TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Manuscript sent to us may be enclosed in unsealed envelopes for one cent postage. The envelope should be marked "printer's copy." Some correspondents are in the habit of using three cent stamps.
ABORIGINES.—An Indian wigwam, over the river on Attrill's Flats, is one of the attractions to the younger portion of our community. The natives are busily engaged in making and selling baskets, a work in which they show much ingenuity.
The remains of the late Mrs. Criddle of Buffalo were brought to Goderich on Monday last, and from thence were followed by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives to Prospect Cemetery, Township of Colborne, and there interred beside those of her sister.

Geo. E. Pay, Esq., a resident of South Africa for 30 years, dined with his brother, Wm. Pay of St. Catharines, at the Point Farm on Monday last, after a separation of 47 years.
Harper's Monthly for August is an excellent number. The engravings are fully up to the mark, and the articles are fresh and readable. Harper's has no superior as a monthly magazine.
Sallows, the photographer, has just put a new case of photographs in the post office. The pictures are creditable specimens of the photographic art, and the frame is a pretty one.
FOR DAKOTA.—Mr. Jas. A. Elliott, formerly with R. McLean, butcher, left on Wednesday with a load of horses for Fargo, Dakota, Mr. Elliott intends to make Fargo his home for some time, and as he is a steady and clear headed young man, he will doubtless make a good strike in the west.
33RD BATTALION.—The 33rd Battalion has been ordered out to perform annual drill at the Battalion headquarters, at a date to be fixed by the officers of the Battalion, who will meet at Clinton on Monday next, at 2 p.m., to consider the question. Capt. Miller is anxious to get a few able-bodied young fellows to swell the ranks of his company.
ACCIDENT.—About three weeks ago an accident occurred to Mr. Williams, an engineer, at Fort William. He was engaged in raising a sunken tug, and had placed some timbers from a scow to a dredge to effect his purpose. One of these timbers jammed and broke the bone of his leg between the knee and ankle.
Miss Maggie McKay, while visiting at Bow Park, met with a painful accident by being thrown from a democrat wagon. She received cuts about the face, and was badly stunned. She is now at Woodstock, and has almost fully recovered from the effects of the accident. She had just returned from a very pleasant trip to New York and other points in the United States.
Mr. W. A. Calbiek, recently employed at the Harbor Salt works, left by the noon train for Brussels, having been telegraphed for by Mr. F. C. Rogers, of the Brussels salt works, to assume charge of the working of the well in that enterprising village. The brine at Brussels is represented as being of full strength, and the parties interested are hopeful of doing a prosperous business.
A GOOD GAZETTEER.—Lovell & Co.'s new Gazetteer of British North America has just been issued, and will be found of great advantage to all business men. The Gazetteer gives a list of routes, together with brief description of all the cities, towns, villages, settlements, counties and provinces. The information given is of use to all, and the work is one of the most valuable ever published in Canada.
BLIND DRUNK.—On Monday, about sunset, a number of young men were noticed drinking out of a bottle on West street. The liquor must have been pretty strong stuff, as some of them were laid out on the road helplessly drunk. Among the inebriates was a crippled young man who was being carried by two crutches. The sight was a disgraceful one, and was not likely to impress visitors favorably.
PERSONAL.—By some means or other a paragraph gained publicity through our issue of last week to the effect that Mr. Halls, assistant teacher in the Goderich High School, was suffering from ill health. The writer of this had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Halls, in Exeter on Tuesday last, and he assured us that he was never in the enjoyment of better health than his life, and his appearance fully substantiated his assertion. It certainly affords us no little pleasure to make this correction.—[Expositor.

Miss Wigmore, daughter of ex-chief Wigmore, of London, is visiting friends in Goderich.
We are pleased to learn that Gaoler Dickson is recovering from his recent indisposition.
Rev. Father Watters left for the seaside on Thursday of last week. He will be absent for a few weeks.

G. T. R. EXCURSION.—The employees of the G. T. R. works, at Brantford, intend having an excursion to Goderich on Friday next, the 29th inst.
BROKEN ARM.—A lad named James Bolton, aged 11 years, son of Mr. Harry Bolton, was thrown from a horse Sunday before last, and had one of his arms broken.
SHOT HIMSELF.—A young man named Young, living on the Lake Shore Road, near Port Albert, accidentally shot himself in the arm on Thursday. Dr. Taylor, of Goderich, was sent for.
Mr. John Pharis has returned from Dakota, and gives a glowing account of that region. He has taken up a homestead, and will remain in Goderich for but a short time.
Miss Sarah Davis and Miss Lizzie Ferguson, arrived home from the Quebec on Wednesday last from Chicago, where they had been visiting. It goes without saying that they both looked well after the trip.
"Nothing," says the Philadelphia News, "so takes the conceit out of the average man as to order his paper discontinued, and then seeing the editor going right along and getting rich without him."
GARDEN PARTY.—As we go to press the garden party under the auspices of Knox Church, in the grounds of M. C. Cameron, M.P., is in progress, and the attendance is exceedingly large. A full account will appear in the next issue.
Mr. Thos. Saunders, an old Goderich boy, who has been working as a tinsmith, at Emerson, Man., has taken up land in Dakota, and is determined to become one of the leading agriculturists of that Territory.
STEAMBOAT EXCURSION.—On Wednesday the Quebec arrived with an excursion party of some eighty persons from Dayton, Ohio, among its passengers. They spent an hour up town, and seemed to be favorably impressed with Goderich.
FOR THE WEST.—Mr. James Thompson and wife and Mrs. F. R. Mann and three children left by the Ontario on Sunday last for their home in Dakota. Messrs. James McKay and Henry Myers were also passengers on the same boat for the North-west.
SERVANT GIRLS WANTED.—We understand that there is a scarcity of servant girls in Goderich. Domestic are in great demand, and a really good servant girl can have a choice of places at good wages. Advertisements, for girls are very frequent in our columns.
Mr. John C. Currie and family are rusticated in the woods near the Falls. John C. says he has erected a "boss wigwam," and takes as much pride out of his new domicile as the aborigine of old, who handed down to posterity the celebrated saying, "Big Injun, me."

THE BAND PICNIC AND CONCERT.—The picnic and concert under the auspices of the Goderich brass band, in Bingham's grove, on Friday evening last, was a success in every respect. About three o'clock, Reeves' street car began to run to and from the grounds, and by five o'clock quite a number had congregated on the grounds. Shortly after six o'clock refreshments were served, of which a large number partook. About 7:30 the concert took place, and proved to be an entertaining part of the proceedings. The Misses Trainer, Miss Meltrum and Miss Ferguson, and Messrs. H. Smith, Rothwell, Saunders and Robson contributed the vocal music, and the String Band and Miss Bertha Trainer and Miss Meltrum furnished the music. Mr. D. McGillicuddy occupied the position of chairman. After the concert the platform was cleared and dancing, in which young and old joined, was kept up for a few hours. General satisfaction was expressed at the result all through, and we understand that other pleasure parties of a similar nature will be held during the summer in Bingham's grove.

"In all towns and cities where a newspaper is printed," says an exchange, "every business man should advertise in it, even if nothing more than a card stating his name and the business he is engaged in. It pays the advertiser, and lets the people at a distance know that the town is full of business men."

QUOTING.—The Wingham quitters have challenged Goderich, but as a number of the best pitchers of this place cannot be on hand, the challenge has been declined. Walkinshaw has offered to give Treleven eight or ten shots in a game of 61 points. The proposed match between Treleven and R. McNair, the Goderich quoter, has fallen through.

A HUMMING BIRD'S NEST.—Mr. Hugh Johnston, a few days ago, discovered a curiosity in his garden, in the shape of a humming bird's nest neatly appended to a branch of a Northern Spy apple tree. The nest is a tiny piece of architecture, and at first sight seems to be an abnormal joint upon the limb, but a closer observation brings to view a nest built on the Lilliputian principle. Two tiny eggs show that there was an object in view in the building of the nest, and the frantic efforts of two little humming birds to drive off intruding sight-seers, are indications that the wee parents are of a domestic turn of mind.

Mr. Archibald Fisher, brother to P. Fisher, Esq., of the celebrated "Wingham Mills," and one of the pioneer settlers of Wingham, has just left for Manitoba, with the necessary machinery for large grist and saw mills. He will locate at a new place called Brandon. There is no doubt he will succeed for he is a man of considerable ability and energy. Such men are an acquisition to Manitoba, but a loss to Ontario. Mr. Fisher seems to have found favor with the Syndicate people out there, who appear inclined to give him much encouragement. They are wise, for they know it is only workers and practical men like him who can build up such a country and make it great and flourishing.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—On Saturday morning the fishing boat Matchless, owned by Mr. Robert Clarke, and manned by Alex. and Hector McLean and Andy Woods, was capsized when about three miles out, by a sudden squall. The little vessel was carrying too much canvas, and the gear was so stiff that the sails could not be hauled down quickly enough to save the upset. The men clung to the tossing hull for about two hours, and lost their coats and boots in their precautions to save themselves. The accident was not observed from the shore, and but for the fortunate appearance of another fishing boat, commanded by Red Dan McKay, the crew of the capsized boat would have likely perished. The tug went out to the scene of the disaster, and drew the Matchless into the harbor.

Some of the printed portraits of Gittau, taken from Chicago photographs, represent him as being somewhat mild and concited in appearance, with the complacency and pertness of a shabby dandy. The photographs taken in jail give him a more crazy appearance, the eyes being wilder, the lines of the brow showing a man who has an exalted opinion of himself. The head is a curious study.

People are picking up scraps of information about the human organism and the way the machine does its work by reading the bulletins concerning President Garfield's condition. It may be helpful to a better understanding of the case to say that the average pulse beats of a healthy man per minute are: When standing they are 81; sitting, 71; lying, 68. In a healthy man, whose pulse was from 65 to 70, the respiration is from 14 to 18 a minute. The normal temperature of the body is 98.5 F.

MAPLE SEEDS.—The Winnipeg Free Press has this to say concerning the doings of a former Stratfordite: "Mr. P. R. Jarvis, of Stratford, who is visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. H. S. Skinner, of this city, has left at the office of this journal a large package of Canadian maple seeds. Anybody desirous of raising maple trees can obtain a supply of seed on application." And this: "It was announced in this paper yesterday that a package of maple seeds had been left for distribution. They were grabbed up before noon yesterday. Maple seeds are in demand in this country and immigrants from Ontario will confer a favor by bringing in a package of them occasionally. The farmers will be glad to get them and the country needs them."

Tuesday.—Schr. Guelph, for Big Island, to load bark for Chicago; Schr. E. W. Rathburn, for Byng Inlet, light.
Wednesday.—Prop. Quebec, for Duluth, passengers and freight.

Some of the printed portraits of Gittau, taken from Chicago photographs, represent him as being somewhat mild and concited in appearance, with the complacency and pertness of a shabby dandy. The photographs taken in jail give him a more crazy appearance, the eyes being wilder, the lines of the brow showing a man who has an exalted opinion of himself. The head is a curious study.

People are picking up scraps of information about the human organism and the way the machine does its work by reading the bulletins concerning President Garfield's condition. It may be helpful to a better understanding of the case to say that the average pulse beats of a healthy man per minute are: When standing they are 81; sitting, 71; lying, 68. In a healthy man, whose pulse was from 65 to 70, the respiration is from 14 to 18 a minute. The normal temperature of the body is 98.5 F.

And this: "It was announced in this paper yesterday that a package of maple seeds had been left for distribution. They were grabbed up before noon yesterday. Maple seeds are in demand in this country and immigrants from Ontario will confer a favor by bringing in a package of them occasionally. The farmers will be glad to get them and the country needs them."

HOW HE WAS CAUGHT.

The banking house of Shavewell Brothers had been victimized by an extensive forgery, so cleverly planned, and executed that, in detective circles, there was but one opinion as to its authorship. There was but one hand skillful enough for such a piece of work—that of Durnford Warwick, a most accomplished rascal, whose craft and cunning had carried him safely through a long career of roguery in spite of the best laid schemes to trap him. On this occasion a heavy reward was offered for his apprehension.

I had but lately been enrolled a member of the detective force, and was ambitious of rising. Here was a golden opportunity, golden in every sense, for whoever caught Marwick would not only be a made man, but would put a round sum into his pocket.

While others were beating the bush in different directions I resolved to go on a still hunt of my own. I had information that Marwick had a set of associates in a place about a hundred miles away, with whom, it was not unlikely, he had sought and found a hiding-place. At any rate it could do no harm to make a reconnaissance in the neighborhood.

I took the next train with a view to carrying out my plan. Securing a seat favorable for observation, I commenced glancing over the morning paper and my fellow-passengers. I had no particular expectation of finding any one answering to Marwick's description among them—still it was well enough for one in my place to keep his eyes open.

It was not long, however, till my occupation was interrupted. A plain-looking countryman, entering from a forward car, asked and was accorded permission to share my seat. He proved one of those irrepressibly sociable fellows who will make your acquaintance in spite of you.

He told me his name without waiting to be asked—it was Seth Wiggins, he said—and straightway inquired what mine might be. I didn't care to tell him I was a detective Tyke, so I merely answered: "Smith."

"Du tell!" returned Mr. Wiggins, looked as much surprised as if I said Heliogabalus. He was evidently one of those who think it proper to receive whatever you may say with a certain polite astonishment.

When Mr. Wiggins had exhausted politics and the "craps," and given me a census of the young ones, he broached the subject that was uppermost in my mind—or would have been but for his eternal clatter.

"That was a nation smart trick that ere Marwick played into the bank," he remarked. "I know very little about it," I replied.

"No more do I," said Mr. Wiggins; "only I hear he done 'em outer a mint o' money." "I've understood as much," I answered.

leather satchel. Arrest him on sight.

"It was not one man who killed Abraham Lincoln; it was the embodied spirit of treason and slavery, inspired with fearful and despairing hate, that struck him down in the moment of the nation's supremest joy."

"When two hundred and fifty thousand brave spirits passed from the field of honor through that thin veil to the presence of God, and when at last its parting folds admitted the martyr-President to the company of the dead heroes of the Republic, the nation stood so near the veil that the whispers of God were heard by the children of men."

Bill Smedley was resting his left foot on the top of a beer keg in front of a saloon in Butte City, Montana Territory, the last time I saw him. On his bent left knee he rested an elbow, thereby arranging his arm so as to support his chin which rested on his hand. His clothes were well worn, and here and there a rent. His hair stuck out through a hole in the crown of his hat, while the great toe of his right foot peeped forth ruddy and cheerful from his boot. The whiffs of smoke, drawn from a short, black pipe, curled lazily from his lips. His eyes were half closed and dreamy. His thoughts were in dreamland. Bill had experienced the ups and downs of Western life; had been rich and poor by turns, and was now very poor. He had grown philosophic, and looked at things in a way different from what he had in his youth, when life's pathway smiled to him, and seemed rose-garlanded.

"Hello, Bill! been looking for you," said the tax-collector, coming up. There was no response. He repeated: "Bill, hello!" "Well!" "Want to collect your tax."

"I mean your poll-tax." "Don't own no pole." "A poll-tax is a tax on yourself, you know." "I ain't no property."

"But the county court levied this tax on me." "Didn't authorize 'em to levy any tax on me." "The law does, though." "What if it does; 'spos I'm goin' ter pay for breathin' the air?" "Still you are one of us, you live here."

"I didn't bring myself into the world." "You exercise the privileges of a citizen; you vote." "Don't want to vote if you charge for it." "Don't you want a voice in the selection of officers?" "No; if there was no officers you wouldn't be here consumin' my time."

"The schools must be supported. We must educate the children." "If you do they won't work." "There are other country expenses—paupers, and so on. If you were to die without means you would want us to bury you."

"No, you needn't." "Why, you would smell bad to other people." "I kin stan' it if they kin." "I will levy on your property," said the officer, growing impatient; "I will hunt it up."

"I'll help you; I want to see some of my property." The officer moved on rather abruptly, while Bill continued, as if musing: "Let them fellers have their way, and they'd make life a burden. Want to assess my existence; want to charge me for enjoyin' the bright sunshine; ask me to pay for beholdin' the beautiful landscape; charge me for looking at the grass grow and the rose unfoldin'; charge me for watchin' the birds fly, an' one cloud chase 'tother."

The eyes continued to blink dreamily. In the whiffs of smoke reached up in graceful spirals toward the blue dome. The foot-falls of the tax-collector grew abssenter and abssenter.—[New Orleans Picayune.

Secrecy of Walnut.

If you would have walnut timber prepare to buy it now. For walnut timber is scarce, is growing scarcer every minute, and there are alarming indications that it will soon be as rare and expensive as mahogany. The shrewd lumber dealers have long been alive to this and are thick in the lumber regions laying hands on everything in the shape of walnut that is within their reach. Several establishments have for several years been laying in stocks and now have great piles of the valuable timber stored away, expecting it to turn to gold on their hands. And the event will mostly likely justify their foresight. And when the walnut is all gone what are we to fall back upon? Not mahogany, for that is too expensive. The Northwestern Lumberman says:

The impossibility of procuring mahogany in desirable quantities may be better understood when it is known that it is becoming more difficult to get every year, as the logs have to be brought from further inland. Another drawback to the business is that every vessel owner is not willing to put his vessels into the mahogany carrying business. Many of the coasts of the countries whence it comes are wanting in good harbors, and as the vessels are obliged to anchor a mile or so from shore and have the logs rafted to them, the cyclones that sweep over that latitude are liable to destroy them. Last year we read of the destruction of several vessels engaged in that trade, and as there are but comparatively few in it, it shows that the business is a risky one.

JUDGMENT SUMMONS.

A Process of Law about which Well-to-do People Know very Little.

After a debtor has refused to pay a debt the simplest way to recover seems to be to sue in the Division Court. A debtor is sued in the Division Court and a judgment recovered. If he pays within fourteen days there is an end to it. If he does not the creditor can issue a writ of execution immediately on the close of the two weeks. But if the writ is returned nulla bona, the creditor can issue a judgment summons, which brings the debtor into court in a new light. The judgment summons requires the debtor to appear before the judge to answer interrogations as to his financial standing, and why he does not pay over to the creditor what is due to him. At this hearing, the debtor has a legal right to be heard privately before the judge, so that peculiar circumstances in his commercial or domestic life shall not be given to the public. Therefore the custom is that no person is admitted to the court during the time of any examination except the parties to the suit. A debtor who disregards the judgment summons is liable to be committed for contempt of court.

In the conduct of the inquiries all sort of questions are asked the debtor, such as how many of a family there are, what rent he pays, what work he is engaged in, how much wages he gets when at work, what he thinks necessary to keep his family, and finally, how much money he can pay monthly. There are cases on record where it is known it would take about four years to square up.—Sometimes, moved by the debtor's story, judge orders a dividend of fifty cents a month. Another person with a family and sick wife gets off on payment of $1 month. In ordinary circumstances, when a man is working at a salary of $9 a week, the contribution is $3 or $4 per month. But the average instalments are below these figures.

A Riot at Sea Quelled with Acid. SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—The ship Ann Boynton has arrived at Portland in thirty-four days from Hong Kong with 350 Chinese. On June 15 a riot broke out because the Chinese cooks favored one gang of coolies more than another. The parties were about equally divided, were armed with cordwood sticks, capstan bars and belying pins, with which they fought desperately up and down the deck, receiving terrible wounds about the head and body. Fearing for the safety of the ship, and finding pistol threats of no avail, Captain Nason and crew began throwing carbolic acid among the infuriated Chinese, which soon brought them to their senses. Captain Nason justifies this course from the fact that it was impossible to quiet the terrible riot in midocean and save the ship and lives of himself and crew in any other way. Had he killed the ringleaders, the Chinese would have been enraged beyond all hope of control. Marks of the severity of the struggle between the two gangs of men on each side are plainly visible all over the ship, as also are the marks made by the carbolic acid.—[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Words of Cheer. Few persons realize how much happiness may be promoted by a few words of cheer spoken in moments of despondency by words of encouragement in seasons of difficulty, by words of commendation when obstacles have been overcome by effort and perseverance. Words fitly spoken often sink so deeply into the mind and the heart of the person to whom they are addressed that they remain a fixed, precious, and often recurring memory—a continuous sunshine lighting up, years perhaps, after the lips that have uttered them are sealed in death. A whole life has been changed, exalted, expanded and illumined by a single expression of approval falling timely upon a sensitive and ambitious nature. Words of cheer cost nothing to the speaker. On the contrary, they are to him as well as the hearer a source of great happiness to be had for the mere effort of uttering them. The habit of speaking such words at appropriate times is easily acquired, while at the same time it is of so much importance that it should be sedulously cultivated by all.

A QUEER ORBITARY.—The Philadelphia Weekly Magazine for Saturday, March 3, 1798, has the following remarkable death notice:—"At New London, Conn., Mr. John Weeks, aged 114, who was only 16. His gray hairs had fallen off, and were renewed by a dark head of hair. A new set of teeth had made their appearance; and he ate three pounds of pork, two or three pounds of bread, and drank nearly a pint of wine a few hours before his death."

It will be a terrible thing if there should turn out to be any ground for the fears expressed by an old country journal that Worth, the man milliner of Paris, is assiduously endeavoring to revive that carbuncle on the face of civilization, the hoop skirt. It is said that the crinole, an arrangement for distending the backs of dresses, is gradually being increased in size, and that unless steps be taken to counteract its amplification it will soon have assumed the dimensions of a full grown hoop skirt. It is the duty of every right minded man to set his face against this innovation upon his liberties, this encroachment upon his freedom. A woman in an old-fashioned hoop skirt is as terrible as an army with banners, and when she sails down street she carries everything before her, like a Dutch man-of-war.

Woman's True Friend. A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only cost fifty cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

A stranger sat in a corner of an American railway carriage, in easy attitude, his feet upon a large black trunk. The gentlemanly conductor going his rounds, at the first station politely informed the stranger that the trunk must be put into the luggage-car, to which the stranger made no reply. At the second station the vexed conductor imperiously told the stranger that he must put the trunk into the luggage-car, or it would be removed from the train, to which the stranger made no reply. At the third station the irate conductor had the trunk removed and left. The stranger said nothing. At the fourth station the mollified conductor, addressing the stranger, begged him to remember that he had but done his duty, and that his action was solely the stranger's fault, to which the stranger laconically replied: "Don't care; taint my trunk!"

Horse Stealers Amongst Us.

The Seaforth Examiner says:—Constable Dunlop of this town has been doing a good stroke of business the past few days. On Saturday afternoon he located that a valuable horse had been stolen from a farmer in Goderich township named Cantelon. Shortly afterwards, being always on the alert, he gained information that a horse answering to the description of the stolen animal had been sold to a livery-man in Listowel under somewhat suspicious circumstances. He telegraphed to the Listowel man for description of the horse he had purchased. He waited for a reply until ten o'clock on Saturday night and receiving no answer to his telegram he procured a rig and drove to Listowel, reaching there early Sunday morning. After considerable adroit manoeuvring he succeeded in finding where the horse was, and identifying him as the one that had been stolen from Cantelon he took him away with him. He also got a description of the man who had sold the horse. The Listowel man, thinking all was not right when the thief applied to him to purchase the horse, accused him of having stolen it. The fellow denied the soft impeachment and agreed to leave the horse on receiving one dollar, the balance to be paid when he called again, by which time he assured the livery-man it would be seen everything was square. The livery man took the horse on those terms and paid the dollar, but before the party of the first part returned for the balance of the pay constable Dunlop stepped in and took possession of the horse and has since returned him to his grateful owner. He is a valuable horse, Mr. Cantelon having refused $150 for him in this town a few weeks ago. He was stolen from the pasture field. While off on this mission Mr. Dunlop got trace of another horse that had been stolen from a farmer in the county of Waterloo. He traced this horse to Blyth, where he found it had been purchased by Mr. Irwin, hotel-keeper of that village. On calling upon Mr. Irwin he was informed that he had sold the horse about half an hour previously to Mr. John Shipley of Hullet, near Clinton, and Mr. Shipley had started off home with him. Mr. Dunlop overtook Mr. Shipley just as he was entering his own gate with his new purchase, and surprised him not a little by telling him that he had purchased a stolen horse. Mr. Shipley at once gave the horse up to Mr. Dunlop, who took him home with him, and he now awaits the arrival of the owner. The Blyth hotelkeeper will thus be out the amount he paid for the horse. Mr. Dunlop is now on the track of the thief, and we hope he will catch him, as he seems to be a most daring scoundrel. He has been in Seaforth several times. He calls himself Fergus, and represents himself as a musical instrument agent. He is a short, stout man, with a light moustache and is apparently about 24 years of age. He drives from place to place with a small bay mare which is blind in one eye, and he rides in an old covered buggy. He pretends he gets these horses in exchange for musical instruments that he has sold and is evidently a connoisseur in the matter of horse flesh, as he never takes any but the

FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1881.

Why is the versatile Josiah Burr-Plumb not periverting the Maritime provinces? Grip surely has not sapped the vigor of the sweet laureate of the rolling cataract.

The animated scenes at the dock on Sunday afternoon were not in keeping with the popular view of Sabbath quiet.

TORONTO is anxious to appear as the Athens of Canada, but there is still gross ignorance amongst some of its population.

The press arrangements made by Lord Lorne for his trip to the Northwest, are certainly not creditable to the common sense of the noble Lord.

The Mail has been publishing hundreds of columns of editorials—one article alone being four columns in length.

In a multitude of counsellers there is wisdom, says the Book.—Toronto Telegram.

The above misquotation has been so often given that we take the liberty of pointing out to the scribe of the Telegram that the Book says safety and not wisdom.

There is now a contest to find out which is most numerous, the man who saw Guitane shoot Garfield, or the man who picked up the bullet that Garfield didn't retain.

THE redistribution of the County of Huron will, it is reported, be again attempted at the next session of the Dominion Parliament.

MR. GEO. E. JACKSON, "the defeated of South Huron," as he is pleased to write himself, replied in the Seaford Sun to our strictures of the week before last.

THE CEMETERY CARETAKER.

A number of applications have been made for the position of caretaker of the cemetery, recently held by Mr. Pharis, deceased, and it is probable that the question will come up for discussion at the next Council meeting.

Goderich is in possession of one of the most naturally beautiful burial places in Canada, and where Nature has done so much, surely Art should assist.

Not every man who can dig a hole will make a good caretaker of the cemetery, at the present time.

The public are watching the councilors, and will easily determine whether they are actuated by public or private motives in the matter.

Canada for the Canadians.

A Washington despatch says: "The Postmaster-General has signified his willingness and pleasure in permitting Woolworth & Graham, postal card contractors, to manufacture 10,000,000 postal cards for the Canadian Government, similar in size and quality to those in use in this country.

Mr. Blake does not come to us armed with patronage or promises. He makes an appeal to men's reason and conscience.

In doing so, he pays to his hearers the highest compliment in his power. The reason which he holds is not that used in the contests that often decide the fate of nations; it is argument, persuasion, eloquence.

The best proof of the growing strength of Mr. Blake in the country is the extraordinary attention which his political opponents are paying him.

When Mr. Blake's bill to prevent the carrying of firearms was introduced in Parliament there were captious critics who endeavored to cast ridicule upon it; but experience proves that the measure always carried a pistol or six in many of the United States nearly everybody carries firearms and familiarity with these deadly weapons unquestionably makes people reckless in the handling and use of them.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The town of New Ulm, on the Minnesota River, sixty-five miles from St. Paul, containing 3,500 people, was wrecked by a cyclone this afternoon.

NICHOLAS JACKSON, of Annapolis, Md., who was in the depot at the time the President was shot, writes that the first ball fired, and which grazed the President's arm, struck him in the breast, but its progress was stayed by a large silver medal presented him by the President, and which he had worn around his neck for twelve years.

Church Festivals and Newspapers.

He was the manager of a church festival, and one morning he walked into the newspaper office and said:—"Want an item this morning?"

"Of course," said the editor. Whereupon the visitor laid the following note upon the table:—"The ladies of the street church will give a festival at their vestry hall next Friday evening. Literary and musical entertainments will be provided, and a supper will be served to all who desire it. The ladies in charge of the affair have had much experience in such matters, and are sure to provide a good time. The admission will be only fifteen cents, and it is certain that no one can spend that amount to better advantage. Be sure and go and take your friends."

"When the editor had read it he said:—"O, I see, an advertisement."—"No; not an advertisement. We prefer to have it go in the local columns," replied the manager.

And, seeing that the editor looked sceptical, he continued:—"It will interest a great many of your readers, and help a good cause; besides, we have spent so much money getting up our entertainment that we can't afford to advertise it without increasing the price of the tickets. In such a matter as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

"Well," said the editor, "if it goes in to the locals, I suppose you would recalculate by reading a little notice in your church next Sunday."

The visiting brother asked what notice, and the editor wrote and handed him the following:—"The Weekly Chronicle for the coming year will be the best and cheapest family paper in Maine. Its proprietor has had much experience, and has all the helps which a large outlay of money can procure. His paper has a larger circulation than any other published in the country and is to be furnished at only two dollars. It is certain that no person can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure and take the Chronicle and subscribe for your friends."

The manager hemmed and hesitated and then said solemnly that he doubted whether it would be judicious to read such a notice, but suggested that if it was printed, copies of it might be distributed at the door of the vestry on the evening of the entertainment.

"Yes," said the editor, "but it would attract more attention in the middle of a sermon. It will interest a number of your congregation and helps good cause; and besides so much money is spent upon the Chronicle that I don't see how the owner can afford to print hand-bills without increasing the subscription price. In such a manner as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

The gentlemen saw the situation.

Sensible Advice on Training Lewis. Forty-six years ago David Lewis, then a handsome, rounded Welshman, was driving from Utica, Oneida County, to Hamilton College, having a load of lads returning, after a spring vacation, to their studies. As he neared the Middle Settlement, attention was called to a farmer maltreating a colt which could not and would not keep up in his work with an older horse harnessed beside it. David, displeased at the unreasonable farmer, murmured, "Tuz-luz-luz" (but did not swear) and stopped for the farmer to come to the roadside, and the two commenced talking in Welsh. We college boys had no Welsh Professor and were ignorant of the language. The tongues of David and his countryman had a short spat. As we started on our way, I asked for a translation of the Welsh dialogue. Says David: "The man asked me to tell him how to break his colt, and I told him to go into the house and first break himself." No man can master a colt properly who can not control himself. There is no mystery in education. The whole method is according to law. Rewards and punishments underlie just government. Be ware of an improper punishment to a colt, as you would of a human being; for you must command respect if you would educate either. Never trifle nor deceive. When you must draw the whip to compel attention, remember to reward obedience with sugar, or some pleasing gift. First make your colt your friend, and then educate without impatience or severity. Condescend to talk to your horse and be clear in your language, for he can hear and is glad to be coolly and intelligently directed. "Go on, Steady! What are three magic words which should be used to start, to moderate, or stop the movement of the colt. Repeat them clearly, as you have occasion to use them, for just what they mean; and the colt will soon obey them, and be proud of his knowledge. Be at all times considerate, kind and firm, remembering there is a limit to every sensitive organization. It does no harm to tire a colt, but never exhaust one. Groom well after work rather than before. If you hate a colt, let some one else educate him.—Brentano's Monthly.

Been away. "Hello! Is that you?" "Yes." "Been away?" "Yes." "Seen off on a vacation?" "Yes." "Feel better?" "No." "Go fishing?" "No." "Did you sail or row?" "No." "Nice at the hotel?" "No." "In swimming?" "No." "What did you do?" "Nothing." "What did you go for?" "I dunno."—Ex.

Reputating Nationally.

A GIRL'S PROMISE.

"And you propose to stand by what you say, sir?" "Exactly, George." Then silence fell between the two men for the space of a few moments.

"That's about the long and short of it, my boy," was the prompt response; "I had to make a nest before I caught my bird, and I don't quite see why other men should not do the same."

"George, I promise it on my life!" The shades of the summer evening were closing in as George Santley stood at the door of the cottage which had been his home, and held his mother in his arms.

"Mr. Dana says that you were the only person who knew he had the note in his possession, and that after you had called upon him he fell asleep when he awoke the note was gone."

"Oh, how happy the poor boy might have been could he have heard these two loving women talk of him and have known the depth of their trusting affection!"

"I don't see the use of it, father dear," she said. "Don't you, sis?" with a sly wink; "do you think the old place is fit for the wedding of the richest girl in Mayville?"

"Please, Miss Esther," the girl said, extending something in her hand, "the carpenters just found this when they tore away the mophoard under the sitting-room window."

"Your wish is granted, sir," the young man said; "the boy is here, but not a poor. There are the bills you wanted to see before I could claim Esther."

The story was all over town. Everybody was talking about it. It was too bad, they said. What was too bad? Why, the new minister had been beating his wife. Was it possible? Yes, there could be no doubt of it.

They came greatly puzzled and surprised. The case was gravely stated by the senior elder, when the culprit and witness burst into a laugh. Checking themselves, when they saw how serious and sad the session looked, they explained.

The minister's wife, though an excellent woman, who loved everybody, and especially her husband, did not love rats. But the house having been vacant for a time, the rats had taken possession.

A Strange Disclosure. A professional gentleman of Belleville visited Kingston on Dominion Day, and whilst there called at the office of Dr. Sullivan, who related the following incident:

Words of Wisdom.

Our greatest glory consists not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.

Whatever a man preaches should be no preached as that, in the long run, it will tend to strengthen the moral feeling of men, to build it higher, and to make it more sensitive.

It is folly to pretend by heaping up treasures, to arm ourselves against the accidents of life, which nothing can protect us against, but the good providence of our Heavenly Father.

"My Father's house!" It must be ample, for it is God's house. It must be radiantly beautiful, for the Author of beauty resides there.

"I trust everything under God," said Lord Brougham, "to habit. Make sobriety a habit, temperance will be habitual; make prudence a habit, and recklessness will be contrary to our nature; give a child the habit of sacredly regarding the truth, of carefully respecting the property of others, of scrupulously abstaining from all acts of improvidence which can involve him in distress, and he will just as likely think of rushing into an element in which he cannot breathe, as of lying, cheating or stealing.

Fun and Fancy.

The man who returned a borrowed umbrella was a brother to the woman who passed a looking glass without stopping to look in it.

"Well, Johnnie," said a doting uncle to his little nephew, who had been fishing all day, "did you catch a good many fish?" "No, uncle; but I drowned a good many worms," was the reply.

A Michigan editor received $1000,000 from the administrator of the estate of a deceased subscriber, and to celebrate the event caused his office towel to be washed. How often affluence leads to extravagance.

"If you find a locomotive rushing at you," says a philosopher, "spring into the air and come down on the cow-catcher." That's good "spring" advice, but our midsummer plan would be to step off the track.

"I wish I was a star," he said, smiling at his own poetic fancy. "I would rather you were a comet," she said, dreamily. His heart beat tumultuously. "And why?" he said, tenderly, at the same time taking her unresisting little hands in his own. "And why?" he repeated imperiously. "Oh," she said, with a brooding earnestness that fell freely upon his soul, "because then you would come round only once every fifteen hundred years!"

The editor glanced at the visitor savagely as he came forward and remarked that he didn't think the President would die. "It was at the battle of Malvern Hill," he went on to say "I was in command of a battery stationed opposite the enemy's left, and was about giving an order, when a ball struck me—" "S' death!" interrupted the frenzied editor. "Another man shot through the liver," and seizing the bottle scarred here about the pinnacle, he rushed him into the dim, religious light of the hallway. The girl who swept down the stairs next morning picked up enough rent clothing to stuff a pillow case.

"You haven't asked me all the questions. Now don't say you have, for you know you haven't," said a citizen to a census officer. "No," replied the latter demurely; "I haven't asked you, sir, whether you could read or write, because that would be an insult: I haven't asked you whether you are a negro, because I can see that you are not; I haven't asked you whether you are lame or blind, or deaf, for the same reason; and I haven't asked you whether you are an idiot, because that is unnecessary.

Archdeacon Denison was once closely pressed in an argument, but had evidently resolved to die hard. At length his antagonist, a virtuous engineer of the Smiles ideal, lost all patience at the irregular warfare of the Archdeacon. "Look here, sir," he exclaimed despairingly, "do you acknowledge that two and two make four?" "I am not prepared to make an admission of that importance," replied the Archdeacon, "till I have given the subject the maturest consideration. Sometimes it is supposed that they make twenty-two."

The Appetite of Young Chicks.

Many an amateur poultry raiser, astonished at the wonderful appetites of young chicks, has asked the question which makes the little things eat so much? A correspondent answers in an exchange: It is because more nourishment is required to supply feathers than flesh or hair. The heat of the blood is five degrees greater than that of man, and the rapidity of digestion is in a ratio proportionate to the greater energy of their movements. As it has been tersely stated, "Their life engine works under high pressure, and demands much fuel." Accurate experiments by Prof. Treadwell, Cambridge, show that those species of birds that are fed in the nest will, during the six weeks of their growth, eat 41 per cent. more than their own weight of insects in a day. A pair of old robins, with the usual number of four young ones would require, according to the consumption of this bird, two hundred and fifty worms, or their equivalent in insects, or other food, daily.

HOW THE ALABAMA SUNK.

The Victory of the Kearsarge—A Bloody Scene on the Confederate Cruiser's Deck.

The Kearsarge steamed away to seaward until about nine or ten miles from the breakwater, when she veered and headed direct for the Alabama. That stopped the chaff the boys had been passing around and each one seemed to realize at last that this was to be no child's play. By this time about three miles intervened between the belligerents, which was rapidly being decreased. When within about a mile and a quarter from the Kearsarge the Alabama veered, presenting her starboard broadside, and opened the ball by firing her 110-pounder rifle pivot at an elevation of 2,000 yards' range, followed almost simultaneously by a whole broadside. The guns were worked and served with the utmost rapidity, and in a few minutes another broadside was poured in when the Kearsarge, being by this time about 800 yards distant presented her starboard broadside, and the firing became general. The spirit of carnage had begun to animate the crew, and the desire to be upper dog in the fight stirred each man to emulation. A few broadsides passed, when the Kearsarge, under full head of steam, forged ahead, steering so as to pass the Alabama's stern and rake her fore and aft, and also got between her and the shore. This manoeuvre was checked by a port helm, causing both vessels to move in a circle revolving around a common centre distant from each other about five or six hundred yards. The firing, meantime, continued with unabated vigor. The steady directness of the fire from the Kearsarge now began to be felt. The 11-inch shells poured into the ill-fated Alabama with sickening regularity and precision, dealing death and destruction on every hand. Guns were dismounted and their crews decimated by a single shot. Early in the action a shell struck the blade of the fan, breaking it short off and injuring the rudder. Another landed in the engine-room and tore things all to pieces, damaging the machinery, making a hole in the boiler and flooding the stoke-hole with boiling water.

On the deck the prospect was no more cheering. Men dropped dead, cut in twain by shot or shell, the groans of the wounded, stuck by the crashing and flying splinters, mingled with the muttered curses of the seamen and the hoarse orders of gunners and officers. At 12:30, Mr. Kell had his foretop-sails hoisted and attempted to stand toward shore, distant by this time about five miles. This was prevented by her opponent ranging up and pouring in a raking fire of shot or shell. Word was passed almost immediately that the vessel was sinking, whereupon a flag of truce was suspended from the quarter and the new officer, Sinclair, sent in a boat to surrender the vessel. During his absence the whale boat, dingy and three cutters were launched, and preparations made to desert the doomed vessel. Before they could be perfected however, she settled by the stern, her head rising out of the water. The mainmast, which had been already badly shattered by the firing, went by the board, and in a few seconds sufficed to engulf the shattered bulk of the late scourge of the sea. Struggling in the vortex were many of her crew, and the efforts of Sinclair, who had received permission from Captain Winslow to return and rescue the survivors were soon ably seconded by the boats of the Deerhound two cutters from the Kearsarge and the two French pilot boats, who were near the spot. The whale boat and dingy of the Alabama, with the boats of the Deerhound, well freighted, made quickly for the yacht, which immediately steamed to the north bearing safely away from captivity Captain Semmes and a majority of his "best bovers," while the cutters transferred their cargoes to the Kearsarge. One pilot boat turned over those she had rescued to the same sheltering care, while the other one stood in for shore, and aided in the escape of those who were lucky enough to get on board of her.

The Kearsarge picked up and had transferred to her decks a total of five officers sixty-three men and one dead body. Semmes, on board of the Deerhound, reached Southampton with thirteen of his officers. The pilot boat landed quite a number, and the killed and drowned were never accounted for. [Philadelphia Times.]

Watch the Reading for the Children.

Parents should give their children the advantage of a good healthy library, and furnish them with papers that respect the moral. Select the matter for your children. Take time, since the whole future of your son or daughter may be directly in the literature you place before them. The writer knows of cases that came under his own observation which resulted in great harm, and all the result of reading filthy. You are interested in the future of your child—take care of the reading matter. There is nothing more injurious to the development of the mind and the formation of character in young people than for them to form the habit of reading corrupt literature. It is in such books that the false side of life is given to the young, and they will get the idea that life is not the great, earnest battle which each must fight for himself. It is from what we read that we derive many of our thoughts and ideas, which influence many of our deeds and actions in after life. If our reading is pure, the thoughts obtained will likewise be pure; but if it is degrading in its nature it will pull us down to a level with itself.

As the result of the strong pressure brought to bear upon the Sultan by England, he is understood to have consented to commute the sentence passed upon the alleged murderers of Abdul Aziz to banishment to some remote part of his dominions.

During a trial for assault in Arkansas, a rock, a rail, an ax-handle, a knife and a shot-gun were exhibited as "the instrument with which the deed was done. It was also shown the assaulted man defended himself with a revolver, a scythe, a pitchfork, a chisel, a hand saw, a flail and a cross dog. The jury decided that they'd have given $5 apiece to have seen the fight.

Short vs. Long Wool.

Long combing woolled sheep, such as Leicester and Cotswold, have hitherto been "all the rage." Nothing was too coarse or too long, until certain sections are now fairly cursed with wool so coarse as to be fit for little else than carpets. In the desire for heavy mutton the question of wool has been overlooked. Now the importance of the mutton feature of the question. Our farmers are conservative, &c., they don't like the trouble of changing; but let them once be convinced that there is money in it, and they should not be slow to change. We submit the following for their consideration:

On the one hand, in breeding Leicester and Cotswold, we have: Heavy coarse mutton. Low priced. Wool. High priced.

On the other, in breeding Southdowns, we have: Light, fine flavored mutton. High priced. Fine wool.

In explanation—Coarse wool is now worth 20c to 23c per lb, while for Southdown 30c, can easily be had. In fact, English Southdown fleece wool is now selling up 34c to our Canadian manufacturers. As for the mutton, there has been very little offered for sale; but that little is quickly picked up at a considerable advance over ordinary mutton. For city retail trade there is no comparison in their quality and flavor. For export the demand has been for big fat sheep. There are no Southdown sheep for sale for that purpose, but in view of the fancy price of good Southdown mutton in England, it is reasonable to suppose that Canada Southdowns would fetch as good a price. In addition to the foregoing there is to be considered the fact that about three Southdown sheep can be fed and kept in proper condition at the same expense for food and room as two Cotswolds. We would not have it understood that we advocate the breeding of Southdowns exclusively. The Oxford Down or some cross might suit better—say Southdown and Leicester. That question is for breeders to decide. But there seems reason to conclude that these big combing-woolled sheep have seen their day, and from an economic point of view it appears in every way desirable that it should be so. Instead of growing wool suitable only for export, and importing wool for manufacturing purposes, let us grow wool that we can use at home—such wool as we will always have a home market for, in spite of any capricious change of fashion.

DEAN STANLEY'S DEATH.

A Brief Sketch of His Life's Labor.

London, July 18.—Dean Stanley died to day aged 66 years. He was educated under Dr. Arnold, at Rugby, and commenced a distinguished career at Oxford, by obtaining a scholarship at Balliol College, and shortly after the Newdigate prize for his English poem "The Gipsies." After gaining the Ireland scholarship, he took a First Class in Classics in 1837, gained the Latin Essay prize in 1839, and the English Essay and Theological prizes in 1840, when he was elected a Fellow of University College. He was for twelve years Tutor of this College, was Select Preacher in 1845-6; Secretary of the Oxford University Commission, 1850-52; Canon of Canterbury from 1851 till 1858, Regius Professor of Ecclesiastical History at Oxford, and Canon of Christ Church and Chaplain to the Bishop of London from 1855 till 1863, when he became Dean of Westminster. He received the degree of L. D. from the University of St. Andrews, in Feb., 1871; took part in the proceedings of the "Old Catholic" Congress held at Cologne, in Sept., 1872; was elected one of the Select Preachers at Oxford by 349 votes against 287, Dec. 11, 1872; and was installed as Lord Rector of the University of St. Andrews March 31, 1875. Dr. Stanley first became known to the literary world by his admirable "Life of Dr. Arnold," published in 1844. It was followed by "Stories and Essays on the Apostolic Age," 1846; "Memoir of Bishop Stanley," 1851; "The Epistles to the Corinthians," 1854; "Historical Memorials of Canterbury," 1854, 6th ed. 1872; "Sinai and Palestine in connection with their History," 1855; "Sermons on the Unity of Evangelical and Apostolic Teaching," 1859; Sermons on various subjects preached before the University of Oxford, in 1860-3; "Lectures on the History of the Eastern Church," "Sermons preached in the East," with appendix on his second visit to Palestine with H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, 1862; "Letter to the Bishop of London on Subscription," and lectures on the History of the Jewish Church, 2 vols., in 1863-65; "Encouragements of Ordination," and "Reasonable, Holy, and Living Sacrifice," a Sermon, 1864; "Creation of Man; a Sermon," 1865; and "Sermon; Dedication of Westminster Abbey, 800th Anniversary," 1866; "Historical Memorials of Westminster Abbey," 1867; "The Three Irish Churches; an Historical Address," 1870; "The Athanasian Creed; with a preface on the general recommendations of the Ritual Commission," 1871; "Lectures on the history of the Church of Scotland," 1872; and "Sermons and Essays on the Apostolic Age," 1874. He has contributed various articles to reviews and magazines, and many papers to Dr. Smith's "Dictionary of Classical Biography," and Dictionary of the Bible, to the "Transactions of the Archaeological Institute," and to the "Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews." The Established Church has, in the demise of Dean Stanley, lost one of her brightest jewels, and one whose place it will be hard indeed to fill. He will be buried beside his wife in Westminster Abbey. The Dean remained in a semi-unconscious condition some time before his death. The News says no living divine will be more deeply regretted or more widely missed than the Dean.

ROAD AGENTS.

An Account of the Rock Island Train Robbery.

The account of the daring train robbery of the Rock Island road is supplied by the following details given by E. E. Martin, of Kansas City, a passenger and eye witness of the dreadful affair.—The train left Kansas City at 6.30 last evening, and consisted of six cars, well filled with passengers, including a sleeping coach. Supper was furnished at the regular station, and no event occurred to excite the suspicion of the passengers or trainmen until Winston was reached, which was at 9.30 o'clock. At that station got on the train with handkerchiefs tied about their faces so as to partially conceal their features. The first intimation that the passengers received that there was anything wrong was the cry, "All aboard," which appeared to be a signal. At that instant the four men, as well as several others who had come from Kansas City and Cameron, made a rush for the engine and for Conductor Charlie Westfall. Firing was heard in the front cars, as well as on the engine, and then the train was put in motion at forty miles per hour. On giving the signal two of the men made for the first coach, where the conductor was standing. One of the men went up to the conductor and pointing a pistol at him said:—"YOU ARE THE MAN I WANT."

After saying this the robber fired his pistol, the ball striking Westfall in the arm, but did not prove fatal. Westfall attempted to run, and as he did so the robber fired twice at him. Westfall reached the platform. Then the second robber fired a shot, which killed him instantly. The conductor fell dead on the platform. He was wounded in several places, but the last shot took effect in the brain, producing almost instant death. Three of the robbers started for the engine with the intention of shooting the engineer and taking possession of the engine. The engineer seemed to have apprehended that there was danger, as on the approach of the trio he started back on the engine and secreted himself in the tender. A stonemason, by the name of Miller, came forward from the baggage car while the shooting was in progress. The robbers and shot him, the ball taking effect in his heart. Charley Murray, express messenger, was also visited by some of the robbers. He was knocked over the head and made to deliver the keys of the safe. The robbers ransacked the safe and secured $500 in money and $300 in valuables, and Government bonds to the amount of $1,000. Murray was threatened with instant death if he concealed anything, but was permitted to live on informing them that all his valuables were in the safe. The brakeman on duty, whose name could not be ascertained, as soon as he learned of the murder of the conductor, rushed through the train and informed the passengers that an effort would be made to rob them. As soon as this had been accomplished, the brakeman started forward, and when in the second coach the robbers entered both doors.

WITH PISTOLS IN THEIR HANDS,

demanding money; the brakeman pulled the cord attached to the air brake, and soon afterwards the train stopped. The men jumped off from the cars and made for the woods. Mr. Martin stated that not more than fifteen minutes elapsed from the time of leaving Winston till the robbers jumped from the cars and made themselves scarce. The sleeping-car porter locked himself up the state-room of the sleeper and did not make himself visible until the train was near Washington. Conductor Westfall, who was killed, lives at Wellon, where his remains were laid. The robbers numbered thirteen, and only two of them had handkerchiefs tied about their faces.

A CANADIAN STORY.

John Broadfoot, of Brussels, Ont., was on the train robbed at Winston. He made his exit from the smoking-car with the conductor. He told a Chicago reporter that after he had been shot at once, he lowered his head and butted the robber who had fired, nearly knocking him off his feet. He and Westfall in their flight reached the rear door at the same instant, and the conductor fell upon the platform and he stumbled over him. The Steamer City of Winnipeg Burned to the Water's Edge.

Duluth, July 19.—The steamer City of Winnipeg was burned at two o'clock this morning at her dock here. She is valued at $100,000, and is insured for $30,000 in the Western, Phoenix and Royal Canadian Companies. Captain Kennedy, of Toronto, was in charge.

The Kolapore Cup.

WIMELSON, July 20.—In the shooting for the Kolapore cup between Canada and England, to-day, Canada won by 20 points.

Across at Last.

BUFFALO, July 20.—Detective Wm. A. Phillips, of the District Attorney's office, returned last night from Chatham, having in charge A. W. Brown, the man indicted for the murder of Miss McCrea, of that place, in this city in June, 1880. The prisoner was lodged in jail. He was duly extradited in accordance with the treaty between the United States and Canada, and the officer took with him the formal extradition document issued by the President. Brown's trial will come on during the September sitting of the Court.

New York, July 18.—A highwayman at Harlem last evening robbed a young lady of a gold watch. Two elegantly dressed young ladies passing by, seized the robber, and despite his desperate struggles, held him till a policeman arrived.

CANADIAN NEWS.

G. Forbes sold his farm, of 100 acres in Ontario, for $4,000, for the sum of $4,000 last week. The farm is a good one.

During a thunderstorm last week the dwelling house of Galtier Fox, Zurich, was struck by lightning. The family had a narrow escape, and some of them were slightly hurt. The house and attached kitchen were badly wrecked.

Mrs. Steen, an old lady of Seaford, died there last week, aged 80 years. She was one of the pioneers, having emigrated from the county of Fermanagh in 1842. She was the mother of deputy reeve Beattie.

PUTTING DOWN FRAUD.—The Minister of Education has issued a circular containing the following: Inspectors and other presiding examiners at departmental examinations, both for high school entrance and the intermediate, will be especially careful in preventing any irregularities or improper practices on the part of any candidate. If, after so many warnings, any candidate shall be found guilty of any improper practices at any of these examinations, the punishment will be disqualification in perpetuo.

One of the great industries of British Columbia is salmon catching. Men are employed day and night in catching and canning salmon. There are evidences of a large trade being done this season. Eight canneries expect to have eight million tins of salmon for export, the price ranging from 17c to 20c per tin. Most of the work, it appears, is done by Chinamen, as they work for about half the wages required by white men and are well up in the canning business. They seem to be able to apply themselves to almost anything, and can pick up a trade with great readiness.

MORRIS OUTDOZE.—James Purvis, of lot 16, concession 6, Morris, has a hen that has taken possession of three young kittens and will not allow them to come near them. If the kittens attempt to approach the hen, she will raise her wings. Mr. Thos. D. Ryan, of Seaford, has a cat that goes with his hens continually and protects them, and in the morning when the hens are fed his cat comes along and partakes of the feast, picking up oats and peas with the smartest of them.—Mr. Charles Woods, of this town says he has a cat that can crawl like a rooster and bark like a dog. Squire Peters of London has done his duty in sending Parish and Rankin to the assizes for trial. The evidence was quite strong enough to justify him in doing so, and the country would not have been satisfied with anything else. Parish and Rankin will receive a fair trial, and whether they are acquitted or found guilty the trial cannot fail to compare favorably with the trial of the late season. What solitary step has been taken to prevent the overcrowding of vessels and the recurrence of such dire accidents as will for many years make the Queen's birthday a sad, memorable day in London?

Port Hope, Ont., July, 18.—The schooner Flora Emma was stripped of her canvas and a portion of her masts during the gale last Saturday afternoon. The vessel was proceeding from Oswego to Oshawa, loaded with coal, and when off Port Britain, three miles west of Port Hope, she was struck by a heavy gust of wind, carrying off the jibboom first, then the foremast, followed quickly by the mainmast, the main topmast and mainmast head, ropes and everything coming tumbling down, leaving the vessel a wreck. The mate, James Rankin, was the only one who escaped. The jib-topmast had been felled, and the sailors were just hauling in the gale-topmast when the gale struck the vessel. As the wind was blowing north-west, the vessel drifted down the lake until a Port Hope tug went to the rescue of the crew, when the wreck was brought into Port Hope harbor. It will cost about $1,000 to repair the damage. A complete set of new masts will have to be put in. The damage is covered by insurance.

Joseph Henderson was an old and respected farmer, who for years lived on a farm three miles from the town of Stratford. He was once in very good circumstances, being the owner of a large farm in the township of Elice. Lately through pecuniary difficulties he became considerably depressed in spirits. His friends, however, did not pay much attention to him, as they knew what was on his mind. On Saturday, about noon, the report of a pistol was heard in Mr. Henderson's room. The inmates of the house rushed to the apartment, when to their horror they discovered the old man lying on his back with a pistol in his hand, blood streaming from a wound in his abdomen. A physician was summoned, but Henderson was beyond the power of earthly assistance, and died in less than two hours. Deceased was much respected by all who knew him, and his rash act has occasioned a feeling of melancholy in the neighborhood.

The latest "sea serpent" story comes from Lake Simcoe, and is told by Mr. Jean G. Canada, Dominion Land Surveyor. A day or two ago he was engaged with an assistant examining the swamp bordering on Lake Simcoe, on the boundary of the townships between South Orillia and Oro. They were in a boat and were moving slowly along when their attention was attracted by a peculiar puffing sound similar to that produced by the escape of steam from the exhaust pipe of an engine. Mr. Canada remarked that he thought that was a strange place to have a mill, upon which his companion rejoined that the sound came from the cars on the railway. But it seems both gentlemen were wide of the mark, for in a few seconds they saw emerging from the rushes an extraordinary creature, having a head as large as that of an adult human being, and a body resembling a serpent and increasing in thickness downward. It seemed frightened and made a peculiar puffing sound like a small engine. After going out into deep water it stopped for a short time, and with the cessation of locomotion there was an end to the puffing noise already referred to. Mr. Canada and his companion propelled their boat forward a short distance to have a better view of the creature, upon which the puffing recommenced more vigorously than before, and it moved off at the rate of about fifteen miles an hour. It carried its head about three feet out of the water as it went.

A DEBTOR OVERHAULED.—R. P. McAllan, an Orangeville dry goods merchant who levanted in April last, leaving numerous creditors to mourn his loss, has been arrested and lodged in Chicago jail. He owes about $15,000, and his creditors will have the privilege of keeping him there as long as they pay his board.

On Tuesday, as a little nine-year-old son of Mr. Wm. Cross, of Euphemia, was in the field shaking hay, he came in contact with the knife of the mower, badly cutting one foot and almost severing the other one. Small hopes are entertained of saving his foot, and many think he will lose his life.

A little child, four years of age, son of Mr. John Garand, of Garden Island, met with a sad accident on Tuesday. Its mother was boiling soap, and left the pot to attend to other duties, when the little fellow caught hold of it and tipped the contents upon himself, scalding him dreadfully. Fears are entertained that he cannot survive.

The famous war steamer Charybdis, the nucleus of Canada's fleet, has arrived at North Sydney, C. B., after a somewhat lengthened voyage across the Atlantic. She only used steam as an auxiliary, but her supply of coal has given out, and she had to put into North Sydney. She will probably reach St. John before the end of the month.

As Mr. Garbet, of Gorrie, was attending the wedding of Miss Smith last week and also accompanied them to Brussels, on returning he had the misfortune to lose one of his horses a short distance from Brussels. It dropped dead on the road, leaving him to drive home with a double bruggy and one horse. Mr. Garbet refused $150 for the horse a short time ago.

The Oka church authorities are not disposed to have any new comers upon their confines, if they can help it. Mr. W. Drysdale and some friends intend an excursion to Oka shortly with a view to meeting the Indians and enjoying a day's outing. The owner of the Ottawa River Navigation Company's boats refused to land any excursionists unless the priestly sanction was given.

Miss Susan and Louise Roether, two of the daughters of the worthy tailor of the county of Bruce, and Miss Annie McVicar, of Walkerton, undertook to walk from Walkerton to Port Elgin for a wager, a distance of thirty miles, in one day, and accomplished the feat in after four hours, leaving Walkerton before six p.m.

It is stated that as Guitau's punishment would be utterly inadequate to the offence should the President survive, the District Attorney is determined to take all possible precautions authorized by law to secure for the assassin the greatest possible punishment, and will therefore hold him in close confinement, awaiting the result of the President's injury for a year and one day before having the culprit arraigned.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The District Attorney, to-day, addressed the following letter to the warden of the jail: "It will be necessary to retain Guitau in custody for future action by authorities. I desire you to place him on one side of the jail, where there are no other prisoners, and where means of escape are impossible; that he be not permitted to hold conversation with any of the guards and be rigorously excluded from receiving or sending any communications except those delivered by me or received by my direction. I desire these directions rigidly executed."

Eight hundred Mormons were, on Thursday last, landed at Castle Garden, en route to Utah. They are ignorant and poor, and had been gathered up by Mormon missionaries in Europe, chiefly in the Scandinavian countries. The phenomenon of Mormonism is one that the United States have not yet found a way to deal with, and it is not likely to become more easily settled by the acquisition of such large numbers of converts.
