CHAPTER I

BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

Then had come the time of her first appearance on the stage. It is the fashion nowadays for an actor to begin at the top of the ladder—and alas! how often he works downward! Jeffreys chose that the beautiful girl whom he had trained so carefully should begin at the "bottom."

"Learn to walk the stage, and deliver a simple message, that is difficult enough at first, easy as it seems," he had said.

And Doris put on cotton frocks and white caps and played servant-maids for a time. From them she rose to young-lady parts—always easy, unpretentious ones, and always in the country theatres.

"When we take London it shall be by storm," he said.

And so he went from one country town to another, and the young actress grew more familiar with her part each month, and the critics began to notice her, and to praise not only her beauty but her talent.

And all this time Doris, even in the gayest surroundings of her daily life, remained unsophisticated and natural. Jeffrey watched over her as jealously as a father could have done.

He could not prevent admiring her, but he kept the love-letter, the neat little cases of jewellery from her; and Doris—Doris Marlowe, the actress—was as ignorant and unconscious of the wickedness of the world as the daughter of a country rector.

And as ignorant and innocent of love, save the love she had for the strange, grim being who had lavished so much on her.

She had real love in books, had acted it on the stage; but it was as one who speaks a language he does not understand, and who marvels at the effect his words have upon his initiated hearers.

Once a young actress, who had played lovers' parts with her during a season, had managed to speak with her alone—it was during the "wait" between acts—and in faltering accents had tried to tell her that he had dared to fall in love with the beautiful being so jealously guarded by the dragon. Doris had listened for a moment or two, with her lovely eyes wide open, with puzzled astonishment, then she said:

"Oh, please don't go on! I thought it was a part of the play," and a smile flashed over her face.

The young fellow grew black, and as he passed her to go on the stage, muttered:

"Heartless!"

But Doris was not heartless. She had smiled because her heart lay too deep for him to touch; because, like the Sleeping Beauty, it was waiting for the coming prince who should wake it into life and love, and the young actor was not that prince.

Doris sat thinking of the past, quite lost, until the striking of a church clock recalled her to the fact that a certain young lady was to play Juliet to-morrow, and that the aforesaid young lady had come out into the field to study it!

She took up the book with a sigh. "I wish I could see someone play it," she thought; and then there flashed into her mind the memory of one night Jeffrey had taken her to Drury Lane to see a famous actress in the part; but they did not see after all, for during the first act there had been one of those slight but unmistakable movements in the audience which announce the entrance of someone of importance.

Doris looked round, with the rest, and saw some persons come into a box on the grand tier. Among them was an old gentleman, tall and thin, with a remarkably distinguished presence. He wore a blue ribbon across his waistcoat; but Doris had been attracted more by his face even than by the ribbon.

It was a handsome face; but there was something in it—a certain cold and pitiless hauteur—that seemed to strike a chill almost to Doris's heart. As he stood in front of the box, and looked around the house with an expression of contempt that was just too indolent to be sheer hatred, she met the hard, merciless eye and shuddered.

"Who is he, Jeffrey?" she asked, in a whisper, and touching his arm with a hand that trembled a little.

Jeffrey's rapt face had been fixed on the stage, but he turned and looked at the distinguished personage, and Doris remembered now the sudden pallor of his face, from which his glittering eyes had flashed like two spots of red fire set in white ashes.

The look vanished in a moment and he made no reply, and a few moments afterwards had said:

"It is too hot. Let us go."

Doris recalled the incident now, and wished they had stopped and seen the great actress, especially as Jeffrey had always afterwards avoided "Romeo and Juliet," as if the play had some painful association.

"I shall have to draw on Shakespeare alone for inspiration," she thought, looking at the brook. "But, ah! if only someone could only teach me to say that 'Good-night, good-night!' properly."

She was repeating the words in a dozen different tones, and shrugging her shoulders discontentedly over each, when suddenly there came another sound upon her ears besides that of her voice and the brook.

It was a dull thud, thud, on the meadow in front of her, and as it came nearer a voice broke out in a kind of accompaniment, a voice singing not unmusically:

"The maids of merry England,
The merry maids of England!"

There was a hedge on the other side of the brook, and Doris raised herself on her elbow and looked over. What she saw was a young man galloping across the meadow at a breakneck speed, which the horse seemed to enjoy as much as his rider.

Doris had never seen anyone ride like that, and she was too absorbed in the general spectacle to notice that the young man was singularly handsome, and that he made, as he sat lightly in the saddle, with the sunset rays turning the yellow of his moustache and hair to pure gold, a picture which Murillo might have painted and christened "Youth and Health."

She watched for a moment or two; then, thinking herself safe from observation behind her hedge, sank down again and took up her book.

But the thud, thud, and the "Maids of Merry England" came nearer and nearer. Then they stopped together, and a voice, speaking this time, said: "Hallo, old girl! Over with you!"

The next moment Doris saw horse and rider in the air, almost above her head, and the next the horse was on its knees, with its nose on the ground, and the rider lay stretched at her feet as if a hand from the blue sky had hurled him from his seat.

CHAPTER II

OVER THE FENCE.

It had all happened so suddenly that Doris sat for a moment staring at the motionless figure. Then the colour forsook her face, and she sprang with a cry, and looked round for help. There was not a moving thing in sight excepting the horse, who had picked himself up and was calmly, not to say contemptuously, grazing a few yards off.

Doris, trembling a little, knelt down and bent over the young man. His eyes were closed, and his face was white, and there was a thin streak of red trickling down his forehead.

A spasm ran through her heart as she looked, for the sudden dread had flashed across her mind that—he was dead.

"Oh, what shall I do?" she cried, and she sprang to her feet, aroused by the impulse to run for assistance; but the white, still face seemed to utter a voiceless appeal to her not to leave him, and she shuddered. No, she would not leave him.

She whipped out her handkerchief, and, running to the brook, dashed it into the water; then, kneeling down beside him, bathed his forehead shuddering a little as she saw that the thin streak of red came again as fast as she washed it away.

Presently she fancied that she saw a faint tremor upon the pale lips, and in her eagerness and anxiety she sank down upon the grass and drew his head upon her knee, and with faltering hands unfastened his collar. She did it in pure ignorance, but it happened to be exactly the right thing to do, and after a moment or two the young fellow shivered slightly, and, to Doris's unspeakable relief, opened his eyes. There was no sense in them for a spell, during which Doris noticed, in the way one notices trivial things in moments of deep anxiety, that they were handsome eyes, of a dark brown; and that the rest of the face was worthy of the eyes; and there flashed through her mind the half-formed thought that it would have been a pity for one so young and so good-looking to have died. Then a faint intelligence came into his upturned gaze, and he looked up into her great, pitying eyes with a strange look of bewilderment which gradually grew into a wondering admiration that brought a dash of colour to Doris's face.

"Where am I?" he said at last, and the voice that had sung "The Maids of Merry England" sounded strangely thin and feeble. "Am I—dead?"

It was a queer question. Did he think that it was an angel bending over him? A faint smile broke over Doris's anxious face, and one sprang up to his to meet it.

He tried to laugh and raise his head; but the laugh died away with suspicious abruptness and his head sank back.

"I—I beg your pardon!" he said. "I must have come an awful cropper. I—I feel as if I couldn't move!" and he made another effort.

"Oh, no, no," said Doris, anxiously: "do not try—yet. Oh, I am afraid you are very much hurt! Let me—"

She wiped his forehead again.

"If there were only someone else to help!" she exclaimed in a piteous voice.

"Don't don't! please don't you trouble about it," he said, pleadingly. "I shall be all right directly. It's ridiculous," he added, faintly, but endeavouring to laugh again. "I feel as if I'd got rusty hinges at the back of my neck."

His eyes closed for a moment, for, notwithstanding the laugh and his would-be light tone, he was in considerable pain; then he opened them again and let them rest upon her face.

"You're awfully good to me!" he said, slowly. "I feel ashamed—" He stopped, and a deep blush rose through the tan of his face, for he had suddenly realised that his head was in her lap—a fact of which Doris was perfectly unconscious. "Awfully good!" he repeated.

"Oh, don't talk!" she said, earnestly. "You—you are not able! Oh! if there was something I could do! Water! I will get you some to drink!" and she put his head—gently from her and rose.

"There's—there's a flask in my saddle-pocket, if I could only get at it," he said.

"I'll get it," she said, swiftly. "No, no," he said, quickly. "The—the horse, I mean, might—"

But she was off like the wind, and quite regardless of danger. The horse raised his head and looking at her, and apparently seemed to take in the gravity of the situation, for it stood quite still while she searched the saddle.

"It is not here!" she said, in a voice of distress.

"No, by Jove! I recollect! I left it at home," he faltered. "I'm so sorry! Don't—Please—don't trouble!" and he raised himself on his elbow.

She flew from the horse to the brook, then stopped short for a moment as she remembered that she had nothing to hold water. He watched her and understood.

"Never mind," he said. "But there must be some way!" she cried, distressfully.

"If—if you'll bring some in your hands," he suggested, the colour coming into his face.

She stooped and made a cup of her two palms, and turned to him carefully, fearful of spilling a drop.

Fashion Plates.

A GOOD HOME SERVICE-UNIFORM.

2675—This is a very practical set, comprising an apron dress that is neat and simple, and will be found comfortable to work in, and easy to develop. It has roomy pockets and a sleeve that may be finished in wrist or elbow length. The cap is a good protector for the head, against dust and grime. Gingham, khaki, seersucker, drill and lawn are good materials for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. Width at lower edge is about 2 1/2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A GOOD SPORTS BLOUSE.

2506—Washable satin, linen, drill, khaki, lawn, silk or wool Jersey cloth, gingham or taffeta could be used for this style. The closing is at the left side. Collar cuffs and pocket could be of contrasting material. In white handkerchief linen, facings or trimming of blue or pink would be attractive.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 4 yards of 36-inch material.

Mr. Kellaway revealed that the British losses of materials during the German offensive in the Spring of 1918 were 2,000 guns, 70,000 tons of ammunition, 600 machine guns, 200,000 rifles, trench mortars, and 200 tanks. Within a fortnight all had been replaced and in many cases with superior weapons. On the day the Hindenburg line was broken the British fired 943,000 shells more than were fired in the whole South African war. Fifteen thousand tons of poison gas were supplied in 1918 alone. The introduction of a cost estimate saved the country £300,000,000. The Ministry of Munitions alone, 7,344 contracts involving £102,000,000 were still running and disposed of the department had realized £130,000,000 to date. ### TO-DAY AT LEAST.

PARIS, June 27. Plans were completed by the Council of Four to-day for the signing of the peace treaty at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. No official statement however was issued by the Council.

ON THEIR WAY.

COBLENZ, June 27. Foreign Secretary Mueller and the Colonial Minister Bell, the two German peace delegates on their way to Versailles, passed through Cologne at 4.40 this morning, a telephone message from Cologne reported. A Berlin despatch to the Coblenz newspapers says that the German delegation understood that they are to sign the treaty at three o'clock Saturday afternoon.

WANT OF FOOD THE CAUSE.

HAMBURG, June 27. A commission of twelve now in control of the city has issued a statement saying the disorders are due to desperation on the part of "starving people forced to pay money for spoiled, uneatable, horrible food-stuffs."

SEWING NOTICE.

PARIS, June 27. Paris newspapers state the Council of Four has decided to call the attention of the Dutch Government to the grave consequences which might follow should the former German Crown Prince escape from Holland, and to ask that the watch over the former emperor be increased in vigilance.

MUNITIONS FACTS.

LONDON, June 27. (Via Reuter's)—F. G. Kellaway, Deputy Minister of Munitions, asked for approval of £185,000,000 for the year ending March 31, of which £90,000,000 is an aftermath of the war and the balance represents supplies to other departments of the Government including estimates for the War Office, Air Ministry, and local Government Board, the last mentioned being purchases for the Government Housing Scheme. The total expenditure of the Ministry of Munitions since its establishment was £1,834,507,941. Mr. Kellaway revealed that the British losses in materials during the German offensive in the Spring of 1918 were 1,000 guns, 70,000 tons of ammunition, 4,000 trench mortars, 200,000 rifles, 700 trench mortars, and 200 tanks. Yet within a fortnight all had been replaced and in many cases with superior weapons. On the day the Hindenburg line was broken the British fired 943,000 shells more than were fired in the whole South African war. Fifteen thousand tons of poison gas were supplied in 1918 alone. The introduction of a cost system saved the country £300,000,000. In the Ministry of Munitions alone, 7,344 contracts involving £102,000,000 were still running and disposals by the department had realized £130,000,000 to date. It was getting such good prices for the state that it was now accused of profiteering. Six hundred and fifty thousand pounds sterling had been realized from the sale of motor transports during the last three weeks.

A VICTORY FOR PADEREWSKI.

PARIS, June 27. The Council of Four has granted Poland permission to use General Haller's army or any of its other troops in restoring quiet to eastern Galicia and driving outlaws out of the country. This is regarded as a great victory for Paderewski.

COUNTER REVOLUTION PUT DOWN.

BERNE, June 27. The counter-revolution army movement in Hungary during which a monitor was seized by the anti-government forces, has been put down, according to advices to the Vienna correspondent Bureau from Bucharest.

ALL A JOKE.

THE HAGUE, June 27. The former German Crown Prince was still at his residence on the island of Wierington in Zuyder Zee this morning, it was officially announced this afternoon.

BACK TO THE LAND.

LONDON, June 26. "After peace is signed I will return to Germany to live on my estates in Silesia and perform my duties as a landowner," said the former German Crown Prince in an interview last week at Wehringen, according to a Brussels despatch to the Daily Mirror. The prince is also quoted as declaring that "East Prussia and Silesia will never consent to be governed by Poland. There will be another war in ten years."

AN UNWELCOME GUEST.

BERLIN, June 26. Former Emperor William is planning to speedily return to Germany before the Entente can demand his surrender from Holland according to Stuttgart despatches to the Neue Berliner See Zeitung. The despatch states that the Dutch government "thoroughly approves of his returning as the former emperor is an unwelcome guest and his presence in Holland is an increasing problem before that country."

A HEALTH TRIP.

GENEVA, June 26. Philip Scheidemann, former German Chancellor, arrived in Switzerland yesterday according to the National Zeitung of Basle. The Swiss Federal authorities have granted him permission to remain in the country for ten days on account of his health, it is said.

PREPARING ANOTHER REVOLUTION.

COPENHAGEN, June 27. Italian, German and Austrian Communists held a conference in Southern Tyrol a few days ago for the purpose of preparing for a revolution in Italy, says a despatch from Vienna.

The revolution was fixed for the middle of May.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, June 27. The establishment of self-government in Ireland within the British Empire is proposed in a manifesto issued to-day by the Irish Dominion League and signed by Sir Horace Plunkett and other Irishmen. The proposal, it is declared, is a great advance over any previous proposed solution for the Irish question except that the British connection is maintained. Under this plan Ireland would have virtually the same amount of Home Rule as if she were an independent republic. The manifesto points out the disadvantage to which Irish products would be exposed if Ireland was a republic, severed from the British Empire. Mention is made of a possible hostile tariff and it is said that such might be established. Irishmen are urged in the manifesto to unite and let the British Parliament and people know what they desire. The manifesto then outlines what the political status of Ireland would be under the new scheme.

CHINA WILL NOT SIGN TREATY.

PARIS, June 27. The Chinese delegation announced to-night that China would not sign the Peace Treaty with Germany because China would not be allowed to make reservations concerning the Province of Shantung, and also had been refused the privilege of making a declaration at the time of the signing of the treaty.

NOT A SIGNATORY.

PARIS, June 27. Marshal Foch, not being a delegate to the Peace Conference, will not sign the Peace Treaty. He will attend the ceremonies attending the signature, however, being seated with the French delegation.

CASUALTIES IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, June 26. The German Govt. troops ordered to Hamburg to suppress disorders there reached the suburbs of the city this morning. The casualties in the fighting are estimated to have been 20 killed and 150 to 200 wounded.

COST OF THE DOCUMENT.

PARIS, June 27. The original of the Treaty of Peace which will be signed by all the plenipotentiaries will be on Japanese parchment, according to L'Intransigeant. It will cost 15,000 francs ($3,000) to prepare the document.

By the President.

Further testimony comes from Catalonia that the big resolution of condemnation featured by the Advocate, denouncing Hon. J. G. Stone as a traitor to the Union, was the handwriting of the President. The following letter from a Union man is the proof:

Hon. J. G. Stone, Minister Marine & Fisheries, St. John's.

Dear Sir,—Regarding that resolution in the Advocate, Coaker sent that down in printed form last Saturday to Port Union. As usual he wrote it himself, and sent it to try and get it signed by all. As the paper stated, it was the largest number for the season which attended on Monday night. That is true, because we don't average 15 members to a meeting nor haven't for a year or longer. Several times we couldn't get enough to open. The crowd at the meeting was 70, and not one-fourth of them voted against you, and as they couldn't get enough to sign the paper, Garlie moved for a committee and friend Geo. D., with two or three others thought it was all right. Of course they know because Coaker said so, therefore it must be true, for certain. When I hear some of Coaker's circulars read it makes me laugh. We have quite a lot of schoolers here, but I notice the men from Bonavista Bay are not so much for Coaker any more. The only ones who are a little stiff are those who have their money in the company, and even some of them is not altogether satisfied, as two of them said to me they wished they had their money back and it would take a smarter man than Coaker to get it again. It will write more later. I remain, Yours very truly, Catalina, May 29, 1919.

Did Von Reuter Get Orders in Germany?

London, June 23.—Although reports have stated that six Germans were killed and ten wounded when the boats of the German fleet in Scapa Flow were fired upon subsequent to the scuttling of the German fleet, the Daily Mail says that others may have been drowned and that some may possibly have reached the Orkney Islands and have not as yet been reported.

The main force of the British fleet was absent exercising at sea when the German ships were sunk.

Only small drifters, small warships and patrolling aircraft being on guard over the interned enemy squadron. Admiral von Reuter, commander of the surrendered German fleet, says he issued an order to sink the ships, the Daily Mail adds, and did so because at the beginning of the war the German Emperor directed that no German warship should fall into the enemy's hands. He said that he believed, from newspaper reports that the armistice had been ended.

Visited Germany.

Admiral von Reuter visited Germany some weeks ago, it being understood at the time that the reason for his trip there was that he was ill, but he soon returned, and it is believed that at the time he circulated the order to sink the German ships by evading the censors or making signals to the various vessels, an act which the close proximity of the German ships made quite easy. The Mail quotes the Admiralty as denying that the German crews were periodically changed, and saying that the original crews remained on board the vessels. There were from 150 to 200 men on the big ships and from ten to twenty on board the destroyers. Therefore, there were nearly 5,000 in the water or in the ships' boats when the fleet was sunk. Fourteen hundred were landed by the British on Sunday at Nigg, Rosshire, on the northern shore of Cromarty Firth. They were placed in hutments and are being held under military guard.

Stately Fleet Doomed.

From the behaviour of the ships, according to the Mail, it was evident the sea valves had been opened and in a surprisingly short time the vessel sank and began to settle down. Every effort was made by the British naval craft to beach the sinking ships, and in the case of destroyers considerable success was achieved. By one o'clock in the afternoon, however, what an hour before had been a stately fleet riding calmly at anchor was an array of reeling, rocking battleships, the doom of which was written in their movements.

Here a destroyer would disappear amid a cloud of steam, and there a battleship would take her last plunge and disappear in a cloud of spray. One would settle by the stern and another would heel over until only the keel showed above the water. The Derfflinger, Hindenburg, Von der Tann, Moltke and Seydlitz settled down beside each other, the last named turning turtle as she filled with water. Her keel is still showing where she capsized.

The waters of Scapa flow were dotted with small boats full of men who had with dramatic suddenness, settled the question of disposition of the interned ships.

Our Artistic Stamps.

Newfoundland has long been noted for her ability to choose artistically designed postage stamps; and for the number of animals represented thereon. In my stamp-collecting school days, I have vivid recollections of the five cent blue stamp with a seal reposing on a cool looking block of ice. The latest stamp is in brown, and bears the head of a caribou. It is of the three cent variety, and should be seen in the collection of every youthful gatherer of stamps.—"Argus," in Morning Chronicle.

An interesting series of war commemorative stamps has been issued by Newfoundland. The device chosen for the issue is the design of the Colony, being the head of the caribou. Under the head in eight of the values is the inscription, "Trail of the Caribou" in a ribbon scroll littered with oak leaves, beneath which is engraved one of the battles recording the valor of Newfoundland regiment. For example the one cent stamp bears the inscription "Sivia Bay." This was received on an envelope containing a renewal to Rod and Gun from Mr. W. A. Selater, of St. John's, Newfoundland—Rod and Gun for June.

"As for shaving, well, when I get thru—ah—ah—it only takes three minutes—my face is as smooth and slick and comfortable as when the head barber used to go over it. When it comes to cleaning, all I do is simply put the blade under the tap and wipe it off. There's no taking the razor to pieces and messing around with parts. In fact the whole thing is so simple and easy, I wish I had had one long ago."

Newfoundland Methodist Conference.

CARBONEAR.
(Thursday).

The usual session of the Methodist Conference assembled at Carbonear, was held at 2:30 p.m., Thursday, June 20th, Dr. Curtis, ex-President, in the chair. After singing hymn 510, Scripture was read by Rev. H. Royle, then prayers were offered by Mr. J. A. Vatcher, J.P., and the Rev. W. T. D. Dunn.

The minutes of the last session were read and confirmed. After which the chairman welcomed Dr. Bond to the Presidential chair.

Dr. Bond in a brief and appropriate address thanked the Conference for conferring this honor upon him.

The business of the reports of the various Conference committees.

At 4:30 p.m. a delegation from the Woman's Missionary Society was received. The delegation consisted of eight ladies from the W. M. S., Newfoundland Branch. Mesdames Duff, Maddock and Robb took their seats on the Conference platform. Dr. Bond welcomed the delegation to the Conference and assured them a sympathetic hearing.

Mrs. J. Maddock, Superintendent of the Carbonear District, addressed the Conference.

"Honoured President, and members of the Newfoundland Conference, I deem it a great privilege to come before you this afternoon on behalf of the W. M. S. Each succeeding year of the Branch has been marked with success. Our work is not new to many of you. Here and there around our Dominion you will find what we familiarly call our W. M. S. These three letters stand for much to the women of our Island home. They mean so much to us that you will find where a society is once organized, the work very seldom dies out. It grips and grows into one's very being. But, alas, there are still so many of our women who know nothing of our work. We feel justly proud of our increase this year, which is $2,788.74 over last year, our total being $8,344.64. The objective this year asked for was 20 p.c. all around. We had 50 p.c. financial, but only 16 p.c. in membership. You may ask why is this? I may speak this afternoon from a District Superintendent's standpoint. We can do no work, form no societies to reach our women and young people, without the full cooperation of every minister in the Conference; just as our women need more vision of the great need of the One Billion of our heathen sisters yet unreached, so some of our ministers need more vision with regard to the work of the W. M. S.

Some pastors may think that a W. M. S. on their circuit would interfere with the General Missionary Fund. This is a huge mistake. The dollars our women give would never find their way into the General Fund. On every circuit in this Dominion where an auxiliary has been organized all other funds have gone up. At the recent Branch meeting held at George Street Church, the Rev. Dr. Curtis said, during his remarks, that the large increase this year was largely due to the W. M. S. In this District alone we have added $1200.00 to the General Fund, and $705.00 to the W. M. S.

Four years ago when we started to walk alone, we had 19 auxiliaries, and 44 Circles and Bands; to-day we have 21 auxiliaries and 47 Circles and Bands. This is not good enough. I am going to ask every pastor here, that when a District Superintendent writes you, or comes your way, give them your help and sympathy. They need it. Do not tell them that there is no room for a W. M. S., that you have too many other interests. Pause and think of the help it will be to your Circuit. It is not only a Missionary Society, it is an educative society. It has done more for our women and girls than anything that has ever come to us. During the coming year I trust our work will grow and widen so that when this year's record is written and the books are closed we shall be able to report 50 p.c. in membership as well as finance.

Mrs. R. Duff in presenting the report of the work of the W. M. S. for the year 1918-19, said we do so with deep thankfulness to our Heavenly Father, because of the wonderful results that the report shows. Our hearts were thrilled when at the Branch meetings held a few weeks ago at George Street Church, St. John's, the District Superintendents, Corresponding Secretaries and Treasurer of the Society told the story of a year—flowing with painstaking, devoted service, and sacrificial giving.

Last autumn the objective, set by the Board of Management was 20 p.c. increase in membership; 20 p.c. increase in funds. Our increase in membership shows 16 p.m. The auxiliary membership totals 1230—175 increase, or 16 p.c. Circles and Bands 5,000—

Increase 452, or 18 p.c. Grand total 4,236, increase 637, or 16 p.c.

The Treasurer's report is very gratifying:—

By this it can be seen that in Newfoundland we have many women of vision. Here are a few comments on individual societies from the Corresponding Secretary's report. Cochrane Street raises the most money. Britannia went over 100 p.c. Twillingate South has the largest individual giving. George Street the largest Easter offering. Fortune the largest attendance at its monthly meetings. Gower Street the largest membership. Lower Island Cove the next. It is a stormy sea that keeps Burn sisters from a meeting. At Georges Brook there are 21 intercessors—five of them life members.

Two new auxiliaries have been organized—one at Garnish and one at Freshwater, which bids fair to become our star societies.

Where our work is meeting with success it without doubt owes much to the unselfish support given by the pastors, who back up by word and deed the efforts of our women. One pastor speaking at a Branch meeting from a 20 years experience, said "I found that where there was a W. M. S. he found women of vision, of strength, of courage." Another said the increases in the funds of the General Board were due to the help of the W. M. S. We crave the prayerful support of our pastors, and especially those on the circuits, for our Board. The objective set for 1920 is 20—20—20, meaning a 20 p.c. increase in membership, 20 p.c. in funds, and 20 new missionaries.

Let me read to you an extract from a letter sent to the Branch by our President, Mrs. Ross.

"To my mind there should go out from this executive a ringing challenge to the women of Methodism to enter heartily into the great Forward Movement contemplated by the Church during the next five years. They could not find any better way than through the W. M. S. with its Home and Foreign activities touching life at every point.

It ought to be clear to every one that a Christian family life, the church of God, a nation, cannot be built on the foundation of educated men and ignorant women. There must be equal educational advantages for girls and boys as well as equality of Christian teaching. The church will fail to reach its objective, if the women, not only of the W. M. S., but of the whole church, do not untiringly determine to do their full share in meeting the amazing opportunities thrust upon the missionary staff in every field.

Could there be a better plan to reach our goal than that of last year, through Prayer, Study and Stewardship, with a definite aim in membership and money?"

There are many places along our bays and shores where as yet our work has not a foothold. "Where there is no vision the people perish," we are told, and from our own experience we know that there is nothing which can widen the vision, or develop the soul as the work of woman for woman and little children. What greater motto is there to broaden and enrich than our—"Pray, Study, Give!"

What about the Newfoundland Branch for 1919-20, was asked by our Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Lindsay, in the closing words of her report? "Are we faint-hearted? Nay; let us use the words of our revered President, Mrs. Ross, "No; we are just getting breath for a greater effort."

Mr. Mews then moved that the Conference tender its profound gratitude to the Ladies of the W. M. S. for the most excellent and educative addresses. I have, said Mr. Mews, made a special study of the Society, and there are three facts that I wish to mention:

(1) That there is no opposition from the General Board of Missions to the work of the W. M. S. But that that Society is doing its very best to cooperate with the W. M. S. in its glorious work. (2) The W. M. S. is an educative force. This truth is established by the fact that the General Board of Missions gives 20 p.c. of its increase to the W. M. S. (3) That if we are going as a church and a conference to measure up to our responsibility in the five years drive to canvass the Methodist people of Canada and Newfoundland for $8,000,000.00, we must seek the aid and hearty cooperation of the W. M. S.

The motion was ably seconded by Dr. James, who had the pleasure of founding the first auxiliary of the W. M. S. in St. John's.

Dr. Fenwick and Dr. Curtis spoke very highly of the work of the Society.

The afternoon session of the conference thus closed with the Benediction. J. A. W.

(FRIDAY.)

The usual session of the annual Conference was held in the Church at 9:30 a.m. Friday, June 27th, Dr. Bond in the chair.

The meeting opened by Hymn 465, and after reading of the Scripture by the Rev. H. Royle, prayer was offered by Roseworthy. Minutes of the previous session were read and confirmed.

The Rev. Chas. A. Manning, B.A., Secretary of the General Missionary Society was introduced to the Conference by the Rev. Dr. Fenwick.

Then the Rev. W. DesBarres, B.A., D.D., of Sackville University, was introduced to the Conference by the Rev. H. Royle.

The Conference was delighted to receive the Rev. Dr. Chown, General Supt. of the Methodist Church of Canada and Newfoundland. The General Supt., in the course of a very thrilling and soul-inspiring address said that he was happy to be here. We are Soldiers of the Cross, and co-workers with God. When I crossed the ocean as chaplain in the Olympic early in the war, there were 6,000 soldiers on board. Some of them belonged to Nfld. I shall never forget how in the midst of the grave submarine dangers, they sang some of the old familiar hymns, such as "I fear no foe with Thee at hand to bless." I have just come from the B. C. Conference, staying only two days at Toronto on my way here. Let me say here that we are passing through a grave crisis. In the west there is being carried on what is called a sympathy strike. I am sorry to say that as a church we have been drawn into it. One of our ministers has left us and become a labor leader; another has resigned from our ministry owing to statements made by him contrary to the Decalogue. When the General Conference last year passed the resolution advocating co-operation instead of economic competition, we thought that there would be peace. Nevertheless we believe that the time has come in the history of the world when the principle of the golden rule should regulate human relationships in every walk of life.

Dr. Chown then spoke of Church Union, which subject is being keenly discussed throughout the whole Christian world. We are looking forward to the day when all the Christian churches shall be one. We rejoice in the fact that some approaches from the other Christian churches have been made; yet while we are quite prepared for Union and will endeavor to hasten that day, yet we are not prepared to throw away some of the vital principles of our beloved Methodism.

The General Supt. then spoke on the action of the Methodist Church on Prohibition. Let this Dominion thank God for the pronounced stand taken by our church on this vital question. It is true that the Methodist Church has never been hated as it is to-day, because it has never been feared as much as it is now. The truth is that it stands for the abolition of every thing that humiliates man. Brethren we are living in a great day, and the only way we can be faithful to the God-given tasks, is to consecrate ourselves to the service of humanity.

The devotional half hour of the Conference took the form of a Thanksgiving Service, led by the Rev. Dr. Curtis. Hymn 299 was sung, then Prof. DesBarres led in prayer. Dr. Curtis then read the Thanksgiving Resolution. The Conference places on record an expression of profound gratitude to the Great Head of the Church for the ever-growing evidence of wide-spread interest in and devotion to the cause of Christian Missions. This evidence indeed is not derived from one country merely, or any single religious denomination, but appears to be almost as widespread as the Christian Church. Perhaps nowhere, however, do we find clearer indications of a great missionary impulse than in our own beloved Methodism. If we turn to the United States of America we behold in the Methodist church a really wonderful exhibition of missionary zeal and enthusiasm as shown by the large number of people pledged to prayer for the extension of the Kingdom of Christ in the earth, and the vast sums of money promised for this ob-

TRYING TO MISTAKE... If people tried to understand each other they would often quarrel. But the trouble is when some one starts a quarrel, it seems as if it were trying to understand each other they try not to understand each other. They each take a perverse pleasure in twisting anything that each other says into the most ugly and unworthy meanings. Even when the person is one whom they love and ordinarily see in a rosy light. Or, perhaps, I should say, especially when the person is someone whom they love. "For to be wrath with one we love doth work like madness in the veins."

Quarrels Put Us In A Fever. Indeed quarrels between lovers and married people often seem to make a sort of fever, a kind of hysteria take temporary possession of the brains of both.

Each, though ordinarily kind, seeks out the tender spot in the other's armor through which he knows he can most deeply wound.

Each broods over what the other says, exaggerating all the bad and deliberately forgetting the good.

Each mentally tries to make the other out a monster of cruelty and unkindness and himself or herself a terribly abused and unfortunate being.

They Are Surprised At Themselves.

After the fever passes they look back with shame and surprise at the state of mind in which they have been and wonder that any such madness (of course, there are big causes as but the cause of the average quarrel often seems a pin prick in retrospect) should have been able to throw them into such excitement and misery.

Greatest Triumph of the Age!

HALIFAX, June 28th.—Flash just received says Peace Treaty has been signed.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

SATURDAY, June 28, 1919.

Justice With Peace.

That the Peace Terms, which Germany is expected to sign to-day, have been drawn up by the Allied statesmen with a due regard to the justice of the claims of the countries which Germany in her mad lust of world-wide conquest overran and despoiled, is indisputable, and the very fact of the Germans' unwillingness to complete the document by subscribing to it, is proof that it by no means suited their book. "In signing the treaty," says the Providence Journal, "Germany is not being asked to sign her own death warrant. She is still able to lead an orderly and prosperous existence. What the new treaty proposes is that she shall not renew her mad ambition to rule the world: her dream of inter-continental empire must be relinquished."

Germany is held by all civilization to have been solely responsible for plunging the world into the cauldron of war, and the letter of President Clemenceau of the French Republic, addressed to the German plenipotentiaries some time ago sets out with a sternness and clearness unsurpassed, this responsibility of Germany and Germany's then rulers, for the supreme crime of all the ages. The letter is a terrible indictment, and the burning words of the French Premier should sear the soul of every German. It breathes the very spirit of justice and brings home to the Germans the truth of their moral degradation. It is representative of the considered judgment of the Peace Conference, and contains the overwhelming sentiment of the people of the Allied countries. The Germans have asked for justice that they are receiving it, in full measure. He says:

"In the view of the Allied and Associated Powers, the war, which began on August 1st, 1914, was the greatest crime against humanity and freedom of the people that any nation, calling itself civilized, has ever consciously committed. For many years the rulers of Germany, true to the Prussian tradition, strove for a position of dominance in Europe. They were not satisfied with that growing prosperity and influence to which Germany was entitled, and which all other nations were willing to accord her. They required that they should be able to dictate and tyrannize over a subservient Europe, as they dictated and tyrannized over a subservient Germany."

"They were the first to use poisonous gas, notwithstanding the appalling suffering it entailed. They began the bombing and long-distance shelling of towns for no military object, but solely for the purpose of reducing the morale of their opponents by striking at their women and children. They commenced the submarine campaign, with its piratical challenge to international law and its destruction of great numbers of innocent passengers and sailors in mid-ocean, far from succor, at the mercy of the winds and the waves, and the yet more ruthless submarine crews. They drove thousands of men and women and children with brutal savagery into slavery in foreign lands. They allowed barbarities to be practised against their prisoners of war from which the most uncivilized people would have recoiled.

"The conduct of Germany is almost unexampled in human history. The terrible responsibility which lies at her doors can be seen in the fact that not less than seven million dead lie buried in Europe, while more than twenty million others carry upon them the evidence of wounds and suffering, because Germany saw fit to gratify her lust for tyranny by resort to war.

"Justice, therefore, is the only possible basis for the settlement of the accounts of this terrible war. Justice is what the German delegation asks for, and says that Germany has been promised. But it must be justice for all. There must be justice for the dead and wounded and for those who have been orphaned and bereaved, that Europe might be freed from Prussian despotism. There must be justice for the people who now stagger under war debts which exceed $300,000,000,000 that liberty might be saved. There must be justice for those millions whose homes and lands and property German savagery has spoiled and destroyed."

PEACE AT LAST.

Punctually at 3 o'clock this afternoon (Paris time), the German plenipotentiaries, Mueller and Dell, signed the Peace Treaty in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles. After many refusals and dissents by the various German delegations, wearing the patience of the Allies threadbare, the Germans have at length seen the futility of further delay, and their agreement to the terms have at last been made known.

Saturday, June 28th, will be the greatest day in the history of the world, but whether or not a sense of security will be felt and maintained will depend on the future conduct of the German Government and the German people. The treaty has been signed under duress and that will rankle in the hearts of the German nation for a long time to come. "Watch and ward" will have to be the motto of the Allies, for German regard of sacred treaties in the past has not been such as to command confidence. Nevertheless a sign of relief will be heard, because of the fulfilment of the desires of a war-weary universe.

Serious Situation.

MAGISTRATE AND POLICE ARE THREATENED.

The Deputy Minister of Justice has received the appended message from Greenspond. There is no doubt that a serious situation has been created and it will necessitate treating with the demonstrators diplomatically, if a crisis is to be avoided.

To Deputy Minister of Justice, St. John's.
Visited Flat Island to-day. Upon arrival I saw Arthur Samson and other ringleaders and tried to reason matters with them going as far as to say that I would be lenient, and they need not fear imprisonment. A mob congregated, bawling and shouting, and many threatened they would shoot, before one of their number was arrested. A mob followed me to where our motor was and demanded that we leave, and, becoming almost frenzied with rage, shouted that they would sink the motor boat. A crowd rushed on the wharf headed by Samson evidently to execute this purpose. When constables for the first time showed their rifles the mob made a general rush for guns, and quickly appeared with weapons in their possession. One of the number whose name I have, pointed a gun at me with a fierce imprecation. I regret indeed that returned soldiers in uniform took a very active part in this demonstration, using regimental guns with fixed bayonets. After we left the mob separated. To even attempt arrest under such circumstances would be madness, and, although incredible to believe, might end in murder.

MAGISTRATE MIFFLIN.
Officers and other ranks who have served in Regiments other than the Royal Newfoundland Regiment are invited to take part in the Memorial Service on July 1st next and to parade as a separate unit.

Special Parade Notice.

The late Mr. Morris came from St. John's, Newfoundland, to this city some years ago and through his genial manner gained many friends. He was employed by the Dominion Coal Company as city coal weigher where his services were much appreciated.

The Late H. C. Morris.

The many friends of the late Henry C. Morris will deeply regret the news of his death which occurred on Monday morning, the 28th inst. About ten days ago he was taken ill and on the advice of a physician he entered the Halifax Infirmary to undergo an operation for appendicitis, doing very well after the operation, but the end came very suddenly on the date referred to.

The late Mr. Morris came from St. John's, Newfoundland, to this city some years ago and through his genial manner gained many friends. He was employed by the Dominion Coal Company as city coal weigher where his services were much appreciated.

He was a member of St. Paul's Church since his coming to this city and was a constant worshipper within its walls. He took a deep interest in St. Paul's Mission, often taking part in the weekly gospel temperance meetings. A short service will be held in St. Paul's Church at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The body will be forwarded to St. John's, Nfld., for interment.—Morning Chronicle, June 25.

Provisional Director.

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly publish this short note for public information in your issue this evening.
At last night's meeting of the provisional directors held in the office of Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Jonas Barter, Esq., President of the Truckmen's Union, was added to the list of directors.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Learning and child, of the South Side, who were visiting friends at Catalina, returned by yesterday's express.

Mr. J. G. Stone leaves by express to-morrow for Catalina, where he will meet the people of his home town, afterwards spending a week making a tour of the principal towns in Trinity District.

George B. King, son of Mr. James King, South Side Road, is at present in the city on a visit to his home. Just twelve years ago he left here and went to Canada. He succeeded in getting a homestead west of the city of Edmonton and since then has been engaged in extensive stock raising and farming.

Coakerian Tactics.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—The "Advocate" of the 13th instant, contains the statement that I have telegraphed several Councils in Trinity District, asking them to send me an invitation to address meetings. This statement is a deliberate falsehood and the Editor as well as Mr. Coaker himself is well aware that it is so.

The only occasion on which I telegraphed any Council was the one on which I tendered my resignation and offered to give any explanation required from me by my constituents, and to meet Mr. Coaker at any meeting which they might choose to call.

The handling of the various District Grants, was done in consultation with, and with the full consent of my colleagues, who did not at any time take any exception to any of the Grants which we jointly recommended to the several Departments.

The statement that Mr. Coaker never interfered with the management of the Marine & Fisheries Department is true; not because he did not want to interfere, but simply because I would not allow him to.

Mr. Coaker says: he never asked a favour of me? What about the message Mr. Coaker wrote out himself and sent Mr. Grimes to my office with, to get me to sign—as Minister of Marine and Fisheries? The message being so ridiculous in my opinion, I absolutely refused to put my signature to it.

It is also true that Mr. Coaker's office did never interfere with the Department and it would have had just as much right to do so, as Mr. Coaker himself.

The statements of the accounts of the Department have been duly audited, passed, tabled and published and can be seen by any member of the general public.

I court the fullest inquiry as far as my management of the Department is concerned.

The statement about E. G. Stone having been under the pay of the Department all the winter at $60.00 per month, is absolutely another of Coaker's deliberate falsehoods, manufactured for the sole purpose of misleading the people and injuring my brother. It is true that he was on the motor boat "Parity," for a period of four months only as a deck hand, at $50.00 per month. During which time he gave good service. During the winter season he was paid the sum of $33.20 only, for making boxes for Lighthouse purposes.

The remainder of the article is so obviously vicious and low as to require no comment from me.
Yours truly, J. G. STONE.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME—CUBS WANDERERS.

The CUBS walloped the WANDERERS in no uncertain manner last night, defeating them with a score of 15 to 4, thereby placing the four teams on an equal footing again in the race for the pennant. The CUBS showed that they meant business right from the start, piling up 4 runs in the first inning, and set a pace throughout the game which proved too strenuous for the older team. They had a new pitcher—Thistle—in the box. He is a "southpaw," with a rather slow delivery, which did not seem to bother the CUBS a little bit. He lacked support in the field, several bad bingles being made by the WANDERERS infield at critical periods of the game.

The CUBS were in their old-time form, having evidently learned from last Wednesday's defeat not to undervalue their opponents. They went out to win and each man was at his best. "Bat" Hall, in the box, pitched air-tight ball, and ended with three strikes that would have done credit to a French 75. Canning, at short, played a great game, fielding several hot ones perfectly. For the Wanderers, Britt, McCrindle and Bill Brown did good work. The line-up was as follows:

Newfoundland Methodist Conference

ORDINATION SERVICE.
The Ordination Service of the Newfoundland Conference will take place to-morrow (Sunday) evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Methodist Church, St. John's, under the supervision of Dr. Chown, the General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, has to leave for Monday's train, and it is the duty of all that he be present to assist in the "laying on of hands."

The Majestic.

Last evening's show at the Majestic was a big one. Madge Kennedy in the splendid six reel picture, "Perfect Lady," took the hall by storm and the applause was spontaneous and free. The story was interesting with a delightful vein of humor running through it. Madge Kennedy won many laurels as a star performer and they will be diminished only by her latest performance. The grand picture, entitled "Detective of Scotland Yard," was a thrilling story of the canny astuteness of human bloodhound, detective. How the guilty criminals are chased to their lair and from that to the steamer in which they hoped to escape to France is shown in a most interesting manner, impressing the spectator with the skill of the story. The show will be repeated to-morrow.

EAST NIGHT'S GAME—CUBS VS. WANDERERS.

The CUBS walloped the WANDERERS in no uncertain manner last night, defeating them with a score of 15 to 2, thereby placing the four teams on an equal footing again in the race for the pennant. The CUBS showed that they meant business right from the start, piling up 4 runs in the first inning, and set a pace throughout the game which proved too strenuous for the older team. Tim He is a "southpaw," with a rather slow delivery, which did not seem to bother the CUBS a little bit. He lacked support in the field, several bad bingles being made by the WANDERERS infield at critical periods of the game.

The CUBS were in their old time form, having evidently learned from last Wednesday's defeat not to underestimate their opponents. They were out to win and each man was at his best. "Bert" Hall, in the box, pitched air-tight ball, and ended with three strikes that would have done credit to a French 75. Canning, at third, played a great game, fielding several hot ones perfectly. For the Wanderers, Britt, McCrindle and Billy Brown did good work. The line-up was as follows:

Cubs:	Wanderers:
Hall .....	Pitcher
Clouston .....	Catcher
Murphy .....	1st Base

Last evening's show at the Majestic was a big one. Madge Kennedy in the splendid six reel picture, "A Perfect Lady," took the hall by storm and the applause was spontaneous and free. The story was interesting with a delightful vein of humor running through it. Madge Kennedy has won many laurels as a star performer and they will be diminished none by her latest performance. The second picture, entitled, "Detective Finn of Scotland Yard," was a thrilling story of the canny astuteness of that human bloodhound, detective Finn. How the guilty criminals are chased to their lair and from that to the steamer in which they hoped to escape to France is shown in a highly interesting manner, impressing the spectator with the skill of the sleuth. The show will be repeated to-night.

To-day's Messages.

SIGNING BEGINS.
WASHINGTON, To-Day. The signing of the Peace Treaty was begun at 10.30 o'clock. Washington time, says an official report to the State Department.

MANDATORY COMMITTEE.

PARIS, June 27. The Council of Four this afternoon appointed Lord Milner (Britain), Col. M. Simon (France), Signor Crespi (Italy), and Viscount Chinda (Japan) as members of a Committee on Mandatories for colonies and territories detached from enemy Powers.

COMMANDER READ'S WELCOME HOME.

NEW YORK, June 27. An official welcome home, such as previously had been accorded only to returning Cabinet members, awaited Commander Read, who commanded the first aircraft to cross the Atlantic Ocean, and his associates, Commander Towers and Lieut. Commander Bellinger, when they stepped ashore here to-day from the army transport Zeppelin. Both the officers and enlisted men were modest to the extreme in replying to the congratulations showered upon them. Commander Read thus expressed his appreciation of the reception: "We are glad to be home," he said; "we went on a seaplane and came back on a Zeppelin. They certainly treated us magnificent on the other side, and the British people gave us a royal reception. There is only one thing I regret regarding the entire affair, and that is that the undertaking was not a complete success, in that all three planes instead of one did not complete the journey."

VERSAILLES, To-Day.

The credentials of Dr. Hermann Muller and Dr. Johannes Bell, the German plenipotentiaries sent here to sign the Treaty of Peace, were approved this morning.

River Fishing Report.

The Secretary of the Game and Inland Fisheries furnishes the following report of river fishing on the South and West Coasts:
Sea trout very plentiful, salmon scarce to date, but a better sign than formerly has been observed the past few days.
Messrs. Jones and Silver, Halifax, landed 3 salmon, 14, 20 and 26 lbs. from Harry's River this week, up to Wednesday, 23rd.
Mr. Dumond, of New York, caught first salmon at Fox Island River on the 23rd.
Week ending June 21st—2 salmon, Grand Bay Brook, 10 and 16 lbs. each; 27 salmon, Grand River, Codroy, 8 to 20 lbs. each; 12 salmon, Serpentine River, 6 to 21 lbs. each.
First salmon taken on S. E. River Piacentia, June 23rd.
First salmon seen Biscay Bay River, June 21st; none taken.

6,000 Miles for a "Script."

Having experimented for years to bring the Orange and Grapefruit to the members of the California Fruit Grower's Exchange up to the highest pitch of perfection, the Exchange decided to embark on the manufacture of Marmalades.
The California Fruit Grower's Exchange, however, had a reputation to maintain and they did not wish to manufacture a grade of Marmalade that would be anything but "better than the best." Firms and private individuals in the States had manufactured Marmalades before but the class of goods turned out was not considered by the California Fruit Grower's Exchange as good as they required their Marmalade to be. Hence the Exchange sent all the way to Scotland, the land of good marmalades, good jams, good cakes, good wines and good other things, for a "script" for good Scotch—Marmalade! Having got this good Scotch "script"—or let us call it recipe—for "better than the best" Marmalade, the Exchange did not stop till they brought out a Scotch lady who had been making marmalade all her life, to superintend the making of Sunkist Orange Marmalade, Sunkist Orange Jelly and Sunkist Grapefruit Marmalade, the high class delicacies that you will shortly be able to get from all the leading St. John's grocers. Orders from the trade now being booked by P. E. Outerbridge, Sole Agent.

On the Pond.

The first boat crews to begin practice for Regatta Day were on the Pond last evening at 7 o'clock, when the crew of the Nellie R. rowed in the practice boat to go.
The truckmen went over the Lake in the practice boat Myrtle. They will row the Cadet. Good time was made by both crews and the first practice was enjoyed by them. A number of people were by the lakeside.

Should Build Bridge.

Many who go to Quidi Vidi at evening, to see the crews practice, are expressing the hope that the old custom of building a bridge over Renne's River just where it runs into the Lake will be adhered to, as it would save the long walk of going across King's Bridge.

BUSINESS 100 YEARS AGO.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)
Article XX.

In Article XVIII Mr. Nelson writes about the fishermen hunting the seals in skiffs and punts, and it would appear that they risked going off a long distance and, of course, it often resulted in loss of life. It is an historical fact that about the days of which Mr. Nelson writes, the famous Capt. William Bartlett, of Brigus, went to the sealfishery in an undecked boat, and when he arrived at Bacallieu there was no sign of either ice or seals. "Well, boys," said he, "we'll follow on," and follow on they did until they sighted the Funks, with the same result. Again came the order "follow on," and on they went until they arrived off the Spotted Islands, Labrador, where they struck the seals in thousands and quickly secured a full load. "Follow on" has been the slogan of the Bartlett's from those far-back days to the present, and no greater example can be offered than the fearlessness and heroism displayed by Capt. Bob Bartlett a few years ago, when he accompanied Peary to the Pole and was deprived of the honor of being the first to plant his foot on the top of the earth owing to the petty jealousy of the commander. In due course the skiffs had to give way to a larger class of vessels styled gallopers, and in turn were replaced by fore-and-aft schooners. The first schooner to prosecute the sealfishery (of over ninety tons) was called the Experiment, built and sent out by the firm of Pack, Gosse and Fryer of Carbonear, and the critics of those days were of the opinion that she was too large and could never be turned in the ice. About 1824 Capt. Wm. Munden of Brigus had the first vessel of over one hundred tons built. She was called the Four Brothers and was brigantine rigged, and Robert Brown of the Commercial Bank remarked, "that he always had the highest opinion of Billy Munden until he built the Four Brothers; that she was too large for the prosecution of the sealfishery and would become unmanageable." I presume the schooner was called by that name was that they wished to try the experiment and see how it would work. In the gallopers there were always about 13 of a crew, and from an old agreement I have in my possession, the forward gunner as well as the after gunner were always allowed fifty shillings and a free berth, others were given free berths, while the majority of the crew had to pay for their berths. And so the evolution went on until we arrived at the leviathans like the Stephano, Florizel, Nascopie, etc. What would have occurred were they still engaged in the prosecution of the fishery is a moot question, because those experienced in the sealfishery now say that the seals are not to be found on the coast in any great numbers, and truly it looks that way judging from the reports sent in from the front the past ten years or so (and particularly last year) that when one hundred and fifty thousand have been killed there are no more to be found, the main patch being cut up. However, a year or so will settle the question.

The House of Danson.

Mr. Nelson also makes reference to the House of Danson in his letters in our last article. Dansons was indeed a most extensive and enterprising firm, the principals being Thomas and Hugh. Their business premises were situated on the same ground in Harbor Grace on which stand the premises of Munn & Co. and Murray & Crawford. They got into financial difficulties about 1824, and the creditors in England had no consideration for their temporary financial troubles, but determined to wind up the firm, which they did, and that to their own loss, because, even as they put the winding-up business into operation, every one of Danson's vessels arrived from the sealfishery with full loads of seals. It was nothing short of commercial murder, and the Dansons became disgusted and threw up the whole business, which was a great loss not alone to Conception Bay, but Trinity Bay as well as other parts of the island, because the great firm had ramifications at Holyrood, Bay de Verde and elsewhere. After the failure of Danson's house, Punton & Munn commenced business and continued extensively and successfully until the year of the crash (1894), when they too were commercially sacrificed. The great fire (Toussant's) 1858, wiped out the greater portion of the town of Harbor Grace, and amongst the premises that of Punton & Munn. Of course in those days we had not the great insurance companies such as the Queen, Phoenix and others to take up large risks on property as we have to-day, and the firm must have suffered very considerably. However, the hard-shelled Scotchman did not even respond, but determined to build even more extensively than, probably, they would have done had not the old premises been destroyed. That Spring Captain Larry Keefe in the brig Marjina and Captain Noddy Pike in the brigantine Gladi brought in two full loads of seals, and, of course, funds being rather short, owing to the great expense in building up the premises, those two famous seal-killers told Mr. Munn, "Never mind paying for the seals. Let them go into the business and they would settle with the crews." And they did so. I consider that such an act is unprecedented in our commercial history and is well worthy being recorded. It goes to show the determination of the men as well as the faith they had in the business capabilities of the managers of this firm.

Almost Committed.

I may here state that Mr. Thomas Danson was, for many years, Magistrate in Harbor Grace. He was a man possessed of marked ability and great experience. He maintained the dignity of the Bench, and upon one occasion he all but imprisoned an innocent man for what he considered contempt of court. A very little old Irishman named Billy Doig had a case in court about the boundary of a piece of land or some such dispute. "Tommy" Danson tried the case, and, of course, was as dignified and was clothed in as much authority as the Lord Chief Justice of England. The argument waxed warm between the plaintiff and defendant, and Danson to uphold the majesty of the law and dignity of the court broke in with some remarks enforcing silence. Billy Doig was as deaf as a post, and spoke broken English and that badly. While Danson was addressing them, Billy gave the man sitting next to him an elbow in the ribs, and nodding his head towards Danson on the Bench exclaimed in a voice which resounded over the court, "Masht! what the devil is that fellow saying? Danson stood for a moment, and was going to send Billy down for six months for contempt of court, when Mr. Stark, Clerk of the Court, who knew him well, explained matters and convinced Magistrate Danson that Billy intended no offence, that he was a decent old soul, but that was the way he had about him, as he could not hear a word that was said unless one hollered into his ear. After a time Danson was satisfied and the case proceeded.

Mr. Nelson's remarks brought these circumstances to my mind, and I shall now let him continue his letters, and no doubt we shall have further reference to other great firms as he (Nelson) runs down the years of the "Long, Long Ago."

children first learning to read, women's blue worsted hose, good black cloth and blue serge. When you send garden seeds, you need not send any other than the following, viz: Cabbage, lettuce, turnip, radish (2 sorts), carrot, parsnip, broad beans and early pease. (Please send a similar amount for next spring.) I don't expect Pratt will bring any flour from Nova Scotia, and if you make any difference, I would rather you would enlarge on the quantity of provisions intended for Mr. Falcon. A small spy-glass is very handy and necessary for the schooner ice-hunting. I have one of my own which I always lend Spencer in the Spring, but next year we shall want another.

New Sails for Vessels.

I shall be obliged to let Captain Hamon have a new fore-and-aft mainsail, perhaps it will be better to let him have it here than to run the risk of its getting it anywhere else at a dearer rate, and the Active when she returns will in all probability want some more canvas also; besides, I shall want to use some in the Winter or Fall for the boats next summer. This with making the new schooner's sails will take a good deal, perhaps more than we have here at present, and you will therefore please guard against it, by sending out at least, in addition to what I mentioned yesterday, 4 pieces best canvas, 3 pieces LL and as much more as you please. Please also to send a few coils good bolt rope of different sizes.

More Competition.

There is not now the least doubt but that McBratne & Co. mean to establish a large trade in this place, and the opinion I at present entertain of Trinity is, that it will soon become similar to St. John's with respect to the mode of carrying on business. The planters give of course the preference to those who state the price of goods at the time of delivery, and the habit of giving bills of parcels with it, as in St. John's, will become general. Our skiffs returned this morning, but fish not so plentiful as last week. The bait is still in and I hope will continue. It is not too late to make a good voyage yet. The Lester I understand goes to St. John's to join convoy, and I write Messrs. P. K. & B. concerning the tea. I have heard from Quirpon 5 days since. She was then nearly loaded, and by the accounts James Dwyer sends, I have a right to expect her by Sunday next. We have had for several days past very strong breezes of wind, which has prevented the fishermen from making much of a hand of it this week, but the prospect now seems favourable.

Current Price Arranged.

After what I wrote you in No. 16, you will no doubt be surprised to find that the Alpha is now loaded. Since that period we have had such a continuance of dry weather as was scarcely ever remembered, which has enabled the planters to get their first fish (although caught very late) in order to ship much earlier than usual. I have not yet heard positive accounts from the different Bays, but from what I have known of this Bay, I am inclined to think that the quantity caught will not average or be equal to 2-3 of last year's catch, even if half and fish should be plenty from this time forward. As I expected, the price is very high and 26/- has been given in St. John's for an early cargo. I have been informed by our correspondents there that there has been a meeting on the 1st inst. between the merchants and planters. The price until the 20th August was settled at 21/- merchantable, 18/- Madefa, and 16/- West Indies, but since that I understand they have disagreed and many have given 22/6 and 23/-, which latter price I have reasons to think from the different accounts I have heard, will be the established one for a time. In the last letter I received from H. E. G. & R., dated 3rd inst., they say the prices are not likely to be lower until it comes in more plenty, but when the news reaches them from the different outports of the shortness of the catch, I rather think it will continue at that price, if not higher. Of course we have no general fixed price yet, but owing chiefly to Mr. Durrell's giving some of his planters 22/-, if not 26/-, for a quantity he collected to carry to St. John's to sell perhaps for 26/- (most likely calculating that he would have sufficient to load his vessels afterwards) and which was not the case with me, therefore could not think of sending any to St. John's, I found it almost impossible to obtain fish from our own dealers early without also mentioning a price. This I have done in order to dispatch Alpha and Gannet very early, and the price I have promised is from 18/- to 21/-, in some cases part-bill in the Fall, and in others where no bill will be required I have agreed for their whole voyage of merchantable at 18/-. This certainly is a very long price and a very great risk. But I expect to get a good quantity early and even if the Allies should not be altogether successful against the French under Bonaparte in Portugal, I am pretty certain that owing to the shortness of the catch the price must keep up.

Equalling Neighbors.

We have 2-3 of the Gannet's cargo of salt discharged and are getting out the remainder as fast as possible. She will begin to take in new fish the moment she is ready, and should the weather (which now and for the past day or two has been wet) take up again for dry, I expect she will be loaded by the last of the month, before which time I hope to hear again from you, as you have yet written for only one vessel to go to Portugal. But it is ready to sail, nor any bad accounts from Portugal, I shall not detain her but send her to Lisbon to McMahon & Co. for orders. We have collected on the whole new merchantable fish up to date 1439 qtls. and weighed into store 319 qtls. of our own catch, out of which, deducting Alpha's cargo, including the captain's adventure, 1151 1/4 qtls. leaves now in store 606 1/4 qtls. ready to ship. I expect by the time the Gannet is ready to take in, we shall have half a cargo collected, and if the weather should be good, we shall not be long getting the other half. The Cosmopolite returned from the French Shore on the 21st ult. with about 300 qtls. split fish and sailed again on the 26th, since which time I have not heard from her, but I hope will return again loaded by the last of the month at farthest. Our own catch I calculate to be (reckoning the schooner's first trip) 650 qtls., the greater part of which is cured and part goes in Alpha, which I believe is as well as any of our neighbours. At present, and for the last 8 or 9 days, there has been no bait, and of course little or no fish caught, consequently useless to keep our boats out. They have been employed collecting dry fish and will be until the vessels are loaded, or a sufficient quantity is collected for that purpose. But it is impossible for me to say yet whether I shall be able to get that quantity or not (reckoning a second cargo for the Alpha) which vessel I expect you will order back with salt. However I shall try and I entertain hopes of being able to accomplish it without offering a higher price than others. Parker & Knight's agent offered several of our dealers 20/- for their whole voyage after I had agreed with them for 18/- (as he himself says), because I offered one of his independent planters 20/- for 50 qtls. prime fish to go in Alpha. The planters who have not agreed will not now, for 18/-, expecting the Harbor price will be settled at more. However, be it as it will, my pushing off too early cargoes (the Alpha's being the first out of this place or any other except St. John's, at least I think so) will, I hope, be giving a chance to make up for the extra price I may have given, should the settled price be lower. From the accounts we have yet had Trinity and

Buy Paint NOW—and the BEST

Many people have allowed their homes to run down in appearance and are still putting off repainting thinking that paint will come down in price.

Even if paints were cheaper six or eight months hence, which is unlikely, because the supply of raw material has fixed the price far ahead and because thousands of house owners are exactly in your condition—bound to paint soon, remember that it is better to paint than repair. Your house can be painted more cheaply now than later.

The screw you mention for seals will be useful. I am sorry you do not insure the stores, or at least certain sum on them, being composed as well as the houses of such combustible matter, should either one of them on the Room take fire, the destruction of the whole would be inevitable during the late dry weather. I assure you I passed many uncomfortable nights, especially after Spencer's house with all his good clothing etc., was destroyed at the Ring Hole, the 30th ult. The same reached this place. I sent most of my hands with many others belonging to the Harbor to prevent its progress through the woods, which by the means was fortunately accomplished otherwise the way the wind was blowing the whole Harbor would soon be in danger. Mr. Garland's stores soon afterwards had a very narrow escape of their oil staves having taken fire. I yet hope you will be able to insure a certain sum, as having property here to such a large amount is indeed extremely hazardous. The vessel might be destroyed in one hour.

Note of Explanation.

In several issues I made particular reference to James MacBraith, and said I was of opinion that Mr. Kelson and he were great friends and in touch with each other. At the time I said so I had no idea MacBraith was about to start business in Trinity. But you will observe Kelson has nothing whatever to say against MacBraith going to Trinity. Mr. Darrell was his great rival, and he (Kelson) never omitted the opportunity to use the rapier in finding his weak spots. Mr. Kelson would undoubtedly have proven himself a keen and subtle journalist had he adopted that profession, and would certainly have done more execution amongst his opponents in political warfare by the use of the rapier than is done at the present day with the bludgeon. James MacBraith was one of the founders of the Be### nevolent Irish Society of St. John's in 1806, and was President for several years. He was a most philanthropic, charitable, broadminded gentleman, and, I understand, that there are several tombstones in the churchyard at King's Cove, B.B., erected to the memory of some of his dealers, placed there by him at his expense, as stated on the epitaphs—more especially to several of the Murphy family, which are surrounded by beautiful iron railings seven feet high, costing £1000 in England. And yet there was nothing too bad for some of our so-called historians to say about him—after he was dead and could not defend himself. He gave more to the poor people of St. John's after the great fire of 1846, when in Scotland, than all his predecessors gave during their seed, breed and generation. I understand Capt. MacBraith is buried in Berwick-on-Tweed, Scotland.—H.F.S.

The Cause of the War.

On June 28, 1914, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, while visiting Sarajevo in connection with manoeuvres, were assassinated while driving in their motor to the Town Hall. Previous to the fatal shots, a bomb was thrown at the carriage. The Archduke warded this off with his arm, and it fell and exploded, injuring the occupants of the next carriage and some of the spectators. On reaching the steps of the Town Hall, the Archduke said to the Burgomaster (on the steps to receive him): "We come to Sarajevo to make a friendly visit, and are greeted with a bomb; this is outrageous." The City Fathers stood thunder-struck. Then the Archduke said, "You may now proceed." After the inspection of the Town Hall the Archduke and his wife descended the steps with the intention of visiting the hospital to which the injured had been removed, when two revolver shots rang out in quick succession. The Duchess sank into the arms of her husband, who had barely time to utter the words, "Sophie, remain alive for our children," when he was fatally wounded by another bullet, which struck him in the neck. He, too, quickly lost consciousness, and it is uncertain whether he reached the Ronak alive. The Duchess died a few minutes after arrival, a priest having administered the last sacrament. Both the assassin and the would-be assassin were said to be Serbians, who declared that no plot was in existence, but that they were enemies of imperialism and decided to kill the Archduke as its embodiment. Out of this assassination, which it is now said was planned by the Central Powers, the present war eventuated. Austria threatened to punish Serbia; Russia took her part. France backed up Russia. Germany sided with Austria. Great Britain and Italy joined Russia and France, and later, Montenegro, Belgium and Roumania, with other countries, sided with the Entente. Bulgaria and Turkey went over to Germany and Austria.

Greatest Rule of Health.

And How it May be Carried Out With Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

You sometimes hear it said that the most important Rules of Health is "Daily movement of the bowels." This movement begins with the bowels, but it does not end there. It affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system, and in fact the whole human body. Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, appendicitis, and the most serious diseases imaginable often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined action on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys, and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly, but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation, and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Mr. M. Lock, 30 Home street, Brockville, Ont., writes: "For many years I have been troubled with constipation and have tried a number of remedies, but without obtaining much benefit. About a year ago I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and have found them to be the best medicine for constipation that I have ever used. I would strongly advise anyone troubled with this complaint to try the same remedy."

Mrs. R. Childs, Harrison, Ont., writes: "I suffered from constipation and kidney trouble for some time. One day I bought some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to see if they would help me, and to my delight, I received great benefit from them in a short time. They are a splendid medicine, and I always keep them on hand as a household remedy."

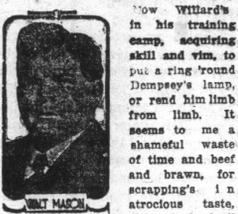

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so universally used as a treatment for constipation and liver and kidney troubles that you can obtain them at any store where medicines are on sale. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box. Edman, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Memorial Service.

A Memorial Service in honor of the men of the Congregational and Presbyterian Churches who have given their lives during the Great War, 1914-1919, will be held at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m. on July 1st, 1919. All adherents of these two churches are invited to attend Divine Service at that hour. June 26, 41.

THE FIGHTERS.

Now Willard's in his training camp, showing skill and vim, to put a ring round Dempsey's lamp, or send him limb from limb. It seems to me a shameful waste of time and beef and brawn, for scrapping's in atrocious taste, since Ludendorff is gone. This Willard should have finer aims, a nobler path should tread; for there are more uplifting games than punching Dempsey's head. And Dempsey might be teaching school, or running a hotel; for people say he is no fool; his head's bolstered well. I'd rather earn twelve bones a week, as salesman in a store, than have some fellows split my cheek and draw a lot of gore, even though I drew a mighty check for letting 't' other guy wind tentacles around my neck, and paste me in the eye. I'd like Jack better if he wrought with all the tolling throng; for punching Willard's dome of thought won't help the world along. Oh, Jack may send in giant blows, and gain the victor's wreath; or Jess may ruin Dempsey's nose and drive in all his teeth; and sports may talk for many years about the bluffs they'll give; but that won't make this vale of tears a better place to live. We brighten up no mundane place by pugilistic trend; and pushing in the human face achieves no worthy end.

THE GREAT DECISION.

Our readers will have noticed that we have been absent from the usual week-end Telegram for the past few weeks, and there may be enquiries as to the reason for this. We therefore wish to explain our conduct. When we say "explain" we do not mean that it is our intention to lay bare the facts of the case, and to bare our very soul for the vulgar gaze of all and sundry. Not so. Without divulging any State secrets, however, we CAN state that we have been on an important mission during our absence from here. Of course there will be some who will not be satisfied with our explanation; there always are. We look for sympathy, when we state that we have fought one of the greatest fights imaginable within the last three weeks. What that fight was we may not say. We had to decide something. There came the battle of the soul. General reader, can you imagine a fierce battle between Iniquity and Duty? The nearer you get to imagining this the more you can sympathize with us. We are proud to say that Duty won. (And we might remark here, parenthetically, that the German Nation has agreed to sign the Peace Treaty.) Of course we do not wish it to be inferred that our absence had a lot to do with this. Oh, dear no! But you DO see the coincidence, don't you? Does it not seem suggestive to you that our resumption of this weekly service and the agreement of the Germans to sign the Treaty both happen about the same time? You do! Enough! —C.-E.

Spitzbergen is Claimed to Be Norway's Paris.

Christiania, Norway, June 26.—"Spitzbergen always formed a part of Norway's dominion," says Charles Rabot, a leading French geographer, in a pamphlet on the subject. "Spitzbergen is not at all a no-man's land as is generally said to-day. This idea is of recent date, and is advocated by writers mostly in good faith, but ignorant of the existence of diplomatic treaties negotiated in the past few centuries concerning the islands, by curious men interested in it and finally by cabinets docile to suggestions from Germany. The question is not whether Norway should be authorized to carry out the annexation of the land, but to complete the sovereignty she has possessed since the 17th century."

M. Rabot says the sovereignty of Norway in Spitzbergen was recognized formally by France in a treaty made in 1672. The Hansa towns paid tribute to Norway for fishing in Spitzbergen for centuries. Norway controlled the navigation and whaling in this part of the Arctic which has been looked upon as a Norwegian sea. Great Britain tried to annex Spitzbergen in 1814, but the claim was not recognized by any other state, as it was based on wrong information and after 1623 Britain abandoned the claim to sovereignty.

M. Rabot refers to the Norwegian colonization of the land (there are at present 540 Norwegians) and the whole population of 600 to the Norwegian scientific exploration of the land, and finally to the great Norwegian mining industries started in 1907 many years in advance of any other European settlement. The writer describes the German maneuvers to prevent the Spitzbergen question from being settled in 1910, the intention becoming manifest at the conclusion of the Brest-Litovsk treaty with Russia that Germany was prepared to take possession of Spitzbergen for itself.

Summing up, M. Rabot says: "Political interests as well as justice and the task of removing any cause for conflict in the Arctic sea should lead the allied powers to award Spitzbergen to Norway.—Christiania American."

THE TABLECLOTH.

Do you know why a tablecloth hangs over the edge of a table? Because the Anglo-Saxons, who invented the tablecloth, used to wipe their mouth with the edges that hang over. Later came the napkin, but we still stuck to the useless overhanging edges.

AND A GOOD THING TOO.

One half of the world is glad that the other half doesn't know how it lives.

THE REASON WHY.

Two Irishmen met one day. The first said: "Misther O'Sullivan, will ye stop and have a friendly discussion on the matter of Home Rule?"

"It's sorry I am," said O'Sullivan, "but it's not convenient just now."

"O'Flaherty; and why not?"

O'Sullivan: "Why to tell ye the truth, O'Flaherty, I haven't got me stick handy."

THE DOOR.

Few persons realize what a modern convenience is the familiar door. No primitive peoples have, or ever had, have doors; the great temples of Egypt and of Greece had doorways, of course, but no doors. Often there were silks and tapestries hung over the doorways or doors or gates; but the door proper is absolutely an improvement, even a luxury, of modern civilization.

A LIGHT BURDEN.

The driver of the jaunty car of Ireland is always ready to excuse himself. If he is reproached for the condition of his horse.

"I say, Paddy," said a tourist one day, "that is the worst-looking horse you drive I ever saw! Why don't you fatten him up?"

"Fatten him up, is it?" queried the driver, as if he could not believe his ears. "Faix, the poor baste can hardly carry the little mate that's on him now!"

Services, July 1st.

8.45 a.m.—Troops and War Veterans (with or without uniforms), Nurses, V.A.D.'s, etc., Brigades, are asked to parade on Prince's Rink Parade Ground as follows:
(a) Detachment of Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve.
(b) C. C. C. Band.
(c) Church of England Troops, War Veterans, Church Lads' Brigade.
(d) Nurses, V.A.D.'s, etc., etc.
(e) Roman Catholic Troops, War Veterans, Catholic Cadet Corps.
(f) Pipers.
Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Salvation Army Troops, War Veterans, Nfld. Highlanders.

9.30 a.m.—The whole of the above march to square opposite Spind Hall and various churches via Gower St.
10 a.m.—Memorial Service in City Churches, viz. the C. of E. Cathedral, the R. C. Cathedral, Gower Street Church and Presbyterian Church.

11 a.m.—(1) Troops with Colour Party in the centre—War Veterans form up in line facing south and with head of column at western end of Queen's Road. (2) Nurses, V.A.D.'s, etc., Brigades (less bands) deputations from Societies, etc., proceed independently to Bannerman Park and take up their attached positions.

11.10 a.m.—Troops and all War Veterans, C.C.C. Band and the Pipers proceed to Government House via Queen's Road and Military Road.

11.25 a.m.—Troops and War Veterans receive the colours and salute the Governor. Lady Harris and Miss Harris place laurel wreaths on the colours.

11.45 a.m.—Troops and War Veterans take up position in Bannerman Park.

11.50 a.m.—His Excellency the Governor and party arrive at the main gate of the Park on Bannerman Road and are received by Headquarters Staff.

11.55 a.m.—Bands play "Dead March in Saul" and "The Lament" while wreaths are placed on the Shrine.

12 (noon)—His Excellency the Governor delivers Panegyric.

12.10 p.m.—"Last Post."
12.15 p.m.—"Hallelujah Chorus."

12.30 p.m.—(1) Troops and War Veterans move to saluting point and to Government House to return colours. Thence to Prince's Rink for dismissal. (2) Brigades move to respective Headquarters for dismissal.

Hospital Patients and Others.
Arrangements are being made to have the soldier patients motored to Bannerman Park by 11 a.m. while the Great War Veterans' Association have undertaken to look after the disabled who are living in private houses.

The Shrine.
A very simple Shrine, consisting of a pyramid surmounted by a cross, will be erected in the centre of the lower portion of the Park and enclosed by a ring, within which accommodation will be provided for the sick and wounded, the wreath-bearers and the firing party. The outside of the ring is reserved as follows: The eastern portion for His Excellency the Governor and party and holders of Red Tickets; the southern for school children, who will number some four or five thousand; the western for next-of-kin who hold white tickets; the northern for troops, war veterans, nurses, etc., and Brigades.
Wreath-Bearers.
On arrival in the Park, will those ladies and gentlemen who have been asked to bring wreaths kindly report to Capt. C. B. Dicks for instruction.
Owing to the lack of space and time the general public are requested not to place their floral tributes on the monument until after the ceremony is over.
The Colours.
Lady Harris and Miss Harris have graciously consented to place wreaths on the Colours, which will then be escorted to Bannerman Park. Citizens are asked to remember what the Colours represent, and to pay them all the honor and respect which are due them.
Entrances.
All who attend the ceremony in the Park will please make use of the various gates as detailed below, and so avoid confusion.
10 a.m.—The two lower gates on Rennie's Mill Road will be opened for the school children.
10.30 a.m.—The large centre gate on Bannerman Road will be used by Hospital patients.
11 a.m.—(a) The next-of-kin (holders of white tickets), enter by the gate opposite Lady Whiteway's House on Rennie's Mill Road. (b) The holders of red tickets enter by the small gate on Bannerman Road, in rear of Colonial Building.
11.15 a.m.—Troops, War Veterans, Brigades, Nurses, V.A.D.'s, move into the Park by main gate on Bannerman Road.
11.45 a.m.—The two gates on Circular Road are thrown open to the general public.
11.50—His Excellency the Governor

Fieschi's Fiasco.

When Louis Philippe of Orleans listened to the promptings of ambition and grasped the crown of his kingdom, Charles X., as the fruit of intrigue, he prepared for himself a troublesome existence. Not many months, throughout the uneasy eight years of his reign passed without a political crisis or a riot, and in addition he was exposed to continual risks from attempts at assassination. One and all failed but some came near success, and one in particular, although it did not achieve its object, caused much loss of life to others. This was the famous Fieschi conspiracy, which bears a resemblance to the later attempt by Orsini on the life of Napoleon III. A Corsican, born at Morato, in 1790, Joseph Fieschi had been a soldier and also a convict, before he professed republican principles. He decided to remove the Citizen King for the good of the citizens. Accordingly he devised an infernal machine, consisting of twenty-four gun barrels let in a frame, and placed it at a window of a house in the Boulevard du Temple, along which Louis Philippe had to pass on June 28, 1835, in a procession to celebrate the Three Glorious Days of the 1830 Revolution. At 10 a.m. he left the Tuilleries, attended by a brilliant staff, and a little later he was surrounded by the dead and dying, including Marshal Mortier, who had escaped a hundred battles to die in a Paris street. But the King himself escaped with a scratch, while many of the people, for whom Fieschi claimed to act, were killed and wounded. The murderer, badly hurt, was arrested in the street. His accomplices, also, were hunted down, and after a long delay, all were executed on February 19 in the following year.

Smoker & Presentation.

BY ST. ANDREW'S CLUB.
Last night at St. Andrew's Society Club Rooms, in the Smallwood Building, a pleasant social hour was spent in song, story and smoke, the occasion being a farewell smoker and presentation tendered Messrs. D. Forsyth and E. Campbell (Donald and Charlie) two worthy members of the Society and Club, who are returning to the Land of the Thistle and Heather by the s.s. Digby. Mr. R. G. Ross, 2nd Vice-President of the Society, occupied the chair, and after an enjoyable programme of vocal and instrumental numbers, in which Messrs. Fox, R. G. and A. Ross, D. McIntosh, A. McCowan, Serg. Joe McKinley and Lieut. J. Irvine took part, the chairman called upon Mr. J. A. Carmichael to make the presentation. In doing so, Mr. Carmichael alluded to the many good qualities of his fellow-club mates, particularly the efficient services rendered to the Society and Club, during the past five years, when all had been called upon to "do their bit," and on behalf of his brother members of St. Andrew's Society, and as a small token of the esteem and regard in which they are held by all, presented "Donald" and "Charlie," the former with a handsome fitted leather dressing case, and the latter with a solid leather suit case, which he hoped would prove suitable travelling companions for the coming years, and help to keep fresh in their memory their "Briher Scots" in the old colony across the sea. The recipients replied in fitting terms, assuring all present that they would ever remember St. Andrew's Club, and the many pleasant hours they had spent in the Rooms which had been to both of them truly a home, during their stay in Terra Nova. Brief speeches of a fraternal nature were made by the chairman, Messrs. D. McFarlane, Alex. McKinley and others, and after the customary words of thanks to the performers, organizers and chairman, the singing together of "Auld Lang Syne" (sung as only Scots can do it), and "God Save the King" brought the evening's proceedings to a close. The Telegram joins with all other friends in wishing Messrs. Forsyth and Campbell, Bon Voyage and Good Luck.

Turning to the Tasks of Peace.

For four and one half years our country has labored under the spur of a great purpose and to help to accomplish a great task. Now that task is done; the trappings of war become relics; we lay them aside and turn to the tasks of peace.

During this long and weary period we have had but one thought and aim—to contribute our utmost for the winning of the war. Great sailing ships have been built, new methods devised, new markets for our industries opened up. Sources of supply discovered that were before unknown. Due to this development made necessary by war, our country is to-day capable of handling the industries of peace to a greater extent than ever before.

The great industrial era which our country faces, insures the certainty of there being ample opportunity for rendering this service. The use of COAL is essential to the great basic industrial enterprises which our country is about to face. In mine and quarry, in the homes of the rich and poor, on the highway, and along the railway line, in every walk of life, in every industry we must have COAL. Why allow millions of dollars to leave the country annually when we have plenty of COAL at home?

Shares one dollar to-day, next year they may not be bought for twenty dollars.

Says Hydroplane Best.

The trans-Atlantic flight should be made with a flying boat instead of the regular airplane or seaplane, according to Capt. Alcock, who, with Lieut. Brown, made the first non-stop crossing by air. That was what the navy fliers believed, and on that belief they acted.

"I am glad Capt. Alcock was able to make the flight in real fashion without warships and all that sort of thing." Thus Harry Hawker, who seems determined to convince the world that he cannot live up to the reputation of Englishmen as true sportsmen.—Charlotte American.

Public Notice!

Celebration of Peace!

His Excellency the Governor has been informed by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that, on the occasion of the Signing of Peace, a salute of 101 guns will be fired. As it is not possible for this Dominion to similarly acclaim this historic occasion, it has been arranged that upon receipt of the news of the signing of the Peace Treaty, an intimation of the same will be given to the public by the firing Three Times of the gun at Cabot Tower, Signal Hill. The Government desire that immediately upon the said signal being given, there shall be a spontaneous and enthusiastic outburst of popular rejoicing. It is therefore requested that the heads of the different religious denominations shall direct that, upon the said signal being given, the Church bells shall be rung; that owners of shipping shall arrange for the flying of flags on their vessels, and for the blowing of the horns and sirens of steamers; and that citizens generally shall display flags or other similar decorations from their residences, places of business, &c.
This is not intended to take the place of the official celebration that will be held later, as already indicated by Public Notice.

Peace Motto Suggestions

For some time a discussion as to the most suitable motto for Peace has been going on in the London Daily Mail, readers being invited to submit suggestions. Among many that were made were these:
 "Peace, perfect peace!"
 "God has given this peace to us."

"We have muddled through once more."
 "Always fair."
 "Always Fearless."
 "Always First."
 "Common sense and common sense."
 "Be prepared."
 "Be just and fear not."
 "We have made peace." (Carolanus; act v, sc. 6).
 "Never Again!"

These Dogs Deserved Medals.

How Canadian Sledge Dogs Helped French Army.

At the outbreak of war a well-known French citizen of Nome City on the Bering Straits took with him to France a team of native sledge dogs of Alaska.

This man was to serve with the French Army, and his idea in introducing the dogs was that they might serve some useful purpose along the fighting line for which he himself was destined.

The dogs were accepted by the French Army and duly sent to Vosges Mountains. This being the district in which it was considered they could perform most useful work.

From the very outset the scheme was found to possess possibilities, and during the winter of 1914 the dogs were used in exactly the same capacity as they are used in Alaska and Canada—for sledge work.

By no means, however, was their usefulness limited to the winter months, for when the spring of 1915 came, the dogs were to draw the narrow gauge railways, so extensively utilised in the Vosges for transportation of every kind.

Their Only Fault They Barked!
 Light trucks, rigged up to carry the driver and with a special braking arrangement, were devised, and back and forth through the summer of 1915 the dogs were used for carrying all kinds of material up to the fighting line.

The success of the scheme thus having been proved, there was a steady increase to the Lieutenant's kennel, and by 1918, 300 or 400 dogs were to be seen in their forest retreat, which was actually within shell fire of the Huns.

For use very close to the line the scheme was not entirely a success, as the dogs, in their eagerness for work, were constantly giving tongue, often in such volume as to be distinctly audible nearly a mile away. Thus, though the French Lieutenant is to be congratulated on his enterprise and energy, it is not likely that the Canadian Sledge dogs will become very popular for military transportation.

Still the little group of canine adventurers from the north deserve an honorable place among the war's animal heroes.

How I Climbed the Steeple.

I was nineteen when my first opportunity came. I was sent to interview a stepladder who was working on the tallest spire in a big provincial city.

Two hours later I flung myself at the editor: "I have climbed to the top of St. — spire!" I said. "Will you print my 'story' as I write it?"
 Rip Van Winkle, the editor of this little country weekly, who had been asleep during the fifteen years he had acted in that capacity, awoke with a start.

Breathing heavily, and leaning against his desk, he said, "Yes, yes—remarkable—remarkable!" thereby saving what remained of his journalistic soul.

My hour had come! I wrote a column of the most pretentious prose that a printer ever set up, and not a line was cut!

I wrote as Stanley or Shackleton or Captain Cook might have justifiably written. I claimed to have done the most thrilling thing in the history of local journalism.

After the aged staff had come out of the trance into which my column had sent them, they commenced to bring in day after day their relatives who wished to see the "brave young reporter." I shook hands with perhaps sixty people in the course of three days.

What were my sensations as I climbed to that dizzy height? Frankly, I had none. You see, I regarded my life as too full of promise to risk it in climbing any church spire!
 The stepladder told me all the sensations I should have had.—H. in Jack London's Weekly.

An Invisible Clock.

A public clock which can be heard but not seen is one of London's curious possessions. It is in the tower of St.
 Mary Abbot's Church, Kensington.
 It chimes the hours and quarters, but commits itself no further. It has no dial, no hands, no outward and visible sign of any kind to show that it is a clock. This eccentricity, it is explained is the result of two causes—one aesthetic and the other financial.
 When the tower was built in 1373 a clock was suggested as an afterthought, but the architect protested that it would mean the addition of fifty feet to the tower, and the ruin of its cherished proportions.
 A second point was that the church, having but slender funds, could not afford a clock with a dial. A compromise was arrived at by installing the works of a chiming clock in the belfry without dial or hands.

Neptune and Heligoland.

Whomever the joke may be on in the proposed destruction of Heligoland, the Gibraltar of the North, it is not on the old Father Neptune. What the council of four would now like to do in wiping out forever this important stronghold of the Germans is in line with the destructive work which the ocean had been carrying on slowly and relentlessly for hundreds of years, when it was stopped by the hand of man in the form of a great wall built since Germany's acquisition of the island from Great Britain twenty-nine years ago.

time friends of the monarch, namely, Bishop Adam, of Bremen, and the learned Alcuino, referred, in documents still in existence, to the character of the island as indicated in the chart. They also emphasized its religious character, whence its name of Heligoland, or Holy Land, and it is a matter of tradition that in the days of the old vikings the Goddess Herta had her temple on the island, to which people from all parts of Scandinavia and Frisia made pilgrimages; while St. Willibrod first preached Christianity there toward the close of the seventh century.

By the beginning of the fourteenth century the island had lost two-thirds of its area through the inroads of the stormy sea, which continued their ravages until in 1714 the size of the island had dwindled to 173 acres. Seventy years later the seas tore the island asunder, dividing it into the so-called Island and the Dune, and by the time Germany had taken possession, in 1890, the islands had still further shrunk to their present size of one-fifth of a square mile.

Father Neptune, peering out of the waves which dashed upon this bit of rock, then a bathing resort under the dominion of Great Britain, must have thought his work nearly done, for the Holy Land of medieval days was fast dwindling to nothingness. Then the Kaiser appeared and protected his newly acquired property from the invasion of the ocean at an enormous expense. He had all the fissures and caverns filled in with a particularly durable form of concrete. The cliffs, which rose to a height of about 200 feet, were faced with a tremendously strong granite and in part armor-plated wall, the masonry being yards in depth. The artificial barriers had power to withstand the power of the ocean, by which the natural walls of rock were being undermined. Moreover, by means of breakwaters the stretch of sea between the two islands was converted into a large and wonderfully protected harbor, later to serve as a base for the light cruisers and submarines of the German navy.

The cliffs were surmounted with disappearing forts of the most modern description, armed with immense Krupp guns. Equipped with sheds and hangars for Zeppelins and airplanes, Heligoland formed an ideal harbour for boats of the air as well as of the sea. The whole rock was pierced in every direction, like Gibraltar, with galleries and tunnels to admit of handling of the concealed guns, which literally bristled from every point of the island.

What will happen next to this fifth of a square mile, upon which Germany spent $50,000,000 in preparation for the great war? Although it has probably played a more important part during the events of the last five years than any other fifth of a square mile on the face of the earth, still to any country save Germany it would be a white elephant. For what is the use of such a rock, no matter how wonderfully fortified, if remote from all bases of supplies belonging to the same nation and within twenty-eight miles of an enemy country. Its fate might have been solved if the sea had been allowed to make invasion or if the allies had succeeded in blowing up the island during the war. Certain it is that had it remained in Great Britain's possession its value would have been negative rather than positive. Germany could not then have so completely fortified it before the outbreak of the war, but, on the other hand, Great Britain would unquestionably have lost it soon after the outbreak of activities and it would have been of little actual use.

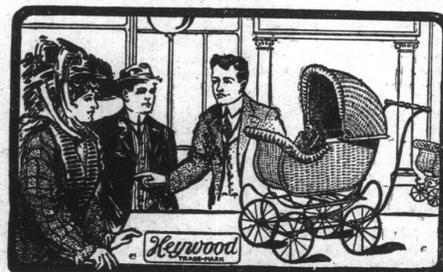

The fact that Britain of her own free will gave over Heligoland to Germany a quarter of a century ago is interesting as indicating the lack of fear then existing in Great Britain of the empire across the sea. It was then consulted by Lord Salisbury, Premier and Foreign Minister, who made the transaction without the knowledge of parliament. It was generally felt at the time in both England and Germany that Great Britain was getting decidedly the best of the bargain in the North Sea for African territories, including the spice lands and fruitful soils of Zanzibar, Wituland and Uganda. Much weight was given to the opinion of Sir Henry M. Stanley, then the eminent authority on all questions relating to the dark continent. He had been consulted by Lord Salisbury about the transaction and publicly declared that Great Britain had secured an entire suit of clothes, indeed a whole outfit of clothes, in return for "a mere trouser button."—Ex.

When Flying's Come What Right Has the (Buffalo Commercial.)

A writer in the Little Rock, Arkansas, Gazette, discusses with considerable interest and genuine knowledge some of the troubles and trials of the earth dweller when flying comes a common method of locomotion.

For instance, it may be asked, what rights has the owner of a house against a navigator flying over his roof? Again, "if a chauffeur can be arrested and fined for driving his car past your bedroom windows with his muffler open, why should an aviator not be forbidden to fly over your roof with the sleep-waking rattle of his engine running without a muffler?" And still again, suppose an aviator "drops a monkey-wrench from five thousand feet in the air and cracks your child's skull—how do you identify the owner of the plane or prove that the monkey-wrench was dropped by him?"

The Inter-Allied Air Commission is working on aviation problems in Paris and will institute a system of marks for aviators, a meteorological service and a system of education in aviation. People interested in aviation have suggested a number of questions that must be settled by some authority and settled before long.

1—How shall we fix the limit too placed on a landowner's ownership of his land?

2—Should not a property-owner have the protection of the law against the noise-nuisance of the air machines?

3—How can a man's legal privacy be protected against the prying eyes of the air-machine passengers?

4—If the old rule is maintained individuals and corporations owning air above their property and similar protection against trespass, should they be taxed for the air as they are for the land and how much?

5—If several machines are flying at the same time over a man's land and one of them drops a monkey-wrench or other object and injures him or one of his family or his property, how is he going to place the responsibility?

6—Can we regulate the use of telescopes and photographic apparatus by aviators flying over private property? The powerful photographic instruments now used by aviators give a clear view of intimate personal affairs that are happening on the earth miles below.

7—When a machine is flying high, how is a land owner to determine exactly and to a legal definiteness whether or not it is over his property and thus guilty of trespass?

8—The state can tax the land and take it for public use under certain conditions from private owners by payments of a reasonable sum. Can the state do the same with the air?

9—Assuming that the use of the air by airplanes constitute trespass against owners of property lying beneath, what would prevent unscrupulous capitalists from buying a circle of land about every great city, thus isolating it and preventing airplanes from entering the city at all?

When Flying is Common, What Right Has the Aviator

(Buffalo Commercial.)

A writer in the Little Rock, Arkansas, Gazette, discusses with considerable interest and genuine knowledge some of the troubles and trials of the earth dweller when flying becomes a common method of locomotion.

For instance, it may be asked, what rights has the owner of a house against a navigator flying over him? Again, "if a chauffeur can be arrested and fined for driving his noisy car past your bedroom windows with his muffler open, why should an aviator not be forbidden to fly over your roof with the sleep-waking rattle and bang of his engine running without a muffler?" An Inter-Allied Air Commission is working on aviation problems in Paris and will institute a system of marks for aviators, a meteorological service and a system of education in air navigation. People interested in aviation have suggested a number of questions that must be settled by some authority and settled before long. The writer in the Little Rock daily calls attention to several of these interesting new problems:

1—How shall we fix the limit to be placed on a landowner's ownership above his land?

2—Should not a property-owner have the protection of the law against the noise-annoyance of the air machines?

3—How can a man's legal privacy be protected against the prying eyes of the air-machine passengers?

4—If the old rule is maintained and individuals and corporations own the air above their property and claim protection against trespass, should they be taxed for the air as they are for the land and how much?

5—If several machines are flying at the same time over a man's land and one of them drops a monkey-wrench or other object and injures him or one of his family or his property, how is he going to place the responsibility?

6—Can we regulate the use of telescopes and photographic apparatus by aviators flying over private property? The powerful photographic instruments now used by aviators give a clear view of intimate personal affairs that are happening on the earth miles below.

7—When a machine is flying high, how is a land owner to determine exactly to a legal definiteness whether or not it is over his property and thus guilty of trespass?

8—The state can tax the land and take it for public use under certain conditions from private owners by payments of a reasonable sum. Can the state do the same with the air?

9—Assuming that the use of the air by airplanes constitute trespass against owners of property lying beneath, what would prevent unscrupulous capitalists from buying a circle of land about every great city, thus isolating it and preventing air-machines from entering the city at all?

10—If a man owns a very narrow strip of land it is not considered trespass if a neighbor jumps over it. How much more trespass is it if a machine flies over a proportionately wide strip?

11—If an aviator is flying just above the wind, can he claim that he is in the same air that he was when he started on his trip?

12—It is admitted that railroads operating under franchise from the state endanger the safety of the public. Can not the state give airships a similar right to navigate?

13—Shall hunting and shooting from airplanes of shore-birds and animals that roam the open be forbidden?

14—What provisions against crime can be made in the matter of aerial navigation? In times of industrial or social disturbances, when it is necessary to keep watchful guard over such places as reservoirs, railway bridges, arsenals and the like, could not a member of the trouble-making element drop poison or dynamite from a plane overhead and thus stultify the guard?

15—If a man had a grudge against another, what is to prevent him making a night flight and dropping dynamite on his enemy's property, demolishing it and probably killing the occupants?

16—What rules and regulations can be devised to make air traffic safe? What signals will be necessary? If certain air "highways" are not designated and followed, who is to prevent collisions in midair when planes become numerous?

17—What system of examination and licensing of pilots could be rigid enough to prevent danger to person and property due to accidents resulting from over-confidence and carelessness of pilots?

18—What system of aerial policing could be devised for the apprehension of law-breakers in the air? Will aerial traffic stations be installed for the prevention of speeding and joy riding? Would it be possible to contrive some such arrangement as the auto-trap? How can license numbers be shown large enough to be practical?

19—If the air police are inadequate or helpless to apprehend trespassers or marauders, shall landowners be allowed to have the protection of a cannon or machine gun and thus take the law into their own hands, as in the practice on land?

20—If an aviator is flying high and commits a crime, how can we decide what county or state has jurisdiction over him?

21—If a man sees a machine in the air and is certain that it is over his land, how can he have the pilot arrested?

22—Probably property-owners in New York and other large congested cities would not consider themselves trespassed upon by air craft, inasmuch as all that the pilots and passengers could see as the machine passed over the city would not consider themselves trespassers. On the other hand, farmers, mercantile establishments with part of their plant in the open, stock farms and such would consider it trespass. Where is the line to be drawn?

23—A ship in distress at sea can, if necessary discard any or all of its cargo and only fish are affected, but what would become of chimneys, church steeples, if a ship of the air were in similar predicament?

24—If airplanes and dirigibles are to be allowed free and unregulated passage through the air, what is to hinder the owners of apartment blocks and houses near ball grounds, race tracks, etc. from allowing capacious captive balloons to be hitched to their buildings while the occupants watch the sport?

25—What provision can be made for the protection of lumber yards, munition factories and the like against fire due to neglect or design on the part of air pilots? In taking preventive measures against fire or explosion would it be necessary to place "keep off" signs in clear view of approaching planes?

Philip Gibbs— Man and Writer.

During the war, the name of Philip Gibbs, the war correspondent, became a household word, both here and in America.

The following personal appreciation by Frank Dillon, a fellow journalist, who has known him for seventeen years, and which appeared originally in the New York Times, tells us something of the personality of the man who is claimed to have shown in his writings from the front "the picturesqueness of Stevenson with the human appeal of J. M. Barrie."

I think Philip Gibbs' eyes give the most direct message of his personality. He is fortunate, however, in possessing a voice which gives more than a hint of himself. It is deep and melodious in inflection, which admirably serves his wit and feeling. If he had not these natural gifts, he would be at a loss to reveal himself except by his pen, for he is the most modest and companionable of men, one who never strives to display himself, who would be contemptuous of any histrionic acquirement, and whom it is impossible to conceive as studying to show himself off to the best advantage.

Many-Sided Talent.

Philip Gibbs is something more than a newspaper man, although it is through newspapers that latterly his genius has found its wider appeal. He has written many books; one is a history of the French Revolution, another the story of George Villiers, first Duke of Buckingham. He has some well-known essays in his record. He was part author of a play called "Menders of Nets," which was produced at two theatres in London. He has written several novels, among them "Intellectual Mansions," "The Spirit of Revolt," and another, "The Street of Adventure." The latter particularly appeals to newspaper men, because it reveals the inner side of that active human phase of London life comprised in the words "Fleet Street."

Philip Gibbs smokes a large quantity of cigarettes, is fond of chess as a recreation, and loves country life and children. He talks about men as well as or even better than he talks about books, which is saying a very great deal.

The philosophic "No."

Withal he is a philosopher. In the middle of the war, when his reputation was rising to great heights, he was sitting in a billet one day playing a game of chess with a literary man, when the latter received a cable from England from one of the wealthiest publishing corporations in that country asking him to use his influence to secure Gibbs at a princely salary as a correspondent. He handed the cable to Gibbs, who was deep in the game. "What's your answer?" he said. Gibbs read the cable, handed it back, and uttered the one word, "No," and then moved a pawn and bent himself to the game once more.

All those who know Philip Gibbs intimately will agree that this story is typical of the man.—Jack London's Weekly.

Planting Trees With Dynamite.

How the Explosive Should be Used.

There has been a good deal of talk of late about the value of explosives as fertiliser. It is quite true that ordinary black powder will make most crops grow, but you can't very well plough dynamite into the ground. Few people, at any rate, would care to risk doing so.

For all that, dynamite and similar explosives are going to be of the greatest possible value to the farmer, and especially to men who till stiff, rocky, or unproductive ground.

There is much land in and around the New Forest which is underlaid by a thin layer of tough clay or rock which holds the rain and prevents it from draining away. Nothing grows well upon land of this kind, because the roots cannot penetrate the layer of "hard pan."

Here is where dynamite comes in. You can either use a number of small charges and break up a large expanse, or—if you are planting trees—you can make each hole separately with explosive.

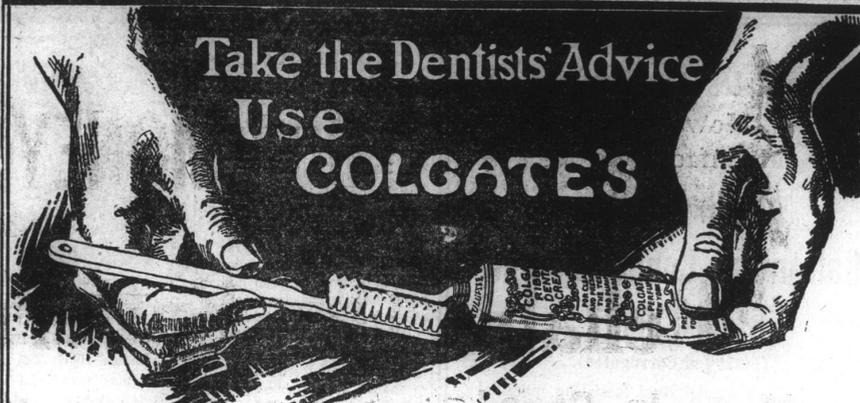

Trees, especially apple, pear, plum, and cherry, that are planted with dynamite grow nearly twice as fast as trees planted with pick and shovel. The dynamite, exciting its force downwards, opens up deep fissures into which the roots can penetrate.

As for ordinary crops such as wheat, actual experiments show that ground broken up by dynamite will yield 50 per cent. larger crops than ground ploughed in the usual manner.

COLGATE'S

COLGATE'S Does ALL a safe Dentifrice Should Do—it cleans the teeth.

No dentifrice can take the place of the dentist. Any preparation that seeks to do the dentists' work usually contains strong drugs or harsh grit—harmful to the enamel of the teeth. And think of the effect of such risky chemicals on the tender membranes of your mouth!

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream cleans thoroughly, safely, washing the teeth without harmful grit, or the use of strong drugs.

You, too, should use COLGATE'S—it's safe.

In No Hurry.

Sir Nevil Macready, himself descended from an old and distinguished Highland family, is fond of telling the story of how he once saw and heard a "brither Scot," one Donald MacGregor, arouse wild enthusiasm at an Aberdeen political meeting.

"There was a day," commenced the speaker "on which an ancestor of mine was hanged."

Loud applause (says Sir Nevil) greeted this tragic statement.

Then he went on: "I could have no doubt it was for stealing." Considering the way in which the MacGregors of old got their living, the suggestion was a very probable one. It was received with thunderous cheering.

Then: "But as he was a distinguished chief, he was allowed to select the tree on which he was to be executed; and with great presence of mind, he selected a gooseberry-bush. It was at once objected that it was not big enough. But he said, with dignity, 'Let it grow, I'm in no hurry.'

Traded Boy for Donkey.

Bit of Chinese Life With a Very Interesting Sequel.

Some years ago a Chinaman was confronted with the problem of securing a donkey without available means to purchase it with. He had a number of children and would not be able to support them unless he could secure the animal with which to work in his attempt to keep starvation from his door.

On pondering the matter he decided that the donkey could serve his purpose better than could any of the children in the family. He therefore arranged an exchange, giving a son of his into slavery that he might gain possession of the animal as a means of support for the rest of the family. It happened that the lad was rescued from the life of slavery and placed in a Methodist institution.

Quite recently one of our Methodist missionaries had occasion to address the student body of a large Chinese school. His interpreter won his admiration by his quickness and by his accuracy, and he inquired into the matter. The missionary discovered that this was the boy who had at one time been exchanged for a donkey, grown into young manhood and beginning a professional career of large usefulness to that community of his needy people.—The Methodist.

Evening gowns have bodices of white lace and skirts of black maline. More elaborate styles of dresses and gayer colors are promised for fall.

Most frocks are without lining, following the graceful lines of the figure.

Some of the smartest frocks have been influenced by the Chinese costume.

Bold striped effects in black and white and gray are seen in suits from Paris.

Dresses of simple dotted cottons are finished with cotton soutache braid.

Long-haired turs, like monkey and gray hare, are preferred for trimming.

Fullness at the hem of the long coat is a feature of the coming autumn fashions.

Spangles, beads, ostrich and fringe are especially favored among trimmings.

Changeable taffeta in bright shades of blue and green makes charming hats.

A charming hat of full black satin is lined with white and sprinkled with Christmas roses.

Full-length redingotes, double-breasted and fitted, are likely to be here in the autumn.
