war have given me an unusual opportunity of appreciating the vastness of her resources. If these are organized to their full capacity I am confident that the German hope of starving the Allies or of causing civilians unrest by the scarcity of food or high prices is doomed to failure.

"We are doing what we can 'off our own bat,' by increasing home production and decreasing consumption, but in the main the solution of the primary problem of supply lies in the hands of our American Allies and Canada. I am sure they will not 'let us down.'"

GOOD SUPPORT HELPS GIANTS BEAT BRAVES

BOSTON, June 19.—Effective support of Schupp's pitching efforts enabled New York to win from Boston today 3 to 1. A pass, Kauff's single, Zimmerman's double and Fletcher's sacrifice fly, gave the visitors two runs off Rudolph in the first inning and another was added by Holke's single, an error by Maranville and Rariden's single off Nehf in the seventh. PIRATES FALL ON AMES, AND IT'S ALL OVER

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—After tying the score in the ninth inning on Brief's double and a single by Hinchman, which sent Meadows to the club house, Pittsburg fell on Ames in the eleventh and batted out a 7 to 3 victory over St. Louis today. In the eleventh Ward and W. Wagner singled, Jacobs was hit, Carey and Pitler singled and Bigbee sent out a sacrifice fly, netting four runs. Score: R. H. E.

BENEFIT BALL GAME SCHEDULED TODAY

After a squint at the lineup of old timers that are to appear against them in a benefit game in aid of the Byron Sanatorium, at Tecumseh Park this afternoon, the Blue Label ball players may well quiver in their buba—bub—boots. Tootie and Nig Jefferies, old time stars in the city league, should make a pretty strong battery, while Norval Wanless, Eddie Jackson, Jimmie Jackson and Bill Graham look like a mighty fine infield on paper.

It will be worth the price of admission alone to watch Hankus Parson Fowler and Father E. J. Louis Stein cavort around the outfield. They should be considerably thinner by the time the afternoon is on the wane. George Eccleson, Doc Hutchinson and Frank Ashplant will also be on hand to help Messrs. Fowler and Stein. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock.

DETROIT IS EASY FOR WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 19.—Washington took the final game of the series with Detroit today, 3 to 0, bunching hits off James in two innings. The visitors could not hit Johnson effectively. In the first inning Cobb allowed Johnson to score from first by fumbling Foster's single and then throwing to second instead of home. Score:

	R.	H.	E.

No other American League games scheduled.

PICCADILLY STARS BEAT LORNE AVENUE NINE

The Piccadilly Stars defeated the fast Lorne Avenue nine in a game of ball last night. The game was called in the fifth inning on account of rain. Delaney and Pring both pitched good ball. The lineup:

BEARS SHUT OUT ROYALS

Buffalo and Richmond Break Even in Double-Header.

PROVIDENCE, June 19.—Schultz had a couple of bad innings today, and was batted out of the game in the second, slow fielding and an error by Thomas helping the Torontos. Schellenbach pitched shutout ball during the last seven innings. Hearne held the Grays safe at all stages of the game. Score: H. R. E.

Babe Ruth and Dutch Leonard Can't Win Pennant Alone.

Unless some Red Sox hurler very quickly steps out and begins to give aid and comfort to Babe Ruth and Dutch Leonard, the Red Sox are due for a greased descent in the American League averages.

It has been charged with more than the ordinary amount of baseball backing, that these two sterling left-handers are all there has been to the Red Sox 1917 kick. The wonderful machine that has worked in perfect harmony for several years, batting, fielding and pitching like champions every inch of a pennant fight—is developing a flat wheel.

Machine Is the Same.

Shore and Mays lately have been showing form and may yet fall into the breach in time to carry the Red Sox down the stretch to a last minute fight, and even to another championship. There isn't much difference in the machine as it stands today compared with its status a year ago, figured from the standpoint of effectiveness in any department except pitching.

"Just wait until hot weather strikes the batters and begins ironing the kinks out of the other pitchers in this league," Bill remarked. "Then we'll see whether Babe Ruth and Dutch Leonard will continue knocking over the opposition teams. We also will begin to find out if Ernie Shore and Carl Mays are going to add impetus to the Red Sox pennant fight."

The difference between the Red Sox and the White Sox, generally favored in the pennant dash, lies in the hurling mound. Rowland has a first-class string of flinging youths, from the first to the last. No one star seems to glimmer with more brilliance than another except on certain special occasions.

The long run and the hard, gruelling test of double-heading may solve the problem of separating Boston from its world's series monopoly.

BRITTON TO REFEREE.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 19.—After a long squabble over the referee question, Jack Britton has agreed to an official of the Dayton Gymnastic Club, and will meet Ted Lewis in a twenty round bout to a decision for the welterweight championship here Monday evening, June 25th. The bout will be an open air contest.

GOTCH SHADOW OF FORMER SELF

Frank Gotch, heralded as the greatest wrestling champion, is in such bad health that his friends around Omaha are worried.

Gotch is troubled with a baffling stomach complaint, and is only a shadow of his former self. He has fallen off to 70 pounds, and friends are said to have trouble recognizing the former champion.

KEEN COMPETITION FOR SEAGRAM CUP

Central Tournament at Preston Great Success.

PRESTON, June 19.—The fifteenth annual tournament of the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association started with a swing here this morning at 10:30. Mayor Reist welcomed the visiting bowlers to the town and informed them that the town was theirs during their stay.

President Hepburn then addressed the bowlers, and explained all the rules concerning the playing of games on the local greens. Ex-Mayor Hurlbut gave the bowlers an address of welcome. The green was in ideal shape, which helped to make the games very keen.

ANSON ADVISES UMPS INSPECTOR

"The umpire system was bad in my time, as it is now, and, furthermore, it always will be bad. The big leagues ought to have umpire chiefs who could travel about the circuit as inspectors and report on the poor work of the field officials or go into the minor leagues in search of new men.

"A man of Mathewson's ability, for instance, should be engaged in such a capacity. But there are some very capable umpires. Billy Evans, of the American League, in my opinion, is the best of the modern crop."

SCOTCH DOUBLES IN FULL SWING

Thistle Tourney Is Providing Lots of Excitement.

Fair weather greeted the collection of bowlers today in the Thistle Club Scotch doubles tourney. Practically every game in the first round had been played before 2 o'clock. The greens were in great shape, and the bowling all that could be desired.

One of the surprises of the morning was the defeat of Bert Heaman and Norman Keene by E. A. Barbour and Frank Brown. The latter were up ten shots. Jim McDougall and Turnbull of the Rowing Club got away to an excellent start, beating Fred Browne and Henderson of the Thistles, 17 to 5.

Walter McCutcheon arrived on the scene of action last night, and the scene by the way is of festive appearance, due to the efforts of President Norman Keene and company, who have decorated the grounds with enough bunting to drape the city.

BEATS M'GILL AND VARSITY WINNERS

Art Brickenden, Western U. Champ., Wins 100-Yard Dash in Quebec.

Art Brickenden, champion athlete of the Western University and winner of the Brock Shield this year, showed last Friday, at the athletic meet of the Y. M. C. A. conference at Knowlton, Quebec, that the athletes of McGill and Toronto Varsity have nothing on him when it comes to sprints. Art beat the field in the 100-yards dash, breasting the tape in 10 1-5 seconds. Athletes from all the large Canadian universities took part in the sports.

MAYBE YOU'LL FALL FOR THIS ONE TOO

John K. Tener, president of the National League, vouches for this story:

"Lew Dickerson, outfielder for the Pirates in the long ago, had always batted left-handed, and left-handed pitchers in those times were scarce. Batters seldom faceed them, and some batters, including Dickerson, had but a hazy idea of what they looked like.

One day he faced one, however, and was bewildered. His mates suggested that he turn around and bat right-handed. He did so, grounded toward the left instead of the right, as he generally did when batting left-handed, and so fixed was the habit of turning from the one side of the plate on which he stood that he dashed down the line toward third base."

NEXT CENTRAL O. B. A. TOURNEY FOR HESPELER

PRESTON, June 19.—At the close of today's bowling games in the Central Ontario Bowling Association, the annual meeting was held. Mr. Renwick of Hespeler extended an invitation to the association to hold their 1918 tournament at Hespeler, which was accepted by Oscar Eby of Hespeler, who was elected president, and A. Day of Hespeler, secretary-treasurer.

The visiting bowlers moved a hearty vote of thanks to the local bowlers for the splendid manner in which they treated the visiting bowlers.

FULTON BEATS TAR BABY

Boston, June 19.—Fred Fulton, the Minnesota heavyweight, defeated Sam Langford, the negro heavyweight, of Boston in six rounds of a scheduled 12-round bout tonight. Langford did not appear to continue the fight when the bell rang for the seventh round. He had been knocked down cleanly in the second round and had taken considerable punishment.

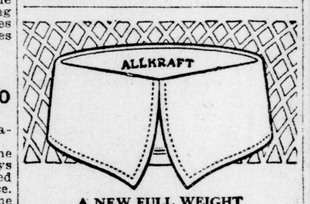

IMPORTANT GAME THUR. IN STRATFORD LEAGUE

STRATFORD, June 19.—On Thursday evening an important game of baseball is scheduled in the City League when the Canucks and the Riversides meet. The Canucks lead the league with four wins and one defeat, while the Riversides have three wins and two defeats. A win for the Canucks will give them the championship of the series, while a win for the Riversides will mean a tie.

A second series will follow the first.

DIRECTORS ACCEPT M'GRAW'S DENIAL OF SLANDER CHARGES

Signed Statement Also Satisfactory to President Tener.

NEW YORK, June 19.—At a special meeting of the board of directors of the National Baseball League held here today a statement of denial of having said anything derogatory to the league, its president, John K. Tener, or any of its club members, was submitted by Manager McGraw of the New York National League club, and accepted by the directors. After the conclusion of the meeting, President Tener refused to make any comment, further than to say that the "incident was closed."

Although McGraw was present in an ante-room, he was not called before the directors, and he left the meeting before the result of the conference was announced. President Hempstead of the New York club stated McGraw signed the statement voluntarily, and regretted the entire incident.

President Tener said after the meeting he had nothing to add to the statement signed by McGraw, and he declined to answer questions. He refused also to elaborate on his recent announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election as president of the league when his term expires at the end of the present year. When he was asked point blank if he would accept the office again in case the eight club presidents unanimously tendered the position to him, he replied: "I refuse to answer that question."

CLASSY RACING AT BAY CITY

Blackburn Watts Takes Great Six-Heat Race From Field of Twelve.

BAY CITY, June 19.—After one of the greatest six-heat horse races ever seen in Michigan, Blackburn Watts defeated Doris Watts for first money in the stake for 2:15 trotters at the opening of the Michigan Shortship circuit here this afternoon. Twelve horses faced the flag for this event, and although there was an abundance of class in the field, it remained for the son and daughter of Gen. Watts, a Futurity winner, to fight it out. The clever Canadian trotter Stephen seemed to stand out in this race, as he did not have Ingara to beat, and he was quoted at even money over the field. The opposition relied mainly upon Doris Watts and Lena Moko. Stephen drew twelfth position, and in the first heat, King Clansman, who had the pole, made the pair. Stephen worked through and around the bunch, but broke on the last turn. Grand Marshal went into the lead at the head of the stretch, but Lee brought Doris Watts down fast on the outside, carried him to a break, and won. Doris Watts led the bunch throughout the second heat, Stephen being driven to breaks twice during the journey. Vic Fleming handling the Canadian horse in masterly fashion. A collision in the fourth heat destroyed the chances of Doris Watts, Lena Moko and a couple more, and in the fifth most of the horses who seemed outside the money were sent to the barn. King Clansman challenged in the fifth, and Blackburn Watts was obliged to accept position, but came back strong in the sixth, winning by a length. The other two events on the card were won in straight heats.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh-looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

OH, SUCH A HEADACHE!

Every now and again don't you get one of those fearful headaches that drive you to do anything to get relief? Remember, though, its a mistake to just "smother" the pain without removing the cause. Nearly all headaches have their beginning in the stomach, liver or bowels, and the best remedy is Chamberlain's Tablets, which tone the liver, sweetens the stomach and cleanse the bowels. This not only cures the headache but prevents its return.

Women's Franchise on an Equal Basis With Men, Prospect

LONDON, June 19. — The House of Commons tonight by a large majority passed a final reading of the clause in the electoral reform bill dealing with the question of women's suffrage.

It is expected that a proposal will now be made that the franchise be conferred on women on the same basis as men.

The majority by which the House of Commons reaffirmed its adhesion to the principle of woman suffrage astonished the warmest supporters of the measure. They anticipated a victory, but none seemed to imagine that there would be such a sweeping triumph.

The decisive division is expected Wednesday, in the adoption of a proposal for the enfranchisement of women of 30 years and upwards as part of the electoral reform bill.

ANOTHER $35,000,000 FROM U. S. TO BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, June 19. — Another loan of $35,000,000 was made to Great Britain today by the treasury.

The Belgian minister also received today $7,500,000, the second monthly instalment of the $45,000,000 credit given to Belgium.

Today's loan to Great Britain brings the total advanced to the Allies up to $983,000,000, of which Great Britain has received $535,000,000.

Had Awful Attacks of Heart Trouble

FOR 5 OR 6 YEARS

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OPTIMISTIC REPORT IS OFFICIALLY MADE OF ONTARIO CROPS

Spring Grain Styled "Most Satisfactory."

FALL WHEAT RECOVERING

Some Corn and Potatoes Have Rotted — Small Fruits Promise Well.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

TORONTO, June 19.—The department of agriculture today issued an optimistic report of crop conditions in Ontario.

It says: "Spring grains are coming forward in a most satisfactory way. Oats and barley have never looked better, and there has been a wonderful recovery of fall wheat.

Wet weather during the week has still further delayed the planting of late crops. On Sunday, the 10th instant, a precipitation varying from 2¼ to 2¾ inches occured in the Prince Edward-Frontenac region, and some newly plated corn and potatoes were injured.

Corn plated late, taking the province over, has done better than the seed put in earlier in the season, some of which rotted in the hills and had to be replanted.

Planting Still To Be Done.

There is some planting of corn and beans yet to be done, and considerable millet and buckwheat will yet be sown.

Potatoes have been slow in coming up, but the warmer weather of the week has given them a nice start, and most fields are looking encouraging.

Roots generally are looking well; many have some turnip land yet to sow.

Pastures have come along amazingly well of late, and at present look in first class condition where not too closely cropped by livestock.

Average Yield of Hay.

Clover and timothy are growing rapidly, and an average yield of hay is now looked for, while earlier in the season a small return was anticipated.

Vegetables are coming along well. Early tomatoes are doing nicely, and there will be more grown than usual in both town and country.

Orchard fruits, with the exception of winter apples, will do fairly well, cherries and plums being in the lead. Many growers are through with the third spraying. Small fruits are described as being very promising.

Farm Stock in Good Shape.

All classes of farm stock are in good general condition. The market for horses is improving, as they are not plentiful, owing to heavy shipments to the west in the spring.

With most farmers all kinds of fodder except hay are practically exhausted, although here and there a little ensilage or other feed is yet in store.

BRITAIN'S EXPENDITURE MAY BE REDUCED

LONDON, June 19.—Andrew Bonar Law, the chancellor of the exchequer, in answering a question in the House of Commons today, said he hoped and believed there would be a reduction from the recent expenditure. He had no hope whatever of a reduction of the estimated expenditure, however, as a result of the entrance of America into the war.

SIR SAM HUGHES PLACES THE BLAME ON PREMIER BORDEN FOR THE RECRUITING MUDDLE

Warm Passage in House — Sir Sam Resents Leader's Discourtesy — Hugh Guthrie, Liberal, Declares for Conscription, But Wants Wealth Conscripted at the Same Time Proposed Bill Goes Into Effect.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 19.—That the prime minister last winter asked Gen. Hughes "to go easy on recruiting," was stated by the latter gentleman to Parliament today. Sir Robert Borden asked the date. Gen. Hughes replied that he did not remember the precise date, but that he had letters from the prime minister which would indicate it. He produced some letters from a portfolio, but as they were marked "confidential" they were not read to the House. Gen. Hughes stood up for the militia act, for the Ross rifle, and for the bill which the Government has introduced.

A plea for the Government's compulsion bill was made by Hugh Guthrie, Liberal representative for South Wellington. He urged that the two House leaders had yet to get together on common ground for the passage and enforcement of some effective act of compulsory enlistment.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux spoke stoutly for referendum. All of the speeches were interesting, and that of Mr. Guthrie was in perfect form. The debate is keeping to the high plane and moderate tone which characterized the speeches of the leaders at the opening.

Sam's Letter Ignored.

"Having occupied the position of minister of militia for a considerable time during the war," began Sir Sam Hughes, "I am more or less familiar with recruiting, how it is carried on, why it fell off, and possibly might be in a position to give some suggestions as to what, in my opinion, at all events, would be the proper method to adopt for the future."

He said that on May 8 he had given notice of a resolution calling for the application of the militia act, or by other action "to raise troops for compulsory overseas service." He wrote the prime minister that this was not intended as a want of confidence motion and asked for a day on which to move it. The only reply he got was the introduction of the compulsion bill by the prime minister.

Sir Sam turned to the authority contained in the militia act and argued that, in spite of the contention of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it provided full authority for compulsory enlistment for service overseas.

He had no knowledge of the fact that the Government had cabled the British Government asking that the men sent from Canada should be enlisted as British troops. He did not know this until it was announced by the prime minister the other day.

Whether that action were taken or not the troops were Canadian troops and subject to the authority of Canada as long as they were being paid by Canada. Application of compulsory service meant that Canada must raise, train and pay the men and control them overseas. Canada would be responsible for them and responsibility without control would be intolerable.

Germans Spurring Labor.

There had been protests against the application of compulsory service in Canada from labor leaders, and he regretted to say that their protest bears all the earmarks of being the result of the pay of German agents in the United States. He declared that he could not find any disadvantage under a system of compulsory service except such as were created by agitators "for a special purpose, and these agitators will soon disappear, for the people will not tolerate them." He had every faith that compulsory service could be applied, "just as easily as rolling off a log."

General Hughes estimated that Canada had today 2,420,000 fighting men between the ages of 20 and 45 years at home and at the front. We have enrolled 420,000 men, which would leave 2,000,000 men free for service. Of these two million he estimated 1,200,000 were single. Allowing for exemptions and exceptions he believed Canada could send another 200,000 men to the front and yet not weaken to any perceptible extent her producing capacity.

Objects to Tribunals.

Sir Sam said he did not propose to go into the details of the bill. His desire was that the bill should go through with as little delay as possible and without any more discussion than was consistent with the proper consideration of the measure. The exemptions provided in the bill would have to be very carefully looked after. The one great objection to the bill in his mind was the form of the tribunals that were to administer it, but that was a matter which could be corrected.

He believed that an ordinary man, capable of taking hold of this matter, could have a force of 150,000 ready to go overseas within the next four months. By October Canada should be able to raise, equip and train 150,000 men. He did not think it would be much of a trick.

Sir Sam said he had no fear that these men would fail to make good soldiers, provided they were properly trained.

"It is sometimes supposed that young men do not make good soldiers, but the lads who have performed the greatest feats of bravery in this war are under 18," he declared.

German Propaganda.

That compulsory service was necessary, Sir Sam declared, because the voluntary system after accomplishing almost marvels was exhausted and there was the best of reason for believing that German gold, cleverly applied, did the trick. He did not for one moment believe that Bryan was bought by German gold, but he was influenced by men who were bought by German gold. Henry Ford was approached by a gentleman who has since admitted and swore to it that he was in the pay of German agents. The records of American ports showed clearly that the labor agitation, the contraband demand, the food riot movement and the "peace-at-any-price" agitations had all been controlled and directed by German gold. There were instances where gentlemen occupying high journalistic positions in Canada had been in receipt of money from the United States, and it was now known that peace organizations in that country were to a large extent maintained by Germans.

Shaughnessy Influenced.

Early in 1916, Gen. Hughes said, when recruiting was at its zenith, whispers were heard in Canada that workmen could not be found for the industries of the country. At the time he suspected German gold, and so informed the prime minister. The movement grew in force, and the imperial munitions board and the finance minister each became anxious and restless. Finally, the head of the Canadian Pacific Railway was influenced by the agitation. Lord Shaughnessy openly proclaimed himself on the subject.

"He was not affected by German gold?" asked A. K. MacLean in astonishment.

"One would imagine from the wishy-washy criticism of the finance critic of the Opposition there was some influence at him," was the retort of Gen Hughes.

The prime minister, said Gen. Hughes, was bombarded by these agitations. "He was an easier mark than I," he added amid laughter. "I would throw such agitators out of my office."

Borden Even influenced.

"The prime minister," said Gen. Hughes, "yielded to these influences, and suggested to me a letting-up in the recruiting. It was in vain that I protested and met the fallacious arguments."

Sir Robert Borden—On what occasion was it that I suggested letting up on recruiting?

Sir Sam Hughes—The leader of the Government did so on more than one occasion. Take the very day when Mr. McDougall was present, the leader of the Government asked me again if I could not let up on recruiting, and moreover, the right honorable leader of the Government later on pointed out—If he wants the whole story I will be glad to give it.

Sir Sam said the prime minister told him that there was a strong agitation from Toronto, and that the finance minister had told him that there was a storm brewing because men could not be obtained. Mark Irish of the imperial munition board, Mr. Flavelle and others, the premier said, had been insistent in their demands. If the prime minister would permit him, he would read letters from him covering the point.

Better Look Letter Over.

Sir Robert said he would allow it, and Gen. Hughes said he would like the minister to look over one of the letters before he read it.

Sir Sam said that before he sailed for England in March, 1916, it being the transition period between winter billeting and spring encampment, he had yielded to the request to partially let up on recruiting. As a result, his officers did not exert themselves as formerly.

The demand had not ceased, for only this week the head of the munitions board had written a letter to the manufacturers of the country practically demanding that recruiting should not interfere with munitions, while every day around any big factory in Montreal or Toronto could be seen 500 men clamoring for work. There were 10,000 women in Toronto and hundreds of men anxious for work in munition factories, and yet munition makers would tell the public and the Government that recruiting would interfere with the work of the factories. It was perfect nonsense.

Quebec Clergy Interfered.

Another cause contributing to the falling off in recruiting was the abusive tone and language of many speakers at public meetings. Many of these men were men who should have been in the trenches. The action of certain prominent people in directing men not to go to war, but to stay at home and secure the places of those going to the front, had its effect. This was a charge the Opposition leader might inquire into relating to the common clergy in his own province.

Gen. Hughes read correspondence which had passed between himself, Col. T. A. Duff and Mr. Flavelle, in regard to the erection of a munition plant for the manufacture of fuses at Montreal. Gen. Hughes protested that Toronto was being penalized because it had objected to the location of the plant at Montreal near the seaboard. He was informed that the prime minister had taken prompt action in the matter.

"I remember," said Gen. Hughes, "that the minister of finance on one occasion became excited over the raising of three battalions in Toronto. If the prime minister does not object, I purpose reading some letters dealing with these battalions. There is one here which is marked "confidential." I will let the prime minister see it."

Sir Robert Is Curt.

Sir Robert Borden—I do not care to examine letters in the House. If my honorable friend desires to read confidential letters, one would suppose that the proper course would be to show them to one in advance. The honorable gentleman will have to take his own course in the matter.

Sir Sam Hughes—Well, I am prepared to take my own course in the matter. I shall not read the letter. It has been referred to in the House. However, there is nothing in my letter which I am ashamed of, and it also is marked "confidential." However, if the prime minister does not wish his letter to be read——.

Sir Robert Borden—Was it a letter written to me?

Sir Sam Hughes—It was written by the prime minister to me.

Sir Robert Borden—As to reading it, my honorable friend will have to take his own course.

Sir Sam Hughes—Certainly I will take my own course; I will not read it.

Sir Sam to Sir Robert.

Gen. Hughes then read a letter dated June 9, 1916, to Sir Robert Borden, which was as follows:

"You may remember I recommended to you that we could raise as high as 400,000 soldiers for the front. Later on you recommended 500,000. We can easily live up to your offer if right systems are pursued. When I assured you at the beginning of the war that we could supply a division and maintain it, many hesitated, and thought it could not be done, among others, Gen. Gwatkin, who had altogether too much influence and too much to say—considering he knows little or nothing about Canada, and about the same of military matters. Instead of a division, from 17,000 to 20,000, we sent over 30,000, and kept in service in Canada about 2,000

AN IMPORTANT LETTER FROM NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara Falls, Ont.—"I was miserable, tired out and dragging around. My legs could scarcely support me. My husband had read about 'Favorite Prescription' and he got me to use it. I used four bottles and the results were surprising. I got stronger, was less nervous, my appetite improved, and I felt like a new person. It is the best medicine for women I have ever heard of."—Mrs. A. C. Brown, 39 Clifton avenue, Niagara Falls, Ont.

There is nothing that will bring comfort and renew hope to the invalid so surely as good news. When the vital forces are at a low ebb and everything seems useless, a ray of joy and assurance will stimulate the weary body to new effort and energy. A letter from a loved one has turned the tide in many a siege of sickness.

Doctor Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., has good news for every suffering woman. Write him today and tell him your troubles, and he will send you just the right advice to restore you to health and bring back the roses to your cheeks, and without charge. His "Favorite Prescription" has been the rescue of thousands of suffering women. Many grateful patients have taken Dr. Pierce's advice.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

It is not a secret remedy, because its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Sold in either tablet or liquid form.

Returned Men Will Round Up Slackers Trying To Escape

This Is Story From Windsor N.C.O. Who Has New 'Patrol' Scheme to Announce.

WINDSOR, June 19.—Instead of modifying the regulations prohibiting men of military age from leaving the Dominion, to evade service, the Government is planning to patrol the border with returned soldiers, who will be instructed to see that men between the ages of 20 and 45 do not leave Canada unless on business.

This information was obtained tonight from a non-commissioned officer, recently returned from France, who expects to be placed in charge of the border sentinels. One hundred returned men, he said, have been selected by the militia department for service in No. 1 Military District, which includes Windsor and other border towns.

"There will be some fun here," he said, "for you can be sure returned men will see 'slackers' do not cross the river for pleasure."

$20,000,000 SUBSCRIBED TO U. S. RED CROSS FUND

New York Banks May Declare One Per Cent Dividend.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Total subscriptions of nearly $20,000,000 have been made to the Red Cross fund during the first two days of the campaign here, it was stated at a Red Cross luncheon today. New contributions of $5,426,000 were announced. Teams led by Mayor Mitchel and J. Pierpont Morgan have each reported subscriptions of more than $1,000,000.

All banks in the state of New York may declare a 1 per cent Red Cross dividend. A resolution to this effect will be presented at the New York State Bankers' Association convention at Lake Placid, N.Y., this week. It has already been approved by a number of bankers here.

HERE is a record of "Old Black Joe," by Louis Graveure, the world-famed baritone, that is nothing less than a perfect gem of inspired song-interpretation. The very soul of the whole dying darkey speaks in moving tenderness in each phrase, and as the soft, scarce-breathed last words die away, the hearer is left with tears in his eyes. And "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" voices the longing expressed in the words with such rare, touching and true expressiveness, and the ending is so wholly beautiful, that the listener finds himself silent—enthralled!

Of the same class is Lucy Gates' rendering of "Aloha Oe," the Hawaiian farewell song, with the sweet sound of guitars and four fine male voices bringing out the tender beauty of her voice; Francis MacMillen's first recording (exclusively for the Columbia Company) of two of his own violin compositions; and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra's recording of the "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffmann." These are indeed unusual

Nuxated Iron Should Be Used in Every Hospital and Prescribed by Every Physician

Says Dr. Howard James, Late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York, and Formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital.

It quickly enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and puts most astonishing youthful power and vigor into the veins of both men and women. It often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 100 per cent in two weeks' time.

Opinions of Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, Dr. A. J. Newman, and other physicians who have tested Nuxated Iron in their own private practice.

In a very interesting and instructive discourse on the great value of plenty of iron in the blood, Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York, and formerly assistant physician, Brooklyn State Hospital, said:

"A patient of mine remarked to me (after having been on a six weeks' course of Nuxated Iron):

"'Say, Doctor, that there stuff is like magic.'

"Previous to using Nuxated Iron, I had been prescribing the various mineral salts of iron for years, only to meet complaints of discolored teeth, disturbed digestion, tied-up, hardened secretions, etc., when I came across Nuxated Iron, an elegant, ingenious preparation, containing organic iron, which has no destructive action on the teeth—no corrosive effect on the stomach, and which is readily assimilated into the blood, and quickly makes its presence felt by increased vigor, snap and staying power.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale, and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron.

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength-builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run-down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble, and other dangerous maladies. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more or less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood.

"If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again, and see how much you have gained. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron I feel it is such a valuable remedy that it should be kept in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician, who has studied both in this country and great European medical institutions, was asked what he thought of Dr. James' remarks. In reply he said: "I fully agree with Dr. James. People need more iron. There can be no strong, vigorous iron men and beautiful, healthy women, without iron. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old, and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of twenty, and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30, he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in—now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality, and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth.",

Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital tells physicians he believes that more Nuxated Iron should be prescribed to meet the great problem of iron deficiency with its attendent symptoms of weakness, nervousness, lack of vitality, paleness, and generally rundown conditions.

WARNS AGAINST USE OF ORDINARY METALLIC IRON so commonly taken by most people.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the city of Chicago, and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own test of it to excel any preparation I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long-felt want, a true tonic supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health-builder in every sense of the word."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, was also asked what he thought of Nuxated Iron. In reply, Dr. Jaques said:

"I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself, and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

The next to be consulted was Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, who said:

"I heartily concur in all that Dr. James has said, only in some respects I would go further. Dr. James forgot to mention how foods lose their iron value by improper methods of cookery. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, decerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the wastepipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss. Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists, whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Standard Drug Company, Limited, and all good druggists.

SIR SAM HUGHES

or 3,000 more. Three systems of recruiting have been pursued. First system, in enrolling the first contingent, I overrode all red tape, communicated directly with each officer, as well as through the regular channels, and the recruiting was accomplished very rapidly. The whole force was formed and shipped inside of six weeks from the date of its authorization. It was akin to the fiery cross of old Scottish days."

The other systems were described by General Hughes, who went on to say: "Yet we found gentlemen exercising their influence publicly and privately to bring the great city of Toronto, with a population of 500,000, down to the same level in the matter of recruiting as the county of Ontario, with a population of 40,000."

Premier Not Courteous.

Reverting to the fact that the prime minister did not reply to his letter regarding compulsory service, General Hughes said: "I think that I need not go out of my way to consult him in regard to reading letters in the House. I am ready to say on the floor of the House anything that I have to say, and as soon as the prime minister treats me in a courteous manner, I will act in the same way towards him."

General Hughes said that he had no right to approach the leader of the Opposition regarding recruiting, but he had kept watch on him. He did approach Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux on two or three occasions, and he was proud to say that Mr. Lemieux took a very active part in recruiting and did his best to help, but so far as he could learn Sir Wilfrid Laurier attended only two recruiting meetings.

Still for Ross Rifle.

Gen. Hughes came again to the defence of the Ross rifle, and claimed that it was "the greatest and best rifle in the world." He said that on the second day of the battle of St. Julien the Canadian troops were supplied with ammunition which should be withdrawn from British troops. This accounted for the jamming of the Canadian rifle. British rifles jammed at the same time. In all fairness and honor, they should lay the blame to the proper cause, and not play the game of the German agents, and say that it was the Ross rifle. He insisted that the Ross was a better rifle than the Lee-Enfield, but, owing to the agitation and by reason of the fact that the soldiers had lost confidence, he had withdrawn the rifle and allowed it to be used only for training purposes.

Hon. Frank Oliver pointed out that the Canadians were armed with Ross rifles at the battle of Zillebeke, and Sir Douglas Haig reported that in that battle the Ross rifle jammed in the hands of the Canadians.

Sir Sam denied that Canadians were armed with Ross rifles in that battle.

Does Not Like the Bill.

In closing Gen Hughes said he did not like the form of the measure, and would have preferred the militia act, because he thought it would have worked more smoothly and quicker in its operations. He suggested that in the meantime, while the bill was being discussed, the soldiers should be called out and trained under the militia act. Then when the bill passed they could apply its provisions, and send them overseas if they did not volunteer. He had faith that the boys called out for training would nearly all volunteer for service overseas. He would not throw a single impediment, directly or indirectly, in the way of the passing of the bill, but would help in every proper manner, the passing of the act in order that the boys at the front might be fully and properly protected and supported in the great struggle.

Hugh Guthrie for Bill.

Hugh Guthrie, South Wellington, followed. "I regret to say," he said, "that in regard to the principles of the bill I find myself in rather serious conflict with the opinion of my leader, and I think also with the opinions of the large majority of my political friends sitting upon this side of the House. Under ordinary circumstances I would feel very deep regret that that was the case, and had it not been for the kindly generous and patriotic words of counsel and advice which my honorable leader has addressed not only to me, but to all his followers with regard to this measure, I might feel some embarrassment and not a little unpleasantness. He advised that each member should be guided solely by the dictates of his own conscience, entirely without regard to the ordinary and well recognized ties of party. For this reason, I feel the more free to express without reservation my own view in regard to the measure. I find that I cannot agree to the conclusions of my honorable leader.

Judging the measure as well as I can, I have come to the conclusion that my support should go to this bill, and it should be a whole-hearted support. In my opinion the principle involved in the military service bill at this very moment is one to the advantage of the people of Canada, of the Empire and of our allies, and for these reasons I intend to support it. While I make that general statement, in regard to my support of the bill, I still leave myself free with regard to some of its details.

Room for Amendments.

"I think that in many respects the bill may be usefully amended. The prime minister when he introduced the bill expressed the sincere desire that he should receive any serious and useful suggestions by way of amendment. When the proper time comes I may make some suggestions. I have one other reservation to make; that is with reference to the question of conscription in general. I cannot bring myself to believe that this bill is the full Government policy in regard to the question of conscription. I would vote to withhold the operation of the bill unless the Government is prepared to go further and during the present session bring in concurrent legislation which would be operative with the conscription measure upon the wealth and resources in Canada in general, for the purpose of this war. I do not like to feel that we in this Parliament think lightly of the flesh and blood of the people in this country and think highly of the accumulated wealth of the country. I believe the people of Canada would be willing to be placed on an equal footing with the people of Great Britain in regard to this war. I cannot understand why so able a man as the minister of finance has from year to year postponed the taxing of wealth. He has taxed the industries, he has clipped the manufacturers' profits; he has taxed the munitions factories, and I believe they can bear more taxation."

Some Withholding Force?

Mr. Guthrie thought that the minister would act if he was given a free hand, and thought there must be some withholding force in regard to this question. He trusted that he would take action this session, and if he would take such action he believed the Government in its conscription measure would be backed almost from end to end of Canada.

Proceeding, Mr. Guthrie said that critics of the bill say that Canada in the beginning should have adopted conscription, as the United States has done. It was all very well to be wise after the fact. The United States was in a position to profit by the experiences of Canada and other countries. He did not agree with those who argued that voluntary enlistment had been a failure. From the beginning to the end it had been a success, but conditions had changed. People in 1914 did not realize what large contributions in men and money would have to be made. The voluntary enlistment in Canada, Mr. Guthrie believed, had about reached its limitations. He had been of that opinion since the national service campaign was inaugurated last autumn. When recruiting had fallen so low that sufficient men were not being secured to replace the wastage, it was time for the Government and Parliament to take some steps to change the situation.

Militia Act More Drastic.

Mr. Guthrie maintained that the powers contained in the militia act are even greater than those of the present measure—that they were wider and more drastic. They were more drastic because under the militia act men from 18 to 60 years of age could be conscripted and sent overseas.

Mr. Guthrie expressed the view that there were many men in cities and towns who cannot be reached except by a measure of this kind. They were the men who refuse to go to recruiting meetings. In the city of Guelph 1,700 or 1,800 men had enlisted, but there were 300 or 400 more who should go and they could not be reached by present methods. Mr. Guthrie then referred to the attitude of the officers of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, as expressed in the official statement recently issued by them. While expressing his admiration for the officers of the Trades and Labor Congress he said they had made a mistake in putting man power last in the list of requirements of the war instead of first.

Exemption Provision Wrong.

Mr. Guthrie stated that his impression that the boards had power to supply agricultural and other labor, he had found to be wrong. On reading the bill he discovered that exemption for work on the farm, etc., was only given at the request of the individual. In all the provinces farm labor was scarce. Transportation and shipping companies were having difficulty in getting men because of enlistment and also because of the exceedingly high wages being paid by the munition manufacturers. It was essential that such labor should be looked after and placed where it belonged.

On the question of a referendum he could not agree with his leader. A referendum was antagonistic to his ideas of responsible government. Members were elected to carry out such measures as in their judgment seemed right. If they were wrong, then the electors could put them out of office. The initiative and referendum was favored in the west, but he thought that Parliament itself should decide. This view his leader had taken in connection with the naval aid bill and reciprocity, in both of which cases he could have escaped responsibility and trouble, and probably have remained in power, had he referred them to the people in the form of a referendum. In any case, it was the first duty of a people to defend the realm.

What of Soldiers' Vote?

Another objection was that a referendum would transfer the question to the platform of the country. It was not possible at the present time to have a fair referendum. Thirty-three per cent of the normal electorate was overseas. How was that vote to be taken? When the soldiers' vote bill was passed he had thought that the Government had gone to a terrible extreme to poll their votes. He did not think now that they would poll them if they could. Was it intended that the fighting should stop while the ballot box was passed around.

On this side of the water, on the other hand, there were the men who had so far refused to enlist. How could these be got to vote for compulsion? He never would consent to slackers at home voting, while men at the front were deprived of that right.

Mr. Guthrie held that in every respect Parliament was legally constituted. In February of 1916 he himself had been about the only man on his side of the House who had opposed the first extension. He had contended then that if an extension was granted for one year, it could not be refused for another. It was granted, however, and the granting of it did not restrict the rights or powers of Parliament.

Mr. Guthrie referred to resolutions of church congresses, all of which had favored the present bill, though some had added that which he considered most important, namely, that wealth and resources should also be conscripted, but none of them mentioned an election. He did not think that an election was desired.

Should Be Definite Date.

He criticized the provision of the bringing into effect of the conscription by proclamation. He thought that a definite date should be fixed, on which it should be brought into force, and believed that if this were done a strong stimulus would be given to voluntary recruiting. Mr. Guthrie contended that the call came from the men at the front, from returned soldiers, and perhaps from the dead. He quoted the poem of John McCrea, of McGill University, entitled "In Flanders Field," which concluded as follows: "If ye break faith with those who die we shall not sleep though poppies blow on Flanders fields."

For a long time he had favored cooperation by the two parties. "I favor coalition," he said, "I favor an extension of the term of parliament, and I favor this bill, which cannot successfully be put in force by one political party." Why should some compromise not be reached, whereby the militia act and the selective clauses of the present bill be consolidated? He was quite satisfied that the prime minister was sincere and had no thirst to hold unto power. He was equally confident that his own leader was sincere and had no desire to attain power.

It would be a fine thing if from this moment they could come together for the carrying on of the war. He believed that it was not yet too late for the two leaders to get together. Otherwise the bill, even if it passed, could not be a success. If this could not be done, then he believed that there were many back benchers on both sides who could come together in agreement. All the brains of the House were not in the front benches. If not, then could not some committee get together, and set about winning the war?

Privilege of Differing.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, following, held that it was the glorious privilege of Liberalism, not only to differ with the Conservatives, but to differ at times among themselves. While he admitted the ableness of the speech of his honorable friend (Mr. Guthrie), he begged to differ with him on many of the views which he held. In the attitude which he took, he desired to say that it was taken with no idea of disloyalty to his majesty the King. In Australia, a country quite as loyal as Canada, a referendum had been taken on this very subject, and in the taking of it, he thought a greater service had been rendered than if Premier Hughes had enforced it upon unwilling electors.

Mr. Lemieux held that the aid to the Empire was to be of voluntary nature. "I have as much at stake," he said, "as my honorable friend from Wellington. I have given the only son I have to fight the battle for his King and country. He left college at the age of 18 and is ready to go at any time, but he left on the principle of voluntary aid and not of compulsion."

Ratio According to U. S.

Mr. Lemieux declared that by applying the law of averages it could be proved that a contribution of 400,000 troops from Canada would be equivalent, according to population, to a contribution of 5,000,000 men from the United States. This was a true test of comparison between the efforts of Canada today and the efforts of the United States to be.

After figuring at some length that there was no authority in the militia act to send troops out of Canada, Mr. Lemieux said:

"I do not say that we will or may not, but that Canada must send men overseas is another point. Great Britain, as well as Canada, has admitted the principle that the Dominion is under no constitutional obligation to do this. We have done it, and I am proud of it. We shall continue to do so, but it should be by voluntary and not the compulsory system."

Definite Promise Given.

Mr. Lemieux said the honor of the Government was at stake. The prime minister and members of his cabinet made repeated promises in and out of Parliament that there would be no compulsory service. Some of the colleagues of the prime minister had been authorized to assure the archbishop of Montreal that the signing of the national service cards did not mean compulsory service. "In what position is that dignitary of the church today?"

A definite promise had been given at the time of the Dorchester by-election that compulsory service would not be introduced.

Mr. Lemieux then declared that although the province of Quebec is asking for a referendum, the people of that province are willing to abide by the result.

Mr. Turriff adjourned the debate.

THE LOCAL MARKET

The market was slow this morning, there being little offered. Live hogs showed a decline of 50 cents a cwt., the price today being from $14 to $14.25 a cwt. Dressed hogs are scarcer, however, with a steady demand for them. Butter is steady, with a tendency to slightly higher prices. Eggs are coming in in quantities, big dealers paying 29c a dozen, while others are paying from 30c to 32c.

Hay was offered in fair quantities, with the prices easing off. One man had to take $9.50 a ton for his, the quality being rather poor. The majority got from $11 to $13.50 a ton. Oats were not in great demand.

COTTON EXCHANGE CLOSED.

Liverpool, June 20.—The cotton exchange closed temporarily today after a short period of trading.

Unusual advances have occurred on the Liverpool Cotton Exchange in the last few days. The high prices yesterday showed gains of 1.48 to 1.82 points.

London, June 20.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Liverpool says the Cotton Association decided to close the market, in view of the sensational movements of the last few days.

COTTON.

Liverpool, June 20.—Cotton—Receipts, none; futures, June, 18.75d; June and July, 18.55d; July and August, 18.30d; August and September, 17.97d; September and October, 17.67; October and November, 17.25d; November and December, 16.85d; December and January, 16.70d; January and February, 16.60d; February and March, 16.51d; March and April, 16.42d; April and May, 16.34d.

WALL STREET.

New York, June 20—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—Equipments, shippings and specialties related to the war group averaged advances of a point at the moderate opening of today's market, while United States Steel, Westinghouse and American Sugar were higher by substantial fractions. Motors were again prominent, Saxon making up its 4-point loss of the previous day on a single sale. Rails were altogether ignored, trading in that quarter being limited to a few issues at nominal changes. Pullman was the only stock to show a heavy tendency, falling 2 points. Higher quotations ruled at the end of the first half hour.

Noon.—The professional character of the trading was demonstrated during the forenoon, when early gains were altogether wiped out on comparatively small offerings. Bear pressure evidently based upon latest foreign advices accelerated the setback. Steel fell from 128½ to 126, Alcohol made a reversal of 3½ points, shippings yielded 1 to 3, and Ohio Gas lost 6½. Motors and some of the less prominent issues also recorded extreme setbacks of 2 to 4 points. Pullman extended its loss to 6 points, and the miscellaneous issues were generally unsettled. Steel rallied a point at midday, but the undertone continued heavy. Bonds were lower.

1:30 p.m.—Lower levels were reached on the broader selling of the early afternoon. Steels continued to bear the brunt of the movement, but metals and specialties also yielded. Rails were reactionary on adverse weather conditions in the Southwest.

INCINERATOR REPORT DELAYED.

SARNIA, June 18.—The absence of the chairman of the garbage collection committee from Monday night's meeting of the city council delayed the report of the committee in regard to the erection of the proposed incinerator. The selection of a site for the erection of the plant has been left in its hands, subject to the approval of the provincial board of health, and the results of its investigation as to the most suitable location for its erection have not as yet been made public.

No further complaints have been received in regard to the conditions of the present dumping grounds, which the city have been allowed to maintain until such time as the incinerator is completed, and Sanitary Inspector Crosbie, who was appointed as supervisor of the grounds is being complimented on his work in keeping the grounds in as sanitary a condition as possible. An announcement of the selection of a site and a request for tenders is expected to be given out shortly.

LOWER CLOSING, BUT SOME LOSSES REDUCED

Winnipeg's Market Tone Is Down—Cash Situation Little Changed.

Winnipeg, June 19.—All gains were lower at the start, and closed lower today, but with some recovery from the low points. Basis contracts, first half of August, was quoted for the first time, the price being $2.35. October wheat closed 5c lower, a reaction of 1c from the low point of the day. July oats closed ⅛c lower after moderate trade. October oats were 2⅞c lower. July flax dropped 6c, and October 4c for the day.

The cash situation showed little change. Offerings were fairly liberal, and the demand was moderate. In oats the inquiry was better, but the strength of the option tended to curtail trade.

Cash grain: Wheat—No. 1 northern, $2.48; No. 2 northern, $2.45; No. 3 northern, $2.40½; No. 4, $2.28½; No. 5, $2.06; No. 6, $1.88; feed, $1.38.

Oats—No. 2 Canadian western, 70⅜c; No. 3 Canadian western, 68⅛c; extra No. 1 feed, 68⅛c; No. 1 feed, 66⅝c; No. 2 feed, 64⅝c.

Flax—No. 1 N. W. C., $2.79; No. 2 Canadian western, $2.74; No. 3 do., $2.59. Basis contract for wheat: June, $2.45; July, $2.40; August, $2.35.

A. T. COOPER OF CLINTON IS FIELD SECRETARY FOR HURON COUNTY WORKERS

Elected to Important Temperance Office—E. G. Powell's Resignation, Accepted.

MITCHELL, June 19.—The executive committee of the Perth County Temperance Alliance met here today, and accepted the resignation of Rev. E. G. Powell as field secretary, who is now working under the direction of the Committee of One Hundred.

The new license inspector, Mr. Elliott, of Stratford, who is acting as inspector for Perth County as well as Stratford, was commended by the executive for the splendid work he was doing in enforcing the Canada temperance act throughout the county.

The executive committee of the Huron County branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance also met here today, and selected A. T. Cooper of Clinton to act as field secretary for Huron County.

Mr. Cooper has been prominently identified with the temperance work of Huron County for the last fifteen years, having taken an active part in the work of the Dominion Alliance and the Committee of One Hundred; also was the organizer of the present County Temperance Association, starting in as secretary, and last year completed his term as honorary president, and is at present a vice-president of the county and also chairman for the Committee of One Hundred.

These two counties will continue the harmonious relations that have existed between them since the introduction of the C. T. A., and they intend to "stay on the job" until the last vestige of the traffic is driven from their borders.

T. L. Hamilton of Listowel, president of the Perth Alliance, and Rev. J. F. Knight of Hensall, president of the Huron County, were both present, and presided at the meeting of their respective committees.

A strong resolution was also passed asking for Dominion prohibition.

PICNIC DATE CHANGED

Shedden Sunday School Will Go to Port Stanley June 29.

SHEDDEN, June 19.—The date of the Sunday School picnic, which was announced to be held at Port Stanley June 28, has been changed, and the picnic will be held on June 29.

The evangelistic service held in the Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon by the Evangelistic Band of Aylmer of Messrs. Dan McLean, Frank McGinnis and "Billy" West, was most successful, the church being packed. A large number of converts joined the church.

The music was appreciated.

Rev. Mr. Kilpatrick, who has been pastor for the Shedden Methodist Church for the past two years, returned home from the London Conference. The people of Shedden circuit are pleased that Rev. Mr. Kilpatrick will be with them for another year.

The baseball game which was played on the fair grounds between the Lawrence Tigers and the Shedden Pirates, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 13 to 3. But the Pirates are living in hopes that, with practice, in the near future they will be able to make the game more interesting.

TWO RETURN FROM FRANCE.

OWEN SOUND, June 19. — Two soldiers returned to Owen Sound yesterday from England. One was Pte. W. Eggmann, a Swiss, who has been wounded and is unfit for further service. The other is Pte. William Robbins, an elderly man, who enlisted with the first Grey unit, and who is returned as too old to go to France. He, however, is not yet discharged.

Pte. Eggmann was given a reception at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last night, when addresses were read and a fitting welcome extended to him.

Real Fleshbuilder Found At Last--Gains 10 to 30 Pounds

The Amazing Increase in Weight That Follows Use of Wonderful New Food Discovery.

Lean, lank, skinny, scrawny men and women should note this carefully.

You may have been thin for years, thin from overwork, worry or wasting disease—you may think it just your nature to be thin—that nothing can ever make you fat. You may be ten pounds underweight or forty pounds. No matter.

This new flesh-building food discovery Saltogyn will make you fat—make you weigh what you should weigh or your own druggist won't charge you a penny for it.

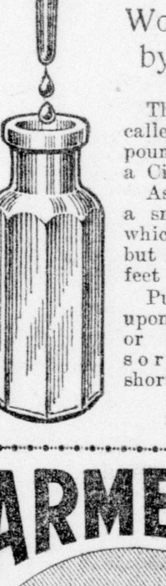

Saltogyn puts flesh on thin people because it works on the correct principle that people are thin because they are unable to extract from their food all of its flesh and fat-making material. Nourishment instead of getting into their blood leaves their body as waste.

Saltogyn stops this waste, checks food loss and so acts upon the flesh-making materials in your daily meals that the blood can readily accept them. The treatment is absolutely harmless, contains no drugs or medicines, and gains ranging all the way from 10 to 20 pounds a month are being reported from its use. Sold in London by Standard Drug Stores, and all leading druggists.

Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Wonderful discovery by Cincinnati man

This remarkable drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Take soreness from any corn or callus instantly

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn goes!

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost but a few cents at any drug store.

FARMERS
SHIP YOUR WOOL DIRECT TO US

The Highest Prices Ever Paid For Wool Are Now Being Paid By Us

Mr. Farmer, you can get more money for your wool by sending it direct to us. In all probability it will come to us anyway at some time, no matter to whom you sell it.

For over thirty years we have been one of the largest buyers of wool in Canada. We could not continue in business for this length of time if we had not treated our customers fairly and pay top prices. We send your money the same day as wool is received, only deducting freight or express charges.

We are now paying for wool as follows:
Unwashed fleece—fine ...53 to 54c per lb.
Unwashed fleece—coarse.51 to 52c per lb.
Washed fleece—Fine ....67 to 68c per lb.
Washed fleece—Coarse ..65 to 67c per lb.

Ship today or write us telling how much wool you have, if washed or unwashed, and breed of sheep clipped from. We will then quote you a straight price and send you shipping tags with full instructions.

SYNOD IS PLEDGED TO STRONG SUPPORT FOR CONSCRIPTION

Urges Government To Pass Legislation Necessary.

VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS

Wants Clergymen as Well as Others To Serve the Empire.

A strong resolution, pledging the support of the Synod of the Diocese of Huron to any measure of selective conscription the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada may consider it advisable to enact, and urging that such legislation as may be requisite to provide imperatively demanded reinforcements be put into effect with the promptitude the absolute necessity of the situation demands, was unanimously passed by a standing vote, followed by the singing of the National Anthem, at the first business session of the 60th annual session yesterday afternoon in Cronyn Hall.

The motion was made by E. G. Henderson of Windsor, seconded by Charles Jenkins of Petrolea, several delegates speaking to it.

Bishop Williams suggested that the motion might be made broader, to include the conscription of wealth, along the lines of a suggestion he had made in his pastoral charge. The consensus of opinion was that the motion exactly covered the issue before the Dominion Parliament, and would be more forcible in its present form.

Sent to Premier.

Rev. Dr. Tucker, who had submitted a notice of motion along similar lines, immediately previous to the motion of Mr. Henderson, pointed out that the whole situation was covered by the clause, "that such legislation as may be requisite to provide imperatively demanded reinforcements be put into effect."

A copy of the resolution was immediately forwarded by the secretary to Premier Borden.

A still further step along the line of placing all resources at the service of the Empire for the winning of the war was contained in a notice of resolution submitted by Rev. F. H. Brewin of Woodstock, with which the name of Rev. R. W. Norwood was associated as seconder.

The resolution was to the effect that the provision for the exemption of the clergy be withdrawn, and that selective conscription apply to this class as well as all other citizens of the Dominion. This will be discussed later.

Rev. Dr. Tucker presented two further notices of motion, recommending the organization of the Girls' Friendly Society and Boys' Club in each parish.

Bishop's Charge.

The outstanding feature of the afternoon was the presentation of the bishop's charge, which dealt not only with questions of special interest to the church, such as finances, increase of stipend of clergymen, and the men serving on mission fields, in view of the marked increase in cost of living; extension of the episcopate, and the church's social service program, but also questions of national, imperial and international interest.

Larger pay for soldiers and pensions for all returned men, conscription of wealth as well as of men, one language for Ontario schools, equal service under the conscription bill for residents of Quebec, and other provinces, were among measures advocated.

Imperial federation and international relations after the war were also dwelt upon in an illuminating manner.

The appreciation with which the charge was received was evidenced by the frequent outbursts of applause by which it was interrupted.

Rev. R. J. M. Perkins was appointed clerical secretary; William Baird of Galt, lay secretary, and Ven. Archdeacon Richardson and E. L. Spry, auditors.

Readjust Salaries.

Special interest in the report of the executive committee, submitted by Rev. R. J. M. Perkins, at the evening sitting yesterday of the synod, centred in the paragraph drawing attention to the inadequate stipends paid to many of the rectors of the diocese, and urging the wardens and lay representatives to at once take steps to have a systematic canvass made of such congregations, in order that sufficient funds may be provided for the necessary and requisite increase.

Harry Sanders, LL.B., of Norwich, expressed the hope that definite action would be taken at once, and suggested that a special committee should be appointed to deal with the matter. E. G. Henderson of Windsor voiced the same opinion as Mr. Sanders, adding that "miserable stipends were being paid to clergymen, not at all on a scale with those paid to men in other professions and callings." Furthermore, he pointed out, while incomes in other lines have been advanced with the increase in cost of living, those of clergymen have remained stationary.

Wants It Looked After.

Bishop Williams reminded the synod that he had called attention to this matter in his charge, which would be dealt with by a special committee. "I am anxious that it should be attended to during this synod," he said, adding: "The missionary clergy are the first to suffer. I would like to see machinery put in motion whereby an advance would go into effect in July. It could be done. We want action in regard to the salaries of our missionaries in this synod."

Rev. Mr. Collins suggested that the naming of a minimum salary would simplify matters. The answer of the bishop to a question put by Mr. Backus, "How many increases were voluntarily made in the past year in missionary charges?" was "Just two."

The subject was introduced of the part of church wardens in a campaign to increase giving, whereupon Rev. C. H. P. Owen expressed the opinion that a summer school for church wardens might be beneficial, just as it is in the case of the raising of the efficiency of the Sunday school teachers and workers in other departments.

A Weak Spot.

"Viewed from the standpoint of business, he said, "the church warden is one of the weak spots in our system."

The bishop named the following committee to deal with his charge, including the matter of increase of stipends: Rev. Dr. Tucker, convener; Rev. Canon Davis, Rev. J. B. Fotheringham, Rev. Arthur Carlisle, Rev. Canon Howard, Rev. J. W. J. Andrew, Rev. S. F. Robertson, Matthew Wilson, Col. Wigle, Dr. Silcox, E. G. Henderson and F. P. Betts.

The question of more bishops to carry on the work in the ecclesiastical province of Ontario and adjustment of boundaries, with a view to supporting another missionary diocese, was introduced by Charles Jenkins of Petrolea, in moving the adoption of the report of the committee on extension of the episcopate in the province of Ontario.

Extension Work.

Attention was drawn to the necessity for extension of work in order to keep pace with the legitimate development of the province.

Seconding the adoption of the report, Rev. Dr. Tucker referred to the three ways suggested in the bishop's charge for increasing the number of bishops without dividing the dioceses. The disadvantages were pointed out of the too small diocese so far as circulation of the clergy is concerned. Reference was also made to the big claims the national movements in the Church of England, such as the Social Service Council, the M. S. C. C., and Sunday School commissions make upon a bishop of the ability of the Bishop of Huron, in addition to the strain of duties within his own diocese, and coupled with this the suggestion that he should be given relief, perhaps by the appointment of an assistant bishop.

Feels Capable.

While expressing thankfulness for the thoughtfulness which prompted the suggestion of Canon Tucker re an assistant, Bishop Williams stated he felt that he was quite capable to carry on the traditional work of the diocese for the present, notwithstanding the fact that the Bishop of Toronto, with 26 less parishes under his charge than those in the Diocese of Huron, has an assistant. In regard to the matter of circulation of the clergy, he stated that fifteen years ago he had introduced a motion for a change to be made every three years in all parishes receiving grants from the synod.

"Perhaps I didn't put it very well," he said. "In any case, I was turned down handsomely. I am still hoping to get at some means for better circulation of the clergy. Within the past six months I have had 37 applications for change of parishes, and only three parishes open."

The matter of examinations occupied a large share of the time allotted to discussion of the report of inspectors of Sunday schools, as submitted by Rev. J. F. Robinson of Clinton. Rev. A. L. G. Clarke suggested that the reason why only six schools out of 170 reported writing on the examinations set by the Sunday school commission was perhaps due to nervousness on the part of both pupils and teachers, owing to the difficulty of questions. A solution which he proposed was accustoming to examinations through holding these locally, say once a quarter. He drew attention to the added stimulus and interest when a definite goal is set before pupils, just as in day school work.

Children's Day.

Dr. Tucker urged making the most of children's day in the various Sunday schools, in order to bring the work of the Sunday school commission more prominently before the people as a whole, and thus more fully insure its support.

In connection with the report of the executive committee Archdeacon Young expressed his gratification at noting the amount of the Lenten offerings of the Sunday school, $2,991.92, a marked increase over previous years.

Explanation of the graded system of lessons being introduced in the Sunday schools and discussion thereon postponed adjournment for nearly half an hour after the appointed time. On suggestion of the bishop it was decided to forward a telegram of greeting to the Synod of Rupert's Land, in session at the present time.

A committee was appointed composed of Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, Ven. Archdeacon Hill and Rev. C. Miles, Mr. Backus and Mr. Renderson to prepare memorials for deceased members of synod, both lay and clerical.

BIG HEART CAMPAIGN IS BRINGING GENEROUS RESPONSE IN LONDON

Several $1,000 Subscriptions Have Been Received Already.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Big Public Meeting Will Be Held to Close Campaign Monday.

Workers in the "Big Heart Campaign" on behalf of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium enlarged work for tuberculous soldiers heard reports at their meeting in the Tecumseh House last night that showed a response coming from London citizens that augurs well for the success of the effort. Members of the central committee, canvassing the larger subscribers, as well as the captains of the various regular teams were alike able to report that on all hands there is a good feeling for this truly patriotic work on behalf of the returned soldiers. Subscriptions in plenty that were larger than expected were announced, while everywhere there seemed to be manifested a general desire on the part of those canvassed to do the right thing. Subscriptions already in include a number of $1,000 each.

Mr. Hume Cronyn presided, in the absence of Sir Adam Beck, while Chairman A. E. Silverwood of the general campaign committee called upon the team captains in turn for their reports.

Committee Reports.

Among the members of the central committee who reported were Messrs. T. W. McFarland, Judge Judd, G. F. Pearson and Philip Pocock, while team leaders who were heard from included Messrs. George Belton, for the Board of Trade team; B. C. McCann, for the Canadian Club team; E. J. Carty, for the Irish Benevolent Society team; P. H. Fetherly, for the Thistle Club team; Ed. Crawford, for the Advertising Club team; Adjutant Martin, for the Salvation Army team, and Dr. Eccles for the medical men's team. E. R. Dennis, who has charge of the general house-to-house canvas, planned for next Sunday, was able to announce that his work was in good shape. He made an appeal for more helpers for the Sunday canvas.

Will Close Monday.

Messrs. T. P. Elliott, McConnell, Landon and Yull gave reports on the advertising end of the campaign, while Major Gordon Ingram reported that the armories had been secured for Sunday, and the Masonic Temple for the public meeting Monday night, which will close the campaign.

There was no attempt made last night to compile any complete list of subscriptions already received, but from the reports submitted a partial list was completed, and it was unanimously felt that this should be made public at once. The list follows: Hyatt Bros., $500; H. E. Boomer, $50; J. H. Chapman, $50; Jas. E. McGuffin, $10; G. A. McLachlin, $25; A. J. Morgan, $20; H. J. FINAL SERMON FROM DR. FLANDERS SUNDAY

Next Sabbath will be one of special interest to the First Methodist Church. It will be the last Sabbath of the Rev. Dr. Flanders' pastorate and also Flower Sunday for the Sabbath school. Three services will be held. At 11 a.m. the school will have its annual June gathering in the church gallery, and will be addressed by Dr. Flanders. At 3 p.m. a mass meeting of the school will be held in the church, decorated with wild and domestic flowers, when farewell words will be spoken by the pastor. At night the choir will render the sacred cantata, "The Holy City." Soloists: Mrs. Wyatt, Miss Laymon, Joseph Shilisky of Toronto and Wm. Chater. The evening will be the final appearance of Rev. Dr. Flanders in the pulpit, and early in the week he will leave for Winnipeg.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET.

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveler with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety first," with up-to-date equipment, unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars, in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

THREE WELL-KNOWN DISTRICT OFFICERS RETURNING SHORTLY

Lieut.-Col. Oliver of Galt and Majors Youngs and Douglass.

Three well-known district officers, who have been on service since almost the beginning of the war, and in one instance a member of the famous 1st Battalion, are being returned to Canada, according to an official report given out in the old country. Lieut.-Cols. A. J. Oliver, Galt, commander of the 34th Battalion; J. L. Youngs, Stratford, and W. J. Douglas have been struck off the strength of the establishment of the C. E. F. and are returning to Canada.

Lieut.-Col. Douglass, holding that rank in the Canadian militia, went overseas with the 34th Battalion, and has been with Lieut.-Col. Oliver practically ever since. Some time ago it was announced that Lieut.-Col. Oliver had again been given the command of the 34th, which was reorganized as a boys' battalion, in which all Canadian soldiers under the age of 19 were to be kept and trained until deemed of sufficient age and strength to take their place at the front.

Lieut.-Col. Youngs was commanding officer of the 110th Battalion (Perth), and was brought back from England to take over the command. He is a soldier of many years' standing, and was an officer of the 28th (Perth) Regiment, quota of the first contingent, and served with distinction in France. His son, Lieut. J. L. Youngs, was a few months ago reported killed in action. He went with the first contingent, and was wounded, but returned to France, where he later won the military medal, and was given his majority. Last August he was sent back to Canada to take command of the Perth Battalion, which he took overseas, being relieved when that unit was amalgamated with others to form the 8th Reserve.

OFFICERS' POSITIONS ARE REVERSED AT MEETING OF SYNOD

A big gun among the lay delegates in attendance at the annual session of the Synod of the Diocese of Huron is Lieut.-Col. E. S. Wigle, K.C., of Windsor, well known to Londoners as the commander of the 18th Battalion, and a gallant one at that. Col. Wigle is still a heroic figure, even if he appears in the role of quiet observer, clad in grey "civies," seated on the floor of the synod, instead of that of commanding officer in khaki uniform, issuing orders in stentorian tones to one of the finest units that ever went overseas and upheld the honor of Canada in Flanders. Rev. Arthur Carlisle, formerly chaplain of the "fighting 18th," is also a conspicuous figure in the synod.

So far as the present appearance in London of the two delegates is concerned, the former order has been entirely reversed. Rev. A. Carlisle, B.A., a clerical delegate, is officer-in-command of All Saints' Church, Windsor; Lieut.-Col. Wigle, his superior officer in the 18th, is his reliable lieutenant and indispensable lay delegate.

LT.-COL ROBSON AND WARDEN BLAIKIE ARE LIKELY CANDIDATES

The keenest interest is being taken in the nomination meeting of the Liberals of East Middlesex, to be held Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock in Hyman Hall. It is stated that the choice will likely be between Lieut.-Col. Bart Robson, Warden Archie Blaikie of the county of Middlesex, and Alfred Bailey of Thorndale. Many other names will also be placed in nomination. The big issue at present before the electors of the Dominion will be thoroughly discussed, and the meeting may be one of the most important ever held in this district.

CHARLES BARFITT DEAD.

The death of Charles Barfit, 45 years old, occurred at Victoria Hospital on Monday. He was a contractor for cement work, and is survived by his wife and one daughter, who resides at Hamilton.

The funeral will be held to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. No further arrangements have been made.

FUNERAL LARGEST IN YEARS.

WINGHAM, June 19.—The funeral of Richard Clegg, held here this afternoon, was one of the most largely attended in the history of the town. Services were conducted at his late residence, Patrick street, by Rev. Dr. Perry, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The remains were taken to the C.P.R. depot where they were forwarded to Peterboro on the 3:05 train. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. A. McLean, Dr. Irwin, Dr. Redmond, Dr. Kennedy, C. Smith and T. King.
